3. — having itching ears;] To hear sermons only with curiosity is, it may be feared, a very common case. We want to have some fashionable controversy discussed, some difficult passage of Scripture explained, some darling speculation enlarged on, some plausible hypothesis proposed: in a word, something told us, that may prove a pleasing exercise of our understandings at the time, and a help to conversation afterwards. Discourses, of which we can make this use, we seldom think of putting to any better; of such as we cannot we soon grow weary, and hearken impatiently after other teachers, "having," as the Apostle expresses it, "itching ears." Thus we pay most earnest attention to what we hear; and receive absolutely no good from it. For filling our heads in this manner is rather the way to corrupt our hearts, than to amend them. Learning and ingenuity are doubtless of great service in explaining, defending, and adorning religion. But still the things, which a serious man will choose to have most insisted on in the pulpit, are those which he is most concerned to practise, and most liable to fail in, the plain common rules of a Christian life. Abp. Secker.

4. — shall be turned unto fables.] The Apostle is most probably here speaking of the Jewish doctors, and their fabulous traditions. Compare 1 Tim. i. 3, 4; Tit. i. 14. Dr. Whitby.

5. — do the work of an evangelist,] That is, preacher of the Gospel. Dr. Wells. Go on in the work of your Gospel ministry. Pyle. The proper notion of "an Evangelist" in the Acts and St. Paul's epistles is one who was eminently qualified to preach the Gospel, and had taken great pains therein. Wheatly.

6. For I am now ready to be offered, &c.] St. Paul here assigns as a reason for the particular warmth of his exhortations to Timothy, that he himself expected shortly to be taken from him, and to become a sacrifice to the malice and obstinacy of his persecutors. Pyle.

A full assurance of salvation is that which very few of the best of Christians can boast of. Indeed this seems not expedient in any man but him who is near the end of his race; who, having fought a good fight perseveringly against the world, the devil, and the flesh, is now ready to go off the stage, and to take his crown of glory, the reward of his glorious combat: which seems to have been the case of St. Paul on this occasion. It is the opinion of very learned interpreters, that St. Paul was warned by an oracle or revelation from heaven of his near approaching martyrdom, after the manner that St. Peter was, 2 Pet. i. 14. St. Paul, being thus "ready to be offered," that is, to suffer martyrdom for Christ's sake, and having, through the whole course of his life, had experience of the grace of God carrying him through a multitude, an infinite variety of sufferings, with honour and victory, was assured that he should not fail in this last act, but that the same grace would complete his former victories with a crown of martyrdom. This assurance was necessary in him at this time, to support him in his last trial, and there was now no danger that he should abuse it. But before this, when the blessed Apostle was farther off from the end of his race and combat, he speaks in a more doubtful manner: "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway;" that is, a reprobate, 1 Cor. ix. 27. St. Paul cannot be supposed at that time, when he wrote this, to be absolutely certain of his salvation. Indeed such an assurance, as was said before, seems no ways expedient for any man who is yet in the midst of his combat with the adversaries of his soul, the devil, the world, and the flesh; because it would be apt to betray him to security. The case in this particular is much the same between the life of our bodies and the salvation of our souls. If Divine Providence should give any man an absolute assurance of a very long life, he would be apt to neglect the means of his health, and to take no care for the preserving of his life. So if God should give a man beforehand assurance of his perseverance to the end, and in consequence of his salvation, it would probably make him careless and negligent in the use of the means appointed for his perseverance; namely, watching and praying. Bp. Bull.

Truth it is, that in the sacraments instituted by Christ, we may constantly believe the works of God in them, to our present com-

Anno DOMINI 66.

7 I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith:

8 Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing.

9 Do thy diligence to come shortly unto me:

10 For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world, and is departed unto Thessalonica; Crescens to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia.

11 Only Luke is with me. Take Mark, and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the ministry.

12 And Tychicus have I sent to Ephesus.

13 The cloke that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comest, bring with thee, and the books, but especially the parchments.

14 Alexander the coppersmith did me much evil: the Lord reward him according to his works:

Anno DOMINI 66.

15 Of whom be thou ware also; for he hath greatly withstood ‖ our words.

‖ Or, our preachings.

16 At my first answer no man stood with me, but all men forsook me: I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge.

17 Notwithstanding the Lord stood with me, and strengthened me; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion.

18 And the Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

19 Salute Prisca and Aquila, and the houshold of Onesiphorus.

20 Erastus abode at Corinth: but Trophimus have I left at Miletum sick.

21 Do thy diligence to come before win-

---

fort and application of His grace and favour, with assurance also that He will not fail us, if we fall not from Him. Wherefore so continuing in the state of grace with Him, we may believe undoubtedly to be saved. But forasmuch as our own frailty and naughtiness ought ever to be feared in us, it is therefore expedient for us to live in continual watch and continual fight with our enemies, the devil, the flesh, and the world; and not to presume too much of our perseverance and continuance in the state of grace, which in our behalf is uncertain and unstable. For although God's promises made in Christ be immutable, yet He maketh them not to us but with condition; so that, His promise standing, we may yet fail of the promise, because we keep not our promise. Abp. Cranmer.

7. I have fought a good fight, &c.] My life is a warfare; and, behold, I have fought a good fight, having striven for the Gospel zealously and effectually: my life is a race; and I have run my course, even to the very goal, constantly and happily: I have maintained and defended the truth of Christ's Gospel inviolably. Bp. Hall. The first metaphor is taken from a soldier; the second from a strenuous and indefatigable runner at the Olympick games; (see the note on 1 Cor. ix. 25:) the third from depositaries, who faithfully keep things committed to their trust without embezzlement. This deposit, the Christian faith, St. Paul had kept. Burkitt.

8. — a crown of righteousness,] Having compared his labours as an Apostle to the exertions of the combatants in the games, he represents his reward under the idea of a crown, because that was the reward bestowed on the victors in these combats. Dr. Macknight. "A crown of righteousness," because given only to righteous men. Burkitt.

—— at that day:] The great day of the Lord, when He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. Burkitt.

—— unto all them also that love his appearing.] Namely, all such who are conscious of having so sincerely performed their duty, as to wish for that happy day of Christ's final judgment. Pyle.

10. For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world,] That is, his own ease, his own safety and profit. Bp. Hall. His temporal safety. The ancients explain this by saying, that he left the Apostle in this time of danger, consulting the safety of his own life. Dr. Whitby.

—— Crescens to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia.] These two did not desert St. Paul, as Demas did; but went to preach the Gospel. Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

11. Only Luke is with me.] The Apostle meant, 'that of his fellow-labourers and assistants in Rome,' St. Luke alone remained with him. For, from ver. 21, where the salutations of some of the Roman brethren by name are mentioned, it appears that the Apostle had many friends still in Rome, members of the church there, with whom he was allowed to have some intercourse. For the character of St. Luke, see Col. iv. 14. note 1. Dr. Macknight.

13. — especially the parchments.] These, as the learned interpreters generally conclude, were St. Paul's commonplace books, wherein he had written down what he had observed, as worthy of more especial notice, in the reading either of the Scriptures of the Old Testament, or of other books, for the help of his memory. Bp. Bull.

14. — the Lord reward him according to his works:] I leave him to God, to be recompensed as he deserves. Pyle. All the ancients note that this is not an imprecation, but a prediction becoming an Apostle. Who this Alexander was is uncertain. Dr. Whitby. Compare 2 Chron. xxiv. 22; and see the note there.

16. At my first answer] Or defence of myself at Rome. Dr. Wells.

—— all men forsook me:] The cruelty, which Nero or his prefect Helius Cæsarianus was now exercising against the Christians, so terrified the Apostle's fellow-labourers, that none of them appeared with him in the court. Dr. Macknight.

—— I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge.] This prayer shews the excellence of the Apostle's disposition. He was sensible of the danger to which his assistants would have exposed themselves, by appearing with him at his trial; he knew likewise the infirmity of human nature. And therefore he made great allowances for their yielding in such circumstances, and prayed that they might be forgiven, as Christ prayed His Father to forgive those who crucified Him. Dr. Macknight.

17. — and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion.] Commonly thought to signify Nero, so styled because of his cruelty. But it may be only a proverbial expression, signifying some great and imminent danger. Dr. Hammond.

18. — to whom be glory for ever and ever.] This doxology, addressed to the Lord Jesus, is in other passages addressed to God the Father, Rom. xvi. 27; 1 Tim. i. 17. By introducing it here, the Apostle declared the greatness of his trust in the goodness and power of the Lord Jesus, and his sincere gratitude to Him, for having honoured him to be His Apostle, and for promising him a place in His heavenly kingdom. Dr. Macknight.

19. — Prisca] Elsewhere called Priscilla: the latter was probably the diminutive of the former name, and both were perhaps indifferently given to the same person. Dr. Wells.

Anno DOMINI 66. ter. Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.

22 The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

¶ The second epistle unto Timotheus, ordained the first bishop of the church of the Ephesians, was written from Rome, when Paul was brought before Nero the second time. Anno DOMINI 66.

The following Verses from The Second Epistle to Timothy are appointed as an Epistle on a Holyday.

CHAP. IV. - ver. 5—15, Saint Luke, - - - - Epistle.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL

TO TITUS.

INTRODUCTION.

IT is remarkable that Titus is not mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles. The few particulars which are known of him are collected from the Epistles of St. Paul. We learn from them, that he was a Greek, Gal. ii. 3; but it is not recorded to what city or country he belonged. From St. Paul's calling him "his own son after the common faith," Tit. i. 4, it is concluded that he was converted by the Apostle; but we have no account of the time or place of his conversion. He is first mentioned as going from Antioch to the council at Jerusalem in the year 49, Gal. ii. 1, &c.; and upon that occasion St. Paul says that he would not allow him to be circumcised, because he was born of Gentile parents. He probably accompanied St. Paul in his second Apostolical journey, and from that time he seems to have been constantly employed by him in the propagation of the Gospel: he calls him "his partner and fellowhelper," 2 Cor. viii. 23. St. Paul sent him from Ephesus with his first Epistle to the Corinthians, and with a commission to inquire into the state of the church at Corinth: and he sent him thither again from Macedonia, with his second Epistle, and to forward the collection for "the saints in Judea." From this time we hear nothing of Titus, till he was left by St. Paul in Crete, after his first imprisonment at Rome, to "set in order the things that were wanting, and to ordain elders in every city," Tit. i. 5. It is probable that he went thence to join St. Paul at Nicopolis, Tit. iii. 12: that they went together to Crete to visit the churches there, and thence to Rome. During St. Paul's second imprisonment at Rome, Titus went into Dalmatia, 2 Tim. iv. 10: and after the Apostle's death he is said to have returned into Crete, and to have died there in the 94th year of his age. He is often called bishop of Crete by ecclesiastical writers. St. Paul always speaks of Titus in terms of high regard; and entrusted him, as we have seen, with commissions of great importance.

It is by no means certain from what place St. Paul wrote this Epistle. But as he desires Titus to come to him at Nicopolis, most probably the city so called in Epirus; and declares his intention of passing the winter there; some have supposed that when he wrote it he was in the neighbourhood of that city, either in Greece or Macedonia: others have imagined that he wrote it from Colosse, but it is difficult to say upon what ground. It was probably written about the year 64.

It is not known at what time a Christian church was first planted in Crete: but as some Cretans were present at the first effusion of the Holy Ghost at Jerusalem, Acts ii. 11, it is not improbable that at their return home they might be the means of introducing the Gospel among their countrymen. Crete is said to have abounded with Jews: and from the latter part of the first chapter of this Epistle it appears, that many of them were persons of very profligate lives, even after they had embraced the Gospel.

The principal design of this Epistle was to give instructions to Titus concerning the management of the churches in the different cities of the island of Crete; and it was probably intended to be read publickly to the Cretans, that they might know upon what authority Titus acted. St. Paul after his usual salutation intimates, that he was appointed an Apostle by the express command of God, and reminds Titus of the reason of his being left in Crete: he describes the qualifications necessary for bishops, and cautions him against persons of bad principles, especially Judaizing teachers, whom he directs Titus to rebuke with severity, chap. i.; he informs him what instructions he should give to people in different situations of life, and exhorts him to be exemplary in his own conduct; he points out the pure and practical nature of the Gospel, chap. ii, and enumerates some particular virtues which he was to inculcate, avoiding foolish questions and frivolous disputes: he tells him how he is to behave towards hereticks, and concludes with salutations, chap. iii. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI 65.

CHAP. I.

1 For what end Titus was left in Crete. 6 How they that are to be chosen ministers ought to be qualified. 11 The mouths of evil teachers to be stopped: 12 and what manner of men they be.

PAUL, a servant of God, and an apostle of Jesus Christ, according to the faith of God's elect, and the acknowledging of the truth which is after godliness; Anno DOMINI 65.

Chap. I. The title and salutation. The design of St. Paul's leaving Titus bishop in Crete, and of this Epistle to him; namely, to ordain church ministers, and to reduce that church to a regularity in opinion and practice, especially the Judaizing part of it, who were more zealous about Jewish traditions and ceremonies, than the substantial matters of Christianity. The good qualifications of a church governour. A bad character of the Cretans, particularly the Jewish inhabitants of that island. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — according to the faith of God's elect,] That is, For the promotion of the faith of God's elect, namely, of Christians in general, they being all "a chosen (an elect) generation," 1 Pet. ii. 9. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 65.

2 In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world
‖ Or, For. began;

3 But hath in due times manifested his word through preaching, which is committed unto me according to the commandment of God our Saviour;

4 To Titus, mine own son after the common faith: Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ our Saviour.

5 For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things
‖ Or, left undone. that are ‖ wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee:

6 If any be blameless, the husband of one wife, having faithful children, not accused of riot, or unruly.

7 For a bishop must be blameless, as the steward of God; not selfwilled, not soon
[a] 1 Tim. 3. 3. angry, not [a] given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre;

8 But a lover of hospitality, a lover of
‖ Or, good things. ‖ good men, sober, just, holy, temperate;

9 Holding fast the faithful word ‖ as he
‖ Or, in teaching. hath been taught, that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers.

10 For there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, specially they of the circumcision:

11 Whose mouths must be stopped, who subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake.

12 One of themselves, even a prophet of their own, said, The Cretians are alway liars, evil beasts, slow bellies. Anno DOMINI 65.

13 This witness is true. Wherefore rebuke them sharply, that they may be sound in the faith;

14 Not giving heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, that turn from the truth.

15 Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled.

16 They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work ‖ reprobate. ‖ Or, void of judgment.

CHAP. II.

1 Directions given unto Titus both for his doctrine and life. 9 Of the duty of servants, and in general of all Christians.

BUT speak thou the things which become sound doctrine:

2 That the aged men be ‖ sober, grave, ‖ Or, vigilant. temperate, sound in faith, in charity, in patience.

3 The aged women likewise, that they be in behaviour as becometh ‖ holiness, not ‖ Or, holy women. ‖ false accusers, not given to much wine, ‖ Or, makebates. teachers of good things;

4 That they may teach the young women to be ‖ sober, to love their husbands, ‖ Or, wise. to love their children,

---

2. — before the world began;] It seems more natural to refer this to the promise made by the Father to Christ in the covenant of redemption, than to explain it of the promise made, quickly after the creation, to our fallen parents, Gen. iii. 15. Dr. Doddridge.

5. — and ordain elders in every city,] That by thine episcopal authority thou mightest ordain presbyters in every city of that populous island. Bp. Hall.

11. Whose mouths must be stopped,] Not by force, but by confutation. Burkitt. All proper means must be used to stop their mouths, particularly by endeavouring to convince them of their errours, or else to convince others thereof, so that they may not be subverted by these false teachers. Dr. Wells.

12. — a prophet of their own,] Perhaps Epimenides, for this is by no means certain; as being supposed by his countrymen the Cretans to speak by Divine inspiration, and therefore being highly respected by them. It is well known that most of the heathen poets, imitating the Prophets of the true God, laid claim to a divine inspiration. Parkhurst. The passage may be thus paraphrased: One of their own poets, even Epimenides, prophesied truly of them, when he said of them, though upon another occasion, &c. Bp. Hall.

—— evil beasts, slow bellies.] "Evil beasts," that is, men of a brutal disposition, thirsting for blood, and intent on nothing but their own advantage. "Slow bellies," that is, men given up to sloth, and intemperate and luxurious in their way of living. Schleusner.

15. Unto the pure all things are pure:] As if he had said, Notwithstanding all that such men say or command concerning unclean meats, or persons, or things; it is to be known, that unto the pure Christian, whether Jew or Gentile, who useth nothing but agreeably to the rules of the Gospel, namely, to temperance, and the like, all things, that he so useth, are pure or not sinful in their use. Dr. Wells. If the Apostle be thought to be not speaking in this and the preceding verse of the Judaizers, who insisted that the precepts of the law of Moses concerning meats were still obligatory, he may be supposed to have alluded to those Pythagorean Gentiles and Essene Jews, who before their conversion thought it sinful to eat any kind of animal food, and who since their conversion still continued in the same persuasion. Dr. Macknight.

—— unbelieving] Unfaithful, treacherous, though they were pretended believers. Pyle. Unfaithful as Christians. Parkhurst. The Apostle is not speaking of unbelievers or heathens, but of such believers as were unfaithful to Christ, by living in intemperance and debauchery. Dr. Macknight.

16. They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him,] See the note on Deut. xxxiii. 9.

—— unto every good work reprobate.] Stupid and injudicious as to every good work. Pyle. See the note on Rom. i. 28. Or useless, inefficient, not fit to produce any good work. Schleusner. See the note on 2 Tim. iii. 8.

Chap. II. In this chapter St. Paul sets forth the duties of old men and women, of young men and servants; and charges Titus to be to all these, and especially to young persons, an example of wisdom and virtue. The Apostle then gives an excellent abridgment of the Christian doctrine, and shews what is the design of it. Ostervald.

Anno DOMINI 65.

5 To be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed.

‖ Or, discreet.

6 Young men likewise exhort to be ‖sober minded.

7 In all things shewing thyself a pattern of good works: in doctrine shewing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity,

8 Sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you.

Anno DOMINI 65.

9 Exhort servants to be obedient unto their own masters, and to please them well in all things; not ‖ answering again;

‖ Or, gainsaying.

10 Not purloining, but shewing all good fidelity; that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

11 For the grace of God ‖ that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men,

‖ Or, that bringeth salvation to all men, hath appeared.

12 Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world;

Ver. 5. — keepers at home,] To look after domestick affairs with prudence and care. Dr. Doddridge observes, that Elsner has shewn in a learned note on this place, that the original word is used by several of the best authors to express both these ideas. It is well remarked by Leigh, that our English word 'housewife' answers the Greek word in this place. Parkhurst.

—— that the word of God be not blasphemed.] Or evil spoken of on account of any misbehaviour in them. Dr. Wells. But that by their conjugal affection, their care in educating their children, their chastity, their prudent economy, their sweetness of disposition, and subjection to their husbands, all founded on the principles of religion, they may do honour to the Gospel, which they profess to believe and obey. Dr. Macknight.

7. — in doctrine shewing uncorruptness, &c.] The doctrine to be preached must be "uncorrupt," pure, and free from all corrupt mixtures; it must be entire, so as to want nothing necessary to be known; it must be such as is "sound," wholesome, and beneficial to the hearers; it must be delivered with gravity and with care, that there be spoken nothing which may be subject to reprehension. And he that teacheth it must in his conversation practise suitably to what he teacheth, lest his own heart should inwardly condemn him, and he should be condemned both by God and man out of his own mouth. Dr. Whitby.

9. — not answering again;] Not crossing or contradicting what they are commanded; not insolently replying when they are reproved. Burkitt.

11, 12. For the grace of God &c.] For the gracious religion of the Gospel lays the same excellent duties of piety, justice, and sobriety, upon the lowest slave, as much as upon the highest master, equally respecting all ranks and degrees of mankind. Pyle.

The general scope and aim of Christianity is, by the mercy of God, founded on the merits of Christ, to bring men on through faith and godliness to salvation. It was not in the purpose of God in publishing the Gospel, and thereby freeing us from the personal obligation, rigour, and curse of the law, so to turn us loose and lawless, to do whatsoever should seem good in our own eyes, follow our own crooked wills, or gratify any corrupt lust: but to oblige us rather the faster by these new benefits, and to incite us the more effectually, by evangelical promises, to the earnest study and pursuit of godliness. The Gospel, though upon different grounds, bindeth us yet to our good behaviour in every respect as deep as ever the law did, if not in some respects deeper: allowing no liberty to the flesh for the fulfilling of the lusts thereof in any thing, but exacting entire sanctity and purity, both of inward affection, and of outward conversation, in all those that embrace it. "The grace of God," appearing in the revelation of this mystery, as it bringeth along with it an offer of "salvation to all men," so it "teacheth all men," who have any real purpose to lay hold on so gracious an offer, to "deny ungodliness and worldly lusts, and to live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world." Bp. Sanderson.

Were it required to produce from the Scriptures that passage, which exhibits in fewest words the fullest account of the nature and design of Christianity, this is perhaps the passage that should be fixed on for the purpose. Bp. Horne.

12. — denying ungodliness] Denying, disclaiming, renouncing, forsaking impiety; every species of irreligion; either disbelief of a Deity, or mistaken notions of His nature, attributes, providence, and of the manner in which He is to be worshipped; with all the erroneous and abominable practices consequent thereupon: how prejudicial these were to the interests of society, no one can be ignorant, to whom the history of the heathen world is in any degree known. And the case must be the same in every age. The actions of men must always take a deep tincture from the colour of their religious or irreligious principles. He who believes in a deity, of whatever kind, will endeavour to please, by imitating him; and he who believes in none, like the poor demoniack in the Gospel, easily bursts all other bands, neither can any man hold him. Bp. Horne.

—— and worldly lusts,] That is, those desires, as Grotius says, which the greater part of men follow: for in Scripture that greater part is often called by the name of "the world." Worldly lusts, or desires, are desires whose objects are worldly, and by worldly men coveted and sought after, by undue means, or in an inordinate manner, beyond the limits designed and appointed by God and nature. And what is it but the prosecution of such desires, that fills the world with wickedness and misery; producing luxury and extravagance among some; poverty and wretchedness among others; hateful quarrels and vexatious suits between individuals and families; ravaging and desolating wars between princes and kingdoms; factions and tumults in the state; and, we may add, generally heresies and divisions in the church, as the Apostle has somewhere classed them likewise among "the works of the flesh," Gal. v. 20. What is here required of us then is, to consult our own happiness, and that of others: let the desires, that are contrary to the commands of the Gospel, be examined, and it will be found that they cannot be satisfied without hurting human society: and if we are commanded to "deny worldly lusts," it is because they have deluged the earth with sin and sorrow. Bp. Horne.

The expression here is much the same with that in the sacrament of baptism, where the person baptized promises to "renounce the devil and all his works, the pomps and vanity of this wicked world, and all the sinful lusts of the flesh." Bp. Beveridge.

—— soberly, righteously, and godly,] The Apostle in this verse teaches us, that the summary of the Gospel doctrines is, to oblige us Christians to renounce and forsake all impious and licentious practices; and to perform all sorts of duties, reducible to three heads, towards ourselves, towards our brethren, towards God, sobriety, justice, and piety, all the time of our living here. Dr. Hammond.

Sobriety, righteousness, and godliness are represented by St. Paul as the great duties which the Gospel requires of us. Sobriety contains our duty to ourselves, and consists in the regulation of our appetites, passions, and desires, that our souls and bodies may be fit for the exercise of the functions, for which they were intended. Righteousness comprehends our duty to our neighbour, in its two principal branches, justice and charity, particular acts of which are veracity, sincerity, faithfulness, integrity, longsuffering, patience, forgiveness of injuries, liberality, and disinterestedness. Godliness is that part of our duty which relates to God, and shews itself in love and faith, reliance, resignation, gratitude, pious fear, and humility. Dr. Jortin.

Anno DOMINI 65.

13 Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ;

14 Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

15 These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee.

CHAP. III.

1 Titus is yet further directed by Paul, both concerning the things he should teach, and not teach. 10 He is willed also to reject obstinate hereticks: 12 which done, he appointeth him both time and place, wherein he should come unto him, and so concludeth.

Anno DOMINI 65.

PUT them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready to every good work,

2 To speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, shewing all meekness unto all men.

3 For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice

---

Christianity would have all men to be temperate, sober, pure, industrious, meek, peaceable, just, and loving; in which case paradise would again spring up amongst us, and earth would be a lively image of heaven. In one word, were it perfectly obeyed, it would establish the happiness that is attainable here below: and to it, imperfectly as it is practised, is owing the quietness, security, and good order, that a great part of the world now enjoys. Bp. Horne.

—— in this present world;] Intimating that the present world, in which we live, is a state of probation for the future world. Dr. Macknight.

13. — of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ;] Of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ. Bp. Hall, Dr. Hammond. It is highly probable, that Jesus Christ is here styled "the great God:" 1st, Because in the original the article is placed only before "great God," and therefore seems to require this construction, 'the appearance of Jesus Christ, the great God and our Saviour.' 2dly, Because as God the Father is not said properly to appear, so the word, here rendered "appearance," never occurs in the New Testament but when it is applied to Jesus Christ, and to some coming of His; the places, in which it is to be found, being only these: 2 Thess. ii. 8; 1 Tim. vi. 14; 2 Tim. i. 10; and iv. 1, 8. 3dly, Because Christ is emphatically styled "our hope," "the hope of glory," Col. i. 27; 1 Tim. i. 1. And lastly, Because not only all the ancient commentators on the place do so interpret this text, but the Ante-Nicene Fathers also: Hippolytus, speaking of 'the appearance of our God and Saviour Jesus Christ;' and Clement of Alexandria proving Christ to be both God and man, our Creator, and the Author of all our good things, from these very words of St. Paul. Dr. Whitby.

God has not told us that He will appear any other way in the last judgment than by Christ Jesus. God is a Spirit, and must take a body to appear to our eyes: and that God will assume a body distinct from the Lord Jesus, and appear in another body at the last judgment, is a bold presumption, and adding to God's word to suppose, and never was supposed but by those, who will invent extravagant and groundless suppositions to elude the plain texts of Scripture. Leslie.

14. Who gave himself for us,] "Who gave Himself," that is, who being the great God gave Himself to be made man, Phil. ii. 6, 7; and being God and man, He gave Himself to be betrayed, apprehended, accused, condemned, crucified, not only in appearance, but really and truly. And He gave Himself voluntarily, freely, of His own accord, without any force, violence, or compulsion from any other. Judas indeed betrayed Him to the Jews, but his betraying Him had been in vain, unless Christ had given Himself, John xviii. 4, 5. Pilate delivered Him to the soldiers; but he could not have had that power over Him, unless Himself had given it him from above, John xix. 11. He was derided, scoffed at, accused, and condemned, as a malefactor; yet so that none could have spoken one word against Him, had not Himself given them breath to do it. He was crucified by the Jews, not because He could not help it, but because He would not. And when He was upon the cross, He died indeed, not because He could not save His own life, but because He chose to save our lives: for He voluntarily gave up the ghost, after He had cried with a loud voice, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My Spirit." All was still done with His own will, as Himself also assures us, John x. 17, 18. And hence He is here said to have "given Himself." And His death being accepted of by God instead of ours, hence He is here said to have "given Himself for us," because He delivered up Himself to suffer that death which was due to us. Bp. Beveridge. See Matt. xx. 28; 1 Tim. ii. 6; and the notes there.

—— a peculiar people,] This is said in allusion to Exod. xix. 5, and Deut. vii. 6; where God calls the Jews "a peculiar" and "a special people unto Himself," because He had made them His property by "redeeming" them from the bondage of Egypt, and had distinguished them from the rest of mankind as His, by rites and ordinances of His own appointment. Christ hath made believers His peculiar people by giving Himself for them, to redeem them from all iniquity, and to purify to Himself a people zealous, not of rites and ceremonies, but of good works. This being the great end of Christ's death, how dare any person, pretending to be one of Christ's people, either to speak or to think lightly of good works, as not necessary to salvation? Dr. Macknight.

As Christ came to save us from hell, and to bring us to heaven, so in order thereunto He came to save us from our sins, and to make us holy. And therefore He expects, that all, who hope to be saved by Him, should be "a peculiar people, zealous of good works." He expects that we be eminent for piety and religion towards God, as also for charity and righteousness towards men; that we shine as lights in the world, Phil. ii. 15. He expects that we do not content ourselves with the bare profession of His religion, nor yet with reading the Scriptures, hearing sermons, and praying now and then: but that we strive and study to excel the heathenish moralists, the Jewish and Christian pharisees, yea, and our former selves too, in all true grace and virtue; in humility, in meekness, in temperance, in patience, in self-denial, in contempt of the world, in justice, in charity, in heavenly-mindedness, in faith, in praying, in "denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, and in living soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world," ver. 12. What remains, but that, knowing our Master's will, we should all do it? We see Christ came into the world to make us "His peculiar people, zealous of good works;" and such we must be, before ever we come to heaven. Bp. Beveridge.

15. — Let no man despise thee.] Let thy doctrine and behaviour be such in wisdom and gravity, as may preserve thee from all contempt. Burkitt. The Apostle does not say, as to Timothy, "despise thy youth," 1 Tim. iv. 12; whence it may be inferred that Titus was an older man than Timothy. Dr. Macknight.

Chap. III. St. Paul directs Christians to submit themselves to the higher powers, to slander no one, and to abound in meekness and charity even towards those who were enemies to the Christian religion; and to remember, that God in His great mercy had saved them, when they likewise lived in all kinds of irregularities. Secondly, he orders Titus to recommend particularly the practice of good works to those who had embraced Christianity; to oppose such as raised disputes in the church by foolish questions; and to shun those who formed sects and parties, and broached false and dangerous doctrines. He concludes with some particular directions to Titus. Ostervald.

Ver. 3. For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, &c.] That Anno DOMINI 65. and envy, hateful, and hating one another.

‖ Or, pity. 4 But after that the kindness and ‖ love of God our Saviour toward man appeared,

5 Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; Anno DOMINI 65.

6 Which he shed on us † abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; † Gr. richly.

7 That being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.

St. Paul here condemns himself as one formerly guilty of the vices here enumerated, is hardly consistent with the language in which he describes himself before his conversion, Acts xxiii. 1; 2 Tim. i. 3; Phil. iii. 6. Nothing is more common with the Apostle, than to speak thus in the person of those to whom he writes. See the note on Eph. ii. 3. Dr. Whitby. Being about to say disagreeable things, he classed himself with those of whom he wrote, according to his custom, to prevent their being offended with him. See the note on 1 Thess. iv. 15. The sentiment in this passage is beautiful; namely, that the recollection of our own faults ought to make us equitable in judging of the faults of others, and prevent us from passing severe sentences on them, when they fall into sin. Dr. Macknight.

5. Not by works of righteousness which we have done,] Namely, of our own natural strength, without the grace or assistance of the Holy Spirit. Dr. Wells. The Apostle here speaks of "works of righteousness done" before faith, before the laver of regeneration: but he does not in the least exclude the works of righteousness, which Christians should afterwards do, by virtue of the new nature given to them, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost, from being conditions of their future happiness. Dr. Whitby, Burkitt.

—— according to his mercy he saved us,] The meaning of the Apostle is, that God by His free mercy brought us from a state of wrath and condemnation into the way of salvation, in which if we walk and continue, we shall assuredly obtain salvation. Dr. Whitby. See the notes on 1 Cor. xv. 2; Eph. ii. 8.

—— by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost;] By the means of those holy ordinances which He hath appointed; and namely, as one of them, by the holy sacrament of baptism, which is the laver of our spiritual regeneration, yet not by any virtue of the outward sign, but by the inward renovation which is wrought in us by the Holy Ghost. Bp. Hall. By means of the baptismal covenant and sacrament, and of the Holy Ghost, then vouchsafed unto us as a principle of a new or holy life. Dr. Wells. "By the washing of regeneration" in baptism, "and" by the "renewing of the Holy Ghost" given then to the baptized. The Apostle, by "the laver of regeneration," understands that baptism, by which Christians, coming then from heathenism, engaged to renounce idolatry, the works of the flesh and of the world, and dedicated themselves to the service of the sacred Trinity, and testified their faith in Christ. See John iii. 5; Matt. xxviii. 19. From the beginning the word, here rendered "regeneration," was used to denote baptism, as Justin Martyr, Irenæus, and Clement of Alexandria, inform us. The same Apostle elsewhere ascribes this virtue to baptism, Eph. v. 26: see also 1 Pet. iii. 21. And all Christians are said to be "baptized by one Spirit," 1 Cor. xii. 13; who is here said to be plentifully poured out upon all believers. Dr. Whitby.

As we are not naturally men without birth, so neither are we Christian men in the eye of the church of God, but by new birth; nor, according to the manifest ordinary course of Divine dispensations, newborn, but by that baptism which both declareth and maketh us Christians. In which respect we justly hold it to be the door of our actual entrance into God's house, the first apparent beginning of life. Hooker.

That wonderful change in all our faculties, which is effected by the Spirit of Holiness, as it were annihilating our former selves, and making other creatures of us than we were before, is at its commencement called "regeneration." Not that this change is at once, or at all, perfected in this world, so that none of the dregs of our old nature and original corruption remain: our Christian course is only a "going on unto perfection," and not the arrival at it; it is the abounding more and more, 1 Thess. iv. 1, and not a full attainment. The guilt of original corruption may be blotted out, and the punishment remitted; but the stain continues, and sullies our best performances. The blood of Christ once shed did not wash it out; but the graces of the Holy Spirit, repeated and continued, gradually diminish it. So that regeneration, if it be applied to the whole and entire change of a man, is a progressive state, the perfection of which is in another world, the commencement and degrees in this. The commencement of it, when instead of children of wrath we are received into God's favour, and have the Spirit given us as a principle of new life, gradually to unfold itself hereafter, as we shall nourish and comply with it, is usually called more particularly our regeneration, as it is our being born of the Spirit, and is the first beginning of a new and spiritual life. The degrees of it, our growth in grace, and progress towards a perfect change of nature, as it is the daily alteration and improvement of our minds, is generally distinguished by the name of renovation, inducing by degrees a new form into the mind, and "renewing the inward man day by day," 2 Cor. iv. 16. Sometimes indeed renovation is used for the new birth, as Heb. vi. 4, 6, "It is impossible to renew them again unto repentance;" or there is no second baptism for them, because the first degree of our renovation begins at and with our regeneration: and therefore baptism here is equally assigned as the cause of each, "the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost." But both in the Scriptures, (except one text, Matt. xix. 28, may bear a doubt,) and in the writings of the Fathers, as far as I have been able to observe, regeneration means our being born again into God's family, and receiving in the graces of the Holy Ghost, a principle of new life, which is at baptism: and renovation is the gradual new formation of the mind, wrought by the continued presence and operation of the Holy Ghost, and not an instantaneous creation. Dr. Glocester Ridley.

We are hereby, that is, by baptism, made the children of grace; children of grace, and therefore enabled to do the works of grace. Which work flows not immediately from the sacrament, but from the power of Christ, and His Spirit that works by the sacrament. The rule of the school is sound and to be retained; that sacraments by resemblance represent, by institution signify, and by the power of Christ they sanctify. It is the Spirit alone that gives the thing, the grace here mentioned, to die to sin, and live to righteousness. Where it should be noted, 1st, That this death and new birth is not the resolution to forsake sin, and live a godly life; for this is supposed before baptism, and that which makes a man capable of it. 2dly, Neither is it an actual forsaking of sin, nor leading a new life, for that is a consequent of baptism, and must be done all the life after; till a man become a perfect man in Christ Jesus. 3dly, But this grace given in baptism is a supernatural ability to die to sin and live to righteousness, to empower us to make larger progresses in Christianity: which, though it will never be absolutely perfect in this life, yet it may enable us to perform such sincere obedience, that God will accept, pardoning all the faults and failings: and bound we are to improve this grace, and cooperate with it all our days. Bp. Beveridge.

7. —— being justified by his grace,] The Apostle in the next verse saith, "This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God should be careful to maintain good works." And as he here teaches us that we are "justified by grace," so does he instruct us, that this grace hath appeared for this very end, "to teach us, that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live righteously, soberly, and godly in this present world, looking for that blessed hope:" clearly intimating, that without living godly, righteously, and soberly, we cannot reasonably hope for happiness at our Lord's se-

Anno DOMINI 65.

8 This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God might be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men.

9 But avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain.

10 A man that is an heretick after the first and second admonition reject;

11 Knowing that he that is such is subverted, and sinneth, being condemned of himself.

12 When I shall send Artemas unto thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come unto me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter.

Anno DOMINI 65.

13 Bring Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey diligently, that nothing be wanting unto them.

14 And let our's also learn to ‖maintain good works for necessary uses, that they be not unfruitful.

‖ Or, profess honest trades.

15 All that are with me salute thee. Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ It was written to Titus, ordained the first bishop of the church of the Cretians, from Nicopolis of Macedonia.

---

cond coming. Wherefore these words could never have been intended to excuse Christians from a necessity of being holy, in order to their being happy. Dr. Whitby.

8. This is a faithful saying, &c.] The Apostle, having in the foregoing verses spoken of justification by grace without works of righteousness, here immediately gives a strict and solemn charge to Titus, to press the necessity of good works upon those who believe and embrace the Gospel, on purpose to prevent all mistake and abuse of the doctrine of justification by faith, and the free grace and mercy of God in Jesus Christ: intimating, that they, who are justified by the faith of the Gospel, should be so far from thinking themselves hereby excused from good works, that they ought on that account to be more careful to maintain and practise them, because, by the very profession of the Christian religion, they have solemnly engaged themselves so to do. From the Apostle's vehement asseveration, "This is a faithful saying," and from his solemn charge, "These things I will that thou affirm constantly," it appears that there have been persons in all ages, who have exalted the virtue of faith, if not intentionally, yet indiscreetly, to the prejudice and neglect of a good life: as if by a mere speculative belief and profession of Christianity men were discharged from the practice of moral duties. God grant that the decried morality of some persons may be an integral part of my religion! Burkitt.

—— to maintain good works.] That is, to practise them ourselves, and by our example and exhortation to encourage others to practise them; and to argue in their defence against those who speak of them slightingly, as not necessary to salvation. In this, as in other passages of Scripture, "good works" signify virtuous actions in general, but especially charitable and beneficent actions. See Matt. v. 16; John x. 33; 1 Tim. v. 10; vi. 18. Dr. Macknight.

9. But avoid foolish questions, &c.] See 1 Tim. i. 4, and the note there. And from the Apostle's language both there and here, learn this excellent rule; that disputes about matters, which only serve to beget strife and contention, but tend little to edification in the faith, or to "the edifying of the body in love," Eph. iv. 16, or to the promoting of that doctrine which is after godliness, 1 Tim. vi. 3, are vain talking and unprofitable disputes. Dr. Whitby, Burkitt.

10. A man that is an heretick] If any man teach or hold erroneously concerning the main points of Christian religion. Bp. Hall. An heretick is one, who takes up an opinion upon his own choice or judgment, and prefers it before the doctrine established in the church, and gathers and receives disciples or followers to himself, in opposition to, or separation and division from, the church: according to which the heretick is defined by that learned grammarian Hesychius, as 'he that chooseth to have some other opinion or doctrine, besides, or in opposition to, or in preference to, the truth.' The name, however, belongs, not only to those who are the first in disseminating a false doctrine, but to those also who endeavour to corrupt others, and draw them into the faction with them. Dr. Hammond.

—— reject;] That is, have no more to do with him, but excommunicate him. Dr. Wells.

11. — is subverted,] Or turned away from the truth, so as not to be reclaimed; "and sinneth" in the highest manner, as sinning against his own conscience, and so "being condemned of himself:" and therefore since this self-condemnation will not work upon him, there is no hope to think of reclaiming him by conviction. Dr. Wells.

—— being condemned of himself.] Or by his own conscience; as knowing that he acts in violation of such plain and important precepts of our Lord, as those contained in Matt. xxiii. 8, 10. Parkhurst.

12. — Artemas — Tychicus,] "Tychicus" is often mentioned in St. Paul's Epistles. Of "Artemas" we know nothing. Dr. Macknight.

—— Nicopolis:] Several cities of this name are mentioned in ancient authors: one, not far from Philippi, in Macedonia; another in Epirus, which took its rise and name from the victory of Augustus at Actium. It is uncertain which is here meant. Dr. Doddridge.

13. — Zenas the lawyer and Apollos] "Zenas" is mentioned in this passage only: he had formerly been a teacher of the law among the Jews, or he was a Roman lawyer. It would seem that "Zenas and Apollos" were to pass through Crete, either in their way to the Apostle, or to some other place whither he had sent them. He therefore desired Titus to help them forward on their journey. Dr. Macknight.

14. And let our's also learn to maintain good works &c.] And stir up those who profess themselves to be our disciples and well-willers, that they be ready and forward to do all works of charity and beneficence. Bp. Hall.

15. — Grace be with you all.] This plainly intimates, that although the Epistle be written by name to Titus, yet it was intended for the benefit and advantage of the whole Cretan church. Burkitt.

The following Verses from the Epistle to Titus are appointed as a Proper Lesson.

CHAP. III. - - ver. 4—9, Christmas Day, - - - - - Evening.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL

TO

PHILEMON.

INTRODUCTION.

PHILEMON was an inhabitant of Colosse; and from the manner, in which he is addressed in this Epistle, it is probable that he was a person of some consideration in that city. St. Paul seems to have been the means of converting him to the belief of the Gospel, ver. 19. He calls him his fellowlabourer; and from that expression some have thought that he was bishop or deacon of the church at Colosse: but others have been of opinion that he was only a private Christian, who had shewn a zealous and active disposition in the cause of Christianity, without holding any ecclesiastical office.

From some expressions in the Epistle itself, and from some other circumstances, it appears to have been written towards the end of St. Paul's first confinement at Rome.

The occasion of writing it was this: Onesimus, a slave of Philemon, had run away from him, and taken up his residence at Rome. St. Paul having there met with him, converted him to Christianity, and reclaimed him to a sense of his duty: he then sent him back to Colosse with this letter, written with his own hand to Philemon, requesting him to receive his slave, thus converted and reclaimed, again into his family.

This Epistle has always been deservedly admired for the delicacy and address with which it is written: and it places St. Paul's character in a very amiable point of view. He had converted a fugitive slave to the Christian faith; and he here intercedes with his master in the most earnest and affectionate manner for his pardon; he speaks of Onesimus in terms calculated to soften Philemon's resentment, engages to make full compensation for any injury which he might have sustained from him, and conjures him to reconciliation and forgiveness by the now endearing connexion of Christian brotherhood.

This Epistle is a plain proof, that Christianity was not intended to make any alteration in the civil conditions of men. St. Paul considered Onesimus, although converted to the Gospel, as still belonging to his former master; and by deprecating the anger of Philemon, he acknowledged that Onesimus continued liable to punishment for the misconduct, of which he had been guilty previously to his conversion. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI 64.

4 He rejoiceth to hear of the faith and love of Philemon, 9 whom he desireth to forgive his servant Onesimus, and lovingly to receive him again.

PAUL, a prisoner of Jesus Christ, and Timothy our brother, unto Philemon our dearly beloved, and fellowlabourer,

2 And to our beloved Apphia, and Archippus our fellowsoldier, and to the church in thy house:

3 Grace to you, and peace, from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. Anno DOMINI 64.

4 I thank my God, making mention of thee always in my prayers,

5 Hearing of thy love and faith, which thou hast toward the Lord Jesus, and toward all saints;

6 That the communication of thy faith may become effectual by the acknowledg-

Ver. 1. — fellowlabourer,] Hence some persons suppose Philemon to have been a minister of the Gospel. But the appellation is of ambiguous signification; being given, not only to ministers, but to such pious persons, whether men or women, as assisted the Apostles in any manner, whilst they were employed in preaching. Drs. Whitby and Macknight.

2. — Apphia, — Archippus] Some of the Fathers suppose that "Apphia" was the wife of Philemon. "Archippus" was probably one of his family; Lightfoot says, his son. He may have been called the "fellow-soldier" of the Apostle, as being a minister engaged with him in the work of the Gospel, Phil. ii. 25; Col. iv. 17. Drs. Whitby and Macknight.

—— and to the church in thy house:] That is, all the rest of his Christian family, or all such as were wont to assemble in his house to perform Divine service; for Christians then had not liberty publickly to perform that duty. Dr. Wells, Burkitt.

5. Hearing of thy love and faith, &c.] Namely, of thy faith which thou hast towards the Lord Jesus, and of thy love towards all saints. Compare Col. i. 4. This transposition of the words is not uncommon. See an instance of it in Matt. xii. 22. Drs. Wells and Whitby.

6. That the communication of thy faith may become effectual &c.] As if he had said, And my prayer is, that thy liberality to the saints, which is the fruit of thy faith, may become effectual to the ing of every good thing which is in you in Christ Jesus.

Anno DOMINI 64.

7 For we have great joy and consolation in thy love, because the bowels of the saints are refreshed by thee, brother.

8 Wherefore, though I might be much bold in Christ to enjoin thee that which is convenient,

9 Yet for love's sake I rather beseech thee, being such an one as Paul the aged, and now also a prisoner of Jesus Christ.

10 I beseech thee for my son Onesimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds:

11 Which in time past was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable to thee and to me:

12 Whom I have sent again: thou therefore receive him, that is, mine own bowels:

13 Whom I would have retained with me, that in thy stead he might have ministered unto me in the bonds of the gospel:

14 But without thy mind would I do nothing; that thy benefit should not be as it were of necessity, but willingly.

15 For perhaps he therefore departed for a season, that thou shouldest receive him for ever;

16 Not now as a servant, but above a servant, a brother beloved, specially to me, but how much more unto thee, both in the flesh, and in the Lord?

17 If thou count me therefore a partner, receive him as myself.

18 If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account;

19 I Paul have written it with mine own hand, I will repay it: albeit I do not say to thee how thou owest unto me even thine own self besides.

20 Yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the Lord: refresh my bowels in the Lord.

21 Having confidence in thy obedience acknowledgment of thy good works by other Christians, who hear of such instances of thy charity. Dr. Whitby. Or, it cannot but be a matter of the deepest satisfaction to me, to have such ample testimonies of your Christian sincerity, in your generous relief of the indigent and suffering members of that holy profession. "The communication of thy faith;" your sharing and partaking of the (Christian) faith: "By the acknowledging of every good thing;" by your manifesting every good thing to be in you. Pyle. By using the plural pronoun "you," the Apostle praised all the members of Philemon's family, for their works of charity to the saints; but more especially Philemon himself, as it is here insinuated that his family was led to do these benevolent offices in imitation of him. Dr. Macknight.

---

7. — because the bowels of the saints are refreshed by thee,] Perhaps the Apostle meant, that the knowledge of Philemon's charitable actions gave great joy even to the saints who had no need of his good offices. Dr. Macknight. "The bowels," in Scripture language, denote tender affection, whether of love, or of pity, mercy, or compassion. It is evident that this application of the word is taken from that commotion or yearning of the bowels, which is felt in tender affection, whether of love or pity. Hence, when such a tender affection is gratified, the bowels are said to be refreshed, appeased, quieted; as here and in the 20th verse. Parkhurst.

8. — though I might be much bold in Christ] That is, in respect of the Apostolical authority committed to me by Christ. Dr. Wells.

9. — Paul the aged,] He was probably at this time more than sixty years of age. Dr. Whitby.

10. — whom I have begotten in my bonds:] One whom I have converted to the faith, since I was a prisoner. Dr. Hammond.

11. — unprofitable,] Injurious; see Rom. i. 28; Eph. v. 11. Thus the Latin word for 'useless' means injurious. Pyle The Apostle, by mentioning the change wrought on Onesimus, insinuated to Philemon the obligation he lay under to him for having made his unprofitable slave a faithful and affectionate servant to him for life. Dr. Macknight.

12. — him, that is, mine own bowels:] St. Paul thus styles Onesimus, either from the tender affection he bore him; or rather as being his son in the faith of Christ: compare ver. 10. Thus children are sometimes called, both in Greek and Latin authors. Parkhurst.

13. — that in thy stead he might have ministered unto me] That he might have done me those good offices, which I know yourself would gladly perform, if you could. Pyle.

14. — that thy benefit should not be as it were of necessity, but willingly.] If Onesimus had remained with the Apostle in Rome, and Philemon had pardoned him at the Apostle's intercession, that favour would not have appeared so clearly to have been bestowed voluntarily, as when Onesimus returned and put himself in his master's power, and was received again into his family. The Apostle, therefore, sent him back to Philemon, that his receiving him might be known to have proceeded from his own merciful disposition. Dr. Macknight.

15. For perhaps he therefore departed for a season, &c.] The Apostle here made the same kind of apology for Onesimus, which Joseph did for his brethren. The Providence of God often brings good out of evil: yet we should not therefore do evil that good may come. Dr. Macknight. See Gen. xlv. 5; l. 20; and the notes there.

—— for ever;] Or, "for life," which was probably the Apostle's meaning. But some suppose that it signifies Philemon's having Onesimus as a brother "for ever:" the relation between Christians as brethren being to subsist in the next world. Dr. Macknight.

16. — above a servant, a brother beloved,] Although Christianity doth not take away the degrees of persons, and dissolve the civil differences between man and man, yet it maketh us all equal and fellow brethren in Christ. Burkitt.

—— unto thee, both in the flesh, and in the Lord?] To thee, who hast a double relation to him, as one of thy family, and one of thy faith. Dr. Hammond.

17. If thou count me therefore a partner,] Namely, in thy friendship. Drs. Whitby and Wells.

19. — how thou owest unto me even thine own self besides.] Implying what great things he had done for Philemon in his conversion; so great as made Philemon a debtor, not only of his own goods, but of himself too. The Apostle however only glances at this with great modesty. Burkitt.

20. — refresh my bowels in the Lord.] My bowels yearn on Onesimus. Remove my anxiety concerning him, whom I so tenderly love, by pardoning him, and receiving him again into thy family. This is the most natural interpretation of the passage. Drs. Macknight and Whitby. See the note from Parkhurst on ver. 7.

Anno DOMINI 64. I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt also do more than I say.

22 But withal prepare me also a lodging: for I trust that through your prayers I shall be given unto you.

23 There salute thee Epaphras, my fellowprisoner in Christ Jesus;

24 Marcus, Aristarchus, Demas, Lucas, my fellowlabourers. Anno DOMINI 64.

25 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to Philemon, by Onesimus a servant.

---

21. — knowing that thou wilt also do more than I say.] In this beautiful passage, ver. 8—21, we have the greatest variety of arguments and motives of the strongest kind, couched in terms the most soft and persuasive. On the one hand we have Philemon's reputation for goodness, the respect due to his own character, his friendship for St. Paul, the reverence claimed by the Apostle's age, the compassion due to his bonds: on the other, we have Onesimus's repentance and return to virtue, his conversion to the Christian religion, and consequent claim on Philemon's piety as his spiritual brother; his faithful services to St. Paul, the tender interest the Apostle took in his concerns, a promise of restitution for any pecuniary loss, accompanied with an insinuation, that Philemon was indebted to the Apostle for what was much more than the pardon of his repentant slave, even his own existence as a Christian, the forgiveness of his sins, and his admission into the kingdom of heaven. But the intercessor insists not on his authority as an Apostle, or his claims to Philemon's gratitude: he submits all to his free generosity; and closes with a declaration of his full confidence, that, under the influence of that, Philemon would do more than he himself thought it necessary to desire. Can there be a doubt, whether such an address proceeded from a fanatick, weak and extravagant, claiming a spiritual authority which had no other foundation than his own spiritual arrogance, and exercising this authority, as such a temper must have exercised it, indiscriminately and violently, unreasonably and mischievously? or whether this Epistle was not rather the effusion of a mind, replete with good sense, versed in the knowledge of the human heart, animated with the best and tenderest feelings; but whose every feeling was regulated by the clearest reason, claiming no authority to which there was not the most indisputable title, and exercising that authority with the soundest discretion? Dr. Graves.

22. — through your prayers] The Apostle knew the efficacy of the prayers of the church, for preservation of Christ's eminent servants from impending dangers, as in the case of St. Peter, Acts xii.: and therefore in most of his Epistles he very earnestly intreats the prayers of the church, that he might be enabled to preach the Gospel with freedom and success, Eph. vi. 19; Col. iv. 3; 2 Thess. iii. 1: and that he might be delivered from the malice of his persecutors, Rom. xv. 30, 31; 2 Thess. iii. 2: or else he expresses his confidence that their prayers would be effectual to that end, as here, and at 2 Cor. i. 10, 11; iv. 14, 15; Phil. i. 19. Had he thus conceived of prayers, directed to angels and departed saints, it is very remarkable that he should not afford one instance of them in all his epistles. Dr. Whithy.

—— I shall be given unto you.] I shall have liberty from my bonds, and be permitted to come and visit you. Dr. Hammond.

23, 24. — Epaphras, — Marcus, &c.] Concerning these persons see Col. i. 7; iv. 12, 14; Acts xii. 12; xix. 29; and the notes on those passages.

25. — be with your spirit.] The plural pronoun "your" shews that the Apostle did not pray for Philemon alone, but for all the saints at Colosse, who had obtained like precious faith with him. Burkitt.

Whether Philemon pardoned Onesimus in consequence of this letter is not known. Only from the earnestness with which the Apostle solicited his pardon, and from the generosity and goodness of Philemon's disposition, we may conjecture that he actually pardoned Onesimus; and even gave him his freedom, in compliance with the Apostle's insinuation, according to the interpretation of some commentators, that "he would do more than he said," ver. 21. For it was no uncommon thing in ancient times, to bestow freedom on such slaves as had obtained the esteem and goodwill of their masters by their faithful conduct. At all events, the anxiety which the Apostle shewed for the welfare of Onesimus, in return for his affectionate services, could not fail to cherish good dispositions in the breast of Philemon. Nor is it possible even at this day, so long after Philemon and his slave are both gone, to read this letter without experiencing in some measure the same happy effect.

In the mean time, if this epistle had served no other purpose than to shew the world what sort of a man the Apostle Paul was in private life, it would have been a valuable accession to the canon of Scripture. For in it the writer hath displayed qualities which are by men deservedly held in the greatest estimation; such as an high spirit arising from a consciousness of his own dignity, consummate prudence, uncommon generosity, the warmest friendship, the most skilful address, and the greatest politeness, as well as purity of manners: qualities not to be found either in an enthusiast, or in an impostor. Dr. Doddridge observes, that 'this epistle, considered as a mere human composition, is a masterpiece of its kind. For, if it is compared with an epistle of Pliny, supposed to have been written on a similar occasion, that epistle, though penned by one who was reckoned to excel in the epistolary style, and though it has undoubtedly many beauties, will be found by persons of taste much inferiour to this animated composition of the Apostle Paul.' Dr. Macknight.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO THE HEBREWS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE testimony of all ancient copies and translations, with the concurrent suffrage of the best writers, both ancient and modern, give such evidence for St. Paul's being the author of this excellent Epistle, that the objections, or rather scruples, brought to the contrary, are of no weight. Pyle.

St. Paul has omitted his name from the commencement of this Epistle: having probably reasons for departing upon this occasion from his usual mode of salutation, which we at this distant period cannot discover. Some have imagined, that he omitted his name, because he knew that it would not have much weight with the Hebrew Christians, to whom he was in general obnoxious, on account of his zeal in converting the Gentiles, and in maintaining that the observance of the Mosaick law was not essential to salvation. It is however clear that the persons, to whom the Epistle was addressed, knew from whom it came, as the writer refers to some acts of kindness which he had received from them, chap. x. 34, and also expresses a hope of seeing them soon, chap. xiii. 18, 19, 23.

That this Epistle was written from Italy is manifest from this expression at the end of it, "They of Italy salute you:" and it is supposed to have been written towards the end of St. Paul's imprisonment at Rome, or immediately after it, because the Apostle expresses an intention of visiting the Hebrews shortly: we therefore place the date of the Epistle about the year 63.

There has been some little doubt concerning the persons, to whom this Epistle was addressed: but by far the most general and most probable opinion is, that it was written to those Christians of Judea, who had been converted to the Gospel from Judaism. That it was written, notwithstanding its general title, to the Christians of one certain place or country, is evident from the following passages: "I beseech you the rather to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner," chap. xiii. 19: "Know ye that our brother Timothy is set at liberty, with whom, if he come shortly, I will see you," chap. xiii. 23. And it appears from the Acts of the Apostles, chap. vi. 1, that certain persons were at this time known at Jerusalem by the name of "Hebrews." They seem to have been native Jews, inhabitants of Judea, the language of which country was Hebrew; and therefore they were called Hebrews, in contradistinction to those Jews, who, residing commonly in other countries, although they occasionally came to Jerusalem, used the Greek language, and were therefore called "Grecians."

The general design of this Epistle was to confirm the Jewish Christians in the faith and practice of the Gospel, which they might be in danger of deserting, either through the persuasion or persecution of the unbelieving Jews, who were very numerous and powerful in Judea. We may naturally suppose, that the zealous adherents to the law would insist on the majesty and glory which attended its first promulgation, on the distinguished character of their legislator Moses, and on the divine authority of the ancient Scriptures; and they might likewise urge the humiliation and death of Christ, as an argument against the truth of His religion. To obviate the impression, which any reasoning of this sort might make upon the converts to Christianity, the Apostle begins his Epistle with declaring to the Hebrews, that the same God, who had formerly, upon a variety of occasions, spoken to their fathers by means of His Prophets, had now sent His only Son for the purpose of revealing His will: he then describes, in most sublime language, the dignity of the person of Christ, chap. i.; and thence infers the duty of obeying His commands, the divine authority of which was established by the performance of miracles, and the gifts of the Holy Ghost: he points out the necessity of Christ's incarnation and passion, chap. ii.: he shews the superiority of Christ to Moses, and warns the Hebrews against the sin of unbelief, chap. iii.: he exhorts to steadfastness in the profession of the Gospel, and gives an animated description of Christ, as our High Priest, chap. iv—vii.: he shews that the Levitical priesthood and the old covenant were abolished by the priesthood of Christ and by the new covenant, chap. viii.: he points out the inefficacy of the ceremonies and sacrifices of the law, and the sufficiency of the atonement made by the sacrifice of Christ, chap. ix, x.: he fully explains the nature, value, and effects of faith, chap. xi.: and in the two last chapters he gives a variety of exhortations and admonitions, all calculated to encourage the Hebrews to bear with patience and constancy any trials to which they might be exposed. He concludes with the valedictory benediction usual in St. Paul's Epistles, "Grace be with you all. Amen." Bp. Tomline.

The substance of the Epistle may be reduced to the following arguments: 1st, The superlative excellency of Christ's person, not only above that of Moses, but above the very angels too, by the ministration of whom the Jewish law was delivered. This is the argument of the two first chapters. 2dly, The dignity and perfect efficacy of Christ's priesthood, and the insufficiency of the Levitical one, together with the wisdom and advantage of His being not a temporal monarch, but a suffering Messiah, make up the discourse from the third to the ninth chapter. 3dly, The mere figurative nature and utter insufficiency of the legal ceremonies and sacrifices, and the perfect sufficiency of Christ's death, for the redemption and pardon of mankind, is the purpose of the ninth and tenth chapters. And 4thly, To obviate that prejudice and bold assertion of the Jews, that to forsake the Mosaical religion was to apostatize from God, the eleventh chapter is spent in shewing the faith of Christians to be the exercise of the same virtuous principle, whereby all holy men of old rendered themselves acceptable to God, and stand upon record as His true and eminent servants. These are severally intermixed with their proper inferences and exhortations, all tending to shew the Jewish Christians the unreasonableness, the folly, and the danger of falling off again from the Christian faith to the Jewish religion; and to support and animate them under the persecutions that tended to draw them from it. Pyle.

The most important articles of our faith are explained, and the most material objections to the Gospel are answered with great force, in this celebrated Epistle. The arguments used in it, as being addressed to persons who had been educated in the Jewish religion, are principally taken from the ancient Scriptures; and the connexion between former revelations and the Gospel of Christ is pointed out in the most perspicuous and satisfactory manner. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI 64.

CHAP. I.

1 Christ in these last times coming to us from the Father,
4 is preferred above the angels, both in person and office.

GOD, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets,

2 Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds;

Anno DOMINI 64.

3 [a] Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and

[a] Wisd. 7. 26.

Chap. I. St. Paul teaches in this chapter, that God had revealed Himself to men by Jesus Christ in a more perfect manner than He had done before. He proves the excellency of the Gospel by the infinite dignity of Jesus Christ the Son of God; shewing that He was exalted to supreme glory in heaven, and that He is more excellent than the angels: and he confirms the divinity of His person. Osterwald.

Ver. 1. — in divers manners] As well in types and figures, significant actions, and dark sayings, as in plain language. Dr. Macknight.

2. — in these last days] The times of the Messiah. Dr. Whitby. "The last," not as importing the speedy end of this material world, but only that God hath no subsequent dispensation in reserve. Dean Stanhope.

—— spoken unto us by his Son,] The design of this place is to prove the dignity of this last messenger to be so far superiour to that of any other, as to admit of no likeness, no comparison between them: that He hath excellencies peculiar to Himself, and such as are communicable, not only to none, no, not to the best of the sons of men; but to none, no, not to the noblest creatures of any other kind. In a word, that He is of a nature truly Divine, of the same essence and eternity with God the Father, and His Son in a manner and sense so proper and particular, as no other, however called such in Scripture, is, or must be understood to be. Dean Stanhope.

Nothing can be more full and express than the language the Apostle uses in this chapter, to convince the Hebrews that the term "Son of God," as applied to the person of Christ, is not a name of accommodation, as sometimes taken in other applications of it; but a name, the excellence of which comes to Him, not by adoption, but by inheritance; that is, by a natural right, which could not be, unless the Son were of the same nature with the Father. Jones of Nayland. See the note from Bp. Horsley on Matt. i. 18.

—— whom he hath appointed] Rather, 'constituted heir of all things;' that is, hath not merely named Him to be Heir of all things; but hath actually invested Him with regal authority and dominion. Dr. Wells.

—— heir of all things,] That is, Lord or Proprietor of all things, for according to St. Paul, Gal. iv. 1, "the heir is lord of all." This title, as implying universal dominion, St. Peter also gave to Christ, Acts x. 36, "He is Lord of all." Even Socinians acknowledge that the phrase "heir of all things" denotes supreme dominion over angels and men: and it may be well thought as impossible to understand how a man should have this empire and yet be a mere man, as it is to understand any mystery of the sacred Trinity. Drs. Macknight and Whitby.

By the expression in this place we are, no doubt, to understand that universal dominion mentioned in other texts, which call Him "a Prince and a Saviour," "Lord and Christ," "Lord both of the dead and living," "Lord of all;" which speak of His "subduing all enemies," even death itself; having "all things put under His feet," "all power in heaven and in earth given unto Him," being "gone into heaven," and "sitting down on the right hand of God, angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto Him," Acts v. 31; ii. 36; x. 36; Rom. xiv. 9; 1 Cor. xv. 25, 26; Matt. xxviii. 18; 1 Pet. iii. 22. A government, of which, as God, He stood possessed from all eternity: a government, which however His human nature might have hereditary title to, by virtue, and so from the very instant, of its personal union with the Divine; yet was He not, as God and man both, actually invested with it till after, and by way of compensation for, His death, His sufferings. But a government withal, which, were not He very God, as well as very man, it is not to be conceived how He could be qualified to exercise. There being in the reason of the thing no manner of inducement to persuade us, that any power and wisdom, less than that which could create all things, can be sufficient to govern all things. And therefore no method of arguing could be imagined more regular or conclusive than this of the Apostle: which proceeds to show in the Second place, that the Person, by whom God now rules the world, is the same by whom He made the worlds. Dean Stanhope.

—— by whom also he made the worlds;] The heaven and the earth. Dr. Hammond. Those very worlds, no doubt, which this epistle mentions by the same expression, and reckons it as the first instance of faith for us to "understand, that they were framed by the word of God: so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear," chap. xi. 3. Consequently the creation, attributed here to the Son, is not any spiritual or figurative, but a proper and material one. Compare Col. i. 16. Dean Stanhope. That Christ made this world, and consequently had a real being at the beginning of it, the Scriptures manifestly and plentifully assure us. For the same "Son, by whom in these last days God spake unto us," is He, "by whom also He made the worlds." So that as "through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God," chap. xi. 3; so we must also believe that they were made by the Son of God. Bp. Pearson. See ver. 10 of this chapter, where the creation of all things visible is ascribed to the Son of God. The primitive Fathers believed the worlds were made by Christ, and contended that this shewed His divinity. Drs. Macknight and Whitby.

3. Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person,] Who being the means of reflecting to us the sight of Him who is otherwise invisible, John i. 18. Dr. Hammond. Of the same Divine majesty and substance, a Beam of the same Light, an exact resemblance of His original perfections. For whatever excellencies are in the Father, the same are in the Son, and by Him they are reflected down upon mankind. The former of these characters, "the brightness of His glory," alluding to a luminous body, and comparing the Father to the original fountain of light, and the Son to the effulgence or ray streaming from it, seems intended to teach us, that the essence of both is the same; that the one is inseparable from, and not to be conceived without, the other; consequently, that neither of them ever was, or could be, alone. So that the Son is hereby declared to be of the same

Anno DOMINI 64. upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high;

4 Being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they.

5 For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son?

6 And again, when he bringeth in the firstbegotten into the world, he saith, And let all the angels of God worship him.

nature and eternity with the Father, and from hence, more particularly, the church seems to have taken the occasion of confessing, in opposition to the Arian heresy, as we find it done in one of our creeds, that Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God, was begotten of His Father before all worlds, that He is God of God, Light of Light, very God of very God, of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made. Dean Stanhope.

The latter of these characters, namely, "the express image of His person," resembles Him to an image or impress of His Father's excellencies. Having already established the unity of nature in the similitude of original and derived light, the Apostle employs another similitude, significative of the distinction of Persons. And thus he hath likewise obviated the heresy of Sabellius: by affirming the Father and the Son to have the same godhead, glory, and majesty; but at the same time intimating that they have not the same personality: in a word, that though the Father and the Son be one God, and in that respect there be no difference in nature, or time, or degree; yet the Father is not the Son, nor the Son the Father. And in this respect there is a just and very material distinction of order, and dignity, mutual relation, and manner of subsisting. Dean Stanhope.

We must speak of God in words not strictly and properly adapted to Him, but borrowed from terms we use amongst ourselves. As when we call God "Father;" we mean that we have our being from Him; but not in that manner as a son is begotten by his father amongst men. And thus we understand the word "person:" as when Christ is called "The express image of His (God's) person," we mean something of a quite different kind from the person of a man upon earth. But it is a word we must use, like the word "father," because we have no other word to express it by. And as we find, what we call personal actions, attributed to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit; as the one to send, the other to be sent; the one to proceed from the other; the one to beget, the other to be begotten of Him; the one to take flesh, and not the other: therefore we call these "Persons," because we find personal actions attributed to them. Leslie.

—— and upholding all things by the word of his power,] Giving support, maintenance, preservation to all things which He hath made, by that almighty power of His. Bp. Hall.

Surely no being, less than that which made the world, is capable of sustaining and continuing the order of the world. And therefore, though this be now done by the Son, who is man as well as God; yet is it truly and properly the work of that Divine Nature, which was from all eternity at the right hand of the Father: not of that human nature, which, being united to, and from thenceforth inseparable from, the Divine, is now together with it exalted thither. And this exaltation is here spoken of as a reward of those sufferings, and of that expiatory sacrifice for the sins of mankind, which that union with the Divine rendered of merit as invaluable, as the condescension of it is inexpressible. Dean Stanhope.

Great as these expressions are, they are the same in substance with what the Old Testament had declared before concerning the Son of God: who, being called the glory of God, has that relation to Him which the light that comes down from heaven has to the sun, from whence it proceeds; who, being truly the Son, is consequently the heir of God; who now sustains that world, of which He at first laid the foundations; who purged the sins of man by Himself, who was the Creator of man; and, when He sat down at the right hand of God, returned to that Majesty which was essential to His character before the world was made. Jones of Nayland.

4. Being made so much better than the angels, &c.] Being in His very human nature advanced so much higher than the greatest angels of heaven, by how much He hath obtained a more excellent and glorious name than they, namely, to be called and to be the Son of God; not by grace or adoption as we are, but by nature and eternal communication of essence. Bp. Hall. Preferred as far above the most glorious spirits, the angels, as His divine Original had set Him above them before; as a creator is above creatures, a king above subjects, a son above servants. Dean Stanhope.

The word "name" in this place signifies not only title, but authority and superiour excellency. See Phil. ii. 9. Dr. Whitby.

5. For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, &c.] The Apostle here affirms the superiority of Christ over the angels, on the ground of the appellations that are bestowed on Him: As that of the Son, in the second Psalm, which, though in some sense it belong to David, yet is by the Jews themselves acknowledged in a more sublime sense to belong to the Messiah; so likewise that in 2 Sam. vii. 14, delivered to Solomon, as he was a type of the Messiah, which is in some degree true of him, but was in a much more eminent manner to be understood of Christ. Dr. Hammond.

Though the angels be sometimes in Scripture called "the sons of God," Job i. 6; ii. 1; xxxviii. 7; God never said to any one of them, "I will be to him a Father," to protect him in his kingdom; much less, "Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten thee" to a kingdom; and so these passages in the true and full extent of them cannot agree to any of the angels. Dr. Whitby.

Noble and excellent as these beings are, they are yet but the attendants on the Divine throne, and the ministers that execute God's pleasure. They sit not at His right hand; they are not invested with supreme power and authority: but are in other places of Scripture represented as covering their faces before Him. But our blessed Lord, "the brightness of His Father's glory," and the sharer of His power, receives the homage and adoration of these excellent beings. They are His subjects and ministers. They think themselves honoured by the commands He gives them, and happy in the obedience which they pay Him. Bp. Conybeare.

6. And again, when he bringeth in the firstbegotten into the world,] Namely, in the morning of the resurrection, when He was in a glorious manner begotten from the dead. Burkitt. The words may be better rendered, 'And when He bringeth again the firstbegotten' (from the dead, Col. i. 18.) "into the world." Dr. Whitby.

The word, rendered "again," here properly signifies the second time. The Son of God was brought into our world the first time by His incarnation. But the angels were not commanded then to worship Him. That command was given after His resurrection, which being, as it were, a second incarnation, is fitly called a bringing Him a second time into the world: when, as the reward of His having suffered death during His first residence in the world, He was made in the human nature the object of the worship, not only of men, but of angels. So St. Paul told the Philippians, chap. ii. 9—11. Dr. Macknight.

—— And let all the angels of God worship him.] It is generally thought that these words are cited from the 97th Psalm, 7th verse; where in the Septuagint we have words very like them, 'Worship Him all His angels.' Dr. Whitby.

What invention could contrive a more positive and incontrovertible manner of calling the Son "God," than to say, "Let all the angels of God," or, 'let all other gods worship Him.' What is this but to call Him the supreme God; and manifestly to make

Anno DOMINI 64.

7 And of the angels he saith, Who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire.

8 But unto the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of † righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom.

† Gr. rightness, or straightness.

9 Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

[b] Ps. 102. 25. Is. 34. 4.

10 And, [b] Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands:

11 They shall perish; but thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment;

Anno DOMINI 64.

12 And as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail.

13 But to which of the angels said he at any time, [c] Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool?

[c] Ps. 110. 1. Matt. 22. 44.

14 Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?

CHAP. II.

1 We ought to be obedient to Christ Jesus, 5 and that because he vouchsafed to take our nature upon him, 14 as it was necessary.

---

the distinction between God by nature and by office: all these gods by office are to worship the God by nature. "Worship Him, all ye gods:" and this the Apostle applies to Christ, and says that it was spoken of Him: and how to call Him "God" more directly and palpably cannot be supposed. Leslie.

The author of this Epistle, evincing the superiority of the Son of God over all created spirits, produces the following testimony: "When He bringeth in His firstbegotten into the world, He saith, And let all the angels of God worship Him." If we ask, what kind of worship the Apostle may be supposed to intend, let us turn to the Revelation. There, upon the exaltation of our Lord after His sufferings, St. John represents to us the church universally in heaven and earth, with the parts of created nature, and all the angelick intelligences, ascribing the very same "blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb," in conjunction, Rev. v. 13. In heaven the will of God is duly performed, and all "honour the Son, even as they honour the Father," John v. 23. Why should it be otherwise on earth? Bp. Horne.

7. — Who maketh his angels spirits,] Or rather 'winds;' as both the general context, and the subsequent clause of this verse, appear to require. The comparing of the angels to "a flame of fire" in the last clause naturally leads us to apprehend them as compared to 'winds' in the first. Dr. Wells. The meaning of the passage is, that no higher title is given to the angels than those of God's messengers and ministers; and that the efficacy of their ministry, as well as the activity of their nature, is described by comparing them to other creatures such as winds and fire. Dr. Whitby, Dean Stanhope.

8. But unto the Son he saith, &c.] Thus He speaks ever of the angels, as servants; but of the Son He speaks as of the God and Lord of the angels, "Thy throne, O God, &c." Thy kingdom and government is most just and righteous. Bp. Hall.

The throne of God, whether we understand it of God's natural dominion over the whole creation, or more particularly of His providential government of the moral world, or, in a still more restricted sense, of Christ's mediatorial kingdom, is everlasting: and the government, both in the will of the governour and in the execution, is invariably good and just. But the kingdom of the God-Man is in this place intended. This is evident from what is said in the next verse: "God, even Thy God, hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows:" that is, God hath advanced Thee to a state of bliss and glory above all those whom Thou hast vouchsafed to call Thy fellows. It is said too, that the love of righteousness and hatred of wickedness is the cause that God hath so anointed Him, who yet in the previous verse is Himself addressed as God. It is manifest that these things can be said only of that Person, in whom the Godhead and the manhood are united; in whom the human nature is the subject of the unction, and the elevation to the Mediatorial kingdom is the reward of the man Jesus: for Christ, being in His Divine nature equal with the Father, is incapable of any exaltation. Thus the unction with the oil of gladness, and the elevation above His fellows, characterize the manhood; and the perpetual stability of the throne, and the unsullied justice of the government, declare the Godhead. It is therefore with the greatest propriety that this passage in the Psalmist is applied to Christ in the Epistle to the Hebrews, and made an argument of His divinity; not by any forced accommodation of words, which in the mind of the author related to another subject, but according to the true intent and purpose of the Psalmist, and the literal sense and only consistent exposition of his words. Bp. Horsley.

14. Are they not all ministering spirits,] The word "all" here is emphatical; denoting that even the highest orders of angels, dominions, thrones, principalities, and powers, (Phil. ii. 10; Eph. i. 21; 1 Pet. iii. 22,) bow the knee and are subject to Jesus, ministering in the affairs of the world according to His direction. Dr. Macknight.

Throughout this passage the Apostle dwells on the manifest precedence, given to Christ in the Old Testament, above the most glorious of all created beings, the blessed angels. The proof hereof consists in sundry passages, acknowledged by Jewish authors themselves to belong to the Messiah; who is, in a sense and manner peculiar to Himself, entitled the Son of God, ver. 5, whilst the angels are allowed no higher denomination than that of ministers and servants of God. Nay, and to shew the mighty distance and disparity between them, those very angels are, all of them, commanded to worship this Son, a homage, to which nothing less could give Him right, than His being their Creator, and they His creatures. At other times we find Him represented as a righteous King, possessed of an everlasting dominion, and invested with such distinguishing honours, as none, even the highest and most peculiar favourites of Heaven, were, or may ever hope to be, dignified with. And once more, not only the creation of the world, but the dissolution of it also, is expressly declared to be His doing. Meanwhile, the utmost attributed to the angels amounts to no more than their being instruments in the hand of God; performers of such good offices, to those who love and serve Him, as He, who hath constituted the services of all His creatures in a wonderful order, hath thought fit to assign them, in the protection of good men, and in the government of the world. Dean Stanhope.

What proof more can be desired of Christ's divinity, than what is here given by the Apostle? The names and attributes of God are ascribed to Him, as also an everlasting throne and kingdom: Divine honour is required to be paid to Him: and such Divine works are assigned to Him, that in them no creature can have any share of efficiency with Him. Such is the making of the world, ver. 10—12, comprising an assertion of the omnipotence of Christ, and of His eternity and immutability: an evident proof, that as the great Creator He is infinitely exalted above all creatures, and is the Almighty and unchangeable God. Burkitt.

Chap. II. St. Paul first exhorts the Hebrews to continue steadfast in the profession of the Gospel, which had been preached to them by Jesus Christ and the Apostles, and confirmed by the gifts of

Anno DOMINI 64.

THEREFORE we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should † let them slip.

† Gr. run out as leaking vessels.

2 For if the word spoken by angels was stedfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward;

3 How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him;

Anno DOMINI 64.

4 God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and ‖ gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will?

‖ Or, distributions.

5 For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection the world to come, whereof we speak.

6 But one in a certain place testified, the Holy Ghost. Secondly, he shews for this purpose, that though Jesus was man, and humbled Himself even unto death, yet all things are made subject unto Him; and that God has raised Him to heavenly glory after His sufferings. He shews in the last place that God was pleased that our Lord should take our nature and suffer, that He might redeem men from the power of the devil and of death; and that the faithful might learn from His example not to be terrified by afflictions. Ostervald.

---

Ver. 1. — lest at any time we should let them slip.] See the marginal translation. The original expression is an allusion to such vessels as are not able to retain liquids. Dr. Hammond.

2. For if the word spoken by angels was stedfast, &c.] If the law given by the ministry of angels was firm and inviolable, and all the transgressors of it were justly and severely punished. Burkitt. See Acts vii. 53; Gal. iii. 19.

3. How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation;] When God in His wisdom had projected a scheme for the salvation of mankind before the ages, when He had prosecuted that scheme by many successive revelations of Himself, by many notices and preparatory indications of His good pleasure, when He had separated a chosen family from the rest of the world to serve as a repository of His councils, and to minister to Himself in the execution of them, when He had sent forth His angels to assist in this great work, and had inspired many Prophets and holy men to signify beforehand the glories of a new kingdom which He meant to establish upon earth, and to prepare men for the reception of it, when after all these preludes of His wisdom and goodness He came in due time to astonish the world with the completion of this adorable scheme by sending forth His only-begotten Son, the express image of His person, to take upon Him our nature, to suffer and to die for us, and by raising up Apostles and Evangelists, under the guidance of His Holy Spirit, to record these amazing transactions, and by the attestation of stupendous miracles to spread the knowledge of them over the face of the earth; when this, I say, and more had been done by the Almighty to usher in His last best dispensation into the world, think not that all this mighty apparatus was to be thrown away on our caprice and obstinacy, and that after all we may be at liberty to reject this whole design, or take as much or as little of it as our wayward fancies shall suggest to us. No: assuredly the counsels of Heaven will stand firm, whatever attempts we may make in our wisdom or our weakness to subvert them. As well may we think to overturn the everlasting mountains, or to push the earth itself from its centre, as to defeat or set aside one tittle of that eternal purpose which God hath purposed in Christ Jesus. To whomsoever the sound of the Gospel is come, whether he will hear or not hear, by that Gospel he must stand or fall: he is thenceforth under the bond of this covenant, through Jesus Christ he inherits the promises, or if he withhold his faith it is not at his option to have no concern in the threats, of the Gospel.

What allowances it may please God to make for the prejudices, the passions, the slights, the blasphemies of unthinking careless men, who have never embraced the faith of Jesus, it may not perhaps concern us to inquire: but we know that we are responsible to that law which we profess, and to that Master whom we serve; that to us indifference is infidelity, and disobedience treason; that wilful unrepented sin in a Christian is without hope as without excuse, and exposes him even with his own full consent to all the punishments of the Gospel. Bp. Hurd.

—— if we neglect so great salvation;] So great a means of our salvation, as the Gospel is. Bp. Fell.

The fear of greater punishment to those who reject greater grace; and the sure confidence of more abundant glory to those who have more abundant grace vouchsafed them here; should make us earnest to obtain the largest measures of it that we can, and diligent to improve what we do retain. Dr. Glocester Ridley.

The Apostle, having described the dignity of the Son of God, thus argues: that if He was so great, how important must that way of salvation be, which He preached to the world! how necessary must it be for us to attend to it! and how dreadful will the consequences be, if we do not! If the law of Moses, published by inferiour ministers, was so strictly enforced, and every offence against the honour of it so severely punished; "how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation" published by Jesus Christ? This is the purport of his reasoning: and now let us consider the weight of it. If God descends from heaven to teach, there must be some great reason for His coming, which will render those exceedingly guilty who do not hear Him. Therefore it must be our duty to listen to His words, and study His doctrine, that we may understand it and receive the benefit of it for the salvation of our souls. We may put off this as a matter of no consequence, and escape for the present. The man, who tells us these things out of a pulpit, has no power to punish us; but nevertheless God will not be neglected: He, who vindicated His law, shall vindicate His Gospel; and then what will become of us? What shall we say for ourselves in that dreadful day, when the reasonings and reserves of every heart shall be exposed and confuted? Jones of Nayland.

—— was confirmed unto us] To us Jews. It is usual for St. Paul to say "us" and "we," when not he himself is to be understood, but those only, to whom or of whom he speaks. Drs. Whitby and Wells.

4. God also bearing them witness, &c.] The importance of the salvation spoken of before is farther shewn by the manner in which it was recommended to the world. It was attested by "signs and wonders, and divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost;" all intended to raise the attention of mankind, and convince them that they must be lost, if they neglected to hear what was so powerfully recommended. Jones of Nayland.

5. — the world to come,] This phrase seems to denote the state of the world under the Messiah, or the kingdom of the Messiah, which began at His first advent, and shall be completed at His second and glorious coming. The Jews in like manner call the kingdom of the Messiah, "the world to come," probably from that prophecy of Isaiah, chap. lxv. 17, where it is represented by "new heavens and a new earth." It is observable, that St. Paul uses this phrase only in this passage of his Epistle to the Hebrews, or converted Jews, as being probably a manner of expression familiar to them, but not so intelligible to the Gentile Christians. Compare chap. vi. 5. Parkhurst. The Apostle means, that the world of believers, gathered out of all nations by the preaching of the Gospel, is put under Christ's immediate power, and subject, not to angels, but to Christ Himself. Burkitt.

6—8. But one in a certain place testified, &c.] This regal power was given to Christ only. And accordingly of Him are these words to be understood in the diviner sense, which the author of the 8th Psalm hath delivered; namely, That He is a mean and vile man in outward appearance, not worthy to be con-saying, [a] What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him?

Anno DOMINI 64.

[a] Ps. 8. 4.

7 Thou madest him ‖ a little lower than the angels; thou crownedst him with glory and honour, and didst set him over the works of thy hands:

‖ Or, a little while inferior to.

8 Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. For in that he put all in subjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. But now we see not yet all things put under him.

9 But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels ‖ for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man.

‖ Or, by.

Anno DOMINI 64.

10 For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings.

11 For both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren,

12 Saying, I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee.

13 And again, [b] I will put my trust in

[b] Ps. 18. 2.

---

sidered or regarded by God; who for the space of thirty-three years was subjected to a condition inferiour to that of angels; but then, after His suffering in our flesh, He was by God most honourably advanced to the highest dignities, made the supreme Ruler and King of heaven and earth: and all His enemies, and the persecutors of His church, were subjected to Him; and He was advanced above all created beings. Dr. Hammond.

As the Apostle proceeds to treat of the person of Christ, he takes occasion to shew from the 8th Psalm, (and thereby teaches us how to understand that Psalm,) that He, who as God was above all the angels of heaven, as man, was made "lower than the angels," that He might taste of death for every man, and so "bring many sons unto glory," by receiving glory in our nature, as the reward of His sufferings. In virtue of His incarnation we are become the sons of God, and brethren of Christ: as He was in all things made like unto His brethren, His brethren will in all things be made like unto Him; that is, they will be imputed by a new relation to the same Father, with a legal right to the same inheritance, and be crowned with glory and honour after their sufferings on earth. Jones of Nayland.

8. — But now we see not yet all things put under him.] Not the wicked, nor Satan, nor death: which shall be done, not in one instant, but successively. Bp. Fell. But now, as yet, we do not indeed see all things actually so subjected to His government, as that none of the rebellious enemies of Christ do rise up against Him; it is enough, that He has taken possession of His glory; and will, in His own due time, subdue all the adverse powers. Bp. Hall.

9. But we see Jesus, &c.] But in the mean time we see that Jesus, who was indeed made a little lower than the angels, in respect of His suffering of death, which those blessed spirits are not capable of, we see Him, I say, crowned with glory and honour, who was before humbled by His own voluntary dispensation, and by the wonderful grace and favour of God towards mankind, that He might undergo that death for man, which every one is liable unto; and, by His tasting of death, sweeten it to all His faithful ones. Bp. Hall.

—— for the suffering of death,] These words may seem ambiguous, and capable of being referred either to the preceding or to the following clause. It is indeed true, that Christ was crowned as a reward for suffering death, as the Apostle expressly teaches, Phil. ii. 8, 9. But the concluding words of the verse, which have plainly a connexion with these, appear to determine them to the former sense; namely, that Christ was humbled "for the suffering of death," that He might be capable of it. Dr. Doddridge.

10. For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things,] God, the author and end of all things. Bp. Fell. He thought fit to do this, saith Dr. Hammond, 1st, Because thus the same nature suffered which had sinned; and therefore purged us from the guilt, which we in that nature had contracted; and so dissolved that death, to which we became subject by the death of Adam. This is the reason of Christ's sufferings, on which all the primitive Fathers insist. 2dly, Because these sufferings fitted Him to be a merciful High Priest, to them that suffer as He did, and also to be a faithful High Priest, to make atonement for our sins, ver. 17. Dr. Whitby. And also that He might by His own example encourage His soldiers more cheerfully to undergo sufferings, seeing their Captain Himself underwent the same, Matt. x. 24, 25. Dr. Wells.

—— to make — perfect] Or, completely fit for the full execution of His office. Dr. Doddridge. God, the universal designer of all, in His wisdom foreseeing the oppositions and sufferings, which would befall His people in this world, thought it fit that Christ, His own Son, the author of their deliverance, should through sufferings come to His reward and crown, that so He might after His own example deliver those who suffer constantly and patiently. Dr. Hammond.

—— through sufferings.] This verse contains an argument for the doctrine of the atonement, which ought to stop all mouths which reason against it. It belongs to the sovereignty of the Deity to fix the conditions on which He will pardon sinners. Wherefore, God having determined that they are to be pardoned through the death of His Son, Gal. i. 4, and having expressly declared His determination, Ps. cx. 4; Heb. v. 10, our duty is to rest satisfied with the knowledge of the fact, and thankfully to acquiesce in the appointment, although God hath neither made known the reasons which induced Him to save mankind through the death of His Son, rather than in any other method; nor explained to us in what manner the death of His Son, as a sin offering, hath accomplished our salvation. Dr. Macknight.

11. For both he that sanctifieth] He, namely our Priest, who by His oblation purgeth us from sin. The word, rendered "sanctifieth," is used in this Epistle in the sacrificial sense, or with reference to the expiation of sin. Dr. Whitby.

—— are all of one:] Both our Saviour and we are all of one nature, namely, we have all one common humanity: for which cause He being, as He is, God blessed for ever, is not ashamed to call us miserable men by the name of brethren. Bp. Hall.

12. Saying, &c.] David, Isaiah, and the other Prophets, in many of their actions and sayings, were types of Christ. Bp. Fell. See Ps. xxii, and the notes there. The former part of the Psalm is prophetical of the passion: at this verse, the 22d, the strain changes to an hymn of triumph in the mouth of the Redeemer, celebrating His victory, and its happy consequences. "I will declare Thy name, &c." And accordingly when the deliverance, so long wished, and so earnestly prayed for, was accomplished by the resurrection of Jesus from the dead, He "declared the name of God," by His Apostles, to all His "brethren;" and caused the church to resound with incessant praises and hallelujahs. Bp. Horne.

13. — I will put my trust in him.] That is, God; which words plainly denote Him to be a real man, beset with troubles and afflictions. Dr. Wells. Since the Son, in His original state, could not be in any situation which rendered looking for God to help Him necessary, this passage is quoted to prove, that Messiah was to appear on earth in the flesh, and to be afflicted; and, under His him. And again, [c] Behold I and the children which God hath given me.

Anno DOMINI 64.

[c] Is. 8. 18.

14 Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil;

15 And deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.

† Gr. he taketh not hold of angels, but of the seed of Abraham he taketh hold.

16 For verily † he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham.

17 Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people.

Anno DOMINI 64.

18 For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.

CHAP. III.

1 Christ is more worthy than Moses, 7 therefore if we believe not in him, we shall be more worthy punishment than hardhearted Israel.

WHEREFORE, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus;

† Gr. made, 1 Sam. 12. 6.

2 Who was faithful to him that † ap-affliction, to behave as a devout man in distress: just as the former passage from Ps. xxii. 22, in which He is represented as calling believers His brethren, was quoted to prove that He was to be born into the world after the manner of other men, and to be made like them in all things. Dr. Macknight.

—— Behold I and the children which God hath given me.] By calling them His children, He declared them to be of the same nature with Himself. Dr. Whitby.

14. — he might destroy him that had the power of death,] He might frustrate and make void the devil's design, which was to keep men for ever under the power of death. Dr. Hammond.

—— him that had the power of death, that is, the devil;] For, as saith the Book of Wisdom, "through envy of the devil came death into the world," chap. ii. 24. Compare John viii. 44. The Apostle's meaning is, that the devil, at the beginning of the world, had the power of bringing death on all mankind, by tempting their first parents to sin. Hence he is called "a murderer from the beginning:" and "a liar, and the father of lies," John viii. 44. Parkhurst, Dr. Macknight.

15. — through fear of death] The whole heathen world was subject to this fear, and to them death was the king of terrours. From this fear we are delivered at present, by our deliverance from that guilt of sin, which alone makes death truly terrible, 1 Cor. xv. 55, 56; and by the promise of a glorious resurrection, when "death shall be swallowed up in victory," ver. 54. Dr. Whitby.

16. — he took not on him the nature of angels;] This nature being void of our passions and affections; but of men, that having Himself the same infirmities, &c., He might in this office more compassionate theirs. Bp. Fell.

The two verses may be thus paraphrased: For Christ is to be considered as a Redeemer, not of angels and fallen spirits, but of mankind; of all those, who like true children of Abraham are subject to temptations and sufferings, and are to be advanced to pardon and happiness, by imitating Him in a patient submission to that Divine will, which they had transgressed. Upon which account it was highly expedient for Christ, our great Priest and sacrifice, to live and suffer in our nature, as the most perfect method, both to atone for our sins, and to support and encourage us under our present sufferings for His religion: whom we know to have had a fellow feeling with us, and so to bear a compassionate regard towards us. Pyle.

As Christ took manhood, that by it He might be capable of death, whereunto He humbled Himself; so, because manhood is the proper subject of compassion and feeling pity, which maketh the sceptre of Christ's regency, even in the kingdom of heaven, to be amiable; He, who without our nature could not on earth suffer for the sins of the world, doth now also, by means thereof, both make intercession to God for sinners, and exercise dominion over all men with a true, a natural, and a sensible touch of pity. Hooker.

17. — in things pertaining to God,] In offering sacrifices, prayers, intercessions to God: in deriving grace, peace, and benedictions unto the people, Exod. xviii. 19. Bp. Fell.

18. — being tempted,] That our Lord's life was a continued scene of temptation, or trial, we learn from Himself, Luke xxii. 28: "Ye are they which have continued with Me in My temptations." Christ's temptations, like those of His brethren, arose from the persecutions and sufferings to which He was exposed, as well as from direct attacks of the devil by evil suggestions: such as those mentioned in the history of His temptation in the wilderness. Dr. Macknight.

—— he is able] He is thereby rendered able to have a fellow-feeling of our miseries and afflictions, and so to have the greatest compassion for us, and as an inseparable consequence of such His compassion, He will not fail, upon due application to Him, "to succour them that are tempted." Dr. Wells.

Nothing enforces precepts like example. Now what example could the Messiah have set, in the midst of worldly pomp and grandeur? A very useful one certainly in some points to some of His chief officers, and others about His person: but removed from the sight, and unsuitable to the condition, of the bulk of mankind: whereas in the sort of life which He chose, an extremely publick, though a mean one, He was a daily and familiar pattern to all men of the most general and difficult virtues: of condescension, disinterestedness, and delight to do good: of indifference to worldly enjoyments, composedness under contempt, meekness under malicious provocations, and resignation to God's will under the bitterest sufferings of every kind. These things most of us, in one part or another of our pilgrimage, have need to practise: and we find them so hard to learn, that the encouragement of His having done and borne much more than He requires of us, and the assurance, that "having been tempted" Himself, He will "succour us when we are tempted," will in a time of trial be blessings unspeakable. Abp. Secker.

Chap. III. The Apostle here treats the second branch of his first argument for their steadiness to the Christian profession; namely, the dignity of Christ as a Lawgiver above Moses. He thence draws a warning against infidelity and apostasy; as also from the instance of the obstinate Israelites, who were denied entrance into the land of Canaan for the same miscarriage. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — the Apostle and High Priest of our profession,] That is, of the doctrine and religion which we profess. Bp. Fell. An "apostle" properly means a messenger, a person sent by another upon some business. It is applied to Christ, who was by the Father sent into the world, not to condemn but to save it. The term "High Priest" is applied to Him by way of eminence, and according to its spiritual and real import. Parkhurst. As to His apostleship, Christ is compared by St. Paul with Moses; and as to His high priesthood, with Aaron: and He is shown in what follows to have excelled them both in their respective offices. Dr. Wells.

2. Who was faithful &c.] He hath as faithfully performed every part of His great office for the Christian church, as you can imagine, or the Scripture declares, Moses to have done towards the Jewish church, when it describes him "faithful in all His house;" that is, the church of God, Numb. xii. 7. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 64. pointed him, as also Moses was faithful in all his house.

3 For this man was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honour than the house.

4 For every house is builded by some man; but he that built all things is God.

5 And Moses verily was faithful in all his house, as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after; Anno DOMINI 64.

6 But Christ as a son over his own house; whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end.

7 Wherefore (as the Holy Ghost saith, [a] To day if ye will hear his voice, [a] Ps. 95. 7

3. — this man] The word "man" is not in the original: the pronoun might be rendered 'he,' as it is in Acts x. 36. Or the passage might run, 'This apostle or lawgiver was counted, &c.' Dr. Macknight. 'This Jesus,' as corresponding to the express mention of Moses in the following words. Drs. Whitby and Wells.

—— worthy of more glory than Moses,] As it was their attachment to the Mosaick law, and the writings of the Old Testament, that hindered so many Jews from embracing Christianity, it is with the utmost propriety of address that the Apostle here undertakes to shew, that Christ was superiour to Moses; and by a necessary consequence, to the rest of the Prophets and sacred authors, whom they acknowledged to be inferiour to this great Prophet. Dr. Doddridge.

—— he who hath builded the house] The original verb signifies to set things in order, chap. ix. 6. It signifies likewise to form a thing as an artificer doth; in which sense it is applied to Noah's forming the ark, chap. xi. 7. In this passage it signifies the forming of a church or religious society, by bestowing on it privileges, and by giving it laws for the direction of its members. Dr. Macknight.

—— than the house.] Than all the members together, and consequently than any one member of the house, as Moses was. Dr. Wells.

4. For every house is builded by some man;] 'By some one,' as head or master of it. Dr. Wells. For every family or kingdom hath some original or founder; but God is the Founder of all, both of the church of the Jews, and now of the Christians: and such is our Christ, of whom we speak. Dr. Hammond. The argument seems plainly to run thus: He that governs all things is God: but Christ, as Father of His family, governs all things in His house; that is, the church dispersed throughout all the world; and hath, in order thereunto, all judgment and all power in heaven and earth committed unto Him: He must therefore be God; that is, the exercise of His kingly office shews, that He must be God as well as man. Dr. Whitby.

Builder of "all things," Eph. iii. 9; but especially of the temple, the church of God, Zech. vi. 12; Matt. xvi. 18. This supereminent dignity of our Lord Christ, that all things were made by Him, and are subjected unto Him, the Apostle often repeats. See chap. i. 2, 3, 10. Again, for subjection, chap. i. 6, 13; ii. 5, 7, 8, &c. Bp. Fell.

5. — Moses verily was faithful — for a testimony] His ministry was prophetical, and bore witness in all the principal circumstances of it to the greater ministry of Christ, who was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, because He was the Master and Builder of that house, in which Moses was no more than a servant. The fidelity of Moses under all the various trials of his ministry, is the circumstance here selected by the Apostle, and chiefly insisted on; but there was scarcely a circumstance attending his whole character which did not afford some "testimony" to the ministry of Christ. Jones of Nayland. See the notes on Deut. xviii. 18.

—— which were to be spoken after;] By Christ and His Apostles. Dr. Wells. That is, the dispensation or religion of Christ, as appears most clearly from John v. 46, 47; Luke xxiv. 44; Acts xxvi. 22; and many like passages. Pyle.

6. — as a son over his own house;] As the Son of God, and therefore as the true Lord and Owner of this house. Bp. Hall. Christ, whilst on earth, acted in a very different manner from Moses: He was faithful as Moses was: but in His intercourses with God, He demeaned Himself as a Son to His Father, and was more than once by a voice from heaven expressly styled the beloved Son of God: and in His intercourses with His disciples, He gave them precepts or commands in His own name, and by His own authority, expressly asserting Himself to be their Lord and Master, and carrying Himself as a Lord and Master "over His own house." Dr. Wells.

In the first chapter of this epistle we find that Christ is not only preferred to the angels, but is described as a Being of a totally different order. This opposition is carried on through the whole second chapter, one passage of which plainly declares Christ's existence previous to His incarnation, and that He was not of the order of angels: "He took not on Him the nature of angels, but He took on Him the seed of Abraham." Lest, however, this assertion of Christ's being of the seed of Abraham should lead the Hebrews to think Him a mere man, the Apostle immediately proceeds to point out, in the third chapter, the marked difference between Him and Moses the legislator of the Jews, who was always considered by them as the greatest of their Prophets. He says, that "Moses was faithful as a servant,—Christ as a Son;" and that Christ was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as "he who hath builded the house hath more honour than the house;" that is, the difference between Christ and Moses is that which is between Him who creates, and the thing created; and then, having before ascribed the creation of the world to Christ, he adds, "He that built all things is God." Bp. Tomline.

—— if we hold fast the confidence &c.] If we continue our Christian profession courageously, in despite of all fear; and our cheerfulness in all that befalls us here be founded on our hope of deliverance and relief from Christ on those terms on which He hath promised it. Dr. Hammond.

This church, to which the Apostle writes, was much persecuted; and upon it some deserted, or dissembled and concealed, the Christian profession. Therefore in this epistle he frequently inculcates and recurs to the necessity of perseverance therein, and extreme danger of falling away from it. For which he shews them the great power and readiness of Jesus, the High Priest of our profession, (infinitely exceeding in dignity the former Levitical,) formerly acquainted with infirmities, now exalted into glory, to succour and protect them in all afflictions: and also His omniscience, power, and justice, to discern, punish, and destroy, all backsliders and unbelievers. Bp. Fell.

7. Wherefore (as the Holy Ghost saith, &c.] Which is an obligation for us to adhere to Christ; and persevere, whatever difficulties we meet with; and not to apostatise or fall off from Him, as the Israelites did, when the Scripture saith of and to them, "To day &c." Dr. Hammond.

These words are quoted from Ps. xcv; which the Apostle tells us, chap. iv. 7, was written by David. Wherefore, seeing he here calls David's words "a saying of the Holy Ghost," he teaches us that David wrote his psalms by inspiration; as our Lord likewise testifies, Matt. xxii. 43. The judgments of God, executed on sinners in ages past, being designed for the reproof and instruction of those who come after, the Holy Ghost by David very properly founded His exhortation to the people in that age, upon the sin and punishment of their fathers in the wilderness. And the Apostle for the same reason fitly applied the words, which the Holy Ghost spake to the people by David, to the Hebrews in his day, to prevent them from hardening their hearts, when they heard God's voice speaking to them in the Gospel by His Son. Dr. Macknight.

Anno DOMINI 64.

8 Harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, in the day of temptation in the wilderness:

9 When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works forty years.

10 Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They do alway err in their heart; and they have not known my ways.

† Gr. If they shall enter.

11 So I sware in my wrath, † They shall not enter into my rest.)

12 Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.

13 But exhort one another daily, while it is called To day; lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin.

14 For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end;

15 While it is said, To day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

Anno DOMINI 64.

16 For some, when they had heard, did provoke: howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.

17 But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcases fell in the wilderness?

18 And to whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that believed not?

19 So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.

CHAP. IV.

1 The rest of Christians is attained by faith. 12 The power of God's word. 14 By our high priest Jesus the Son of God, subject to infirmities, but not sin, 16 we must and may go boldly to the throne of grace.

LET us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into his rest,

---

12. Take heed, brethren, &c.] Take heed that their case, in respect of that temporal blessing of Canaan, be not your's now, in respect of the eternal blessings of Christ's religion. Pyle. If they were so punished for rebelling against Moses the servant, how much more you for rebelling against the Son Jesus? Bp. Fell.

—— an evil heart of unbelief,] Nothing but an evil heart can make unbelief desirable, or even supportable. For to every good heart it must be the greatest joy to know, that the world is governed by infinite wisdom, justice, and goodness; and the greatest affliction, to have any doubt of it. If therefore we find the thought of such a Governour unwelcome, if we could inwardly wish there were none, we may be assured our "heart is not right." And though we could with such a disposition bring ourselves almost or completely to imagine there is none; what possible security can shutting our eyes give us against danger; or what excuse can wilfully denying God make for disobeying Him? Abp. Secker.

—— unbelief,] Unbelief of His power or of His goodness, to accomplish His promises; see Numb. xiv.: upon which straightway followed disobedience, and backsliding from Him and His laws. Bp. Fell.

—— in departing from the living God.] So called, to shew that He is always able to punish unbelievers. Let it be here noted, that as he, who believeth in Christ, believeth in God the Father also, John xii. 44; so he who deserteth Him, doth also desert the Father who sent Him, and "maketh Him a liar," 1 John v. 9, 10: for "whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father," 1 John ii. 23. Dr. Whitby.

13. — while it is called To day;] That is, as long as the time of our probation here upon earth lasteth. Dr. Wells.

—— lest any of you be hardened] By little and little grow to a contempt of grace, and an unconsciousness of sinning, and wilful disobedience. Bp. Fell.

14. For we are made partakers of Christ, &c.] For all our Christian profession hitherto will stand us in no stead, unless we persevere constant to the end in the courage and patience, which Himself hath exemplified to us. Dr. Hammond. The expression, "if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end," supposes that they who were partakers of the heavenly calling, and had at present cause of rejoicing, see ver. 6, might not hold it "firm and steadfast unto the end," but might "fall off" from it, might "depart from the living God," ver. 12; chap. iv. 11. Yea, the Apostle in this epistle doth plainly suppose, that "they who had tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, &c." might "fall away," chap. vi. 4, 5, 6: that "the just who live by faith might draw back unto perdition," chap. x. 38, 39; that they might "fail of the grace of God," chap. xii. 15. Dr. Whitby.

This verse, being included in a parenthesis, makes the clearest connexion between the 13th and 15th verses: which otherwise is much interrupted. Pyle.

17. — was it not with them that had sinned,] Namely, by their unbelief. Dr. Whitby.

18. — but to them that believed not?] In His power and goodness to supply all their needs in the desert, and possess them of the promised land of rest. They "believed not," that through His power they should overcome the nations and should possess Canaan: see Numb. xiv.: upon which followed their doom of not entering, ver. 23. Again: they "believed not" that He could provide meat and drink enough for them in the barren wilderness, &c. Bp. Fell.

19. — they could not enter in because of unbelief.] The conclusion of the Apostle's reasoning, concerning the sin and punishment of the ancient Israelites, contained in this verse, ought to make a deep impression on every reader, since it shews, in the strongest colours, the malignity of unbelief, and teaches us that it is the source of all the sin and misery prevalent among mankind. Our first parents sinned through their not believing God, when He said, "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die:" and their posterity sin, through their not believing what God hath suggested to them by their own reason, and by revelation, concerning the rewards and punishments of a future state. Dr. Macknight.

Chap. IV. St. Paul continues to shew, that, as the disobedient Israelites did not enter into the land of Canaan, so neither shall the unbelieving Christians enter into the kingdom of heaven. For this purpose he observes, that what David says in the Psalms, of the people's entering into God's rest, is to be understood, not so much of the land of Canaan, as of the true rest which consists in the enjoyment of the salvation that Christ hath obtained for us. He concludes from thence, that we ought to labour to enter into this rest: he declares that unbelievers shall not escape those threatenings, which the word of God has denounced against them, since His word is true, and divine, and powerful. And lastly, to encourage the Hebrews to persevere in the Christian profession, and to be constant under afflictions, he represents that Jesus Christ is a merciful High Priest, who is ascended into heaven; and who, having Himself suffered, is inclined to have compassion on our infirmities, and to assist us in all our wants. Osterwald.

Anno DOMINI 64.

any of you should seem to come short of it.

2 For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them: but † the word preached did not profit them, ‖ not being mixed with faith in them that heard it.

† Gr. the word of hearing.
‖ Or, because they were not united by faith to.

3 For we which have believed do enter into rest, as he said, As I have sworn in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

4 For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day on this wise, And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.

5 And in this place again, If they shall enter into my rest.

Anno DOMINI 64.

6 Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter therein, and they to whom ‖ it was first preached entered not in because of unbelief:

‖ Or, the gospel was first preached.

7 (Again, he limiteth a certain day, saying in David, To day, after so long a time; as it is said, To day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts.

8 For if ‖ Jesus had given them rest, then would he not afterward have spoken of another day.

‖ That is, Joshua.

9 There remaineth therefore a ‖ rest to the people of God.

‖ Or, keeping of a sabbath.

Ver. 1. — should seem to come short of it.] That is, should fail of it. Dr. Whitby. It is observed by criticks, that the verb, rendered "seem," is often used as an expletive. See Matt. iii. 9; Mark x. 42; Luke viii. 18; 1 Cor. x. 12. Dr. Wells.

2. For unto us was the gospel preached, &c.] We have now the glad tidings and Gospel promise of a future rest, as they also had in types; their rest in Canaan being a type of their future rest with God in the heavenly Canaan. Dr. Whitby.

The "Gospel" signifies a message from God for the salvation of man; and as such was delivered at sundry times by Moses and the Prophets. If the word preached did not profit some, "not being mixed with faith in them that heard it," this is no argument against the sense or sufficiency of the word itself: it only shews us, that in all ages of the world some there have been, and will be, who, being carnally minded and wholly attached to this world, are destitute of that principle, which the Scripture calls by the name of "faith;" and which, as an universal test to the servants of God, is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. Jones of Nayland.

3. For we which have believed] Or, we who are believers. Dr. Wells.

—— as he said, As I have sworn in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest:] That is, "they shall not enter into My rest," chap. iii. 11. The Greek phrase in each place is the same, and is here literally rendered, "if they shall enter:" meaning, Let Me not be God, or, Let Me not be true, if they enter. This form of swearing is very frequent in the Old Testament, as, according to the original phrases, in Deut. i. 35; Ps. xcv. 11; 1 Sam. iii. 14; Ps. lxxxix. 35; cxxxii. 1—4. So also in Mark viii. 12. Dr. Whitby.

The Apostle's argument is to this purpose: Seeing men are by the oath of God excluded from God's rest on account of unbelief, this implies that those who believe shall enter into His rest. Dr. Macknight.

—— although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.] God's swearing that the rebellious Israelites in the wilderness should not enter into His rest, notwithstanding the works of creation were finished and the seventh day was instituted from the beginning, is mentioned in this place, to shew that the rest, from which the Israelites were excluded, was not the seventh-day rest, which they were then enjoying, but a future rest, into which they might have entered by believing and obeying God. Dr. Macknight.

6. Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter therein,] For the clearer understanding of this passage it must be observed, that there is a threefold rest spoken of in Scripture, all which are called "His," that is, God's rest; being all of His appointing and providing: namely, 1st, The rest of the sabbath-day, in remembrance of God's resting from the work of creation: 2dly, The typical rest in the land of Canaan: 3dly, An eternal rest with God in heaven, of which the sabbath and the Israelites' rest in Canaan were a type and a figure. The Apostle's design is to prove, that the rest, which God principally intends for His people, is this last rest. Burkitt.

The general scope and connexion of verses 3—6, may be thus briefly given: For that there is such a future and eternal state of rest and happiness reserved for God's faithful servants, beside, and far exceeding, that of the Jewish Canaan, is plain, by comparing the several passages of Scripture where that phrase of the rest of God is mentioned. When God had finished the works of the creation, He is said to have "rested from His work." And when the Psalmist, Ps. xcv, mentions the entrance into "God's rest," it is indeed, so far as it refers to the Jews in the wilderness, meant of their entering into the land of Canaan, as a rest from their travels in the wilderness; but as it relates to the Jews of his own time, to whom David spoke them, it must have a higher meaning than the rest of Canaan, which those murmurers lost by infidelity. Pyle.

7—9. (Again, he limiteth a certain day, &c.] For, as that exhortation of David, "not to harden their hearts," was directed to the people then living, who had for a long time been possessed of the land of Canaan, into which Joshua brought their forefathers; the "rest of God" proposed to them could not be that, but must signify a future state of heavenly happiness; the same that the Gospel promiseth to us Christians. Pyle.

8. — Jesus] The Greek translation of the Hebrew word Joshua. See the margin. It would have been more proper, and at the same time more intelligible to ordinary readers, if in our translation the Hebrew name Joshua had been preserved. And the same may be remarked concerning other Greek names of persons, such as Noe, Matt. xxiv. 37, Jephthae, Gedeon, and others, Heb. xi, which are given instead of the Hebrew names, Noah, Jephthah, Gideon, &c. Dr. Wells.

9. There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God.] The Apostle having established this conclusion by just reasoning on the sayings of the Holy Ghost, uttered by the mouth of David, the state of the Israelites under the Mosaick dispensation is misrepresented by those, who affirm that the Jews had no knowledge of the immortality of the soul, nor of future retributions, given them in the writings of Moses. They had both discovered to them in the covenant with Abraham, as recorded by Moses and explained by the Prophets. The Apostle, in his conclusion, hath substituted the word Sabbatism, for the word Rest, used in his premises: (see the margin:) but both are proper, especially the word Sabbatism in this place, because by directing us to what is said ver. 4, it sheweth the nature of that rest which remaineth to the people of God. It will resemble the rest of the sabbath, both in its employments and enjoyments. For therein the saints shall rest from their work of trial, and from all the evils they are subject to in the present life; and shall recollect the labours they have undergone, the dangers they have escaped, and the temptations they have overcome. And by reflecting on these things, and on the method of their salvation, they shall be unspeakably happy. To this add, that being admitted into the immediate presence of God to worship, they shall, as Dr. Doddridge observes, 'pass a perpetual sabbath in those elevations of pure devotion, which the sublimest moments of our most sacred and happy days can teach us but imperfectly to conceive.' Dr. Macknight.

Anno DOMINI 64.

10 For he that is entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from his.)

11 Let us labour therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of ‖ unbelief.

‖ Or, disobedience.

12 For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.

14 Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession.

15 For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.

Anno DOMINI 64.

16 Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

CHAP. V.

1 The authority and honour of our Saviour's priesthood.
11 Negligence in the knowledge thereof is reproved.

FOR every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins:

2 Who ‖ can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself also is compassed with infirmity.

‖ Or, can reasonably bear with.

3 And by reason hereof he ought, as for the people, so also for himself, to offer for sins.

---

10. For he that is entered into his rest, &c.] Nor indeed could the happiness and reward of a true servant of God be properly compared to "God's rest from all His work," unless it be a final and complete deliverance from all the labours and troubles of this life. Pyle.

12. For the word of God is quick, &c.] Commentators are divided as to the sense of the expression, "the word of God," in this place. Some understand it of "the word preached," or "heard," ver. 2: others, of our Saviour Himself, styled by St. John "the Word," John i. 1; agreeably to the personal properties ascribed to it in the latter part of this verse, as also to the description given of our Saviour, Rev. i. 16, &c. Dr. Wells. The following paraphrase comprises both significations: And consider how exquisitely wise, all-knowing, and terribly powerful this Jesus the Son and Word of God is: that there is no way to conceal your cowardice and hypocrisy from Him, the searcher of hearts, who is both your Saviour and your Judge. Consider also what a powerful and effectual thing the word of God is, namely, His promises and threatenings, when duly believed, and attended to, in the minds of men. Pyle.

—— piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, &c.] Piercing, not into the body, but into the mind, even to the separating between soul and spirit, shewing which of the passions are animal and which spiritual; and to the separating of the joints also and marrow, laying open the most concealed parts of the animal constitution. The Apostle proceeds upon the supposition that man consisteth of three parts: a body; a sensitive soul, which he hath in common with the brutes; and a rational spirit. Compare 1 Thess. v. 23. Dr. Macknight.

The allusion in this and in the following verse is to the operations of the priest, who, in dissecting the sacrifices, observed and separated those parts, which were the most secret and the most closely joined together. And the meaning is, that no hypocrisy or concealment can elude the penetration and discrimination of our allseeing Judge. Dr. Hammond.

14. Seeing then that we have a great high priest, &c.] As, by the ministry of the high priest, the Israelites were qualified for the worship of the tabernacle, so likewise, through the offering made by Jesus Christ, we obtain permission to approach the presence of God, and to serve Him with acceptance. St. Paul assures us, that through Christ "we have access unto the Father," Eph. ii. 18; and again, that in Him "we have boldness and access with confidence," Eph. iii. 12: and in this Epistle to the Hebrews the consideration, that "we have a great High Priest that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God," is held out as an encouragement to us to "come boldly unto the throne of grace." And again, in the tenth chapter, the Apostle, at the conclusion of his discourse upon the priesthood of Christ and the benefits which we derive from it, exhorts us to "draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith," chap. x. 22. From all which it is manifest, that Jesus Christ is to us under the Gospel, what the high priest was to the Israelites of old. By His office and ministry in the heavenly tabernacle He sanctifieth and consecrateth the whole Christian church, and hath obtained for all the members of it the glorious privilege of access to God. Veysie.

Chap. V. The Apostle asserts the dignity and excellency of Christ's priesthood above the Levitical: proves the efficacy of it from our Saviour's resurrection and glorification: and compares it to that of Melchizedek. He then notices the wisdom and advantages of the sufferings of the Son of God; and complains of the small progress of the Jewish Christians. Pyle.

Ver. 1. For every high priest &c.] In order to shew that Christ is our High Priest, and as such worketh deliverance for us, the Apostle enlarges a little, by comparing the chief things observable in an Aaronical priest with the like observable in Him. He specifies chiefly three: 1st, The Aaronical high priest was set apart from the common multitude, and appointed to act instead of them in all things between them and God, ver. 1. 2dly, He did this affectionately and with a fellow feeling of those infirmities, which had betrayed them into errour, considering that he himself was subject to the like infirmities, ver. 2, 3. 3dly, The nature of this office was such, that no man might legally assume it to himself, but only he that was of Aaron's line, and so called to it by God, who assigned it to that line, ver. 4. The Apostle then shews in an inverted order that each of these particulars is applicable to Christ. The third parallel is made good in the 5th and 6th verses; the second in the 7th and 8th; and the first in the 9th and 10th verses. Dr. Hammond.

—— both gifts and sacrifices for sins:] Burnt offerings, which are by men given to God, and so spent by the priest wholly in God's service; and sin offerings, such as Lev. iv. 3. Dr. Hammond. "Gifts," or free-will offerings, as distinguished from "sacrifices for sins," were expressions of gratitude to God for His goodness in the common dispensations of His providence. Dr. Macknight.

3. — as for the people, so also for himself, &c.] It is to be observed, that this is a description of the high priest under the law, not of our Lord Jesus Christ, our great High Priest under the Gospel, because Christ had actually no sin of his own to answer for, being holy, harmless, and undefiled, separate from sinners. This expression therefore, of offering for his own sins, belongs to

Anno DOMINI 64.

4 And no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

5 So also Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest; but he that said unto him, Thou art my Son, to day have I begotten thee.

6 As he saith also in another place, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

7 Who in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death, and was heard ‖ in that he feared;

‖ Or, for his piety.

8 Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered;

9 And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him;

Anno DOMINI 64.

10 Called of God an high priest after the order of Melchisedec.

11 Of whom we have many things to say, and hard to be uttered, seeing ye are dull of hearing.

12 For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat.

13 For every one that useth milk † is unskilful in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe.

† Gr. hath no experience.

14 But strong meat belongeth to them that are ‖ of full age, even those who by the weakness and imperfection of the Jewish high priest. Compare chap. vii. 27; iv. 15; ix. 14. Burkitt, Dr. Whitby.

‖ Or, perfect.

---

5. So also Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest; &c.] Hence we learn, that the office of the Highpriesthood over the church of God was an honour and glory to Jesus Christ: it was so to His human nature, even as it was united to His Divine nature. The verse implies, that it was a glory and honour, though not assumed, but conferred; and that as Aaron was called of God, so was Christ, but in a more glorious and excellent manner. By this we perceive the pride and presumption of those, who take upon them to officiate in matters of religion, though not duly called to the work. Burkitt.

Ministering grace consists not in a self-appointment and designation; for "no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God," as Aaron and his sons were under the Old Testament; and in the New, even "Christ glorified not Himself," but was authorized by the Father, when the voice from heaven ordained Him to the work. Which grace He gave to the Apostles, and they to their successors, and these deliver what they have received from one to another to the end of time. So that a promiscuous ministry, and intrusion into it without call or mission, is a sacrilegious attempt on the grace of God, but is no gift of the Holy Ghost. Dr. Glocester Ridley.

—— Thou art my Son, &c.] In Acts xiii. 33, this passage is cited by St. Paul to prove our Saviour's resurrection; and here to prove His Melchizedecal priesthood, as what He was to enter upon after His resurrection. Dr. Wells. See Ps. ii. 7; chap. i. 5; and the notes on the passages referred to.

6. — after the order of Melchisedec.] That is, after his similitude; see chap. vii. 15. Bp. Fell. According to his likeness or resemblance. Pyle. Such a priest as Melchizedek was. Dr. Hammond.

Melchizedek having neither predecessor nor successor in his office, his priesthood could not be called an "order," if by that phrase is understood a succession of persons, executing that priesthood. Wherefore the phrase must mean, "after the similitude of Melchizedek," as it is expressed chap. vii. 15; and according to the rendering of the Syriack version. Dr. Macknight, Parkhurst.

7. — was heard, in that he feared;] "Heard," and so delivered 'from his fear;' namely, that horrid fear, which is so affectingly described, Matt. xxvi. 37, 38; Mark xiv. 33; and under which "an angel appeared from heaven strengthening Him," Luke xxii. 43. Or, 'heard from, or on account of, His religious reverence,' namely to God. Our translators, in rendering the passage "and was heard, in that He feared," seem to have aimed at preserving the ambiguity of the original: for "in that" may here mean, either as to that which, or in as much as. The marginal translation is agreeable to the latter sense, "for His piety." Parkhurst.

8. — learned he obedience by the things which he suffered;] Though, being the natural and eternal Son of God, He was replenished with all perfection of graces and virtues, yet, that He might be a merciful High Priest to us, He was willing, by the experience of His sufferings, to be tutored to an exact obedience. Bp. Hall. As Christ's human soul advanced gradually in knowledge, so did it also in the perfection of virtue, though always free from any defilement of sin; and His patient and cheerful submission was improved by every trial. Dr. Doddridge.

9. And being made perfect, he became &c.] In this verse three things are clearly stated. 1st, That Christ was made perfect as an high priest by offering Himself a sacrifice for sin, chap. viii. 3. 2dly, That by the merit of that sacrifice He hath obtained pardon and eternal life for them who obey Him. 3dly, That obedience to Christ is equally necessary to salvation with believing on Him. Dr. Macknight.

10. — an high priest after the order of Melchisedec.] Christ's Melchizedecal or eternal priesthood, joined with kingship, was consummated in His resurrection, and is now continued in His service in the heavenly sanctuary; see ver. 5, here compared with Acts xiii. 33, and Ps. ii. 7, 8; chap. vi. 20; viii. 1, 2, 4; vii. 26; Ps. cx. 4; compared with chap. i. 2. (His kingship and priesthood being always joined.) In which heavenly sanctuary He perpetually offers His blood and passion to God; and as man makes perpetual prayers and intercessions for us, Rom. viii. 34; Heb. vii. 25; ix. 24; 1 John ii. 1. Bp. Fell.

11. Of whom we have many things to say,] Of which resemblance between Christ and Melchizedek. Dr. Hammond. A digression commences here, which is prosecuted to the beginning of the 7th chapter. Bp. Fell.

—— hard to be uttered,] Or explained, not from the nature of the things themselves, but because ye are dull of hearing. Dr. Whitby.

13. — for he is a babe.] The Apostle compares the Hebrews to babes, not on account of their innocence, simplicity, and teachableness, qualities which Christ recommended to all His disciples; but on account of their weakness and ignorance, for which, considering the advantages which they had so long enjoyed, they were much to blame. Dr. Macknight.

14. But strong meat belongeth to them &c.] Those more difficult and profound mysteries of Christianity belong to them, which are of more growth and strength of knowledge, and spiritual understanding; who have had their minds enured unto, and exercised in, these heavenly speculations, so as they are able to discern between the good of truth, and the evil of errour. Bp. Hall.

This is premised by the Apostle, not as if he thought them utterly unfit for, or incapable of, the sublime doctrine he afterward delivers; but, by gently taxing their negligence and improficiency, (of whom also some were fallen away, and others, like children, were relapsing to the former ceremonies, elements, and rudiments reason ‖ of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil.

Anno DOMINI 64.

‖ Or, of an habit, or, perfection.

CHAP. VI.

1 He exhorteth not to fall back from the faith, 11 but to be stedfast, 12 diligent, and patient to wait upon God, 13 because God is most sure in his promise.

‖ Or, the word of the beginning of Christ.

THEREFORE leaving ‖ the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God,

Anno DOMINI 64.

2 Of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.

3 And this will we do, if God permit.

4 For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the of the Mosaical law,) to excite them to a greater vigilance and attentiveness to it. Bp. Fell.

---

When the Apostle is entering upon the more mysterious parts of this Epistle, he upbraids the Hebrews with their unskilfulness in the word of God. They contented themselves with the first elements of Christian instruction, and neglected the mysteries of the Scriptures; living, as children do, upon "milk," with little appetite and strength to admit more solid nourishment. Some think they are learned enough, if they never get beyond their Catechism: some never get so far. And it is common to plead in excuse, that, little as their knowledge is, they know more good than they do, and have already more learning than they practise: not considering, that the Scripture abounds with many great and excellent mysteries, which have nothing practical in them, but so far only as they elevate the mind, and by bringing our affections nearer to God, dispose us to do His will with more love and cheerfulness, and consequently to do more of it and to better effect: which is a matter of infinite importance, and now too little attended to. The Christian must be progressive: he must "go on" from the beginning of knowledge to the "perfection" of it. He ought to know more of God every day; otherwise he may think of Him less, till he totally forgets Him. Jones of Nayland.

Chap. VI. St. Paul tells the Hebrews, that it was not his intention to teach them the first rudiments of religion, but that he designed to propose to them more sublime doctrines, discoursing of the similitude which there was between Christ and Melchizedek, and the ancient priests. To excite them to make a progress in the knowledge of the mysteries of the Gospel, he sets before them the unhappiness of those, who, neglecting to confirm themselves in the faith, and despising the knowledge and graces they have received from God, do not produce the fruits which God expects, and at last renounce the truth and forsake Christ. He tells the Hebrews, that the reason, why he spake to them in this manner, was to awaken their zeal, since he was convinced they would not expose themselves to the like misfortunes. And lastly, to strengthen their faith, he represents to them the steadiness of God's promises by the example of Abraham, and the certainty of that hope, which Christ's entrance into heaven gives all believers. Osterwald.

Ver. 1. — let us go on unto perfection;] That is, to the doctrines which will render you perfect men in the knowledge of Christ. To be perfect, signifies to be fully instructed in the principles of Christian faith. See the note on 1 Cor. ii. 6. Dr. Whitby.

Not resting ourselves contented with the knowledge of the first principles of Christian religion, let us go on towards the perfect understanding of the highest mysteries thereof; not needing now to be instructed anew in the first grounds of our catechism, in the doctrine of repentance for sin, and of faith in God. Bp. Hall.

—— dead works,] Namely, sinful works, the wages whereof is death. Dr. Wells.

2. Of the doctrine of baptisms, &c.] Those ordinary points of religion, which are called for of all that are baptized, and to be made capable of the imposition of hands for their confirmation in the faith received; and, particularly, that there is a happy resurrection of the just to glory, and a judgment unto eternal death and damnation pertaining to the wicked and ungodly. Bp. Hall.

—— baptisms,] The original word is a plural, and thereby may be denoted the ancient rite of dipping the person baptized thrice under water; namely, at the mention of each of the three Divine Persons, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, expressed in our Saviour's prescribed form of words, Matt. xxviii. 19. Others understand the solemn stated times of the primitive church for baptism, when, a great number of persons being baptized together, the Apostle denoted this by the plural "baptisms." Others understand the outward baptism of water, and the inward baptism of the Spirit, John iii. 5. After all it may be only a change of number, and by most commentators it is agreed to denote no more than what we call in the singular, baptism. Dr. Wells.

3. And this will we do,] Namely, "go on unto perfection," or proceed to treat of such things, as relate to a more perfect knowledge of Christianity. Drs. Wells and Whitby.

4. For it is impossible &c.] That is, it is a thing arduous, and laborious, and beset with many difficulties. Schleusner. Not strictly impossible, but only highly improbable or difficult. This and the two following verses may be thus paraphrased: I will do this, I say, for the sake of those who still persevere in their Christian profession. For indeed it would be a vain and endless undertaking for me to begin again, and reconvert those amongst you, who, against the most solemn engagements of their baptism, and the happy experience of the gifts of the Holy Ghost conferred from heaven upon them; against all the sense they had of the great mercies of the laws and privileges of the Gospel; and in defiance of all those powerful demonstrations, whereby the whole religion of Christ has been so amply confirmed to them; have wilfully revolted, and thrown off Christianity, to embrace the Jewish or heathenish religion again. Because such people have already resisted the utmost evidences that can ever be offered for their conviction, and done as perfect and publick a dishonour to Christ and His religion, as if they had crucified Him anew as a malefactor. Pyle.

The word "impossible" doth many times signify no more than it is extremely difficult: but in this place the Apostle speaks of such as do not only fall away, but add persecution of the Gospel of grace to their apostasy from it: for "they tread under foot the Son of God, and count the blood of the covenant, wherewith they were sanctified, an unholy thing, and do despite unto the Spirit of grace." Though we may not "give that which is holy unto dogs, nor cast our pearls before swine," who will "trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend us," yet we are assured "the fatted calf" is killed and made ready to entertain the returning prodigal. Sinners are therefore exhorted every where to return; God hath promised to "heal their backslidings," Hos. xiv. 1, 2, 4. And Christ hath invited "all that are heavy laden" with their sins to "come unto Him," Matt. xi. 28; and if they come, we have His promise, "He will in no wise cast them out," John vi. 37. Bp. Womack.

If persons have, since they came to a full use of reason, deliberately professed Christianity, and then forsaken it, and become railers and scoffers at it; their case is worse than if they had never believed, in proportion as they have seen the evidences, understood the nature, and felt the influences of the Gospel, and yet after all have broken the faith, which they had solemnly engaged to it. The Apostle therefore makes the declaration contained in these three verses, 4—6. But then, explicit and terrible as these words are, yet some of them plainly relate to those miraculous gifts and powers, which we do not now experience, and therefore cannot sin against them to that degree, nor by consequence make our condition so desperate, as those who did: besides that "impossible," both in Scripture and in common language, often means heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost,

Anno DOMINI 64.

5 And have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come,

6 If they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame.

7 For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth
‖ Or, for. forth herbs meet for them ‖ by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing from God:

8 But that which beareth thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned.

9 But, beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak.

10 For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you do shew the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end:

Anno DOMINI 64.

12 That ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

13 For when God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he sware by himself,

14 Saying, Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee.

15 And so, after he had patiently endured, he obtained the promise.

16 For men verily swear by the greater: and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife.

17 Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, † confirmed it by an oath:

† Gr. interposed himself by an oath.

18 That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us:

---

no more than extremely difficult and hopeless: but not beyond the reach of His grace, "with whom all things are possible," Matt. xix. 26. And as this impossibility is expressly said to be that of "renewing them to repentance," so, when any one is "renewed to repentance," this passage contains not the least intimation that he cannot be forgiven. Abp. Secker.

5. — the powers of the world to come,] That is, of the Gospel age; for "the world to come," in the language of the Prophets and of the Jewish doctors, signifies the times of the Messiah. Burkitt, Dr. Whitby. The word, rendered "powers," often denotes those miraculous powers, which were bestowed on the first Christians for the confirmation of the Gospel, and to enable them to edify each other in their religious assemblies. Or it may here denote the efficacy of the ordinances of religion, dispensed in the Christian church for converting sinners, called 'the age to come,' in conformity to the phraseology of the Jews, who termed the age of the Messiah, 'the age to come.' Dr. Macknight. See the note on chap. ii. 5.

7. — receiveth blessing from God:] So it is with them, who become fruitful under the dew and showers of Divine grace. This comparison is implied in the words of the Apostle. Dr. Whitby, Burkitt.

8. — is rejected,] It is rejected by the husbandman, who will spend no more labour upon it, but leave it to be scorched by the heat, and so to be like the heath, which is the emblem of the cursed man, Jer. xvii. 5, 6; or like the barren fig-tree, which the Lord cursed, Matt. xxi. 19. Accordingly they, on whom the showers of Divine grace fall down from heaven, if they bring forth no good fruit, shall be rejected by God, continue under the curse of the law, and their end shall be destruction. Dr. Whitby. As in the blessing, mentioned ver. 7, there is an allusion to the primitive blessing, whereby the earth was rendered fruitful, Gen. i. 11; so in the curse, here mentioned, there is an allusion to the curse pronounced on the earth after the fall, Gen. iii. 17. Dr. Macknight.

9. — we are persuaded better things of you,] This, as Pierce observes, is exactly in St. Paul's manner of softening the harsh things he found himself obliged to write. See 2 Thess. ii. 13; Eph. iv. 20. Dr. Macknight.

11. — to the full assurance of hope unto the end:] To the consummation of your hope. Bp. Fell, Dr. Hammond. That you may persevere in performing that condition, upon which all the promises are proposed, and your hopes grounded. Dr. Hammond.

12. That ye be not slothful, &c.] That ye be diligent and courageous in every branch of your Christian duty, and patient under all sufferings for the sake of it; in imitation of all those great and holy men, who have reaped the promised blessing of God by the same means. Pyle.

15. — he obtained the promise.] He obtained in due time actually so much of the promise, as belonged to his own person. Dr. Wells. Accordingly Abraham actually lived to see a numerous, at least a very prosperous, family of his own, as a present reward of his faith and patience. But the promise was further performed, by God's merciful and wondrous dispensations toward the Jewish church; and is now absolutely completed to all mankind, by the blessings of the Christian religion. Pyle.

16. For men verily swear by the greater: &c.] Thus God was pleased to condescend to the manner of men, for our greater and more perfect satisfaction. Pyle.

This observation teaches us, that both promissory oaths concerning things lawful and in our power, and oaths for the confirmation of things doubtful, when required by proper authority and taken religiously, are allowable under the Gospel. Dr. Macknight.

18. That by two immutable things,] Namely, God's promise and His oath. Bp. Hall.

To shew more abundantly unto the heirs of promise the immutability of His counsel, God confirmed it by an oath, that by two immutable things, wherein it was impossible for God to lie, "we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us." It was not for His own sake therefore, nor to make His word or promise stronger in itself, that He confirmed it by an oath, His word being always as much as His oath; but it was for our sakes only, that we, who usually among ourselves lay greater weight upon a man's oath than upon his word, might more firmly believe His promises, and so have stronger consolation in them. Bp. Beveridge.

—— in which it was impossible for God to lie,] Though with the holy Patriarch we confess, that "God can do every thing," Job xlii. 2; we must remember that Omnipotence itself does not extend to contradictions or impossibilities: God cannot lie, inasmuch as that would be contrary to His perfect nature. Bp. Tomline.

—— who have fled for refuge] From the rest of the unbelieving world, as Abraham from his country. Bp. Fell.

Anno DOMINI 64.

19 Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and which entereth into that within the veil;

20 Whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

CHAP. VII.

1 Christ Jesus is a priest after the order of Melchisedec, 11 and so, far more excellent than the priests of Aaron's order.

FOR this Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him;

2 To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being by interpretation King of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of peace;

† Gr. without pedigree.

3 Without father, without mother, † without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually.

Anno DOMINI 64.

4 Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils.

5 And verily they that are of the sons of Levi, who receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the loins of Abraham:

6 But he whose ‖ descent is not counted from them received tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises.

‖ Or, pedigree.

7 And without all contradiction the less is blessed of the better.

8 And here men that die receive tithes; but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witnessed that he liveth.

9 And as I may so say, Levi also, who receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham.

10 For he was yet in the loins of his father, when Melchisedec met him.

Or, have fled away from the curse of the law, like the manslayer from the avenger. Dr. Macknight. There appears to be an allusion here to the cities of refuge under the law. Burkitt.

19. Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, &c.] Which hope is to the soul, as an anchor to the ship, a sure and steadfast stay thereunto in all the storms and tempests of temptation; which is firmly pitched, not below on earth, but above in heaven, the true Holy of Holies, within the vail. Bp. Hall.

20. — even Jesus, &c.] This mention of the name of Jesus reminds the Apostle to put an end to the digression made from chap. v. 10, to this last verse of the 6th chapter; and makes way for proceeding with the subject proposed before to be treated of; namely, the Melchizedecal priesthood of Christ. Dr. Wells.

Chap. VII. The Apostle shews in what respects the priesthood of Christ resembles that of Melchizedek: thence infers the dignity and excellence of it above the Levitical: and by the change of the priesthood demonstrates the suspension of the Jewish religion, and of the obligation to the ceremonial law. Pyle.

Ver. 1. For this Melchisedec, &c.] See Gen. xiv. 17—20; and the notes there.

2. — being by interpretation King of righteousness,] That is, by interpretation of the word Melchizedek. Dr. Whitby.

In ancient times, especially among the people whose history is recorded by Moses, it was usual to give names to persons and places expressive of their qualities, or in commemoration of some remarkable events. And it is highly probable, that this excellent king and his subjects derived the names which they bear in history from their zeal and well-known characters. Viewed in this light, the Apostle's argument from the names is conclusive, to shew what an excellent person Melchizedek was, and how fit to be made a type of the Son of God; who in allusion to that type was declared to "love righteousness and hate wickedness," Ps. xlv. 7; and was foretold by Isaiah, under the title of the "Prince of Peace," Is. ix. 6. Dr. Macknight.

3. Without father, without mother, without descent,] Or, pedigree: one, of whose father, or mother, or pedigree, there is no mention in the narrative of Genesis, as being indeed of another race, not of that which is recorded in Scripture; see ver. 6. This notes Him to be no priest by descent, as the Levitical priests were; in consequence of which their genealogies and pedigrees, both on the father's and on the mother's side, were preserved exactly. Dr. Hammond. The meaning is, that Melchizedek did not derive his priesthood from his parents, but was made a priest of the most high God by a particular appointment. Dr. Macknight.

—— having neither beginning of days,] From which his priestly office was to commence, "nor end of life," in which it terminated. Or, according to the ordinary sense of interpreters, that in Scripture there is nothing said of the beginning or end of his life. Dr. Whitby.

What Melchizedek was figuratively, Christ was really. Melchizedek had "neither beginning of days nor end of life," nothing being recorded in Scripture with regard to his birth or death; consequently the Son of God had in reality "neither beginning of days nor end of life." Dr. Jortin.

—— abideth a priest continually.] In that there is no intimation given of any time wherein that office of his ceased. Bp. Hall. That is, Moses, who is otherwise very punctual, recites nothing of his death, or successor; and that not without a mystery; because he was to be a type of the true and real everlasting High Priest, Jesus Christ. Bp. Fell.

5. — though they come out of the loins of Abraham:] That is, were descended from Abraham as well as they, and so in all other respects were on a level with them. Pyle Their paying of tithes was a sign of their subjection to the Levitical priest, though proceeding from the same stock with him. Bp. Fell.

6. But he whose descent is not counted from them] Melchizedek, who was no kin to Abraham, nor to that people. Dr. Hammond.

7. And without all contradiction the less is blessed of the better.] Namely, in a sacerdotal benediction; the priest doing it in God's stead, and being called to do it by His authority, chap. v. 4, as a mediator between both: and God Himself blessing thereupon, Numb. vi. 27, which blessing gives them a right, as it were, to obtain afterwards from God their petitions. Bp. Fell. See the notes on Numb. vi. 27.

This is a clear argument that Melchizedek was a greater person than Abraham. Dr. Hammond.

8. And here men that die receive tithes; &c.] And in the Levitical law they that receive tithes die, succeed, and are succeeded; their succession of one after the death of another is recorded in the Scripture, and so their death punctually set down: but in that place of Genesis Melchizedek hath no other mention made of him, but that he liveth; no kind of mention of his death. Dr. Hammond. In which respect he may be said to bear some resemblance to the ever-living and ever-blessed Jesus. Dr. Doddridge.

10. — he was yet in the loins of his father, &c.] This might be

Anno DOMINI 64.

11 If therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for under it the people received the law,) what further need was there that another priest should rise after the order of Melchisedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron?

12 For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law.

13 For he of whom these things are spoken pertaineth to another tribe, of which no man gave attendance at the altar.

14 For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Juda; of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood.

15 And it is yet far more evident: for that after the similitude of Melchisedec there ariseth another priest, 16 Who is made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life.

Anno DOMINI 64.

17 For he testifieth, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

18 For there is verily a disannulling of the commandment going before for the weakness and unprofitableness thereof.

19 For the law made nothing perfect, ‖ but the bringing in of a better hope did; by the which we draw nigh unto God.

‖ Or, but it was the bringing in.

20 And inasmuch as not without an oath he was made priest:

21 (For those priests were made ‖ without an oath; but this with an oath by him that said unto him, [a] The Lord sware and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec:)

‖ Or, without swearing of an oath.

[a] Ps. 110. 4.

22 By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament.

---

justly said of Levi, who descended from Abraham in the ordinary course of generation. But it cannot be said of Christ, who was born in a miraculous manner, without any human father. While therefore the Apostle's argument, taken from Abraham's paying tithes to Melchizedek, and his receiving the blessing from him, proves that both Abraham and the Levitical priests, his natural descendants, were inferiour to Melchizedek, it does not apply to Christ at all. Dr. Macknight.

11. — perfection] Perfect remission of sins by the sacrifices which the legal priest offered, &c. Bp. Fell.

—— what further need was there that another priest should rise] There would then have been no need, as it seems there was, that God should institute another sort of priest. Dr. Hammond. Of a more high and excellent order. Bp. Hall.

12. For the priesthood being changed, &c.] As the priesthood is no small part of the law and ordination of God, and that which is exercised in and about the care and oversight of the observations thereof: so it must thereupon follow, that the priesthood being changed, the law of necessity be changed also. Bp. Hall.

Under the law the offices of the priesthood consisted in offering the sacrifices of beasts, and in performing various rites for purifying the bodies of the worshippers from ceremonial defilement, that they might be fit to join the congregation in the publick worship of God. But when the priesthood was changed, by raising up from another tribe a Priest after the order of Melchizedek, whose services had for their object to purify the conscience of the worshippers, not by the sacrifice of beasts, but by the sacrifice of Himself, the whole law concerning the sacrifices of beasts, and concerning the sanctifying of the flesh of the Israelites by washing, &c. was of necessity changed; that is, abolished entirely. Dr. Macknight.

13. — another tribe, of which no man gave attendance at the altar.] Namely, the tribe of Judah, of which none by the law were to be priests. Dr. Hammond.

14. For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Juda;] That Messiah was to spring out of Judah, is very plain from the prophecies concerning His descent. And it is likewise plain, that this part of the Messiah's character was verified in our Lord, whose genealogy St. Matthew and St. Luke have traced up to king David, from the publick tables. For, that such tables of their descent were kept by the Jews, Josephus testifieth: 'I give you these successions of our family, as I find them written in the publick tables.' By these tables St. Paul knew himself to be of the tribe of Benjamin. Dr. Macknight.

16. — not after the law of a carnal commandment, &c.] Not by virtue of a command or institution, which stands upon a fleshly succession; but upon that infinite power of God, which continueth an endless life unto Him, without all need or possibility of a successor. Bp. Hall.

18. — for the weakness and unprofitableness thereof.] Not that the law of Moses was weak in itself, or unprofitable to the end for which God made it; namely, to lead men to Christ; but weak and unprofitable for justification and salvation. They expected expiation of sin, sanctification, and holiness by it, without any regard to Christ and His sacrifice, by whom alone it could be obtained. Those things the law could not effect in its best estate: how vain was it then for the Jews to expect them when it was abolished? Burkitt.

19. For the law made nothing perfect,] That is, could neither obtain perfect remission of sins past, nor give strength sufficient to enable men to live righteously for the future. Dr. Wells.

—— by the which we draw nigh unto God.] Not only as to freedom of access, and confidence of being heard and accepted, but also as to the imitation of the Divine perfection and holiness, 2 Pet. i. 4, by being ourselves enabled through the grace of the Gospel to live godly lives. Dr. Wells.

20. And inasmuch as not without an oath &c.] Which is an argument of the immutability and weightiness of the matter, and of the eternal continuance of this priesthood of Christ, and so of the preeminence of it beyond the Aaronical, which was not established by oath. Dr. Hammond. The Apostle's reasoning here is founded on this, that God never interposed His oath, except to show the certainty and immutability of the things sworn. (See the second note on Deut. i. 34.) Thus He sware to Abraham, Gen. xxii. 16—18; and to the rebellious Israelites, Deut. i. 34, 35; and to Moses, Deut. iv. 21; and to David, Ps. lxxxix. 3. Wherefore, since Christ was made a Priest, "not without an oath," that He should be a Priest for ever after the similitude of Melchizedek, that circumstance shewed God's immutable resolution never to change or abolish His priesthood; nor to change or abolish the covenant which was established on His priesthood. Whereas the Levitical priesthood, and the law of Moses, being established without an oath, were thereby declared to be changeable at God's pleasure. Dr. Macknight.

22. By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament.] By so much was Jesus made the undertaker and mediator of a more noble and excellent covenant, which God hath made with mankind under the Gospel, than that old covenant whereof Moses was the interpreter. Bp. Hall. The Apostle's reasoning here is to the following purpose: The covenants of which I speak, being founded each on its own priesthood, the covenant which is founded on a temporary priesthood must itself be temporary, and so never can be the means of conferring an eternal pardon. Whereas the covenant which is established on an eternal priesthood must be

Anno DOMINI 64.

23 And they truly were many priests, because they were not suffered to continue by reason of death:

24 But this man, because he continueth ever, hath ‖ an unchangeable priesthood.

‖ Or, which passeth not from one to another.

25 Wherefore he is able also to save them ‖ to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.

‖ Or, evermore.

26 For such an high priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens;

27 Who needeth not daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first for his own sins, and then for the people's: for this he did once, when he offered up himself.

Anno DOMINI 64.

28 For the law maketh men high priests which have infirmity; but the word of the oath, which was since the law, maketh the Son, who is † consecrated for evermore.

† Gr. perfected.

CHAP. VIII.

1 By the eternal priesthood of Christ the Levitical priesthood of Aaron is abolished. 7 And the temporal covenant with the fathers, by the eternal covenant of the gospel.

NOW of the things which we have spoken this is the sum: We have eternal, and have the greatest efficacy at all times in procuring salvation for sinners. See note on ver. 20. Dr. Macknight.

---

24. But this man, because he continueth ever, hath an unchangeable priesthood.] One circumstance, upon which is founded the superiour excellence of Christ's priesthood above that of the legal priests, is the continuance and unchangeableness of His office. "Thou," says the Apostle, applying to our Lord the words of the royal Prophet in the 110th Psalm, "Thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek." The law making men high priests, which had infirmity, ver. 28, there was of necessity a perpetual change of the person who filled the office. "They," that is, the high priests of the order of Aaron, "were not suffered to continue by reason of death," ver. 23: consequently they were many in number, succeeding each other in a continued series, till at length the whole order was changed and abolished by the establishment of that priesthood, which it typified and prefigured, ver. 11, 12. But the priesthood of our Lord is without succession or change: He is in reality, what Melchizedek, from the silence of the Scriptures respecting him, is said to be, "a priest for ever." With respect to Melchizedek, we read of no priest who went before him in the order to which he belonged, nor of any by whom he was succeeded. In his priesthood he stands singly and alone; nor is any thing recorded respecting his genealogy or family, his parentage or birth, his admission to the priesthood, or his removal from it by death; on which account he is said by the Apostle to be "without father, without mother, and without descent;" to have "neither beginning of days, nor end of life;" but to abide "a priest continually," ver. 3. In like manner the priesthood of our Lord is unchangeable and without end. He is "a Priest for ever;" and will throughout all ages continue to exercise His ministry for the benefit of that church, which He hath purchased with His own blood; and having an unchangeable priesthood, "He is able to save them to the uttermost, that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for them." Veysie.

26. For such an high priest became us, &c.] Thus is Christ a High Priest most exactly suited to the great purpose of atoning for the sins, and procuring the salvation of mankind: which could never have been accomplished by the external service of a mortal and sinful man, offering up the blood of a beast in our behalf. But is completely effected by Him, who by the undefiled purity of His life, and the spotless innocence of His death, is our perfect High Priest; and by His exaltation to the utmost height of heavenly glory and majesty, is become our powerful and constant Intercessor. Pyle.

Such is the glorious privilege of the Christian church, that we have access to God, and the capacity of performing to Him an acceptable service in this life; and we have the sure and certain hope of being admitted to the everlasting enjoyment of Him in the life to come. Nor let any sincere believer despair of obtaining, through the intercession of his Saviour, the actual possession of that immortal happiness, to which the privilege, enjoyed by the church on earth, is merely preparatory. Is he alarmed by a sense of his own corruption, and a dread of the Divine vengeance? Let him remember, that in heaven Jesus Christ, the High Priest of our profession, continually appears for us in the presence of God; where He undertakes our cause, interposes in our behalf, and obtains for us pardon of our sins, and peace with God. "If any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous," 1 John ii. 1; and so prevailing is the intercession of our heavenly Advocate, that St. Paul boldly defies all the enemies of our salvation to oppose its influence: "Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth: who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us," Rom. viii. 33, 34. And in this passage to the Hebrews, the intercession of our Redeemer is made the ground of our hope and confidence in Him: "Wherefore He is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for them." Veysie.

27. Who needeth not daily,] Or oftentimes, as upon the great day of expiation once a year; see chap. x. 11. Dr. Hammond.

—— for this he did once,] That is, this last He did once; namely, He offered up sacrifice for the sins of the people; according to the interpretation of all the ancient commentators. Drs. Whitby and Wells. In this passage the Apostle takes notice of three particulars, which distinguish the sacrifice offered by Christ, from the sacrifices offered by the Jewish high priests. 1st, He offered no sacrifice for Himself, but only for the people. 2dly, He did not offer that sacrifice annually, but once for all. 3dly, The sacrifice which He offered for the people, was not of calves and of goats, but of Himself. Dr. Macknight.

—— when he offered up himself.] When we find it here expressly stated, that our Lord "offered up Himself" a sacrifice for sin; when He is elsewhere asserted to be "the propitiation for our sins," 1 John ii. 2; "the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world," John i. 29; when God is said to have "spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all," Rom. viii. 32; and that by Him "we have received the atonement," Rom. v. 11; when these and many other such passages are to be found; when every expression, referring to the death of Christ, evidently indicates the notion of a sacrifice of atonement and propitiation; when this sacrifice is particularly represented as of the nature of a sin offering; it may well appear surprising, on what ground it has ever been made a question, that the death of Christ is indeed pronounced in Scripture to have been a sacrifice of atonement and expiation for the sins of men. Dr. Magee.

28. — but the word of the oath, — maketh the Son, &c.] So that the great foundation of our faith, and the main hinge whereon all our consolation depends, is this, that our High Priest is the Son of God, and His everlasting continuance in His office is secured by the oath of God. Burkitt.

Chap. VIII. The foregoing arguments, with the inferences from them, are here summed up: namely, that the priesthood and sacrifice of Christ do exceedingly excel, and consequently have superseded and disannulled, those of the Mosaical law. That it was designed to be so, is farther proved from the prophecies of the Old Testament. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — this is the sum:] Or the chief and principal thing. The sum then of what we are to infer from the foregoing con-such an high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens;

Anno DOMINI 64.

‖ Or, of holy things.

2 A minister ‖ of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man.

3 For every high priest is ordained to offer gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it is of necessity that this man have somewhat also to offer.

4 For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest, seeing that ‖ there are priests that offer gifts according to the law:

‖ Or, they are priests.

5 Who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle: for, See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed to thee in the mount.

6 But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better ‖ covenant, which was established upon better promises.

‖ Or, testament.

Anno DOMINI 64.

7 For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second.

8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah:

9 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will [a] †put my laws into their mind, and write them ‖ in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people:

[a] Jer. 31. 33.

† Gr. give.

‖ Or, upon.

---

parison between Christ and Melchizedek is this; that we Christians are exceedingly more happy than the Jews could be, in having Christ for a High Priest; not like those weak and mortal men, that served in the figurative fabricks of the tabernacle and temple, built by the hands of men; but One that is exalted into heaven, the very throne and habitation of God, there to intercede for us. Pyle.

2. — the sanctuary,] Or, Holy of Holies. Our translators have rendered the Greek plural phrase, sometimes "the sanctuary," as here; sometimes "the holiest" or "holiest of all," chap. ix. 8; x. 19; sometimes "the holy place" or "places," chap. ix. 13, 24. Dr. Wells.

—— the true tabernacle,] We learn from chap. ix. 24, compared with ver. 23, that the holy of holies made with hands were the figures of the true, even of that heaven wherein is the peculiar residence of God. Hence Christ is here called "a minister of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man;" and is said, chap. ix. 11, to be "an High Priest by a greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands, that is to say, not of this," the Mosaick, "building." Parkhurst.

—— which the Lord pitched, and not man.] For "by the word of the Lord were the heavens made," Ps. xxxiii. 6. Dr. Whitby.

3. — to offer gifts and sacrifices:] In that sanctuary in which He executes His office. Dr. Whitby.

—— that this man have somewhat also to offer.] Namely, in heaven the true sanctuary, where He presents Himself, after His death upon the cross, chap. ix. 12. Dr. Hammond.

4. For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest, &c.] For if He were such an High Priest, as ye Jews would have your Messiah to be, conversing still on earth, and exercising these Levitical actions, in a material temple, He should be indeed no Priest at all: seeing ye know those priests, which do these like functions, are another tribe than that whereof He was; neither were there any use of Him for these kind of sacrifices; neither could they be worthy of a High Priest of so glorious order and condition; others were by God assigned to that purpose. Bp. Hall.

5. Who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, &c.] Whose service was altogether typical; shadowing and representing heavenly things by those outward and earthly rites, fabricks, sacrifices, as Moses was admonished, &c. Bp. Hall.

6. — a more excellent ministry,] Than this of theirs; namely, to officiate in the pattern itself. Bp. Fell.

—— a better covenant, — established upon better promises.] Than those of the law. We, under this High Priest, having our consciences purified from sins by Christ's blood, instead of the flesh purified from pollutions by the blood of beasts, Heb. ix. 13; having our justification now not depending on exact obedience unperformable, but on faith, Rom. iii, iv, as those also then had who were of faith, Gal. iii. 9; having more large effusion of the graces of the Holy Spirit, whereby we are enabled to yield obedience to what is commanded, John i. 17; xiv. 26; Acts ii. 17; having a greater manifestation of all truth, and true sense of the law; having heavenly happiness proposed instead of earthly, the more to encourage us to undertake a holy life; having the covenants extended to all nations, not confined to the Jews only; being freed from the unsupportable burden of former legal ceremonies, because typical only of the new covenant, Col. ii. 17. Yet it is here to be noted, that this new covenant was also confirmed by God in Christ unto the fathers of old, before that which He made with the Israelites at their coming out of Egypt; yea, even from the beginning. See Gen. iii. 15; Rom. iv. 13; Gal. iii. 15, 17; Heb. xi. 2; Acts xxvi. 6. Both covenants, that of works and that of faith, having been on foot from the first times of the world; the one to shew us our weakness, and keep us in awe, in respect of our own merit; the other to shew God's mercy, and to keep us in hope of, and dependance upon, His grace. So that those, who were under the law and the Levitical priesthood, had the same promises and Gospel as we now, but not by the law or Levitical priesthood: they had then the same promises and Gospel in substance, but these covered with types and not so fully manifested; the full performance of promise, not then received by them, but seen afar off, Heb. xi. 13; and darkly through a vail, 2 Cor. iii. 13: whilst the law was more largely propounded, and the literal land of promise more discoursed of, and the graces of the Spirit restrained, and the Messiah expected. Bp. Fell.

7. For if that first covenant had been faultless, &c.] For if that other covenant of works and ritual observances could have been fully able to justify mankind, then should no place have been left for this other covenant of faith. Bp. Hall.

8. For finding fault with them, he saith,] See Jer. xxxi. 31—34; and the notes there.

9. — and I regarded them not,] But gave them up to their enemies, as a punishment for their sins. Bp. Fell. This is the rendering of the Septuagint, which the Apostle follows. We translate the passage, "though I was an husband unto them." The learned Dr. Pocock hath shewn, that the Hebrew will bear either signification. Dr. Whitby, Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 64

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest.

12 For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more.

13 In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away.

CHAP. IX.

1 The description of the rites and bloody sacrifices of the law, 11 far inferior to the dignity and perfection of the blood and sacrifice of Christ.

THEN verily the first covenant had also ‖ ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary.

‖ Or, ceremonies.

2 For there was a tabernacle made; the first, wherein was the candlestick, and the table, and the shewbread; which is called ‖ the sanctuary.

‖ Or, holy.

3 And after the second veil, the tabernacle which is called the Holiest of all;

4 Which had the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant;

Anno DOMINI 64.

5 And over it the cherubims of glory shadowing the mercyseat; of which we cannot now speak particularly.

6 Now when these things were thus ordained, the priests went always into the first tabernacle, accomplishing the service of God.

7 But into the second went the high priest alone once every year, not without blood, which he offered for himself, and for the errors of the people:

8 The Holy Ghost this signifying, that the way into the holiest of all was not yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing:

9 Which was a figure for the time then present, in which were offered both gifts and sacrifices, that could not make him that did the service perfect, as pertaining to the conscience;

10 Which stood only in meats and drinks, and divers washings, and carnal ‖ ordi-

‖ Or, rites, or, ceremonies.

---

13. In that he saith, A new covenant, &c.] Now it is most evident, that by promising a new and better dispensation God must intend to abrogate the old and more imperfect one. And accordingly, the ceremonial religion of the Jews is now going to be quite laid aside, and the Christian to succeed in its room. Pyle.

Chap. IX. The argument of chap. viii. 5, &c. is here continued; namely, proving the Jewish tabernacle and temple, with the services performed therein, to have been figurative of Christ, of His sufferings, and religion. The comparison between them is enlarged upon, and the excellence of one above the other further demonstrated. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — a worldly sanctuary.] That is, made of materials belonging to this world, and so not lasting. Dr. Wells. It was the Jewish notion, that God intended the tabernacle for an emblem of the whole world; the outward representing the earth and sea, the inward heaven; the former, as sensible and familiar; the latter invisible, and as yet inaccessible to us. Whence some have thought the title, "a worldly sanctuary," to have been given to it here. Dean Stanhope.

2. — which is called the sanctuary.] Or, the holy place; that is, the common place of publick worship. Pyle. The Apostle speaks, not of the sanctuary, but of the first tabernacle, which was only called "holy." Theodoret observes, that the tabernacle was divided into two parts by the vail; the one being called 'holy,' the other 'the holy of holies:' and that the Apostle calls this "the first tabernacle," to distinguish it from the sanctuary, as is evident from the following verse. Dr. Whitby.

4. — wherein was the golden pot &c.] See note at 1 Kings viii. 9.

5. — the cherubims of glory] So called because the glory of the Lord dwelt between them, and shined forth from them, Ps. lxxx. 1. Dr. Whitby.

6. — accomplishing the service of God.] Namely, those ordinary services which were required in their daily ministration. Bp. Hall. Such as lighting the lamps, changing the shewbread, burning incense, sprinkling the blood of the sin offerings before the vail, and upon the altar of incense there, Lev. iv. 6, 7, &c. Bp. Fell.

7. — once every year,] That is, only one day in the year, on the great day of expiation. Dr. Hammond. This sense is necessary, because on that day the priest entered into the holy of holies several times, Lev. xvi. 12, 15, 17. Dr. Whitby.

—— the errors of the people:] All those sins, for which there was allowed expiation and sacrifice under the law; that is, all such as were not committed wilfully and presumptuously. Dr. Hammond.

8. The Holy Ghost this signifying, &c.] Compare chap. viii. 5. We are informed in the Pentateuch, that the LORD, Jehovah, spake unto Moses, saying, "Let them make Me a sanctuary, that I may dwell among them. According to all that I shew thee, so shall ye make it," Exod. xxv. 1, 8, 9. St. Paul, referring to this, says, that Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle according to the pattern shewed him; which pattern he informs us was typical, a figure for the time present, "the Holy Ghost signifying" thereby such and such truths. So that here the very incommunicable name JEHOVAH is ascribed to the Holy Ghost, as it is elsewhere by the evangelical writers. Dr. Glocester Ridley.

—— that the way into the holiest of all] 'Into the holy of holies;' that is, heaven. Dr. Wells. See the note on chap. viii. 1. The spiritual use and signification of the Levitical service is here declared by the Apostle to be, that the true and proper means to enter into heaven, the holy of holies, was not so fully and clearly manifested; and that heaven, represented by the holy of holies, was as yet inaccessible: for Christ first entered into heaven, as our forerunner, with His blood, to appear before God, and thereby to prepare the way for our entering after Him. Burkitt, Dr. Whitby.

—— while as the first tabernacle was yet standing:] While the first covenant or the law was yet in force, and so the Divine service properly appertaining thereto was to be performed. Dr. Wells.

9. — that could not make him that did the service perfect, as pertaining to the conscience;] Such as, in and of themselves, had no power or virtue to acquit and justify him that did that service, and to appease and clear the conscience in spiritual matters. Bp. Hall.

10. Which stood only &c.] Which said law consisted for the most part in the differences of meats and drinks, &c. Bp. Hall.

Anno DOMINI 64.

nances, imposed on them until the time of reformation.

11 But Christ being come an high priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building;

12 Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

13 For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh:

14 How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without ‖ spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?

‖ Or, fault.

15 And for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance.

16 For where a testament is, there must also of necessity ‖ be the death of the testator.

‖ Or, be brought in.

—— until the time of reformation.] That is, as the next verse expounds it, till the coming of the Messiah, when the Jews themselves expected a reformation of the law. Dr. Whitby.

11. — an high priest of good things to come,] Of those good things which were then future, and which the church through preceding ages expected as "to come." Dr. Doddridge. Or, a High Priest, by whose sacrifice and intercession, not temporal, but heavenly and eternal blessings are obtained. Dean Stanhope. To obtain for us all those blessings, of purging the conscience, which could not be had by the law, and of bestowing on us our great reward, which is not to be had in this life; and so which were future in respect of the law, and of this life. Dr. Hammond.

—— by a greater and more perfect tabernacle,] Namely, of the heavens. Bp. Fell. See the note on chap. viii. 2. By executing His mediatorial office as our High Priest in heaven. Dr. Wells.

12. — by his own blood he entered in once &c.] Not only do the sacred writers ascribe to Christ the title and qualifications requisite for the priesthood, but also the peculiar functions of the office: declaring, that in the heavenly sanctuary He made an offering to God, even an offering of Himself, or of "His own blood," see also ver. 14; that He "put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself," ver. 26; that He "by Himself purged our sins," chap. i. 3; that He "sanctified the people with His own blood," chap. xiii. 12; that He "appears for us in the presence of God," chap. ix. 24; that He "is at the right hand of God, making intercession for us," Rom. viii. 34: all of them acts purely sacerdotal, and which cannot be ascribed to Christ in any but the sacerdotal character. Veysie.

13. — sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh:] Removed all legal pollutions, and restored the unclean, when sprinkled with them, to the service of the tabernacle, Numb. xix. Dean Stanhope.

14. — through the eternal Spirit] This may be understood either of our Lord's eternal divinity, by which His most precious blood becomes of such infinite virtue and efficacy: or, of the Person of the Holy Ghost, in relation to our Lord's humanity, and whom He received from His Father; called also the power and the glory of the Father, Rom. vi. 4; 2 Cor. xiii. 4; Luke i. 35: which Holy Spirit overshadowed the blessed Virgin at His conception; which visibly descended on Him at His baptism; by which He was carried into the wilderness, Matt. iv. 1; Luke iv. 14; by which He is said to be justified, sanctified, sealed, anointed, (all which He is said to have received from the Father;) see Rom. i. 4; 1 Pet. iii. 18; 1 Tim. iii. 16; John vi. 27, compared with Eph. i. 13; John x. 36; lastly, by which He hath power to lay down and to take up His life, when and as He pleased, John x. 18. Bp. Fell.

—— purge your conscience from dead works] From the guilt of those sins which make men liable to death. Dean Stanhope.

—— to serve the living God?] As the legally cleansed were admitted to serve Him in the sanctuary. Bp. Fell. God, being an holy God, can enter into covenant with none, or admit them into His service, whilst they lie under the guilt of sin unpardoned, and so have not found grace in His sight. "Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord," and with him He established His covenant, Gen. vi. 8, 18. Abraham believes in God, and this was counted to him for righteousness; and then the Lord makes a covenant with him by sacrifice, Gen. xv. 10, 18. So, Exod. xxiv. 5—8, the Jews offer burnt offerings, and sacrifice peace offerings to the Lord, and the blood is sprinkled upon all the people, and then He enters into covenant with them. Hence the Apostle saith, "Let us draw near in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil (or condemning) conscience," chap. x. 22. Dr. Whitby.

The blood of Christ corresponds, in all essential points, to the Levitical sacrifices for sin. It is expressly called an offering: is affirmed, like the legal offerings, to be perfect and without spot; and, like them also, to have the power of cleansing from pollution, and of qualifying for the service of God. In point of real worth and excellence, the legal offerings fell indeed infinitely short of the offering made by Christ. For the blood, which was carried by the high priest within the vail, though accepted by God, was after all but the blood of brute beasts, and therefore in itself of very little worth. Whereas Christ made in the heavenly sanctuary an offering of His own blood, even the blood of the Son of God; an offering, than which the whole extent of nature could not furnish one more valuable in itself, or more precious in the sight of God, of whose acceptance it was every way worthy. And as the evangelical offering is thus more valuable and excellent, so is its efficacy proportionably greater and more extensive. The legal offerings could only cleanse the bodies of the Israelites polluted with legal sin: but the blood of Christ extends its cleansing influence even to the soul: it purges the conscience from dead works; from works, for which the law was so far from providing an atonement, that it annexed to them the penalty of death: and consecrates the sinner to a pure and spiritual service; a service, as far exceeding the ceremonial service of the tabernacle, as the inward purity of heart and mind, required by the Gospel, exceeds the mere outward cleanliness of the body which the law prescribes; and therefore more worthy in itself, and, when performed in sincerity, more acceptable to God, than the most rigid and exact compliance with all the precepts of the Jewish ritual. Veysie.

15. — he is the mediator of the new testament,] 'Testament' and 'covenant' are the same word in the original: here rendered "testament," because of the inheritance, which the Son of God, by His death procuring remission of our sins, hath left unto us. For a testament is one kind of covenant confirmed by death; and it was an ancient form of confirmation of all covenants by the blood and death of some living creature. Bp. Fell.

16. For where a testament is, &c.] He had said, that the promise of eternal inheritance was received by means of death. And this is agreeable to the condition of all other inheritances conveyed by will, and of all covenants ratified with blood. Dean Stanhope. The blessings of Christianity may be thus considered, either as a covenant of God the Father, that was to receive its ratification by the blood of Christ, or as the will and testament of Christ Himself, that could not take place but at and by His death. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 64.

17 For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth.

18 Whereupon neither the first testament was ‖ dedicated without blood.

‖ Or, purified.

19 For when Moses had spoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and ‖ scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book, and all the people,

‖ Or, purple.

20 Saying, This is the blood of the testament which God hath enjoined unto you.

21 Moreover he sprinkled with blood both the tabernacle, and all the vessels of the ministry.

22 And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission.

23 It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these.

Anno DOMINI 64.

24 For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us:

25 Nor yet that he should offer himself often, as the high priest entereth into the holy place every year with blood of others;

26 For then must he often have suffered since the foundation of the world: but now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.

27 And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment:

28 So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that

---

17. For a testament is of force &c.] While the devisor lives, he may alter his will; and therefore his death must be proved, in order to give the will force. And in covenants, till the blood was shed, no bargain was struck. Dean Stanhope.

18. — without blood.] And the substituted solemn death of some creature to ratify it. Bp. Fell.

22. — almost all things] Some few excepted, as metals, which were purified by fire, and clothes by water. See Numb. xxxi. 23; Lev. xvi. 28. The rest were purified by being sprinkled with blood. Dean Stanhope.

23. — that the patterns of things in the heavens &c.] Thus did men gain access to that sanctuary, which was a type of heaven: but to procure them admittance into heaven itself, a nobler blood, even that of Christ, was necessary. It may seem bold to say, that heaven should either need or receive cleansing or purification. But as the altar and sanctuary were then said to be purified, when the priests and people, who approached them, had their impurities done away, and were put in a due legal capacity of holding communion with God there; so, in allusion to those types, heaven may be said to be "purified," according to the Levitical construction of the word, when the bodies and souls of men, designed to approach God there, are washed from the pollution of their sins, which incapacitated them for that blessed dwelling. Dean Stanhope.

—— with better sacrifices than these.] Namely, the great sacrifice of Christ. Pyle.

26. For then must he often have suffered &c.] The reasoning in this passage merits the reader's particular attention, because it supposeth two facts which are of great importance. The first is, that from the fall of Adam to the end of the world, no man will be pardoned but through Christ's having offered Himself to God a sacrifice for sin. The second is, that although Christ offered Himself only once, and that at the conclusion of the Mosaick dispensation, that one offering is in itself so meritorious, and of such efficacy in procuring pardon for the penitent, that its influence reacheth backwards to the beginning of the world, and forwards to the end of time; on which account Christ is with great propriety termed, Rev. xiii. 8, "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." The phrase, "from the foundation of the world" in this passage, is not to be taken strictly, because the necessity of Christ's offering Himself a sacrifice for sin did not take place immediately at the creation, but at the fall. Besides, we have the phrase in this limited sense, Luke xi. 50. Dr. Macknight.

—— in the end of the world] The most exact rendering is, 'at the conclusion of the ages:' meaning the last of the dispensations which God ever intended to give mankind. Dr. Doddridge.

27, 28. And as it is appointed unto men once to die, &c.] And thus, so far, the death of Christ is like that of all other men; namely, that as they die but once, and then are to receive an eternal recompence for what they have done in this life; so Christ, after once dying for our sins, has no more sufferings to undergo, no further sacrifice to make, and is to appear no more upon the earth, till, at the solemn day of judgment, He comes to crown and reward all His true disciples. Pyle.

Hence it is to be observed, that in the service of the holy communion, we are not to pretend to offer Christ as a sacrifice to His Father: His sacrifice was but once to be offered, and that was done more than seventeen hundred years ago; and in the virtue of that sacrifice once offered, all faithful Christians and sincere penitents shall receive remission of sins, and all other benefits of His passion. But for us to think of offering Christ again as a sacrifice is in effect to put ourselves into the same rank and condition with the unbelieving Jews; that is, to need a repetition of the same sacrifices every year; nay, every day, which is the very reason why the Apostle denied the efficacy of them. We do not indeed deny, but that every time we approach to the Lord's table, for the receiving of the holy communion, we offer sacrifices to God: for we offer alms, which we beg of God to accept as our oblations; and these, in the language of Scripture, are "sacrifices with which God is well pleased." We likewise offer our sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving to God for the death of our Saviour: and all our prayers and supplications we put up in His name, and in the virtue and for the merits of that sacrifice, which He offered to God in our behalf: and in so doing we commemorate that sacrifice both to God and before men. And this is all that the ancient church meant by the great Christian sacrifice, or the sacrifice of the altar. But if we go farther, if we will in the communion pretend to offer up the body and blood of Christ in sacrifice to God, that was once sacrificed upon the cross, it is intolerable. It is a thing that was never dreamed of in the first ages of the church: it is directly contradictory to the foundation of all the Apostle's argument and discourse in this passage: and the very supposal of it brings along with it many grievous absurdities in the theory, and something that looks like impious in the practice. Yet this is the constant and avowed doctrine and practice of the church of Rome every time they celebrate this sacrament, and that is in every mass that is said among them. Abp. Sharp.

28. — to bear the sins of many;] That is, 'of all.' Schleusner. See Rom. v. 13, 19; and the notes there.

look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation. Anno DOMINI 64.

CHAP. X.

1 The weakness of the law sacrifices. 10 The sacrifice of Christ's body once offered, 14 for ever hath taken away sins. 19 An exhortation to hold fast the faith, with patience and thanksgiving.

FOR the law having a shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices which they offered year by year continually make the comers thereunto perfect.

2 For then would they not have ceased to be offered? because that the worshippers once purged should have had no more conscience of sins. Anno DOMINI 64.

3 But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance again made of sins every year.

4 For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins.

5 Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body ‖ hast thou prepared me: ‖ Or, thou hast fitted me.

6 In burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure.

7 Then said I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me,) to do thy will, O God.

8 Above when he said, Sacrifice and —— without sin] Without any further offering for sin; as in 2 Cor. v. 21. Pyle, Dr. Whitby. At His first appearance He was our sacrifice for sin; but at His second He shall come without any such offering, to bestow that salvation, which the sacrifice of Himself at His first coming purchased for all that trust in, and expect it from, Him. Dean Stanhope.

Chap. X. The second argument is still continued; namely, that Judaism was but a figurative introduction to Christianity. The insufficiency of the legal sacrifices for the complete atonement of sin is asserted. The death of Christ, the full and final sacrifice, is further proved from the Old Testament. It gives all good Christians a full assurance of heavenly happiness, and is the most comfortable argument for their final perseverance in their profession. The Jewish Christians are again particularly exhorted to constancy and patience under their sufferings; from the great danger of wilful apostasy, from the sense of their former courage, and the prospect of their certain and speedy deliverance from their persecutions. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — the law having a shadow of good things to come,] It requires but little acquaintance with Scripture to know that the lesson, which it every where inculcates, is, that man by disobedience had fallen under the displeasure of his Maker; that to be reconciled to His favour, and restored to the means of acceptable obedience, a Redeemer was appointed, and that this Redeemer laid down His life to procure for repentant sinners forgiveness and acceptance. This surrender of life has been called by the sacred writers a sacrifice, and the end attained by it expiation, or atonement. With some persons who have been desirous to reduce Christianity to a mere moral system, it has been a favourite object to represent this sacrifice as entirely figurative, founded only in allusion and similitude to the sacrifices of the law; whereas, that this is spoken of by the sacred writers as a real and proper sacrifice, to which those under the law bore respect but as types and shadows, is evident from various passages of holy writ, more particularly from the epistle to the Hebrews, as from this text, which declares that "the law having a shadow of good things, &c." also ver. 12; ix. 9—14. These and numerous other passages abundantly prove that the sacrifice of Christ was a true and effective sacrifice, while those of the law were but faint representations and inadequate copies intended for its introduction. Dr. Magee.

—— a shadow — not the very image] The law was but the first rude draught of good things to come, and had not the full image or lively expression of the things themselves. Bp. Hall.

Or, the word rendered "image" may be used for the essential or substantial form of a thing; that is, for the very thing itself, as opposed to its shadow or delineation; so it is parallel to the "body" or "substance," which the Apostle elsewhere opposes in like manner to its "shadow," Col. ii. 17. And accordingly the Syriack version explains "image" here by 'the substance,' and St. Chrysostom by 'the truth' or 'reality.' Parkhurst.

—— of good things to come,] That is, say most interpreters, of the blessings of the Gospel religion: some understand it of heaven, the true holy of holies. Pyle. See the notes on chap. viii. 2.

—— make the comers thereunto perfect.] Give men full pardon of sin, and purify their consciences. Dr. Hammond.

2. For then would they not have ceased to be offered?] That is, any more than once? The reading of this passage by way of interrogation makes it very pertinent to the Apostle's discourse; for such an interrogation amounts to an assertion, that, if the law did by its sacrifices make the comers thereunto perfect for ever, then the said sacrifices "would have ceased to be offered" any more than once. Dr. Wells. This latter reading is easy and natural, and is supported by some copies and versions. Dr. Doddridge.

—— should have had no more conscience of sins.] Should have found no more trouble in their conscience for that sin, for which they had made former atonement. Bps. Hall and Fell.

3. — there is a remembrance again made of sins every year.] Upon the great annual day of expiation, the high priest commemorates and deplores the past sins, both of that, and the foregoing years; a plain demonstration that they were not perfectly atoned for by the former sacrifices. Pyle. See Lev. xvi. 21.

4. For it is not possible &c.] There is no efficacy in the blood of a brute to cleanse away the spiritual sin of a man; see Heb. ix. 9; Rom. v. 12, 18: none, I say, in such sacrifices considered by themselves, but only typically in relation to the sacrifice of Christ; they being instituted chiefly for legal sins, as casual uncleannesses of the body, &c. Heb. ix. 13; not for sins, properly so called: or, if for more, extending especially to sins of ignorance and infirmity; see Numb. xv. 24, 27, compared with ver. 30. Bp. Fell.

5. Wherefore when he cometh into the world,] Namely, He who was to take away the sins thereof. The reference is to the 40th Psalm, ver. 6, 7; urged by the Apostle, as usual, according to the Septuagint version, in those times best known to the Jews. Bp. Fell. See the notes there.

—— but a body hast thou prepared me:] But Thou hast personally designed Me to thy perfect and entire service, both in doing and suffering; and thereby art reconciled to the world. Bp. Hall. Seeing the Son of God, by being made flesh, took on Him the form of a slave, or obedient servant, Phil. ii. 7, the expression "Thou hast prepared Me a body," is equivalent to "Mine ears hast Thou opened," and both phrases signify, Thou hast made Me thine obedient servant. This reconciliation of the passages here, and in the Psalms, is founded on the ancient phraseology, in which slaves were both by Jews and heathens called 'bodies,' because they were implicitly directed by the will of their masters, as the body is directed by the mind. See Rev. xviii. 13. The Seventy therefore have given the true sense of the Psalmist, in what may be called a free translation, which the Apostle seems to have adopted for the sake of perspicuity. Drs. Macknight and Whitby.

8, 9. Above when he said, &c.] When He had said before, namely, in the fifth verse, "Sacrifice &c. Thou wouldest not;"

Anno DOMINI 64.

offering and burnt offerings and offering for sin thou wouldest not, neither hadst pleasure therein; which are offered by the law;

9 Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second.

10 By the which will we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

11 And every priest standeth daily ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins:

12 But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins, for ever sat down on the right hand of God;

13 From henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footstool. Anno DOMINI 64.

14 For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified.

15 Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness to us: for after that he had said before,

16 This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord, I will [a] put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them; [a] Jer. 31. 33.

17 And their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.

18 Now where remission of these is, there is no more offering for sin.

19 Having therefore, brethren, ‖ boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, ‖ Or, liberty.

"Then said He" afterwards, namely in the 7th verse, "Lo I come, &c." Dr. Whitby.

The Apostle argues in these two verses, that these words are a plain declaration of the utter insufficiency of the Jewish sacrifices; when Christ puts His own suffering and sacrifice to supply their defects. And by doing the one, He abrogates all further use of the other. Pyle.

10. By the which will we are sanctified &c.] And by this gracious will of God, which Christ came to perform in the body, which God prepared for Him, by offering that body once for all, and not by those legal sacrifices which were often repeated, all our sins are expiated, and we received into God's favour, as many of us as, by performing the condition of sincere obedience still required of us, are rendered capable of that great benefit purchased for us by the sufferings of Christ. Dr. Hammond.

11. And every priest] That is, every other priest. "Standeth" is opposed to "sitting down" in the next verse: the latter being spoken of One, who had finished His offering and His work. Bp. Fell. "Daily," that is, on every day of expiation. It appears that the Apostle continues to discourse of the annual sacrifice, offered by the high priest in the holy of holies; with which in the beginning of this chapter he had compared the offering of Christ. See chap. vii. 27. Veysie.

12. — for ever sat down on the right hand of God;] Never more to stand and minister as He hath done, but answering the great character drawn in the Prophet Zechariah, chap. vi. 13, of a Priest on a throne, where royal dignity and certain conquest are added to His other glories. Dr. Doddridge.

14. — he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified.] He hath completely expiated the sins of all obedient Christians; of all such as obey the Gospel, and so become entitled to the benefits of His death. Drs. Wells and Hammond.

The Apostle hereby gives us to understand, that our High Priest, by the one oblation of Himself once offered, was a complete propitiation, or hath made sufficient satisfaction for the sins of the whole world; so that we need no other sacrifice but that, whereby to obtain the remission of our sins, and to make reconciliation for us. Bp. Beveridge.

15—17. — for after that he had said before, This is the covenant &c.] For after He had premised, as the first thing promised in His covenant, the writing of His laws on their hearts and minds, &c.; He then adds, as a second part of His covenant, the free pardon of all the sins and transgressions of their former life. Dr. Hammond.

18. — there is no more offering for sin.] This being done once for all, there is no need of any further sacrifices or Judaical observances, for which the Jews, and some of the Jewish Christians, so zealously contend. Dr. Hammond, Pyle. From this and many other passages of this Epistle, the sacrifice of the mass, as it is called, declared by the council of Trent to be 'a true and proper propitiatory sacrifice for sin,' is utterly overthrown. Nay, it is an evident impiety, as it proceeds upon the supposition, that the offering of the body of Christ once is not sufficient to procure the pardon of sin, but must be frequently repeated. Drs. Whitby and Macknight.

When we consider how full and strong the several passages of this Epistle are against the doctrines of the Romanists, it is hard to account for their receiving it as a part of Scripture, and their teaching so contrary to it as if it were no part of Scripture. And if St. Paul had foreseen what they have since taught concerning the sacrifice of the mass, this Epistle would have seemed not more written to the Hebrews, than written against the Romans. And if this doctrine of the sacrifice of Christ in the daily masses of the church of Rome be so opposite to Scripture, what must we think of what they further teach on this article, that Christ, when He first instituted this sacrament, did then offer up Himself, both His body and blood to God the Father, by way of sacrifice for sin. This is what the council of Trent, and other popish councils, assert. But is it possible for any serious man to think, that when Christ blessed the bread and the cup, and gave them to His disciples, He did then sacrifice Himself? and if He did, may it not be asked, why then did He afterwards undergo that painful ignominious death upon the cross? What He once did, He did of a certain most effectually. Could He do more, then, by His sacrifice at His crucifixion, than He did by His sacrifice at the institution? It is difficult to believe such absurdities, and much more so to defend them: but the Romanists, being well aware that they cannot pretend to do more in their Eucharist, than Christ did in His, are forced to countenance one falsehood by asserting another. Bp. Pearce.

Theodoret, who has divided this Epistle into three sections, ends the second section with this verse very properly, as it is the conclusion of the doctrinal part of the Epistle. Dr. Macknight.

19. — to enter] Now with our prayers, and hereafter with our persons, "into the holiest," namely, the heavenly sanctuary, or the presence of God in heaven. Bp. Fell.

—— by the blood of Jesus,] Death, considered as the way which leadeth us into the presence of God infinitely holy, to whom we must give an account of all our actions, would be very terrible to us indeed, did we not know that Jesus, by shedding His blood, hath procured the pardon of our sins. For to use the words of Addison, 'I must confess that I think there is no scheme of religion, besides that of Christianity, which can possibly support the most virtuous person under this thought, (the thought of the judgment.) Let a man's innocence be what it will, let his virtues rise to the highest pitch of perfection attainable in this life, there will be still in him so many secret sins, so many human frailties, so many offences of ignorance, passion, and prejudice, so many unguarded words and thoughts, and in short so many defects in his best actions, that, without the advantage of such an expiation and atonement as Christianity has revealed to us, it is impossible that he should be cleared before his sovereign Judge, or that he

Anno DOMINI 64.

20 By a new and living way, which he hath ‖ consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh;

‖ Or, new made.

21 And having an high priest over the house of God;

22 Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water.

23 Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;)

24 And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works:

25 Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching.

Anno DOMINI 64.

26 For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins,

27 But a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries.

28 He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses:

29 Of how much sorer punishment, sup-

---

should be able to stand in His sight. Our holy religion suggests to us the only means whereby our guilt may be taken away, and our imperfect obedience accepted.' Dr. Macknight.

20. By a new and living way,] "New," in respect of there having been no entrance into heaven, till our forerunner Christ first entered, and so prepared the way for us: "living," inasmuch as our walking in that way consists in true spiritual holiness of life, not in the observance of the dead letter or external rites of the law, and also because it terminates in life eternal. Dr. Wells.

—— through the veil, that is to say, his flesh;] As under the law the high priest passed through the vail into the holy of holies; so now, under the Gospel, the vail, through which we must enter into the holy heavens, is the flesh of Christ. Bp. Hall.

21. And having an high priest] That is, such an High Priest, to offer our prayers and His intercessions for us, who is Lord "over the house of God;" see chap. iii. 5, 6. Bp. Fell.

22. — in full assurance of faith,] In full confidence and steadfast reliance upon the mercies of God. Bp. Hall. Fully assured that our service, if performed with a true heart or sincerity, shall now be accepted by God, and ourselves shall hereafter enter into the true holy of holies. Dr. Wells.

—— having our hearts sprinkled &c.] As now "having our hearts sprinkled," namely, by His blood, "from" sin and "an evil conscience." There is an allusion here to the purifying water, with which unclean persons were to be sprinkled, before they might have access to the sanctuary, Numb. xix. 17, 20; or to that washing, Lev. xvi. 4. Bp. Fell.

—— and our bodies washed with pure water.] Namely, the laver of regeneration. Dr. Whitby, Burkitt. In holy baptism. Bp. Fell.

23. — the profession of our faith] Into which we have been baptized. Bp. Fell.

24. And let us consider one another] As members of the same body. Drs. Whitby and Wells. Let us have a charitable and tender respect one to another: instead of those strange and envious dispositions and carriages that are wont to be between Jews and Gentiles; let us so frame ourselves and our affections, as that we may draw on each other to mutual love and good works. Bp. Hall.

25. Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together,] This command was given at a time, when the utmost dangers attended the practice. For the service of these assemblies peculiarly the Christian ministry was instituted: in these the Christian sacraments were celebrated: good Christians were to be admitted into them, bad ones excluded from them. Indeed the whole New Testament considers the followers of Christ, not as single unconnected individuals, but as churches or societies, meeting together for the honour of God and their mutual edification. And this they did so constantly, even in the days of the bitterest persecution, that Pliny, a heathen magistrate, writing within a few years after the death of St. John, to the emperour Trajan, for directions how to proceed in punishing them, describes them by their custom of holding congregations on a stated day to worship Christ, and bind themselves by a sacrament or oath, to commit no wickedness. Abp. Secker.

—— as the manner of some is;] Upon conceit of the peculiar rites and prerogatives, which God hath given to the Jews above the Gentiles. Bp. Hall. Or, for fear of persecution from the unbelieving Jews. Dr. Wells.

—— as ye see the day approaching.] The day of God's judgment upon the unbelieving and apostatizing Jews. Dr. Whitby. That day the Hebrews saw approaching, by the appearing of those signs, which our Lord had mentioned in His prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem. Dr. Macknight.

Or, the day of God's righteous judgment of all men. The uncertainty, in which God hath left the world concerning its end, and the general day of judgment, is made by the Apostle a motive to prepare for it as near. So our death and judgment are joined together, chap. ix. 27, 28; "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment." Because no action of the man intervenes between these two; and as the one leaves him, so the other finds him, at what distance soever these happen to be: see Phil. i. 6; 1 Tim. vi. 14; Jam. v. 7, 8; 2 Thess. i. 7; 2 Tim. iv. 8; Heb. x. 35—37. Bp. Fell.

26, 27. For if we sin wilfully &c.] See the sin specified ver. 29; see also chap. vi. 4, and 2 Pet. ii. 20. The Apostle speaks of a revolt from, and despising of, the Gospel; as in ver. 28, of an Israelite's despising Moses' law: all ordinary breaches of which law were not punished with death. But here also may be meant some other sins, such as are not only deliberate, and done with full consent of the will, but obstinate and obdurate, against the known light of truth, admonitions of the church, &c. Bp. Fell.

The general purport of these two verses may be thus given: Let me again remind you of the fatal consequence of wilfully and deliberately renouncing a religion so clearly attested and confirmed to you. If you slight, and once neglect the means of salvation now offered you by Christ, you lose the last and only method God will ever purpose for your redemption; and must expect to perish by that Divine wrath and vengeance, that awaits the obstinate adversaries of true religion. Pyle.

From this passage some persons have imagined, that every deliberate transgression is unpardonable. But it appears very plainly, that not any wilful sin whatever is meant here, but that one only, which is mentioned immediately before and after; laying aside "the profession of the faith, treading under foot the Son of God, counting the blood of the covenant an unholy thing, doing despite unto the Spirit of grace;" that is, renouncing and reviling Christianity. And it by no means follows, that because they, who have rejected Christ, will no where find any other atonement for their sins, therefore they who believe in Him, but have criminally violated some of His precepts, cannot partake of His atonement, though they apply for it with penitent hearts. Abp. Secker.

28. He that despised Moses' law] By wilfully and presumptuously sinning against it, particularly by apostatizing from it to idolatry. Dr. Wells. See Deut. xvii. 6, 12, 13; xiii. 8; xix. 13; Numb. xv. 30, 32, 33. Bp. Fell.

Anno DOMINI 64.

pose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?

30 For we know him that hath said, [a] Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, [b] The Lord shall judge his people.

31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions;

33 Partly, whilst ye were made a gazingstock both by reproaches and afflictions; and partly, whilst ye became companions of them that were so used.

34 For ye had compassion of me in my bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, knowing in yourselves that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring substance.

35 Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompence of reward.

36 For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise.

37 For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry.

38 Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him.

[a] Deut. 32. 35. Rom. 12. 19.

---

29. — who hath trodden under foot the Son of God,] Despised Christ, as vile and nothing worth, yea as one that died as a malefactor. Dr. Hammond. This may be done, either by a corrupt judgment; or by an outward profession against judgment; or by a wicked life against our profession. Bp. Fell.

—— and hath counted the blood of the covenant — an unholy thing,] Profaning and treating the precious blood of the Son of God, which ratified the gracious covenant of his redemption, as the blood of an ordinary person, nay, of a malefactor. Pyle.

—— wherewith he was sanctified,] Or purged from the guilt of his sins, chap. ii. 11; ix. 13; xiii. 12. Dr. Whitby.

—— and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?] In rejecting the Gospel, and all other means of grace accompanying it, whether outward, as miracles and other gifts of the Holy Spirit; or inward, as His good motions and suggestions, &c. Dr. Wells.

30. — The Lord shall judge his people.] That is, His disobedient people. Pyle. But the context, in Deut. xxxii. 36, seems to require a different sense, namely, 'the Lord will avenge His people' of their oppressors. Dr. Macknight. See the note there. The Apostle's argument appears to be this: If God professes Himself an avenger of all sin and injury done to His people, as He certainly doth in the passage of Deuteronomy referred to, much more will He shew Himself an avenger of so horrible an indignity offered to His Son and His Holy Spirit. Burkitt.

32. — after ye were illuminated,] Or enlightened with the knowledge of Christ. Bp. Hall.

—— ye endured a great fight of afflictions;] There were various persecutions of the Christians in Judea, particularly the great persecution after the death of St. Stephen, Acts viii. 1; and Herod's persecution, Acts xii. 1. Perhaps the Apostle here refers to that mentioned 1 Thess. ii. 14, in which the Hebrews shewed great love to their suffering brethren, Heb. vi. 10. Dr. Macknight.

37. — and he that shall come will come, &c.] Though the Apostle in this verse uses some words of the Prophet Habakkuk, chap. ii. 3, he does not introduce them as a quotation from him, containing a prophecy of any coming of Christ. In the passage, where they are found, the Prophet exhorted the Jews to trust in God for deliverance from the Chaldeans, by putting them in mind of the faithfulness of God in performing His promises concerning the continuance of their nation, and of His power to preserve them during the Babylonish captivity, and to restore them to their own land. Wherefore, as the faithfulness and power of God are a source of consolation, to which good men at all times may have recourse in their distresses, the Apostle might with great propriety apply Habakkuk's words by way of accommodation to Christ's coming to destroy Jerusalem and the Jewish state. Christ had promised to come for that purpose before the generation then living should have passed away. Now as the believing Hebrews could entertain no doubt of His faithfulness and power to perform His promise, the Apostle, to encourage them to bear their afflictions with patience, very fitly put them in mind of that event in the words of the Prophet Habakkuk, because it assured them that the power of their persecutors would soon be at an end. Dr. Macknight.

38. — but if any man draw back, &c.] "But if he draw back," saith the Lord, "My soul shall have no pleasure in him." Bp. Fell. That is, Whosoever, after the entertainment of Divine truth, hypocritically conceals, or cowardly renounces, the profession of it, shall forfeit all the blessings, to which it entitled him. Pyle. These words plainly suppose, that "the just man, who liveth by" that "faith," in which if he persisted, he would "save his soul," may "draw back unto perdition." And this is also evident from the expression, "My soul shall have no pleasure in him;" for they plainly intimate, that God took pleasure in him before his drawing back; for otherwise this threat would signify nothing, the Lord taking pleasure in none but "just" men only, and such as "live by faith." Dr. Whitby.

That we may the more readily be induced to resist every effort of our adversaries to undermine our faith, let us weigh with attention the danger to which such are exposed as depart from it. The case of apostates is allowed to be desperate. "If any man draw back, My soul," says God, "shall have no pleasure in him." And it behoves us to consider well, whether, by rejecting the doctrine of atonement, we do not in some measure incur the guilt of those who apostatize from the faith. "If," says the Apostle, "we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth;" that is, if, after we have embraced the doctrine of Christ, we again determine to reject and abandon it; "there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. He, that despised Moses' law, died without mercy under two or three witnesses: of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?" Let it be remembered, that this solemn denunciation of the Apostle is immediately subjoined to his discourse upon the sacrifice and priesthood of Christ, and may therefore well be thought to be nearly connected with it. And we may further observe, that he seems to place the great danger of apostasy in the privation of a sufficient sacrifice for sin, to avert the wrath of God. Now, though we do not absolutely tread under foot the Son of God, yet if we deprive Him of one of His essential characters; though we do not count His blood an unholy thing, yet if we esteem it worthless and deny its atoning power, in what does our case essentially differ from that of real apostates? Unclean and polluted with sin, we dare not appear before God. But where Anno DOMINI 64. 39 But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe to the saving of the soul.

CHAP. XI.

1 What faith is. 6 Without faith we cannot please God. 7 The worthy fruits thereof in the fathers of old time.

‖ Or, ground, or, confidence. NOW faith is the ‖ substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.

2 For by it the elders obtained a good report.

3 Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear.

4 By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead ‖ yet speaketh. Anno DOMINI 64. ‖ Or, is yet spoken of.

5 By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God.

6 But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.

7 By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, ‖ moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith. ‖ Or, being wary.

---

shall we wash and be clean, if not in the fountain of Christ's blood? He condescended to die for our sins; and upon His death we may build the surest hope of pardon and acceptance. But if we neglect so great salvation, what farther sacrifice for sin remaineth to us? There can be no greater: there is no other. And if this be wanting to avert from us the Divine vengeance, what have we to expect but the judgment of an unreconciled God, and that fiery indignation which shall most assuredly devour the adversaries of the truth? Veysie.

Chap. XI. The Apostle enters upon his third argument, for encouraging the Christians of Judea to perseverance in their profession, under all their persecutions; namely, the numerous examples of all the Patriarchs and holy men recorded in Scripture, or in the Apocryphal writings, as the most eminent servants of God. They were all justified by the same principle of faith in God's revelation; for suffering under the same hopes of future and invisible blessings, that Christianity now proposeth: and for the very same shall they, and all good Christians, be finally and completely rewarded together at the great day of judgment. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — the substance] And present being, as it were, "of things hoped for." Bp. Fell. The firm assurance or expectation. Dr. Whitby, Pyle.

A confident dependence on God for the performance of His promise, a being convinced of the truth of those things, of which we have no ocular or sensible demonstration. Dr. Hammond.

The terms here used have some obscurity, as they stand in our translation. That, which is here rendered "substance," is often used in other places to signify trust or confidence: and agreeably it is rendered by this very word in the margin of our Bible. In this view the passage before us is clear and easy: for though it be difficult to apprehend how faith can be "the substance of things hoped for," in the strict sense of the word; that is, how it can be the very things themselves we hope for; yet we may easily form a notion of its being a confidence in, or a firm reliance upon, the things hoped for. It is farther added, that faith likewise is "the evidence of things not seen:" by which I conceive we may understand, an undoubting assent to those things, which are of themselves inevident. It is frequent with the best writers, to use indifferently the cause for the effect, or the effect for the cause. Assent therefore being the certain consequence of proof or evidence sufficiently perceived, the expression, "evidence," seems here to be used for assent; and so this branch likewise of our Apostle's description will be clear and easy. Bp. Conybeare.

2. — the elders] The Patriarchs before and after the flood. Dr. Wells.

—— obtained a good report] Literally, 'received a testimony,' namely, of God's approbation and regard, left on record in the Holy Scriptures. Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

3. Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed &c.] Whereas the wisest heathens have doubtfully disputed concerning the state of the world, whether it had any beginning, and how it came to have a being; we, through faith, do clearly apprehend the truth of this matter, and do certainly understand that the world was framed by the all-powerful word of God, and that it was made of nothing; so as, of that which was not at all, nor had any preexistence in nature, was made this visible frame of heaven and earth. Bp. Hall.

—— of things which do appear.] Rather, "which did" then "appear," but of things not then visible, Gen. i. 2. Dr. Whitby.

4. By faith Abel offered unto God &c.] See the notes on Gen. iv. 4.

—— that he was righteous,] In this character of Abel, St. Paul had our Lord's expression in his eye, "the blood of righteous Abel," Matt. xxiii. 35. Dr. Macknight.

—— and by it he being dead yet speaketh.] That is, he declareth by his faith, that God is a rewarder of the righteous, though they are persecuted even to death for their righteousness. Drs. Whitby and Wells.

5. — Enoch was translated &c.] See the notes on Gen. v. 22, 24.

—— before his translation he had this testimony, &c.] Preceding tokens were given of God's favourable regards to him; and that character is expressed by the sacred historian, when it is said that "Enoch walked with God." Dr. Doddridge.

6. But without faith it is impossible to please him: &c.] And indeed nothing is plainer, than that a firm persuasion of the existence of God, though He be invisible to us, and a lively hope and assurance, proportionable to the knowledge men have of His nature and will, that He will reward all His true worshippers, though that reward be future and at a distance, is the first and most necessary principle of all true religion. Pyle.

7. By faith Noah, being warned of God &c.] See the notes on Gen. vi. 22.

—— by the which he condemned the world, &c.] By which example of his obedience and faith he condemned the unbelief and obstinacy of the world; and shewed, by his preservation, that the world did justly perish, for not being warned by him; whose word if they had obeyed, they had escaped that destruction. Bp. Hall.

—— became heir of the righteousness which is by faith.] That is, of the happiness promised to them who are justified by faith, or to persons who by faith had an hereditary right to it; namely, not only to the temporal salvation which the ark afforded, but to that spiritual and celestial, which the ark typified, 1 Pet. iii. 21. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 64.

8 By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

9 By faith he sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise:

10 For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God.

11 Through faith also Sara herself received strength to conceive seed, and was delivered of a child when she was past age, because she judged him faithful who had promised.

12 Therefore sprang there even of one, and him as good as dead, so many as the stars of the sky in multitude, and as the sand which is by the sea shore innumerable. Anno DOMINI 64.

13 These all died † in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth. † Gr. according to faith.

14 For they that say such things declare plainly that they seek a country.

15 And truly, if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned.

16 But now they desire a better country,

---

8. By faith Abraham, &c.] See the notes on Gen. xii. 1.

9. — in the land of promise,] See the notes on Gen. xii. 5.

—— dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob,] See Gen. xii. 8; xiii. 3, 12, 18; and the note on the last verse, "Then Abram removed his tent." The Apostle does not mean, that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, dwelt together in one family and one place, all the time they were in Canaan; for at the time Jacob was born, Abraham and Isaac had separate habitations. But he means that, while in Canaan, they all dwelt in tents. By applying this observation to Isaac and Jacob, as well as to Abraham, the Apostle praises their faith likewise. For since Canaan belonged to them as joint heirs with their father, by dwelling there in tents as sojourners, they shewed, that they also knew the true meaning of the promise, and looked for a better country than Canaan. Dr. Macknight.

10. — a city which hath foundations,] Namely, a settled, quiet habitation in heaven; in opposition to tents and tabernacles, which had no foundation, but were moveable dwellings, supported only by stakes and cords. Burkitt.

11. Through faith also Sara herself] Though at first she laughed distrustfully, recollecting herself, "received strength to conceive." Bp. Hall.

13. — and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.] See the note on Gen. xlix. 33.

There was something particular in the case of Abraham, and of his descendants likewise, till their settlement in the land of Canaan: for these, having no fixed abode, were, in the strictest sense of the word, "pilgrims." This circumstance the more eminent amongst them improved to the best advantage, by acting agreeably to it; by weaning themselves from the world; by fixing their chief thoughts on a better; and directing their aims to that state of happiness, which God intended for them hereafter. But whatever particularity there may have been in the case of the good men here referred to, yet there is enough of a similar kind in the condition of every man living, to shew that this expression may be considered as a representation of human life. We also "are strangers and pilgrims on the earth." Though in the common account of things we may be thought settled, as having possessions insured to us by the strongest worldly insurances, yet even these are upon many accounts precarious: the real enjoyment and taste of them at least must be so; and the tenure itself being short, we must give way to some new possessors. All the reflections therefore, which the good Patriarchs formerly made, may be as properly made by us: and our state being in a great degree the same, our duties resulting from this state must be the same likewise. Bp. Conybeare.

14. For they that say such things &c.] And this language of theirs, calling themselves sojourners in Canaan, and not possessors of it, signifies that they did not think themselves at home, but that they were in pursuit of a country. Dr. Hammond. Namely, a country of their father's, their native and proper home. So heaven is the proper country or habitation of good men, the place where God, their Father, dwells. Pyle.

Whosoever declareth himself a stranger, saith the author of this Epistle, declareth that he hath a home; for a stranger is one who is absent from home. When therefore the Patriarchs confess themselves strangers in the land of promise, strangers and sojourners in the earth, they intimate that they have a country, in which they hope to settle: and what place can that be but heaven? "They that say such things declare plainly, that they seek a better country, that is, an heavenly. Wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for He hath prepared for them a city." Good men in the Old Testament, and Christians in the New, are represented as strangers and sojourners in a foreign country. Christians are said not to be of this world, to have no continuing city here, but to seek one to come: to have their conversation, that is their citizenship, in heaven; to be members of the heavenly society; and they are exhorted to pass the time of their sojourning in pious fear. The religion which we profess bids us look upon ourselves as strangers here below. We are, or we should be, the servants of Christ. His kingdom is not of this world: He hath promised us no honours and certain possessions here: He reigns with His Father, and hath told us, that where He is there shall we be also. Whilst we are here we are absent from our Master, from our home, from those abodes where only we have a promise to find rest and happiness. The inference is obvious; that since we are strangers and sojourners for a few days, in a world for the most part unkind and deceitful to its worthiest inhabitants, where sin, and folly, and trouble abound; and since we have the prospect of a better country, to which, if it be not our own fault, we shall have access; we ought to entertain inclinations and views suitable to our conditions, and to use the present, so as to secure the future: that is, in few words, we ought to live virtuously and religiously, not too much dejected under disappointments and afflictions, nor proud and overpleased at temporal advantages; ready to resign with decency and good temper what else we must resign unwillingly, and not dependent upon those things on which our eternal happiness depends not. Dr. Jortin.

15. And truly, if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, &c.] The Apostle does not mean a bare remembrance of that country, but a wishful remembrance, or a longing after it. Such a longing none of these pious men ever indulged. Abraham in particular considered the very thought of returning into Chaldea as a renunciation of his interest in the promises of God. And therefore, he made his steward Eliezer swear, that on no pretence whatever he would carry Isaac into Chaldea, Gen. xxiv. 5, 8. This absolute renunciation of Chaldea, notwithstanding God gave Abraham "none inheritance in Canaan, no not so much as to set his foot on," Acts vii. 5, is a strong proof of his knowledge of the true meaning of the promises, and of his faith in them. Dr. Macknight.

16. But now they desire a better country, &c.] But accounting

Anno DOMINI 64. that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city.

17 By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac: and he that had received the promises offered up his only begotten son,

‖ Or, To. 18 ‖ Of whom it was said, That in Isaac shall thy seed be called:

19 Accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in a figure.

20 By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau concerning things to come.

21 By faith Jacob, when he was a dying, blessed both the sons of Joseph; and worshipped, leaning upon the top of his staff.

22 By faith Joseph, when he died, ‖ Or, remembered. ‖ made mention of the departing of the children of Israel; and gave commandment concerning his bones.

23 By faith Moses, when he was born, was hid three months of his parents, because they saw he was a proper child; and they were not afraid of the king's commandment. Anno DOMINI 64.

24 By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter;

25 Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season;

26 Esteeming the reproach ‖ of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompence of the reward. ‖ Or, for Christ.

27 By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king: for he endured, as seeing him who is invisible.

28 Through faith he kept the passover, and the sprinkling of blood, lest he that destroyed the firstborn should touch them.

---

themselves strangers both in Chaldea and in Canaan, they raised up their hearts to the desire of a better country, that is, an heavenly; and God respected them accordingly. Bp. Hall.

With regard to temporal things, the servants of God in all ages were instructed to look upon the world, and they actually did look upon it, as we do, or should do, now. Upon a principle of faith in God's promise, they who were called out of Egypt under Moses, set out upon a progress towards a land, which they had never seen and knew only by report, with many difficulties and terrours to encounter by the way; so that the history of their journey is an instructive picture of all the trials and dangers of the Christian life: and when they were settled in the land of promise, their business was not to give themselves up to the enjoyment of the world, but to serve God in holiness and righteousness, and still to depend upon Him for their support and defence against their enemies. The greatest favourites of Heaven, who had the best title to inherit the earth, considered this life only as a pilgrimage towards a better. Abraham "sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country," where he was not at home; and "dwelt in tabernacles," to signify that he had no fixed habitation upon earth, but "looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Jacob underwent a series of disappointments and sorrows; and towards the close of his life, confessed that his days had been "few and evil." Moses preferred "the reproach of Christ" to "the treasures of Egypt." And the saints and Prophets, who came after him, were ready on all occasions to renounce the world in the spirit of martyrdom: they suffered all the contempt and persecution the world could inflict upon them in the trial of their faith, and "ran with patience the race that was set before them," choosing death itself through the hope of a "better resurrection;" whence the saints of the law are celebrated and set forth as examples of faith and patience to the saints of the Gospel. How unaccountable therefore has been the errour of some moderns, who have contended that the law gave no notice of a future life, and that the Jews were taught to look for nothing under it but temporal rewards: a doctrine so false in itself, so injurious to the word of God, and so contrary to the preaching of Christ and His Apostles, that it is condemned in the Articles of the Church of England: the seventh of which affirms, as it ought to do, and as we have sufficiently proved already, that "the Old Testament is not contrary to the New; for both in the Old and New Testament, everlasting life is offered to mankind by Christ, who is the only Mediator between God and man, being both God and man. Wherefore they are not to be heard which feign, that the old Fathers did look only for transitory promises." To shew that they had a better hope, and that their faith was the same as ours, though their worship was of a different form, is the whole design of the Epistle to the Hebrews, where the Christian doctrines are all deduced from the Old Testament. Jones of Nayland.

—— to be called their God:] Still, after their decease. See Exod. iii. 6; Matt. xxii. 32; our Saviour's argument for the resurrection. Bp. Fell.

17. By faith Abraham, — offered up Isaac:] He was ready to sacrifice him. Pyle. And so, in the esteem of God, who takes the will for the deed, he did the same as if he had actually offered him up. Dr. Wells. See Gen. xxii, and the notes there.

20. By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau &c.] Giving the higher blessing to the younger brother. Bp. Fell. Here the Apostle discovers a fact, which may be also gathered from the circumstances of the history; namely, that in blessing his two sons, Isaac was moved by a Divine impulse. Dr. Macknight. See Gen. xxvii. 33; and the note on ver. 23.

26. — the reproach of Christ] That reproach, which he together with God's people suffered, in and for the expectation of Christ, whom he foresaw to come. Bp. Hall. Jesus Christ, then the Head also, and, some think, the personal conductor, of the church in the wilderness. See Exod. xxiii. 21; Acts vii. 38; 1 Cor. x. 9; Exod. xvii. 7. Always the same, Heb. xiii. 8; Rev. i. 4; In the Prophets' time, 1 Pet. i. 11; In and before the time of Abraham, John viii. 58, who saw His day and was glad; In Noah's time, 1 Pet. iii. 19; In the beginning of time, by whom God made the worlds, Heb. i. 10; Before all worlds, John xvii. 5. Bp. Fell.

The reproach of the Israelites seems to me to be called, "the reproach of Christ," not only for the similitude between it, and that which Christ afterward suffered, or because it was a type thereof; but also and chiefly, because that people was the people of Christ, and so their reproach His. The people of Christ, I say, they were, whom Christ took into His singular favour and tuition; appearing to their ancestors the holy patriarchs; shewing Himself to Moses in the bush, and proclaiming Himself "the God of his fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob," and declaring that He had "surely seen the affliction of His people," Exod. iii. 6, 7; and afterwards leading the Israelites through the wilderness, as St. Paul himself not obscurely teaches us, 1 Cor. x. 9, and as all the catholick doctors and Fathers of the primitive Christian church have with one consent delivered to us. Bp. Bull.

For the historical events, transiently noticed in verses 21—32, see Gen. xlviii. 5, 16, 20; xlvii. 31; l. 24, 25; Exod. ii. 2; i. 16, 22; ii. 10, 11; xii. 37; xiii. 18; xii. 21, &c.; xiv. 22; Josh. vi. 20, 23; i. 1; Judg. vi. 11; iv. 6; xiii. 24; xi. 1; 1 Sam. xvi. 13; xvii. 46; iv. 1; xii. 23; and the notes upon those passages.

Anno DOMINI 64.

29 By faith they passed through the Red sea as by dry land: which the Egyptians assaying to do were drowned.

30 By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compassed about seven days.

31 By faith the harlot Rahab perished not with them ‖ that believed not, when she had received the spies with peace.

‖ Or, that were disobedient.

32 And what shall I more say? for the time would fail me to tell of Gedeon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets:

33 Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions,

34 Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens.

Anno DOMINI 64.

35 Women received their dead raised to life again: and others were [a] tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection:

[a] 2 Mac. 7. 7.

36 And others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover of bonds and imprisonment:

37 They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented;

38 (Of whom the world was not worthy:) they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth.

39 And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise:

40 God having ‖ provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect.

‖ Or, foreseen.

---

33. — subdued kingdoms,] As Joshua and David. Bp. Hall.

—— wrought righteousness,] As Abraham and Phinehas, Gen. xv. 6; Ps. cvi. 30, 31. Or, turned the people from idolatry into the way of righteousness, as Samuel and Elijah, 1 Sam. xii; 1 Kings xviii. 39. Dr. Whitby. Or, carried themselves justly in their government, as Samuel and David. Bp. Hall.

—— obtained promises,] As Abraham, of a son; Caleb and Joshua, of the promised land; Gideon and Jephthah, of victories. Bp. Hall. Phinehas, of the everlasting priesthood; David, first of the kingdom, and then of the Messiah. Dr. Macknight.

—— stopped the mouths of lions,] As Samson, and as Daniel. Bp. Hall.

34. Quenched the violence of fire,] Not being so much as scorched therewith, as Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego. Bp. Hall.

—— escaped the edge of the sword,] As Moses that of Pharaoh, Exod. xviii. 4; David that of Goliath, and of Saul; Elijah, that of Jezebel. Dr. Macknight, Bp. Hall.

—— out of weakness were made strong,] That is, recovered from desperate sicknesses after some extraordinary method, as Job and Hezekiah; or performed actions above their natural strength and power, as Gideon, Judg. vii. 15; Samson, Judg. xvi. 28; Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xx. 12; Jonathan, 1 Sam. xiv. 12. Drs. Wells and Whitby.

—— turned to flight the armies of the aliens.] That is, of the heathen Canaanites. Dr. Hammond.

35. Women received their dead raised to life again:] As the widow of Zarephath, 1 Kings xvii. 20; and the Shunammitish woman, 2 Kings iv. 36. Dr. Hammond.

—— not accepting deliverance;] As Eleazar and the Maccabean brothers, that, dying for God's cause, they might be partakers of a happy resurrection to eternal life, 2 Macc. vi, vii. Bp. Hall.

36. — mockings and scourgings, &c.] Isaac was mocked by Ishmael, and Elisha by the children from Bethel. See also 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16; and 2 Macc. vii. 7, 10. Jeremiah was beaten by Pashur, Jer. xx. 2; and by the princes, Jer. xxxvii. 15. Scourging in the synagogue was a very common punishment. See 2 Macc. vi. 30; vii. 1, 37. Joseph, Samson, Jeremiah, and Micaiah were imprisoned. Drs. Macknight and Whitby.

37. They were stoned,] As Zechariah, 2 Chron. xxiv. 21; "they were sawn asunder," as Isaiah by Manasseh. Dr. Whitby. See the Introduction to Isaiah, 1st paragraph.

—— were tempted,] To renounce the true worship of God after other extraordinary ways. Dr. Wells. This may particularly allude to the temptation of present ease and prosperity offered to such as would be guilty of sinful compliances, instead of the torments and death they were immediately to suffer, if they persevered in their duty. See Dan. iii. 14, &c.; vi. 10, &c.; 2 Macc. vi. 21, &c.; vii. 24. Parkhurst.

—— were slain with the sword:] See 1 Sam. xxii. 18; 1 Kings xix. 10. Dr. Macknight. 1 Macc. ii. 38. Dr. Whitby.

—— in sheepskins and goatskins;] The ancient Prophets commonly went about in such garments, being mortified to all the luxuries of life. Dr. Macknight. See 2 Kings i. 8, and the note there.

38. — in dens and caves of the earth.] As Elijah; and the hundred Prophets hid by Obadiah; and David, 1 Sam. xxiv. 3. Dr. Macknight.

39. — received not the promise:] That is, the actual accomplishment of the promise. Burkitt. Namely, the promise of "an heavenly country," ver. 15, 16; the "recompence of reward," ver. 26; the "better resurrection," ver. 35. Dr. Whitby. The promise, emphatically; the grand promise, in faith of which they died, and of which all other promises were only shadows, and known by them to be such. Bp. Horne.

40. God having provided some better thing for us,] And so deferring the completion of that promise, till we also should be made partakers of it. Dr. Whitby.

It being the good pleasure and wise appointment of God to defer that till the perfect and complete revelation of the Gospel were made to us Christians, and the last and great dispensation of the Messiah be past: that so both they, Patriarchs, Prophets, and Apostles, and all sincere Christians, whether Jewish or Gentile ones, may, for the courageous exercise of the same excellent and virtuous principle, be all rewarded and crowned together, with the happiness both of body and soul, at the final day of judgment. Pyle.

To encourage us in our Christian warfare, the Apostle in this chapter sets before us at large the examples of the saints of old, who were all saved by leading a life of faith; enduring every trial, and conquering every enemy, on this great principle. There never was any other way of salvation from the beginning of the world, but this of faith. All the saints of God who found acceptance with Him depended upon His word and promise for such things as they could not see; and either forsook the pleasures of the world, or contradicted its errours, and endured its reproaches, for His sake. We may plead the business of life, and the cares of life; but they had their business and their cares as well as we: yet they loved God, and made it their first care to be saved. The race we are to run may have its difficulties: indeed if it is a race, it cannot be without them: but we are "encompassed with a cloud

Anno DOMINI 64.

CHAP. XII.

1 An exhortation to constant faith, patience, and godliness. 22 A commendation of the new testament above the old.

WHEREFORE seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

Anno DOMINI 64.

2 Looking unto Jesus the ‖ author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

‖ Or, beginner.

of witnesses," chap. xii. 1, all testifying that this race may be run, and the prize obtained; because they did actually perform it, and are entitled to the crown of victory. What hinders us from doing the same, but that we are retarded by some "weight," which we are not careful to divest ourselves of, and "lay aside?" We do not strive against that sin, whatever it be, which most easily besets us, and is never to be subdued but by faith, and prayer, and self-denial: faith in better things than this world can bestow; and prayer for that grace which may assist us in doing what our strength will never accomplish. Jones of Nayland.

A strong argument to prove that works are a necessary condition of our justification may be deduced from the examples of holy men of old, who were so justified. Of these illustrious worthies we have a long list in this eleventh chapter to the Hebrews. Here let us learn what justifying faith is, by seeing what it was and what it did in those heroes of the ancient church, proposed to us by the Apostle for our imitation. By faith Abel offered a sacrifice in obedience to the institution of God. Noah built an ark. Abraham left his country and kindred, and offered up what was most near and dear to him. Moses rejected all the pleasures and honours of the court of Egypt, and chose to have his part and portion with the oppressed and afflicted church. And so of the rest: by faith they overcame the world; vanquished all the affections of the flesh, when they stood in the way of duty; manfully resisted the devil; and lived and died in the love of God and their neighbour. They "fought a good fight," they "finished their course," they "kept the faith," by making it a constant principle of action, and "maintaining good works," without which they had assuredly fallen short of the inheritance. In a word, "through faith," as saith the Apostle, "they wrought righteousness," and therefore "obtained the promises." And if it be true, as most true it is, that without faith they had never wrought righteousness, it is equally true, that, without working righteousness through faith, they had never obtained the promises. Bp. Horne.

Chap. XII. The inference from the foregoing argument is first stated, namely, that as the behaviour of the patriarchs and holy men of old vindicates the reasonableness of the Christian faith; so ought it to be the most exemplary encouragement to support all Christians under their sufferings for it. The same encouragement is farther enforced from the example of Christ Himself. Pyle. The Apostle then proceeds to observe, that afflictions are signs and effects of God's love, and that great advantage results from them to true believers; and he encourages the Hebrews by these considerations to suffer persecution with patience. He exhorts them to holiness and perseverance in the faith; and advises them to shun every thing that might occasion their falling away from the grace of God, and not to suffer themselves to be seduced by sensuality. He compares the manner in which the law was given on mount Sinai with the manner of publishing the Gospel: by which comparison he designs to shew how severe their punishment will be, who despise the voice of Christ, and violate the covenant of grace. Ostervald.

Ver. 1. — with so great a cloud of witnesses,] Namely, all the worthies mentioned in the former chapter, who by their words and deeds have testified how much the objects of their faith were valued above all worldly things, and how equitable it was to endure afflictions, not accepting a deliverance, that they might obtain a better resurrection. Dr. Whitby.

—— the sin which doth so easily beset us,] The particular sin here meant by the Apostle seems to be that mentioned by Dr. Doddridge; namely, 'a disposition to relinquish or dissemble the Gospel for fear of suffering.' Parkhurst.

2. Looking unto Jesus] As an example of patience under sufferings fit to be imitated by His disciples, and as one gloriously recompensed in His human nature for the sufferings He sustained in it, and as one who will give to us the same happy repose after our sufferings; He having, as the Author of our faith, promised, and being able, as the Finisher of our faith, to confer that glorious recompence: see chap. x. 35, 36. Dr. Whitby.

—— the author and finisher of our faith;] In the Scriptures we read, that "in the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God;" that by Him the Father created all things, and by Him hath conducted, ever since, the concerns of this world; whence He is called in this passage, "the Author and Finisher of our faith." He laid the groundwork of it immediately on the fall of our first parents, the consequences of which we all feel, in the intimation given them, that "the Seed of the woman" should destroy the serpent's power, and afterwards made valuable additions to it of "precious promises," (2 Pet. i. 4,) from time to time. When idolatry and vice had overspread the rest of the world, He preserved it with peculiar care in one nation, as "a light shining in a dark place," (ver. 19,) for the benefit of all who would turn their eyes towards it; and, by a chain of wonderful providences, brought on the proper season for diffusing it throughout the earth. Then He divested Himself of "the glory which He had with the Father before the world was," John xvii. 5; "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us," John i. 14; taught men in person the great truths of religion; confirmed them by beneficent miracles performed, and illustrious prophecies fulfilled; exemplified them in His practice; and provided the means of their descending uncorrupted to all future ages, and being efficaciously applied to the conviction of the wicked, and the comfort of the good. So fully is He, and He could not be more fully, what the Apostle calls Him. Abp. Secker.

—— for the joy that was set before him] The prospect of that majesty and glory, power and dominion, with which He in His human nature was to be invested, as the reward of these His sufferings. See chap. ii. 9; Phil. ii. 9. Dr. Whitby. "The joy" of illustrating at once the holiness and goodness of God, who appointed and accepted this method of our salvation: "the joy" of reforming and making happy, in themselves and one another, in time and to eternity, all those multitudes who in every generation should embrace His offers: and lastly, "the joy" of being deservedly honoured, as the blessed instrument of these inestimable benefits. Abp. Secker.

—— endured the cross,] The frequent consideration of Christ in His sufferings is the best mean to keep up faith, and encourage patience under our own sufferings. Burkitt.

—— and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.] Accordingly He hath the honour, as the Apostle proceeds to observe, of sitting down at the right hand of the throne of God: being placed, in respect of that nature which He condescended to assume, and the sufferings of which are thus properly rewarded, in a state of supreme felicity, at the head of the whole creation, "angels, and authorities, and powers being made subject unto Him," 1 Pet. iii. 22. And in this exalted station He shall remain, superintending the affairs of the universe, till He returns to our earth at the day of judgment. Then "every eye shall see Him, and they also which pierced Him," Rev. i. 7; they which blaspheme Him, and they which professing yet "obey not His Gospel: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of His power, when He shall come to be glorified in His saints, and to be admired in all them that believe," 2 Thess. i. 8—10. This is He, to whom we are

Anno DOMINI 64.

3 For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds.

4 Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin.

5 And ye have forgotten the exhortation which speaketh unto you as unto children, My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him:

6 For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?

8 But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons.

9 Furthermore we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, and live?

Anno DOMINI 64.

10 For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness.

11 Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby.

12 Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees;

13 And make ‖ straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed.

‖ Or, even.

---

directed to "look:" to 'look off,' for so the word signifies, from other objects, unsafe or unworthy, and contemplate Him: not only as the most excellent of men, but a Being raised "far above every name that is named," either in this world, or that which is to come," Eph. i. 21: nor only as thus eminent in Himself, but as our greatest Benefactor and truest Friend; our wise Lawgiver and spotless example; the Sacrifice by whose blood we are washed from our sins; the Head of the body of which we are members; the Judge, on whose sentence our everlasting state depends; our Prophet, our Priest, and our King; our Saviour, "our Lord and our God," John xx. 28. Abp. Secker.

3. — such contradiction of sinners against himself,] Such blasphemies against His doctrine, such calumnies against His person, such malicious and unwearied attempts against His life. Dr. Whitby.

4. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, &c.] Ye have indeed suffered many things for the name of Christ; ye have been stripped of your goods, and afflicted in your bodies; but yet ye have not, which ye must not refuse if ye be called unto it, suffered death, for the defence of the truth, and opposition of wickedness and errour. Bp. Hall.

5. And ye have forgotten &c.] By being thus ready to faint in your minds at the evils which threaten you, ye act as if ye had forgotten the exhortation of God, &c. Dr. Wells.

This passage of Scripture, by placing the dispensations of Providence in a just light, banishes that gloom, which the disorders and miseries prevailing in the world are apt to occasion. We are here in a state of education, under the tuition of God, who performs to us the offices of a prudent and affectionate father. By the various afflictions of life, He teaches us the virtues necessary to fit us for discharging the duties, and for enjoying the pleasures, of heaven. May every afflicted person firmly believe this! Dr. Macknight.

7. — God dealeth with you as with sons;] Here the note of St. Chrysostom is, that from those things, whence men usually conclude that they are deserted by God, the Apostle demonstrates His fatherly affection to them. Dr. Whitby.

8. — if ye be without chastisement,] The meaning of these two verses is, that in laying present afflictions on us, God acts only the part of a prudent father; training us up by such methods, as may best work our tempers into a dutiful and patient obedience. And should He wholly neglect these means, and indulge us in uninterrupted ease, and present prosperity, He would be wanting in one of the proper instances of a careful and tender father. Pyle.

9. — the Father of spirits,] See the note on Numb. xvi. 22.

—— and live?] Live eternally: alluding to the promise of the fifth commandment. Bp. Fell.

10. For they verily for a few days &c.] The earthly parents indeed chastised you when you were children, and no longer; and that, as having absolute dominion over their children, by the rules of their own judgment or will, which are oft corrupt. Dr. Hammond.

The wisdom of God, observable in all the dispensations of His gracious providence towards His children, we may behold, by way of instance, in His fatherly corrections: as the Apostle here makes the comparison between the different proceedings of "the fathers of our flesh" and "the Father of spirits," in their chastisements. They do it "after their own pleasure;" that is, not always with judgment, and according to the merit of the fault; but after the present disposition of their own passions, either through a fond indulgence sparing the rod too much, or in a frantick rage laying it on without mercy or measure. But it is not so with Him: who in all His chastisements hath an eye, as to our former faults, such is His justice; so also and especially to our future profit, such is His mercy; and ordereth all accordingly. Bp. Sanderson.

—— that we might be partakers of his holiness.] In the holiness and righteousness of our life here, see ver. 11, 14; 1 Pet. i. 15: and after this in life eternal, the fruit and reward of our righteousness here. Bp. Fell.

11. — the peaceable fruit of righteousness] "The fruit of righteousness," which affliction yields, is called "peaceable," because it is a pledge and evidence of our peace with God, and because it brings peace into our own minds. Burkitt.

God sends adversity and affliction on us, with a design of love and kindness, unless we be such as have continually hardened our hearts against former afflictions, and thereby rendered ourselves incorrigible. Excepting this case, all afflictions that befall us are designed in love and kindness to us, to bring us to repentance, or to further our repentance, and make us better by a greater hatred of sin, and by a more zealous prosecution of virtue and goodness. This doctrine is plainly taught us by a Prophet of the Lord, Lament. iii. 32, 33; and this is the doctrine of the Apostle in this passage. Let this then be fixed in our minds, and the settled resolution of our thoughts, that our afflictions are the effects of God's goodness and lovingkindness to us; and then we shall not only bear them patiently, but receive them thankfully, accounting our afflictions to be mercies, according to that of David, "It is good for me that I have been afflicted, that I might learn Thy statutes," Ps. cxix. 71. Bp. Bull.

12, 13. Wherefore lift up the hands &c.] Wherefore comfort yourselves with these things; and rouse up your fainting courage to the cheerful enduring of all afflictions; and go on evenly and steadily in this course of Christianity, which ye have entered into; lest coming once to halt betwixt truth and errour, God and the world, ye be at last utterly perverted; but be careful rather, upon the first sense of your doubts or complaints, to receive full satisfaction and due encouragement. Bp. Hall.

Anno DOMINI 64.

14 Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord:

‖ Or, fall from.

15 Looking diligently lest any man ‖fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled;

16 Lest there be any fornicator, or profane person, as Esau, who for one morsel of meat sold his birthright.

17 For ye know how that afterward, when he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no ‖ place of repentance, though he sought it carefully with tears.

Anno DOMINI 64.

‖ Or, way to change his mind.

18 For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackness, and darkness, and tempest,

19 And the sound of a trumpet, and the voice of words; which voice they that heard intreated that the word should not be spoken to them any more:

20 (For they could not endure that which

---

14. Follow peace with all men, and holiness,] St. Paul in his Epistle to the Romans, chap. xii. 18, commands Christians to use their endeavours to live peaceably, both amongst themselves, and with the Pagans, with whom they had the misfortune to be joined in civil society, and to procure the good opinion of every one, even of their slanderers and persecutors, by all acts of prudence and affability, of meekness and charity, by all methods which were consistent with their character and with the Gospel of Christ. But it was not permitted them to do more than this, to use any sinful compliances, to deny or dissemble their religion, to neglect any Christian duty, or to join in idolatrous practices. So the author of this Epistle to the Hebrews gives them these two precepts joined together, "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord:" which by some is understood to be an advice to them, that they should use all lawful methods to live peaceably with Christians, with Jews, and with Gentiles, but be careful, whilst they sought peace, to preserve a good conscience, and not offend God to obtain any present advantage. The admonition was necessary: for when the Gospel was first preached, some of those who received it pursued peace and the favour of the world by unjustifiable methods. It is probable that they who in this Epistle are said to have "forsaken the assembling of themselves together," acted this part out of fear, or with a view to preserve the esteem of unbelievers. The Corinthians, to make themselves agreeable to their Pagan friends, partook of the feasts which they celebrated when they sacrificed to idols. Soon after the death of the Apostles some arose, who, to preserve themselves from danger, to avoid the displeasure and to secure the favour of the heathen, made no scruple of sacrificing to idols, and even of denying and renouncing Jesus Christ when they were brought before magistrates. Though we in this age are not exposed to the same trials, and in danger of committing the same faults, yet we dwell with many wicked and unreasonable persons, and may often find it impossible to serve and please God, and to oblige them at the same time. In these cases the precept given to us is plain, and full, and strict, and not to be evaded: he who loveth his relations, his friends, his companions, his ease and repose, his pleasures, his fortunes, his vices, or his life more than his Saviour, is not worthy of Him: and he who fears the scorn, the censure, and the malice of profane persons, more than the wrath of God, must seek his reward, if he can obtain it, from those to whom he pays an unrighteous and slavish obedience. Peace is a most valuable thing; but it may be purchased at too dear a rate. Dr. Jortin.

—— without which no man shall see the Lord:] As the Gospel of Christ hath expressly declared, that repentance and remission of sins ought to be preached unto all nations; and that the very end and essence of the covenant of grace is, that God might "purify unto Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works," Tit. ii. 14; it is in vain to preach the remission of sins, without inculcating the necessity of repentance and amendment of life at the same time. The whole tenour of the Gospel is uniform as to this point. Not one precept, not one command, not one exhortation can be produced, that doth not tend to the same thing. And the general doctrine of all, and of every part, is comprised and summed up in this short, expressive, and momentous sentence, "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord." Dean Tucker.

The Apostle does not say, without which peace, but without which-holiness no man shall see the Lord. Without peace, some man may, having faithfully endeavoured it, though he cannot obtain it; that is not his fault: but without holiness, which if any man want, it is through his own fault only, no man shall see the Lord. Bp. Sanderson.

15. — lest any man fail of the grace of God;] Relapse from Christianity, and forfeit all its blessings. Pyle.

—— root of bitterness] In Scripture "bitterness" signifies gross sin; see Acts viii. 23. In particular, apostasy or idolatry is called, Deut. xxix. 18, "a root which beareth gall and wormwood:" in the margin of our Bible "gall" is rendered "a poisonful herb," an herb which taints the plants growing beside it. Wherefore a "root of bitterness," or bitter root, is a person utterly corrupted, and who by his errours and vices corrupts others. The metaphor shews that sin is of an infectious nature, and that its consequences are deadly in the highest degree. Dr. Macknight.

16. — profane person, as Esau,] See the note on Gen. xxxiii. 16.

Esau is said to be "a profane person," only because he preferred earthly before heavenly things. And so whosoever has any real love for this world, and values it so far as to make it his great business to get riches, honours, or the like; whatsoever pretences he makes of holiness, he is, like Esau, an unholy and profane person: for true holiness always implies the soul's freedom from, and advancement above, whatsoever is unclean or common. Bp. Beveridge.

17. — he was rejected:] By his father, saying of Jacob, "I have blessed him; yea, and he shall be blessed," Gen. xxvii. 33. Drs. Whitby and Wells.

—— for he found no place of repentance,] No change of the blessing pronounced by his father. Dr. Whitby. He found no such benefit of that his late repentance, as thereby to recover that which he yielded to forego: neither could those tears of his move his father Isaac to repent of that benediction, which he had justly given to Jacob. Bp. Hall.

The Apostle argues, that as Esau could not prevail upon his father, with all his tears, to reverse what he had done; in like manner such as wilfully sell their Christian birthright, or renounce Christianity, are not to expect to find any place of repentance in God; that is, that God will reverse what He has decreed against such apostates: they are not to presume on God's mercy in this case, it being the most likely way to render them incapable of His mercy. Dr. Wells.

18. For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched,] And therefore was corporeal and earthly, and by being touched after the prohibition, Exod. xix. 12, would procure instant death: but you are come to the spiritual and heavenly Zion, which will certainly give life to all that belong to it. Dr. Whitby.

The Apostle means to say, that the danger of apostates from Christianity will appear the greater, by considering, they forsake a religion so much more mild and gracious; privileges and blessings so much nobler than those of the Jewish law. That law was delivered to your forefathers in a manner so dreadful, and with circumstances so tremendous and affrighting, that neither the people nor Moses himself could bear them without horror and astonishment. Pyle.

20. (For they could not endure that which was commanded,]

Anno DOMINI 64. was commanded, And if so much as a beast touch the mountain, it shall be stoned, or thrust through with a dart:

21 And so terrible was the sight, that Moses said, I exceedingly fear and quake:)

22 But ye are come unto mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels,

23 To the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are ‖ written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect,

‖ Or, enrolled.

Anno DOMINI 64.

24 And to Jesus the mediator of the new ‖ covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel.

‖ Or, testament.

25 See that ye refuse not him that speaketh. For if they escaped not who refused him that spake on earth, much more shall not we escape, if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven:

26 Whose voice then shook the earth:

Namely, that severe cautionary command, which runs thus, "And if so much as a beast, &c." Dr. Whitby.

21. — Moses said, I exceedingly fear and quake:)] This may allude to Exod. xix. 19, where it is said, "Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice." It seems that when he drew near to the thick darkness, out of which issued the thunders, and lightnings, and the great fire which burned up to the midst of heaven, his courage failing him, he spake the words mentioned ver. 21, I am exceedingly afraid and tremble, and God answered him by a voice encouraging him to lay aside his fears. Wherefore taking courage, he became so composed as to hold that conversation with God which is recorded Exod. xix. 20—24. Dr. Macknight.

22. But ye are come unto mount Sion, &c.] On the contrary, your Christian religion, without any such terrible introductions, upon only the gracious and reasonable conditions of repentance, and true faith, makes you members of that spiritual and heavenly society, whereof all good and holy men, (whether circumcised or uncircumcised,) glorified saints, and even angels themselves, are a part, under Christ their universal Head, the Mediator of this new and gracious covenant of the Gospel; who has redeemed and cleansed us by the sacrifice of His blood. Pyle.

The Christian church is here described by the old names, to shew that it was no new thing, but the same holy mount of God, the same heavenly city of God, to which the spiritual part of His people always belonged. And they knew they did so, because "the living God" must be the head of a living society. Jones of Nayland.

—— mount Sion,] This, being opposed to Sinai the tangible mountain, is no mountain on earth, but is the heavenly mount Zion; as the Jerusalem mentioned in the following clause is "the heavenly Jerusalem." Dr. Macknight.

23. To the general assembly and church of the firstborn, &c.] To the dignity of being members of that congregation of Jews and Gentiles, composed of Apostles the firstfruits of the faith, Rom. viii. 23; and all those eminent faithful persons, whose names are honoured and recorded in the book of God. Dr. Hammond. See the note on Phil. iv. 3.

The Apostle calls it "the general assembly," because it takes its members from all times and all places: other assemblies are partial, composed of the citizens of one city, or the people of one nation. It is "the church of the firstborn which are written in heaven," because its members, being entitled to the privilege of inheritance, are therefore called "firstborn," to whom the right of inheritance belongs. This is also spoken with reference to that custom of the law, according to which all the firstborn were to be "sanctified" unto the Lord; and Moses was commanded to register them all, and take "the number of their names," Numb. iii. 40: with reference to which the sons of the spiritual society are said to have their "names written in heaven," where they are registered in "the book of life." Jones of Nayland.

The Scripture word, translated "church," originally signifies any regular and orderly assembly of persons, called to meet on any occasion. But in the Bible it signifies, almost always, a religious assembly. And when used in its largest sense there, it comprehends the whole number of good persons, in every age; all those, who from the beginning of the world, under whatever dispensation of true religion, have believed in God, and served Him, according to the degree of their light: and shall in the end of it be gathered together, and rewarded by Him, according to the degree of their improvement. This is "the general assembly and church of the firstborn which are written in heaven," as the Apostle here calls it. Abp. Secker.

—— to the spirits of just men made perfect,] As having run their race, and being perfectly justified from sin, and only now expecting till the great day, when they shall receive the crown of glory allotted for them, and so be "made perfect" also in happiness and glory. Dr. Wells.

24. — to the blood of sprinkling,] Alluding to Exod. xxiv. 8, when the former covenant was made. The blood of Christ besprinkling us, in allusion to Moses besprinkling the people and the unclean, Heb. ix. 13, 19. Bp. Fell.

—— speaketh better things than that of Abel.] The blood of Christ, being shed for the redemption of mankind, calling unto God, not for revenge as Abel's did, but for a full remission of sin and reconciliation of man unto God. Bp. Hall. See Gen. iv. 10.

From the description here given of the church as a spiritual society, the Christian is to learn the dignity of his own character, and to conduct himself in a manner suitable to his station. He seems outwardly like other men: but inwardly he has an honourable place in the kingdom of spirits: he is in the company of angels, saints, and martyrs; he is under the dominion of God, as his King and Lawgiver; he is a student of wisdom in the school that has sent out so many sons unto glory; he is within the covenant that is sealed by the blood of Christ for his purification and redemption; his name is registered in heaven, as an heir of immortality; he knows that while the mighty empires of the earth are changing and passing away into oblivion, the kingdom of which he is a member shall never be moved. The earth shall be shaken and the heavens shall melt away; but his inheritance is secure. The same God, who is a consuming fire to an impenitent world, will be to him a Protector and a Saviour, if he serves Him acceptably, in this short time of his probation, with reverence and godly fear. Jones of Nayland.

25. See that ye refuse not him that speaketh.] God speaking from heaven by His Son, John iii. 31; Heb. ii. 1; i. 2: and from heaven of His Son, several times, saying, "Hear ye Him." Bp. Fell.

—— him that spake on earth, — him that speaketh from heaven:] Namely, God, who "spake on earth" by Moses; and "speaketh from heaven" by His Son coming down, and His Spirit sent down from thence, 1 Pet. i. 12. Dr. Whitby.

Or, Moses, that delivered the law from mount Sinai; Christ, who delivers His commandments immediately from heaven. Dr. Hammond.

26. Whose voice then shook the earth: &c.] For, as great a dispensation as the Jewish law may seem to be, by the solemnity with which it was at first delivered; yet it is not comparable, either for its greatness or duration, to that of Christ. At the giving of that law, indeed, the earth was said to tremble, Ps. lxviii. 8. And the most remarkable dealings of God toward the Jewish people are expressed in Scripture by "His shaking the earth." But when the Prophets describe the great changes and revolutions that should forerun, and the mighty power that should accompany, the last and perfect dispensation of Christ the Messiah, they represent it by "God's shaking the heavens, and the earth," Hag. ii. 6, 7, "Yet once more," says God, "and I will shake not the earth only, but also heaven;" that is, make a thorough revolution, and establish a lasting dispensation of religion to all mankind. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 64.

but now he hath promised, saying, Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven.

27 And this word, Yet once more, signifieth the removing of those things that ‖ are shaken, as of things that are made, that those things which cannot be shaken may remain.

‖ Or, may be shaken.

28 Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, ‖let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear:

‖ Or, let us hold fast.

29 For our God is a consuming fire.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Divers admonitions, as to charity, 4 to honest life, 5 to avoid covetousness, 7 to regard God's preachers, 9 to take heed of strange doctrines, 10 to confess Christ, 16 to give alms, 17 to obey governors, 18 to pray for the apostle. 20 The conclusion.

Anno DOMINI 64.

LET brotherly love continue.

2 Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.

3 Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body.

4 Marriage is honourable in all, and the bed undefiled: but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge.

5 Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have: for he hath said, [a] I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.

[a] Josh. 1. 5.

---

27. — as of things that are made,] Only for a time. Dr. Wells. On purpose to be destroyed. Dr. Hammond.

28. — let us have grace,] Let us take care to preserve the grace given to us. Bp. Fell. The import of the words appears to be, Let us continue steadfast in the faith and dispensation delivered in the Gospel, as being that alone which renders both our persons and our services acceptable to God. Let us not "fall from the grace of God," ver. 15. Let us not "cast away our confidence," chap. x. 35. Let us "hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering," ver. 23; continuing to serve God with an holy reverence. Dr. Whitby.

29. For our God is a consuming fire.] For God, as He is most gracious and merciful to those that fear and serve Him, so He is a most terrible avenger of all wickedness and disobedience, and will be sure to punish it with unspeakable torments. Bp. Hall.

The Apostle had now in his eye Deut. iv. 24, where, by telling the Israelites, "The Lord thy God is a consuming fire," Moses put them in mind of the destruction of Korah and his companions. Wherefore, by adopting Moses's words, the Apostle brings the same instance of vengeance to our remembrance, that we may be deterred from apostasy, disobedience, and all irreverence in the worship of God, who, though He appears full of mercy in the Gospel, is as much determined to punish the rebellious as ever. Dr. Macknight.

Let not any man think himself unconcerned in the scene manifested to the Israelites, because it is past. The terrours of mount Sinai are still in force against every one, who is not found in Christ Jesus; unless we suppose that the despisers of the Gospel will fare better than the contemners of the law, and not rather be thought worthy of much sorer punishment. The hour is coming, when our eyes shall see more amazing sights, and our ears shall hear more terrifying sounds, than were seen and heard by the house of Israel in the wilderness. For yet a little while, and the same God who was revealed from heaven in flaming fire to give the law, shall again be revealed from heaven in flaming fire to inquire how it hath been observed, and to take vengeance on those who have not secured unto themselves a sponsor to stand in the gap for them. So that although the things seen and heard at mount Sinai did not affect us, yet the argument enlarged upon by the Apostle in this chapter undoubtedly doth: namely, that if the law was so terrible, when enacted, how much more terrible must it be, when required at our hand by God, coming in glorious majesty to judge the world! Then shall there be blackness of darkness, not for a time, but for ever: then shall the lightnings of Sinai be extended over all the earth, and a fire be kindled which shall not be quenched; then shall the heavens pass away with the noise of a great and intolerable thunder: a far louder trumpet shall then not only pierce the ears of the living, but also sound an alarm through all the regions of the grave, and awaken those who shall have slept for ages in the dust: then He, whose voice formerly shook the earth, shall fulfil His promise, "Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven," ver. 26, both of which shall be removed, and their place no more be found: then shall all the tribes of the earth, as well as those of Israel, tremble, and mourn, and wail: and who and where is he, that thinketh he shall not then find cause to say with Moses, 'So terrible is the sight, that I exceedingly fear and quake?' Bp. Horne.

Chap. XIII. The Apostle concludes with exhortations to several Christian duties, such especially as the Jewish Christians most wanted to have inculcated upon them; namely, to charity, hospitality, and beneficence to their fellow Christians in imprisonment: to a due esteem of the lawfulness of marriage, and to abstinence from all uncleanness; to contentment in their worldly condition; to a just esteem and imitation of their spiritual guides; in fine, to constancy in the true doctrine and worship of Christianity, as far surpassing the external ceremonies of the Jewish religion. He desires their prayers for himself, and prays for them: adding the salutation and conclusion. Pyle.

Ver. 2. — for thereby some have entertained angels] See Gen. xix. 2, and the note there. This is mentioned, not to raise in us the expectation of entertaining angels, but to make us sensible that the unknown persons, to whom we shew kindness, may be persons of the greatest worth, and may to us, as the angels were to Abraham and Lot, be the occasion of great blessings. Dr. Macknight.

3. Remember them that are in bonds, &c.] Have a special regard and compassion to such Christians as are under imprisonment for their religion. Consider yourselves as liable to the same affliction. Pyle.

All parties of men are bound together by a common interest; which, though in some cases even wicked and absurd, and little better than a conspiracy, will have its effect in disposing them to espouse the cause, and prefer the company and conversation, of one another. Now as there is no common interest so important as that of Christians, it ought to produce such a friendship as is superiour to every other relation or connexion. "Remember them that are in bonds," says the Apostle, "as bound with them:" that is, as considering that they are members of the body of Christ, and that one member cannot suffer without affecting the rest. The same rule is applicable to every other condition of life: as if it had been said, Remember them that are poor, as partaking of their poverty; remember them that are sick, as being sick with them: for thence we shall feel the same obligation to relieve them, as to relieve ourselves; and much greater comfort, because "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Jones of Nayland.

—— as being yourselves also in the body.] That is, in the same frail human estate, subject to all that befalls other men. Dr. Hammond.

5. — for he hath said, &c.] See Deut. xxxi. 6; and the note there. This teaches us, that God's promises to any of His ser-

Anno DOMINI 64.

6 So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me.

‖ Or, are the guides.

7 Remember them which ‖have the rule over you, who have spoken unto you the word of God: whose faith follow, considering the end of their conversation:

8 Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever.

9 Be not carried about with divers and strange doctrines. For it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace; not with meats, which have not profited them that have been occupied therein.

10 We have an altar, whereof they have no right to eat which serve the tabernacle.

11 For the bodies of those beasts, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sin, are burned without the camp.

Anno DOMINI 64.

12 Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate.

13 Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach.

14 [b] For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come.

[b] Mic. 2. 10.

15 By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips † giving thanks to his name.

† Gr. confessing to.

16 But to do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

17 Obey them that ‖have the rule over you, and submit yourselves: for they watch

‖ Or, guide.

---

vants, and their exercises of faith and trust built thereon, are recorded in Scripture for the encouragement of the people of God in every age. Drs. Whitby and Macknight.

If we understand the promises of God rightly, with their due conditions and limitations, and in that sense wherein He intended them, when He made them, we need never doubt their performance. Though we deny Him, yet He abideth faithful, and will not, cannot deny Himself. We are fleeting and mutable, off and on, to-day not the same as we were yesterday, and to-morrow perhaps like neither of the former days: yet He continueth "the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever." Let us lean then upon His providence, and repose ourselves with assured confidence upon His promises: and contentment will follow. Upon this base the Apostle hath here founded contentment: "Be content with such things as ye have: for He hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." Bp. Sanderson.

7. Remember them which have the rule over you,] Pay a due respect to the memory, and follow the example, of such as have been your spiritual guides and governours. Pyle.

—— considering the end of their conversation:] With what constancy and perseverance they continued in the faith, and sealed it with their blood, in hopes of that crown of glory, which Christ hath promised to them that are faithful to the death. Dr. Whitby.

8. Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever.] And as theirs, so let your faith be steadfastly fixed on Jesus Christ your Saviour, who altereth not, but is, and was, and will be still the same for ever. Bp. Hall. This passage is most justly understood of the nature of Christ, especially as the phrase here used, "the same," is that by which the immutability of the Son is expressed, chap. i. 12, "But Thou art the same." According to this interpretation the verse connects with the preceding. Dr. Macknight.

The phrase was used to express all time, past, present, and to come; and is the same with "the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, which is, and which was, and which is to come," Rev. i. 8, and other places of Scripture. Leslie.

9. Be not carried about &c.] And, as Christ is one and the same, so is the truth of His doctrine; which ye ought therefore constantly to embrace: be not therefore carried away with diversity and newfangleness of doctrines, with vain and superstitious observations. Bp. Hall.

—— with grace; not with meats,] "With grace," that is, the sense of the Divine favour, and the grace brought to us by the Gospel; and "not with meats," eaten at the Jewish festivals, and their festivals. Dr. Whitby.

10. We have an altar, &c.] Under the law it was appointed, that they which served in the tabernacle should eat of those sacrifices, which were offered upon the altar; but now it is otherwise: we have a spiritual and living altar and sacrifice, even Christ Jesus Himself; of whom they cannot claim any right to partake, that are addicted to the ceremonies of the abrogated law. Bp. Hall.

That the altar here signifies the sacrifice offered upon the altar, is plain from this, that of this altar they were to eat. So they that eat of the Jewish sacrifices are said to be partakers of the altar; and then it must import the body of our Lord offered and broken on the cross; by partaking of the memorials of which body, we testify our communion with Christ and His church; see ver. 16, 17; and of this, saith the Apostle, they have not right to partake, who adhere still to the Mosaical oblations. Dr. Whitby.

The Apostle here exhorts the Christians to withdraw themselves from all communion with the Jews, and partaking of their sacrifices, see ver. 13; and to make oblation to God of their goods, ver. 16; and of their praise and thanksgiving in the celebration of the eucharist, the Christian sacrifice, ver. 15: at which time solemn thanksgivings, prayers, and intercessions have, from the beginning of the Gospel, been presented unto God; and a feast of charity made among Christians, as was amongst the Jews at their peace offerings. Bp. Fell.

11, 12. For the bodies of those beasts, &c.] For, as the flesh of those beasts, whose blood was offered up on the great day of expiation, was ordered to be wholly burnt without the camp, (whilst the tabernacle stood,) and afterwards without the gates of the city, and none but the priests or people permitted to eat it; so in like manner Christ our great sacrifice was for our redemption crucified without the gates of Jerusalem; and accordingly none can partake of the blessings of His sacrifice and religion, till they come entirely off from the Jewish ceremonies, and become true Christians. Pyle.

St. Paul is so exact in the parallel betwixt Christ and His types, that he gives this for the reason of that seeming small circumstance in the sufferings of Christ, which otherwise, I suppose, nobody had observed; and that was, that He "suffered without the gate" of the city. But the Apostle tells us, that this was ordered by Providence, on purpose that He might fulfil His type of the sin-offering, or expiatory sacrifice, whose body was to be "burnt without the camp." Leslie.

13. Let us go forth therefore unto him &c.] Let us therefore leave the Jewish camp; that is, the Jewish ceremonial religion, and entirely embrace His more excellent dispensation. Let us carry His cross, and after His example patiently suffer the reproaches and persecutions of our adversaries. Pyle.

17. Obey them that have the rule over you,] Your bishops and pastors. Dr. Whitby.

To prevent those differences and distinctions, which divide the hearts of men and break them into sects, the Apostle instructs the Hebrews to "obey them that have the rule over them," their lawful pastors and teachers, whom Christ hath appointed to keep them in the way of peace; and whose studies and labours must for your souls, as they that must give account, that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that is unprofitable for you.

Anno DOMINI 64.

18 Pray for us: for we trust we have a good conscience, in all things willing to live honestly.

19 But I beseech you the rather to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

20 Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting ‖ covenant,

‖ Or, testament.

21 Make you perfect in every good work to do his will, ‖ working in you that which is wellpleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

‖ Or, doing.

Anno DOMINI 64.

22 And I beseech you, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation: for I have written a letter unto you in few words.

23 Know ye that our brother Timothy is set at liberty; with whom, if he come shortly, I will see you.

24 Salute all them that have the rule over you, and all the saints. They of Italy salute you.

25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ Written to the Hebrews from Italy by Timothy.

---

qualify them to inform and direct the ignorant better than they can direct themselves. Jones of Nayland.

The persons, to whom obedience according to this apostolical precept is to be performed, are, generally speaking, all spiritual guides and governours of the church, those who "speak unto us the word of God," and who "watch for our souls," as they are described in the context; expressed here by a term very significant and proper, as fully implying the nature of their charge, the qualification of their persons, their rank and privileges in the church, together consequently with the grounds of obligation to the correspondent duties towards them. There are in holy Scripture divers names and phrases appropriate to them, each of them denoting some eminent part of their office, or some appurtenance thereto: but this term, of 'leaders,' 'guides,' or 'captains,' seemeth of all most comprehensive, so that unto it all the rest are well reducible. The persons intended are primarily the bishops, as the superiour and chief guides, each in his place according to order peaceably established; then secondarily the presbyters, (or priests,) in their station as guides inferiour, together with the deacons as their assistants: such the church always hath had; and such, by God's blessing, our church now hath, towards whom the duty of obedience is to be performed. Dr. Isaac Barrow.

——for that is unprofitable for you.] The word means exceedingly hurtful or dangerous, according to the sense of this and similar expressions in the best Greek and Roman writers. Compare Philem. ver. 11; Eph. v. 11. Parkhurst.

18. —for we trust] Notwithstanding our sufferings: or, "we trust," though represented by some of you as an apostate, and an enemy to the law. Bp. Fell.

20. —through the blood of the everlasting covenant,] Through His blood, whereby was ratified the Gospel covenant, which is to endure for everlasting. Dr. Wells.

21. —through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.] Here eternal glory is ascribed to Christ, as it is likewise 2 Pet. iii. 18; Rev. v. 12, 13. Dr. Macknight. Hence it follows, that Christ is to be owned as the true God: for this is the doxology ascribed in the New Testament to Him, of whom, and by whom, and to whom are all things, Rom. xi. 36; to God the Father, Gal. i. 5; to the Omnipotent God, Eph. iii. 20, 21; to Him who dwelleth in light inaccessible, 1 Tim. vi. 15, 16; to the God of all grace, 1 Pet. v. 10, 11; to the only wise God our Saviour, Jude ver. 25. Dr. Whitby.

22. —in few words.] That is, howsoever large in itself, yet very short in comparison of the weight and worth of the arguments, and that entire affection of mine from whence it hath proceeded. Bp. Hall.

23. —Timothy is set at liberty;] Who had been a prisoner, some think at Rome; others, in some part of Asia. Bp. Fell.

The following Chapters from the Epistle to the Hebrews are appointed for Proper Lessons, or as Epistles, on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. I. - ver. 1—12, - - - -	Christmas-day, - - - - - - - - -	Epistle.
—— IV. - - - - - - - - - - -	Easter Even, - - - - - - - - - -	Evening.
—— V. - ver. 1—11, - - - -	Sunday next before Easter, - - - -	Ditto.
—— IX. - — 11—15, - - - -	5th Sunday in Lent, - - - - - -	Epistle.
—— IX. - — 16—28, - - - -	Wednesday before Easter, - - - - -	Ditto.
—— X. - — 1—25, - - - -	Good Friday, - - - - - - - - -	Ditto.
—— XI. ver. 32 and XII. 1—7, - -	All Saints, - - - - - - - - - -	Morning.
	King Charles the Martyr, - - - - -	Evening.

OF THE

SEVEN CATHOLICK EPISTLES.

THE Epistle of St. James, the two Epistles of St. Peter, the three Epistles of St. John, and the Epistle of St. Jude, are called Catholick or General Epistles. They are mentioned by many ancient authors under that name; and they were probably so called, because most of them were written, not to particular persons, or to the churches of single cities or countries, as St. Paul's Epistles were, but to several churches, or to believers in general. Bp. Tomline.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE

OF

JAMES.

INTRODUCTION.

IN the catalogue of the Apostles given by the Evangelists we find two persons of the name of James, of whom one was son of Zebedee and brother of John, and the other was son of Alpheus or Cleophas, which are supposed to be the same name differently written, or different names for the same person. The latter James is in the Gospels called James the Less, Mark xv. 40; and the former is distinguished by the name of James the Great, though that appellation is not given him in Scripture. St. Paul mentions one of these two Apostles as "the Lord's brother," Gal. i. 19, that is, His near kinsman. And as there is no reason to think that the son of Zebedee was related to Christ, we conclude that he speaks of the son of Alpheus, who in other places of Scripture is said to be the brother of Christ, Matt. xiii. 55; Mark vi. 3. The degree of his relation to Christ seems to have been that of cousin-german, for St. John says, that Mary the wife of Cleophas was sister to Mary our Saviour's mother, John xix. 25: and St. Mark informs us, that the name of the mother of James the Less was Mary, Mark xv. 40.

James the Less was the author of this Epistle. We have no account of his call to the Apostleship, nor are any particulars recorded of him in the Gospels. In the Acts, and in St. Paul's Epistles, he is several times mentioned with great distinction; Acts xii. 17; xv. 13; xxi. 18; 1 Cor. xv. 7; Gal. i. 19; ii. 9, 12: but not in a manner to furnish us with many circumstances of his history. He seems to have been appointed by the other Apostles, probably soon after the martyrdom of St. Stephen, to reside at Jerusalem, and to superintend the affairs of the church there, while the rest of the Apostles travelled into other countries. His near relation to our Saviour was probably the cause of his being selected for this honourable station, the duties of which he discharged with such inflexible integrity and holy zeal, that he obtained the appellation of James the Just. By ancient writers he is called bishop of Jerusalem, and is considered as presiding in that character at the council held at Jerusalem, for the purpose of determining whether it was necessary that Gentile converts to the Gospel should be circumcised. Upon that occasion he was the last who delivered his sentiments; and he summed up the arguments, and proposed the substance of the decree, to which the whole assembly readily acceded. He was put to death in the year 62, in a tumult raised by the unbelieving Jews, when there was no Roman governour in Judea, Festus being dead, and his successor Albinus not yet arrived.

This Epistle is generally believed to have been written a short time before the death of St. James: and therefore we may place the date of it with great probability about the year 61.

The immediate design of the Epistle was to animate the Jewish Christians to support with fortitude and patience any sufferings to which they might be exposed, and to enforce the genuine doctrines and practice of the Gospel, in opposition to the errours and vices which then prevailed among them. The principal source of these errours and vices was a misinterpretation of St. Paul's doctrine of justification by faith without the works of the law; that is, as the Apostle meant it, without the observance of the rites and ceremonies of the Mosaick dispensation: but hence some had most unwarrantably inferred, that moral duties were not essential to salvation, and had therefore abandoned themselves to every species of licentiousness and profligacy. Bp. Tomline.

Many of the Jewish believers in Christ, to whom St. James wrote his Epistle, were not yet sufficiently apprized, how grievously the traditions of their elders had corrupted religion. For long received errours are seldom entirely cast off, till some time after the truths, which by evident consequence prove them to be errours, are embraced. These new converts therefore, being accustomed from their infancy to think very highly of that purity of faith and worship, which was their principal distinction from the heathen world, continued, even after they were Christians, to give it an undue preference to the weightiest duties of common life. Their opinion of ceremonial worship indeed the Gospel had probably lowered: but it must have increased their esteem of faith. And though it was easy to understand that no faith could be valuable, unless it brought forth the good fruit of universal obedience, yet wrong inclinations led many to mistake the matter; who accordingly, contenting themselves with a speculative belief and formal devotion, thought and spoke ill of those who either differed from them in religious tenets, or laid any great stress on moral practice. Now had the Apostles indulged imaginations and behaviour so agreeable to corrupt nature, undoubtedly they would have gained by it a much larger number of disciples. But "they had not so learned Christ." Each, as opportunity presented itself, diligently opposed this dreadful perversion of "the doctrine according to godliness;" but none with a warmer zeal than St. James; who, presiding over the Christians of Jerusalem, must have had the most experience of it. He therefore throughout this whole Epistle pleads earnestly for observing the moral duties, beneficence, and self-government; the latter to be exercised in our words as well as actions. Abp. Secker.

The Apostle begins by shewing the benefits of trials and afflictions, and by assuring the Jewish Christians that God would listen to their sincere prayers for assistance and support; he reminds them of their being the distinguished objects of Divine favour, and exhorts them to practical religion, chap. i.: he enforces a just and impartial regard for the poor, and an uniform obedience to all the commands of God, without any distinction or exception; and he shews the inefficacy of faith without works, that is, without a performance of the moral duties, chap. ii.: he inculcates the necessity of a strict government of the tongue, and cautions them against censoriousness, strife, malevolence, pride, indulgence of their sensual passions, and rash judgment, chap. iii, iv.: he denounces threats against those who make an improper use of riches; he intimates the approaching destruction of Jerusalem; and concludes with exhortations to patience, devotion, and a solicitous concern for the salvation of others, chap. v.

This Epistle is written with great perspicuity and energy; and it contains an excellent summary of those practical duties and moral virtues, which are required of Christians. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

CHAP. I.

1 We are to rejoice under the cross, 5 to ask patience of God, 13 and in our trials not to impute our weakness, or sins, unto him, 19 but rather to hearken to the word, to meditate in it, and to do thereafter. 26 Otherwise men may seem, but never be truly religious.

JAMES, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad, greeting. Anno DOMINI about 60.

2 My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations;

3 Knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience.

4 But let patience have her perfect work,

Chap. I. The Apostle here exhorts the believers to rejoice in afflictions, and to seek by prayer for that assistance which they stood in need of to support them. He comforts those Christians, who were persecuted or despised by the world, and he exhorts the rich to be humble. He censures those, who, yielding to persecution and other temptations, threw the fault on God, and maintained that He inclined men to sin: in opposition to whom the Apostle shews, that God being perfectly holy, can incline men to nothing but good. He condemns those who contented themselves with hearing the word of God, without observing its directions; and those proud teachers, who presumed on themselves, and spoke evil of others: he shews that the religion of such persons is vain, and teaches that true religion cannot subsist without the practice of works of charity, and abstinence from the vicious indulgences of the world. Ostervald.

Ver. 1. — to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad,] That this Epistle was written to the dispersed Jews in general, unbelievers as well as believers, seems evident from several passages, which can be applied to the unbelieving Jews only. However it was probably designed chiefly for the benefit and comfort of the believing Jews. Dr. Wells.

The Jews of the dispersion were more numerous than even the Jews in Judea; and St. James very properly inscribed his letter to the twelve tribes which were in the dispersion; seeing the twelve tribes really existed then, and do still exist, although not distinguished by separate habitations, as they were anciently in their own land. Dr. Macknight.

2. — into divers temptations;] 'Temptations,' saith Œcumenius, 'are of two kinds: 1st, such as lead to sin, which the lusts of the flesh and the love of riches produce in us, 1 Tim. vi. 9; against these our Lord instructs us to pray, that we enter not into them, and of these the Apostle begins to discourse, ver. 13: 2dly, such as are sent for the trial of our constancy and sincerity in the faith; and to our patience and perseverance under these is promised a great reward in heaven: and of these the Apostle speaks here and ver. 12.' See Luke xxii. 28; Heb. iv. 15. Dr. Whitby.

By "temptations" here, we are to understand the trials of affliction; and what kinds of affliction the Apostle had more especially in view, may be learnt from considering the condition of those times in which he wrote. The church of Christ was no sooner planted, but its interests were opposed both by Jews and Gentiles: they were jealous of its growing power, and used every method, whether of craft or force, to stop its progress. Hence the Apostles, and early propagators of our faith, were exercised with "cruel mockings and scourgings; yea, moreover with bonds and imprisonment;" and matters were carried so far, that there was no maintaining their religion, but with the hazard at least of life. These then are the "temptations" which our Apostle had principally in view. Abundant trials of men's constancy and sincerity: and such as, bearing so very hard on human nature, needed all the aids of religion, as well as of reason, to support men in enduring them. Yet our Apostle was so far from being discouraged by these difficult circumstances, that he even triumphed in the consideration, and exhorts Christians not merely to suffer, but to rejoice in their sufferings. "My brethren," saith he, "count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations." But what, may some say, are afflictions then real matters of choice? Is pain itself good? or can we really please and delight ourselves in those circumstances which nature itself abhors? This we dare by no means affirm; and common sense forbids it. But we must observe however, that things are sometimes chosen, not so much upon their own account, as for the reference they have to somewhat else. What is evil, whilst considered separately from all the consequences attending it, may be good when it is the means towards procuring some worthy end: and pain itself is what a wise man would readily choose, when it leads the way to a greater and more enduring pleasure. Bp. Conybeare.

4. But let patience have her perfect work,] Let not your patience shrink and fail, but let it hold firm and constant unto the end. Bp. Hall.

St. Paul, in his Epistle to the Hebrews, chap. xii. 5, 6, represents persecution or affliction for the cause of Christ under the no-

Anno DOMINI about 60. that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.

5 If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.

6 But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. Anno DOMINI about 60.

7 For let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double minded man is unstable in all his ways.

9 Let the brother of low degree ‖rejoice ‖ Or, glory. in that he is exalted:

---

tion of discipline. And here St. James treats it in much the same view. Considered thus, afflictions afford room and exercise for an admirable virtue: as they are the trials of our faith, so do they give occasions for our patience: they lead us on, however rugged the way may seem, to glory in the conclusion; and prepare us for those rewards, which will amply recompense the difficulties of obtaining them. This is eminently true, where men suffer affliction for the cause of Christ, and in support of His religion. But this is a circumstance, which does not so much affect us at the present time. The true Christian faith is established by the laws; and those powers are now engaged in its defence, which were once employed for its destruction. Yet still there is calamity enough in life, and room left for the exercise of patience. The evil of every day is sufficient; nor can we bear up against it but by fortitude and constancy. Our very joys are broken and interrupted, and our distresses are so frequent and sharp, that we scarce know how to support ourselves under them: and yet borne that must be, which cannot be avoided by us. The will of God must be submitted to by His creatures, both in the ordinary dispensations of providence, and in the more eminent exercise of its power. Patience then will come in as a necessary duty in common life. We need it almost every day on some occasion or other; and therefore should arm ourselves with such principles, as may enable us to go through with innocence. Bp. Conybeare.

—— that ye may be perfect and entire,] For where there is this perfect work of patience, there must be a strong faith as the foundation of it; a steady virtue or Christian fortitude, enabling us thus to sustain these fiery trials; an exact knowledge of our duty, to bear these afflictions with a meek and quiet spirit, with forgiveness of, love to, and prayer for, them that persecute us, which includes the height of charity, under the highest provocations; a great love to God, for whose sake we suffer, and a strong affection to His service; a greater fear of His displeasure, than of the wrath of man; an entire trust and dependence on Him, and a full resignation to His will and Providence, in which consists the life of godliness: an exact temperance as to the honours, pleasures, and temporal concernments of this life, which we lose by these our sufferings; and a true charity to our Christian brethren, for whose example and encouragement we do thus suffer. Now these are all the graces which the Apostle Peter doth require to make us fruitful and perfect Christians, 2 Pet. i. 5—8. Dr. Whitby.

5. If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God,] The wisdom, of which St. James here speaks, and which the sacred writers so often recommend, is religious wisdom, wisdom unto salvation; and the end which it pursues is peace of mind in this life, and eternal happiness in the next. To fear the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding: and whatsoever is not consistent with this, though the world may esteem it profound cunning and policy, yet is it neither wisdom nor understanding, but folly and madness in the sight of God, and in the style of the holy Scriptures. St. James addresses his Epistle to Christians, who were either then under persecution, or who saw it approaching. He bids them count it all joy, when they fall into these temptations or trials of their virtue, because their reward should be great, and an unfading crown of glory was reserved for them, if they suffered with patience and constancy for the sake of the Gospel: and then he adds, "If any of you lack wisdom;" that is, the wisdom which shall direct you to act prudently and piously under difficult circumstances, and which shall enable you to pass through such trials with resignation and resolution, "let him ask it of God." However, since the life of a good Christian is one continued warfare against the enemies to his eternal happiness; and since there are trials in every condition, prosperous and adverse; and since none can acquit himself as he ought under these trials, of what kind soever they be, who is not wise in the religious sense: the wisdom of resisting any one sort of temptation may very well be extended so as to mean pious wisdom in general, or a practical knowledge of our duty and true interest, by which we shall overcome every thing that opposes and endangers our salvation. Dr. Jortin.

6—8. But let him ask in faith, &c.] But these prayers must be offered up with a full persuasion of, and reliance upon, the Divine power and goodness, with a firm conviction of the fitness and lawfulness of the things he prays for, an entire submission to the heavenly providence, and a sincere purpose of adhering to the duties of his profession. For a man that is divided in his thoughts and religious principles, has really no solid principle at all, will stick close to no measures of duty and virtue; which will defeat all the success of his prayers. Pyle.

God requires of us a belief that we shall obtain our petitions, because He hath given us abundant reason to believe it. The light of nature discovers that He is good: the Gospel represents Him to us merciful beyond expression and imagination, and love itself. Most justly therefore may He require of us to believe, that He will at least fulfil His promises. Another reason why God requires such faith is, because upon a belief of His paternal care and kindness all religion is founded. If we suspect that He will not grant us the things necessary, we must doubt of His mercy, and goodness, and justice, and veracity: and if we doubt of these things, we shall disregard Him, it may be, and put Him far from our thoughts: at the most, we may fear Him; but can never love Him, and honour Him, and pay Him a willing and rational service. A high degree of enthusiasm, which is mere frenzy, and capable of imagining any absurdity to be true, may make a man think himself to be in the favour of God, whilst he daily and deliberately offends Him, and hope that he shall receive whatsoever he asks of Him, before he hath obtained remission of sins. But, such cases excepted, no wicked person can easily flatter himself that his requests shall be heard, whilst his life is unreformed, and he cannot pray to God with that faith which is here mentioned. God therefore, who would have us so to live that we may obtain future happiness, requires of us a confidence in Him, which must spring from an honest mind, and which no impenitent sinner can be well supposed to entertain. This observation takes off an objection which might be made to what the Apostle here says, and to other like places of Scripture: "Let a man ask of God, and it shall be given him." Let him ask. Is that enough? No, certainly it is not. He must use his own endeavours to acquire the desired object of his prayers. If he asks his daily bread, he must labour for it: if he asks forgiveness of sins, he must repent and amend. If he asks that he may not fall into temptation, he must keep himself as remote as he can from all inducements to sin. If he asks spiritual wisdom, he must take care to be acquainted with his duty, and then to practise suitably to his knowledge. All this is contained in these words, "Let him ask in faith," or is deducible from them by obvious consequence. He, who sincerely resolves and endeavours to serve God, may with just confidence beg support, and relief, and direction of Him, and believe that he shall obtain them: but he, who doth nothing on his part that he ought to do, can have no hopes that his prayers shall be successful. Dr. Jortin.

9. —— in that he is exalted:] To be rich in faith, and an heir of the kingdom of God, chap. ii. 5; Luke vi. 20. Dr. Whitby. The sense is clearly this: Let not the man that is poor among you Christians, and contemptible in the world, be cast down or de-

Anno DOMINI about 60.

10 But the rich, in that he is made low: because as the flower of the grass he shall pass away.

11 For the sun is no sooner risen with a burning heat, but it withereth the grass, and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the fashion of it perisheth: so also shall the rich man fade away in his ways.

12 Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

13 Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with ‖ evil, neither tempteth he any man:

‖ Or, evils.

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed.

15 Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death.

---

jected at his poverty, but rather let him rejoice, considering the sublime and happy estate to which by Christianity he is exalted: and let him therein glory. His advancement is, that he is a Christian: for by this one name an immense dignity is signified; namely, that he is a son of God, and a co-heir with Christ in the heavenly kingdom. Bp. Bull.

10. But the rich, in that he is made low:] Let the Christian consider, that the things which he loseth for the sake of Christ are only things of a fading nature; whereas he secures by his perseverance an everlasting treasure in the heavens; and then he may rejoice in his humiliation. Dr. Whitby.

11. — so also shall the rich man fade away in his ways.] The grandeur of his state shall vanish by the common vicissitudes of life, or by diseases and death seizing him in the midst of his glory. The Apostle's argument is, that the rich, who lose their possessions for righteousness' sake, lose things comparatively of small value, and which according to the course of nature they must soon part with, though they do not suffer persecution. Dr. Macknight.

13. Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God:] The Apostle here speaks of the first sort of temptation, mentioned in the note on ver. 2. Dr. Whitby. It is to be observed here, that God is not the author of sin, nor does He tempt any man to the commission of it: if He did, our evil actions could not be properly sins, nor justly punishable by God; for no man can be justly punishable for that which he cannot help, and no man can help that which he is compelled to; and it is very unreasonable to suppose, that the same person should both tempt and punish. To tempt unto sin is contrary to the holiness of God; and after that, to chastise for complying with the temptation, is contrary to the justice of God: God therefore is not the author of the sins of men. Burkitt.

Certainly no man can take harm, but from himself. "Let no man then, when he is tempted," and yieldeth, "say he is tempted of God: for God tempteth no man," saith St. James: that is, doth not so much as endeavour to do it. Nay, I may add farther, Let no man, when he is tempted, say he is tempted of Satan. That is, let him not think to excuse himself by that: for even Satan tempteth no man in that sense and with effect. Though he endeavour it all he can, yet it cannot take effect, unless we will. St. James therefore concludes positively, that every man's temptation, if it take effect, is merely from his own lust. It is then our own act and deed, if we are Satan's vassals: disclaim it we cannot; and whatsoever misery or mischief ensueth thereupon, we ought not to impute to any other than ourselves alone. Bp. Sanderson.

—— for God cannot be tempted with evil, &c.] That is, He cannot be drawn to any thing that is evil Himself, and therefore it cannot be imagined that He should have any inclination or design to seduce others. Burkitt. God having nothing either to hope or fear, no evil beings, whether man or angel, can entice or seduce Him. Farther, His infinitely perfect nature admitting no evil thought or inclination, He is absolutely incapable of being tempted. Dr. Macknight.

14. But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust,] He that imagines himself to be safe, never is so; but they, who keep in their minds a sense of their danger, and pray for, and trust in, help from God, will always be able to avoid or go through it. Temptation hath no power, the great tempter himself hath no power, but that of using persuasion. Forced we cannot be, so long as we are true to ourselves. Our own consent must be our own giving: and without it the rest is nothing. For then only in effect, St. James tells us, "is every man tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust and enticed." That we are liable to sin, therefore, ought to be no discouragement, and can be no justification to us: for by the assistance of Heaven, though not else, we may escape it if we will: and that assistance is expressly promised to our endeavours and our prayers. "Resist the devil, and he will flee from you: draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you, chap. iv. 7, 8." Abp. Secker.

Immoral actions are never extenuated or excused in Scripture upon account of the violence of the temptation from whence they proceed. So far from it, that even indulging the passion is imputed as sin, though the immoral wicked action does not ensue. "He that hateth his brother," says an Apostle, "is a murderer:" and "he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her," says our blessed Saviour, "hath already committed adultery with her in his heart." If the case be so, if hatred has in it the guilt of murder, and lust has the guilt of adultery; how shall murder be excused because it proceeds from violent hatred, or adultery, because it proceeds from violent lust? St. James has plainly condemned the profaneness of justifying our iniquities by accusing our constitutions, and consequently by accusing Him who made us. "Let no man say, &c." see ver. 13—15. All sin is here described to be the effect of violent and inordinate lust and passion: but this is so far from being considered as an excuse for sin, that it immediately follows, that sin so produced "bringeth forth death." The Scripture has recorded to us the immoral actions of many persons: but is there any instance where such immoralities are pitied or excused, because of the lust and passions from whence they proceeded? Nay, however apt men are to make such excuses for themselves, they are not apt to make them for others. When you read that Ahab slew Naboth, are you apt to say, Poor man, how could he help it, for he longed extremely for his vineyard? When you read that David slew Uriah and corrupted his wife, do you excuse his iniquity, because his passion was strong? If you do, it is more than he did for himself: for, when he came to himself, he cried, "I have sinned against the Lord:" which one sorrowful confession of his iniquity was worth a thousand of the excuses which men usually make in like cases. In Luke xii. 47, 48, our Saviour puts the case of those, who have received much, and of those, who have received less: of those who received least He says, "They shall be beaten," for doing things "worthy of stripes:" by which it appears, that all who have sense to distinguish between good and evil are subject to judgment; and no hope is given them of being saved by the strength of their passion, when they act against the light of their reason. Bp. Sherlock.

15. — sin, when it is finished,] When by repetition and indulgence it comes to some perfection. Dr. Hammond. The word signifies, 'being brought to maturity.' It is here elegantly applied to sin after it is brought forth, to denote its arriving at such a state of maturity, as in its turn to become a parent and produce death. Dr. Macknight.

By "lust" in this passage the Apostle means the inward pravity and corruption of our hearts; by "sin" the actual enormities of our life and conversation. The first conception whereof he ascribes to "lust," to our base and corrupt hearts: here they are con-

Anno DOMINI about 60.

16 Do not err, my beloved brethren.
17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.
18 Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures.
19 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath:
20 For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.
21 Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls.
22 But be ye doers of the word, and ceived, and from hence they are brought forth into act, as our Saviour also sheweth, Matt. xv. 19. So that the heart is the root, from whence all actual impieties spring, the fountain from whence they flow. All the sins, that we are or can be guilty of, take their first rise from the disorder and impurity of our affections, from whence they proceed to corrupt our fancy and imagination, until at length they break forth into actual rebellion against God. For, as the Apostle argues, "From whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members?" chap. iv. 1. The same may be said of all other actual sins whatsoever. Whence comes all the pride, the cozenage, the oppression, the extortion, the blaspheming of God's name, the profaning of His sabbaths, the neglecting of His publick ordinances: whence come these and all other sins, but from our lusts, from the viciousness and corruption of our hearts and natures? The fountain is polluted, and therefore it is no wonder that the streams are so. Our hearts are not right with God, and that is the reason that our actions are contrary to Him. Neither is it possible for us ever to reform our lives, until our hearts be first reformed. Here all our sins begin, and therefore our reformation must begin here too, or else it can never be carried on to any purpose. Hence we may see the indispensable necessity of observing the wise man's counsel in "keeping the heart with all diligence," Prov. iv. 23, because otherwise all manner of evils issue from it into our lives and conversations. Bp. Beveridge.

16. Do not err, my beloved brethren.] Do not therefore so grossly impose upon yourselves, as to ascribe your wilful failings to Him, to whom we owe all that is or can be good in us. Pyle.

17. Every good gift &c.] So far is God from being the author of sin to us, that every thing which tends to make us good, or is itself so, every spiritual perfection, comes to us from heaven. All endowments of nature and grace are given by Him, who created all the luminous bodies, and in this excels them all, even the sun itself, that He does not vary, nor remove at a distance from us, (like that in its daily or its yearly apparent motions,) but is always the same, and always at hand. Dean Stanhope.

—— no variableness, neither shadow of turning.] The Father of lights is not like the sun, the fountain of corporeal light. He neither rises nor sets, doth not approach nearer to and recede farther from us, but is unchangeable both in His kind intentions and actions, as well as in His nature. Will he then give us holy desires at one time and evil inclinations at another? No. He always gives what is good and nothing but good. It is blasphemous therefore, as well as absurd, to suppose that God either tempts or constrains men to sin, on purpose that He may have a pretence for making them miserable. Dr. Macknight.

The unchangeable nature of God suggests very powerful dissuasions from vice. The Scripture contains no decrees concerning the reprobation and salvation of particular persons, without regard to their moral qualifications. But there is a law which declares that obstinate and impenitent vice shall end in destruction. This law is as eternal and unchangeable, as the nature of good and evil, as the nature and perfections of God. Heaven and earth shall pass away, but this decree shall not pass away: and therefore a fearful thing it is to fall into the hands of the everliving and immutable God. Yet this unchangeable nature of our Creator, considered in another view, affords no less comfort and peace to the greatest offenders, if they will repent and turn to Him. Their offences cannot be greater than His mercy and goodness, which endures to all eternity, ready to receive those who by an effectual repentance and reformation, through the satisfaction of Christ, make themselves proper objects of His mercy. Dr. Jortin.

18. Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth,] The Apostle here gives the most valuable proof of any that could possibly be imagined, of the goodness of God; namely, the revelation of His truth in the Gospel of our blessed Saviour, which is here meant by "the word." Dean Stanhope. The change, which God produces in men's dispositions and actions, by the truths of the Gospel impressed on their minds, is so great, that it may be called a begetting or creating them anew: we have the same sentiment, 1 Pet. i. 3. Dr. Macknight.

—— that we should be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures.] That is, should have the favour of being first called to the Christian faith, before the Gentiles. And this consideration is an undeniable argument, that God will not do any thing to destroy that spiritual life, to which He has so freely begotten us; and consequently does by no means tempt us to sin, this being the only way whereby the spiritual life can be destroyed. Dr. Wells.

19. Wherefore, — let every man be swift to hear, &c.] Let this then induce us, to be forward in learning that word, modest in attempting to teach, of a meek and docile temper. These cautions were probably directed against the Jewish zealots of that age, who were remarkable for dictating imperiously to other men, and for their fierceness in disputing for their own opinions. But they are applicable to men of every age, and teach us that it is the nature of Christianity, and the duty of Christians, to be mild and gentle, peaceable and beneficent. Dean Stanhope, Pyle.

20. For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.] For it is not at all agreeable to the Christian temper, required Matt. v. to be hasty and impatient; and he that is such will never be able to do what is prescribed by God and acceptable to Him under the Gospel. Dr. Hammond.

21. — all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness,] All evil lustings, ver. 14; and all the distempers of your tongue and of your angry passions, ver. 19. Dr. Whitby.

—— and receive with meekness the engrafted word,] That is, the word planted and sown in the heart by the hands of Christ's ministers. The word must be received with all meekness of spirit, as opposed to fierceness, stubbornness, and contentiousness, if we would hear it with profit and advantage. And it must be planted and engrafted in us; it must be thoroughly joined to us, and made of a piece with us; it must penetrate, and mingle with, and influence every faculty of our minds; or it will never be able to save our souls. Burkitt, Dean Stanhope.

22. But be ye doers of the word, &c.] By being "doers of the word" we are to understand the framing both of our minds and of our manners, according as the word directs: as we must do what the word bids, and leave undone what it forbids us to do, so we must fear the threatenings it denounceth, trust in the promises it makes, and believe in the truths it reveals to us; and all for the word's sake, because we have the authority of God for them. So that we must order our very thoughts and affections, as well as our speech and outward actions, according to the rule which the word sets us, otherwise we cannot be properly said to be "doers of the word." Bp. Beveridge.

The Apostle here teaches us, that to receive the word merely in the very best manner is not sufficient, unless it lead to practical consequences: a truth so plain, that one would think no arguments could be wanted to prove it. For what is this "word" but a system of laws, which God under the Gospel dispensation hath given men to direct and govern their actions? And what is not hearers only, deceiving your own selves.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

23 For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass:

24 For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.

25 But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his ‖ deed.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

‖ Or, doing.

26 If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain.

27 Pure religion and undefiled before the end and intent of any law, but practice and obedience? Well therefore might the Apostle here declare, that those who are hearers only, and not doers of the word, are deceivers of their own selves. It were well, if the too general behaviour of Christians did not render it but too necessary, for the Apostles at that time, and for the ministers of this word at all times, to warn their hearers against such self-deceit. Dean Stanhope.

---

23, 24. For if any be a hearer of the word, &c.] For the Gospel doctrine is of the same use to the mind and conduct of men, as a glass is to the face; and as the glass is of no benefit to one that sees the spots of his face in it, but takes no care to wipe them off; so the Gospel precepts can be of no manner of advantage to a Christian, that only externally professes and hears them, but neglects to reform his practice, and lead his life agreeably to them. Pyle.

St. James's comparison here is perfectly just. This too plainly appears to be the common method. A great part even of those, who come to hear from a principle of conscience, such as it is, mind exceedingly little at the time, reflect less afterwards, and continue just the same men they were before. They wonder indeed, that their neighbours take no more notice of what is said; and can even wrest passages in sermons to meanings, which they were never intended to have, and are scarce, if at all, capable of, in order to point them against the faults of others; while they think not in the least of correcting their own, be they ever so plainly described: as if religion were made for every one else to practise but themselves. It would really seem quite impossible, if daily experience did not shew it, that men could be told so plainly, and warned so frequently, of transgressions and follies, which they cannot deny to be such, by which often they not only do great harm, but suffer great uneasiness, in this world, and which they are sensible must bring on them, if not forsaken, the heaviest vengeance of God in the next; yet sit all the while as unconcerned, as if the discourse were about some perfectly indifferent matter; and go away at last without so much as a single thought of ever changing their conduct. Abp. Secker.

25. But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, &c.] The man who is indeed the better for his hearing is he who considers and practises continually the moral precepts of the Gospel, which is called a law of liberty, because it frees us from the bondage of the Mosaick institution, from the guilt and punishment, and from the dominion of sin; and treats us as freemen and sons, rather than servants. Dean Stanhope.

26. — and bridleth not his tongue,] From bitter zeal, contentions, and imprecations, chap. iii. 10, 14. Dr. Whitby. Certainly the most specious and loud pretences of external religion are but vain and insignificant things, while a man gives himself up to uncharitable slanders, revilings, and reproaches against his brethren. Pyle.

The translation of this text would have been more determinate, by being more literal, thus: 'If any man among you seemeth to be religious, not bridling his tongue, but deceiving his own heart, this man's religion is vain.' This determines that the words, "but deceiveth his own heart," are not put in opposition to "seemeth to be religious," but to "bridleth not his tongue." The certain determinate meaning of the passage then being, that he who seemeth to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but in that particular deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain; we may observe somewhat very forcible and expressive in these words of St. James. As if the Apostle had said, No man surely can make any pretences to religion, who does not at least believe that he bridleth his tongue. If he puts on any appearance or face of religion, and yet does not govern his tongue, he must surely deceive himself in that particular, and think he does: and whoever is so unhappy as to deceive himself in this, to imagine he keeps that unruly faculty in due subjection, when indeed he does not, whatever the other part of his life may be, his religion is vain; the government of the tongue being a most material restraint which virtue lays us under: without it no man can be truly religious. Bp. Butler.

27. Pure religion and undefiled &c.] That religion, which shall pass for pure and undefiled in the account and censure of God our heavenly Father, is not that, which consists in good words, and glorious shews and holy professions; but that which approves itself in actions; in visiting the fatherless and widows in their affliction, in relieving the distressed, and in keeping ourselves free from the defilements of the world, from the lusts of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life. Bp. Hall.

The original word, here rendered "religion," strictly signifies divine worship, and intimates here, that no kind of religious services paid to the Deity can be of any avail, if we neglect the royal law of charity. Dr. Doddridge.

It should be here observed, that the Apostle does not set down the whole of religion, but an eminent part and instance of it, as that without which all religion is vain: that acts of charity, when they flow from a religious principle, are as acceptable to God as acts of worship: and that charity and purity, the relieving of the afflicted and a life unspotted, must go together, or God accepts of neither. Burkitt.

St. James is here describing religion, not in its principle, but in its effects: and those effects are truly, and justly, and fully displayed. They are by the Apostle made to consist in two large articles: in succouring the distress of others, and maintaining our own innocency. And these two articles do comprehend the whole of the effects of true religion; which were exactly what the Apostle meant to describe. Had St. James intended to set forth the motives and principles of religion, as they ought to subsist in the heart of a Christian, he would doubtless have mentioned love to God, and faith in Jesus Christ; for from these must spring every thing good and acceptable in our actions. But it is one thing to set before us the principle of religion, and another the effects of it. These are not to be confounded. And if we apply a description to one, which was intended for the other, we deal unfairly by the writer of the description, and erroneously by ourselves. Therefore let no one suppose the love of God, the thinking of Him, the being grateful to Him, the fearing to disobey Him, not to be necessary parts of true religion, because they are not mentioned in St. James's account of true religion. The answer is, that these compose the principles of true religion: St. James's account relates only to the effects. Archdeacon Paley.

The two comprehensive duties of benevolence and self-government, here described, are principal parts of "pure and undefiled religion:" indeed without them there can be nothing, that deserves the name. Religion is not a system of speculative opinions, nor a ritual of forms and ceremonies; but it consists in that love to God, as a Being perfectly holy in Himself, and good to us, and that dutifulness to Him, as the Author and Ruler of the universe, which engage men to seek His favour by imitating His nature and obeying His laws. If then we neither become such as He is, nor do such things as He commands, what pretence have we to call ourselves pious persons? We believe in Him: and Anno DOMINI about 60. God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

CHAP. II.

1 It is not agreeable to Christian profession to regard the rich, and to despise the poor brethren: 13 rather we are to be loving, and merciful: 14 and not to boast of faith where no deeds are, 17 which is but a dead faith, 19 the faith of devils, 21 not of Abraham, 25 and Rahab.

MY brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, with respect of persons.

† Gr. synagogue. 2 For if there come unto your † assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment;

3 And ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here ‖ in a good place; and say to the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool: Anno DOMINI about 60. ‖ Or, well, or, seemly.

4 Are ye not then partial in yourselves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?

5 Hearken, my beloved brethren, Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of ‖ the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him? ‖ Or, that.

6 But ye have despised the poor. Do not rich men oppress you, and draw you before the judgment seats?

7 Do not they blaspheme that worthy name by the which ye are called?

8 If ye fulfil the royal law according to so do the devils, chap. ii. 19. We worship Him: but utterly in vain, Matt. xv. 9, whilst we continue to be, what He must for ever continue to hate; unkind to our fellow creatures, or immoral in the conduct of ourselves. Indeed what desire can we have of the reward which He promises, heavenly happiness, when the temper, necessary to qualify us for enjoying it, is directly contrary to that which we indulge? But a person, humane in his heart, and careful in the government of his appetites and passions, cannot, ordinarily speaking, be "far from the kingdom of God," Mark xii. 34. He hath no worldly motive to prejudice him against religion: but all imaginable reasons to hope and believe it is true. His knowledge of what is right and fit will help to give him just conceptions of God: his esteem for it will teach him to honour God: and the sense which he must have of his many failures in it will powerfully tend to make him humble and penitent; solicitous for pardon and assistance, in what manner soever bestowed; and ambitious of that blessed state, where he shall sin no more, but his weak habits of goodness will attain their maturity, and bring forth their fruit in perfection. Abp. Secker.

---

Vain therefore is the religion of those persons, who reduce Christianity to a mere science, and place all perfection in reading and hearing and knowing the precepts of it: who measure their proficiency by the number of sermons they run about to attend, or the good books they are eager to peruse, or by the niceness of the points they are able to argue upon: as if the word had done its business by filling the head, though it never influence the heart at all. A sort of understanding this, to which even ignorance itself, when honest and unaffected, is infinitely preferable. For so our Lord Himself pronounced, (Luke xii. 47, 48,) that "the servant which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes; but he that knew not," (that is, was not in a capacity to know,) "and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes." Alas, it is action only that crowns all our studies. The word is of equal service and necessity for quickening and exciting us to what we already do understand, as instructing us in what we do not yet understand. It is not said, Happy are ye if ye know these things: but, "happy are ye if ye do them." In short, to be wise in spiritual matters is no farther an advantage, than as it disposes us to be good; for that alone is being wise unto salvation: and he in the Christian sense knows most, who leads his life best. Dean Stanhope.

Chap. II. The argument of the latter part of the foregoing chapter is continued; namely, that the external profession of religion is wholly fruitless, where men live in the breach of its moral and substantial duties. This is shewn in the instance of partiality and respect of persons, especially in publick and judicial causes. The Jewish Christians are taxed with this vice, so common among the Jews. The evil and dangerous consequence of any one such known and wilful sin is asserted: and it is proved from the examples of Abraham and Rahab, that moral practices are the best and only evidence of good principles; and that without them every thing else is of no value. Pyle.

Ver. 2. — unto your assembly] Literally, 'your synagogue.' It seems to be used in this one passage for a place of Christian worship. But this use of the noun was afterwards discontinued, the more effectually, it should seem, to discriminate the Christian from the Jewish places of worship. Dr. Macknight observes, that as the Jews held courts of judicature in their synagogues, Luke xxi. 12; and there also punished offenders by scourging, Matt. x. 17; Acts xxii. 19; xxvi. 11; it is probable that the first Christians, after their example, held courts for determining civil causes in the places where they assembled for publick worship, called here 'your synagogues.' For that the Apostle speaks, not of their assembly, but of the place where their assembly was held, is evident from his mentioning the litigants sitting in a more or less honourable place of the synagogue. And it is plain from ver. 4, that judges and judicial causes were here the subjects of the Apostle's thoughts. Parkhurst.

—— a man with a gold ring,] Perhaps the compound word might have been better rendered, 'having his fingers adorned with gold rings.' Those who valued themselves upon the richness and luxury of their dress were accustomed to deck their fingers with a considerable number of costly and valuable rings, frequently wearing several upon one finger. Dr. Doddridge.

3. — Sit thou here in a good place;] That is, a more honourable place than the other. It was provided by a canon of the Jews, that when a rich and a poor man have a suit together before their consistories, either both must sit or both stand in the same rank, to avoid all marks of partiality. Dr. Hammond.

—— sit here under my footstool:] Which belonged to the tribunals or judgment-seats. Dr. Wells.

4. — judges of evil thoughts?] The version here is literal, but at the same time obscure and ambiguous. Beza observes justly, that the phrase in the original is an Hebraism, and it is accordingly rendered by him, 'judges who reason ill.' Dr. Doddridge.

5. — Hath not God chosen the poor of this world &c.] These words afford a strong consolation to those who are beset with straits and hardships in this life, that, on however bad a footing any may be in their temporal concerns, we are all on a level, as to our eternal interests: or, if there be any difference, it is in favour of the suffering part of mankind. "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted," Matt. v. 4. Abp. Secker.

6. — Do not rich men oppress you, &c.] How forgetful you are, that the rich men, to whose rank and quality you are so partial, are the persons most apt to oppose your holy religion! who are they but the richer sort, of both Jews and Gentiles, that most commonly blaspheme the name of Christ, and His religion? Pyle.

8. — the royal law] The law of Christ our King. Dr. Hammond. Or, that which of all laws that concern our neighbour is

Anno DOMINI about 60. the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well:

9 But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors.

10 For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all.

‖ Or, that law which said. 11 For ‖ he that said, Do not commit adultery, said also, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a transgressor of the law.

12 So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty.

13 For he shall have judgment without mercy, that hath shewed no mercy; and mercy ‖ rejoiceth against judgment. Anno DOMINI about 60. ‖ Or, glorieth.

14 What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? can faith save him?

15 If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food,

16 And one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?

17 Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being † alone. † Gr. by itself.

---

most excellent, and governs and moderates all others. Dr. Whitby.

9. — and are convinced of the law as transgressors.] 'Are convicted by the law.' Parkhurst. Namely, by God's law in the general; this law comprehending all the duties of the second table, Rom. xiii. 9; Matt. xxii. 39. Dr. Whitby.

10. — he is guilty of all.] For the obedience to God's will is required universally to all that He commands; and he that offends in one, though he keep all the rest, is guilty of the breach of that obedience, and punishable as well as if he had broken all. Dr. Hammond.

The chief things to be remembered concerning this passage are these. The Apostle does not mean, that committing one sin makes our condition just as bad as committing ever so many. But he may reasonably mean, that being vicious in any respect weakens and endangers our virtue in every respect; that deliberately breaking God's law, but in one case, implies in it a denial of His authority in all cases; and not only in just consequence may, but daily in fact doth, produce an universal disregard to Him, both in ourselves, and others: nay, supposing the mischief to stop far short of this, yet that a failure in any single condition of the Gospel covenant precludes us from all the rewards, and in a degree proportioned to the greatness of the failure will bring upon us all the threatenings of it. Abp. Secker.

The Jewish doctors affirmed, that by observing any one precept of the law with care, men secured to themselves the favour of God, notwithstanding they neglected all the rest. Wherefore, they recommended it to their disciples, to make choice of a particular precept, in the keeping of which they were to exercise themselves. Dr. Whitby says, they commonly chose either the law of the sabbath, or the law of sacrifice, or the law of tithes, because they esteemed these the great commandments of the law. This corrupt Jewish doctrine St. James expressly condemned by declaring, that although a man were to keep the law in all other points, yet if he habitually breaks one precept, he is really guilty of the whole. Dr. Macknight.

Let it not be supposed, that God will accept a part of what we owe Him, when paid with design to defraud Him of the rest. His nature, His word, plainly tell us the contrary. He is holy, and requires universal holiness. He hath warned us, that "no man can serve two masters," Matt. vi. 24; and that "whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." Such therefore only, as are careful to do every thing which they ought, and are sensible, that when they have done all, they are "unprofitable servants," entitled to acceptance only for the sake of a gracious Redeemer's merits, have cause to hope well. Abp. Secker.

11. — said also, Do not kill.] This being the reason of the Apostle's affirmation in the preceding verse, his meaning is, that all the commandments being equally enjoined by God, the man who despises the authority of God, so far as to break any one of them habitually, would in the like circumstances of temptation and opportunity certainly break any other of them; consequently in the eye of God he is guilty of breaking the whole law: that is, he hath no real principle of virtue. The corrupt Jewish doctrine, mentioned in the note on the preceding verse, and which is condemned in this passage by the Apostle James, it is to be feared many who profess the Gospel still entertain. Dr. Macknight.

The principal inference to be drawn from St. James's doctrine here is, that no one sin whatever can be wilfully indulged, without forfeiting our salvation. Indeed if it could, if our obedience may safely fail just where alone it is, properly speaking, tried; that is, where we find ourselves peculiarly tempted to disobey; what proof do we give of any regard to virtue, or what must become of the interests of it in the world? Few people have above one or two faults, to which they are much addicted: so that allowing them these is allowing them all, and giving them leave to be as wicked as they want to be. Or, supposing they had several bad inclinations, yet, if one of them is to be forgiven because it is a favourite, why not the rest, if they can make the same plea? And farther, if your faults are to be overlooked in the day of judgment, why not the different faults of every one else? One person is prone to intemperance, another to lewdness, a third to falshood and dishonesty, a fourth to malice and revenge. If inclination, and constitution, and what we are pleased to call nature, is to be a warrant for any of these, why not for all? But you will plead it perhaps only for small sins. And so one is indulged first, because it is but a little one: then another, because it is not much bigger: and where shall we stop, or in what will this end? Every one's sin is small in his own opinion, and none is so in reality. For, be it in what instance it will, disobeying our Maker, violating our consciences, and breaking through the sacred bonds of truth and duty, can never be deemed a slight matter, nor will it hereafter be found so. Abp. Secker.

12. — as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty.] As they who look on the Gospel, not to be designed to give men liberty to live less virtuously, or to free them from being judged hereafter by their words and actions; but as they who know the Gospel to be indeed an happy means of liberty from the yoke of the Mosaical rites, and the power of sin and death; but at the same time a law, whereby we are to govern our words and actions, and whereby we are to be judged at the last day. Dr. Wells.

13. — and mercy rejoiceth against] Or, 'triumpheth over judgment:' that is, it enables the merciful man to rejoice, as being free from the judgment of condemnation of that God, who "to the merciful will shew Himself merciful," Ps. xviii. 25. Dr. Whitby.

14. What doth it profit, my brethren, &c.] And it is not for a Christian to say, that his faith shall render such works unnecessary; for indeed without such works his faith will nothing profit him, and it is ridiculous to think it will. Dr. Hammond. The Apostle here proceeds to shew the vanity of a fruitless faith; that such a faith, as is not the parent and principle of obedience, and productive of good works, is altogether ineffectual and unprofitable. Burkitt.

—— can faith save him?] Such a pretended and verbal faith. Bp. Hall. Such a naked and fruitless faith. Dr. Whitby.

17. Even so faith, &c.] As that is a vain and idle charity,

Anno DOMINI about 60.

18 Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: shew me thy faith ‖without thy works, and I will shew thee my faith by my works.

‖ Some copies read, by thy works.

19 Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well: the devils also believe, and tremble.

20 But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?

21 Was not Abraham our father justified by works, when he had offered Isaac his son upon the altar?

‖ Or, Thou seest.

22 ‖Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect?

Anno DOMINI about 60.

23 And the scripture was fulfilled which saith, [a] Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness: and he was called the Friend of God.

[a] Gen. 15. 6. Rom. 4. 3. Gal. 3. 6.

24 Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only.

25 Likewise also was not Rahab the harlot justified by works, when she had received the messengers, and had sent them out another way?

26 For as the body without the ‖spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also.

‖ Or, breath.

---

which bids a man be warm and filled, yet gives him nothing to feed or warm him with; so is that a vain and dead faith, which, professing an adherence to God, yet is severed from all good works, and is void of charity. Bp. Hall.

18. Yea, a man may say,] To such a person who contends for the efficacy of faith alone. Drs. Whitby and Wells. And any man who looks on this uncharitable believer, will be able to reprove him thus: Talk as much of thy faith as thou wilt, no man will believe thee; thy works must be superadded to the confession of thy faith, to approve the sincerity of it. Dr. Hammond.

—— without thy works,] Which thou never canst do, faith being an internal act of the mind, and not to be discovered, but by its effects: "and I will shew thee my faith by my works," as the cause is demonstrated by its effect. Drs. Whitby and Wells.

19. Thou believest that there is one God; &c.] One act of thy faith is, the believing one true God, and this is most absolutely necessary for thee: but if thy life be not answerable to this part of thy faith, and that evidenced by piety and charity, thou art then to remember that the believing there is one God, is such a good quality as is common to thee and the devils also; and if it have no more joined to it, will bestead thee no more than them. Dr. Hammond.

20. — that faith without works is dead?] And so unable to justify and save thee. Dr. Whitby. Unprofitable to salvation. Dr. Wells. As if he had said, 'Tis a mere vanity to suppose, that faith without Christian obedience can be effectual to justification, and you may discern it by the following example. Dr. Hammond.

21. Was not Abraham our father justified by works, &c.] Abraham was the father of the faithful, the great example of faith and justification; but it was not upon his bare belief of God's promise that he was justified, but upon that high act of obedience to God, in being ready to offer up his only son, in whom the promises were made to him. Dr. Hammond.

"When he had offered," literally 'had lifted up Isaac his son upon the altar.' But because by lifting him up and laying him on the altar, Abraham shewed that he was fully determined to slay him, God considered that action, and spake of it, as a real offering of Isaac. Dr. Macknight. See Gen. xxii. 10, and the note there.

22. Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, &c.] And so you see his obedience to God's commands, as well as belief of His promises, concurred to render him capable of the continuance of God's favour and approbation. And through the performance of that ready obedience it was, that his faith came to attain the end designed it. Dr. Hammond.

"Wrought with his works," wrought together with them, co-operated with them. Dr. Wells, Parkhurst.

23. And the scripture was fulfilled &c.] And by this trial of his obedience it was, that Abraham was most eminently said to be approved by God, 1 Macc. ii. 52, and looked on as a friend by Him, Gen. xxii. 15, &c.; and in which that place of Scripture, before delivered, Gen. xv. 6, concerning God's imputing his faith for righteousness, was most eminently completed. Dr. Hammond.

24. Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, &c.] Ye see then, how that this passage of Scripture, cited by St. Paul as a proof of Abraham's being justified by faith, is by no means to be so understood as if he were justified by his faith only, but by his works as well as his faith. And hence we may infer in general, that "by works a man is justified, and not by faith only." Dr. Wells. As if the Apostle had said, And so this is one great testimony, that, to a man's approbation with God, obedience is required; and that faith, which hath not obedience joined with it, is not sufficient. Dr. Hammond.

When St. Paul says, that men are "justified by faith, without the deeds of the law," Rom. iii. 28; and St. James, that "by works a man is justified, and not by faith only;" the former means, that believers in Christ will be saved, without the observance of the Mosaick law, or the perfect observance of the natural law, to which our sinful natures cannot attain; and the latter means, that believers in Christ will not be saved by their faith singly, without a sincere though imperfect observance of the precepts of the Gospel. For it seems, there were some of wrong minds, who fell into an errour, which indeed none of right dispositions could; and hearing the Apostles say, that men were "not under the law, but under grace," Rom. vi. 14, and that "Christ hath made us free" from what the Jews were bound to, Gal. v. 1; either imagined or pretended, that their Christian liberty exempted them from all law, and even from that of the civil magistrate. This was a most pernicious opinion. And not only St. James here declared against it, and St. Peter too in his Epistle, but St. Paul is very express, that though, with respect to the Mosaick rites, Christians are without law, yet they "are not without law" in regard "to God, but under the law to Christ," 1 Cor ix. 21, and by His command under that of men also. This then is the doctrine of the New Testament; that, according to the tenour of the Gospel, neither the observance of the Mosaick law will justify men, nor the non-observance of it condemn them; but that a thorough change of heart and life from evil to good, effected by the power of God's almighty grace, is the one thing needful: "for in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision; but a new creature," Gal. vi. 15. Abp. Seeker.

26. For as the body without the spirit is dead, &c.] And so the conclusion is clear and infallible, that as the body of man, without the soul enlivening it, exercises no actions of life, so doth not faith profit to our justification without works of obedience to the commands of Christ, such as justice, charity, and the like, ver. 1, 8, 14. Dr. Hammond. That this doctrine, concerning justification by works and not by faith only, is here insisted on by St. James, in order to rectify the misinterpretation put by some on St. Paul's doctrine of justification by faith, is the concurrent opinion of many most learned and judicious persons, as being very rational in itself and in its circumstances. Dr. Wells.

The case of Abraham, of whom St. Paul asserts that "he believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness," is here brought by St. James as an instance of one, who was justified by works. "Wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? Was not Abraham our father justified by works, when he offered Isaac his son upon the altar? Seest thou," and wonderful it is that there should be any one who does not see, "how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made per-is dead, so faith without works is dead also.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

CHAP. III.

1 We are not rashly or arrogantly to reprove others: 5 but rather to bridle the tongue, a little member, but a powerful instrument of much good, and great harm. 13 They who be truly wise be mild, and peaceable, without envying, and strife.

MY brethren, be not many masters, knowing that we shall receive the greater ‖ condemnation.

‖ Or, judgment.

2 For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

3 Behold, we put bits in the horses' mouths, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body.

4 Behold also the ships, which though they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very small helm, whithersoever the governor listeth.

5 Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great ‖ a matter a little fire kindleth!

‖ Or, wood.

---

fect?" And so, his works being all wrought through faith, the Scripture was still fulfilled which saith, "Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness:" his faith working by love was accepted in Christ Jesus, according to the terms of that Gospel, which "the Scripture preached before unto him." Thus in this instance of the father of the faithful, as in a common centre, are the doctrines of both Apostles met: one says a man is justified by faith working; the other by working faith; and this is really and truly all the difference between them. What pity then is it, that so many volumes should have been written, to the infinite vexation and disturbance of the church upon the question, whether a man is justified by faith or works, seeing they are two essential parts of the same thing! The body and the spirit make the man; faith and works make the Christian. "For as the body without the spirit is dead," and therefore but half the man, "so faith without works is dead also," and therefore but half the Christian. Nor can any son of Abraham be justified, otherwise than his father is declared to have been: "Faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect." Bp. Horne.

St. Paul, who denies justification by works, in the sense of the Jews in general, or more particularly with respect to the proper merit of such works, does not deny justification by good works, as a qualification or condition, which is the sense of St. James, who writes against an errour of some Christians, who taught that the bare belief in Jesus, and a profession of it, was enough; and it is likely they had this from the Jews, the vulgar of whom thought that the merely being Jews was sufficient to salvation.

It is observable how the circumstances of the persons who were written to by the several Apostles, and their opinions, may determine the sense of the words used. St. Paul wrote to the Jews, who affirmed that their good works merited justification; St. James to Christians, some of whom believed and taught that good works were not so much as a qualification or condition, and no ways necessary to this end. They both wrote truly. Justification was and was not by good works. It was by them as a qualification or condition. It was not by them as meritorious in the most received and common sense of that word.

We conclude then with the Gospel doctrine, against the Jewish doctors, and the legal doctrine as they taught it, that we sinners are justified by God, and more particularly upon our repentance and perseverance in holiness of life are pardoned and saved, not by works of righteousness which we have done; not by any merit in us derived from Him; but according to His mercy and by His free grace and undeserved goodness.

The Jewish doctors taught that they might perform and fulfil all the commandments of the law by their own natural strength and power; but the Apostles teach a contrary doctrine, namely, that the grace of God is absolutely necessary for our performance of good works, or rather for our being good men, which is the condition of our acceptance and justification.

Justification then by faith, or according to the Christian doctrine as opposed to the law, must be that all men being sinners are justified, and particularly receive remission of sins, the Holy Spirit, and everlasting salvation, from the free and undeserved goodness of God; upon the consideration of the perfect righteousness and the meritorious sacrifice of Jesus Christ, and upon the condition or qualification of a pious temper of heart for the future, to obey the will of God, and consequently to do what is right and just in whatsoever way He is pleased to declare it, but particularly as it is declared by the Lord Jesus Christ; which same condition too we had never been able to perform without the assistance of the grace of God. Dean Bright.

Chap. III. The Jewish Christians are again particularly dissuaded from the pride and ambition of being called teachers; and from that spirit of contemning, reviling, cursing, and calumniating, to which the Jewish zealots were so much addicted. The Apostle then insists upon the great advantage of a gentle and peaceful temper, and the fatal effects of a censorious and unbridled tongue. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — be not many masters,] Do not ambitiously affect the title of the authors and leaders of factions, drawing disciples after you; neither be ye rigid and uncharitable censurers of others; knowing that this pride and rigour of yours shall bring upon you the greater condemnation. Bp. Hall.

—— we shall receive] He joins himself with the persons to whom he writes, to mitigate the harshness of his reproof. Dr. Macknight.

2. For in many things we offend all.] The best of us have much to blame and accuse in ourselves, and therefore should not be forward to accuse or judge others. And of all vices those of the tongue are most ordinary. Dr. Hammond.

—— a perfect man,] See the notes on Gen. vi. 9; 1 Kings xv. 14. An absolute exemption from all blemish of soul, or blame of life, is such a perfection as is inconsistent with the nature and state of man here. See Job ix. 20; Prov. xx. 9; Eccles. vii. 20. "In many things we offend all," is the Apostle's assertion in the words immediately preceding, which words may serve to expound these. "In many things we offend all," that is, there is no man absolutely perfect: but "if any man offend not in word," that is, if a man constantly govern his tongue well, "that man is perfect;" perfect in such a kind and degree as human frailty admits; he is eminently good; he may be reasonably presumed upright and blameless in all the course of his practice; "able," as it follows, "to bridle the whole body," that is, qualified to order all his actions justly and wisely. So that in effect the words import this, that a constant governance of our speech according to duty and reason is a high instance and a special argument of a thoroughly sincere and solid goodness. Dr. Isaac Barrow.

5. —— and boasteth great things.] But may justly boast that it is able to do great matters. Bp. Hall. The verb, rendered "boasteth great things," signifies not only to vaunt of, but also to do great things. Drs. Whitby and Wells. It 'worketh mightily.' Dr. Macknight.

—— Behold, how great a matter &c.] Behold, how great a pile of wood a little fire is able to set in a flame, and to consume unto ashes! ver. 6. Such a fire is the tongue; yea, it is, though small, a whole world of iniquity and mischief; neither is there any kind of wickedness, which doth not proceed from thence. Bp. Hall.

The Apostle says the tongue is "a world of iniquity," because

Anno DOMINI about 60.

6 And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell.

† Gr. nature.

7 For every †kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of † Gr. nature of man.

†mankind:

8 But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison.

9 Therewith bless we God, even the Father; and therewith curse we men, which are made after the similitude of God.

10 Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be.

11 Doth a fountain send forth at the same ‖ place sweet water and bitter?

‖ Or, hole.

12 Can the fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? either a vine, figs? so can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh.

13 Who is a wise man and endued with knowledge among you? let him shew out of a good conversation his works with meekness of wisdom.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

14 But if ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth.

15 This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, ‖ sensual, devilish.

‖ Or, natural.

16 For where envying and strife is, there is †confusion and every evil work.

† Gr. tumult, or, unquietness.

17 But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, ‖without partiality, and without hypocrisy.

‖ Or, without wrangling.

18 And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace.

CHAP. IV.

1 We are to strive against covetousness, 4 intemperance, 5 pride, 11 detraction, and rash judgment of others: 13 and not to be confident in the good success of worldly business, but mindful ever of the uncertainty of this life, to commit ourselves and all our affairs to God's providence.

FROM whence come wars and ‖fightings among you? come they not hence, even

‖ Or, brawlings.

there is no iniquity which an unbridled tongue is not capable of producing. Drs. Macknight and Wells.

6. — and setteth on fire the course of nature;] Or the whole course of life from its very commencement to its termination; that is, it renders the whole life miserable. Schleusner.

An unrestrained volubility and wantonness of speech is the occasion of numberless evils and vexations in life. It begets resentment in him who is the subject of it; sows the seed of strife and dissension amongst others; and inflames little disgusts and offences, which if let alone would wear away of themselves: it is often of as bad effect upon the good name of others, as deep envy or malice: and, to say the least of it in this respect, it destroys and perverts a certain equity, of the utmost importance to society to be observed, namely, that praise and dispraise, a good or bad character, should always be bestowed according to desert. The tongue used in such a licentious manner is like a sword in the hand of a madman; it is employed at random; it can scarce possibly do any good, and for the most part does a world of mischief; and implies not only great folly and a trifling spirit, but great viciousness of mind, great indifference to truth and falsity, and to the reputation, welfare, and good of others. So much reason is there for what St. James here says of the tongue, "It is a fire, a world of iniquity, it defileth the whole body, setteth on fire the course of nature, and is itself set on fire of hell." This is the faculty or disposition, which we are required to keep a guard upon: these are the vices and follies it runs into, when not kept under due restraint. Bp. Butler.

7. — is tamed, and hath been tamed] The meaning is, that it is in the power and skill of man to repress the violence and poison of all other creatures, to subdue and disarm them of their weapons and means of hurting mortally. But the tongue is more hard to be subdued than any of these. Dr. Hammond.

11, 12. Doth a fountain send forth &c.] The Apostle argues and reasons from what is impossible in nature to what is absurd in manners. It is against the order of nature, that contrary effects should proceed from the same cause: in like manner grace is uniform and always acts like itself. To bless and curse, to pray and revile, is wholly inconsistent with grace. Burkitt.

13. Who is a wise man &c.] Whatever Christian convert or Jewish zealot, therefore, would be indeed a master of religious wisdom, let him show his wisdom first in the suppression of this wretched habit, and in reducing himself to a meek and charitable disposition toward his brethren. Pyle.

14. — glory not, and lie not against the truth.] Never brag vainly that ye are Christians; and do not shame and contradict that truth which ye profess, by a real denial of the profession thereof. Bp. Hall.

15. This wisdom descendeth not from above, &c.] This is quite contrary to the true celestial wisdom, that Christ came to teach and infuse into us: it is that which is infused into us, 1st, by the love of the world; 2dly, by men's own carnal passions and appetites; or 3dly, by Satan himself, who professeth himself to be an enemy of all good men. Dr. Hammond.

17. But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, &c.] In this beautiful passage St. James describes the excellent nature of that temper which is recommended by the Christian religion, and the happy effects which it produces. It is the highest wisdom, it cometh from God; and makes those who receive it, first pure, then peaceable, &c. Dr. Macknight.

—— without partiality,] That is, without making any difference between person and person, because of outward respects. Burkitt. This character of true religion was very properly mentioned to persons whom the Apostle had rebuked for their partiality in judging causes. Dr. Macknight.

18. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace &c.] There is a great and near relation betwixt righteousness and peace; so as they, that are truly desirous to advance peace, are careful of setting forward good works and maintenance of justice; and again, those shall be sure to reap the fruits of righteousness and glory, which have sown the seeds of peace and concord. Bp. Hall.

Chap. IV. St. James, having mentioned the evils produced by an unruly tongue and the spirit of strife and dissension, shews in this chapter, that all these disorders proceed from carnal passions, and particularly from the love of pleasures, from pride, from a desire of preeminence over others, from the love of the world, and from a spirit of envy and jealousy. He exhorts those, in whom these passions reign, to humble themselves, and draw near to God by repentance: and he particularly forbids slandering and rash judgments. He condemns those, who form projects and designs without reflecting upon the vanity of life, and without considering that they depend upon the providence of God. Ostervald.

Ver. 1. From whence come wars and fightings among you? &c.] This Epistle seems to have been written about the eighth year of Nero, and the sixty-second of Christ, the year before the death of

Anno DOMINI about 60.

of your ‖lusts that war in your members?

‖ Or, pleasures.

2 Ye lust, and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not.

3 Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your ‖lusts.

‖ Or, pleasures.

4 Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

5 Do ye think that the scripture saith in vain, The spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth ‖to envy?

‖ Or, enviously.

6 But he giveth more grace. Wherefore he saith, [a] God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble.

[a] Prov. 3. 34. 1 Pet. 5. 5.

7 Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw nigh to God, and he will draw

St. James; before which time the Jews had great wars and fightings, not only with their neighbours, but even among themselves, in every city and family, saith Josephus; not only in Judea, but in Alexandria, Syria, and many other places. Dr. Whitby.

As if he had said, What I have hitherto observed of the wretched effects of a turbulent and contentious spirit, is but too wofully demonstrable from the present state and condition of the Jewish people. Let any Jew tell me the real cause of all those calamities and desolations, those foreign, civil, and domestick broils, that are now the general plagues of that nation. What is it but the sensual and ambitious temper I have been describing? Pyle.

One of the most effectual rules for the attainment of concord is this: Let every man endeavour, by the grace of Christ, to moderate his desire of earthly things. "Whence," saith St. James to the Christians of his time, "come wars and fightings among you?" Whence come schisms and heresies in the church, factions and seditions in the state, enmities and heart-burnings between families and individuals? "Come they not hence, even of your lusts which war in your members?" An inordinate thirst after power, pleasure, fame, or profit, is at the bottom, whatever may be pretended. The humble and contented man quarrels with nobody, since, fully satisfied with the station in which God hath placed him, and intent upon discharging the duties of it, he is not eager after any of those things, for which others are with so much animosity contending. Bp. Horne.

4. Ye adulterers and adulteresses,] For so ye may be fitly called, since ye prefer the love of worldly riches and pleasures to the love of God. Dr. Wells.

—— the friendship of the world] Which stands in competition with, and indisposes you for doing, God's will, "is enmity with God." Burkitt. As if he had said, How can you be so ignorant as to imagine that the love of God can ever be consistent with this immoderate thirst after temporal riches and grandeur? You must give up one or the other. Pyle.

It is not intended for us to shun, what our Maker hath appointed us to engage in: but then we ought to engage in it only in such a manner as He has appointed, and to recollect continually that "we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness," 1 John v. 19. Not only the heathen world had its idolatrous pomps, or publick spectacles, and its immoral vanities, which Christians were at first peculiarly called upon to renounce; but that, which calls itself Christian, is full of things, from which a true Christian must abstain. All methods of being powerful or popular, inconsistent with our integrity; all arts of being agreeable at the expense or hazard of our innocence; all ways of encroaching on the properties of others, and all immoderate desires of adding to our own; all diversions, entertainments, and acquaintances, that have a tendency to hurt our morals or our piety; making common practice the rule of our conduct without considering whether it be right or wrong; filling our time in such manner either with business or amusements, be they ever so innocent in themselves, as not to leave room for the main business of life, the improvements of our hearts in virtue, the serious exercise of religion, and a principal attention to the great concerns of eternity: these are the things, in which consists that "friendship with the world," which "is enmity with God;" and "if any man love" it thus, "the love of the Father is not in him," 1 John ii. 15. Abp. Secker.

5, 6. Do ye think that the scripture saith in vain, &c.] Interpreters have been much perplexed by this text. The difficulty of it seems to have arisen from its being not pointed aright, and may be removed by dividing the fifth verse into two interrogations. Drs. Wells and Whitby, Pyle.

The following paraphrase is according to such a division of the verse. This the Scripture beateth upon every where; and do ye think it speaketh thus in vain? Certainly every word thereof is to excellent purpose, and shall be truly verified upon us. Doth then that Spirit of God, which we profess to have dwelling in us, lust after envy, and envy the good things of others? Surely no: so far is He from that, as that He giveth more grace where He hath given some already. Wherefore He saith, God resisteth the proud, &c. Bp. Hall.

7. — Resist the devil,] Who is the author of those wars, envyings, and lustings, which are amongst you. Dr. Whitby.

What we are taught concerning the devil, and demons or wicked spirits, in the word of God, is, that a number of angels, having sinned against their Maker, from what motives or in what instances we are not, as we need not be, clearly told, but so as to be utterly unfit for pardon, were cast out from heaven, and are kept under such confinement as God sees proper, till the day comes when the final sentence which they have deserved shall be executed upon them; but that in the mean time, being full of all evil, and void of all hope, they maliciously endeavour to make those, whom they can, wicked and miserable like themselves. And being all united under one head, and actuated by one and the same spirit of ill-will against us, we are concerned to look upon them as one enemy. What means they use to tempt us, we are not distinctly informed: and it is great folly, either on the one hand to doubt of the reality of the fact, because we know not the manner; or on the other to entertain groundless imaginations, or believe idle stories, and ascribe more to evil spirits than we have any sufficient cause. For there is no religion in favouring such fancies or giving credit to such tales; and there hath frequently arisen a great deal of hurtful superstition from them. This we are sure of, and it is enough, that neither Satan nor all his angels have power, either to force any one of us into sin, or to hinder us from repenting, or without God's especial leave to do any one of us the least hurt in any other way. And we have no cause to think, that leave to do hurt is ever granted them, but on such extraordinary occasions as are mentioned in Scripture. They are indeed often permitted to entice us to sin, as we too often entice one another. But these enticements of evil spirits may be withstood by us just as effectually, and nearly by just the same methods, as those of evil men. "Resist the devil, and he will flee from you: draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you." Unquestionably our danger is the greater, as we have not only flesh and blood, our own bad inclinations and the allurements of other bad persons, to encounter, but the efforts of an invisible enemy likewise. And therefore it was great mercy in God, to grant us the knowledge of this interesting, and otherwise undiscoverable, circumstance of our condition, that we may increase our watchfulness in proportion. And if we do, "greater is He that is in us, than he that is in the world," 1 John iv. 4. and He "will not suffer us to be tempted above that we are able to bear," 1 Cor. x. 13. Abp. Secker.

8. Draw nigh to God,] By prayer, humiliation, repentance, and obedience, "and He will draw nigh to you" in mercy. Dr.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double minded.

9 Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness.

10 Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up.

11 Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge.

12 There is one lawgiver, who is able to save and to destroy: who art thou that judgest another?

[b] Prov. 27. 1.

13 [b] Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain:

14 Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? ‖ It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

‖ Or, For it is.

15 For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that.

16 But now ye rejoice in your boastings: all such rejoicing is evil.

17 Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

CHAP. V.

1 Wicked rich men are to fear God's vengeance. 7 We ought to be patient in afflictions, after the example of the prophets, and Job: 12 to forbear swearing, 13 to pray in adversity, to sing in prosperity: 16 to acknowledge mutually our several faults, to pray one for another, 19 and to reduce a straying brother to the truth.

GO to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

Whitby. "Draw nigh to God," says the Apostle, "and He will draw nigh to you:" some approach therefore towards God on the part of men, some exertion of their own will, is necessary to obtain His effectual assistance. "Cleanse your hands, ye sinners," he continues, "and purify your hearts, ye double-minded:" sinners being exhorted thus to reform their lives, and those who are wavering and unstable to become firm and resolute, is a proof that men have a control, not only over their actions, but also over their affections and principles. Bp. Tomline.

—— Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; &c.] This and other exhortations of the like kind found in Scripture imply, that in matters of religion and virtue men must cooperate with the grace of God by their own earnest endeavours. Dr. Macknight. It has been truly observed upon this passage, that if men are ordered to cleanse their hands and purify their hearts, and that which is ordered is not impossible, then are they able to perform these things. Dr. Whitby.

Also, the passage implies, that they who are hypocritical and double-minded, have as much need to purify their hearts as the greatest sinners in the world: and the reason is, because their hearts are divided between God and the world, between virtue and vice; and by consequence are far from being pure: for a pure heart is always single, and all of a piece, wholly and entirely inclined to God and goodness. Bp. Beveridge.

9. — your joy to heaviness.] By way of repentance. Dr. Wells.

11. Speak not evil one of another, brethren. &c.] As to you, dear brethren, who are already converted to Christianity, be sure to avoid that pernicious custom of slander and rash censure. Remember, that whoever hastily and unjustly condemns another man, reflects upon religion itself, sets up for a judge, and makes himself wiser than the Divine law. And such an one must not pretend to be a true disciple of that law, while he sets himself above it. Pyle.

15. For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, &c.] The Apostle does not mean, that these words should always be used by us when we speak of our purposes respecting futurity; compare Rom. xv. 28; but that on such occasions the sentiments, which these words express, should be continually present to our mind, and that we should habitually acknowledge our dependence upon Divine Providence. Drs. Whitby and Macknight.

Amongst Christians, who acknowledge God's providence to rule in all things, and to dispose of all actions and events, it is needless in every speech concerning a future contingency to express this clause, "if the Lord will;" because we readily conceive it, as a clause, which either is, or should be, understood in every such speech, as the Apostle requires. Bp. Sanderson.

16. But now ye rejoice in your boastings:] You take pleasure in speaking thus arrogantly and magnificently of your own purposes. Dr. Hammond.

17. Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, &c.] Now this, or any other crime, must be greater in a Christian, than in any other man; because he, by the clear revelation of the Gospel, has or ought to have better notions of his duty, and a stronger sense of his religious obligations. Pyle.

Let us learn hence, that to sin against light and knowledge is a very heinous aggravation of sin, because the knowledge of our duty lays us under the greatest obligation to do it: and that the greater advantages and opportunities any man has of knowing his duty, and the more knowledge he sins against in not doing it, the greater is his sin, and the more grievous will be his condemnation. Burkitt.

Chap. V. The Apostle, having spoken in the foregoing chapter of those who labour to heap up riches without considering that they depend on Providence, denounces the judgments of God upon the rich and covetous, upon those that live in voluptuousness and oppress the poor. He afterwards applies himself to Christians in affliction; he exhorts them to wait with patience for the coming of the Lord; not to complain too bitterly against those who did them evil, and to avoid every thing that denoted impatience, particularly rash swearing. He shews, lastly, the duty of those that are in affliction: orders such as are sick to send for the pastors of the church, and promises that they shall be healed, after the pastors shall have prayed for them and anointed them with oil; such anointing being a ceremony then practised, by means of which God wrought miraculous cures. St. James speaks likewise of the confession of sin, of the efficacy of prayer, and of the fruits of brotherly reproof. Ostervald.

Ver. 1. Go to now,] This is only a form of transition, chap. iv. 13, and turning his speech to any person: as if he had said, And now to speak to you that are rich, I call upon you to weep, &c. Dr. Whitby.

—— for your miseries that shall come upon you.] The miseries, of which the Apostle speaks, were those in which the Jews were involved in their war with the Romans, and which by the signs pointed out in our Lord's prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem, St. James, who wrote this letter in Judea, knew were at hand; miseries from famine, pestilence, and the sword. These fell heaviest no doubt on the Jews in Judea; but they extended also to the Jews in the provinces: besides, when Jerusalem was besieged by the Romans, the Jews in the provinces within the empire, and also out of its bounds, sent help to their brethren in Judea. Dr.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

2 Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are motheaten.

3 Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days.

4 Behold, the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of sabaoth.

5 Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter.

6 Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist you.

7 ‖ Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

‖ Or, Be long patient, or, suffer with long patience.

8 Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

9 ‖ Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: behold, the judge standeth before the door.

‖ Or, Groan, or, grieve not.

10 Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of suffering affliction, and of patience.

11 Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job,

---

Macknight. For an account of the calamities which befell the Jews at the destruction of Jerusalem, the reader is referred to the notes on Deut. xxviii, and Matt. xxiv.

Josephus particularly observes how much the rich men suffered by the Romans in the Jewish war. Dr. Doddridge.

2. Your riches are corrupted, &c.] Your food, like manna, is putrefied by being kept, Exod. xvi. 20; and the garments, which should have covered the needy, being laid up in your wardrobes, are devoured by moths. Dr. Hammond. In the former clause the Apostle speaks of stores of corn, wine, and oil, which, like the rich fool, mentioned Luke xii. 18, they had amassed, probably by rapine and fraud. Dr. Macknight. See the notes on Jer. xli. 8: and concerning the eastern custom of laying up large stores of garments, see the note on Job xxvii. 16.

3. Your gold and silver is cankered;] Or rusted. But since gold is not naturally capable of rust, it has been thought that the word here used denotes not indeed rust, but the foulness which that metal may contract. Parkhurst.

—— and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, &c.] The circumstances of their corn being putrefied, and of their gold and silver being eaten with rust, are mentioned to shew that they had not been properly used, but covetously hoarded. And by a strong poetical figure, the rust of their gold and silver is represented both as a witness against them, and an executioner to destroy them; it will bear witness to their covetousness, and punish them by raising the most acute pain in their conscience. Dr. Macknight.

—— for the last days.] For the time of the final destruction of your state, which is now coming on. Dr. Wells. This denunciation, though applied here to the unbelieving Jews in the Apostles' days, is general in its intention, and ought to be seriously attended to by all in every age, who amass riches unjustly, and who either hoard them covetously, or spend them luxuriously; it is in reality treasuring up to themselves misery against the day of judgment. Dr. Macknight.

4. Behold, the hire of the labourers &c.] The precept of the law touching this matter is contained in Lev. xix. 13; Deut. xxiv. 15. The keeping of the hire back is therefore truly styled fraud and oppression; and all sins of that nature cry to heaven for vengeance upon the fraudulent oppressor. Dr. Whitby.

—— the Lord of sabaoth.] That is, of hosts. See the note on Rom. ix. 29.

5. — as in a day of slaughter.] Or, 'for a day of slaughter:' namely, as the sacrifices, which are first fattened and then slaughtered. See Ps. xxxvii. 20. Dr. Whitby.

6. Ye have condemned and killed the just;] Namely, many a true Christian, who does not so much as resist you, but patiently and cheerfully submits even to death itself. Dr. Wells.

7. — the early and latter rain.] See the notes on Deut. xi. 14; xxviii. 12; 1 Sam. xii. 17.

8. — for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.] This may be understood of the particular coming of Christ to destroy the Jewish polity, which was then at hand; or of His general coming to judge the world at the last day. Burkitt.

10. Take, my brethren, the prophets,—for an example &c.] The example of God is constantly proposed to us in the Scriptures as the most unexceptionably worthy of our imitation. "Be ye holy," says God, "as I am holy." "Be ye perfect," says our Lord," as your heavenly Father is perfect." But God being no object of our senses, and to be apprehended only by our understanding, the Scripture hath added to it, and hath recommended to us another object which is more familiar, and approaching nearer to our case, even Jesus Christ, the visible image of the invisible God, shewing us an accomplished virtue in an human form and nature, and the amiable and imitable qualities of industry, condescension, humility, meekness, patience, courage, resignation, and charity, under the greatest trials and the heaviest sufferings. But here again there is a sort of plea and excuse for our falling so very short of the pattern, since we have many defects, many frailties, many irregular desires, many turbulent passions, from which the Son of God was free. To remove therefore all exceptions of this sort, and all pretences of inability to discharge our obligations, we have the rules of morality and righteousness reduced to practice in men, who were nothing more than men. Though their example is far short of perfection, yet it is worthy of our emulation and imitation, and a sensible reproach of our failings. History sacred and secular shews us men naturally as weak as we are, liable to the same temptations of vanity, conceit, pride, sensual affections, fear, wrath, envy, and malice, yet conquering these foes to their salvation. They had as quick a sense of pleasure and pain, of love and aversion, of profit and loss, of plenty and poverty, of honour and dishonour, as we; and yet they overcame the world by their faith, and by the influence of true religion upon their minds. They had indeed the Divine assistance to strengthen their infirmity; and so may we, if we seek it as they did. Dr. Jortin.

11. — Ye have heard of the patience of Job,] True patience shall never go without consolation. He that will have patience onward shall be sure to have consolation at the last. "The patient abiding of the meek shall not perish for ever," Ps. ix. 18. St. James would have us set before our eyes the Prophets and saints for a general example of suffering affliction and of patience: and he here commendeth to us one particular example as by way of instance, namely that of Job. Job held out in his patience under great trials unto the last: and God, out of pity and in His tender mercy towards him, heaped comforts upon him at the last in great abundance. It would be well worthy of our most serious meditation, to consider both what by God's grace he did, and how by God's mercy he sped. His example in the one would be a good pattern for us of patience: and his reward in the other a good encouragement for consolation. This we may rest upon as a most perfect truth, that if we do our part God will not fail on His. Bp. Sanderson.

After mentioning the Prophets, namely, Elijah, Isaiah, Jere-

Anno DOMINI about 60. and have seen the end of the Lord; that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy.

12 But above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation.

13 Is any among you afflicted? let him pray. Is any merry? let him sing psalms.

14 Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord:

miah, and the rest, as examples under sufferings, the Apostle brings in the example of Job; a Gentile, who was remarkably patient under the heaviest afflictions, and was highly rewarded. His design in this was to shew the suffering Jews, that their lot was not different from the most eminent servants of God; and that if a Gentile was so patient under great sufferings, it became them to be equally patient, as being better instructed than he was. Dr. Macknight.

—— and have seen the end of the Lord;] Namely, the happy end which it pleased the Lord to put to Job's patient sufferings. Bp. Hall.

12. But above all things, my brethren, swear not, &c] And let me particularly warn you, that no examples, no provocations whatever, draw you into the vice of common swearing, and invoking the name of God on light and needless occasions. Pyle.

In later times, some sects of Christians have totally condemned all oaths as unlawful. But in this they have carried their scruples too far. And this is one of the inconveniences which will always arise, when religious but injudicious persons lay hold on single texts of Scripture, and undertake to interpret them, without comparing them with other passages, and calling in the light of reason and natural sense to their aid. That oaths are lawful in matters of importance appears from the practice of our Lord Himself, who, being adjured by the high priest, in the name of God, answered to the adjuration; and from the example of St. Paul, who several times in his Epistles calls God to witness upon solemn occasions. In the Old Testament, and in the law, oaths are not only permitted, but enjoined; and consequently could not be unlawful in themselves, and immoral in their own nature. God Himself is frequently introduced swearing by Himself, by His truth, and by His own life. Hence it is extremely plain to all, who are not perverse and contentious, that our Saviour's prohibition hath nothing to do with oaths taken upon proper occasions before the magistrate, but with oaths which are voluntary and unnecessary. "Swear not at all," that is, Swear not in common conversation. Dr. Jortin. Compare this passage with Matt. v. 34—37, and see the notes there.

Our Saviour's words interpret those of the Apostle by necessary consequence. For if He intended only to prohibit common swearing in conversation, St. James, we may be sure, intended no more than his Master did; especially in words, that are evidently copied from his Master's. If they are without dependence on what comes before and after, we have no other rule to explain them by. And if they are connected with it, the connexion leads us to the same sense. In the 8th verse he exhorts to patience under afflictions. In the 9th he cautions against one common mark of wanting it, envying the more prosperous. Then, after setting before them examples of patience in the 10th and 11th, he proceeds in the 12th to warn them of another fault, which impatience too frequently produces; "But above all things, my brethren, swear not:" have a peculiar care, that your sufferings and injuries tempt you not to a passionate and profane use of the name of God: nay, "Swear neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath;" do not imagine, that softening and mincing your imprecations will change the nature of them; but "let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay;" let your assertions and denials, under the greatest provocations, be mere assertions and denials, without any superadded vehemence of phrase; "lest ye fall into condemnation," for irreligious expressions of warmth, as others will for uncharitable repining. We have therefore no manner of reason to think, that St. James disapproved swearing before a magistrate, to which his prohibition of swearing by heaven, and earth, cannot possibly relate; or even swearing on any other solemn and needful occasion: but only such oaths as are apt to break out in common speech, especially from persons under oppression. Abp. Secker.

At the same time it should be noticed, that the Apostle in this place lays a very remarkable stress upon the command of our Saviour, "Above all things, my brethren, swear not." Surely that cannot be a slight sin, against which an Apostle hath delivered so earnest a caution. He could not have said more against murder, and adultery, and sacrilege, and perjury. Not that every oath, which a man swears in his common discourse, is a sin of so horrid a nature as those just mentioned: but this may be hence remarked, that common and profane swearing is as directly and expressly forbid to Christians as any of these, and consequently must be a great sin: and therefore it may be well wondered how any man can call himself, or think himself a Christian, who lives in the practice of it. Abp. Sharp.

13. Is any among you afflicted? &c.] Improve every condition of life to a religious advantage. Let prayer be the refuge of the afflicted; and devout praises the exercises of them that are in ease and prosperity. Pyle.

—— Is any merry? let him sing psalms.] As singing is capable of expressing strongly every state, in which the mind can be, towards every object; so there never was perhaps any one nation upon earth, civilized or barbarous, that did not make this a part of the honour paid by them to the God, whom they adored. We find in the Old Testament it was practised by the Jews, before their law was given, as well as after, Exod. xv. 1, &c. The book of Psalms consists wholly of religious songs: and directs the "saints of the Lord, to sing unto Him, and give thanks at the remembrance of His holiness," Ps. xxx. 4; to "sing forth the honour of His name, and make His praise glorious," Ps. lxvi. 2; to "sing praises unto our God while we have any being," Ps. cxlvi. 2. The Prophets foretell, that in the Gospel times men "shall sing for the majesty of the Lord;" and, which brings the prediction home to us, "they shall cry aloud, and glorify God, in the isles of the sea," Is. xxiv. 14, 15. Accordingly St. Paul, not only himself with Silas even in prison "sang praises unto God," Acts xvi. 23—25, but appoints that all Christians should "speak to themselves, and admonish one another, in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, making melody with grace in their hearts to the Lord," Eph. v. 19; Col. iii. 16. And St. James here prescribes, "Is any one merry?" in a joyful frame on account of blessings received, for the word 'mirth' comprehended anciently the most serious kind of gladness, "let him sing psalms." In pursuance of these rules, the first Christians made singing a constant part of their worship; and the whole congregation joined in it. Afterwards indeed the singers by profession, who had been prudently appointed to lead and direct them, by degrees usurped the whole performance. But at the Reformation the people were restored to their rights: and it made a much quicker progress for the pleasure and comfort, which they found in this practice; a circumstance, that ought to endear it to considerate persons not a little. And, as the only way of singing known in common parochial churches, is by the metre psalms, unless we join in that we entirely omit this branch of our duty. Abp. Secker.

14. — let him call for the elders of the church;] The pastors or ministers of the church. Bp. Hall. Those above the order of deacons. Dr. Wells.

—— anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord:] This was agreeable to the practice of the Jews, who were accustomed to anoint the sick: hence, when our Lord commissioned His disciples to "heal the sick," Matt. x. 8; Luke ix. 2; St. Mark informs us that they added their usual ceremonies in doing it, "for they anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them," Mark vi. 13. And St. James, speaking to the elders of the church,

Anno DOMINI about 60.

15 And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him.

16 Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

17 Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he prayed ‖ earnestly

‖ Or, in his prayer.

---

bids them use this unction "in the name of the Lord," as doubtless the Apostles did, as in casting out devils, Luke x. 17, so in healing the sick, Acts iii. 16; iv. 10, 18; and this addition makes the cure miraculous. Dr. Whitby. The Gospel being sufficiently confirmed, this gift of healing has ceased, and therewith the rite of anointing: so that the church of Rome keeps up an idle ceremony in anointing the sick, unless her ministers had a miraculous power of healing them. Besides, they anoint those who are given over for dead; whereas the Apostle's anointing was for the benefit of the living, as appears from the following verse. Burkitt.

15. And the prayer of faith shall save the sick,] In Scripture, "faith" sometimes signifies the spiritual gifts in general, Rom. xii. 3; sometimes the gift of working miracles, 1 Cor. xii. 9; xiii. 2; and sometimes the gift of healing diseases miraculously, Acts iii. 16, in which sense it is to be understood here. The gift of working miracles was called faith, because they were always performed in consequence of an impression made by the Spirit on the mind of the person who was to perform them, moving him to undertake the miracle, and working in him a full persuasion that it would be performed. Wherefore, the prayer of faith is a prayer which the elder, moved by the Spirit of God, was to make for the recovery of the sick, in the full persuasion that the Lord would raise him up, 1 John v. 16. Dr. Macknight.

—— and if he have committed sins,] Namely, sins for which God was pleased to inflict this bodily disease upon him, as on the members of the church of Corinth; see 1 Cor. xi. 30, 32. Where the sickness was by way of chastisement, the healing was a testimony of God's forgiveness. Hence it is evident, that there is no foundation for the sacrament of 'extreme unction,' called by the Romish church 'the sacrament of the dying,' and administered for the purgation of their sins, when they seem past hopes of recovery; for how can they gather a sacrament of extreme unction from an unction which is not extreme, or a perpetual ordinance from an action which was extraordinary and miraculous, and has long since ceased? How can they prove a sacrament for dying persons, from a rite used only upon persons who were not to die, but to be raised up from sickness? or promise to him forgiveness of his sins, to whom they cannot promise that recovery, which was the token of it? Dr. Whitby.

16. Confess your faults one to another,] These words are generally understood of confessing private injuries one to another, that so the sick person may reconcile himself to his neighbour, as well as to God. The Papists absurdly ground their practice of auricular confession upon this text: for there is nothing here said of confessing to the priest; and if there were, it would be as much the priest's duty to confess to the people, as the people's to the priest, for the duty required is mutual; "confess one to another." Burkitt.

The penance of the church of Rome is totally different from the Gospel doctrine of repentance, which consists in an inward sorrow for past sins, and a firm resolution of future amendment. This pretended sacrament has no foundation whatever in Scripture: we are not commanded to confess our sins to priests, nor are they empowered to dispense absolution upon their own judgment. St. James indeed says, "Confess your faults one to another;" but no mention is here made of priests; and the word "faults" seems to confine the precept to a mutual confession among Christians of those offences by which they may have injured each other: but certainly the necessity of auricular confession, and the power of priestly absolution, cannot be inferred from this passage. But though there is not the slightest ground for considering penance as a sacrament, nor any authority for requiring auricular confession to priests; yet confession of sins to God is an indispensable duty, and confession to priests may sometimes be useful, by leading to effectual repentance; and therefore our church in her communion service encourages her members to use confidential confession to their parochial minister; but this is very different from its being an essential part of a sacrament, instituted by Christ. A contrite sinner may feel relief in unburdening his mind to his spiritual pastor, and may receive advice and consolation, which may soften the pangs of a wounded conscience: his scruples may be removed; his good resolutions may be confirmed; and, instead of falling a victim to religious melancholy, he may be enabled to work out his salvation by a life of active virtue, through an humble faith in the merits of the blessed Jesus, who, as He Himself assures us, came into the world to "call sinners to repentance." Bp. Tomline.

—— pray one for another, that ye may be healed.] For the better performance of the duties of sickness, and obtaining such a conclusion of it as may be most expedient for us, religious prudence will direct us to join with our own prayers those of our fellow Christians. To unite us more closely in good will and affection, our Saviour hath appointed that our prayers shall be common. Accordingly when St. Peter was in danger, "prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God," Acts xii. 5. And St. James's injunction concerning the sick is, "Pray for one another, that ye may be healed." Nor certainly ought we to intercede less fervently for the souls of our brethren, than for their bodies. Therefore, in the ancient liturgies, persons dangerously ill were recommended by name to the throne of grace, for such mercies as they needed. And our own hath provided in behalf of "those especially, for whom our prayers are desired," a most comprehensive request for "comfort and relief according to their several necessities," for "patience under their sufferings," for "a happy issue out of all their afflictions." And we shall consult both our duty and our interest, by intreating a particular share, when our case requires it, in the general supplications of the church of Christ. Abp. Secker.

—— The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.] The prayer of a man of God, to which he is incited by the Spirit, as the Prophets were when they prayed, and as they under the Gospel were who had the gift of miracles, will be very effectual, so as even to work miraculous cures. Dr. Hammond. The phrase, rendered "the effectual fervent prayer," seems to denote the inspired prayer, or the prayer of a righteous man, "wrought in" him by the operation or energy of the Holy Spirit. Parkhurst. And it seems most proper to apply these words, not to the prayer of every righteous person, but to the prayer offered by such an extraordinary impulse, as in the case of Elias, 1 Kings xvii. 1; xviii. 42. Dr. Whitby. Generally however it may be observed, that the fervent prayers and intercessions of the righteous prevail powerfully with God, both for themselves and for others. Burkitt.

It would be well, if persons, who are afflicted with sickness, would observe St. James's rule, which he delivers in general terms; "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him:" which prayers were doubtless preceded or followed by suitable exhortations. It is true, he directs them particularly in order to a miraculous cure of the sick: and prescribes at the same time "anointing with oil in the name of the Lord," which was used in performing such cures. We will not therefore say, that his injunction is exactly suited throughout to the present state of things. But still, though "gifts of healing" are ceased, and the ceremony belonging to them is become perfectly superfluous; it remains notwithstanding a Christian duty, "in every thing, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, to let our requests be made known unto God," Phil. iv. 6; and petitions for the sick, both publick in the congregation, and private in their presence, may be of great efficacy, not only to their spiritual, but to their bodily health, "for the fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." Therefore in all ages "the elders of the church" have attended them: and our own church hath both given directions, and provided an office for that purpose. Abp. Secker.

17. — he prayed earnestly] In the history it is not said di-

Anno DOMINI about 60.

that it might not rain: and it rained not on the earth by the space of three years and six months.

18 And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.

19 Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him;

Anno DOMINI about 60.

20 Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins.

---

rectly, either that the drought was brought on, or the rain sent, in consequence of Elijah's praying. But both are insinuated. For 1 Kings xvii. 2, we are told that Elijah sware "there should not be dew nor rain these years, but according to his word," that is, as St. James hath explained it, according to his inspired prayer for drought or for rain. And 1 Kings xviii. 42, we are told that "he cast himself down upon the earth, and put his face between his knees," which is an insinuation of his second prayer, for that was the posture of an humble and earnest supplicant. See Numb. xvi. 4. Dr. Macknight.

20. — and shall hide a multitude of sins.] Shall be a means, that the many sins of that convert shall through his true repentance be forgiven, and not imputed to him. Bp. Hall.

Or, his pious and charitable labour shall be so acceptable to God, as to induce God through Christ to hide or cover his own sins. Dr. Wells. The passage seems to be meant, not of the sins of the person thus converted, for the saving of his soul includes the remission of his sins; but of the sins of him that converts him; that is, this charitable work shall be so pleasing to God, as to prevail with Him to cover many of his own sins. Dr. Whitby.

The sense appears to be, that as it is said in Daniel, chap. xii. 3, "they that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever;" and as in chap. iv. 27, Nebuchadnezzar is exhorted to "break off his iniquities, by shewing mercy to the poor;" and as they who had fallen under the censures of the church by sin were, in the ancient church, according to the apostolical rules, to fit themselves for absolution, not only by repenting and reforming their sins, but by addition of works of charity and mercy; so this great charity of converting any from the errour of his way, which is a means of saving the soul of the converted alive, should be very acceptable in the sight of God, and, being added to sincere repentance for his sins, should be effectual to the obtaining of his pardon through the mercies of Christ under the Gospel. And as this sense seems most agreeable to this place, where there is a double encouragement offered to excite that charity; 1st, the contemplation of the advantage to the receiver, "saving his soul alive," which includes, and cannot well be improved with the addition of, covering or forgiving his sins; and 2dly, of the advantage that devolves to himself; so it will be found perfectly concordant with the doctrines and interpretations of the ancient church; and no way irreconcileable with the merits and satisfaction of Christ, by which only it is that God becomes propitious to our best performances; or with the doctrine of justification by faith, which doth not exclude, but suppose, the rewarding of our charity. Dr. Hammond. See the note from Abp. Secker on 1 Pet. iv. 8.

The following Verses from the General Epistle of James are appointed as Epistles on Sundays and Holydays.

Chap. I. - ver. 1—12,	St. Philip and St. James, - - -	Epistle.
—— I. - — 17—21.	4th Sunday after Easter, - - -	Ditto.
—— I. - — 22—27,	5th Sunday after Easter, - - -	Ditto.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL

OF

PETER.

INTRODUCTION.

SIMON Peter was born at Bethsaida, a city of Upper Galilee, John i. 44. His father's name was Jonas, and he had a brother called Andrew. He was a married man, and lived at Capernaum; and he and his brother were fishermen upon the lake of Gennesareth. Andrew was a disciple of John the Baptist; and hearing him declare Jesus to be "the Lamb of God," he followed Jesus, and continued with Him the rest of that day. Andrew, having found his brother, took him to Jesus, who, when He saw him, said, "Thou art Simon the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, (or Peter,) which is by interpretation, A stone" or rock, John i. 42. Though Peter and Andrew seem to have been now convinced that Jesus was the Messiah, yet they continued to carry on their trade of fishing, till Christ called them to attend constantly upon Himself, and promised to make them "fishers of men," Matt. iv. 19; Luke v. 10; in allusion to the success which they should have in making converts to the Gospel. They were afterwards appointed of the number of the twelve Apostles. St. Peter enjoyed the favour of his Divine Master in a peculiar degree. In the Introduction to St. John's Gospel have been mentioned three occasions, on which only St. Peter and the two sons of Zebedee were allowed to accompany our Saviour; namely, when He restored to life the daughter of Jairus, Mark v. 37; Luke viii. 51; when He was transfigured on the mount, Matt. xvii. 1; Mark ix. 2; Luke ix. 28; and when He endured His agony in the garden, Matt. xxvi. 37; Mark xiv. 33. St. Peter was one of the four Apostles to whom our Saviour delivered His predictions relative to the destruction of Jerusalem, Mark xiii. 14. St. Peter and St. John were sent to prepare the last passover for Christ, Matt. xxvi. 17; Mark xiv. 13; Luke xxii. 8. The angel at the holy sepulchre commanded that the disciples, and St. Peter in particular, should be informed of Christ's resurrection, Mark xvi. 7: and St. Peter was the first man, Luke xxiv 34; 1 Cor. xv. 5, as Mary Magdalene was the first woman, John xx. 15, to whom Christ appeared after He rose from the dead. Our Saviour said to him, in explanation of the name which He Himself had given him, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church: and I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven," Matt. xvi. 18, 19; and after His resurrection, three several times and with great earnestness He commanded him to feed His sheep, John xxi. 15—17. When Christ put any question to the Apostles at large, St. Peter always gave the answer; and he frequently addressed our Saviour, when the other disciples were silent: as when he rebuked Him for speaking of His own sufferings; when he inquired how often a brother might offend and be forgiven; and when he objected to Christ washing his feet. It was St. Peter who proposed that another Apostle should be chosen in the room of Judas Iscariot, Acts i. 15: who preached to the multitude, when they were astonished at the gift of tongues communicated by the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost, Acts ii. 14: who questioned Ananias and Sapphira concerning the price of their land, and in a miraculous manner punished their falsehood with instant death, Acts v. 1: and who spoke in the name of the Apostles, when they were apprehended and accused by the sanhedrim, Acts v. 29. Through St. Peter and St. John the Samaritan believers received the Holy Ghost, Acts viii. 14; but it was St. Peter alone, who by the immediate command of God Himself admitted Cornelius, the first Gentile convert, into the Christian faith, Acts x. 1: and his account of the circumstances attending that important event, convinced the Apostles and other disciples, that "to the Gentiles also God had granted repentance unto life," Acts xi. 18. And thus, as St. Peter had been the first Apostle, who preached to the Jews immediately after the descent of the Holy Ghost, so about eight years afterwards he was also the first who preached to the Gentiles in the house of Cornelius at Cesarea. By these means he may be said to have founded the universal church of Christ: and this is supposed to have been the meaning of our Lord's words, "Upon this rock I will build My church, and I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven;" for by being the first person, who explained the Gospel both to Jews and Gentiles after the ascension of our Saviour, he as it were opened the doors of heaven to all mankind. He seems to have performed more miracles than any other of the Apostles, for the people brought their sick that his shadow might fall upon them, Acts v. 15. When he was imprisoned by Herod Agrippa, prayer was made for him without ceasing by the church; and he was miraculously delivered out of prison by an angel, though Herod had been permitted to put James the Great to death, Acts xii. 2. The speech of St. Peter at the council of Jerusalem, so often mentioned, is recorded, but of no other person except James the Less, bishop of Jerusalem, Acts xv. 6: and St. Paul tells us, that to St. Peter was committed the Gospel of the circumcision, Gal. ii. 7; whence he is called the Apostle of the Jews, as St. Paul is called the Apostle of the Gentiles. And lastly, in all the catalogues of the Apostles, and almost always when he is mentioned in conjunction with others in the Gospels or Acts, the name of St. Peter stands first. Though these facts may lead us to consider St. Peter as the chief, or the most distinguished, of the twelve Apostles, yet they by no means prove that he had any superiour dignity or jurisdiction over the rest: "One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren," Matt. xxiii. 8.

No mention is made of St. Peter in the Acts after the council at Jerusalem; nor is any subsequent circumstance recorded of him in the Epistles, except that he was at Antioch not long afterwards, Gal. ii. 11. He is supposed to have preached to the Jews of the dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Bithynia, Cappadocia, and Asia; and at length coming to Rome, about the year 63 or 64, to have been crucified with his head downwards, himself having desired that it might be in that manner. That St. Peter should die by crucifixion, was foretold by Christ, John xxi. 18; and St. Peter himself alluded to that prediction, 2 Pet. i. 14.

As St. John was the Apostle, who was favoured with the greatest share of our Saviour's affection, so St. Peter seems to have been considered by Him as the one, whose disposition would lead him to be most active and instrumental in propagating His religion: and that this was really the case, the Acts of the Apostles sufficiently prove. Confidence and zeal form a conspicuous part of his character; but he was sometimes deficient in firmness and resolution. He had the faith to walk upon the water to his Divine Master; but when the sea grew boisterous, his faith deserted him, and he became afraid, Matt. xiv. 28—30. He was forward to acknowledge Jesus to be the Messiah, Matt. xvi. 16; Mark viii. 29; Luke ix. 20; John vi. 69; and declared himself ready to die in that profession, Matt. xxvi. 35; and yet soon after he thrice denied, and with oaths, that he knew any thing of Jesus, Matt. xxvi. 69, &c. The warmth of his temper led him to cut off the ear of the high priest's servant, John xviii. 10; and by his timidity and dissimulation respecting the Gentile converts at Antioch, he incurred the censure of the eager and resolute St. Paul, Gal. ii. 11. But while we lament this occasional want of steadiness and consistency in St. Peter, we should remember that his good qualities seem not to have been mixed with any other infirmity; and his voluntary acknowledgment to Christ of his being a sinful man, the bitter remorse which he felt upon the denial of his Master, and his submission to the reproof of St. Paul, justify us in concluding that to his zeal he added humility, which are virtues rarely united in the same person.

This Epistle is addressed "to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia:" that is, most probably to the Christians in general living in different parts of these countries of Asia Minor. It is said by the Apostle to have been written from Babylon, concerning which the general opinion is that Babylon is here used figuratively for Rome.

The general design of this Epistle is, to exhort to practical virtue, to a quiet and blameless life, and to patience and fortitude under distresses and persecutions. St. Peter, after his salutation, begins with returning thanks to God for the blessing of the Gospel dispensation, which, he observes, had been distinctly foretold by the Prophets; he then exhorts his Christian brethren to holiness and purity; and represents the passion of Christ as preordained before the foundation of the world, and its benefits as extending to all eternity, chap. i.; he then proceeds to recommend meekness, self-government, and obedience to magistrates; he enforces the duties of servants, of wives, and husbands; he enjoins harmony, compassion, courtesy, a rational knowledge of the Christian faith, and a steady adherence to it under trials and temptations, chap. ii, iii.; from a consideration of the last judgment he inculcates sobriety, devotion, and universal benevolence; and encourages the Christians to bear afflictions with resignation and cheerfulness, chap. iv.; and in the last chapter he gives directions for the conduct of persons of different ages and situations; recommends mutual subjection, humility, and vigilance; and adds a general benediction and doxology, chap. v.

This Epistle is very generally admired as a composition: Erasmus says, that it is full of Apostolical dignity and majesty; and Ostervald calls it one of the finest works of the New Testament. Whoever will compare this Epistle with those of St. Paul, will find so exact a conformity between the sentiments and precepts contained in them, that he will be convinced, as Estius observes, that the doctrine of both proceeded from one and the same Spirit of God. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

CHAP. I.

1 He blesseth God for his manifold spiritual graces: 10 shewing that the salvation in Christ is no news, but a thing prophesied of old: 13 and exhorteth them accordingly to a godly conversation, forasmuch as they are now born anew by the word of God.

Chap. I. After the direction and salutation, the Apostle blesseth God for the great mercies and privileges of the Gospel religion: he comforts both Jewish and Gentile Christians under their present persecutions from the sense of those happy blessings, and the truth and certainty of them, as foretold by the ancient Prophets, and now exactly fulfilled: he exhorts them to the pure and steady practice of their religion, from the great consideration of their redemption by the blood of Jesus Christ. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, &c.] The Apostle writes especially to the dispersion of the Jews, to whom the word "strangers," or foreigners, here chiefly belongs: including also many devout Greeks and proselytes of the Gentiles, converted with them to the Christian faith. Compare chap. i. 18; ii. 10; iv. 3—5. Dr. Whitby, Pyle.

For the situation of the countries here mentioned see the map of places mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles.

2. Elect] All you that have embraced the gracious covenant of the Gospel. Pyle. "Elect," that is, chosen to peculiar privileges and blessings. In this view the word is used for professed believers, or Christians, whether originally Gentiles or Jews, who are therefore called by St. Peter, chap. ii. 9, "a chosen (or elect) generation," that is, chosen to be God's peculiar people, as the Jews anciently were. Compare Deut. iv. 37; vii. 7; x. 15; xiv. 2; 1 Kings iii. 8; Ps. cxxxv. 4; Is. xli. 8, 9; Jer. xxxiii. 24. By the apostolical Fathers Christians and Christian churches are styled "elect," as opposed to unbelievers or heathens. Parkhurst. It is evident that the Apostle here refers to the calling of these men to the knowledge of the Gospel, which, like every other circumstance relative to this gracious dispensation, was foreknown by God; and that, by denominating the Christians of these five extensive countries indiscriminately "elect" and "a chosen generation," he did not mean to assert that they would all be saved; but that

PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, Anno DOMINI about 60.

2 Elect according to the foreknowledge

they were admitted to the "marvellous light" of the Gospel, while other nations were still wandering in the "darkness" of heathenism. And to put this beyond all doubt, the same persons, whom in his first Epistle he addresses as "elect according to the foreknowledge of God," in his second Epistle he addresses as "them that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ," 2 Pet. i. 1. To be elect, and to be a believer in Christ, are therefore the same thing. The whole tenor of these Epistles plainly proves, that St. Peter did not consider that the persons, to whom he wrote, must necessarily be saved: for among other precepts and exhortations he says, "Give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," 2 Pet. i. 10, 11: therefore the salvation of these "elect," of this "chosen generation," was so far from being certain, that it depended upon their own "diligence;" their "not falling" was so far from being infallibly decreed, that their "entrance into the everlasting kingdom of Christ" depended upon their doing those things which the Apostle commanded: and he even predicts, that "false teachers, who would bring in damnable heresies, denying the Lord that bought them, should make merchandise of some of them," 2 Pet. ii. 1—3; that is, should seduce them from the true faith in Christ, and consequently defeat their salvation: some therefore of these "elect" persons were not saved. At the close of his first Epistle St. Peter says, "The church that is at Babylon, elected together with you, saluteth you:" here the Apostle calls the whole church of Babylon also elect, which again proves that the word is applied generally to collective bodies of Christians, to all, who in one or more cities or countries professed Christianity, without any discrimination; and that it is not confined to individuals, who must necesof God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you, and peace, be multiplied.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his † abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

4 To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven ‖ for you,

5 Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.

6 Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations:

7 That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ:

8 Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory:

9 Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.

10 Of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you:

11 Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in

Anno DOMINI about 60.

† Gr. much.

‖ Or, for us.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

---

sarily be saved, or who were predestinated by God to certain salvation; or even to those who will actually be saved. Bp. Tomline. See the notes on 1 Thess. i. 4.

—— according to the foreknowledge of God] Discovered in the Prophetical writings, which foretold of these blessings to be conveyed to them by the Messiah, who also is said to be foreknown before the foundation of the world; see ver. 20; that is, prophesied of from the beginning, Gen. iii. 15; but manifested for them in the last times. Dr. Whitby.

This the Apostle mentions, to shew the Jews that the believing Gentiles were not intruders into the church of God. He determined from the beginning to make them His people. Dr. Macknight.

—— through sanctification of the Spirit, &c.] Through the grace of the Spirit sanctifying them, so as to enable them to be truly obedient to the Gospel, as well as believers in it; and consequently to entitle them to the benefits of the Gospel covenant, sealed as it were between God and them by the blood of Christ. Dr. Wells.

3. — hath begotten us again] That is, as we were at first begotten by our natural fathers in respect of our natural life, so by bringing us to Christianity God has begotten us again in respect of our spiritual life. Dr. Wells.

—— by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,] The resurrection of Jesus being both a proof and a pledge of our resurrection. Dr. Macknight.

5. Who are kept by the power of God through faith] Not that all, who have true faith, are kept by the power of God, so that they shall certainly continue in the faith; but that they shall be thus preserved, "if they continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not removed from the hope of the Gospel," Col. i. 23; "if they hold fast their confidence firm unto the end," Heb. iii. 6. Dr. Whitby.

—— salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.] Or day of judgment. Dr. Wells. As there is mention of a double revelation of Jesus Christ; one, when He appeared as a Prophet to the world, another, when He shall appear at the day of judgment; see ver. 7, 13; 1 Cor. i. 7; 2 Thess. i. 7; 1 Pet. iv. 13; so is there a double revelation of the salvation promised in the Gospel; one, by the preaching of the Gospel, which "brought life and immortality to light," 2 Tim. i. 10; and a farther revelation of it to be made hereafter, "when Christ who is our life shall appear," Col. iii. 3, 4; 1 John iii. 2; styled "the glory that shall be revealed, when the great Shepherd shall appear," 1 Pet. v. 1, 4; "the glory which shall be revealed at the redemption of our bodies," Rom. viii. 18, 23. Dr. Whitby.

6. — if need be,] If God sees it best for you. Dr. Wells. This is a great consolation under all the afflictions of God's servants, that they shall then only suffer affliction, when God sees it needful for the promotion of His glory, or for the furtherance of our salvation: as when they tend to make us "partakers of His holiness," and to create in us "the peaceable fruit of righteousness," Heb. xii. 10, 11; or "work for us an exceeding and eternal weight of glory," 2 Cor. iv. 17; by conforming us to Him in suffering, to whom we shall be like in glory, 1 Pet. iv. 13; Rom. viii. 17; 2 Tim. ii. 11. Dr. Whitby.

8. Whom having not seen, ye love; &c.] As the happiness, which is prepared in the other world for those, who love God our Saviour in this, is so great, that no heart is able to conceive it, according as it is written, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him," 1 Cor. ii. 9; so even in this life it is so great, that no tongue is able to express it, as appears from this passage, where the Apostle, speaking of Christ to all that believe Him, having first said, "Whom having not seen, ye love," immediately adds, "In whom, though now ye see Him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory." It is joy unspeakable, while they do not see Him: what then will it be, when they do? Bp. Beveridge.

10. — who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you:] Who long ago prophesied of that abundant grace, that should be given unto His church in these times of the Gospel. Bp. Hall.

11. Searching what, or what manner of time &c.] Bending their thoughts intentively upon the earnest inquiry into the revelation of that Spirit of Christ, whereby they were informed of future things; to know when, and at what time, Christ the Messiah should come into the world, and should suffer, and should reenter into His glory. Bp. Hall.

—— the Spirit of Christ] All the ancient Fathers agree in their interpretation of this passage, that Christ spake by His Spirit in the Prophets, they being inspired with His grace, and taught by His Spirit, their words proceeded from the Divine Word moving them, and by Him they prophesied: He spake in Isaiah, in Elias, and in the mouth of the Prophets. Dr. Whitby. In the Old Testament the Prophets constantly declared, that they had received from God the prophecies which they delivered; and it is acknowledged that none but God can foretell future events. St. Peter here represents Christ as enabling the Prophets to foretell His own coming, with His sufferings, and the glory which was to succeed them: "Of which salvation the Prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you; searching what or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow." This passage, therefore, proves both the preexistence and the Divinity of Christ. The same Apostle in his other Epistle attributes these prophecies to the influence of the Holy Ghost: "Prophecy came not in old time by the will of man, but holy Anno DOMINI about 60. them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into.

13 Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope † to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ;

† Gr. perfectly.

14 As obedient children, not fashioning yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance:

Anno DOMINI about 60.

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation;

16 Because it is written, [a] Be ye holy; for I am holy.

[a] Lev. 11. 44. & 19. 2. & 20. 7.

17 And if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear:

18 Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," 2 Pet. i. 21. And thus the power of prophesying is ascribed indifferently to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost, which denotes the incomprehensible union of the three Persons of the Godhead, asserted in the 1st Article of the church. Bp. Tomline. Here St. Peter assures us, that the inspiration of the Jewish Prophets was derived from Christ. It was His Spirit who spake in them. The same Spirit He promised to His Apostles. Wherefore the Prophets and Apostles being inspired by one and the same Spirit, their doctrine must be, as in fact it is, the same. Dr. Macknight.

---

—— when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ,] That the Messiah was to suffer, was foretold in the Old Testament. "It was written of the Son of man, that He must suffer many things," Mark ix. 12; and here we read, that "the Spirit of Christ, which was in the Prophets, testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ." He was to be "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, oppressed and afflicted, wounded and bruised, brought to the slaughter, and cut off out of the land of the living," Isai. liii. The sufferings of Christ were also typified in the sacrifices of the law, and particularly in the passover. Our Saviour Himself forewarned His disciples of His passion; and St. Paul preached to the Thessalonians, that "Christ must needs have suffered," Acts xvii. 3. If hunger and thirst, if revilings and contempt, if sorrows and agonies, if stripes and buffetings, if condemnation and crucifixion, be sufferings, Jesus suffered: if the infirmities of our nature, if the weight of our sins, if the malice of man, if the machinations of Satan, if the hand of God, could make Him suffer, our Saviour suffered: if the annals of time, if the writings of His Apostles, if the death of His martyrs, if the confession of the Gentiles, if the scoffs of the Jews, be testimonies, Jesus suffered. And therefore "those things, which God before had shewed by the mouth of all His Prophets that Christ should suffer, He hath so fulfilled," Acts iii. 18. Bps. Tomline and Pearson.

12. — which things the angels desire to look into.] The wonderful mysteries of which Gospel it is no wonder if the Prophets desired to look into, whereas the very angels of heaven have longed to attain unto the knowledge and sight thereof. Bp. Hall.

And shall holy Prophets be so desirous to know the time when these things should happen, and holy angels so diligent to look into these glorious revelations; and shall we, to whom and for whose happiness this Gospel was revealed, neglect not only to obtain, but even to know, this great salvation? Dr. Whitby.

The redemption of mankind is a work, which, in the event, seems to concern men only: but, considered as a vindication of the justice and goodness of God towards His creatures, it is a work exposed to the consideration of every intelligent being in the universe. Whether they may be disposed to inquire into God's dealings with the children of men, we may judge by ourselves. It is little that we know of the fall of angels: yet how has that employed human curiosity! For every man considers himself as having an interest in the justice and equity of that Supreme Being, under whose government he lives, and by whose judgment he must finally stand or fall. If we doubt whether the superior order of beings have the like inclination; St. Peter will tell us, that "the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow, are things which the angels desire to look into." And indeed the method of God's dealing with any rational creature is a common concern to all: and it is for the honour of God's government to be vindicated in the sight of every intellectual being, "that He may be justified in His saying, and may overcome when He is judged." If this be so, it must necessarily follow, that the redemption of Christ, though it relates immediately to men, must be agreeable to all the reason and relation of things, known or discoverable by the highest intellectual beings. Bp. Sherlock.

13. — gird up the loins of your mind,] A figurative expression taken from the custom of the eastern nations, who, when they had occasion to exert themselves, as in journeying, running, and the like, used to bind up their long flowing garments by a girdle about their loins. Parkhurst.

—— for the grace that is to be brought unto you &c.] For that perfection in holiness and glory, which God will certainly give us at the glorious appearing of Jesus Christ. Burkitt.

15. But as he which hath called you is holy, &c.] The peculiar character of Christ's holiness appears plainly to be a distinction proper to Him, and to Him only. We are called upon to follow Him, to learn of Him, and to imitate Him without restriction: whereas we are required to follow the Apostles, only as they were followers of Christ, 1 Cor. xi. 1: and though we are here commanded to be "holy as He," that is, Christ, "was holy in all manner of conversation;" that does no more prove that any man can arrive at that pitch, than our being commanded to "be perfect as our Father which is in heaven is perfect," Matt. v. 48, will prove that we may become as perfect as God is: the import of these words being only this, that we ought in all things to make God and Christ our patterns, and that we ought to endeavour to imitate and resemble them all we can. Bp. Burnet. As the heathens believed their gods to be the patrons and practisers of all kinds of vice, the religious worship which they paid to their gods must have had a pernicious influence in corrupting their morals. Not so the worship, which Christians pay to the true God; who, being perfectly free from evil, and the author as well as the possessor of all moral excellence, is worthy of the imitation of His intelligent creatures. Besides, holiness is necessary to qualify us for living with God in His eternal kingdom, 2 Cor. vii. 1. Dr. Macknight.

16. Because it is written, &c.] See Lev. xi. 44; and xix. 2; and the notes there.

17. And if ye call on the Father, &c.] And if you profess to be the children of that Father, namely God, who is not partial to Jews above Gentiles, but judgeth both according to their actions, you will be concerned to walk reverently, strictly, and watchfully all your time; and being strangers among other nations, ver. 1, to behave yourselves like strangers; see chap. ii. 11. Dr. Hammond.

18. — ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, &c.] The verb, rendered "redeemed," signifies to ransom, to deliver by paying a price. Particularly, it signifies to ransom a captive from the enemy. Parkhurst. The price paid for our redemption was silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers;

Anno DOMINI about 60.

19 But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot:

20 Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you,

21 Who by him do believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.

22 Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently:

23 Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever.

24 ‖ For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away:

Anno DOMINI about 60.

‖ Or, For that.

25 But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you.

CHAP. II.

1 He dehorteth them from the breach of charity: 4 shewing that Christ is the foundation whereupon they are built. 11 He beseecheth them also to abstain from fleshly lusts, 13 to be obedient to magistrates, 18 and teacheth servants how to obey their masters, 20 patiently suffering for well doing, after the example of Christ.

WHEREFORE laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings,

2 As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby:

3 If so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious.

---

the blood of the Son of God: the captivity, from which we were redeemed, was the bondage and slavery of sin. Burkitt.

—— received by tradition from your fathers;] Or, 'delivered down from your fathers or ancestors.' Parkhurst. The Jews derived from their fathers that implicit regard for the tradition of the elders, by which they "made the commandment of God of none effect." In like manner the Gentiles derived their idolatry and other vicious practices from the teaching and example of their fathers. For, in general, as Dr. Whitby observes, the strongest argument for false religions, as well as for errours in the true, is, that men have received them from their fathers. Dr. Macknight.

22. Seeing ye have purified your souls &c.] And since you have engaged to reform your lives by obedience to this pure religion, &c. Pyle. St. Peter says, "Ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit;" that is, the purification of the souls of these Christians was in part owing to their own act in obeying the truth through the assistance of the Spirit. The same cooperation of man with the Spirit of God is acknowledged by St. Paul, when he tells the Romans, "if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live," Rom. viii. 13. And speaking of himself, he says, "whereunto I also labour, striving according to His working, which worketh in me mightily," Col. i. 29; the mighty working therefore of the Spirit did not supersede St. Paul's own "labour," his own "striving," in conjunction with, and in conformity to, that mighty working. The same Apostle prays for "the communion of the Holy Ghost," 2 Cor. xiii. 14: and both the Greek and English word imply the most intimate cooperation, and signify that the graces and virtues, on which salvation depends, are the joint or common operation of the supernatural power of the Holy Ghost, and of the natural power of man; that the Holy Ghost acts with men in such manner, that their separate or respective parts cannot be perceived or distinguished. And is not this similar to what took place in our blessed Saviour Himself? He was God and man in one Christ. He was perfect God and perfect man. Though "in Him dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily," Col. ii. 9, yet "He was in all things made like unto His brethren," Heb. ii. 17; and "was in all points tempted like as we are," Heb. iv. 15. We Christians are imperfect men, improved and assisted by that portion of Divine grace, which it pleases God to bestow on us. To Christ God "gave not the Spirit by measure," John iii. 34: he "divideth it to every man severally as He will," 1 Cor. xii. 11. The thoughts, words, and actions of Christ proceeded from the union of His Divine and human natures; and the graces and virtues of Christians proceed from the joint and common operation of the natural power of man with the supernatural power of the Holy Ghost, for "of His fulness have all we received," John i. 16. Though Christ consisted both of a Divine and of a human nature, we find Him in Scripture frequently called God, without any reference to His human nature, and frequently man, without any reference to His Divine nature. In like manner as the good works of men are the joint effect of Divine and human agency, we sometimes find them in Scripture ascribed to God alone, without any reference to man, and sometimes to man alone, without any reference to God. The texts, which separately assert or imply the Godhead and manhood of Christ, become perfectly consistent with each other, by considering that Christ was both God and man: and a similar principle, namely, that the grace of God cooperates with the freewill of men, can alone reconcile the numerous texts, both preceptive and declaratory, which relate to human conduct, and which separately assert the Divine and human agency. Bp. Tomline.

24. For all flesh is as grass, &c.] See Isai. xl. 6—8; and the note on the context there from Bp. Lowth.

Chap. II. The loving and charitable temper, spoken of chap. i. 22, is here farther and particularly recommended, from the great example of Christ, and the blessings of His religion. The believing Gentiles are received into its privileges, whilst the unbelieving Jews are rejected, according to the Scripture prophecies. The Jewish Christians are exhorted to pay all due obedience to the emperour and his officers, as obliged thereto by their Christianity, and as the only means to avoid the scandalous character of being seditious, as the Gentiles were apt to represent Christians in common with the Jewish nation. Christian servants or slaves are obliged to serve and respect even their heathen masters, though severe towards them, for their religion's sake; encouraged thereto by the example of Christ's meekness and patience under His sufferings. Pyle.

Ver. 2. As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, &c.] Being thus regenerated by the Christian faith, as newborn children are to be fed with the most simple and harmless diet, so ought you to put in practice the pure and reasonable precepts of the Gospel, whereby you may improve in all virtue and holiness. Pyle. The early Christians administered milk and honey, which was the ordinary food of infants, to such as were newly received into the church; shewing them by this sign, that by their baptism they were born again, and were bound to manifest the sin-

Anno DOMINI about 60.

4 To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious,

‖ Or, be ye built.

5 Ye also, as lively stones, ‖ are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

6 Wherefore also it is contained in the [a] Is. 28. 16. scripture, [a] Behold, I lay in Sion a chief corner stone, elect, precious: and he that believeth on him shall not be confounded.

‖ Or, an honour.

7 Unto you therefore which believe he is ‖ precious: but unto them which be disobedient, [b] the stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner,

Anno DOMINI about 60.

[b] Ps. 118. 22. Matt. 21. 42. Acts 4. 11.

8 [c] And a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence, even to them which stumble at the word, being disobedient: whereunto also they were appointed.

[c] Is. 8. 14.

9 But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, ‖ a peculiar people; that ye should shew forth the ‖ praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light:

‖ Or, a purchased people. ‖ Or, virtues.

10 [d] Which in time past were not a peo-

[d] Hos. 2. 23.

---

plicity and innocence of infants in their lives and conversations. Mosheim.

4. — a living stone,] The Christian church being not a building made up of materials without life, as was the temple of Jerusalem, but a spiritual building, consisting of the members of Christ's body, living by the Spirit communicated to them from Christ, their head, and the fountain of life, Eph. iv. 16; Col. ii. 19: He, who communicates this life to them, is therefore styled "a living stone," and they who receive it from Him are also styled "living stones;" and being by this Spirit thus fitly put together, compacted, and edified into one building, Rom. xiv. 19; 1 Thess. v. 11, they are said to be built up "a spiritual house." Dr. Whitby.

The Apostle here calls Jesus Christ "a living stone," to shew that this is only a metaphorical expression, denoting His firmness and stability, together with the great need there is of Him in erecting the house here spoken of; but that He is not such a stone, as those we see upon earth, that are all without sense and life, but "a living stone;" a stone that hath life in itself, and gives life to all that come unto Him, and are built upon Him. And therefore the Apostle having said, "To whom coming as unto a living stone," he adds, "Ye also as lively," or rather, 'as living' "stones, are built up a spiritual house." He is such a living stone Himself, that He makes them also, who come unto Him, to be so: who therefore as such are built up a spiritual house; an house of God, a temple, wherein the living God Himself is pleased to dwell, according to what the Apostle saith to the saints at Corinth, 1 Cor. iii. 16; vi. 19; and to those at Ephesus, Eph. ii. 19, &c. Whence we see that the whole communion of saints, the body of Christ, are the spiritual house spoken of in this passage: "the house of God" or "His habitation," by reason of His Spirit dwelling in them. And therefore they are all of the same houshold, "the houshold of God," as it is here called, and elsewhere "the houshold of faith," Gal. vi. 10; because it is by faith that they are built upon Christ, the foundation of this house. Hence it is, that they are all advised to "build up" one another "in their most holy faith," Jude 20. And the Apostle often speaks of "edifying the church," "edifying the body of Christ," "edifying one another in love," that "all things may be done to edifying," and the like. All which expressions have relation to this spiritual house, denoting the necessity of our being edified or built up in faith and love, so that we may be real parts of it, and grow up into a holy temple in the Lord. Bp. Beveridge. See the note from Bp. Sanderson on 1 Cor. x. 23.

—— disallowed indeed] Or "rejected of men," that is, the Jewish Sanhedrim, the builders mentioned Ps. cxviii. 22, according to our Lord's exposition of the words, Matt. xxi. 42, 45; Luke xx. 17, 19. Dr. Whitby.

5. — an holy priesthood,] The legal sacrifices were to be offered by the priests alone, and only in the temple: accordingly the Christian church is here represented as God's temple; the praises which Christians offer up to God in their assemblies are styled "spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ;" the persons who offer them, "an holy priesthood." Dr. Whitby.

In every temple of the Lord it is necessary that there be likewise a priesthood, to offer sacrifices suitable to such a temple. And so there is here. For the Apostle having said, that the saints are a "spiritual house" or temple, adds, that they are also "an holy priesthood." As they are 'the living stones,' of which this temple is composed or consisteth, so they are likewise all of the order of priesthood, "an holy priesthood," proper for such an house, where the most holy God resideth. This was first revealed in the Old Testament, where God said, "His people should be unto Him a kingdom of priests," Exod. xix. 6: a kingdom, wherein all the subjects are both kings and priests; or, as St. Peter a few verses below expresses it, "a royal priesthood," ver. 9. And how they came to be so, we learn from St. John, saying, that "Jesus Christ hath made us kings and priests unto God and His Father," Rev. i. 6; v. 10: as He gives His saints "a kingdom," so He consecrates them all to be "priests;" not such as were under the law, when the priesthood was confined to one family, and offered up only carnal sacrifices; but they are "an holy priesthood," ordained to "offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." Bp. Beveridge.

6. Wherefore also it is contained in the scripture,] Or foretold that God did intend to introduce the present Gospel dispensation by Christ, in those words of the Prophet Isaiah, chap. xxviii, 16. Dr. Wells. See the notes there.

8. And a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence,] See Isaiah, as referred to in the margin. "The stone of stumbling and rock of offence," as the Prophet affirms, is the Lord of hosts Himself; But this "stone of stumbling and rock of offence," as asserted by the Apostle, is no other than Christ, the same stone which the builders refused. Therefore Christ is the Lord of hosts Himself. If the Scripture, thus compared with itself, be drawn up into an argument, the conclusion may indeed be denied, and so may the whole Bible, but it cannot be answered. Jones of Nayland.

—— whereunto also they were appointed.] That is, saith Dr. Hammond, they who disobey the Gospel, who stand out obstinately against it, were appointed by God to stumble and fall at that stone; that is, to be bruised and ruined by that means, to be destroyed among the crucifiers of the Messiah, and condemned with them hereafter: it being just with God, that they, who will not reform and amend at the preaching of the Gospel, and so receive benefit by it, should for their obstinacy be condemned, and so be the worse for it. And certainly it cannot signify, that the unbelieving Jews were appointed unto disobedience; but only, that being disobedient to the Gospel, so clearly revealed and confirmed by so many miracles and signs of the Holy Ghost, they were appointed, as the punishment of that disobedience, to fall and perish. Dr. Whitby.

Not, appointed to be disobedient; but appointed, since they would be disobedient, to take their own course, and the consequences of it: to stumble and fall at difficulties, of which they would easily have seen the proper solution, and so got over them unhurt, had they but modestly begged, and dutifully followed, the Divine illumination. Abp. Secker.

9. But ye are a chosen generation, &c.] The titles here given to the Christians are the same, which formerly were given to the whole Jewish nation; but which, the Apostle says, now belong to the Christians in a much better and truer sense than ever they did to the Jews. Dr. Whitby, Pyle.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

ple, but are now the people of God: which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

11 Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul;

12 Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles: that, ‖ whereas they speak against you as evildoers, they may by your good works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation.

‖ Or, wherein.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

13 Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme;

14 Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well.

15 For so is the will of God, that with

11. — I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, &c.] Consider that your citizenship is in another world, and in this you are but passengers; do not therefore gratify those sensual appetites, which aim at present enjoyments, and are opposite to those desires of the soul, that place and seek their true happiness in heaven. Dean Stanhope.

They, whose citizenship is in heaven, Phil. iii. 20, must be pilgrims and strangers upon earth. Dr. Whitby.

The proper meaning of these words is to be found from the first chapter, ver. 17, where the Apostle thus exhorts: "If ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear." It is plain that St. Peter here calls the time of life the time of our "sojourning here;" and consequently reckons us to be strangers and pilgrims as long as we are in this world. In the same sense the Apostle to the Hebrews speaks of the saints of old: see Heb. xi. 13. This notion extends to all mankind, and shews that the Apostle looked upon them all as "strangers and pilgrims on the earth:" consequently the exhortation founded upon this notion extends to all alike, and reaches as far as the obligations of mortality reach. And this consideration, placed in this view, has great weight in it, with respect to all who have faith enough to "desire a better, that is, an heavenly country," and to know themselves to be but only passengers through this world, and on their way to "a city prepared for them." This is putting all our hopes and fears, with respect to futurity, in balance against the solicitations of sensual pleasure: this is appealing to our reason, to shew us how absurd it is to give ourselves up to momentary enjoyments in a place where we have no certain abode, at the hazard of forfeiting our right to that country where we have an inheritance which shall endure for ever. Bp. Sherlock.

12. — whereas they speak against you as evildoers,] The enemies of the Christians, to enrage not only the magistrates against them, but all who had any regard to the interests of society, represented them as atheists, and enemies of mankind, because they would not comply with the common idolatry, nor obey the heathen magistrates in things contrary to their religion. They calumniated them also, as movers of sedition, and as addicted to every species of wickedness. To wipe off these foul aspersions, St. Peter earnestly beseeches the brethren of Pontus, &c. to behave both towards the magistrates and towards their heathen neighbours in a blameless manner, and to be remarkable for every virtue; that by their general good behaviour they might make their enemies ashamed of the calumnies which they uttered against them. Dr. Macknight.

—— in the day of visitation.] That is, when they afflict and persecute you. Dr. Whitby. Whenever you are called to account before the Roman judicatures. Pyle.

As the glory of God's wisdom, power, and goodness, shines forth in His creation and government of the world, so the glory of His mercy also and truth shines forth in the redemption of mankind, and in all the good works they do in order to the attainment of it. For, seeing they do them all only by His assistance, the glory of them must needs redound to Him. Bp. Beveridge.

13. Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man &c.] Be obedient to every governour, even to every heathen governour, upon obligation of conscience, because he is instituted by God: and this, whether to Cesar the emperour in the first place, as the supreme; or in the next place, and in subordination to him, to proconsuls and procurators, by commission appointed by him, for the keeping of courts, for punishing malefactors, and rewarding and encouraging the obedient. Dr. Hammond.

St. Paul saith, "The powers that be, are ordained of God," Rom. xiii. 1; and yet St. Peter calleth the magistracy an human ordinance. Certainly the Holy Spirit of God, which speaketh in these two great Apostles, is not contrary to itself. The truth is, the substance of the power of every magistrate is the ordinance of God; and that is St. Paul's meaning: but the specification of the circumstances thereto belonging, as in regard of places, persons, titles, continuance, jurisdiction, subordination, and the rest, is, as St. Peter termeth it, an human ordinance, introduced by custom or positive law. Bp. Sanderson.

It had been for some time an opinion too prevalent among the Jews, that they, as the peculiar people of God, could not be bound in conscience to obey any foreign jurisdiction exercised by heathens and idolaters, such as the Romans, their then conquerors, were. The greater part of the persons, as yet gained over to the faith of the Gospel, were such as had been trained up in the Jewish persuasion: men, who still retained so profound a veneration for their former principles, that the Apostles found great difficulty in bringing them off clear from such notions, inconsistent with their new profession. It does not appear that the Christians truly orthodox gave occasion for any jealousy in this respect; but it is plain that the persecutors and opposers of the Gospel, looking perhaps upon Christians as a sect of the Jews, were willing to fix the same odious character on them, and pretended to regard them as enemies of the state. We find the authors of all the ancient apologies for our religion particularly careful to wipe off this calumny, and to prove the Gospel the greatest security to all temporal jurisdiction, the best promoter and preserver of publick order, the support of kings, and the most effectual restraint on subjects. And accordingly St. Peter, having first enjoined such a behaviour in general, as might secure Christians a good esteem with heathens, and convince them that all the ill reports concerning the men of this persuasion were utter calumny and malicious falsehood; then, as the best expedient for this purpose, proceeds upon submission to supreme and subordinate magistrates; enforcing this, as a singular instance of "well-doing," most agreeable to the will of God; most effectual for stopping the mouths, and rectifying the mistakes, of such as did not, or would not, truly understand the nature and extent of Christian liberty. And thus he at last descends to specify the several duties incumbent upon men, according to their respective capacities and mutual relations to each other. Dean Stanhope.

By St. Paul we are told, "There is no power but of God; the powers that be," the powers subsisting, "are ordained of God." So far as relates to the different modes, by which in different constitutions rulers become invested with their power, so far government is, what St. Peter here styles it, "an ordinance of man," regulated by human laws. But when, by rulers becoming so invested, government commences and is in force, it must be submitted to "for the Lord's sake;" not only through fear of punishment, but because God, who is "the great King over all the earth," has commanded us, for the peace of the world and the comfort of society, to consider our governours as armed with His authority, and to be subject to them as to Himself. Resistance to them will be accounted as resistance to Him. Bp. Horne.

15. For so is the will of God,] The principle to be collected from this and other texts upon the subject, is plainly this: that well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men:

Anno DOMINI about 60.

† Gr. having.

16 As free, and not † using your liberty for a cloke of maliciousness, but as the servants of God.

|| Or, Esteem.

17 || Honour all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the king.

18 Servants, be subject to your masters with all fear; not only to the good and gentle, but also to the froward.

19 For this is thankworthy, if a man for conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

20 For what glory is it, if, when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is || acceptable with God.

|| Or, thank.

21 For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered || for us, leav-

|| Some read, for you.

---

the law of God enjoins obedience to every government, settled according to the constitution of the country in which it subsists; and that, even though the governour should be elected by the people: as, in less matters, a man is free to choose that master, into whose service he will enter; but, when he is once entered, the Scriptures press on him thenceforth the several duties which a servant owes to his master. Obedience, in short, is enjoined to the civil magistrate, under whatever form of government we happen to live; nor does that obedience extend to the relinquishing of those rights which the citizen may legally claim. St. Paul himself at Philippi refused to comply with the directions intimated by the magistrates, unless the magistrates themselves would by a mark of respect make him amends for the illegality of their proceedings, in punishing him uncondemned, Acts xvi. 37; of the centurion, who was standing near, when he was about to be scourged, he demanded the privilege due to a Roman citizen, Acts xxii. 25; and when Festus proposed his trial to be held at Jerusalem, the Apostle boldly made his appeal to Cesar, as every Roman citizen might do, Acts xxv. 11. These claims of civil privileges do not indicate unconditional submission to power illegally exercised; but refer us, for the practice of our duty in particular cases, to the laws and constitution of our country. Bp. Horne.

16. — for a cloke of maliciousness,] Or a pretence of doing wickedly in rebelling and the like. Dr. Wells. Many of the Jews rebelled against the Romans, and against the governours sent by them, upon this very pretence, that they were a free people, and ought to preserve their liberty. And thus they "used their liberty for a cloke of maliciousness." Dr. Whitby.

17. Honour all men. &c.] Give every man the respect and kindness due to him. Love all your fellow Christians. Fear God: and, in subordination to Him, pay all obedience to the emperour. Dr. Hammond. This last duty consists in reverencing the persons of our governours, in obeying their lawful commands, in a cheerful payment of their dues, in praying affectionately for them, and in praising God for the blessing of their government. Nero, the worst of kings, and the persecutor of the Christians, was then upon the throne; yet the command is express to honour him. From the connexion of the two precepts, "Fear God, Honour the king," it may be remarked, that religion best qualifies persons to be good subjects; that this is the true and steady principle of loyalty; and that obedience to governours is firm and durable, when it is established on a conscientious regard to the command of God. Burkitt.

18. Servants, be subject to your masters with all fear;] In the time when the Gospel was first preached, servants for the most part were slaves; and, as many of these were converted to Christianity with or without their masters, it was to be feared lest they should take too much upon them, and think too well of themselves, by entering into a religion, which commanded all men to treat one another as brethren. This might have brought a discredit on the Gospel, and have been an hindrance to its progress. Therefore St. Peter and St. Paul earnestly exhort servants or slaves to obey their masters, and to be industrious and honest, and dutifully to serve, not only the just and gentle, but the harsh and froward. The law of nature knows no such thing as slavery, for by nature all men are free and equal: but by the civil laws, and by the practice of nations, it was established, and it still continues amongst those who know not the Gospel; and, the more is the shame and the pity, it is to be found in some places where Christianity is professed. The religion of Christ, when it first made its progress in the world, left the civil laws of nations in a great measure as it found them, lest by altering or repealing them, it should bring confusion and disturbance into human society: but as by its own genius and tendency, it leads men gently back to the precepts of nature and equity, to kindness and to mercy, it put an end by degrees, in most civilized places, to that excessive distance and difference between masters and slaves, which owed its origin to outrage and war, to violence and calamity: so that in Christian countries the service which is performed is usually, as it ought to be, voluntary and by agreement. But what the writers of the New Testament have said concerning slaves, holds true concerning hired servants, and all those who are employed in other denominations under a master; that they discharge their office modestly, diligently, and willingly, and act with faithfulness and integrity in every thing that is committed to them. Dr. Jortin.

—— but also to the froward.] In this verse the Apostle establishes one of the most noble and most important principles of morality; namely, that our obligation to relative duties does not depend, either on the character of the persons to whom they are to be performed, or on their performance of the duties which they owe to us; but on the unalterable relations of things established by God. Dr. Macknight.

19. For this is thankworthy, &c.] This will procure the Divine favour and reward. So the phrase, "what thank have ye?" Luke vi. 32, 33, is "what reward have ye?" Matt. v. 46. In the following verse, the same original expression is translated, "this is acceptable." Dr. Whitby.

To suffer meekly, and without blame, and to do this out of a sense of the resignation due to the will of God, is a virtue which He kindly accepts, and will not fail to reward. Dean Stanhope.

21. For even hereunto were ye called: &c.] This suffering patiently, not only when ye do well, but even for doing well, as hard as it may appear, is yet exactly agreeable to your profession. This supposes you to be followers of Christ; and never was there such a perfect pattern of this virtue: so perfect innocence, ver. 22, and so perfect patience, ver. 23. Dean Stanhope.

Although the example of our Saviour be here set before us with a special regard to the particular virtue of patience under unjust sufferings, yet ought it to be extended to all graces and duties, and improved as a pattern for the love and practice of universal holiness, as exemplified most perfectly in His life. Burkitt.

By becoming man, our Saviour was capable of becoming the most complete and engaging pattern of virtue to man. The example of the invisible God might seem too high and too remote from our view. The examples of men were all, in one respect or another, faulty, and likely to mislead us. But our blessed Saviour, by joining in His own person perfection with humanity, gives us the most encouraging invitation to endeavour at doing so too, according to our power. He "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin," Heb. iv. 15; "to leave us an example, that we might follow His steps." But in particular He hath set us the brightest example of that excellent virtue, humility, that ever was, or could be; to this intent, that "the same mind might be in us, which was in Him, who being in the form of God, took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men," Phil. ii. 5—7. Of mutual love also He hath set before us the most amiable pattern, by this amazing proof of His love to mankind. He, who "was rich" in all the glories of God, "became ing us an example, that ye should follow his steps:

Anno DOMINI about 60.

22 Who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth:

23 Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but ‖ committed himself to him that judgeth righteously:

‖ Or, committed his cause.

24 Who his own self bare our sins in his own body ‖ on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.

‖ Or, to.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

25 For ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.

CHAP. III.

1 He teacheth the duty of wives and husbands to each other, 8 exhorting all men to unity and love, 14 and to suffer persecution. 19 He declareth also the benefits of Christ toward the old world.

poor for our sakes, that we, through His poverty, might become rich" in heavenly blessings, 2 Cor. viii. 9. He, who was exempted from all suffering, suffered every thing terrible in life and death for our good. Surely these are powerful motives, both to give up, and to do, and undergo, whatever we are called to, for our brethren; and to "love one another, as He hath loved us," John xv. 12. His resignation likewise, His meekness, His zeal, His prudence, every one of His virtues, (and His whole character was composed of virtues,) are most useful lessons, derived from His appearing in our nature, that in a very peculiar manner command our attention, and require our imitation. Abp. Secker.

A powerful motive to resignation is the behaviour of our Lord, which we who bear the honourable name of Christians should be ambitious to imitate. Would we learn to act as we ought under the evils, which may probably some time or other overtake us; we need no other book besides the New Testament, and no other example than our Saviour's, to instruct us. His sufferings, and conduct under them, is one of the most agreeable and most useful meditations that can occupy our minds, especially if we ourselves are in any of the same hard circumstances. To reflect then upon the majestick and resplendent parts of His life and character, affords not the same relief to a dejected mind. To view Him commanding all nature, saying to the sea and to the winds, "Peace, be still;" and to the dead, "Come forth;" to view Him striking to the ground those who came to take Him, by only saying, "I am He;" and rising triumphant from the grave, and ascending in the clouds of heaven: to view Him thus will excite our reverence, and confirm our belief in Him: but there is nothing in all this that we can imitate and apply to ourselves. It is more pleasing to view Him where He appears as one of us, as much distressed and as little regarded as any of us can be; to consider Him possessing nothing, and attended with a few friends almost as poor as Himself; enduring hunger, thirst, cold, and weariness; slandered and reviled, despised and betrayed, scourged and crucified; to consider Him bearing affliction, not with stoical scorn and unconcern, as though He neither felt pain nor was sensible of injuries, but deeply affected with fear and horrour, with sorrow and despondency; bending to the earth under the heavy hand of God, offering up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears, and almost asking what, as He well knew, was not to be obtained; to see Him thus compassed about, as with afflictions, so also with human infirmities; to see Him in all these trials persisting in an uniform obedience to God, exercising the utmost charity and long-suffering towards men, towards His enemies and persecutors; encountering evils most disagreeable to human nature with patience and silent meekness, without repining and without murmuring: in these things He is to us an example, not so vastly above us; an example, which by the assistance of God we may hope, though not to equal, yet in some degree to resemble. The Apostles recommend it to us, supposing that we may come somewhat near to it. They exhort us in general to live as He lived, in particular to imitate the humility, patience, and resignation, which He shewed when "He suffered for us, leaving us an example that we should follow His steps." Dr. Jortin.

Our Lord was, as our Church well expresses it in one of her Collects, "both a sacrifice for sin, and also an ensample of godly life." By His sacrifice He procured us grace to follow His example, which otherwise would have been proposed to us in vain: by His example He shewed us how to make a right use of that grace, which unless we do, it is given in vain. So that if he, who regards Him as an example, and not as a Redeemer, will be lost, because he cannot follow Him, he who takes Him for a Redeemer, and not for an example, will be lost, because he does not follow Him, since redemption was in order to holiness: and although it be most certain, that without Christ no man can attain unto holiness, yet it is no less certain that "without holiness no man shall see the Lord." He only is fully and effectually redeemed, and has evidence to assure him of it, who bears stamped on his soul the image and superscription of his Saviour. Bp. Horne.

22. Who did no sin, &c.] This is an allusion to Isaiah's prophecy of the Messiah, "Because He had done no violence, neither was any deceit in His mouth." Our Lord's absolute freedom from sin is asserted by the other inspired writers also, 2 Cor. v. 21; Heb. vii. 28; 1 John iii. 5. It was asserted likewise by Himself once and again, John viii. 46; xiv. 30: and it is fully verified by the history of His life. Dr. Macknight.

24, 25. Who his own self bare our sins &c.] They were our sins, not His own, that He died for; and He died in the quality of a sacrifice, to bear the punishment of them, and to make the atonement for them: the end of which sacrifice we do by no means answer, unless we mortify the power of sin, as He bore the penalty of it. So exactly did He fulfil the prophecy of Isaiah, in his 53d chapter, both as to the lost condition you formerly were in, and as to the method of recovering you out of it.

A consideration of the purpose, for which our Saviour suffered, should be matter of great consolation to us, when we meditate upon His sufferings, and cause us to mingle tears of joy with those of grief. The latter we should be insensible not to pay to the excruciating agonies of our beloved Master: the former we should be unthankful, and cruel to ourselves, not to give to the happy effects of the misery, which He so graciously condescended to undergo for us. But, to make both effectual, let us, inflamed with zeal, and gratitude, and love unfeigned, endeavour for our own particular, and most devoutly beg for the rest, as the best of churches teaches us, that the innumerable benefits of this precious bloodshedding may have their full extent and free course: that "we and the whole church of Christ may receive remission of sins," and all the other blessed effects of His passion; that He, who "hath made a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world," would cause His way to be known, and shew His saving health, to the yet dark and unbelieving nations: and that all, who do already know it, may walk worthy of their knowledge, and of the high vocation wherewith they are called. And O, that the death, tasted by our Redeemer for every man, may be effectual to the saving of every man! Even so, blessed Jesus, "by Thine agony and bloody sweat, by Thy cross and passion, good Lord, deliver us." Dean Stanhope.

Chap. III. The Apostle teaches, that differences in religious principles ought not to be a pretence for Christian husbands or wives to withdraw the duties of that relation even from heathens, to whom they are married. The Christian wife ought to endeavour to win over such husband to the Christian faith, by the singular kindness of her behaviour, her modest garb, and virtuous conversation. The Christian husband should do the same towards such wife, by expressions of the utmost tenderness and affection. Unanimity, candour, peace, and justice, are then recommended upon the same reasons of interest and duty, as in the foregoing chapter,

Anno DOMINI about 60.

LIKEWISE, ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands; that, if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives;

2 While they behold your chaste conversation coupled with fear.

3 Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel;

4 But let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.

5 For after this manner in the old time the holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves, being in subjection unto their own husbands:

6 Even as Sara obeyed Abraham, calling him lord: whose † daughters ye are, as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

† Gr. children.

7 Likewise, ye husbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered.

8 Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, ‖ love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous:

‖ Or, loving to the brethren.

9 Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing: but contrariwise blessing; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing.

10 For [a] he that will love life, and see

[a] Ps. 34. 12, &c.

---

especially that of the example of Christ, who is now exalted to be our powerful Head and Saviour. Particularly to engage Christians to suffer persecutions patiently, and to make an open profession of the Gospel, the Apostle tells them what Christ had suffered to atone for the sins of mankind, and to bring to God the Gentiles and people who were in bondage to sin and ignorance; that entering into the church by baptism, and becoming new creatures, they might be saved; as Noah and his family had been formerly in the ark at the time of the flood. Pyle, Ostervald.

Ver. 1. — that, if any obey not the word, &c.] That the husbands, who are not converted to Christianity by the Gospel preached to them, may by the amiable behaviour of their wives, which they are taught by Christianity, be, without any more preaching, wrought on, and converted to the faith. Dr. Hammond.

2. — coupled with fear.] Joined with a reverent awe and due respect to themselves as your head. Bp. Hall. This is similar to St. Paul's precept, Eph. v. 33, "And the wife see that she reverence her husband." The original expressions correspond with each other. Dr. Macknight.

3. Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning &c.] The negation here is not absolute but comparative. The Apostle does not absolutely forbid the wearing of ornaments or costly apparel by persons, to whose state in life they are suitable; but he forbids pride and vanity, affectation and ostentation, in wearing them. As if he had said, God will have the hidden man of your heart adorned with grace, and delights more to see that, than your bodies adorned with precious jewels and costly apparel. Burkitt.

'Let not their adorning be what is outward only:' the word 'only' may be supplied, agreeably to the known phraseology of Scripture, and to the nature of the precept. For we cannot suppose that the Apostle forbids Christian women to adorn themselves with apparel suitable to their station, any more than our Lord forbade His disciples to labour for the meat that perisheth, John vi. 27. His meaning was, that the disciples were not to labour for the meat that perisheth only; but also for the meat enduring to everlasting life. And so in the present case. Dr. Macknight. Compare 1 Tim. ii. 9, 10; and see the note there.

To modesty in our words and actions is to be joined moderation in our apparel, and consequently in our furniture and in all our expenses. Of this St. Peter and St. Paul make some mention, and observe at the same time, that the endowments of the mind are the best and fairest ornament. No precise bounds can be fixed to duties of this kind, and a reasonable latitude must be left for compliance with custom. The best general rule is to follow the example of those of our own rank and condition, who are accounted wise, and prudent, and free from vanity and extravagance. And these restrictions cannot be called rigid and severe, since they only forbid a profusion which is attended with numberless evils. Dr. Jortin.

4. But let it be the hidden man of the heart,] But let their chief ornaments be in the inward disposition of a holy and good heart; in those Christian virtues and graces, which are not subject to corruption. Bp. Hall.

6. — calling him lord:] Calling him by a title of honour, not of equality. Dr. Hammond. In token of subjection to him, as her husband. Dr. Whitby.

—— and are not afraid with any amazement.] That is, are not moved by your fears to deny the truth, as she was, for "she was afraid," Gen. xviii. 15. Dr. Whitby. See the note there from Bp. Kidder. Whose daughters ye are, if ye follow her example in well doing, boldly and constantly; and not in those weak fears, to which she yielded, and was drawn into inconvenience and dissimulation thereby. Bp. Hall. Or, the 5th and 6th verses may be thus paraphrased: In this you will truly imitate those famous women, that were wives of the patriarchs, and mothers of your nation: you will approve yourselves the genuine daughters of Sarah, that dutiful spouse of faithful Abraham, so long as you keep firm to your duty, and be discouraged from no instance of it by any present dangers and inconveniences. Pyle.

7. — according to knowledge,] That is, as becomes wise and understanding men, who are well acquainted with their duty, and as the rule of Christianity directs. Burkitt.

—— giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel,] Giving unto them all tender and due respects, as those towards whom, by reason of the weakness of their sex, all gentle and favourable usage is required of you. Bp. Hall.

—— and as being heirs together of the grace of life; &c.] Looking upon a Christian wife in the notion of an heiress of the same heavenly happiness with himself, and endeavouring to render an unbelieving one so, by converting her to the faith by this virtuous and obliging carriage towards her: that so their religious devotions be not hindered by any differences in principles, or disagreement of tempers. Pyle.

9. — knowing that ye are thereunto called, &c.] Remembering and considering the example given you by Christ, and the obligation that lies on you as Christians, Matt. v. 44; that so by doing good and blessing others, you may receive a blessing from God in this and in another life. Dr. Hammond.

10. For he that will love life,] The Apostle here urges in favour of the virtues recommended by him, that by these the comforts of life will be secured, ver. 10, 11; the favour of God engaged, ver. 12; and the malice of men in a great measure disarmed, ver. 13, &c.: arguments of great weight and importance. Dr. Doddridge. As if he had said, Besides, such meekness is the best expedient to secure your peace and quiet with men, as well as protection and favour with God. Dean Stanhope.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile:

11 Let him eschew evil, and do good; let him seek peace, and ensue it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is † against them that do evil.

† Gr. upon.

13 And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?

14 But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and [b] be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled;

[b] Is. 8. 12, 13.

15 But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and ‖ fear:

Anno DOMINI about 60.

‖ Or, reverence.

16 Having a good conscience; that, whereas they speak evil of you, as of evil doers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ.

17 For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well doing, than for evil doing.

18 For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit:

19 By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison;

---

11. Let him eschew evil, &c.] Abstaining from all sin, abounding in works of mercy, seeking and pursuing all peaceableness with all men. Dr. Hammond.

13. And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?] As if he had said, So long as you carry yourselves graciously and wisely, if the hearts of your enemies will not be so far wrought upon as to love and affect you, yet their mouths will be closed and their hands manacled from breaking out into any outrageous terms or actions of open hostility; so that you shall enjoy your peace with them in some measure. Though they mean you no good, yet they shall do you no harm. Bp. Sanderson.

14. — be not afraid of their terror,] Whatsoever dangers you are threatened with by the power of your persecutors, be not afraid or disturbed with it. Dr. Hammond. The phrase is an Hebraism, meaning, Be not affected with the fear which they endeavour to raise in you by their threatenings. Isaiah gave this exhortation to the Israelites, when threatened with an invasion by the Assyrians, Isaiah viii. 12. Dr. Macknight.

15. But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts:] But give ye unto God in your hearts that honour which is due unto Him, in trusting to His promises, and steadfastly relying upon His providence. Bp. Hall.

That which Christians, when persecuted and injured, have to do, is not to let any of those despondencies overwhelm their spirits, which their oppressors are labouring to drive them to; and which they, who have none but human helps to depend upon, find it impossible to bear up against. They must "sanctify the Lord God in their hearts:" that is, testify their belief of His glorious attributes to all the world. And this is done, when they depend upon His power to extricate them out of difficulties otherwise invincible; and so flee to, and rest upon, Him as a sure sanctuary: when they refer to His wisdom and justice the season and the methods of executing vengeance upon those wicked men, who smite down His people and trouble His faithful ones: when, notwithstanding any delays in the accomplishment, they buoy up their sinking spirits with the certainty of His promises; and lastly, be the event of things at present what it will, when they steadfastly adhere to their duty, at the expense of all that the world counts dear, and will not be prevailed upon for any terms to incur His displeasure. Men of this disposition do Him true honour: and, as they may reasonably hope that "His eyes will be" always "over them, and His ears open unto their prayers," Ps. xxxiv. 15, so are they in the true frame of mind for offering up to Him their prayers; especially the prayer of our Church, in her Collect for the fifth Sunday after Trinity, that "the course of this world may be so peaceably ordered by His governance, that His church may joyfully serve Him in all godly quietness, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Dean Stanhope.

—— be ready always &c.] The proper meaning of the Apostle's direction, and its connexion with the preceding advice, may be thus stated: Give ye unto God in your hearts that honour which is due unto Him, in trusting to His promises, and reposing upon His providence, by a steadfast confidence and reliance: and, since ye live among heathens and professed enemies to the Gospel, be not ye daunted with their oppositions and persecutions; but be ready, when ye are thereunto duly called, to make profession of that true faith and religion, which ye have received: but let not this be done in a turbulent and seditious manner, but with all meekness of spirit, and reverence to that authority, whereby ye are called thereunto. Bp. Hall. In a modest and humble way, upon either private or publick examination. Pyle.

17. — if the will of God be so,] The Apostle adds this to shew, that the wicked can do no evil to believers, but by the permission of God. Dr. Macknight.

18. For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, &c.] In the sufferings of Christ we have a clear proof, that sufferings are no evidence of the wickedness of the sufferer, nor of the badness of the cause for which he suffers. Moreover in the resurrection of Christ we have a convincing proof, that the sufferings of good men are not inconsistent with the perfections of God: for He will reward them with a blessed resurrection from the dead, accomplished after the example of Christ's resurrection. Wherefore the power of God, visible in Christ's resurrection, affords to all who lose their lives for the Gospel a sure ground of consolation and hope that God will raise them up at the last day. Dr. Macknight.

—— the just for the unjust,] It is the design of this and similar texts of Scripture, which declare the perfect innocence of Christ, to inform us how acceptable to God His sacrifice was. Dean Stanhope.

—— that he might bring us to God,] That when we were aliens and enemies to God, He might reconcile us to Him, and give us authority to approach Him. Dr. Hammond.

—— being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit:] Being put to death in His human body, in regard of the separation of His soul therefrom for a time; but being quickened and raised up to an immortal life, by the power of His Divine Spirit or Divinity. Bp. Hall.

That Spirit, by which Christ was quickened, is that by which He was raised from the dead, that is, the power of His Divinity: as St. Paul expresseth it, "Though He was crucified through weakness, yet He liveth by the power of God," 2 Cor. xiii. 4. Bp. Pearson.

19. By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison; &c.] By the power of which Divine Spirit of His, long before His manifestation in the flesh, He came to the old world; and by the mouth of Noah, that "preacher of righteousness," spake to them whose spirits are now fast prisoned in hell; which were in their lifetime wicked and disobedient to His holy counsels; when the patient longsuffering of God gave a large respite to them for their repentance and conversion, even all the while that the ark was preparing by Noah. Bp. Hall.

"The spirits in prison," to whom St. Peter saith, that Christ

Anno DOMINI about 60.

20 Which sometime were disobedient, when once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water.

21 The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ:

22 Who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God; angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto him.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

CHAP. IV.

1 He exhorteth them to cease from sin by the example of Christ, and the consideration of the general end that now approacheth: 12 and comforteth them against persecution.

FORASMUCH then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm your-

---

"by His Spirit preached," he saith also were those, "which were disobedient, when the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah." And therefore Christ's "preaching to them by His Spirit" probably means, His exciting by His Spirit, which "strove" with them for a time, Gen. vi. 3, that patriarch to be "a preacher of righteousness" among them, as the same Apostle in his other Epistle calls him, 2 Pet. ii. 5. But not hearkening to him then, they are now in prison, reserved for the sentence of the last day. Abp. Secker.

The plain interpretation of this passage is the true one, namely, that Christ did preach unto those men who lived before the flood, even while they lived, and consequently that He was before it. For though this was not done by an immediate act of the Son of God, as if He personally had appeared on earth, and actually preached to that old world; but by the ministry of a Prophet, by the sending of Noah, a "preacher of righteousness;" yet to do any thing by another, not able to perform it without Him, as much demonstrates the existence of the principal cause, as if He did it of Himself without any intervening instrument. Bp. Pearson.

20. — were saved by water.] By means of the water bearing up the ark, and so preserving them from the common deluge. Dr. Wells. Or, 'were delivered in the midst of, or through the water.' Dr. Hammond.

21. — (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,)] Not the mere outward act, unaccompanied by a suitable inward disposition. Abp. Secker. Answerable unto which preservation of the eight persons in Noah's family by water, is the benefit which we receive by baptism; which doth also now save us, by and in applying unto us the power of the resurrection of Jesus Christ; and becomes effectual unto us, not in respect of the outward element, which only washeth off the filth of the flesh, but in respect of the inward grace thereby represented and exhibited, whereby the conscience is both quieted and assured of pardon and favour, and is thereupon enabled to treat for and expect mercy from God and reconciliation with Him. Bp. Hall.

Although our blessed Saviour saith to Nicodemus, that "except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God," yet He doth not say, that every one who is so born shall inherit eternal life. It is true, all that are baptized, or born of water and the Spirit, are thereby admitted into the church, or kingdom of God upon earth; but except they submit to the government, and obey the laws established in it, they forfeit all their right and title to the kingdom of heaven. They are brought into a state of salvation, but unless they continue in it, and live accordingly, they cannot be saved. For, as St. Peter here observes, "Baptism doth now save us, not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience towards God, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." Baptism puts us into the way to heaven; but unless we walk in that way, we can never come thither. When we were baptized, we were born of water and the Spirit, so as to have the seed of grace sown in our hearts, sufficient to enable us to bring forth the fruits of the Spirit, to overcome temptations, to believe aright in God our Saviour, and to obey and serve Him faithfully all the days of our life. And we then promised to do so: for being asked, whether we would do so or not, we answered by ourselves or our sureties that we would. And if we afterwards live in good conscience towards God, answerably to the profession and promise that we then made to Him, we shall certainly be saved through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, and the intercession that He makes at the right hand of God for us. But if we neglect to perform what we then promised, and so do not answer the end of our baptism, by keeping our consciences void of offence towards God and men, we lose all the benefit of it, and shall as certainly perish, as if we had never been baptized. Bp. Beveridge.

22. Who is gone into heaven,] When the Apostle speaks of the resurrection and glory of Christ, he means, not only to represent Him as the object of our confidence, but to intimate, that if we imitate Him in His courageous fidelity, we may hope to partake with Him in His glory. Dr. Doddridge.

Chap. IV. St. Peter teaches in this chapter, that the sufferings of Jesus Christ obliged Christians to renounce the errours in which they lived before their conversion to the Christian religion, and particularly the impure and dissolute life of the Gentiles; and to live in sobriety and godliness, waiting for the coming of our Lord: that Christians ought above all things to love and assist one another, and to employ to the glory of God the different gifts which each had received from Him: that far from being surprised and discouraged at their sufferings for the Gospel, they should account them very honourable; and further, that if the faithful themselves are exposed to such sufferings, and God spares not His church in this world, those who persecuted the faithful and opposed the Gospel would not escape the righteous judgment of God. Osterwald.

Ver. 1. Forasmuch then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh,] As "the Word was made flesh," though the Word was never made, (as being in the beginning God,) but the flesh, that is, the humanity, was made, and the Word assuming it became flesh; so saith St. Peter, "Christ suffered for us in the flesh," in that nature of man which He took upon Him: and so God the Son did suffer, not in that nature in which He was begotten of the Father before all worlds, but in that flesh which by His incarnation He became. For He was "put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit," chap. iii. 18; suffered in the weakness of His humanity, but rose by the power of His Divinity. As "He was made of the seed of David according to the flesh," in the language of St. Paul; so was He "put to death in the flesh," in the language of St. Peter: and, as He was "declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness," so was He "quickened by the Spirit." Thus the proper subject and recipient of our Saviour's passion, which He underwent for us, was that nature which He took for us. Bp. Pearson.

"Forasmuch then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, let us arm ourselves with the same mind;" with a resolution to imitate Him in His perfect submission and resignation of Himself to the Divine will and pleasure; in His contempt of all the enjoyments of sense, of all the vanities of this world, its allurements and terrours; in His practice of religious severities; in His love of religious retirement; in His making it His meat and drink, His only study and delight, "to work the work of Him that sent Him," John ix. 4; in His choosing for that end, when that end could not otherwise be attained, want before abundance, shame before honour, pain before pleasure, death before life; and in His selves likewise with the same mind: for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin;

Anno DOMINI about 60.

2 That he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.

3 For the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings, and abominable idolatries:

4 Wherein they think it strange that ye run not with them to the same excess of riot, speaking evil of you:

5 Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

6 For for this cause was the gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the spirit.

7 But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer.

8 And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves: for charity ‖ shall cover the multitude of sins.

‖ Or, will.

---

preferring always a laborious uninterrupted practice of virtue to a life of rest and ease and indolence. "Let the same mind" in all these respects "be in us, which was in Christ Jesus, who suffered for us, leaving us an example, that we should follow His steps." The task indeed is hard to flesh and blood; the difficulties that lie in our way are exceeding great, and would be altogether insuperable, had not He, who set us an example so far above the level and pitch of human nature, enabled, as well as commanded, us to follow it. Bp. Atterbury.

—— he that hath suffered in the flesh] A Christian's suffering in the flesh is in this place evidently the same as His mortifying the flesh and its lusts; as appears from the 2d and 3d verses. Pyle. The phrase refers to the reformation of wicked lives, not to the suffering of afflictions. Dr. Hammond.

3. — abominable idolatries:] That is, in idolatries joined with divers abominations, such as drunkenness, uncleanness, unnatural cruelties to their own children, homicide. Dr. Whitby.

5. — that is ready] Namely, in its proper time. Dr. Wells. "To judge the quick," that is, the living, "and the dead." At the day of judgment all, that have died before, in every age of the world, shall be restored to life: and all, that remain alive, shall be joined with them to receive their doom. Abp. Secker.

6. — that they might be judged according to men in the flesh,] There is an ellipsis here of the word 'although:' as thus, 'that although they might be judged &c.;' see a similar instance Rom. vi. 17. Dr. Macknight. That though their heathen neighbours might reproach and condemn them. Pyle. That they might be brought to such a state of life, as their carnal neighbours would look upon as a kind of condemnation and death: "but might live according to God in the Spirit," might be brought to a truly spiritual and Divine life: and if when men hear of the Gospel, they will not receive and improve it for this important purpose, they must expect to render to God an impartial and severe account of their abuse of it, and must stand by all the terrible consequences of their folly. Dr. Doddridge.

7. But the end of all things is at hand:] This can hardly signify the destruction of Jerusalem, an event, in which most of those, to whom the Apostle wrote, were comparatively but little concerned. It must signify either death, which may be considered as the end of the whole world to every particular person; or the consummation of all things, which may be said to be at hand in the sense, in which our Lord some time after the destruction of Jerusalem says to the church, "Behold, I come quickly," Rev. xxii. 7, 20. Dr. Doddridge.

8. And above all things have fervent charity] This exhortation being joined with other exhortations to sobriety, and watchfulness in prayer, to hospitality, and to a faithful use and exercise of the gifts and graces of God bestowed on the several members of the church; and yet being introduced in this distinguishing manner, "Above all things have fervent charity among yourselves;" plainly shews, how highly the Apostle esteemed this great virtue of charity; and that it is the perfection of a Christian, the very life and soul of all other duties, which without this are empty performances, and of no value in the sight of God. Bp. Sherlock.

—— fervent charity] It appears by the language of the Apostle, that he is not recommending any particular duty, much less any particular acts of duty. The words, rendered "fervent charity," signify, 'continual' or 'uninterrupted love.' Love is a principle, or a good habit of mind, from which many duties flow; but it does not denote any one kind of duty more than another: and therefore the charity, here spoken of, has no more immediate relation to almsgiving, as the use of the word in our language often leads people to think it has, than it has to patience, forgiveness of injuries, or any other natural effect of love or charity. It is therefore the principle of charity, or a general beneficence of mind towards one another, which the Apostle recommends. And this must be constant and regular; not subject to the efforts of passion or resentment: it must preside with a superiority over all the desires of our heart, that neither wantonness and lust, nor anger and revenge, nor covetousness and ambition, may carry us aside from the ways of righteousness and equity in our dealings one with another. Bp. Sherlock. See the notes from Dean Stanhope and Abp. Secker on 1 Cor. xiii. 1.

8. — for charity shall cover the multitude of sins.] The meaning is, Either your charity to others will incline the mercy of God, and be a means of procuring the pardon of your own sins from Him; or, it will pass over many sins in others, and so preserve peace and kindness amongst you. In whichever sense we take the expression, the argument is exceeding proper. Dean Stanhope. See the note on James v. 20.

Great promises are made to other single virtues, in other passages of Scripture, as well as to charity in this. And the meaning is not, that we may get to heaven by any one good quality that we please; for surely there will no one be found so bad as to have none; but each of them is supposed, though practised more eminently than the rest, to be accompanied by them, not separated from them, and set up against them: a supposition made with still more reason in the present case, than any other of the same kind: because the true love to our neighbour, not only comprehends every good disposition towards him, but flows from love to God, and faith in our blessed Redeemer, and dutiful regard to the motions of the Holy Spirit. Indeed all these united, in the poor degree that we possess them, can by no means merit pardon for our failures in all; but only qualify us for obtaining that mercy, which St. Peter in the beginning of this Epistle ascribes to "the sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ," chap. i. 2. And nothing less than a prevailing habit of every virtue will complete our qualification for final acceptance: but that of each particular one shall contribute towards it in proportion to its value. And as beneficence, practised in its whole extent on right principles, is of the highest value, the text very properly teaches, and was designed only to teach, that charity, kindness to our fellow creatures, practised from a principle of conscience, in every way that we have opportunity, shall contribute in a distinguished manner to fit us for receiving forgiveness from our Creator, and thus shall "cover the multitude of" our "sins" at the last day. Since therefore being good to our brethren will give us a peculiar claim to the goodness of our heavenly Father, whoever is sensible

Anno DOMINI about 60.

9 Use hospitality one to another without grudging.

10 As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.

11 If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth: that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you:

13 But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.

14 If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

15 But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evildoer, or as a busybody in other men's matters.

16 Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf.

17 For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?

18 And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?

19 Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God commit the keeping of their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator.

CHAP. V.

1 He exhorteth the elders to feed their flocks, 5 the younger to obey, 8 and all to be sober, watchful, and constant in the faith: 9 to resist the cruel adversary the devil.

THE elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a wit-of his past offences, let him take this way especially of evidencing his repentance; and whoever would entitle himself after death, through the merits of his Redeemer, to the noblest of rewards, let him serve God throughout life in this most excellent of all duties. Abp. Secker.

---

10. As every man hath received the gift,] Namely, of the Spirit: the word has relation to the spiritual gifts, then vouchsafed to the church of Christ. Dr. Whitby.

11. — let him speak as the oracles of God;] Let him preach no doctrine but such as is agreeable to the oracles of God. Dr. Wells. That is, to Divine revelation. Parkhurst.

—— if any man minister,] To supply the necessities of others, either as a deacon, whose office it then was to take care of the poor; or as a private Christian, by charitable contributions; let him perform that duty readily and cheerfully, according to the ability which God hath given him. Burkitt.

12. — think it not strange concerning the fiery trial] The word signifies, generally, any kind of adversity or sharp persecution, which is here said to "try them," as a fire is used for exploring and purifying gold and other metals. Dr. Hammond.

14. — the spirit of glory and of God] The Spirit of God, which is the earnest of future and eternal glory, and which enables you thus to glorify God by your sufferings. Dr. Wells.

—— on their part he is evil spoken of, &c.] That is, by their reproaches, cast upon you, your persecutors blaspheme the Holy Spirit: but He is eminently glorified by your patience and constancy, which are a proof of the power of the Spirit resting upon you, and working mightily in you. Burkitt.

15. — as a busybody in other men's matters.] This seems particularly to refer to the publick affairs of other people, a busy and insolent meddling with which was a vice, whereto the Jews of this time were remarkably addicted. Parkhurst. As they also were to theft, murder, and all kinds of wickedness, according to the representation of Josephus. Dr. Whitby.

16. Yet if any man suffer as a Christian,] That is, only on that account. Dr. Whitby.

—— let him glorify God on this behalf.] Let him give glory to God, who enables him thus patiently to suffer for His sake; or, Let him be careful so to behave himself under his sufferings, that he may glorify God by them in the day of visitation, chap. ii. 12. Dr. Whitby.

17. For the time is come that judgment must begin &c.] In fine, the time is now come, when even the Christian church itself is to undergo the sharp discipline of present trials and afflictions. And, if the believing part of the Jewish nation be by Divine wisdom permitted to suffer such things, how dreadful must be the judgment upon the infidel and obstinate part of that people! And, if their destruction will be so general and terrible, that the very Christian members are likely to escape it only by a special act of mercy and providence; what must be the condition of those, upon whose heads these judgments are intended principally to fall? Pyle.

19. Wherefore let them that suffer &c.] Wherefore, as you Christians are sure of the Divine protection, bear your persecutions with an easy and cheerful mind. Keep steady to your duty, and commit your lives into His hands, who is your faithful Creator, and cannot fail to be your merciful Deliverer and eternal Preserver. Pyle.

Chap. V. The elder and superiour officers of the church are exhorted to a diligent, cheerful, disinterested, and humble management in governing the Christian church. The younger and inferiour officers are charged to obey their superiours, and to exercise humanity and all kind services to each other. All Christians are encouraged to patient submission and resignation under their present sufferings, and to a vigilant sobriety under the prevalent temptations of the devil and his wicked instruments. The Apostle concludes with prayers and salutations. Pyle.

Ver. 1. The elders] The guides and governours of the Christian church. Dr. Wells.

—— who am also an elder,] Literally, who am a fellow-elder. Dr. Hammond. Here St. Peter shewed his great modesty. For, though he was one of the chief Apostles, he took the title of "elder" only: and, to render his exhortation acceptable to the elders of Pontus, he called himself their 'fellow-elder,' as the original Greek properly signifies. The commentators justly observe, that if St. Peter had been the prince or chief of the Apostles, as the Papists affirm, he would in this place and in the inness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed:

Anno DOMINI about 60.

‖ Or, as much as in you is.

2 Feed the flock of God ‖ which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind;

‖ Or, overruling.

3 Neither as ‖ being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock.

4 And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

5 Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

6 Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time:

7 Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you.

8 Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walk-scription of his two Epistles have assumed to himself that high prerogative. The circumstances of his being a fellow-elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, &c. are mentioned to give weight to his exhortation. Dr. Macknight.

---

—— a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed:] Namely, of the glory which Christ's faithful disciples shall enjoy at the resurrection. Of this St. Peter was a partaker then in promise, and in the earnest of it, the firstfruits of the Spirit. Dr. Whitby.

In this exhortation to the ministers of the Christian church, St. Peter designs to apprize them of the full dignity of their office, as an incitement to greater activity. He accordingly expresses a due sense of the dignity of the ministerial character, and the reward which will attend its faithful discharge: but this is combined, not only with such disinterestedness as precludes all suspicion of deceit, but with such humility and calmness, as is entirely free from the pride and the extravagance of fanaticism. Dr. Graves.

5. Likewise, ye younger,] Or, inferiours. Since the "elders" in the first verse evidently denote the teachers and governours of the church, it is to be supposed that the same word in this verse bears the same sense; and that the word here rendered "younger" denotes inferiours of any kind, or all such as were under the care of the "elders." Drs. Wells and Macknight.

—— Yea, all of you be subject one to another, &c.] And in fine, be all, of every degree whatever, ready to do all kind and good offices to each other; making that great virtue of humility your chief and most valuable ornament: remembering those words of Solomon, Prov. iii. 34, "Surely He scorneth the scorners, but He giveth grace unto the lowly." Pyle.

The original word, here rendered "be clothed," is very beautiful and expressive. It signifies to clothe properly with an outer ornamental garment tied loosely upon the wearer with knots. And it implies, that the humility of Christians, which is one of the most ornamental graces of their profession, should constantly appear in all their conversation, so as to strike the eye of every beholder; and that this amiable grace should be so closely connected with their persons, that no occurrence, temptation, or calamity should be able to strip them of it. Parkhurst.

6. Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you] It being agreeable to the methods of the Divine justice and providence, in some very remarkable and exemplary manner to distinguish and reward the patience and constancy of those, who are content, not only to endure the sharpest, but to acquiesce in the longest, of adversities: to refer themselves entirely to God's wisdom for their support under them, and to His leisure for their deliverance out of them. In a word, His glory is magnified, by our reducing ourselves in our own opinions to that which we really are by nature and by sin. This is a sort of undoing again of that crime and corruption, in which the affectation of being more than God had made them involved our first parents, and their depraved posterity. This therefore renders us greatest, and something indeed in God's eyes, when we are least and nothing in our own. Dean Stanhope.

It well becomes us, nay, it is our bounden duty, to submit to such sufferings as God shall call us to; and to take up our cross, when He shall think fit to lay it upon us, with all willingness. When we have to do with Satan and his temptations, resistance may be of good use to us: "resist the devil, and he will flee from you:" but when we have to do with God and His chastisements, it is in vain to oppose. His hand is too mighty for us: there is no way but to submit, and to humble ourselves under it, by acknowledging our weakness, and resigning our will and desires to His wisdom and goodness. Bp. Sanderson.

7. Casting all your care upon him;] The Apostle means no doubt that anxious and disquieting solicitude, which distracts the mind, perplexes all our thoughts, breaks and confounds all our measures, and so, not only does more harm than good, but betrays a want of consideration and religion. Such a perplexity indeed must needs be very blamable; because it plainly argues, that the providence of God over all His creatures, and His tender concern for the faithful in particular, make none, or much too feeble, impression upon our souls. At the same time it should be observed, that it is no part of the Apostle's intent to set aside all such regular and prudent care for our own preservation, as may consist with a Christian dependence upon the Divine wisdom and goodness; as is manifest from his proceeding to enjoin sobriety and watchfulness, faith, and the contemplation of the like sufferings in our brethren, as fit and necessary duties and remedies for a state of persecution or any other kind of distress. Dean Stanhope.

8. Be sober,] Be temperate. Dr. Macknight. The advice comprises, not only a temperate use of the creatures appointed for our sustenance and refreshment; but the government of our passions and desires in general, with respect to any objects or events whatsoever, which in the present life are wont to provoke them to violence and excess. Dean Stanhope.

—— because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, &c.] The Scriptures in several places excite us to vigilance and activity by admonishing us, that our own desires are not the only enemies, with which we have to contend, but that there are others, not the less to be dreaded because we cannot see them; namely, evil spirits, who, having been cast out of heaven, are permitted for a while to disturb the earth; to stir up against us either our own passions within, or the passions of other men without us. Such is our state; and the danger of it calls upon us diligently to learn and practise all the rules, which the Scriptures give for our security. Men in our days however have found out a much shorter method, than that prescribed by the Apostles, of dealing with these our spiritual enemies. They either disbelieve the existence of any such; or, if they believe it, agree to think no more of them. Too often indeed we hear the name of our great adversary pronounced: but it is only as a kind of expletive in common conversation. No point is less seriously thought of: and it seems as if Christians were disposed to lay it by, as an antiquated fable. Yet, if the Scriptures are not to be laid by at the same time, this adversary is there represented as something real, and something formidable. To him are ascribed the force of a lion, and the subtilty of a serpent: he is said to deceive the whole world; to have put it into the heart of Ananias to "lie to the Holy Ghost," and of Judas, to betray his Master; to work in all the children of disobedience. We are told, in short, that "the Son of God was manifested that He might destroy the works of the devil," 1 John iii. 8. And can we then calmly and sedately let it pass, that there are no such works and no such person? or eth about, seeking whom he may devour:

Anno DOMINI about 60.

9 Whom resist stedfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world.

10 But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you.

11 To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 By Silvanus, a faithful brother unto you, as I suppose, I have written briefly, exhorting, and testifying that this is the true grace of God wherein ye stand.

Anno DOMINI about 60.

13 The church that is at Babylon, elected together with you, saluteth you; and so doth Marcus my son.

14 Greet ye one another with a kiss of charity. Peace be with you all that are in Christ Jesus. Amen.

---

that it is a matter of indifference whether there be or not? Let us rest assured, that such enemies we have; and that we shall fail in the combat, unless aided by a strength superiour to our own. Bp. Horne.

—— seeking whom he may devour:] This strongly expresses the insatiable rage of the enemy of mankind to hinder their salvation, and the danger we are in from his devices. This account of his malice is given with great propriety by St. Peter, to whom our Lord said, "Simon, Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have prayed for thee:" he likewise had good reason to recommend watchfulness, since he had fallen so miserably himself, notwithstanding this warning from his Master. Drs. Macknight and Doddridge.

9. — knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished &c.] And it will add something to your resolution to consider, that your Christian brethren, in other parts of the world, are now labouring under the same persecutions. Pyle.

10. But the God of all grace, &c.] After the seasonable admonitions in the foregoing verses, the Apostle concludes with a prayer; which does so implore the good effects, as at the same time to suggest that they are the certain comforts and consequences, of afflictions rightly undergone: that these are every way consistent with the gracious design of making good men eternally happy: that they are but of short continuance: that they add lustre to such men's virtue, inflame their zeal, fix their resolution, qualify them for greater undertakings, render them at last impregnable; and by conforming them to the likeness of a suffering, resemble them in the end to the triumphs of a victorious, Redeemer. But till this be, which, if we do not obstruct our own happiness, will not fail to be, let us remember that we are creatures and servants, and He our Maker and Lord: consequently that to us belongs submission, and obedience, and fidelity; to Him "glory, and dominion, for ever and ever, Amen." Dean Stanhope.

12. — Silvanus,] Whether this was the Silvanus or Silas, mentioned several times in the Acts as the companion of St. Paul, and by St. Paul himself, 2 Cor. i. 19; 1 Thess. i. 1; 2 Thess. i. 1; is not certainly known. The phrase, "as I suppose," does not seem to imply any doubt. Compare Rom. iii. 28, and viii. 18, where the word in the original is the same as it is here. Dr. Doddridge.

13. The church that is at Babylon,] Some commentators by Babylon understand Babylon, properly so called, in Assyria or in Egypt. But the most early writers suppose it to be meant figuratively for Rome, so styled, either because it resembled Babylon in its idolatries and opposition to the church of God, or because it was to be destroyed for ever, as the Prophets had foretold of Babylon: which though the primitive Christians believed, it was prudent in them to conceal. Dr. Whitby.

—— elected together with you,] That is, which is jointly with you some of the chosen people of God. Dr. Wells. See the note on chap. i. 2.

—— Marcus my son.] One of my first converts, or children in the faith. Dr. Hammond. Or, Who as a son with his father hath served me in the Gospel. See Phil. ii. 22. Dr. Whitby.

The following Chapter and Verses from The First Epistle General of Peter are appointed for a Proper Lesson, or as Epistles on Sundays and Holydays.

Chap. II. - - - -	Good Friday, - - - - - - -	Evening.
—— II. - ver. 11—17,	3rd Sunday after Easter, - - - -	Epistle.
	Restoration of the Royal Family, - -	Ditto.
	King's Accession, - - - - - -	Ditto.
—— II. - ver. 13—22,	King Charles the Martyr, - - - -	Ditto.
—— II. - — 19—25,	2nd Sunday after Easter, - - - -	Ditto.
—— III. - — 8—15,	5th Sunday after Trinity, - - - -	Ditto.
—— III. - — 17—22,	Easter Even, - - - - - -	Ditto.
—— IV. - — 7—11,	Sunday after Ascension-day, - - -	Ditto.
—— V. - — 5—11,	3rd Sunday after Trinity, - - - -	Ditto.

THE SECOND EPISTLE GENERAL

OF

PETER.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Epistle is addressed to the same persons as the former Epistle; and the design of it was to encourage them to adhere to the genuine faith and practice of the Gospel. It was written when the Apostle foresaw that his death was at no great distance: and he might hope that advice and instruction, given under such circumstances, would have the greater weight. As he is supposed to have suffered martyrdom in the year 65, we may place the date of this Epistle in the beginning of that year.

St. Peter, after saluting the Christian converts, and representing the glorious promises of the Gospel dispensation, exhorts them to cultivate those virtues and graces, which would make their calling and election sure; he expresses his anxiety to remind them of their duty at a time when he was conscious of his approaching end; and he declares the divine origin of their Christian faith, (in the second coming of the Messiah,) which was attested by a voice from heaven, and by the sure word of prophecy, chap. i.: he foretells the rise of heresies and false doctrines, and denounces severe judgments against those who shall desert the truth, whilst they who adhere to it will be spared, as Noah and Lot were in former times, chap. ii.: he assures his Christian brethren, that the object of this and of his former Epistle was to urge them to observe the precepts which they had received; he cautions them against false teachers, represents the certainty of the day of judgment, reminds them of the doctrines which he and St. Paul had inculcated, and exhorts them to grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, chap. iii.

There appears to be a difference between the style of the second chapter of this Epistle, and that of the other two chapters, arising from the difference of the subjects. In the second chapter the pen of the Apostle seems to have been guided by a higher degree of inspiration, than when he was writing in a didactick manner; and the chapter is composed with the animation and energy of the prophetick style. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI 66.

CHAP. I.

1 Confirming them in hope of the increase of God's graces, 5 he exhorteth them, by faith, and good works, to make their calling sure: 12 whereof he is careful to remember them, knowing that his death is at hand: 16 and warneth them to be constant in the faith of Christ, who is the true Son of God, by the eyewitness of the apostles beholding his majesty, and by the testimony of the Father, and the prophets.

SIMON Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ:

Anno DOMINI 66.

2 Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord,

3 According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us ‖ to glory and virtue: ‖ Or, by

4 Whereby are given unto us exceeding

Chap. I. The Apostle shews, that God having given us all that is necessary to live in holiness, we ought to join to our faith the practice of Christian virtues, and that this is the only means to enter into the kingdom of heaven. He next represents to the faithful, that he exhorted them after this manner, because he foresaw that he should be soon taken away from them by death. And lastly, he confirms them in their belief of the second coming of Christ in power and glory. Ostervald, Bp. Sherlock.

Ver. 1. — through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ:] Through the merits of Jesus Christ, who is our God and Saviour. Bp. Hall, Dr. Hammond. The passage may be rendered, "through the righteousness of our God and Saviour Jesus Christ." Drs. Wells and Doddridge.

The original Greek is the very same, as to the order and grammar of the words, with the last verse of this Epistle, which is thus rendered in our English version, "of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." And so it should be in this passage; there being no reason why the phrase here should not signify "our God," as well as it signifies there "our Lord." Jones of Nayland. The passage is so rendered in Wickliff's, Coverdale's, Cranmer's, the Bishops', and other ancient versions; as also in the margin of many editions of our present version, with the usual mark of reference to the Greek text, where a more literal translation is given. Edit.

This phrase signifies our justification through faith in the death and sufferings of Christ, the meritorious cause of it. Dr. Whitby. See the note on Rom. i. 17.

3. — unto life and godliness,] To felicity hereafter and to piety here. Dr. Hammond. Or, to the life of godliness. Dr. Whitby. So as to enable us to live godly lives. Dr. Wells.

4. Whereby are given unto us &c.] By which Christ and by the Anno DOMINI 66. great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

5 And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; Anno DOMINI 66.

6 And to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; knowledge of Him, are conveyed unto us exceedingly great and precious blessings and graces, such as He had formerly promised to us believers; that by these we might be made partakers of those divine qualities of the soul, namely, of wisdom, of goodness, of holiness, whereby we resemble that God, according to whose image we were created; having been delivered and freed from that corruption which aboundeth in worldly men, through their sinful lusts. Bp. Hall.

---

5. And beside this,] As if he had said, You have now, God be thanked, escaped the pollutions of the world, and are truly, I hope, converted to Christianity, and in baptism have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost; that is what he means by their being made "partakers of the Divine nature." This indeed is a very great achievement, and an invaluable mercy of God vouchsafed to you: yet I beseech you, rest not here; but "besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue &c." So that the sum of his discourse is to press them first to truth in grace, and then to growth in grace; to acquire the Divine virtues reckoned up by him, and then to abound in them. Bp. Bull.

—— add to your faith] As to faith, the Apostle doth not exhort his disciples to acquire it, but rather takes it for granted that they possess it, and supposes it as the foundation already laid, upon which his exhortation is built, "Add to your faith virtue." In some places of Scripture faith is represented as containing in itself every virtue and every good deed. It is called faith working by love, or faith accompanied with hope and charity, and this makes a true Christian; this is a complete victory over the world, over every obstacle to righteousness. If amongst those who profess themselves Christians too many are found who are covetous, ambitious, proud, dishonest, lovers of unlawful pleasures, and slaves to irregular passions, these persons are so far from possessing faith in its utmost extent, faith working by love, that they can hardly be said to have it in any sense. The persons whom St. Peter speaks of were believers; they had faith, they had persevered in it; some of them had the honour of suffering for it, and undergoing ill usage both from Jews and Gentiles. He considers them as already persuaded of the truth of Christianity, and seriously engaged in that holy calling: but he judged it expedient to exhort them to a careful observation of all Christian duties; for as a perfect faith comprehends them all, so a faith begun and carried on requires them all, and is a sufficient motive and inducement to the practice of them. The natural effect of faith is to excite pious fear and humble hope, and to give the prospect of a sure and ample reward. And when once these considerations have had their due influence upon the mind, nothing seems wanting to induce a man to a consistent practice. Dr. Jortin.

—— add to your faith virtue;] That is, courage in professing the faith, and in sincerely practising the things which this faith requires. Drs. Whitby and Wells. The word rendered "virtue," according to a frequent use of it in the Greek writers, and of the corresponding word in Latin, appears to signify in this place 'courage, fortitude, resolution:' and so the exhortation answers to that of St. Paul in 1 Cor. xvi. 13, "Quit you like men." Dr. Hammond, Parkhurst.

If we thus consider virtue as meaning more particularly courage and constancy, we shall find that sins are usually attended with a defect of this quality. Injustice is a weakness which induces us to wrong others because we cannot resist some vile passion; intemperance is a weakness by which reason submits to sensual appetite; covetousness is a weakness which prefers sordid lucre to spiritual gain; pride is a weakness which disposes us to think too well of ourselves, and too meanly even of those who are our equals in every valuable acquisition. "Add to your faith virtue," that is, steadiness and resolution in welldoing. Dr. Jortin.

—— knowledge;] An exact knowledge of your duty. Dr. Whitby. In the first age, the discourses and miracles of the Apostles often produced a strong conviction of the Divine original of the Gospel in persons, who never had heard of the Gospel before. Such, on their believing, must have had a very imperfect understanding of the doctrines and precepts of the Gospel. It was therefore necessary that such should join to their faith the knowledge of these things: especially as the influence of the Gospel on men's temper and conduct results in a great measure from their knowledge of its doctrines, precepts, and promises. It is still necessary therefore that Christians be at pains to increase their knowledge of spiritual things, that they may have grace and peace multiplied to them, and become partakers of the Divine nature. Dr. Macknight.

A knowledge of religion is necessary, and without it neither can faith nor virtue be complete; and the more accurate that knowledge is, the more secure is the possessor of it from being misled either in matters of opinion, or in matters of conduct, in his notions or in his actions. Ignorance sometimes is stubborn, and sometimes unstable. When it is presumptuous and selfwilled, it refuses instruction; and when it is diffident and submissive, it surrenders itself too implicitly to human authority. But an understanding, duly cultivated and constantly exercised in the things pertaining to religion, enables a man to act steadily and consistently; to prove all things, and to hold fast that which is good. There have ever been false brethren and false teachers, who pretend to great skill and wisdom and illumination, and impose upon the weak and unsettled. Even in the first age of Christianity, and according to the predictions of our Saviour and of His Apostles, such deceivers arose, who boasting of new revelations, and of a profound skill in mysteries, drew away the unstable and the ignorant from the simplicity and the truth of the Gospel; religious knowledge was requisite to encounter such impostors, to see through their devices, and to confute their pretensions. Dr. Jortin.

6. —— temperance; —— patience;] As he who is not master of himself is not likely to be a good servant to God and a friend to man, St. Peter sets before us in the first place the duties relating to ourselves, namely, temperance and patience. By intemperance men dishonour and debase themselves; by impatience they trouble and torment themselves. Temperance and patience should be inseparable; for good and evil are so blended in this present state, that we are perpetually obliged to exercise both. Prosperity and adversity are the two usual trials to which we are exposed. The ancients saw, and knew this; and one of their wise men hath said that morality consists chiefly in two things: in bearing and in forbearing; that is, in patience and in temperance. Dr. Jortin.

—— godliness;] That fear of God, which will restrain you from sin; that love of Him, which will constrain you to your duty; that conformity of will, which will cause your mind to approve of, your heart to affect and choose, what is according to His will, and your whole man to be exercising itself unto godliness. Dr. Whitby.

Godliness or piety is the principle which is to animate every virtue. This is the character which distinguisheth the Christian from the Pagan moralist. We may find amongst the Pagans examples of justice, equity, sobriety, patience, liberality: but piety is peculiarly the effect of revealed religion. If there were no God or no Providence, still without virtue civil society could not well subsist; but if there be a God, it is a shame not to direct our actions to His honour and glory. Since therefore virtue or moral goodness is a quality, which the world, bad as it is, expects from us, we must choose whether we will be good for the sake of pleasing our heavenly Father, or for the sake of pleasing a world, to which perhaps we have no great obligations. Dr. Jortin.

Anno DOMINI 66.

7 And to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity.

8 For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

10 Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall:

11 For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Anno DOMINI 66.

12 Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth.

13 Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance;

14 Knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as [a] our Lord Jesus Christ hath shewed me. [a] John 21. 18.

15 Moreover I will endeavour that ye may be able after my decease to have these things always in remembrance.

16 For we have not followed cunningly

---

7. — brotherly kindness;] Or, a great love for all Christians, as being brethren in a more especial manner: "charity," or love for all men, enemies as well as friends, heathens as well as Christians. Dr. Wells.

There is a mutual connexion and dependence amongst the several graces and duties of a Christian: where there is one grace in sincerity, there is a constant care to secure all the rest; and where a Christian for conscience sake performs one duty, he will be anxious to perform the rest. The duties of both tables will be religiously observed by him, both as an argument of his sincerity, and as an ornament to his holy profession. Burkitt.

Every virtue is connected with every other: and all virtue with piety. For without the love of God to excite us, and the fear of God to restrain us, and the word of God to direct us, and the grace of God to strengthen us, we shall neither behave to our fellow-creatures, nor govern ourselves, in a proper manner. What therefore He hath joined together, let not us put asunder, Matt. xix. 6; but "giving all diligence, add to our faith virtue," or manly boldness in professing it; "and to virtue, knowledge" of whatever may adorn and defend it; "and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness" towards our fellow-christians; "and to brotherly kindness, charity" towards all men without exception. "For so an entrance shall be ministered unto us abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ:" to which may God for His sake bring us all. Amen. Abp. Secker.

9. But he that lacketh these things &c.] But he, that lacketh these graces, is at the least purblind; not seeing heavenly things, which are afar off, but earthly things only, which are near at hand: having forgotten even the very first and main principles of Christianity; and namely this, that he was washed from his old sins by the laver of regeneration, persisting wilfully in those evils, as if they had never been done away. Bp. Hall.

10. — to make your calling and election sure:] To secure to yourselves the blessings of Christianity, to which God hath called you, and for which end He hath chosen you to be His people. Dr. Whitby.

St. Peter here speaks directly of the "calling and election" of Christians: but so far was he from then seeing this call and election to be absolute, that he advises those who have the call and election, to "give all diligence to make them sure:" plainly teaching us, that, though God has called and elected us in Christ, yet it depends on our own care to make them effectual to salvation. Bp. Sherlock.

—— if ye do these things, ye shall never fall:] Or, miscarry eternally. The Apostle hereby plainly declares, that "the making of their calling and election sure" depended on the doing of those works of virtue, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity, mentioned before, and so was only a conditional election, upon their perseverance in a life of holiness. And from the following words, "if ye do these things, ye shall never fall," it plainly seems to follow that even the elect, by their neglect to do these things, may fail of an entrance into this heavenly kingdom. Dr. Whitby.

11. For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly &c.] The Apostle here uses a very powerful motive and argument to persuade them to abound in grace and virtue. As if he had said, If you thus abound in grace, you shall abound in glory: you shall not only come to heaven, or just get within the gate of that glorious region, (and yet happy is he that can arrive to be but "a doorkeeper in the house" of his heavenly Father,) but you shall have an "abundant entrance" into it: you shall go very far, and attain an higher pitch and degree of glory there. Bp. Bull.

12. — in the present truth.] Namely, that the practice of the forementioned duties is necessary to salvation. Dr. Wells.

13. — as long as I am in this tabernacle,] The expression is used to denote our mortal body, which, though the tabernacle of an immortal spirit, is constituted of frail and slight materials, and is shortly to be by death taken down and dissolved. Parkhurst.

14. — even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath shewed me.] Meaning the revelation which Christ made to him, John xxi. 18, 19. But because he says this was soon to happen, it has been supposed by some that he speaks of some new revelation. However, as our Lord, in the beforementioned revelation, told him he was to die when he was old, he might, from his own great age, without any new revelation, know that his death was to happen soon. Dr. Macknight.

15. Moreover I will endeavour] Namely, by leaving behind me these two Epistles for your perusal at all times. Dr. Wells. St. Peter therefore was not of the opinion, that oral tradition was a better way than writing to preserve the memory of these things; and that without writing they might be able to do so. Accordingly St. Ignatius, advising the churches to stand fast in the traditions of the Apostles, thought it necessary 'for the greater security to commit them to writing.' For, saith Origen, 'that which is delivered only by mouth quickly vanisheth, as having no certainty.' Dr. Whitby.

16. For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, &c.] And you ought to look upon the testimonies of the truth of your profession, and particularly of this great article of Christ's future coming, given you by me and the rest of the Apostles, not like the uncertain traditions and forgeries of the Jewish doctors; but as truths confirmed by unsuspected eyewitnesses of the life, miracles, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ: all which are demonstrations of that great article of His future appearance, to be the great Judge of all the world. Pyle.

This Epistle was a farewell Epistle to the churches: the writer "knowing," as he tells them, "that shortly he must put off this tabernacle," ver. 14. Now the great topick of consolation, urged by these departing saints to the widowed churches, was the second coming of their Lord and Master. And of this coming it is that St. Peter speaks, "for we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and com-

Anno DOMINI 66. devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty.

17 For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount.

19 We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts:

20 Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation.

21 For the prophecy came not ‖ in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. Anno DOMINI 66. ‖ Or, at any time.

CHAP. II.

1 He foretelleth them of false teachers, shewing the impiety and punishment both of them and their followers: 7 from which the godly shall be delivered, as Lot was out of Sodom: 10 and more fully describeth the manners of those profane and blasphemous seducers, whereby they may be the better known, and avoided.

BUT there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction.

2 And many shall follow their ‖ pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of. ‖ Or, lascivious ways, as some copies read.

---

ing of our Lord Jesus." He subjoins the reason of his confidence in this second coming, that he and the rest of the disciples had been eyewitnesses of the majesty of the first. This appears still plainer from the recapitulation in the concluding part of the Epistle, where he reproves those "scoffers of the last days," who would "say, Where is the promise of His coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were," chap. iii. 3, 4. For the primitive Christians had entertained an opinion, that the second coming of their Master was at hand. These scoffers therefore the Apostle confutes at large from the fifth to the thirteenth verse of the third chapter. Bp. Warburton.

17, 18. For he received from God the Father honour &c.] I myself was one of them, who at His glorious transfiguration on the mount saw those displays of the Divine Majesty, and heard the voice from heaven declaring Him to be the Son of God, the true Messiah and Saviour of mankind. See Matt. xvii. 1; Mark ix. 2, 3, &c.; Luke ix. 28, &c. Pyle.

—— from the excellent glory,] Or bright cloud, which then appeared, and was the constant symbol of the Divine presence. Dr. Whitby.

19. We have also a more sure word of prophecy;] Namely, in evidence of the future coming of Christ in power, which was the doctrine that the Apostle was desirous of proving. To prove this he had just told them, that he had been himself an eyewitness of Christ's majesty or glory. To this it might be objected, that although his testimony shewed that Christ Himself had been glorified, it was no proof that He would ever again return in glory and power. The Apostle may be supposed to reply, It is true that all future events can be learned only from God. All other arguments can amount to no more than probabilities and presumptions: and a great presumption it is that Christ shall come in glory, forasmuch as we have already seen Him glorified; and it is a further evidence of His power to deliver His servants, since God has openly declared Him to be His wellbeloved Son. But to assure us that He will indeed so come, and so use His power, "we have a more sure word of prophecy," that is, we have the very word of God, speaking by His Prophets, to assure us of the certainty of this future event. No comparison is here intended between miracles and prophecy, as arguments for the truth of the Gospel: for St. Peter speaks only of the coming of Christ in power. And by the "more sure word of prophecy" are to be understood, not merely the prophecies of the Old Testament, but probably also those of the New. Bp. Sherlock.

—— whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, &c.] As if he had said, The time will come, when the things ye hope for shall be placed in a clear light; when you shall see all your expectations fully justified in the accomplishment: in the mean while, you do well to attend to prophecy, though but a small glimmering light and shining in a dark place, yet the best you have or can have at present. The general import of the passage amounts to this, that the knowledge, which God gives us of things future by the means of prophecy, is but an imperfect obscure knowledge, nothing to be compared with the clear knowledge, which will attend upon the manifestation of the things themselves. Bp. Sherlock.

20. Knowing this first,] As the foundation of all that is to be learned from the Prophetical writings. Dr. Whitby.

—— that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation.] That is, of the Prophet's own incitation or impulse, or of the suggestion of his own private spirit. Drs. Hammond and Whitby. The Prophets, as they did not frame the notions or conceptions themselves of those truths which they delivered from God, so did they not loosen their own tongues of their own instinct or upon their own motion, but as moved, impelled, and acted by God. So we may, in correspondence to the antecedent and subsequent words, interpret these words of St. Peter, that "no propheey of the Scripture is of any private interpretation:" that is, that no prophecy which is written did so proceed from the Prophet who spake it or wrote it, that he of himself or by his own instinct did open his mouth to prophesy; but that all prophetical revelations came from God alone, and that whosoever first delivered them was antecedently inspired by Him, as it followeth, "for the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." That therefore which they delivered was the word, the revelation of God; which they assented unto as to a certain and infallible truth, credible upon the immediate testimony of God, and to which the rest of the believers assented upon the same testimony of God mediately delivered by the hands of the Prophets. Bp. Pearson.

21. — spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost.] See the note on Nehem. ix. 30.

Chap. II. This chapter contains warnings against false and heretical teachers in the Christian church; a black account of their principles; their severe judgment and condemnation. Their characters exactly and principally agree to the zealots among the Jewish converts. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — there shall be false teachers among you,] These false teachers Jude describes, as in part actually come when he wrote his Epistle, and mentions their perverting the grace of God to lasciviousness. Both Apostles, I suppose, spake of Nicolaitans, whose deeds our Lord hated, Rev. ii. 6, 15, and of the pestilent sects which sprang from them; namely, the Gnosticks, Carpocratians, and Menandrians. Dr. Macknight.

2. — by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of.]

Anno DOMINI 66.

3 And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you: whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not, and their damnation slumbereth not.

4 For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment;

5 And spared not the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly;

6 And turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrha into ashes condemned them with an overthrow, making them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly;

7 And delivered just Lot, vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked:

8 (For that righteous man dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds;)

9 The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished:

10 But chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despise ‖ government. [a] Presumptuous are they, selfwilled, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities.

‖ Or, dominion.

[a] Jude 8.

11 Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accusation ‖ against them before the Lord.

‖ Some read, against themselves.

12 But these, as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not; and shall utterly perish in their own corruption;

13 And shall receive the reward of unrighteousness, as they that count it pleasure to riot in the day time. Spots they are and blemishes, sporting themselves with their own deceivings while they feast with you;

Anno DOMINI 66.

14 Having eyes full of † adultery, and that cannot cease from sin; beguiling unstable souls: an heart they have exercised with covetous practices; cursed children:

† Gr. an adulteress.

15 Which have forsaken the right way, and are gone astray, following the way of Balaam the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness;

16 But was rebuked for his iniquity: the dumb ass speaking with man's voice forbad the madness of the prophet.

17 These are wells without water, clouds that are carried with a tempest; to whom the mist of darkness is reserved for ever.

18 For when they speak great swelling words of vanity, they allure through the lusts of the flesh, through much wantonness, those that were ‖ clean escaped from them who live in error.

‖ Or, for a little, or, a while, as some read.

19 While they promise them liberty, they themselves are the servants of corruption: for of whom a man is overcome, of the same is he brought in bondage.

20 For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning.

21 For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them.

22 But it is happened unto them accord-

The monstrously vicious lives of the false teachers and their disciples were without doubt one of the causes which, in the early ages, occasioned the Christians in general to be spoken of as the most flagitious of mankind. Dr. Macknight.

3. — whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not,] That Divine judgment, long since pronounced against the authors of such wickedness, (compare Jude 4,) is now drawing on, and will soon overtake them. Pyle.

5. — Noah the eighth person,] That is, with seven others: this expression is agreeable to the manner of using the ordinal numbers in the purest Greek authors. Parkhurst.

11. Whereas angels, &c.] Whereas the good angels of God, who are greater in power and might than any mortal creatures, and therefore might seem privileged to take more liberty upon themselves, yet, when they have appeared before God, and have held, as it were, contest with the evil angels in His presence, have not cast railing accusations against them, but have left their judgment unto the Lord. Bp. Hall.

13. — as they that count it pleasure to riot in the day time.] In the day time taking pleasure in those villanies, which are wont to need the night to cover the shame of them. Dr. Hammond.

—— sporting themselves with their own deceivings &c.] They make a jest of the worst impieties; attend upon your sacraments and love-feasts only for some riotous and lustful gratification. Pyle.

15. — Balaam the son of Bosor,] Or, 'of the town of Bosor.' Dr. Wells. See the note from Bp. Patrick on Numb. xxii. 5. The Hebrew name "Beor" is in the Chaldee "Bosor:" and accordingly the Arabick translation here reads, 'the son of Beor.' Dr. Hammond.

17. — wells without water, &c.] There being few wells, and but little rain in the Eastern countries, it was a grievous disappointment to a thirsty traveller to come to a well without water. The husbandman was equally disappointed to see clouds arise which gave him the prospect of rain, but which ended in a tempest, which, instead of refreshing, destroyed the fruits of the earth. By these comparisons, the ostentation, hypocrisy, levity, and perniciousness of the false teachers are set forth in the strongest colours. Dr. Macknight.

19. While they promise them liberty,] That is, a liberty to do any thing without fear: but this is not liberty properly, but licentiousness, which is the greatest slavery. Burkitt.

22. — according to the true proverb, &c.] The former of these

Anno DOMINI 66.

ing to the true proverb, The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire.

CHAP. III.

1 He assureth them of the certainty of Christ's coming to judgment, against those scorners who dispute against it: 8 warning the godly, for the long patience of God, to hasten their repentance. 10 He describeth also the manner how the world shall be destroyed: 11 exhorting them, from the expectation thereof, to all holiness of life: 15 and again, to think the patience of God to tend to their salvation, as Paul wrote to them in his epistles.

THIS second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance:

2 That ye may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour:

3 Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts,

4 And saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation.

Anno DOMINI 66.

5 For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth † standing out of the water and in the water:

† Gr. consisting.

6 Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished:

7 But the heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men.

8 But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

9 The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.

10 But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the sayings is taken from Prov. xxvi. 11; and the second is common among the writers on country employments. From various expressions in the 18th, 20th, and 21st verses it appears to be strongly argued, that they, who were once truly faithful, may totally and finally fall away. Dr. Whitby.

---

Chap. III. The Apostle repeats the design of his Epistle, namely, to arm them against the false and heretical teachers, by reminding them of what the ancient Prophets, and Christ and His Apostles, had foretold of them. These teachers are represented as insulting the orthodox Christians upon the long delay of Christ's judgment threatened to the adversaries of His religion. An answer is given to their objection: and the certainty of this judgment asserted. The earth shall be destroyed by fire, as it was once by water. An inference is drawn from hence, for the patience and purity of a Christian life. Pyle.

Ver. 1. — I stir up your pure minds] That is, the minds of such of you as remain yet untainted with the heresies before spoken of. Dr. Wells. Implying, that the memories of the best Christians stand in need of refreshing, and the affections of the holiest require to be continually excited. Burkitt.

2. — by the holy prophets,] Of the Old Testament, such as Enoch, see Jude ver. 14; and Daniel, chap. xii. 2; concerning the judgment of ungodly men. Dr. Whitby.

3. — scoffers, walking after their own lusts,] Men of sensual spirits and licentious lives. No wonder that they, who give themselves up to all manner of sensuality, deny a judgment to come; for, as it is expedient for them that there should be none, so they endeavour to persuade themselves that there will be none, and are glad to find arguments to fortify themselves in that persuasion. Burkitt. Here the Apostle has laid open the true source of infidelity and of men's scoffing at religion. Dr. Macknight.

4. — for since the fathers fell asleep, &c.] The Patriarchs and Prophets, to whom ye pretend these promises, and by whom these threats were pronounced, are all dead and gone; and the world is just as it was from the beginning. Pyle.

5. — the heavens were of old,] That is, were of old made. Dr. Wells. The sense of the 5th and 6th verses may be thus expressed: Unthoughtful wretches! Have they forgotten, or can they forget, all the facts, and wink thus at all the former demonstrations of Divine justice and providence over mankind? Can they be ignorant, that the very God who created the earth, consisting of sea and land, destroyed it once by its own waters, for a punishment to its wicked inhabitants? Pyle.

The truth of the case is, God doth not interpose in a miraculous manner upon every instance of sin: as He hath made men free agents, so He doth not interrupt the use of this liberty by breaking in upon the common order of causes and effects. Hence nature goes on for the most part in one uniform course; and exemplary punishments are reserved only for extraordinary occasions. Yet still God hath not left Himself without witness: many predictions of His Prophets have been already confirmed by fact: the old world was destroyed by a miracle; and "Sodom and Gomorrah are set forth for an example, having suffered the vengeance of eternal fire." Instances of this kind, it must be confessed, are rare: however those few which have been afforded us are enough to alarm the sinner. Men should not flatter themselves that their crimes are forgotten, because they are yet unpunished; but rather dread the delays of vengeance. Though mercy spares them for the present, yet this very mercy, if slighted, will increase their future ruin. Bp. Conybeare.

8. — a thousand years,] That is, though God defer His coming to this judgment a thousand years or more, we must not think this long; for in respect of Him, whose duration is eternal, and so who ever lives to make good His promises and threats, a thousand years are as one day. Dr. Whitby.

9. — as some men count slackness;] Namely, concluding from thence that He has changed His purpose, or will not perform it. Dr. Wells.

10. — in the which the heavens shall pass away &c.] When both air and earth, sea and land, with all the appurtenances of this our habitable world, shall with the most astonishing circumstances be destroyed by the conflagration. Pyle.

O what confusion will this be to all unbelievers and impenitent sinners, when they shall see that very Person, of whom they thought so meanly, and whose offers of salvation they often despised, appearing in the clouds with ten thousand glorious angels about Him, and coming in the most terrible manner that can be imagined, to call them to account for their lives past, and to execute judgment upon all ungodly men. They will not then any longer, with the scoffers, that St. Peter tells us should be in the last days, say, "Where is the promise of His coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation:" for they shall be convinced, that,

Anno DOMINI 66. heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

11 Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness,

‖ Or, hasting the coming. 12 Looking for and ‖hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?

13 Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. Anno DOMINI 66.

14 Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless.

15 And account that the longsuffering of our Lord is salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also according to the wisdom given unto him hath written unto you;

16 As also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; in which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as

---

however His coming was for good reasons deferred, yet He shall then come to purpose; to the everlasting confusion of their faces, that opposed, or despised, or neglected Him and His religion. Then shall they say, Yonder He is, whom we slighted, whose religion we derided, whose servants and followers we took to be no better than a company of credulous fools! Lo! yonder He is in the clouds, whose tenders of mercy we have refused, whose counsels we have rejected, to whose Spirit we have done despite! Yonder He is: but no longer "a carpenter's son;" no longer "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief;" no longer a mean obscure Galilean; no longer a crucified God, as we in derision called Him: but the everlasting Son of the everlasting Father; the sovereign of angels; the judge of mankind and of devils; the Lord of all things both in earth and heaven. Abp. Sharp.

12. — hasting unto the coming] That is, hasting to prepare for it. Dr. Whitby. 'Earnestly desiring it.' Parkhurst, Dr. Macknight.

The reflection that our Lord, who came into the world to die for the sins of mankind, is by His resurrection made judge of the world, doth not afford matter of greater terrour to His enemies, than it doth of comfort to His friends and followers. How must it revive the heart of every honest Christian, and encourage him to go on patiently and cheerfully in the service of his Master, notwithstanding the many frailties and infirmities under which he labours; notwithstanding the many slips and errours, that after his best endeavours do attend his course of life; to consider that He, who is to take his accounts at the last day, and to pass sentence upon him, is no other than his dear Redeemer? If we look upon the judgment to come only in this view, that then all the hidden works of darkness shall be brought to light; the secrets of all hearts be laid open; the actions of all mankind strictly examined and scanned; and sentence passed upon every one according to his works done in the flesh: if we have no other view of the last judgment than only this, it would not be very comfortable to the best of us, who are all sinners, and therefore cannot plead our innocence at that great tribunal. But when we consider farther, that it is our Saviour who shall then sit upon the throne; that it is our Saviour to whom God hath committed the judging of us; our Saviour, who knows our frame, who is sensible of all the difficulties we have to conflict with, as having Himself in the days of His flesh had sufficient experience of them, "He being in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin;" and that this Saviour of ours will not judge us according to the rigour of the law, but according to the gracious allowances of the Gospel: the consideration of this will prove an effectual antidote against all the fears, and disquietudes, and despondency we may lie under upon account of our own unworthiness. Let none of us therefore, that heartily own our Lord Jesus, and His religion, and honestly endeavour to live up to the laws of His Gospel, fright ourselves with such thoughts as these: How shall I, poor wretch, dare to appear before the face of my judge at the last day; I, who have so many sins to answer for? Let us but go on in the good course we are in; let us but hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, and daily apply to the throne of grace for strength and assistance against our corruptions; and to our prayers let us add our sincere endeavours to increase in virtue, and the longer we live still to grow better: and then I dare say, whatever sins we may have been guilty of, we shall not need to have any apprehension, or fear our condition upon account of them, when we come to die: but we may with confidence appear before the tribunal of our Lord; and expect our part in that comfortable sentence, which He will at the last day pronounce to all His true disciples and followers, "Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world," Matt. xxv. 34. Abp. Sharp.

13. — new heavens and a new earth,] New and everlasting abodes, which Divine mercy will then open to our enraptured view, into which it will conduct us, and in which righteousness, perfect holiness, and felicity, dwelleth. Dr. Doddridge.

15. — hath written unto you;] This Epistle being written to those to whom the first Epistle was sent, the persons to whom St. Paul wrote concerning the long-suffering of God were the Jewish and Gentile Christians in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia. Accordingly we know he wrote to the Ephesians, (Eph. ii. 3—5;) to the Colossians, (Col. i. 12;) and to Timothy, (1 Tim. ii. 4;) things which imply that God's bearing with sinners is intended for their salvation. The persons to whom St. Peter's Epistles were sent were for the most part St. Paul's converts. Dr. Macknight.

Or St. Peter may be understood as referring to Rom. ii. 4, where St. Paul expressly testifies that the goodness of God leadeth to repentance: intimating, that although that Epistle was immediately addressed to the Romans, it might be considered as designed for the general use of all Christians. Dr. Doddridge.

16. — speaking in them of these things;] Namely, of the day of the Lord's coming, and of the preparation we should make for it. Dr. Whitby.

—— in which] Namely, in which Epistles. Dr. Wells.

—— they that are unlearned and unstable] By "unlearned" men the Apostle means, not such as wanted that which we commonly call learning, but such as were not well skilled in Divine things. By "unstable," such as, not being well-grounded in the faith, were, upon that account, easy to be drawn aside into pernicious opinions and destructive errours. Such, he says, as these, "wrest," that is, misunderstand, misapply, and pervert the writings of St. Paul, and the other Scriptures. And this they do "unto their own destruction;" that is, to their eternal ruin in another world. So that the meaning of this whole passage is, That some men, not being firmly rooted and grounded in the true faith of Christ, and being by consequence of an uncertain and wavering judgment in matters of religion, were apt to make an ill use of the difficult places of Scripture, and to turn them to such a sense as destroyed Christianity; and such therefore as could not but end in the destruction of those who asserted and maintained it. Bp. Atterbury.

—— wrest,] Or torture, to make them speak an unnatural sense, which was never intended. The metaphor is taken from the practice of torturing persons, by distorting their limbs on a rack. Parkhurst.

Anno DOMINI 66. they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction.

17 Ye therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own stedfastness. Anno DOMINI 66.

18 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and for ever. Amen.

—— as they do also the other scriptures,] Here St. Peter expressly acknowledges the Divine inspiration by which St. Paul wrote all his Epistles. For unless St. Paul was inspired, his writings would not have been called Scriptures by any inspired Apostle. The affection with which St. Peter on this occasion spake of St. Paul, and the honourable testimony he bore to his writings, deserves great praise. He had formerly been rebuked by St. Paul at Antioch, for refusing to keep company with the Gentile converts. But whatever resentment he might have entertained of that affront at the beginning, he had long ago laid it aside. And on cool reflection, it is probable, that instead of thinking ill of St. Paul, he now admired him for his bold and steady maintaining of the truth. Dr. Macknight.

18. But grow in grace, and in the knowledge &c.] Endeavour continually to improve in the true faith and practice of the religion of your Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ: to whom be ascribed all honour and glory, now and for ever. Amen. Pyle.

The doxology, with which this Epistle concludes, is evidently directed to Christ, as are some of the other doxologies in Scripture. Dr. Macknight.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL

OF

J O H N.

INTRODUCTION.

THE unanimous suffrage of antiquity attributes this Epistle to St. John the Evangelist.

Some have supposed it to have been written before, and others after, the destruction of Jerusalem. As to the place also where it was written, and to the persons to whom it was addressed, there have been great doubts. It was probably written in Judea, and addressed to Christians in general, of every place and of every description.

Its principal design was to preserve the Christians in the true faith of Christ, in opposition to the erroneous doctrines, which had then begun to make their appearance, and were afterwards maintained by the Gnosticks, Docetæ, and Cerinthians. The Apostle begins by assuring the Christian converts, that he had seen and heard every thing, which he delivered to them concerning Christ: he declares, that if we walk in light, that is, sincerely endeavour to obey the precepts of the Gospel, the blood of Christ will cleanse us from all unrighteousness; he condemns those who say that they are guilty of no sin, and recommends confession of sins, chap. i.: he asserts the universality of Christ's propitiation; he states that the knowledge of God consists in the observance of His commandments; he cautions the Christian converts against the love of this world, and against false teachers, chap. ii.: he points out the love of God for mankind, and thence inculcates the duty of mutual love among men, chap. iii.: he urges further cautions against false teachers, and especially against those who deny that Christ is come in the flesh, that is, who deny the preexistence and the incarnation of the Son of God; he repeats his admonitions to mutual love, chap. iv., and to the observance of God's commandments; he pronounces that "the whole world lieth in wickedness," and that "God hath given us eternal life through His Son," chap. v. Bp. Tomline.

The book goes under the title of "the General Epistle of St. John." But in the composition of it, narrowly inspected, nothing is to be found of the epistolary form. It is not inscribed, either to any individual, like St. Paul's to Timothy and Titus, or the second of the two which follow it, "to the well-beloved Gaius;" nor to any particular church, like St. Paul's to the churches of Rome, Corinth, Ephesus, and others; nor to the faithful of any particular region, like St. Peter's first Epistle, "to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia;" nor to any particular branch of the Christian church, like St. Paul's to the Hebrews; nor to the Christian church in general, like the second of St. Peter's, "to them that had obtained like precious faith with him;" and like St. Jude's, "to them that are sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in Jesus Christ, and called." It bears no such inscription. It begins without salutation, and ends without benediction. It is true the writer sometimes speaks, but without naming himself, in the first person; and addresses his reader, but without naming him, in the second. But this colloquial style is very common in all writings of a plain familiar cast: instances of it occur in St. John's Gospel; and it is by no means a distinguishing character of epistolary composition. It should seem that this book hath for no other reason acquired the title of an Epistle, but that in the first formation of the canon of the New Testament, it was put into the same volume with the didactick writings of the Apostles, which with this single exception are all in the epistolary form. It is indeed a didactick discourse upon the principles of Christianity, both in doctrine and in practice: and whether we consider the sublimity of its opening, with the fundamental topicks of God's perfections, man's depravity, and Christ's propitiation; the perspicuity with which it propounds the deepest mysteries of our holy faith, and the evidence of the proof which it brings to confirm them; whether we consider the sanctity of its precepts, and the energy of argument with which they are persuaded and enforced, and the dignified simplicity of language in which both doctrine and precept are delivered; whether we regard the importance of the matter, the propriety of the style, or the general spirit of ardent piety and warm benevolence, united with a fervid zeal, which breathes throughout the whole composition: we shall find it in every respect worthy of the holy author, to whom the constant tradition of the church ascribes it, "the disciple whom Jesus loved." Bp. Horsley.

CHAP. I.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

1 He describeth the person of Christ, in whom we have eternal life, by a communion with God: 5 to which we must adjoin holiness of life, to testify the truth of that our communion and profession of faith, as also to assure us of the forgiveness of our sins by Christ's death.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

THAT which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have

Chap. I. St. John, to prove that the doctrine, which he and the other Apostles preached, was the only true one, tells us that neither he himself, nor his colleagues, had taught any thing concerning the Son of God, but what they had seen and heard themselves, having lived with Jesus Christ, which the false teachers could not say. In opposition to these hereticks, he shews in the next place, that the sum and substance of the doctrine which he preached was this; that as God is light and holiness itself, none but those who walk in holiness, who sincerely confess their sins and forsake them, have any communion with God and with Christ His Son. Ostervald.

Ver. 1. That which was from the beginning, &c.] That ever-seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life;

After Anno DOMINI 90.

2 (For the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;)

3 That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.

4 And these things write we unto you, that your joy may be full.

5 This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth:

7 But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.

8 If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

---

living Son of God, the coessential Word of the Father, which was from all eternity; whom we Apostles had the honour and happiness to hear with our ears, to see with our eyes, and to touch with our hands. Bp. Hall.

It is observable, that whereas St. John began his Gospel with a description of Christ's divinity, as God, he begins his Epistle with a demonstration of the truth of His human nature, as Man: for the certainty of which he appeals to the judgment of the senses, because they are the proper judges of all sensible objects. It is observable also, that he takes notice of Christ's Divine nature, as well as asserts the reality of His human nature: he styles Him "the Life," "the Word of life," "that eternal life which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us," and "the Word which was from the beginning:" phrases, which taken by themselves seem irreconcileable with the notion of His being a mere man, who had no existence before His appearing in our nature: but which, when compared with the commencement of the Gospel, written by this author, and considered with his manner of speaking, can scarce be interpreted of any thing less than a Divine existence, which this Person, this true "Word" and "Life," had "with the Father," before the time of His manifestation to the world. Thus was this Jesus, in whom we trust, both God and man, having two distinct natures in one person. Burkitt, Dean Stanhope.

This interpretation of the opening of the Epistle is agreeable to the sense wherein it was understood by the primitive writers: who looked upon these verses to contain in short, what St. John expresses more fully in the commencement of his Gospel. Accordingly in the contents of the chapter prefixed to the English translation, it is said, "He describes the person of Christ, &c." Dr. Wells.

—— which we have looked upon,] Steadfastly, attentively, and during several years of His abode in this world. This seems to be the peculiar import of the word, which is more expressive than "we have seen" in the preceding clause. Dr. Wells.

—— our hands have handled,] This probably alludes to St. Thomas's having insisted upon handling Christ's body, in proof of His resurrection; which, being permitted, was a confirmation of this important fact to all afterages. Dr. Doddridge. Or to what Christ said to His disciples, when He appeared to them after His resurrection, Luke xxiv. 25, &c. On many other occasions the disciples, and St. John in particular, John xiii. 23, had an opportunity of knowing that their Master had a real body. Dr. Macknight.

2. (For the life was manifested,] For that life-giving Word of His Father was manifested in the flesh. Bp. Hall.

3. — and truly our fellowship is with the Father, &c.] We being "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ," Rom. viii. 17; and being united to, and having communion with, the Father and the Son, by the Spirit of both dwelling in us, John xiv. 21, 23; Eph. ii. 21, 22; Rom. viii. 9, 11. Dr. Whitby.

"Fellowship with the Father and with His Son," means our being members of that religious community, of which the Father and the Son are the heads; and our sharing in all the benefits, which the members of that community derive from the Father and the Son, on account of their relation to them as votaries and worshippers. St. Paul likewise hath mentioned this fellowship under the denomination of the fellowship of Christ, 1 Cor. i. 9. Dr. Macknight.

5. — that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.] That God is of a most pure, simple, holy, perfect, and glorious nature; resembled by nothing created so much, as by exquisite light, in which there is nothing but a clear and exact brightness, without any the least mixture of darkness. Bp. Hall.

—— and in him is no darkness at all.] A perfectly holy Being, without the least blemish or mixture of impurity. Dean Stanhope.

6. If we say that we have fellowship with him, &c.] As He is light, so every aberration from Him is darkness: if we then say that we have fellowship with this pure and holy God, and yet walk in the darkness of any sin whatsoever, we belie ourselves, and do not according to that truth which we profess. Bp. Hall.

7. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light,] Endeavouring to be holy, as He is holy. Dr. Whitby.

—— we have fellowship one with another,] Some manuscripts read, "with Him:" which either is the true reading, or gives the true sense of the other reading, that is, we have communion with God, and He with us, as is evident from ver. 6. Dr. Whitby. We with God, by partaking of His Spirit; and so God with us. Dr. Wells.

This fellowship consists in the Father's bestowing blessings on us through the mediation of Christ, and in our receiving these blessings from the Father and the Son with thankfulness. Dr. Macknight.

St. John in this and the following verses sets forth the conditions, upon which the true Christian fellowship with God and Christ stands: that it is an endeavour after perfection, but not the attainment of an absolute or sinless perfection in this life, ver. 8; that our freedom from sin consists in being "cleansed" from it, not in having no need to be cleansed; in "confessing" and being forgiven when we do amiss, not in never doing amiss at all, ver. 9; and that to assume to ourselves the character of perfect innocence is to contradict the express word of God, and overturn the whole Gospel at once, ver. 10. For this propounds Christ as the foundation of our faith, because the propitiation for our sins; and promiseth eternal salvation, as a mercy given to the penitent, but by no means as a recompense due to the innocent. Dean Stanhope.

8. If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, &c.] As those, who are received into the church by the sacrament of baptism, receive the remission of their sins, of which they were guilty before they were baptized; so after they are thus made members of the church, they receive remission of their future sins by their repentance. Christ, who hath left us a pattern of prayer, hath thereby taught us for ever to implore and beg the forgiveness of our sins: that as we, through the frailty of our nature, are always subject unto sin, so we should always exercise the acts of repentance, and for ever seek the favour of God. This then is the comfort of the Gospel: that as it discovereth sin within us, so it pre-

After Anno DOMINI 90.

9 If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

10 If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

CHAP. II.

1 He comforteth them against the sins of infirmity. 3 Rightly to know God is to keep his commandments, 9 to love our brethren, 15 and not to love the world. 18 We must beware of seducers: 20 from whose deceits the godly are safe, preserved by perseverance in faith, and holiness of life.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

MY little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous:

2 And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for our's only, but also for the sins of the whole world.

3 And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments.

---

poundeth a remedy unto us. While we are in this life, encompassed with flesh, while the allurements of the world, while the stratagems of Satan, while the infirmities and corruptions of our nature betray us to the transgression of the law of God, we are always subject to offend: whence, 'whosoever saith that he hath no sin, is a liar,' as the Apostle here asserts, contradicting himself, and contracting iniquity by pretending innocency; and so long as we can offend, so long we may apply ourselves unto God by repentance, and be renewed by His grace, and pardoned by His mercy.' Bp. Pearson.

Chap. II. The Apostle confirms in this chapter, what he had advanced in the foregoing, that in order to have communion with God, we must believe in Jesus Christ, and live a holy life. To this end he shews, that Christ has atoned for the sins of the whole world; but that none but such as keep His commandments, and live as He lived, have any share in that atonement: that the chief commandment of our Lord is to love one another; and that those, who do not love their neighbour, are in darkness and in death. He exhorts Christians of all ages, but particularly young people, not to love the world; because the love of the world is inconsistent with the love of God and His Son Jesus Christ. He advises the faithful not to suffer themselves to be seduced by impostors and antichrists, who denied that Jesus was the Christ and the Son of God; and he exhorts them steadfastly to retain the pure doctrine, and the truth which was taught them from the beginning. Ostervald.

Ver. 1. My little children,] This is a tender and affectionate appellation, denoting paternal authority, love, and concern, which in the character of an Apostle St. John might have used in any period of his life; but in this Epistle it seems to imply, not only apostolical authority, but also advanced age. Dr. Macknight.

—— that ye sin not.] That ye avoid all wilful deadly sin, as you are now enabled to do by the grace of the Spirit, if ye make a right use of it. Dr. Wells.

—— And if any man sin,] Though this is not to be interpreted of sins of infirmity only, yet since the Apostle is here speaking of his "little children," whose past "sins were (already) forgiven them for His (Christ's) name's sake," ver. 12, and the Apostle would not encourage them in wilful or habitual sins, the expression, as it relates to them, is probably to be referred chiefly to those sins of ignorance, weakness, and infirmity, which will be pardoned by the tenour of the new covenant through Christ's intercession. Dr. Whitby.

—— we have an advocate with the Father,] A patron, one who pleads the cause of another. The word is applied to Christ our intercessor, who pleads the cause of sinners with His Father. Parkhurst.

2. And he is the propitiation for our sins:] That is, the expiatory sacrifice. Bp. Hall. He was so, as were all the sin-offerings of the Jews for them; namely, by suffering in our stead, to make atonement for our sins, and so to render God propitious to us in the forgiveness of them. By styling Him, who made propitiation for our sins, "Jesus Christ the righteous," the Apostle intended to intimate, that the just suffered for the unjust, to make an atonement for their sins. Dr. Whitby.

The word, here rendered "propitiation," is no where found in the New Testament but in this passage, and in chap. iv. 10. But it occurs often in the Septuagint translation of the Old Testament, where it signifies a sacrifice of atonement. See Lev. vi. 6, 7; Numb. v. 8; Ezek. xliv. 27. In considering the death of Christ as a sacrifice for sin, St. John, like the other Apostles, followed his Master, who in the institution of His supper directed His disciples to consider it as designed to bring to their remembrance His blood "shed for many for the remission of sins." Dr. Macknight.

—— but also for the sins of the whole world.] That is, of all men in general: and that, not only sufficiently, but also in His gracious intention. Dr. Whitby.

Christ was such an High Bishop, that He, once offering Himself, was sufficient by one effusion of His blood to abolish sin unto the world's end. He was so perfect a Priest, that by one oblation He purged an infinite heap of sins, leaving an easy and ready remedy for all sinners, that His one sacrifice should suffice unto all men that would not shew themselves unworthy. And He took unto Himself not only their sins, that many years before were dead and put their trust in Him, but also the sins of those, that until His coming again should truly believe His Gospel. So that now we may look for none other Priest nor sacrifice to take away our sins, but only Him and His sacrifice. And as He dying once was offered for all, so, as much as pertained to Him, He took all men's sins unto Himself. Abp. Cranmer.

All men are God's creation and image, and are redeemed by Christ. Church Homilies.

It is here said, that Christ was made a "propitiation for the sins of the whole world;" that is, in the words of our church, "He, by His one oblation of Himself once offered, hath made a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world," of all mankind. Insomuch that if any one man's sins be not pardoned by them, it is not for want of sufficiency in Christ's sufferings, but by reason of his own obstinacy or negligence, in not performing the conditions required for applying the sufferings of the human nature in Christ unto his own particular person. For seeing that that death, which was threatened to all mankind in the first Adam, was undergone by the whole nature of man in the second; hence all particular persons, comprehended under that general nature, are capable of receiving the benefit of those sufferings, if they will but apply them rightly to themselves. Bp. Beveridge.

"The whole world" is here mentioned in contradiction from all Christians, to whom St. John speaketh in this place of his Catholick Epistle; that "whole world," of which he saith in the same Epistle, that "the whole world lieth in wickedness," chap. v. 19. In this and in various other places, where Jesus is called the Saviour of the world, that the world according to its ordinary acceptation, and as every man would take it at first hearing, doth signify the whole community of mankind, comprehending men of all sorts and qualities, good and bad, believers and infidels; not, in a new unusual sense, any special restrained world of some persons, particularly regarded or qualified; will, I suppose, easily appear to him, who shall, without prejudice or partiality, attend to the common use thereof in Scripture, especially in St. John, who most frequently applieth it as to this, so to other cases or matters. Dr. Isaac Barrow.

3. —— that we know him,] Truly and acceptably. Dr. Whitby. See the notes on Hos. ii. 20; Jer. xxii. 15.

—— if we keep his commandments.] Whosoever doth so, though imperfectly, yet sincerely and humbly, hath nothing to fear: who-

After Anno DOMINI 90.

4 He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him.

6 He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked.

7 Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment which ye had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

8 Again, a new commandment I write unto you, which thing is true in him and in you: because the darkness is past, and the true light now shineth.

9 He that saith he is in the light, and soever doth not, hath nothing to hope. Strong feelings of joyful assurance may be given to the pious from above as a present reward: and strong feelings of vain presumption may lead on the wicked, secure and triumphant, to their final destruction. Very reasonable terrours from consciousness of their guilt may torment the bad beforehand: and very unreasonable ones, from constitution or the suggestions of Satan, may assault the good. Therefore we are to judge of our condition by none of these things; but by the Scripture rule, fairly interpreted: "Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous; he that committeth sin, is of the devil," chap. iii. 7, 8. Abp. Secker.

---

5. — in him verily is the love of God perfected:] He that doth so is a perfect lover of God. Dr. Hammond.

6. He that saith he abideth in him &c.] He, that pretends to be a member of Christ, (see John xv. 4,) doth by that engage himself to live as Christ lived; or, if he does not, to give over so pretending. Dr. Hammond.

To "abide in Christ," to "be in Christ," to "put on Christ;" and reciprocally Christ's "being in us," "living," "dwelling," "being formed in us," and the like expressions, occurring in holy Scripture, do not denote any physical inherence, or essential conjunction between Christ and us, such as those who affect unintelligible mysteries, rather than plain sense, would conceit; but only that mutual relation accruing from our profession of being Christ's disciples, our being inserted into His body the church, being governed by His laws, partaking of His grace, with all the privileges of the Gospel, relying upon His promises, and hoping for eternal salvation from Him. By virtue of which relation we may be said, in a mystical or moral manner, to be united to Him, deriving strength and sustenance from Him, as the members from the head, the branches from the tree, the other parts of the building from the foundation; by which similitudes this mysterious union is usually expressed in Scripture: in effect, briefly, to "be in" or to "abide in Christ" implieth no more, but our being truly in faith and practice Christians; so that the meaning of St. John's words seemeth plainly and simply to be this: Whoever pretends to be a Christian, that is, to believe the doctrine and embrace the discipline of Christ, "ought to walk," that is, is obliged to order the whole course of his life and actions, "as Christ walked," that is, as Christ lived and conversed in the world: or, it is the duty of every one professing Christianity to conform his life to the pattern of Christ's life, to follow His example, to imitate His practice. Dr. Isaac Barrow.

No one can fail to see that the life of Christ was designed as a pattern for His followers, who considers how admirably it is calculated for that purpose. We meet not here with legendary tales of romantick austerities, ecstasies, and abstractions, tending only to amaze and embarrass the consciences of men with unprofitable and unnecessary scruples; but we behold a life, which, though holy and without spot or blemish from beginning to end, was conducted after the manner of men, and so as to be imitable by them; being passed in the midst of civil society, and in the exercise of all those lovely graces, by which that is preserved and improved, sweetened and sanctified. And we should find it the best compendium of morality, the most perfect and unerring rule whereby to direct ourselves in all cases, if we would only ask our own hearts, before we enter upon an action, how the blessed Jesus would behave in our circumstances. A conscience, but moderately informed from the Gospel, would seldom perhaps give a wrong determination. Bp. Horne.

7. Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you,] This charge, that I lay upon you, of loving one another, though it be now newly and freshly urged by me, yet in regard of the first original of it is very ancient, even as old as the eternal law of God itself. Bp. Hall.

The command of love might be called an "old commandment," as being a branch of the law of nature, and a known precept of the Jewish religion: although in other respects it might be called "a new commandment," because urged from a new motive, and enforced by a new example. Burkitt.

8. Again, a new commandment I write unto you, &c.] Again, it is in some respects a new commandment that I write unto you; even in the same sense that our Saviour so called it; in that it is daily renewed unto you, and vehemently reinforced upon you by God, even that ye should strive and labour unto that, which was really and perfectly performed by Christ, and justly and duly required of you; because it is not now with you as it was wont: the darkness of your ignorance and unbelief is passed, and the light of truth now shineth clearly in your eyes. Bp. Hall.

The 7th and 8th verses contain a very useful piece of instruction, expressed in a manner somewhat obscure and enigmatical on purpose to excite that attention, which they will soon reward by a discovery of their meaning. Probably they were designed to be more especially understood of the great precept, inculcated immediately after them, of universal good will: an original duty of mankind, but strangely forgotten throughout the earth, till our Saviour taught it more clearly, and enforced it more strongly, than had ever been done before. Yet they are equally applicable to the whole of Christianity: and it might very well be the Apostle's meaning to extend them so far, and set forth in them a truth, wonderfully fitted to give both a just and an engaging notion of the Gospel; that its general purpose is to make men happy, by restoring amongst them the belief and practice of the primitive universal religion of rational beings; that its peculiar doctrines were all introduced by the change of human circumstances, and are the same in substance with those, of which the Jews and Patriarchs received imperfect notices and typical representations in ancient time: that being thus, in respect of God's early promulgation of it, "an old commandment," it was yet, with respect to the age in which our Saviour republished it, "a new" one; as "darkness" had covered the world, which by His means was driven away; and the "light" of truth displayed again, with a brightness and reviving warmth, till then unknown. For Christianity added much evidence and distinctness to many important and many comfortable articles of faith; and then building on them the corresponding obligations of duty, completed on the old foundations a superstructure, only so far new as the state of mankind required it should be. This is doubtless an advantageous view of the Christian dispensation; representing it as doing for us exactly what we needed to have done: and this is likewise a just view of it. Abp. Secker.

9—11. He that saith he is in the light, &c.] Wherefore it is an effect of the most malicious prejudice and stupid ignorance of plain truth, for any man to profess himself a true disciple of Christ, while he harbours revengeful thoughts and uncharitable principles towards other men. On the contrary, a kind behaviour and tender disposition towards all our brethren is one of the best instances of Christian perfection, and secures us from all the scandal and mischievous effects of a censorious and persecuting temper. Pyle.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now.

10 He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none † occasion of stumbling in him.

† Gr. scandal.

11 But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.

12 I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake.

13 I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one. I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the Father.

14 I have written unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

15 Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

16 For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world.

17 And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever.

18 Little children, it is the last time:

12—14. I write unto you, little children, &c.] The sense of these three verses may be thus expressed: The cautions I here give you ought to be equally regarded by all degrees of Christian professors. The new converts and younger Christians are to consider themselves as newly put into a state of salvation, the pardon of sin, and the favour of God, through Jesus Christ; and to endeavour to confirm themselves in it by the careful practice of true Christian virtue. Such as are come to more maturity in their profession, and are in the strength and vigour of their age, have a great advantage, and ought to employ the utmost of that vigour in resisting the strongest temptations of the devil, and perfecting their conquest over him and all his wicked instruments. And the aged Christians cannot but have so clear a knowledge of God, and the revelation of His will by Jesus Christ, during the long season from their first conversion, that it would be utterly inexcusable for them to be wanting in these essential duties, or be drawn from them by the false teachers. Pyle.

13. — him that is from the beginning.] That eternal Son of God, which was before all worlds. Bp. Hall. Christ, that is from the beginning of the world, though He was born as man here on earth, not many years since. Dr. Wells.

15. Love not the world, &c.] Endeavour to wean your affections from all immoderate desires of the pleasures, riches, dignities, and preferments of the world. Shew no sinful compliance to attain them; love them not in any higher degree, than to be ready to part with any of them, for the sake of Christ and His religion. For all such immoderate affections of temporal things are utterly inconsistent with the love of God and true religion. Pyle.

—— If any man love the world,] If any man's heart be set upon the world. Bp. Hall.

The felicity of a future state is provided for those only who have made themselves fit for it, through the help of God's grace, by an innocent behaviour and religious frame of soul; neither of which is consistent with being attached and given up to the things here below. A heart and affections tied down to them will grow like them; become earthy and base, insensible of pious and virtuous movements, unmeet for "the inheritance of the saints in light," Col. i. 12. "If any man love the world" inordinately, "the love of the Father is not in him." They are different spirits, thwarting each other continually: and we have only to choose of which we will be; for of both we cannot. Abp. Secker.

16. For all that is in the world, &c.] For all those things, wherewith the hearts of worldly men are taken up, which are reduced to those three heads, carnal lusts and concupiscences, covetous desires, proud and ambitious thoughts and affectations, are such as are utterly abhorring from God, and are the mere baits of the world. Bp. Hall.

The Apostle means, that immoderate fondness for the pleasures of sense, unreasonable delight in beholding the increase of our wealth, haughty complacency in preeminence and power, are not dispositions proceeding from God, nor consistent with a spirit of true religion. We cannot indeed preserve ourselves from being solicited, perhaps from being moved and disquieted, by some or other of the temptations that surround us; but from yielding to them, through Divine assistance, we may. Abp. Secker.

By the "lust of the flesh," is meant sensuality and intemperance, unruly appetites, and irregular pleasures. By "the lust of the eyes," is meant the love of vain magnificence and superfluous wealth, an eager pursuit and an excessive fondness of it. The desire of riches is called "the lust of the eyes," because in superfluous and misapplied wealth there is nothing to be found, besides feeding the eyes with an unprofitable object. "When goods increase," says Solomon, "what good is there to the owners thereof, saving the beholding of them with their eyes?" Speaking of covetousness he says, "The eye is never satisfied with riches." And hence covetousness, or coveting what belongs to others, is sometimes called "an evil eye." By "the pride of life" is meant power; power obtained by unlawful means, or exercised in an imperious and oppressive manner. Thus the vices, which the Apostle comprises under the love of the wicked world, are these: sensuality and intemperance, covetousness and rapaciousness, ambition and overbearing insolence. That they, who are addicted to these vices, love the world too much, and that their love of it cannot be consistent with the love of God, are truths plain and undeniable. They themselves either renounce all pretensions to religion; or, if they call themselves Christians, are self-condemned, and know that they have no right to that name; or else are ignorant in the highest degree of the nature and spirit of Christianity. Dr. Jortin.

17. — he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever.] Inasmuch as he shall be rewarded with an happy immortality in the life to come. Dr. Wells.

18. Little children, it is the last time: &c.] Ye are fallen into the last stage of the world; neither shall there be any new state of things betwixt this and the final judgment: and, as ye have heard that, in the last times of the church, antichrist shall come, so know now, that accordingly many antichrists, who are direct opposers of the Saviour of the world, the Son of God, are already come; whereby it is made evident that this is that last time which was foretold of. Bp. Hall.

The word "antichrist" is no where found but in St. John's 1st and 2d Epistles. It may have two meanings: for, if the preposition "anti" denotes in place of, the name will signify one who puts himself in the place of Christ; consequently "antichrist" is a false Christ. But if the preposition denotes opposition, "antichrist" is one who opposeth Christ. The persons, to whom this Epistle was written, had heard of the coming of "antichrist," in both senses of the name. For the first sort were foretold by our Lord, Matt. xxiv. 5; and the second, Matt. xxiv. 11. From what St. John hath written, ver. 22 of this chapter, and chap. iv. 3, and 2 Epist. ver. 7, by "antichrist" he appears to mean those false and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

19 They went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us: but they went out, that they might be made manifest that they were not all of us.

20 But ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things.

21 I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth.

22 Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

23 Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father: [but] he that acknowledgeth the Son hath the Father also.

24 Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father.

25 And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life.

---

prophets or teachers, who were foretold by our Lord to arise about the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, and who were now gone abroad. Some of these denied the humanity of Jesus Christ, others denied the divinity: and as both sorts opposed Christ, by denying the redemption of the world through His death, it is to be supposed that of them St. John speaks chiefly in these Epistles. When the Apostle mentions these false teachers collectively, he calls them "antichrist" in the singular number, as St. Paul called the false teachers, of whom he prophesied, collectively "that man of sin," 2 Thess. ii. 3. But when St. John speaks of these teachers as individuals, he calls them "many antichrists" in the plural number. Dr. Macknight.

The late appearance of antichrist was a doctrine so universally received in the primitive church, that it was like a proverbial saying amongst them; and thence St. John takes occasion to moralize on the doctrine, and warn his followers against that spirit, which in aftertimes was to animate "the man of sin." "Little children," says he, "it is the last time; and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now there are many antichrists: whereby ye know that it is the last time." As much as to say, We are fallen into the very dregs of time, as appears from that antichristian spirit, which now so much pollutes the churches; for you know it is a common saying, that antichrist is to come in those wretched days. The Apostle goes on to employ the same allusion through the rest of the Epistle: see ver. 22; chap. iv. 3; 2 Epist. ver. 7. Where we see the appellation "antichrist" is employed to signify an enemy of God and godliness in general, by the same figure of speech that Elias was designed in those times to signify a Prophet; and Rachel, a daughter of Israel; and that in these times Judas is used for a traitor, and Nero for a tyrant. But as these converted terms necessarily suppose that they originally belonged to persons of the like characters, who had them in proper; so does the name "antichrist," transferred by St. John to certain of his impious contemporaries, as necessarily suppose, that there was one who should arise in the latter times, to whom the title eminently belonged, as marked out in the prophecies by the proper name of antichrist. Bp. Warburton.

19. They went out from us,] "From us," Christians of Judea, Acts xv. 1; and "from us" the Apostles, Acts xv. 24: "but they were not of us," but were "false brethren," Gal. ii. 4; and "false apostles," 2 Cor. xi. 13. "For if they had been of us," agreeing with us the Apostles and true churches of Christ, in the doctrine and truth of the Gospel, "they would no doubt have continued with us," preaching that doctrine which we teach. The persons, censured in the chapters referred to above, for preaching doctrines opposite to, and destructive of, Christianity, were doubtless some of the many antichrists, which St. John speaks of here: and they also divided and separated themselves from the church, and became hereticks under the names of Cerinthians, Nazarenes, and Ebionites. Cerinthus spread his heresy in Asia, the province of St. John, saith Theodoret, and was contemporary with the Apostle; whence the church desired him to write against Cerinthus and the Ebionites. Dr. Whitby.

20. But ye have an unction from the Holy One, &c.] But however specious their pretences may now be, I hope you are so fully instructed in the great truths, so sensible of the noble privileges of your religion, and so confirmed in it by the gifts and endowments of the Holy Ghost, as not to be much in danger of being perverted by them. Pyle.

21. — and that no lie] That is, none of those false doctrines, which are taught by the antichrists or hereticks, is any branch "of the truth" of the Gospel. On account of such your knowledge it is, that I stand not to prove the falsity of their doctrines; but only, by mentioning them to you as false doctrines, exhort you to persevere in the true faith. Dr. Wells.

22. Who is a liar but he that denieth &c.] There is no such liar, no such dangerous false teacher, as he who denies, &c. Dr. Hammond.

—— He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son.] The Son directly, the Father by consequence; because He hath testified of Christ by miracles, and a voice from heaven, which testimony of the Father is not true, if Jesus be not the Christ. Dr. Hammond.

To deny the Father here, is not to deny Him to be the true God, as the heathens did: but 1st, to deny the truth of His testimony, see chap. v. 10; John iii. 33: 2dly, to deny the doctrine of the Father, or that doctrine which proceedeth from Him; "for He, whom God hath sent, speaketh the words of God," John iii. 34. Whence it is evident, that he who denieth the Son, cannot thus retain the true knowledge of the Father: see John i. 18; Matt. xi. 27. By Him alone can we come acceptably to the Father, so as to have life; for He is "the way, and the truth, and the life," John xiv. 6. And by Him alone are we taught how to "worship the Father in spirit and in truth," John iv. 23, 24. Hence Christ so often tells the Jews, they therefore wanted the true knowledge of the Father, because they knew not Him, John viii. 19; xiv. 7; xvi. 3. Dr. Whitby.

23. Whosoever denieth the Son,] Whosoever denies Jesus to be truly the Son of God, begotten of the Father before all worlds or created beings, as do the Cerinthians and Ebionites, the same hath not a right and saving knowledge of the Father, but doth by consequence deny the Father, by denying Jesus to be His true Son. Dr. Wells.

—— [but] he that acknowledgeth the Son &c.] These words are generally printed in our version in italicks: but they are found in so many good manuscripts, that they may be well believed to have made part of the original. Dr. Doddridge.

24. — from the beginning.] Of the Gospel preached to you by the Apostles of Christ. Dr. Wells.

—— ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father.] That is, in the love and favour of the Son, and of the Father, and in communion with both. The Son appears to be placed here before the Father, partly to intimate that they are equal in essence and dignity, as in the apostolical benediction, "the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ," is mentioned before "the love of God" the Father; and partly because no man cometh to, or continueth in, the Father, but by the Son, who is "the way, and the truth, and the life." See John xiv. 23, "If a man love Me, he will keep My words; and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with him." Burkitt.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

26 These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce you.

27 But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in ‖ him.

‖ Or, it.

28 And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

29 If ye know that he is righteous, ‖ ye know that every one that doeth righteousness is born of him.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

‖ Or, know ye.

CHAP. III.

1 He declareth the singular love of God towards us, in making us his sons: 3 who therefore ought obediently to keep his commandments, 11 as also brotherly to love one another.

BEHOLD, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: there-

---

26. — concerning them that seduce you.] That endeavour to seduce you. Dr. Wells.

27. But the anointing] Namely, the gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit. Dr. Wells.

—— ye need not that any man teach you:] Any new doctrine, any new fundamental principles of faith. Burkitt.

Abundance of fanaticism, and enthusiasm, and other mischiefs have been brought into the church of Christ, by the misinterpreting and misapplying of those texts, which speak of the gifts of the Spirit, which some men so understand, as to make no distinction between the times then and the times now. They read for instance a prophecy in Joel, that when "the last days should come, God would pour His Spirit upon all flesh, and their young men should see visions, and their old men dream dreams," Joel ii. 28; Acts ii. 17. And again, that in those days, as the Prophet Jeremiah says, "every man shall no more teach his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord; for they shall all know Me from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord," Jer. xxxi. 34. And accordingly they find the matter of fact true, for St. John speaks to all the Christians to whom he writes in these terms, "The anointing which ye have received of Him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you, but the same anointing teacheth you all things, and is truth." Hence they conclude, that in these days, which are the last days, the Spirit of God is poured upon all flesh, and that every one hath a right to expect immediate impulses and revelations, as to what he is to believe and to practise: that by this assistance of the Spirit, every brother may understand the mysteries of the holy Scriptures, without the troublesome way of studying human learning; nay, and may take upon himself the pastoral office, and become a guide and teacher of others, without any warrant from human authority, merely upon the impulse of the Spirit of God. These consequences have been drawn from these and such texts of Scripture: and so far have they been promoted and improved by several amongst us, that reason, and prudence, and all acquired learning, are rather accounted by them hindrances to the work of God's church, than any ways contributing to it. Nay, they are arrived to a pitch above the Scriptures themselves, which they look upon as a dead letter in comparison of the light within them, the witness, the anointing which they have received from above; which is the only measure with them of truth and falshood, and of good and evil. The colour, which these enthusiastick people derive for this their notion, from the letter of some passages in the Old and New Testament, would quite vanish, if they would but take care to distinguish between the effects of the Spirit, which belonged to the converting of the world, and those which were to be His constant permanent operations among such as were already Christians. There is no one will deny but the Apostles, and those in their times, had these inspirations, these revelations they speak of: and the texts, that they produce, are some of them plain promises and predictions of them, and some of them plain proofs that those promises were made good. They did see visions, and were endued with extraordinary talents of wisdom and knowledge, without human methods, and might expect particular impulses of the Holy Ghost upon occasions, where they wanted either light or direction: and all this was indeed little enough for the discharge of that great work they had upon their hands, namely, the bringing of the world over from Judaism and heathenism to Christianity. But that being once done, and the Gospel of Christ, and all things pertaining to it, being plainly left in writing by the Apostles or apostolical men, as there would be from henceforward no need of those assistances of the Spirit, so it would be a vain thing to expect them. We are not to desire those immediate revelations, nor to expect that God should vouchsafe them, if we prayed for them. God hath declared all His will, that is necessary for us to know, by our Saviour and His Apostles: and the rules which they have given us, together with our own natural light and reason, and the other outward means and helps of instruction, which are every day at hand among us, are sufficient, abundantly sufficient, to guide and direct us, both as to belief and practice, through all the cases and emergencies that can ordinarily happen to us. And in extraordinary cases God will take care, some way or other, that we shall not be at a loss. And therefore to pretend to the Spirit in these days, either for preaching, or praying, or prophesying, or denouncing God's judgments, or for any other thing, in such a way as implies immediate inspiration; or to set up a light within us, contrary to the light of reason, or different from the light of Scripture without us; is the extreme of folly, enthusiasm, and madness. Abp. Sharp.

29. If ye know that he is righteous,] As in Himself, so on account of His being the Author of righteousness to us, "ye know" by necessary consequence, "that every one that doth righteousness" is enabled so to do only by the assistance of Christ's Spirit vouchsafed unto him as a principle of a new and holy life, whence every such person is said in the language of the Gospel to be "born of Him." Dr. Wells.

Because in the following chapter the Apostle describes the great honours and privileges of believers as the sons of God, some commentators are of opinion that that chapter should have begun with this 29th verse. Dr. Macknight.

Chap. III. The Apostle speaks of the love, which God hath shewn to us in adopting us for His children, and of the glory which He has reserved for us. He says, that the hope of this glory obliges us to purify ourselves; and that the end of Christ's coming was, to withdraw men from sin, and to render them righteous and holy. He treats particularly about the love of our neighbour; he shews how necessary that virtue is, and its nature and effects; and he adds, that the surest way to obtain peace of conscience, and to be filled with confidence before God, is to love one another sincerely. Ostervald.

Ver. 1. Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us,] Namely, upon us Christians. Dr. Wells. As if he had said, I have been exhorting you to secure to yourselves the privileges of your Christianity by the careful practice of its commands: a thing you cannot fail to do, would you seriously consider how noble and valuable a blessing it is to be made the children of God, members of His church, and imitators of His Divine excellencies. No wonder therefore the generality of mankind should have so despicable a notion of us Christians, while they have so little apprehension of the nature and will of that God, whose servants we are. Pyle.

—— that we should be called the sons of God:] That we, the sons of disobedient and condemned Adam, by natural generation, fore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

2 Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.

3 And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.

4 Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

5 And ye know that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin.

6 Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not: whosoever sinneth hath not seen him, neither known him.

7 Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous.

8 He that committeth sin is of the devil; should be translated into the glorious liberty of the sons of God by adoption: that we, who were aliens, strangers, and enemies, should be assumed "unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named," Eph. iii. 15, and be made partakers of "the riches of the glory of His inheritance in the saints," Eph. i. 18. For as, in the legal adoption, the father hath as full and absolute power over his adopted son, as over his own issue, so, in the spiritual, the adopted sons have a clear and undoubted right of inheritance. He then, who hath "predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to Himself," Eph. i. 5, hath thereby another kind of paternal relation, and so we receive "the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father," Rom. viii. 15. Bp. Pearson.

---

2. — we shall be like him;] In holiness as well as in happiness; as well in purity as immortality. Burkitt. To be "like God" implies in few words every thing desirable, that ever so many words can express. Abp. Secker.

—— for we shall see him as he is.] We shall have a clear and perfect knowledge of God, wherein consists our intellectual happiness; and shall be admitted into His immediate presence, where is all other happiness and glory, of which we are capable. Dr. Wells. It appears from these words of the Apostle, that the state of good men in the other world will carry with it a resemblance, not in degree, but in kind, to the absolutely perfect Being in those perfections, of which man is capable: and that these will be produced in us by "seeing God as He is;" that is, by a vastly more distinct and more full sight of Him, than the present condition of human nature will admit of. Bp. Comybeare.

3. And every man that hath this hope] Of seeing Christ, and of being like Him, "purifieth himself." The felicity, which the Gospel teacheth us to expect in the world to come, is not that of a Mahometan paradise, in which animal pleasures are the chief enjoyments. The happiness of the children of God in the kingdom of their Father will consist in being like Christ, not only in respect of His immortality, but in respect of His transcendent virtues, especially His boundless benevolence. And the joy, which will flow from the possession and exercise of virtues similar to Christ's, is so great, that no one, who hopes to become like Christ in virtue and happiness, will indulge himself in the unrestrained enjoyment of sensual pleasures; but will purify himself from the immoderate desire of those pleasures, in imitation of the purity of Christ. Dr. Macknight.

—— purifieth himself,] Namely, from the lusts of the flesh, and from every sin. The Apostle, as Beza observes, does not say, 'hath purified himself,' but "purifieth himself;" to shew that it is a good man's constant study to purify himself, because in this life no one can attain to perfect purity. By this text therefore, as well as by chap. i. 8, those fanaticks are condemned, who imagine they are able to live without sin. Dr. Macknight.

Would God a better conformity to the example of His purity, than actually obtains, were to be found in the lives of nominal Christians! the numbers would be greater, which might entertain a reasonable hope that they shall be made like to Him when He appeareth. But thanks be to God, repentance, in this as in other cases, genuine, sincere repentance, shall stand the sinner in the stead of innocence: the sinner is allowed to wash the stains, even of these pollutions, in the Redeemer's blood. Bp. Horsley.

4. Whosoever committeth sin] That is, who lives in the commission of it, lives in an opposition to the law of God. Dr. Whitby.

5. — to take away our sins;] Not only by suffering to remove the guilt of our past sins, but also to purify us from the power and dominion of it, that henceforth we might not serve sin, Rom. vi. 6; that being "freed from sin" we might "live unto righteousness." Dr. Whitby.

—— and in him is no sin.] So that our likeness to Him must consist in ceasing from it. Dr. Whitby.

6. — sinneth not:] Doth not go on in a course and habit of sinning. He makes it his constant care and endeavour to avoid all sin. Burkitt. It is necessary to understand the expression with some such limitation, in order, both to make one Scripture consistent with another, (compare James iii. 2,) and even to reconcile this assertion to other passages in the Epistle before us; see chap. i. 8—10. Dr. Doddridge.

—— hath not seen him, neither known him.] Has no true knowledge of the intent of Christ's coming into the world, or of His doctrine here. Dr. Wells. "Whosoever sinneth" thus, hath no interest at all in Christ, neither hath truly believed in Him. Bp. Hall.

7. — let no man deceive you:] With pretensions that faith without righteousness will make you righteous before God. Dr. Whitby. The caution implies, that some pretenders to inspiration had endeavoured to deceive the brethren, by teaching what St. John here condemns: and being a solemn address of the Apostle it shews the importance of the matter which it introduces. Dr. Macknight.

—— he that doeth righteousness is righteous,] The Scriptures speak of doing righteousness in two senses: 1st, in a legal sense, which consists in an exact obedience and fulfilling of the law; and thus there is "none righteous, no not one:" 2dly, in an evangelical sense, which means walking uprightly according to the rules of the Gospel, conscientiously avoiding all known sin, and performing every commanded duty, observing a constant course of holy actions, and making it our daily care to please God in all that we do. And it is the duty of every Christian, who would not be deceived as to his spiritual condition, to try himself by this infallible mark: "He that doeth righteousness is righteous:—whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God," ver. 10. Burkitt.

8. He that committeth sin is of the devil; &c.] He that gives himself over to the commission of sin, and makes it his willing practice, that man is not of God, but of the devil: for it is, and hath been, the trade of that wicked spirit, even from the beginning, ever since his fall, to sin against God, and to draw others into sin and condemnation with him. Bp. Hall.

Herein is the plain trial of our condition. If we are destitute of "the fruits of the Spirit," it is bad: if we find them in our hearts and lives, we have proof enough of its being good, and need never disquiet ourselves for want of any other. Being able to tell the very moment when we became pious and virtuous, is not material, provided we are so now; and happiest of all are they, who remember not themselves ever to have been otherwise. All feelings are imaginary and deceitful, unless they be accompanied with that one, which the Apostle experienced and mentions; "For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity we have had our conversafor the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

9 Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God.

10 In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 For this is the ‖ message that ye heard from the beginning, that we should love one another.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

12 Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous.

‖ Or, commandment.

13 Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you.

14 We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the bre-

---

tion in the world," 2 Cor. i. 12. Our Saviour's rule of "knowing every tree by its fruit," Luke vi. 44, is the only sure way to judge of ourselves, as well as of others. And though we may perhaps be sometimes at a loss how to judge, or inclined, and even strongly, to fear the worst; yet if this arise not from presumptuous sins or habitual negligence, but merely from excessive humility or weakness of spirits, a modest diffidence will never hinder our future happiness, nor will a bold positiveness ever forward it. Good men may be cast down, and bad men elevated, without any reason. The former may see much in themselves to dislike; and yet God may see enough of what He approves to accept them: they may experience little joy in serving Him, and yet "walk" more completely "worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing," Col i. 10, for doing it without the encouragement of a present reward. The latter, on the other hand, may build upon groundless fancies of their own, mistaking them for Divine communications; may be absolutely confident, wonderfully transported, yet find themselves at last fatally deceived. It is not therefore by their fears, or their hopes, or their raptures, that men are to judge of their spiritual condition. "Hereby," saith St. John, "do we know that we know God, if we keep His commandments," chap. ii. 3. "Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous: he that committeth sin is of the devil." Abp. Secker.

As therefore we are well assured, that repentance will reinstate us, and that obedience will continue us, in the Divine favour, according to the gracious terms of the Gospel, so let us likewise remember, that he, who wilfully and habitually committeth sin, whatever evidence of his new birth or justification, his adoption or acceptance, he may fancy himself possessed of, is actually no other than the servant of sin, and the slave of the devil. In short, virtue and vice, holiness and wickedness, Christ and Belial, can never, never unite together. If therefore we design ourselves to be the candidates for heaven, we must endeavour to acquire such qualifications as will render us fit for that holy place: because unless we really acquire them during the present state, the alternative is dreadful indeed: for "he who committeth sin is of the devil." How shocking even to repeat; yet much more shocking to feel! to feel not only for a time, but for ever! Whereas on the contrary, "he who doeth righteousness is righteous, even as God is righteous:" righteous he is, because he will have, not only his manifold failings and imperfections all forgiven, through the mercies of the Gospel covenant, but even his deliberate sins and offences cancelled and blotted out on his sincere repentance: and what is still more than ever could have been thought of, much less petitioned for, he will find himself permitted to appear before God as "holy, unblameable, and unreproveable in His sight," Col. i. 22. Dean Tucker.

—— For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.] Namely, that He might undo all that the devil had done, by recovering mankind out of that sinful estate to which the devil had brought them, and enabling them to resist the devil and all his temptations, so as to force him to fly from them. This is what we are to understand by the original promise that He should "bruise the serpent's head;" his head, where all his policy and power lay; and so disable him from accomplishing the mischief, which he designed and attempted against mankind. Bp. Beveridge.

9, 10. Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; &c.] As if he had said, In fine, while a man preserves his Christian principle, and answers the character of a true member of God's church, he can never be guilty of deliberate and habitual vice. Make it therefore a sure test to whom a man belongs, in whose service he is listed, and from whom he may expect his wages, whether of God or the devil, by the good or wicked practices of his life, by his behaviour towards God and towards his brethren. Pyle.

The phrase "born of God" is not to be so taken here, as to denote the single transient act of regeneration; but rather a continued course, a permanent state, so that a regenerate man and a child of God are of the same meaning, and signify him that lives a pious and godly life, and continues to do so. For the phrase, "a child" or "son" of any kind of father, signifies a resemblance or similitude of inclinations and actions: as a child of the devil, Acts xiii. 10; sons of Belial, Judges xix. 22; children of Abraham, Gal. iii. 7. And so generally in this Epistle, he that is "born of God" signifies a man truly pious, an obedient servant of God: and such is the subject of this proposition here, when of such an one it is said, that "he cannot sin:" not affirming, that he cannot cease to be what he is, cannot fall off from the performance of his duty, of the possibility of which the many warnings and exhortations that are given to pious men are evidences, see chap. ii. 1; 1 Cor. x. 12; Heb. iii. 12; 2 Pet. iii. 17; but that remaining thus, a pious follower, imitator, and so "child of God," he cannot yield deliberately to any kind of sin. Dr. Hammond.

12. — And wherefore slew he him?] See the note from Bp. Conybeare on Gen. iv. 4.

13. Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you.] By what was said of Cain's hatred to Abel, and the occasion of it, you may learn not to think it new or strange, if wicked men hate you, notwithstanding, or even upon account of, your piety and virtue. Dean Stanhope.

14, 15. We know that we have passed &c.] Meanwhile as charity in us is an evidence of our being true disciples of Christ, and entitled to the future happiness promised by the Gospel; so is such malice in them as sure a mark of their being still in a state of condemnation: every malicious man being in the eye of God, who judges by the disposition of the heart and not by outward acts only, a murderer. Dean Stanhope, Pyle.

According to the Apostle in this place, the surest mark, by which we can know our actual state, is to consider, whether we possess that characteristick disposition towards our brethren which the Christian religion enjoins. The high encomium, passed in this and the following verse on love to mankind, is not to be so understood, as if no virtue but benevolence were necessary to complete the Christian character. The virtues have all such a connexion with each other, that they cannot subsist separately. And therefore, if one really loveth his brethren, he will not only be charitable to the poor, but he will be just in his dealings, true to his promises, faithful in all the trusts committed to him. In short, he will carefully abstain from injuring his neighbour in any respect, and will perform every duty he oweth to him, from a sincere principle of piety towards God, whereby his whole conduct will be rendered uniformly virtuous. Dr. Macknight.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

thren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death.

15 Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him.

16 Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

17 But whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

18 My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.

19 And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall † assure our hearts before him.

† Gr. persuade.

20 For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

21 Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God.

22 And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.

23 And this is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment.

24 And he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

CHAP. IV.

1 He warneth them not to believe all teachers, who boast of the Spirit, but to try them by the rules of the catholick faith: 7 and by many reasons exhorteth to brotherly love.

---

15. Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer:] If we do a person no harm, yet if we wish him harm, St. John hath here determined the case, "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer." For indeed, hatred not only leads to murder, and too often, when indulged, produces it unexpectedly, but it is always, though perhaps for the most part in a lower degree, the very spirit of murder in the heart; and it is by our hearts that God will judge us. Abp. Secker.

16. — and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.] The meaning of this and the following verse is, that the evidences of God's love are so engaging, as even to render the sacrificing of our lives for a greater and general good a becoming instance of charity for them, who are zealous to imitate it in the just perfection. But if any, who ought not to refuse their very lives, shall yet be so sordid as not to impart their superfluities for the support of their brethren, whose hard case it is to want the necessaries of life: all the pretences, which such hard-hearted wretches make to the love of God, are manifestly false and hypocritical. Dean Stanhope.

The honour and advancement of the Gospel, by the influence of the example of those, who suffer for their constant adherence to the truth of it, is generally supposed to be that "laying down of our lives for the brethren," to which St. John here pronounces us obliged. Dean Stanhope.

18. — let us not love in word, neither in tongue;] That is, not in them only, James ii. 16; "but in deed and in truth," in true affection of heart, 1 Pet. i. 22; and in sincerity of action, Rom. xii. 9: by love serving one another, Gal. v. 13; not pitying only, but relieving them according to their wants and our ability. Dr. Whitby.

19—21. And hereby we know that we are of the truth, &c.] This will shew us to be Christians indeed; and while the impartial testimony and inward sense of our own consciences assures us of the sincere performance of our duty, we may safely conclude that God, the Searcher of hearts and Standard of all truth, will approve of and reward us. And on the contrary, whoever by the clear conviction of his own mind knows and feels himself to be a hypocritical transgressor of his moral duty, must be assured that God, who knows him better than he does himself, cannot fail to be his more severe judge and revenger. Pyle.

20. — if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things.] If a man be conscious to himself of his own wickedness, yea, the very secret wickedness and hypocrisy of his heart, sure God Himself, who set up in every man this "candle" of conscience, as Solomon calls it, Prov. xx. 27, cannot be ignorant of it: He being the fountain of all knowledge, and all knowledge in the creature derivative from Him, and so knowing all things that are knowable by any creature, and infinitely more. Bp. Bull.

22. And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him,] That is, shall receive: for the present tense is often used for the future, to shew the certainty of the thing spoken of. This general declaration must be limited by the conditions, which in other passages of Scripture are made necessary to our petitions being granted by God: such as, that we ask things agreeable to His will, chap. v. 14, 15; and that we ask them in faith, James i. 6; that is, in the full persuasion of the Divine wisdom and goodness, and with sincerity and resignation. Such prayers they who keep the commandments of God may hope will be heard, because they keep His commandments by habitually doing the things which are pleasing to Him. Dr. Macknight.

23. — That we should believe &c.] That is, true faith and true charity are the sum of that duty which God requires of us. Dean Stanhope.

This and the following verse may be thus paraphrased: In short, true faith in the doctrine of Christ, and true charity to mankind, especially to our Christian brethren, is the sum total of our duty. And you, that have already duly performed it, have a sufficient pledge and earnest of your acceptance with God, as true disciples of Christ, by the gifts and graces of His Holy Spirit conferred upon you. Pyle.

The way of the Spirit is not to be traced; the working of God is not to be perceived. The Divine Author and His operation are hidden from us, but His work is manifest. And though we cannot see God at any time, or feel the motion of the Spirit in our hearts, yet is there certain evidence whether we are wrought on by Him or not. St. John gives us an infallible rule, that we may know that God, by His Spirit, dwelleth in us, if we keep His commandments. Dr. Glocester Ridley.

Chap. IV. St. John warns Christians not to believe every doctrine, but to try them whether they proceed from God or not; and to assist them in the discovery he gives them these two rules: first, that those who did not confess that Jesus Christ was come in the flesh, and was the Messiah, ought to be rejected as people animated with the spirit of the world and of errour, and not with the Spirit of truth. The second rule is, that religion consists in charity, which the Apostle proves, by representing the greatness of the love which God has shewn in giving us His Son: whence he concludes, that those, who are not animated by a spirit of charity, do not love God, nor belong to Him, and consequently ought not to be heard. Ostervald.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

BELOVED, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world.

2 Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God:

3 And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come; and even now already is it in the world.

4 Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them: because greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world. After Anno DOMINI 90.

5 They are of the world: therefore speak they of the world, and the world heareth them.

6 We are of God: he that knoweth God heareth us; he that is not of God heareth not us. Hereby know we the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error.

7 Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love.

9 In this was manifested the love of God

The particular subject of the two last chapters is the great doctrine of the incarnation, or, in St. John's own words, of Christ's coming in the flesh: the doctrine of the atonement being included in that of the incarnation, rightly understood, and as it is stated by St. John. The doctrine of the incarnation in its whole amount is this: that one of the three Persons of the Godhead was united to a man; that is, to a human body and a human soul, in the person of Jesus, in order to expiate the guilt of the whole human race, original and actual, by the merit, death, and sufferings, of the Man so united to the Godhead. This atonement was the end of the incarnation: and the two articles reciprocate: for an incarnation is implied and presupposed in the Scripture doctrine of atonement, as the necessary means in the end. For if satisfaction was to be made to the Divine justice for the sins of men, by vicarious obedience and vicarious sufferings, in such a way (and in no other way could it be consistent with Divine wisdom) as might attach the pardoned offender to God's service, upon a principle of love and gratitude, it was essential to this plan that God Himself should take a principal part in all that His justice required to be done and suffered to make room for His mercy: and the Divine nature itself being incapable of suffering, it was necessary to the scheme of pardon that the Godhead should condescend to unite to itself the nature capable.

It is therefore with great truth and reason, that St. John sets forth this as the cardinal doctrine of Christianity; insomuch that he speaks of the belief of this article as the accomplishment of our Christian warfare; the attainment at least of that faith, which with certainty overcometh the world; inspiring the Christian with fortitude to surmount the temptations of the world, in whatever shape they may assail him. On the other hand, the denial of this great truth, so animating to the believer's hopes, he represents as the beginning of that apostasy which is to come to its height in the latter ages, as one of the characters of antichrist. "Ye have heard," he says, "that antichrist shall come: even now there are many antichrists. Who is a liar, but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, denying the Father and the Son." And again, "Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God; and every spirit, that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come, and even now already is it in the world." "The Christ" is a name properly alluding to the inauguration of the Redeemer to His triple office of Prophet, Priest, and King, by the unction from above: but in the phraseology of the hereticks of the apostolick age, it was used as a name of that Divine Being, with whom we maintain, but they denied, an union of the man Jesus. To deny therefore that Jesus is the Christ, was, in their sense of the word "Christ," to deny that He is the Son of God, or God Himself incarnate. He that denieth this, says the Apostle, "is a liar and is antichrist." Two remarkable sects of these lying antichrists arose in the Apostles' days: the sect of the Cerinthian hereticks, who denied the divinity of our Saviour; and the sect of the Docetæ, who denied His manhood, maintaining that the body of Jesus, and every thing He appeared to do and suffer in it, was mere illusion. Thus both equally denied the incarnation: both therefore equally were liars and antichrists: and to give equal and direct contradiction to the lies of both, St. John delivers the truth in these terms, that 'Jesus is the Christ come in the flesh.' Bp. Horsley.

Ver. 1. — believe not every spirit,] That is, every teacher who pretends to be inspired, and every doctrine that lays claim to the authority of Divine revelation; "but try the spirits," that is, examine their doctrines by the rule of the word of God, and try from whom they come, whether from the Spirit of God, or from Satan. Burkitt.

2. Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: &c.] Hereby, for the present occasion, ye shall take a trial of the spirits, whether they be of God or not: every one, who confesseth Jesus Christ to have been God from all eternity, and in the fulness of time to have taken our nature upon Him, and to be come in the flesh, to accomplish the perfect work of man's redemption, is of God, and speaks from God. So by the contraries, ver. 3. Bp. Hall.

3. — and this is that spirit of antichrist, &c.] From this, as well as from chap. ii. 18, it appears that antichrist is used as a general name for all false teachers in every age, who disseminate doctrines contrary to those taught by the Apostles: especially if those doctrines have a tendency to derogate from Christ's character and actions as the Saviour of the world. Dr. Macknight. See the notes on chap. ii. 18.

4. Ye are of God, little children, &c.] But as for you, my dearly beloved children in Christ, ye have overcome the assaults of these pestilent false teachers; because that Spirit of God, which is in you, and hath taken upon Him your safeguard, is greater and more powerful than that wicked spirit, which animates and sets them on work to do this mischief to God and His church. Bp. Hall.

6. We are of God:] Our doctrine is the true pure doctrine of Christ. Dr. Hammond.

—— Hereby know we the spirit of truth, &c.] St. John means, that by the doctrine and writings of the Apostles and Evangelists the truth or falsehood of any doctrine may and must be judged. Burkitt.

7. Beloved, let us love one another:] Another mark is here given, whereby to judge aright whether we be actuated by the Spirit of God. Dr. Wells.

8. —for God is love.] He is, as it were, made up of love and goodness to mankind. Dr. Hammond.

9. In this was manifested the love of God &c.] Our belief in Christ, as the eternal Son of God, is necessary to raise us unto a thankful acknowledgment of the infinite love of God, appearing in the sending of His only-begotten Son into the world to die for sinners. This love of God is frequently extolled and admired by the Apostles. See, besides this passage, John iii. 16; Rom. v. 8; viii. 32. If we look upon all this as nothing else, but that God should cause a man to be born after another manner than other men, and when he was so born after a peculiar manner, yet a toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

10 Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.

11 Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

12 No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us.

13 Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit.

14 And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world.

15 Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God. After Anno DOMINI 90.

16 And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.

17 Herein is † our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment: because as he is, so are we in this world. † Gr. love with us.

18 There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.

19 We love him, because he first loved us.

---

mortal man, should deliver him to die for the sins of the world; I see no such great expression of His love in this way of redemption, more than would have appeared if He had redeemed us any other way. It is true indeed, that the reparation of lapsed man is no act of absolute necessity in respect of God, but that He hath as freely designed our redemption as our creation: considering the misery from which we are redeemed, and the happiness to which we are invited, we cannot but acknowledge the singular love of God, even in the act of redemption itself: but yet the Apostles have raised that consideration higher, and placed the choicest mark of the love of God in choosing such means, and performing in that manner our reparation, by sending His Only-begotten into the world; by not sparing His own Son, by giving and delivering Him up to be scourged and crucified for us: and the estimation of this act of God's love must necessarily increase proportionably to the dignity of the Son so sent into the world: because the more worthy the person of Christ before He suffered, the greater His condescension unto such a suffering condition; and the nearer His relation to the Father, the greater His love to us, for whose sakes He sent Him to suffer. Wherefore to derogate any way from the person and nature of our Saviour before He suffered, is so far to undervalue the love of God, and consequently to come short of that acknowledgment and thanksgiving, which is due unto Him for it. If then the sending of Christ into the world were the highest act of the love of God which could be expressed; if we be obliged unto a return of thankfulness some way correspondent to such infinite love; if such a return can never be made without a true sense of that infinity, and a sense of that infinity of love cannot consist without an apprehension of an infinite dignity of nature in the person sent: then it is absolutely necessary to believe, that Christ is so the Only-begotten Son of the Father, as to be of the same substance with Him, of glory equal, of majesty coeternal. Bp. Pearson.

10. Herein is love, &c.] For of that love this is one great enhancement, that it began on His part, was voluntary and free, without any obligation or desert on our part to incline it. Dean Stanhope.

12. No man hath seen God at any time. &c.] As if he had said, The reason of the foregoing inference is plain: because God is not in the compass of our good offices; and therefore the only method left us of expressing our love to Him, whom we cannot converse visibly with, nor bring any benefit to, is to love those with whom we do converse, and who may be the better for us. This is in effect to do as He did. Dean Stanhope.

13. — because he hath given us of his Spirit.] Which, operating in us by His gracious influences, sets as it were the mark of God upon us, and thereby assures us that He owns us as His, and is become our God. Dr. Doddridge.

14. And we have seen and do testify &c.] Such is the evidence which we Apostles give of having that Spirit; who to our utmost hazard preach Christ and His doctrine, of the truth whereof we have undoubted certainty. Dean Stanhope.

15. Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, &c.] He that is thus content to adhere to Christ, is the sort of man, that God is spiritually present with and united to. Dean Stanhope.

16, 17. And we have known and believed &c.] By firmly adhering to this fundamental truth of His religion, and by the practice of that love and charity so especially enjoined in it, and which is the principal instance of our conformity to His excellencies, and of our return of gratitude to Him; in short, by loving our brethren, as God loved us, and being ready to suffer for their sakes, as Christ suffered for us all, we prove ourselves His true disciples, in full and perfect communion with Him, and may assuredly expect the glorious reward He has promised at the great day of final judgment. Pyle.

18. There is no fear in love;] That is, no slavish or distrustful fear, whereby we question the favour of God; but only a filial and reverential fear, whereby we stand in awe of offending Him as a Father. Burkitt. "Fear" in this place seems opposed to boldness in the foregoing verse. Pyle.

For want of cultivating the love of God, the thoughts of Him are dreadful to the generality of men. Too many are tempted to wish in their hearts, if they durst, that He were not, or had no regard to human conduct: and if any of them can but persuade themselves for a while on the strength of some poor cavil, to hope what they wish, they triumph in the imagined discovery, that sets them so much at ease. From the same default, humbler and righter minds consider Him very often in no better light, than as a rigid lawgiver arbitrarily exacting a number of almost impracticable duties, and enforcing them with the dread of insupportable punishments; whence they are ready to sink under the terrors of religion, even while they are conscientiously fulfilling its precepts. Looking on God as the object of love would rectify these mistaken conceptions entirely. We should all see and feel, that a Being of infinite goodness, directed by infinite wisdom, is the highest blessing; and the want of such an one would be the greatest calamity that is possible: we should be satisfied that the strictest of His laws, and the severest of their sanctions, are means which He knows to be needful for our good; that His mercy will forgive on repentance our past transgressions of them; that His grace will strengthen us to keep them better; and that He will never reject a soul affectionately devoted to Him. In proportion then as we are so, all terrifying apprehensions will vanish from us. "There is no fear in love," saith the Apostle; "but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment." Abp. Secker.

19. We love him, because he first loved us.] The love of God is, as our Saviour teaches us, the first and great commandment, and yet a commandment liable to be misrepresented and misunderstood: for love is an affection or passion; and it is not usual

After Anno DOMINI 90.

20 If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?

21 And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also.

CHAP. V.

1 He that loveth God loveth his children, and keepeth his commandments: 3 which to the faithful are light, and not grievous. 9 Jesus is the Son of God, able to save us, 14 and to hear our prayers, which we make for ourselves, and for others.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

WHOSOEVER believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him.

2 By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his commandments.

---

for men to have very accurate notions of the passions, and to know exactly what they are, and in what they consist, as any person may soon find upon making the trial. The most familiar and intelligible way of explaining any passion to common capacities is to shew them the effects which attend it, and the actions which it produces. This method is used in the holy Scriptures: and that we may not mistake the nature and extent of the duty of loving God, a rule is proposed to us by which we may know whether we practise it; and we are assured that a careful endeavour to learn the will of God, and to act according to it, is a sufficient proof of our love.

The love of God differs so much from the love of sensible objects, and from our other passions, that it can hardly be called a passion in the same sense in which they are so called. It differs in this, that it is at first raised, and afterwards kept up, by reason. It is therefore a religious habit and a virtue, which no other passion is, unless it hath God and morality and religion for its objects. In this also it differs from them, that being both produced and preserved by reason, it is a sober and moderate affection, accompanied with no blind impetuosity, no restless uneasiness, no violent commotion of mind, like other passions; and, as it riseth not to the same height with them, so neither does it sink as low at other times, but shews itself in an uniform and sedate love of righteousness, of every thing that God approves.

Some persons, not duly considering this, sincerely desire to please God, and carefully endeavour to lead a good life; and yet sometimes are afraid that they have no love for God, because they experience not in themselves that warmth of affection, to which others pretend, and which is expressed and required in some books of devotion. They may learn from the Scriptures, that where there is obedience there is always love; and that whosoever delights in holiness, and justice, and goodness, and mercy, and truth, may reasonably conclude that his heart is right towards God.

Others, looking upon the love of God as upon a mere passion, a disposition of mind producing devotion and ending there, have excited in themselves a high zeal and affection for God, and a firm persuasion that they were His favourites: and, having done this, have thought themselves arrived to Christian perfection; whilst at the same time they have perhaps been under the dominion of evil habits, and addicted to wrath, malice, covetousness, uncharitableness, censoriousness, injustice, pride, ambition, sensuality. This strange mixture of hypocrisy, vice, and enthusiasm, hath been common in all ages, and ever will be so. There are always those, whose religion and devotion is, to use the words of St. Paul, "sounding brass," or clamour and confidence; whilst true goodness is modest and unaffected, and teaches men to make less noise, to live more honestly. To preserve us from such delusions, Christ hath told us, that we should either keep His commandments, or not pretend to love Him; and that it signifies nothing to say to Him, "Lord, Lord," and not to do what He requires.

Other love towards God than this the Scriptures know not: they never recommend that spiritual fever, those warm transports, and that bold familiarity, which some zealots affect; nor that cold, refined, mysterious, and disinterested devotion, which another sort of fanaticks require: for, first, the love of God is sober reason, and not blind passion; reverence, and not presumption: secondly, it is gratitude; and "we love Him, because He first loved us." Dr. Jortin.

20. — he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, &c.] If we love not them, whose persons and wants strike and affect our senses, we can hardly be supposed to be carried with much affection to Him with whom we cannot converse but at a distance, who is neither the object of our senses, nor within the compass of our charity. Pyle.

21. And this commandment have we from him, &c.] Observe the firm basis on which is for ever fixed the morality of the Gospel. How clear in its principles! how powerful in its motives! "We love God because He first loved us," "and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins. If God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." For he who "loveth Him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of Him." The head of the most unlearned cannot but comprehend the meaning of these few words; and the heart of the most learned must feel the force of them. Such is the ground of that charity, which performeth every duty of social life, and fulfilleth the law. To inculcate and produce in us this heavenly disposition, is the end of the Gospel, and of all its doctrines. It is deduced in Scripture even from those that may seem to be of the most mysterious and speculative nature: the unity of the Divine Persons; the divinity and the satisfaction of Christ: doctrines, which cannot therefore be denied or degraded, without removing or proportionably lessening the most endearing and affecting incitements to the Christian life. Indeed the happy temper of a Christian is the natural and kindly effect of the great evangelical truths, when treasured up in the mind, and made the subjects of frequent meditation. The ideas of a reconciled God; a Saviour and Intercessor on high; a gracious Spirit, informing our ignorance, purifying our hearts, relieving our necessities, alleviating our cares, and comforting our sorrows: such ideas as these enable us to bridle the appetites of the body, and to calm the emotions of the mind; to bear with patience and cheerfulness the calamities of life: they sweeten the temper, and harmonize the affections, resolving them all into one, diversified according to the different situation of its proper object; of which grief laments the absence, and fear apprehends the loss; desire pursues it; hope has it in view; anger rises against obstruction, and joy triumphs in possession. Thus religion fixes the heart on its treasure, in faith without wavering, and resignation without reserve: it draws the affections upwards towards heaven, as the sun does the exhalations of the earth, to return in fruitful showers, and bless the world. Bp. Horne.

Chap. V. St. John continues to shew that the true children of God are known by the soundness of their faith, by their obedience to His commandments, and by charity. He teaches that the truth of the Gospel was confirmed from heaven by the testimony of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; and upon earth by the Spirit, by water, and by blood. Whence he concludes, that the doctrine of the Gospel, and the promises of eternal life, which are made us in Jesus Christ, ought to be received with a full assurance of faith. The Apostle then says, that those who had such faith were sure of obtaining from God all they should ask according to His will, even the health and life of their brethren; unless those, for whom they prayed, had committed certain sins which God thought fit to punish with temporal death. He finishes this Epistle, by exhorting the faithful to keep themselves pure, to continue steadfast in the faith, and to avoid idolatry, and every thing that tended to draw them into it. Ostervald.

Ver. 2. By this we know that we love the children of God, &c.]

After Anno DOMINI 90.

3 For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not grievous.

4 For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?

6 This is he that came by water and blood, even Jesus Christ; not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit that beareth witness, because the Spirit is truth.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

7 For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one.

As if he had said, And these two marks are reciprocal: namely, As we know that we love God, by our loving the children of God, so "by this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep His commandments." Dr. Wells. The intention of the Apostle was to shew, how we may know when we love the children of God in a right manner. Now this was necessary to be shewn, since men may love the children of God because they are their relations, or because they are engaged in the same pursuits with themselves, or because they are mutually united by some common bond of friendship. But love proceeding from these considerations is not the love of the children of God which He requires. By what mark then can we know, that our love to the children of God is of the right sort? "By this," saith the Apostle, "we may know that we love the children of God" in a right manner, "when we love God, and" from that excellent principle "keep His commandments," especially His commandment to love His children, because they bear His image. True Christian love therefore is that which proceeds from love to God, from a regard to His will, and which leadeth us to obey all His commandments. Dr. Macknight.

3. — and his commandments are not grievous.] To one who truly loves Him. Because his will is conformed to the will of God, and so he only doth what he would do, and so he is then doing what he chooseth and delighteth in: and it cannot be grievous to be employed as we would, and as we do delight to be. Dr. Whitby.

What He commandeth us to do, He helpeth us to do; and thence it is that His commandments are not grievous. Bp. Sanderson.

4. For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world:] Every true child of God gets above the affections and temptations of this world, in the strength of that faith, which gives him full assurance of, and sets his heart upon, another and better world. The world is one of those enemies, against which every Christian engages solemnly and formally, at the instant of taking that profession upon himself in baptism. And our entering into this covenant, the new relations we contract there, the new life we then begin and engage to lead, and the communications of God's Holy Spirit received in that sacrament, to strengthen and enable us to persevere in the faithful discharge of those engagements, do in effect make up our second and spiritual birth. So that the persons "born of God" are baptized and faithful Christians; and this passage does not only imply the necessity such lie under of fighting and conquering, by saying that "whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world;" but it acquaints us, what weapon is put into their hands for that purpose, by adding, "And this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Dean Stanhope.

Presumption in our strength is destructive to our virtue; confidence of our own merit is injurious to our Maker: but a deep sense of human unworthiness and of Divine grace will inspire us with that lowliness of heart which God will accept, and that vigilance of conduct which He will bless: "This," therefore, "is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Abp. Secker.

5. — that Jesus is the Son of God?] Not only the Messiah, but also, as such, the only-begotten or true Son of God; and hereby duly qualified to become the Author of eternal salvation to all that love and obey Him, and abundantly to reward all their sufferings here for His sake. Dr. Wells.

By "our faith," in the 4th verse, is intended the belief of the Christian religion, as it is delivered down to us in the Gospel, and summarily contained at the 5th verse, in this one article, that "Jesus is the Son of God." Hereby are implied a firm assent to the truth of His doctrines, a steadfast reliance upon the merit of His sufferings, and an assured expectation of His glorious promises: doctrines, which a person Divine could not have taught, had they not been true; sufferings, which, because undergone by a person Divine, cannot but be of infinite worth and efficacy; promises, which a person Divine can and will make good to the uttermost. And therefore to men, whose minds are possessed with this belief, the difficulty of overcoming the world is more than balanced by that absolute certainty of a future reward, and by the excellence of that reward. Dean Stanhope.

6. This is he that came by water and blood, &c.] Nor are the effects and influences of this great truth more excellent and noble, than is the ground and foundation of it strong and certain. The testimonies given Him at His baptism, when God by a voice from heaven declared Him to be His beloved Son, the Saviour of mankind: the miracles at His crucifixion, when at the shedding of His innocent blood we saw both water and blood come out of His side; the sun was darkened, the earth trembled, and the vail of the temple was rent: the signs and wonders done by Him, and by others in His name: these three, respectively denoted by "the water," "the blood," and "the Spirit," are all testimonies of the authority of His Person and mission, most unexceptionable, as being evidences of that Holy Spirit that cannot deceive us. Pyle.

7. For there are three that bear record in heaven, &c.] Unto this main truth concerning Christ the Redeemer of the world there are six sufficient and undeniable witnesses: whereof three are in heaven, and three upon earth: those in heaven are the three sacred Persons in Trinity, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; and these three are, in essence, one and the same God. Bp. Hall.

The Father bore witness both at Christ's baptism and at His transfiguration, when with an audible voice He declared, "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." The Word bore record of Himself, affirming frequently, plainly, and directly, that He was the Son of God, and making it manifest by His doctrine and miracles, that He came from the Father. The Spirit bore witness to this, partly by descending on Christ at His baptism, and partly by descending on His Apostles at the feast of Pentecost. Burkitt.

—— these three are one.] Three Persons; one Being, one Jehovah, one God. Bp. Beveridge. Three, as evidently appears by the different offices, which they have graciously vouchsafed to undertake in the work of our redemption; one, in substance, and duration, and glory, and majesty, and power, and might, and dominion. Bp. Horne. The Apostle says, "These three are one;" one, in the unity of a consentient testimony; for that unity is all that is requisite to the purpose of the Apostle's present argument. It is remarkable however, that he describes the unity of the testimony of the three celestial and the three terrestrial witnesses, in different terms; I conceive for this reason: of the latter, more could not be said with truth, than that they "agree in one;" for they are not one in nature and substance: but the Three in heaven being in substance and in nature one, he asserts the agreement of their testimony in terms which predicate their substantial unity, in which the consent of testimony is necessarily included; lest, if he applied no higher phrase to them than to the terrestrial witnesses, he might seem tacitly to qualify and lower his own doctrine. Bp. Horsley.

It is well known that there has been much controversy among

After Anno DOMINI 90.

8 And there are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one.

9 If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God which he hath testified of his Son.

10 He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself: he that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son.

11 And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. After Anno DOMINI 90.

12 He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life.

13 These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.

14 And this is the confidence that we

---

the learned on the subject of the genuineness of this verse. Those, who have contended that the verse is spurious, have grounded their opinion on the facts of its not being found in any Greek manuscripts of unquestionably high antiquity, or in any ancient version of the New Testament, except the Latin; and of its not having been quoted by the most ancient Greek Fathers, even in those parts of their writings where we should most expect it. Those, on the other hand, who have maintained the genuineness of the verse, have argued that it is certainly found in all the most ancient copies of the Latin version; that it is distinctly quoted by St. Cyprian, who wrote in the third century, before the council of Nice; as also by Tertullian, and by other Latin Fathers of later date; and that the sense of the whole passage seems imperfect without it. Amongst the persons who have believed this verse to be genuine, are to be reckoned many very eminent critical scholars and divines; while it must be admitted that others no less eminent, and no less zealous supporters of the doctrine which the verse maintains, have after mature examination decided against its genuineness. Edit.

Whether the text be authentick or not, it contains nothing but what is abundantly asserted elsewhere: and that both with regard to the Trinity in general, and this their Divine testimony in particular. For that there are three Divine Persons, who "bear record" to the mission of Christ, is evident from the following Scriptures: "The testimony of two men is true. I am one that bear witness of Myself: and the Father that sent Me beareth witness of Me," John viii. 17, 18. "It is the Spirit that beareth witness," chap. v. 6. And Christ hath also mentioned, upon another occasion, a plurality of witnesses in heaven: "We speak that We do know, and testify that We have seen, and ye receive not Our witness," John iii. 11: which can be no other than the witness of the Trinity; because it is added, "no man hath ascended up to heaven, but He that came down from heaven;" therefore no man could join with Christ in revealing the things of heaven to us. Jones of Nayland. That equal honour should be paid to the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, is evidently implied by the baptismal form running in the name of all the three: and whether St. John hath said it or not, if there be any meaning in words, "These three are one;" They are the one object of our faith and our love, of our prayers and our praises. While this form continues to be used in the church, the doctrine of the Trinity cannot perish from it: and he, who denies glory and worship to be due to the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, does in effect renounce his baptism, and ought to be initiated by a new form into a new religion. Bp. Horne.

8. And there are three that bear witness in earth, &c.] Those three, that bear witness unto Him on earth, and seal up the truth of His promises unto us, are the water in baptism, by which we are cleansed from the filth of our sins; the blood of Christ, exhibited in the holy eucharist, by the shedding whereof our sins are expiated; and the efficacy of His Spirit, which sealeth up to our hearts that testimony of water and blood, in that it applies unto us the power of that ablution and that expiation: and these three agree in and make good one and the same truth, concerning Christ the only Redeemer of mankind. Bp. Hall.

9. If we receive the witness of men, &c.] If the testimony of two or three men be thought sufficient to give credit to any matter in all courts of judicature, surely the testimony of that God, ver. 8, who cannot lie or deceive us, must be of greater force and strength to produce faith in us. Dr. Whitby.

10. — hath the witness in himself:] As having in himself that Spirit of God, which gives this testimony to Christ. Dr. Whitby. Hath God dwelling in him by faith, and therefore hath that Divine witness within himself. Bp. Hall. He findeth himself continually confirmed in his belief by the gifts and graces of that very Spirit, who in so ample a manner at first gave the testimony. Pyle.

11, 12. And this is the record, &c.] So then the sum of our Christianity is this: That God has promised and provided eternal happiness for good men; and that the indispensable condition of enjoying it is a sincere belief in Christ incarnate, and in His religion, by all to whom it and its evidences are fairly proposed. Pyle.

12. He that hath the Son hath life; &c.] If we reflect upon the holiness of God, and His hatred of sin and iniquity, and begin to fear that He can never be reconciled to sinners; let us take courage, the work is difficult, but the Son of God has undertaken it; and how great soever the distance between God and us is, yet through the Son we have access to Him. If we still fear for ourselves, that all may be again lost through our own weakness and inability to do good; even here help is at hand, the Spirit of God is our support, He is the pledge and earnest of our redemption. These being the necessary means of salvation, it was necessary to reveal to the world the doctrines concerning the Son and the Holy Spirit: and the belief of these doctrines is necessary to every Christian, as far as the right use of the means depends on the right faith and belief of the doctrines. "He that hath the Son," says St. John, "hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life:" and again, "Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father." For since we can only come to the Father through the Son, to deny the Son is to cut off all communication between us and the Father. The same may be said of the blessed Spirit, through whom we are in Christ: "If any man," says St. Paul, "have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His." Our blessed Lord has Himself told us, that "this is life eternal, that we may know the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom He has sent." Bp. Sherlock.

14. And this is the confidence that we have in him, that, if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us:] "In Him," that is, in the Son of God. In another part of the Epistle the same sentiment is repeated, but it is spoken of God: "We have confidence toward God, and whatever we ask, we receive of Him," chap. iii. 21, 22. Can a man read these two passages, and doubt for a moment, whether his Saviour be the God that heareth prayer? Bp. Horne.

Those things, which are really, absolutely, universally good in themselves, Christ hath purchased for us with His own blood, and hath promised to give them to us upon our asking them in His name. The things of this life may, or may not, be good for us: and whether they be or not, we cannot tell, God only knows that: and therefore we must ask such things of Him, only with this proviso or condition, that He knows them to be good; or, as our church expresseth it, "as may be most expedient for us." But so far as any thing is so, we may confidently ask it, and behave ‖ in him, that, if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us:

After Anno DOMINI 90.

‖ Or, concerning him.

15 And if we know that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him.

16 If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

17 All unrighteousness is sin: and there is a sin not unto death.

18 We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 And we know that we are of God, lieve that He will grant it to us. This is that which St. John here means, "This is the confidence that we have in Him, that if we ask any thing according to His will, He heareth us:" for He hath plainly declared it to be His will, in that He hath promised to give us all things that are really good for us, so far as He Himself knows them to be so. "For He will give grace and glory, and no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly," Ps. lxxxiv. 11. Bp. Beveridge.

---

16. If any man see his brother sin a sin &c.] If any man see his brother fall into and continue in such a sin as may be capable of forgiveness, let him earnestly sue unto God for pardon of that offender; and God, who is great and infinite in mercy, shall graciously incline His ear to his prayers, and give remission and life to such an one. There is indeed a sin unto death, for which there is no forgiveness with God, because there is no capacity of repentance for it in the committer of it; I mean the sin against the Holy Ghost; when a man, having received the knowledge of the Gospel by the illumination of the Holy Spirit, and professed the belief thereof, shall in a devilish malice wilfully blaspheme and persecute that known truth. Bp. Hall.

Or, the passage alludes to those temporal punishments for sin, which were more evidently inflicted in those times: and the sense of the passage may be given according to the following paraphrase, which is founded on a comparison of the text with Gal. vi. 1; 1 Cor. xi. 30; Jam. v. 14, 15. I must advise you in one particular more, relating to such offenders amongst you, as are struck with any extraordinary sickness, as a Divine punishment for any notorious sins. Now, where the offence is not of the most wilful and obstinate kind, where by the circumstance you gather, that the punishment inflicted was not sent for his destruction, but only to awaken the person to a sense of his miscarriage, and you find him inclined to repentance; in such a case let the Christian ministers attend upon him, interceding with God for him by earnest prayer, which upon his repentance shall avail for the pardon of his sin, and for restoring him to health again. But if you know the person so afflicted to be struck from heaven, for a malicious, habitual, and incurable degree of scandalous vice and immorality, or for wilful apostasy from the Christian religion; in that case you have no obligation to throw away your prayers upon him, but may justly leave such a man to the justice of God, as one that has defeated all methods of repentance and salvation. Pyle.

What makes sin exceeding sinful and most provoking, is a determined insolence, and an obstinate impenitency, a guilt without remorse, and without relenting, without shame and without fear. This is what appears most odious and offensive in the sight of God, as also in the sight of man; and to this incorrigible temper and abandoned behaviour, indignation and wrath are denounced by Him, who will by no means acquit those that are guilty in this way. "There is a sin unto death," saith St. John, "and there is a sin not unto death." The sin unto death, of which the Apostle speaks, was in some manner peculiar to those times. It was an apostasy from Christianity; and these apostates were persons, who had seen the miraculous proofs of its truth, and had perhaps themselves been partakers of some extraordinary gifts. When such persons renounced Christ, and fell away from the church, it was plain that nothing more could be done to amend and reclaim them. And even now it is possible, that sinners may offend so long and so heinously, as at last to provoke God, either to take them out of the world by a secret judgment, and so it is a sin unto temporal death; or to give them up to their own hard hearts, and so it becomes a sin unto spiritual death. But let an observation be added, which may be necessary to quiet melancholy and desponding minds; and it is this: If any one be afraid that he is in such a condition, this very fear shews that in all probability he is not in such a condition: because it is usual for such sinners to have no consideration, no shame, no remorse, and no fear at all. Dr. Jortin.

—— There is a sin unto death:] There seems to be no ground in Scripture for considering any degree or species of sin as at this time necessarily unpardonable, or beyond the efficacy of sincere repentance. When St. John here says, that "there is a sin unto death," he probably means the sin against the Holy Ghost, which appears to have been confined to the time of the Apostles, and which is the only sin to which forgiveness is denied in the New Testament. 'The doors,' says Clement of Alexandria, 'are open to every one, who in truth and with his whole heart returns to God; and the Father most willingly receives a son, who truly repents.' This is the general tenour of Scripture, in which all men are invited to repentance without any discrimination or exception. Bp. Tomline.

18. — keepeth himself,] He suffers not any sin to have dominion over him, but takes care to preserve himself, through the assistance of Divine grace, from the deadly assaults of Satan. Burkitt.

20. — This is the true God, and eternal life.] This same Jesus Christ, you are to know and believe most assuredly, is no other than the true God and eternal life, both as having eternal life in Himself, and also as being the author of eternal life to all those who truly believe in Him. Dr. Wells. It is said in this place of the same Person, that "He is the true God and eternal life." Now eternal life is thrice in this very chapter attributed to Jesus Christ, as the author and dispenser of it: see verses 11—13. As Christ therefore is meant by "eternal life," of Him also it must be meant that He is "the true God." Dr. Whitby, Burkitt.

Christ is not only termed in holy Scripture the God, but for a farther certainty "the true God:" and the same Apostle, who said "the Word was God," lest any cavil should arise by any omission of an article, though so frequently neglected by all, even the most accurate authors, hath also assured us that He is the true God. For "we know" saith he, "that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding that we may know Him that is true: and we are in Him that is true, even in His Son Christ Jesus. This is the true God and eternal life." As therefore we read in the Acts, chap. x. 36, of "the word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ; He is Lord of all:" where it is acknowledged that "the Lord of all" is by the pronoun "He" joined unto Jesus Christ, the immediate, not unto "God," the remote antecedent: so likewise here "the true God" is to be referred unto Christ, who stands next unto it, not unto the Father, spoken of indeed in the text, but at a distance. Wherefore since Jesus Christ is the immediate antecedent to which the relative may properly be referred; since the Son of God is He of whom the Apostle chiefly speaketh; since this is rendered as a reason, why "we are in Him that is true," by being "in His Son," to wit, because that Son "is the true God;" since in the language of St. John the constant title of our Saviour is "eternal life;" since all these reasons may be drawn out of the text itself, why the title of the true God should be attributed to the Son, and no one reason can be raised from thence why it should be referred to the Father: I can conclude no less, than that our Saviour is "the true God," and the whole world lieth in wickedness.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

20 And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life. After Anno DOMINI 90.

21 Little children, keep yourselves from idols. Amen.

---

so styled in the Scriptures by way of eminency, with an article prefixed, as the first Christian writers, which immediately followed the Apostles, did both speak and write. Bp. Pearson.

This is an argument of the deity of Christ, which almost all those, who have written in its defence, have urged: and which, I think, none who have opposed it have so much as appeared to answer. Dr. Doddridge.

21. Little children, keep yourselves from idols.] The Apostle having asserted that "this," namely Christ, "is the true God," immediately subjoins, "Little children, keep yourselves from idols." The meaning of which is, That if Christ were not the true God, He must be an idol, because divine worship was paid to Him: and this is an explanation of his calling Christ "the true God," namely, that whoever else pretends to it is an idol, and therefore we must worship none else. There is another part of this passage, which does plainly evidence the divinity of Christ, and that is, that "the Son of God hath given us an understanding, that we may know Him that is true," ver. 20. To give man understanding is an incommunicable attribute of God; and that is, past all subterfuge, attributed here to the Son. Leslie.

The following Chapters from The First Epistle General of John are appointed for Proper Lessons, or Epistles, on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. I.	ver. 1—10,	St. John the Evangelist,	Epistle.
—— III.	— 1— 8,	6th Sunday after Epiphany,	Ditto.
—— III.	— 13—24,	2nd Sunday after Trinity,	Ditto.
—— IV.	— 1—14,	Whit-Tuesday,	Evening.
—— IV.	— 7—21,	1st Sunday after Trinity,	Epistle.
—— V.		Trinity Sunday,	Evening.
—— V.	ver. 4—12,	1st Sunday after Easter,	Epistle.

THE SECOND EPISTLE

OF

J O H N.

INTRODUCTION.

IN the inscription of this Epistle St. John, without mentioning his name, calls himself "the elder," which title he probably adopted as being a term of honourable distinction in the primitive church. It is addressed in words, which are capable of several meanings, but which our translators have rendered, "To the elect lady." This is the common acceptation of them, and from it there appears no reason for departing: the Epistle therefore may be considered as written to some lady of eminence, styled "elect," on account of her profession of the Gospel. See ver. 13, and the note there. The place of her residence is not known.

This Epistle consists of only thirteen verses: and Dr. Lardner observes, that of these thirteen 'eight may be found in the first Epistle, either in sense or expression.' The design of it was to caution the lady, to whom it was addressed, against those false teachers, who asserted that Christ was not real man, but only a man in appearance; and that He did not actually suffer what He seemed to suffer. This doctrine the Apostle condemns in very severe terms, as being destructive of the atonement of Christ; and he recommends that no encouragement or countenance should be given to those who maintain it: he inculcates also the necessity of obedience to the commandments of God, and of mutual love and benevolence among Christians. Bp. Tomline.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

1 He exhorteth a certain honourable matron, with her children, to persevere in Christian love and belief, 8 lest they lose the reward of their former profession: 10 and to have nothing to do with those seducers that bring not the true doctrine of Christ Jesus.

THE elder unto the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth; and not I only, but also all they that have known the truth;

2 For the truth's sake, which dwelleth in us, and shall be with us for ever.

3 Grace be with you, mercy, and peace, from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

4 I rejoiced greatly that I found of thy children walking in truth, as we have received a commandment from the Father.

5 And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another. After Anno DOMINI 90.

6 And this is love, that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, That, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it.

7 For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist.

8 Look to yourselves, that we lose not those things which we have ‖ wrought, but that we receive a full reward.

‖ Or, gained: Some copies read, which ye have gained, but that ye receive, &c.

9 Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of

Ver. 1. The elder] "Elder" being a name of honour among the Jews, given to the chief of their tribes, the same agrees very well with the office of the Apostles, set over the twelve tribes of the house of Israel in spiritual concerns. Drs. Whitby and Wells.

—— whom I love in the truth; &c.] Whom I and all good Christians cannot but most sincerely esteem and love, for their constancy and perseverance in those Gospel doctrines, that will prove of eternal and happy advantage to us. Pyle.

3. — in truth and love.] That is, the true and beloved Son of the Father. Dr. Whitby. Or the words are to be connected with those at the beginning of the verse; and they thus contain a wish that the persons in question may continue constant in the acknowledgment of the truth of the Gospel, and in the exercise of all works of charity to one another. Dr. Hammond.

4. — in truth,] In the doctrine of the Gospel, as the Father hath commanded, saying, "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye Him," Matt. xvii. 5. Dr. Whitby.

8. — that we lose not &c.] Hence it follows, first, that it is not only lawful, but the duty of a Christian, to serve God with respect to the recompense of reward: secondly, that they who once walked "in the truth, as they had received a commandment," ver. 4, and had Christian charity, ver. 5, even that love which enabled them to walk according to God's commandments, ver. 6, might "lose those things which they had wrought." Dr. Whitby.

After Anno DOMINI 90. Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.

10 If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed:

11 For he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds.

12 Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink: but I trust to come unto you, and speak † face to face, that our joy may be full. After Anno DOMINI 90. † Gr. mouth to mouth.

13 The children of thy elect sister greet thee. Amen.

---

13. — thy elect sister] Or Christian sister. Dr. Wells. See the note on 1 Thess. i. 4.

THE THIRD EPISTLE

OF

J O H N.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Epistle is addressed to Gaius, or Caius; but it is not known who this person was. The commendation of his hospitality seems to imply that he was in a private station, and that he was possessed of some substance.

The design of this short Epistle was to commend Gaius for having shewn kindness to some Christians, as they passed through the place where he resided; to censure Diotrephes, who had arrogantly assumed some authority to himself; and to praise the good conduct of Demetrius. It is not known who Diotrephes and Demetrius were.

This and the foregoing Epistle are supposed to have been written from Ephesus; and it is probable that the persons, to whom they were addressed, lived at no great distance from that city, as St. John expresses a hope of seeing them shortly. These two Epistles are improperly called "Catholick," as they are written to private persons. Bp. Tomline.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

He commendeth Gaius for his piety, 5 and hospitality 7 to true preachers: 9 complaining of the unkind dealing of ambitious Diotrephes on the contrary side, 11 whose evil example is not to be followed: 12 and giveth special testimony to the good report of Demetrius.

THE elder unto the well beloved Gaius, whom I love ‖ in the truth.

‖ Or, truly.

‖ Or, pray.

2 Beloved, I ‖ wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth.

3 For I rejoiced greatly, when the brethren came and testified of the truth that is in thee, even as thou walkest in the truth.

4 I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth.

5 Beloved, thou doest faithfully whatsoever thou doest to the brethren, and to strangers;

6 Which have borne witness of thy charity before the church: whom if thou bring forward on their journey after a godly sort, thou shalt do well:

7 Because that for his name's sake they went forth, taking nothing of the Gentiles.

8 We therefore ought to receive such, that we might be fellowhelpers to the truth.

9 I wrote unto the church: but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not.

After Anno DOMINI 90.

10 Wherefore, if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, prating against us with malicious words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and casteth them out of the church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth itself: yea, and we also bear record; and ye know that our record is true.

13 I had many things to write, but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee:

14 But I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speak † face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends salute thee. Greet the friends by name.

† Gr. mouth to mouth.

Ver. 9. — Diotrephes,] It is uncertain who he was. Grotius thinks he was a Gentile convert, who would not admit the Jews. It seems rather more probable that he was a Jew, who opposed the admission of the Gentiles, and set himself up at the head of a party in opposition to the Apostles. Dr. Doddridge.

10. — I will remember his deeds] Private offences against ourselves must be forgiven and forgotten: but when the offence is an impediment to the faith, and very prejudicial to the church, it is to be opposed and openly reproved. Dr. Whitby.

11. — hath not seen God.] Hath no true knowledge of God. Dr. Wells.

12. — and of the truth itself:] Namely, the Gospel itself: his temper and conduct being conformable to its precepts. Dr. Macknight.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE

OF

J U D E.

INTRODUCTION.

JUDAS or Jude, called also Lebbeus and Thaddeus, was the son of Alpheus or Cleophas, the brother of James the Less, the cousin german of our Saviour, and one of the twelve Apostles. His call to be a disciple of Jesus is not recorded: and, except in the catalogue of the Apostles, he is mentioned only once in the Gospels; see John xiv. 22. He is not spoken of in the Acts of the Apostles; nor is any circumstance, on which we can depend, recorded of him in any ancient author. His Epistle is addressed "to them that are sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in Jesus Christ, and called," ver. 1; that is, to all Christians without any distinction. From a passage in verses 17 and 18, it is evident that the Epistle was written some time after St. Peter's Epistles, and St. Paul's Epistles to Timothy, in which the prophecies alluded to in those verses are contained.

St. Jude, after saluting the Christian converts, and praying for Divine blessings upon them, exhorts them earnestly to contend for the genuine faith, as delivered originally to the saints, in opposition to the erroneous doctrines taught by false teachers: he reminds the Christians of the severity of God's judgments inflicted on the apostate angels and unrighteous men of former times; from these examples he warns them against adopting the seducing principles of those who were endeavouring to pervert them from the truth; and denounces woe against all persons of impious and profligate character; he reminds them of the predictions of the Apostles concerning mockers in the last days, and exhorts them to preserve themselves in the true faith and love of God, and to use their best exertions for the preservation and recovery of others. He concludes with an animated doxology, suited to the general design of the Epistle. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI about 66.

He exhorteth them to be constant in the profession of the faith. 4 False teachers are crept in to seduce them: for whose damnable doctrine and manners horrible punishment is prepared: 20 whereas the godly, by the assistance of the Holy Spirit, and prayers to God, may persevere, and grow in grace, and keep themselves, and recover others out of the snares of those deceivers.

JUDE, the servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to them that are sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in Jesus Christ, and called:

2 Mercy unto you, and peace, and love, be multiplied. Anno DOMINI about 66.

3 Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints.

4 For there are certain men crept in unawares, who were before of old ordained

Ver. 3. — earnestly contend] The original word refers to the severe struggles of the champions in the Grecian games. The same allusion upon the same subject is employed by St. Paul to the Philippians: "Stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together," (according to the original, 'wrestling together') "for the faith of the Gospel, and in nothing terrified by your adversaries," Phil. i. 27, 28. Bp. Horne.

—— once delivered] 'Delivered once for all:' so as to need no further confirmation besides the evidence given of it by Christ and His Apostles, and so as to admit of no alterations or additions. Pyle.

This faith is that system of truths revealed in the Holy Scriptures concerning the dispensations of the God whom we adore, and into whose name we were baptized, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, three Persons, one God. These truths are proposed to us as the ground of our hope, our comfort, and our joy; as the principles on which the conduct of life is to be framed, accepted, and rewarded. We receive the revelation, which contains the truths, upon that plenary and satisfactory evidence vouchsafed us of its authenticity; and we receive the truths, which it contains, on the authority of the revealer. The different articles of our belief, dispersed in the Scriptures, were very early collected into summaries, styled creeds, recited at baptism, and constituting thenceforward the badge and test of a man's profession. By a formulary of this kind the catechumen himself was instructed; "the faith once delivered" was transmitted down to posterity; the members of the spiritual society were kept together; the doctrines, by them believed and taught, were made known to the world, and distinguished from a multitude of heterogeneous and erroneous opinions, by them disclaimed; a connexion with the maintainers of which would justly have brought discredit on themselves and their cause. For these reasons the use of creeds appears to have been at first introduced, and since continued. Bp. Horne.

4. — before of old ordained to this condemnation,] Of whom it was 'before written,' or prophesied, that this should be their condemnation, according to the import of the original word, and to the parallel passage of St. Peter, 2 Pet. ii. 3. Of these

Anno DOMINI about 66. to this condemnation, ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness, and denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ.

5 I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed them that believed not.

6 And the angels which kept not their
‖ Or, principality. ‖ first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

7 Even as Sodom and Gomorrha, and the cities about them in like manner, giving themselves over to fornication, and going † Gr. other. after † strange flesh, are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire.

8 Likewise also these filthy dreamers defile the flesh, despise dominion, and speak evil of dignities.

9 Yet Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring against
[a] Zech. 3. 2. him a railing accusation, but said, [a] The Lord rebuke thee.

10 But these speak evil of those things which they know not: but what they know naturally, as brute beasts, in those things they corrupt themselves.

Anno DOMINI about 66.

11 Woe unto them! for they have gone in the way of Cain, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward, and perished in the gainsaying of Core.

12 These are spots in your feasts of charity, when they feast with you, feeding themselves without fear: clouds they are without water, carried about of winds; trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots;

13 Raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever.

14 And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints,

15 To execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him.

16 These are murmurers, complainers, men Enoch prophesied, ver. 14, that they should be condemned for their wickedness. God ordaineth none to punishment but sinners and ungodly men, as the persons here are styled. Dr. Whitby.

---

—— turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness,] So perverting the doctrine of the Gospel, as to teach that it even countenances and encourages lasciviousness. Dr. Wells.

6. — which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation,] Which, not contented with that estate, wherein they were first created, but rebelling against God and proudly affecting a higher glory, were thereupon cast down from their heavenly habitations. Bp. Hall.

By this declaration the Apostle intimates, that the angels attempted to raise themselves to a higher station than that which God had allotted to them; consequently that the sin, for which they are to be punished, was pride and rebellion. Dr. Macknight.

7. — suffering the vengeance of eternal fire.] Having their cities so consumed by fire as to be incapable of being rebuilt, and thus exhibiting in their punishment a proper emblem of that "eternal fire," which is to be the punishment of the wicked at the last day. Dr. Wells.

8. Likewise also these filthy dreamers &c.] These impure and wicked miscreants, who are carried away with their own giddy fancies and idle dreams, defile themselves with abominable lusts, despise authority, and speak scornfully and disgracefully of all those that are in dignity and eminence above them. Bp. Hall.

9. Yet Michael the archangel, &c.] See the note from Dr. Hales on Deut. xxxiv. 10.

10. But these speak evil of those things which they know not: &c.] These men are brutish and grossly ignorant in their understanding, not knowing how to value the worth of any thing that is good; and yet have their mouths open, to disgrace and rail on that which they know not; and those things, which they cannot but naturally know, as brute beasts, which are led and carried by their senses, those they abuse in a sensual and sinful want of moderation, and make them occasions of their sin and destruction. Bp. Hall.

11. Woe unto them! &c.] Certainly the curse of God hangs over the heads of these men; for they have, in respect of envy and murder, followed the courses of Cain; and, in respect of corrupting the truth for filthy lucre's sake, they have greedily run on in the wicked steps of Balaam; and, in respect of opposing themselves to authority, they have imitated the rebellion and mutiny of Korah, and shall perish in that damnable presumption. Bp. Hall. Concerning the offences of the persons here alluded to, see Gen. iv. 8, 9; Numb. xxiv. 25; xvi. 1, 9, 35: and the notes on those passages.

12, 13. These are spots in your feasts of charity, &c.] It is impossible to describe them by any comparisons that are black enough to reach them. When they are invited to gratify their appetites, it is indifferent to them, whether it be to an idol feast, or a feast of charity among the true worshippers of God. They bring nothing but scandal and danger to all they communicate with. The lewdness and slanders of their conversation are as blasting as a tempest; and a virtuous word or action is no more to be expected from them, than fruit is from a tree, that is perfectly withered and stubbed up. They vent their shameful and malicious calumnies as plentifully as the sea throws out its foam in stormy weather: and while they set up for teachers and doctors, guides and lights to other men, they are no better than those irregular meteors, that deceive and mislead the mariner in a dark night. And accordingly eternal darkness and the utmost degree of misery will be their final portion. Pyle.

14. And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, &c.] Though Moses hath said nothing concerning Enoch's prophesying, yet by telling us that he was a person of such piety, as to be translated to heaven in the body without dying, he hath prepared us to believe St. Jude's account of him; namely, that God employed him, as He did Noah, in reforming the wicked of the age in which he lived, and that He inspired him to deliver the prophecy, of which St. Jude speaks. Enoch is called "the seventh from Adam," to distinguish him from Enoch, the son of Cain, Gen. iv. 17. Dr. Macknight.

Anno DOMINI about 66.

walking after their own lusts; and their mouth speaketh great swelling words, having men's persons in admiration because of advantage.

17 But, beloved, remember ye the words which were spoken before of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ;

18 How that they told you there should be mockers in the last time, who should walk after their own ungodly lusts.

19 These be they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the Spirit.

20 But ye, beloved, building up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghost,

21 Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.

Anno DOMINI about 66.

22 And of some have compassion, making a difference:

23 And others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire; hating even the garment spotted by the flesh.

24 Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy,

25 To the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

---

19. These be they who separate themselves, &c.] That is, who make schisms and divisions in the church of God; severing themselves from the communion of other Christians, both in opinion and conversation; men, secretly given up to their own sensuality, having, howsoever they pretend, no share at all in the Spirit of God. Bp. Hall.

22. And of some have compassion, &c.] Of some, who through simplicity have been seduced, have compassion: "making a difference" betwixt those spirits which are stubborn and turbulent, and those which are meek and gentle. Bp. Hall.

23. And others save with fear, &c.] And others, that are stiff and perverse, save if ye may with vehemently urging upon them the terrours of judgment; as it were violently pulling them out of the fire of God's wrath, wherein they lie. Bp. Hall.

This is doubtless the meaning of the Apostle's rule, that, in admonishing the faulty, we express more sorrow than anger where circumstances will allow it; that we use tender expostulations by choice; and harsh expressions, but, above all, terrifying and threatening ones, only when nothing else will prevent ruin. Abp. Secker.

—— hating even the garment &c.] An allusion to the strictness of the Jewish law against touching unclean things. Pyle. This, which is a direction to those, who snatch others out of the fire, implies that, in doing them that compassionate office, they are to avoid all familiarity with them, even as they would avoid touching a garment spotted by the flesh of one who had died of the plague, lest they be infected by their vicious conversation. Dr. Macknight.

The following Verses from St. Jude are appointed as a Proper Lesson and an Epistle on Holydays.

VER. -	1— 8,	St. Simon and St. Jude, - - - -	Epistle.
—— -	6—16,	St. Michael and all Angels, - - -	Evening.

THE REVELATION

OF

ST. JOHN THE DIVINE.

INTRODUCTION.

THE testimonies in favour of the book of the Revelation being a genuine work of St. John the Evangelist, are very full and satisfactory. Andrew, Bishop of Cesarea in Cappadocia, in the fifth century, assures us that Papias acknowledged the Revelation to be inspired. But the earliest author now extant, who mentions this book, is Justin Martyr, who lived about sixty years after it was written, and he ascribes it to St. John. So does Ireneus, whose evidence is alone sufficient upon this point; for he was the disciple of Polycarp, who was the disciple of St. John himself; and he expressly tells us, that he had the explanation of a certain passage in this book from those who had conversed with St. John the author. These two Fathers are followed by Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, Origen, and many other ecclesiastical writers, all of whom concur in considering the Apostle John as the author of the Revelation.

Some few persons, however, doubted the genuineness of this book in the third and fourth centuries; but since that time it has been very generally acknowledged to be canonical; and indeed, as Mr. Lowman observes, 'hardly any one book has received more early, more authentick, and more satisfactory attestations.' The omission of this book in some of the early catalogues of the Scriptures was probably not owing to any suspicion concerning its authenticity or genuineness, but because its obscurity and mysteriousness were thought to render it less fit to be read publickly and generally. It is called the Revelation of St. John the Divine; and this appellation was first given to St. John by Eusebius, not to distinguish him from any other person of the same name, but as an honourable title, intimating that to him was more fully revealed the system of Divine counsels than to any other Prophet of the Christian dispensation.

The book is also frequently called the Apocalypse, a word which has the same meaning as "the Revelation," being derived from a Greek word signifying 'to reveal.'

In the Introduction to St. John's Gospel it was shewn, that he was banished to Patmos in the latter part of the reign of Domitian, and that he returned to Ephesus immediately after the death of that emperour, which happened in the year 96: and, as the Apostle states that these visions appeared to him while he was in that island, we may consider this book as written in the year 95 or 96. In farther support of this date, the following passage may be quoted from Beausobre and L'Enfant's preface to the Revelation. After adducing Ireneus, Origen, Eusebius, and several other ancient Fathers, all of whom placed the banishment of St. John to Patmos, in the latter part of the reign of Domitian, they proceed to make the following judicious observations: 'To this so constant a tradition, we must add other reasons, which prove farther that the Apocalypse was not written till after Claudius and Nero. It appears from the book itself, that churches had already been established for a considerable time in Asia Minor, since St. John reproaches them, in the name of Jesus Christ, with faults which do not take place immediately; he blames the church at Ephesus for having left its first love; that at Sardis, for having a name that it lived, and was dead; that at Laodicea, for having fallen into lukewarmness and indifference. Now the church of Ephesus, for example, was not founded by St. Paul till the latter part of the reign of Claudius; and when he wrote to the Ephesians from Rome, in the year 61 or 62, so far from reproaching them with any defect of love, on the contrary, he commends their love and their faith. It appears from the Revelation, that the Nicolaitans formed a sect when this book was written, since they are expressly named; instead of which, they were only foretold and described in general terms by St. Peter in his second Epistle, which might be written in the year 67; and by St. Jude, about the time of the destruction of Jerusalem under Vespasian. It is evident, from divers passages of the Revelation, that there had been an open persecution in the provinces. St. John himself had been banished to Patmos for the testimony of Jesus Christ. He praises the church of Ephesus, or its Bishop, for constancy under affliction, which seems to imply persecution. This is still more clear in the words addressed to the church of Smyrna; "I know thy works, and tribulation;" for the word used in the original almost always signifies persecution in the writings of the New Testament, as it is explained in the following verse. In the 13th verse of this second chapter, mention is made of a martyr named Antipas, who was put to death at Pergamos. Although ancient ecclesiastical history furnishes us with no account of this Antipas, it is however certain, according to all the rules of language, that what is here said is to be understood literally, and not mystically, as some interpreters have done, contrary to all probability: a martyr was put to death at Pergamos, "where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is." It being thus impossible to refer the persecution, mentioned in the first chapter of the Revelation, to the time of Claudius, who did not persecute the Christians, or to that of Nero, whose persecution did not extend to the provinces, we must necessarily refer it to Domitian, according to ecclesiastical tradition.'

This internal evidence appears a strong argument in favour of the date which has been assigned to the Revelation.

In the first chapter, St. John asserts the Divine authority of the predictions which he is about to deliver; addresses himself to the churches of the Proconsular Asia; and describes the first vision, in which he is commanded to write the things then revealed to him. The 2d and 3d chapters contain seven Epistles to the seven churches in Asia; namely, those of Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea, which relate chiefly to their then respective circumstances and situation. At the fourth chapter the prophetick visions begin, and reach to the end of the book. They contain a prediction of all the most remarkable revolutions and events in the Christian church, from the time of the Apostle to the final consummation of all things. Bp. Tomline.

This prophecy of the Revelation was designed as a standing monument to the church, to know what destinies attend it; and that, when men should suffer for the name of Christ, they might here find some consolation, both for themselves and for the church: for themselves, by the prospect and certainty of a reward; for the church, by the testimony that Christ never forsakes it, but will conquer at last. Daubuz.

This book was intended to represent, in one uninterrupted train of symbols, a view of the constitution and fates of the Christian church, through its several periods of propagation, corruption, and amendment, from its beginning to its consummation in glory. In the first of these three periods it is represented in its primeval state of purity, rejecting all communion with the unholy rites of paganism, and big with the design of converting the world to itself, the enemies that opposed it being the Roman heathen emperours. In the second period, now free from external troubles, and with the civil powers on its side, it labours with internal maladies; debasing the simplicity of its worship with the invocation of saints and images, and persecuting the pious few who dare to protest against such innovations, whilst in the mean time the Roman empire itself experiences the anger of offended Heaven, first from the irruptions of the barbarous nations in the West, and then from the conquests of the Saxons and of the Turks in the East. In the third or last period, which is yet future, it is foretold, that the adversaries of the church of Christ shall be completely subdued; "all the ends of the world shall remember and turn unto the Lord," Ps. xxii. 27; the saints shall rise and reign with Christ: "then cometh the end," 1 Cor. xv. 24, even the general resurrection and judgment of mankind; with which catastrophe this majestick scenery is closed. Bp. Hallifax.

The folly of interpreters has been, to foretell times and things, by this prophecy of the Revelation, as if God designed to make them prophets. By this rashness, they have not only exposed themselves, but brought the prophecy also into contempt. The design of God was, when He gave them this and the prophecies of the Old Testament, not to gratify men's curiosity by enabling them to foreknow things; but to the end that, after they were fulfilled, they might be interpreted by the event, and His own providence, not the wisdom or skill of the interpreters, be then manifested thereby to the world. For the event of things predicted many ages before will then be a convincing argument that the world is governed by Providence. For, as the few and obscure prophecies concerning Christ's first coming were for setting up the Christian religion, which many nations have since corrupted, so the many and clear prophecies concerning the things to be done at Christ's second coming, are not only for predicting, but for effecting a recovery and reestablishment of the long lost truth, and setting up a kingdom where righteousness dwells. The event will prove the Apocalypse; and this prophecy, thus proved and understood, will open the old Prophets, and all together will make known the true religion and establish it. There is already so much of this prophecy fulfilled, that, as many as will take pains in this study, may see sufficient instances of God's providence; but then the signal revolutions, predicted by all the holy Prophets, will at once both turn men's eyes upon considering the predictions, and plainly interpret them. Till that period, we must content ourselves with interpreting what has been already fulfilled. Sir I. Newton.

The opinions of many the most eminent and learned commentators have differed very widely in explaining the Apocalypse. In regard to the antichristian power, in particular, while some have considered it as referring exclusively to Popery, others have concluded that Mahometanism and infidelity, together with Popery, are designed by it. The extraordinary events which have occurred in the last thirty years, and the prevalence of irreligion, have been thought by some to confirm the general notion, that infidelity is one branch of the antichristian power. In consideration, however, of the number of wild and perhaps mischievous theories concerning the times and persons to which this opinion has usually led, it has been thought adviseable to restrict the notes for this work to the long established opinion, that Papal Rome is intended by the antichristian power. Edit.

Anno DOMINI 96.

CHAP. I.

4 John writeth his revelation to the seven churches of Asia, signified by the seven golden candlesticks. 7 The coming of Christ. 14 His glorious power and majesty.

THE Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass; and he sent and signified it by his angel unto his servant John: Anno DOMINI 96.

2 Who bare record of the word of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all things that he saw.

3 Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and

---

Chap. I. ver. 1. The Revelation &c.] The book opens (ver. 1—3) with the title or inscription of the book itself; the scope and design of it to foretell things which should shortly begin to be fulfilled, and succeed in their due season and order, till all were accomplished; and the blessing pronounced on him who shall read and explain it, and on those who shall hear and attend to it. Bp. Newton.

— The Revelation of Jesus Christ,] We have many revelations from our Lord Jesus Christ: this, delivered to His servant John, is one of them. By long usage and acceptance in the Christian church, this is called, by way of eminence, The Revelation. Dean Woodhouse.

—— which God gave unto him,] The scheme of the Christian revelation is mediatorial throughout. God "giveth" unto the Son, (John iii. 35; v. 19, 27; viii. 28, &c.) dispensing knowledge and favour through Him. Dean Woodhouse.

—— things which must shortly come to pass;] Meaning that the beginning of the events to be revealed was not to be sought in any distant period, but concerned the very times in which the prophecies were delivered; and that they were to follow in succession until their final consummation. Daubuz, Dean Woodhouse.

2. Who bare record of the word of God,] Who was the faithful and beloved disciple of Christ, while He was here on earth; and who hath hitherto borne testimony to the miracles which he saw Him work, and to the holy doctrines which he personally heard Him preach. Pyle.

3. Blessed is he that readeth, &c.] Happy will it be for every one who seriously studies, and duly attends to, the matters here treated of: for they are of infinite concern to him, whatever be the age of the church in which he lives, as carrying in them the best cautions, the most seasonable warnings, the most true consolations, and the most useful knowledge, that can possibly be wanted in any times and circumstances. Pyle.

The distinction is remarkable of "him that readeth" and of "them that hear:" for since, at the time when this was written, there were no books but manuscript, they were in fewer hands; and it was a much readier way to publish a prophecy by publick reading than by transcribing copies. Also it was the custom of those ages to read all the apostolical writings in Christian congregations. Bp. Newton. The same kind of blessing is pronounced in Matt. xiii. 16; Luke xi. 28; 2 Pet. i. 19, on those who cultivate spiritual knowledge, who attend with faith to "the light of prophecy shining in a dark place until the day dawn." Dean Woodhouse.

—— and keep those things &c.] The Holy Ghost has thought fit to intermix with these prophecies exhortations to Christians to Anno DOMINI 96. keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand.

4 JOHN to the seven churches which are in Asia: Grace be unto you, and peace, from him [a] which is, and which was, and which is to come; and from the seven Spirits which are before his throne;

5 And from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, and the [b] first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. Unto him that loved us, [c] and washed us from our sins in his own blood,

6 And hath [d] made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

7 [e] Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, Amen.

8 I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is,

[a] Exod. 3. 14.

[b] 1 Cor. 15. 20. Col. 1. 18.

Anno DOMINI 96.

[c] Hebr. 9. 14. [d] 1 Pet. 2. 5.

[e] Matt. 24. 30.

---

beware of idolatry and carnal pollutions, and sets forth the rewards due to them that shall take heed. Daubuz.

—— for the time is at hand.] The time when the accomplishment of them shall begin. See notes on ver. 1. Pyle.

4. John to the seven churches which are in Asia:] This book, being written in an epistolary form, begins, like other apostolick epistles, with a salutation, followed by a glorification, ver. 6. It is addressed to the seven churches, which are afterwards mentioned by name, in chapters ii, iii, (see the notes there,) situated in the proconsular province properly called Asia, (see note at Acts ii. 9,) which, at the time when the Apocalypse was written, is reported by historians to have contained five hundred great cities. Of these, Ephesus, Smyrna, and Pergamos, (being three out of the seven,) long contested for the preeminence. The number of churches, to which the Epistle is addressed, is seven. The same number we shall find frequently employed in this sacred book, for we read of seven spirits of God, seven angels, seven thunders, &c. These particular seven churches being now sunk in Mahometan superstition, all the Christian churches inherit the advice given, the threatenings denounced, and the blessings promised by their Divine Lord. Dean Woodhouse.

—— from him which is, &c.] From the eternal God, whose name Jehovah signifies, He that is, and was, and shall be. Dr. Hammond. This description of God the Father occurs at chap. iv. 8; from which place the Apostle seems to take it here. It has the same meaning with the great "I am" of Exodus iii. 14. Dean Woodhouse.

—— and from the seven Spirits which are before his throne;] To understand this expression we must refer to chap. iv. 5, where, in the glorious representation of the Deity, are exhibited "seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God." But at chap. iii. 1, God the Son describes Himself as "having the seven spirits of God;" and when He appears under the emblem of the Lamb, chap. v. 6, He is described as "having seven eyes which are the seven spirits of God, sent forth into all the earth." But what can we account this universal, holy Spirit of God, proceeding from the Father and the Son, to be, but that which, in the plainer language of the sacred Scriptures, is called the Holy Ghost. The comment of the venerable Bede on this passage appears just and forcible. 'The one Holy Spirit is here described as sevenfold, by which is intimated in prophetick language fulness and perfection.' Dean Woodhouse.

5. And from Jesus Christ,] He seems to be here mentioned last of the three Persons in the Godhead, because His character and description are longer dwelt upon, ver. 5—7. Dr. Hammond, Dean Woodhouse.

—— who is the faithful witness, &c.] That is, who died to seal with His blood the truth of His doctrine, and after that rose again the first from the dead, to give an earnest and certain assurance of the resurrection which He hath promised us; and by His death and resurrection hath for Himself obtained glory and immortality, rule and power, and a seat at the right hand of God. Daubuz.

—— him that loved us,] That so loved us, as to die for our salvation. Pyle.

6. — hath made us kings and priests] Hath sanctified us to the service of God, consecrating us, as His church, a kingdom of priests, to honour God, and to give us the privilege of a near approach unto Him, with assurance of acceptance and favour. Lowman.

A kingdom is prepared for the servants of Christ, Matt. xxv. 34, and they are to reign with Him, Luke xii. 32. Again, at Exod. xix. 5, 6, God promises to Israel that by obedience they shall become "a kingdom of priests, a peculiar treasure unto Him." Dean Woodhouse.

—— unto God and his Father;] 'Unto God, even His Father.'

7. Behold, he cometh &c.] In this verse, the Prophet, enraptured with his subject, passes from the glorification of Christ, which he had delivered in the form of a prayer, to the description of the awful event, when, (as foretold in Scripture, see Dan. vii. 13; Matt. xxiv. 30,) He shall come in the clouds of heaven, in the glory of the Father, to preside at the general judgment. Dean Woodhouse.

—— they also which pierced him:] Meaning not only the Jews who demanded His crucifixion of Pilate, but likewise all those who wound Him by their transgressions, "who crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put Him to an open shame," Heb. vi. 6. Dean Woodhouse.

—— all kindreds of the earth shall wail] All obstinate idolaters and opposers of Christ, who shall persist in their enmity, at His second coming shall be the subject of His judgment and vengeance, and shall therefore have cause to lament. Daubuz.

8. I am Alpha and Omega,] Christ is the first and the last, the original Creator and the final Judge of the world; and to His illustrious advent and final triumph over His enemies, as being the grand catastrophe of the Apocalypse, the Prophet, who had already seen it exhibited in vision, exultingly adverts before he begins his narration. Dean Woodhouse.

—— Alpha and Omega,] These are the names of the first and last letters in the Greek alphabet, and are therefore used to express "the first and the last," generally.

That it is God the Son who here speaks, admits of no doubt, see ver. 17, 18, where He says "I am the first and the last, I am He that liveth and was dead;" also chap. xxii. 13—16, where He repeats this description of Himself, and, in order that none might doubt who it is that thus describes His eternity, continuing to speak in the same person says, "I Jesus have sent Mine angel." All these expressions are the common description which Scripture gives of the eternity of God, whose being is commensurate with duration past, present, and to come. Here therefore we have a most clear and undoubted proof of the Divinity of our Saviour. Abp. Tillotson.

He which is expressly styled Alpha and Omega, the first and the last, without any restriction or limitation, was, after and before any assignable time, truly and essentially God. For by this title God describes His own being, and distinguishes it from all other. See Is. xli. 4; xlviii. 12; xliv. 6. But Christ is in various passages of the Revelation styled expressly the first and the last. See ver. 11, 17; chap. ii. 8; xxii. 13, &c. And in all these places the title is attributed to Him absolutely and universally, without any limitation, in the same latitude and eminence of expression, in which it can be attributed to the supreme God. Whence it follows, that Christ is declared to be the Supreme, Almighty, and Eternal God. Bp. Pearson.

Anno DOMINI 96.

and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty.

9 I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.

10 I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet,

11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and, What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia; unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamos, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 And I turned to see the voice that spake with me. And being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks;

13 And in the midst of the seven candlesticks one like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle.

Anno DOMINI 96.

14 His head and his hairs were white like wool, as white as snow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire;

15 And his feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice as the sound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth went a sharp two edged sword: and his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength.

17 And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; [f] I am the first and the last:

[f] Is. 41. 4. & 44. 6.

18 I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, A-

---

9. I John, who also am your brother,] I John, who am a brother to every Christian believer, a fellow sufferer with all who do now, or shall hereafter, endure persecution for the sake of Christ's religion, was banished into the isle of Patmos, for being an Apostle and preacher of the same faith. Pyle.

—— the isle that is called Patmos,] Patmos is an island south of Samos, in the Archipelago; it is now called Palmosa. In this island, as in some others in different parts of the world, the Roman emperours used to confine offenders. The inhabitants of the principal town pretend to shew a house where St. John wrote the revelations, and, not far from it, a cave where they were made to him. Dr. Wells.

—— for the word of God, and for the testimony &c.] The sense of this expression becomes clear by comparing it with chap. vi. 9, where the martyrs are represented as having suffered "for the word of God and for the testimony which they held." St. John was, like them, a persecuted sufferer and confessor, being banished for his adherence to the faith. Dean Woodhouse.

10. I was in the Spirit] I was in an ecstasy or trance. Daubuz. It is in vain to inquire the exact manner in which these sacred visions were communicated. Thus far is plain from Ezek. ii. 2; iii. 24; 2 Cor. xii. 2, and other passages of Scripture, that the Prophet commonly perceived the impulse of the Spirit acting upon him in an extraordinary manner. Dean Woodhouse.

—— on the Lord's day,] The Christian sabbath, on which the church used to assemble for religious worship. Lowman. See note at Acts xx. 7.

On "the Lord's day," we may well suppose, the Apostle's heart and affections were sublimed by the meditations and devotions of the day, and rendered more fit to receive Divine inspiration. Bp. Newton.

—— a great voice, as of a trumpet,] Loud as the sound of a trumpet, fearful and alarming. The trumpet was the voice of God at the awful delivery of the law on mount Sinai, Exod. xix. 16, and so will be again at the end of the world, 1 Thess. iv. 16; 1 Cor. xv. 52. Dean Woodhouse.

11. — and, What thou seest, write &c.] Attend to the revelations which thou seest, as coming from Me; write them down to preserve them for the use and benefit of the church, and send them in particular to the seven churches of Asia, which are concerned in the present use of them. Lowman. Respecting these seven churches here enumerated, see the notes on chapters ii. and iii.

12. — I turned to see the voice] I turned to see who it was that uttered this voice. Daubuz.

—— seven golden candlesticks;] These are explained afterwards at ver. 20, to represent the seven churches, or the universal church of Christ. Spiritual knowledge is frequently represented in Scripture under the emblem of a light or lamp. See Matt. v. 14, 15; Zech. iv. 2; and the station, from which this light is communicated, is that which bears the light, or the candlestick, denoting the church. Dean Woodhouse.

13. — one like unto the Son of man,] Our Saviour is so called at Daniel x. 16, and this is the appellation which our Lord generally adopted of Himself. Dean Woodhouse.

—— clothed with a garment &c.] His clothing here described much resembles that of the Jewish high priest; and He is represented much in the same manner, as are the Divine appearances in Daniel's visions. Bp. Newton. He is habited like the high priest, Levit. vi. 10, xvi. 4, to signify that Christ is our merciful High Priest, who has compassion on our infirmities, and intercedes and prays for us. The upper garment of the high priest was long, and he was girt with a girdle, Exod. xxxix. 5. Dr. Hammond.

14. His head and his hairs &c.] The description is similar to that of other glorified bodies, mentioned in holy writ. Thus our Lord at His transfiguration, of which St. John was a witness, Matt. xvii. 2; and in the visions of Daniel, chap. vii. 9; x. 5, 6. In those passages we have all the original ideas which are represented in this vision of St. John, but with that varied expression which implies that St. John's copy was not taken from these passages, but from the same original. Dean Woodhouse.

16. — seven stars:] Which are "the angels of the seven churches," ver. 20.

—— out of his mouth went a sharp two edged sword:] This is the weapon by which our Lord and His followers are to conquer at the last; and therefore it is again described at chap. xix. 15, 21. In a passage of Isaiah, confessedly prophetical of our Lord, it is said, "He shall smite the earth with the rod of His mouth, and with the breath of His lips shall He slay the wicked," Is. xi. 4. Agreeably to which, "the sword of the Spirit" is called by St. Paul "the word of God," Eph. vi. 17, and is the weapon with which, according to the same Apostle, even "with the Spirit of His mouth," the Lord will destroy the man of sin, 2 Thess. ii. 8. These passages throw considerable light on the expression before us, and shew the nature of the weapons, by which our Lord and His church are to gain their victories, not the instruments of human warfare, but the preaching of the word in evangelical purity and power. Dean Woodhouse.

18. I am he that liveth,] Even that Christ which lived here on earth, and was put to death, and rose again to life, and now liveth never to die again, and hath all power over the invisible state of death, and over death itself. Dr. Hammond. The High men; and have the keys of hell and of death.

Anno DOMINI 96.

19 Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter;

20 The mystery of the seven stars which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks. The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches: and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest are the seven churches.

CHAP. II.

What is commanded to be written to the angels, that is, the ministers of the churches of 1 Ephesus, 8 Smyrna, 12 Pergamos, 18 Thyatira: and what is commended, or found wanting in them.

UNTO the angel of the church of Ephesus write; These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks;

Anno DOMINI 96.

2 I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil: and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars:

3 And hast borne, and hast patience, and for my name's sake hast laboured, and hast not fainted.

4 Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.

Priest and Saviour of the church, who died to redeem it unto God, and consecrate it a peculiar people, and who now ever lives to protect and bless it, and who hath all authority and power in this life, and in the separate state of departed souls, after this life, to save it for evermore. Lowman.

—— the keys] The power of opening and shutting, of making alive and destroying. Abp. Newcome.

—— of hell] The receptacle of the dead, the place of departed souls.

20. — the angels of the seven churches:] The pastors, ministers, or chief guides of these churches, (as representative of their flocks,) who are wont to be called, in the Jewish language, the angels of the churches. Pyle.

The word, translated "angel," is generally used in the Old and New Testament, as well as in profane authors, to signify a messenger, ambassadour, or representative, one who bears a deputed office or commission. Thus, at Mal. ii. 7, the priest of the Lord is styled the angel or messenger of the Lord; and in the ancient Jewish church, the forms of which were followed in the first Christian churches, the ruler or chief minister of the synagogue was called the "angel" of the synagogue. In conformity with this, the bishops or presidents of the primitive church were called angels or messengers, as holding an intermediate or delegated office between Christ the Head of all the churches, and that particular church to which they were deputed. They are here represented under the emblem of stars, by which, in the symbolical language of Scripture, are frequently signified eminent leaders in God's service. Dean Woodhouse.

Chap. II. The 2d and 3d chapters contain the epistles to the seven churches of Asia. These seven are particularly addressed, because they were under St. John's immediate inspection; he constituted bishops over them; he was, as it were, their metropolitan, and resided much at Ephesus, which is therefore named the first of the seven. Though these epistles have rather a literal than a mystical meaning, yet they contain excellent moral precepts and exhortations, commendations and reproofs, promises and threatenings, which may be of use and instruction to the Christian church in all ages. The form and order of the parts are the same almost in all the Epistles: first, a command to write; then, some character and attributes of Him who speaks, taken from the vision in the first chapter, and appropriated to the matter of each Epistle; then, commendations or reproofs, with suitable promises or threatenings; and then, in all, the same conclusion, "He that hath an ear, &c." chap. ii. 7, &c. What therefore the Spirit saith unto one church, He saith in some measure to all the churches. Bp. Newton.

Ver. 1. — the church of Ephesus] The first Epistle is addressed to the church of Ephesus, as it was the metropolis of Proconsular Asia, besides being St. John's principal residence. It was, according to Strabo, one of the best and most glorious of cities, and the emporium of this part of Asia. It was called by Pliny one of the eyes of Asia, Smyrna being the other; but now, as travellers who have visited it relate, it is venerable for nothing but the ruins of palaces, temples, and amphitheatres. It is called by the Turks, by a name which signifies the temple of the moon, from the magnificent structure formerly dedicated to Diana. The church of St. Paul is wholly destroyed. The little which remains of that of St. Mark is a complete ruin. The only church remaining is that dedicated to St. John, which is now converted into a Turkish mosque. The whole town is nothing but a habitation of herdsmen and farmers, living in low and humble mud cottages, sheltered from the inclemency of the weather by mighty masses of ruinous walls, the pride and ostentation of former days, and the emblem, in these, of the frailty of the world, and the transient vanity of human glory. All the inhabitants of this once famous city amount not now to more than forty or fifty families of Turks, without one Christian family amongst them. So strikingly has the denunciation been fulfilled, that "their candlestick should be removed out of its place," ver. 5. Bp. Newton.

—— he that holdeth the seven stars &c.] He who is the heavenly Ruler, Protector and Guide of all them that bear rule in the church; the Saviour, whose Divine presence is ever with His faithful servants, to support and reward them. Pyle.

—— walketh in the midst &c.] This expression seems taken from the office of the priests in dressing the lamps in the temple: according to which, it here denotes a care to observe and know the true state of the churches, and to assist their improvement in religion, that they might shine as lights in the world. Lowman.

2. I know thy works, &c.] I observe and approve thy labour and great industry in the Gospel, and thy constant perseverance in the faith, and thy resistance to the vicious men that creep in amongst you; and ye have put false teachers to the test, examining their doctrine and commission, and have found them to be "liars." Dr. Hammond.

3. And hast borne,] Hast undergone pressures and afflictions. Dr. Hammond.

4. — because thou hast left thy first love.] Because thou hast somewhat remitted the pure Christian love which at first was in thee, and displayed itself by courageous confession of faith. Dr. Hammond. In moderating their zeal against false apostles, and suffering them to increase, they had forsaken the love which they at first bore to Jesus. It appears that these corruptions had crept into the Ephesian church since St. Paul's time; for, in his Epistle to them, he commends them throughout, as Ignatius has observed. Daubuz.

5. — will remove thy candlestick &c.] This threat upon this and other Eastern churches was fulfilled partly by the persecutions under Decius, Gallus, and Valerian, and more eminently afterwards by the Saracens and Turks, these once famous cities having long become desolate villages. Pyle. See note on ver. 1.

Anno DOMINI 96.

6 But this thou hast, that thou hatest the deeds of the Nicolaitanes, which I also hate.

7 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.

8 And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna write; These things saith the first and the last, which was dead, and is alive;

9 I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan.

Anno DOMINI 96.

10 Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

---

6. — this thou hast,] This one thing is to be said in thy commendation. Dr. Hammond.

—— hatest the deeds of the Nicolaitanes,] It is observed by Mosheim, that our knowledge of the sects and heresies of the first century is very incomplete: and doubts have arisen whether many of the Fathers do not confound the Nicolaitanes, here mentioned, with another sect, afterwards founded by one Nicolaus. From the general testimony of the ancients, however, it appears that these Nicolaitanes were impious in their doctrines, and impure in their lives. They are thought to have held the opinion, afterwards adopted by the Gnosticks, which denied the humanity of our Lord and His real sufferings in the flesh; and in their practices they are described as peculiarly profligate and impure. The ancients assert, that, in those passages of St. Jude, and of 2 Peter, which represent heretical leaders like the Sodomites "turning the grace of God into lasciviousness," the Nicolaitanes are meant. It is of their practice that our Saviour speaks in this passage with detestation. "Thou hatest the deeds of the Nicolaitanes." Dr. Woodhouse.

7. He that hath an ear, &c.] A form of bespeaking attention, frequently used by our Lord, especially when He addressed His hearers in figurative language. Dean Woodhouse.

At the conclusion of every one of these seven Epistles, which are full of very earnest and pressing exhortations to repentance and amendment of life, and most lively and affectionate descriptions of the true nature of Christ's religion, these words are distinctly repeated no less than seven several times. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— what the Spirit saith] The Spirit of wisdom and prophecy. Lowman. Which Jesus now sent to foretell the future dangers of the church, and to encourage it by the prospect of reward. Daubuz.

—— To him that overcometh &c.] To him that shall so fight as to overcome the enemies of truth and righteousness, shall be given to enjoy a state of full perfection and happiness in eternal life, such as the first parents would have enjoyed in paradise, if they had continued in obedience. Lowman.

The life of a Christian is frequently in Scripture compared to a warfare, 1 Tim. vi. 12; 2 Tim. iv. 7. If, notwithstanding the force of all temptations, he perseveres in his faith and obedience, he is said to overcome; if he is prevailed upon by them to forsake his duty and to commit sin, he is overcome by them. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— will I give to eat of the tree &c.] That is, I will give him immortality and eternal life. There is an allusion to Gen. ii. 8. Since it is there related that our first parents, by reason of being overcome and conquered by sin, were driven out of paradise, and thenceforth excluded from the way of the tree of life, lest they should eat thereof and live for ever; so here our Saviour promises, on the contrary, that he, that overcomes and conquers sin, shall be restored to the hopes from which our first parents fell, and be again admitted to eat of the tree of life. As by sin against the first of the commandments of God, the hopes of immortality and eternal life were forfeited, so, by obedience to the Gospel of Christ, which is the last revelation of His will, immortality and eternal life shall be regained. Dr. S. Clarke.

8. — the church in Smyrna] Smyrna was the nearest of the seven cities to Ephesus, being about forty-five miles northward of it; and on that account probably it is addressed in the second place. It is now celebrated, not for the splendour and pomp of the buildings, but for the number, wealth, and commerce of the inhabitants. The Turks have here fifteen mosques, and the Jews several synagogues. Among these enemies of the Christian name, the Christian religion also flourishes in some degree; and Christians abound in it of all nations, sects, and languages. They are far more numerous here, and in a better condition, than in any other of the seven churches; as if the promise were still made good to Smyrna, "Fear none of those things, &c." ver. 10. Bp. Newton.

"The angel" of the church of Smyrna, here addressed, was probably Polycarp, the disciple of St. John, by him made bishop of Smyrna. Some years after this time, he himself died a glorious martyr at Smyrna, being then eighty-six years old. His character here is the shortest and most irreprehensible of all the seven bishops or "angels." Dr. Wall, Daubuz.

—— the first and the last, which was dead, &c.] The title, under which the Supreme Head addresses this church, is the same which He had assumed in His first appearance to St. John. Its character agrees with the purport of this address, which is to encourage the Smyrneans confidently to meet the fiery trials of martyrdom, in the sure expectation of triumphing over death, as their Lord had done before them. Dean Woodhouse.

9. — and poverty, (but thou art rich)] Meaning, the poverty which thou thinkest of thyself, because thou hast but few Christians in thy church; but "thou art rich," because God will favour thee with more glory than many others. Daubuz.

—— them which say they are Jews, &c.] Professed Jews, men of violent character, who blasphemed the name of Israelite, by calling themselves such, while they were in fact the emissaries of Satan, employed to corrupt, or to excite that persecution which is foretold in the ensuing verse. Dean Woodhouse.

10. — ye shall have tribulation ten days:] This period may either be literally ten days, or, typically ten years; "a day" often representing a year, according to the known language of prophecy, Ezek. iv. 6. See notes at Dan. vii. 25; viii. 13, &c. We have so little knowledge of the history of the church in the times here spoken of, that there is great difficulty in ascertaining the persecution here alluded to, and the time of its duration. We have an account of a persecution suffered by the church of Smyrna in the year 169, when, among others, Polycarp, its venerable Bishop, suffered martyrdom: but there is no proof that this continued ten years, or ten days; and, as it took place more than seventy years from the time of this prophecy, it seems too distant to be that here foretold by our Lord, who addressed the Smyrneans then living. Besides, this persecution extended to the other churches of Asia, who would therefore have had a similar warning. It seems most probable, on the whole, that the persecution foretold in these words was fulfilled in that generation; and that the Jews, who are described as acting against that church, under the influence of Satan, were the authors of the persecution. This prophecy, thus fulfilled, would serve a temporary purpose; it would convince the seven churches, that the revelation which foretold it was from God; and that therefore the remaining predictions of the same Prophet would also receive their accomplishment: and it would occasion them to revere, and preserve, and faithfully deliver down to posterity, the book in which they were contained. Dean Woodhouse.

Anno DOMINI 96.

11 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death.

12 And to the angel of the church in Pergamos write; These things saith he which hath the sharp sword with two edges;

13 I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is: and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of [a] Balaam, who taught Balac to cast a stumblingblock before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication.

[a] Numb. 25. 1.

15 So hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes, which thing I hate.

Anno DOMINI 96.

16 Repent; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

17 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it.

18 And unto the angel of the church in Thyatira write; These things saith the Son of God, who hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet are like fine brass;

19 I know thy works, and charity, and service, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works; and the last to be more than the first.

20 Notwithstanding I have a few things against thee, because thou sufferest that

---

11. — the second death.] A state of misery, which is as bad or worse than death, may properly enough be called by that name; and for this reason the punishment of wicked men after the day of judgment is frequently and fitly, in this book of Revelation, called "the second death." Abp. Tillotson.

12. — the church in Pergamos] This place, formerly the metropolis of Mysia, and the seat of the Attalian kings, lies about sixty-four miles north of Smyrna. The city is now almost entirely occupied by Turks; there are not in it more than twelve or fifteen Christian families, who live in the most abject and sordid servitude. Its principal churches are turned into mosques, and profaned with the blasphemies of the false prophet. There is the less reason to wonder at its present wretched condition, when we consider that it was the very "seat of Satan," ver. 13. It was denounced unto the inhabitants to "repent, or else Christ would come unto them quickly, and fight against them," ver. 16, as the event has shewn that He has done. Bp. Newton.

—— the sharp sword] See note at chap. i. 16.

13. — and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is:] That is, I consider the temptations of the place where thou livest, where the powers of darkness and corruption have a numerous and powerful party. Lowman.

—— in those days wherein Antipas &c.] Respecting this martyr, no account whatever has been preserved to these times. Dean Woodhouse.

14. — I have a few things against thee, because &c.] I have some crimes against you which call for a severe reproof; that numbers of you are guilty of prevarication and sinful compliances with the corruptions of the times; acknowledging the falsities and depravities of heathen doctrine and worship, they still fall in with them in practice, for fear of certain temporal inconveniences, to the great scandal of more conscientious Christians, and to the ensnaring of weak ones into the like offences. Which is to act the part of the wicked Balaam, who, though he did not attempt to draw the Israelites into idolatry by plain words, did it by stratagem. Pyle.

—— to eat things sacrificed unto idols,] By this phrase, any idolatrous worship is often described in Scripture; a part being put for the whole. So "eating upon the mountains," Ezek. xviii. 6, 15. Pyle.

17. — will I give to eat of the hidden manna,] "The hidden manna" may refer to the words of Christ, John vi. 51, "I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this bread he shall live for ever:" a much greater instance of God's favour and grace, than feeding the Israelites with manna from heaven. Lowman.

"The hidden manna" was this bread of life in its spiritual signification, of which the manna free from corruption, laid up in the tabernacle, was only a type; namely, the benefits derived to the faithful followers of Christ by the offering of His body, forgiveness of sins, and everlasting salvation. Dean Woodhouse.

—— will give him a white stone, — a new name] Among the ancients, in criminal processes, a white stone was a mark of acquittal; and the white stone here presented to the conquering Christian, may be supposed to signify the approving sentence of God. On the stone there was to be "a new name written." By the custom of nations from the earliest ages, a person raised to dignity was commonly invested with a new name or title, expressive of his merits. Various instances of this occur in Scripture, Gen. xli. 45; 2 Sam. xii. 25; Dan. i. 7: of this nature is the new name or title here mentioned as given by the Lord of heaven to His glorified servants. Dean Woodhouse.

A new name imports a new quality or state. Thus Abram, Sarai, Simon, &c. were called by new names when they were placed in new circumstances. The new situation here referred to is that of immortality in heaven. Daubuz.

18. — the church in Thyatira] Thyatira is situated about fifty miles to the southeast of Pergamos. To it belonged "Lydia, a seller of purple," Acts xvi. 14, who was baptized with all her house. At present, there is only one ancient edifice standing in the city. The rest, even the churches, are so destroyed, that no vestiges of them are to be found. The principal inhabitants are Turks, who have here eight mosques, while there is not one Christian church. So terribly have the Divine judgments been poured upon this church, for "committing fornication, &c." Bp. Newton.

19. — the last to be more than the first.] That is, thy faith, constancy, and affection to be improving, and at last to appear more eminent than at first. Lowman.

20. — because thou sufferest that woman Jezebel, &c.] This might be literally a woman of great rank and influence at Thyatira, who seduced the Christians to intermix idolatry and heathen impurities with their religion. Such seducers were in the church in St. Paul's time, 2 Cor. vi. 14; and the history of Queen Jezebel, that patroness of idolatry, as delivered in the book of Kings, shews that such a woman would be fitly represented under that name. But it may also be applied in a symbolical sense; for thus by a woman is often signified a city, a nation, a church. This passage is so understood by the venerable Bede, who explains the woman [b] Jezebel, which calleth herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants to commit fornication, and to eat things sacrificed unto idols.

Anno DOMINI 96.

[b] 1 Kings 16. 31.

21 And I gave her space to repent of her fornication; and she repented not.

22 Behold, I will cast her into a bed, and them that commit adultery with her into great tribulation, except they repent of their deeds.

23 And I will kill her children with death; and all the churches shall know that [c] I am he which searcheth the reins and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according to your works.

[c] Jer. 11. 20. & 17. 10.

24 But unto you I say, and unto the rest in Thyatira, as many as have not this doctrine, and which have not known the depths of Satan, as they speak; I will put upon you none other burden.

25 But that which ye have already hold fast till I come.

26 And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:

[a] Ps. 2. 9.

27 [d] And he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers: even as I received of my Father.

Anno DOMINI 96.

28 And I will give him the morning star.

29 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

CHAP. III.

2 The angel of the church of Sardis is reproved, 3 exhorted to repent, and threatened if he do not repent. 8 The angel of the church of Philadelphia 10 is approved for his diligence and patience. 15 The angel of Laodicea rebuked, for being neither hot nor cold, 19 and admonished to be more zealous. 20 Christ standeth at the door and knocketh.

AND unto the angel of the church in Sardis write; These things saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars; I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead.

2 Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God.

3 Remember therefore how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast, and repent. [a] If therefore thou shalt not watch, term Jezebel to mean a synagogue of false apostles pretending to be Christian: and it may signify a sect of seducers, like that described at ver. 14, 15. of this chapter. Dean Woodhouse.

[a] 1 Thess. 5. 2. 2 Pet. 3. 10.

---

22. — I will cast her into a bed, &c.] I will bring down her pride, and severely chastise her and all her idolatrous adherents. Pyle. I will bring her into sickness, will change her adulterous bed into a bed of sickness. Schleusner.

23. —— I will kill her children] I will cut off her followers, the children of her fornication, with violent death. Bp. Hall.

—— will kill — with death;] A Hebrew mode of expression, denoting the certainty of the thing denounced. Dean Woodhouse.

—— and all the churches shall know &c.] The punishment of these false teachers and their followers shall be so great and remarkable, that the churches shall discern a Divine power in it, and learn to respect and honour the administration of My government; who, as I know the secrets of men's hearts, and most concealed principles of action, so I exercise judgment in giving to every man according to his works. Lowman.

24. — as many as have not this doctrine,] As have kept themselves from these evil doctrines. Lowman.

—— which have not known the depths of Satan,] Which have not acknowledged, or given way to, or assisted, these secret designs of the devil. Daubuz.

—— I will put upon you none other burden.] This is a commendation passed upon the sound part of the church, that no new exhortation or charge was to be given them, but only the advice to persevere as they had hitherto done. Daubuz.

25. — hold fast till I come.] This command to keep in the same faith till Christ's coming, plainly proves that these churches are symbolical; that is, that the exhortations made to them are to serve for the whole catholick church, throughout its unsettled and persecuted state. Daubuz.

26. — to him will I give power &c.] To those who overcome these temptations, and keep the faith and holy commandment of My Gospel, so as to persevere unto the end in truth and righteousness, I will make good the promise made to the church in prophecy, that it shall prevail against the superstitions of the heathen world, whether maintained by the heathen nations themselves, or introduced by others into the Christian church. Lowman.

27. And he shall rule them &c.] The church shall have a power, by My protection, like that which I received from My Father, Ps. ii. 8, 9; however obstinate any may be, in opposition to truth and purity, My power shall break their obstinacy, and give success to a faithful defence of My Gospel, against all the idolatrous and immoral principles of heathen nations. Lowman.

28. And I will give him the morning star.] That is, I will give unto him dignity and preeminence, as the morning star excels the other stars in brightness. Schleusner.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — the church in Sardis] Sardis, once the renowned capital of Crœsus and the rich Lydian kings, is now no longer worthy of the name of a city, being nothing more than an ignoble village, with low and wretched cottages; yet the great extent and grandeur of the ruins abundantly shew how large and beautiful a city it was formerly. The Turks have only one mosque here, perverted to that use from being a Christian church. Very few Christians are to be found here, and these sustain a miserable servitude, being without a church or priest. Such is the deplorable state of this once most glorious city; but "her works were not found perfect;" that is, they were found blamable "before God:" she was dead even while she lived, and she is punished accordingly. Bp. Newton.

—— that thou hast a name that thou livest, &c.] Though thou carriest a mighty name in the world, yet thou livest not in the purity of Christianity, but art really dead to all the true virtue and power of it. Pyle. By a metaphor frequent in Scripture, a person living in the defilements of the world, in whom the spiritual life in Christ hath little or no vigour, is said to be dead while he liveth. Dean Woodhouse.

2. — strengthen the things — that are ready to die:] Confirm those good principles and dispositions, which are grown so weak as to be nearly extinguished. Lowman.

3. Remember therefore how thou hast received &c.] The fault of Sardis was not heresy, or corruption of doctrine; it was negligence and supineness: she knew the will of her Lord, but did it

Anno DOMINI 96.

I will come on thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.

4 Thou hast a few names even in Sardis which have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in white: for they are worthy.

5 He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not
[b] Chap. 20. 12. Phil. 4. 3. blot out his name out of the [b] book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

6 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

7 And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write; These things saith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the key of David, he that openeth, and no man shutteth; and shutteth, and no man openeth;

8 I know thy works: behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name. Anno DOMINI 96.

9 Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say they are Jews, and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.

10 Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.

11 Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

12 Him that overcometh will I make a not. She is therefore called upon to remember the doctrines she had received, and to bring them into practice. Dean Woodhouse.

---

—— as a thief,] That is, suddenly and unexpectedly. Abp. Newcome. I will seize thee by unexpected judgments. Bp. Hall.

4. Thou hast a few names — which have not &c.] Thou hast a few who have preserved themselves from the common corruption, who have kept their purity, and acted in a manner suitable to their Christian profession; these I will account worthy of great honour and happiness, and I will confer upon them distinguishing marks of favour. Lowman.

—— shall walk with me in white:] White or shining garments were marks of favour and honour. Under the law, the garments of the priests were white; and so were also those worn in the courts of princes. A white garment is also an emblem of purity, and therefore interpreted at chap. xix. 8. of "the righteousness of saints." Hence we see the propriety of this emblem to express the peculiar favour to those who remained constant in the purity of Christian faith and worship. Lowman.

5. — the book of life,] This expression is taken from the custom of registering in a book the names of the freemen of a city; which names were kept in, or struck out, according as they deserved by their behaviour in observing or breaking the laws. Pyle.

The King of heaven, of the new Jerusalem, engages to preserve in His register and enrolment, in the book of life, the names of those who, like the good Sardians, in a corrupted and supine society shall preserve their allegiance and a faithful discharge of Christian duties. He will own them as His fellow-citizens before men and angels. Dean Woodhouse.

7. — the church in Philadelphia] Philadelphia was so called from its founder, Attalus Philadelphus, being distant from Sardis about twenty-seven miles to the southeast. It still retains the form of a city with some little trade. God has been pleased to preserve some few in it to make profession of the Christian faith, since it contains about two hundred houses of Christians, and four churches. Next to Smyrna, this city has the greatest number of Christians; and Christ has promised a more particular protection to it, ver. 10, &c. Bp. Newton.

—— he that is holy,] This epithet belongs appropriately to the Deity; He alone is holy, the Holy One, Exod. xxviii. 36; Is. vi. 3. Thus it belongs to the only begotten Son, as partaking the nature of the Father, Ps. xvi. 10; Luke iv. 34; Acts iii. 14. Dean Woodhouse.

—— he that is true,] That is faithful and steady in fulfilling His promises to His servants, and executing His threats upon His enemies. Pyle.

—— he that hath the key of David, &c.] He who hath received all power and authority in the spiritual kingdom, as the promised Son of David, so that none can exclude from the privileges of that kingdom, those whom He shall receive into it, and none can confer them on those to whom He shall by His word, and judgment agreeable to it, deny them. Lowman. To bear the keys, signifies, both in scriptural and in Pagan antiquity, to bear power and office. See chap. i. 18; Matt. xvi. 19. Dean Woodhouse.

Here is an allusion to the words of Isaiah, chap. xxii. 22, where the Prophet promises to Eliakim, under this symbol of the key of the house of David, the government of the whole nation. Daubuz.

"He that hath the key of David," He that hath all power given unto Him over His church, of which the kingdom of David was a type. Bp. Hall.

8. — I have set before thee an open door,] St. Paul uses this metaphor, to signify the free exercise and propagation of the Gospel, Acts xiv. 27; 1 Cor. xvi. 9; 2 Cor. ii. 12. Daubuz. I have given thee a great opportunity of propagating My Gospel, and of improving thyself in holiness: nor shall it be taken from thee, for thou hast been faithful to My religion, though in a weak state of worldly power, greatness, and riches, and hast not given up My authority, or the obligation of My doctrines, to any of the prevailing corruptions. Lowman.

9. Behold, I will make them &c.] Respecting the false Jews here mentioned, see chap. ii. 9. A complete triumph over these pretended saints is promised to this humble church; and it probably took place in those early times, of which so little history remains. Dean Woodhouse.

10. — I also will keep thee] This promise also, in favour of the church of Philadelphia, was probably fulfilled in some subsequent persecution, of which we have no special account. Dean Woodhouse. Perhaps "this hour of temptation" which was to come upon all the world, related to the persecution under Trajan, which was greater and more extensive than the preceding persecutions under Nero and Domitian. Lowman.

11. Behold, I come &c.] Let no persecuted Christian think it long before this great work is done. I will assuredly and unexpectedly appear the Deliverer of My church, the King of a glorious and perfect kingdom, in the proper season appointed by Divine wisdom. Let every one therefore hold fast his integrity, and not lose his reward at the glorious time of recompense. Pyle.

12. Him that overcometh will I make a pillar &c.] As the pillars of a sumptuous temple are both the strength and ornament of it, so shall all, who steadily suffer in My name, and overcome the lusts and temptations of this world, be esteemed worthy to be members of My future church, triumphant and glorious, wherein they shall remain in uninterrupted felicity, as they have been the pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name.

Anno DOMINI 96.

13 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

14 And unto the angel of the church ‖ Or, in Laodicea. ‖ of the Laodiceans write; These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God;

15 I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot.

Anno DOMINI 96.

16 So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth.

17 Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked:

18 I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy naked-honour and ornaments of it in the present state of trial. And, as it has been the custom to engrave upon the pillars of lofty buildings the names and achievements of illustrious persons, so shall these My true servants be characterized with the noblest and happiest of all titles, such as, the servants of the living and true God, members of His heavenly kingdom. Pyle.

---

—— I will write upon him &c.] The meaning of this allusion to inscriptions usual on pillars, which sometimes expressed the privileges granted to cities, sometimes the names of benefactors, in memory of privileges granted, is, to shew the great privileges and happiness of the faithful members of the church, in the constant favour of God. Thus the happiness of the church is expressed in ancient prophecy, Ezek. xlviii. 35. Lowman.

—— the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem,] The numerous prophecies, which foretell the great and everlasting glory to Jerusalem, have not been fulfilled in the literal Jerusalem; nor can be so fulfilled, without contradicting other predictions, especially those of our Lord, which have denounced its ruin. They remain therefore to be fulfilled in a spiritual sense; in that sense which St. Paul points out to us, when, in opposition to Jerusalem that now is, and is in bondage with her children, he presents to our view "Jerusalem which is above, which is free, which is the mother of us all." This is the city which Abraham looked to, "a building not made with hands, whose builder and maker is God," Gal. iv. 24—27; Heb. xi. 10—16; xii. 22—24; xiii. 14; even the heavenly Jerusalem, whose splendour will be displayed in the concluding chapters of this book. Dean Woodhouse. See the notes on chap. xxi.

—— my new name.] That of "King of kings and Lord of lords," which He puts on, on entering into the New Jerusalem. Daubuz.

14. — the church of the Laodiceans] Laodicea lay south of Philadelphia, in the way to return to Ephesus. And thus it appears, as is seen by inspecting the maps, that the seven churches lie in a circular form, so that the natural progress was from Ephesus to Smyrna, and then successively to Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, Laodicea, and so round to Ephesus again, which is the order that St. John has observed in addressing them, and which probably was the circuit which he took in his visitation. That there was a flourishing church at Laodicea in the primitive times of Christianity, is evident from St. Paul's Epistle to the Colossians, in which frequent mention is made of the Laodiceans. But the doom of Laodicea seems to have been more severe and terrible than that of almost any other of the seven churches. For it is now utterly destroyed and forsaken of men, and is become an habitation only for wolves and snakes. Its ruins shew it to have been a very great city, situate on six or seven hills, and encompassing a large space of ground. Bp. Newton.

——, saith the Amen,] The word Amen imports truth and certainty. "The Amen," He whose promises will be most strictly fulfilled. See 2 Cor. i. 20. The words which follow, "the faithful and true witness," have the same meaning with this, and explain it. It implies that the profession and promises of God are true, stedfast, and certain. Daubuz, Dean Woodhouse.

—— the beginning of the creation of God;] He, by whom God made all things, "the firstborn of every creature," Col. i. 15, 16. Pyle.

15. —— thou art neither cold nor hot:] That is, thou art in a strange indifference and unconcern about the true ends and purposes of religion upon thy heart and practice. Pyle.

Many are the professed Christians in all countries, as well as in Laodicea, who, contented to be named after their Redeemer, are indifferent to their actions and their consequences. Supposing themselves rich in His merits, and wanting nothing, they fall into a sort of lifeless Christianity, which must needs be disgusting to that zealous Master, who suffered so much for them, laying so fair a foundation for their active exertions. Here He calls upon such persons to examine their situation; they are poor, instead of rich, naked instead of clothed, and blind, that is, wilfully ignorant. Dean Woodhouse.

Religion is the great ornament and glory of human nature, that which principally distinguishes men from the inferiour orders of creatures, and upon which alone are grounded all hopes of life and happiness hereafter, when this transitory world shall have passed away. In a matter of such importance, it is truly wonderful that any one, who calls himself a reasonable creature, should be careless or indifferent; careless whether He has any religion or none, indifferent whether the religion which he professes be true or false; careless, when he has embraced the true religion, whether he make any improvement in his practice answerable to it or not. These words of reproof sent to the church of Laodicea are written also for our admonition. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— I would thou wert cold or hot.] This expression does not imply that Christ approves of coldness in religious matters absolutely, but that lukewarmness therein is a worse disposition than absolute coldness. Daubuz. No profession of religion at all is, on some accounts, preferable to an insincere profession of it: men are more likely to be brought to a sense of religion, when as yet they have none, than when they satisfy themselves with a form of religion without the power; which seems to be the temper which Christ condemns in this church. Lowman.

Coldness, though not better in itself than lukewarmness, might sooner have led the church of Laodicea to repentance. Dr. H. More.

16. — I will spue thee &c.] I will cast thee off with the utmost indignation and aversion. Pyle.

17. Because thou sayest, I am rich, &c.] Because thou imaginest thyself to be in so good a state as to want nothing, and knowest not that thou art indeed in want of all things truly good; that thou art poor in the fruits of righteousness, ignorant of the true perfection of religion, destitute of the righteousness that is of God by faith to forgive and cover thy sins, and of the image of God to adorn thy soul. Lowman.

18. — to buy of me gold tried in the fire,] "Buy," that is, obtain in preference to worldly riches, "gold tried in the fire," that is, such virtue as will stand the fiery trial, or such as men possess after severe trials, assisted by the Divine grace. Dean Woodhouse.

Every part of our Lord's advice in this verse bears reference to the false presumptions mentioned in the last verse, and the real wants, as he was poor, and naked, and blind. Daubuz.

Anno DOMINI 96.

ness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.

Prov. 3. 11. Hebr. 12. 5.

19 [c] As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent.

20 Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

21 To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

22 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

CHAP. IV.

2 John seeth the throne of God in heaven. 4 The four and twenty elders. 6 The four beasts full of eyes before and behind. 10 The elders lay down their crowns, and worship him that sat on the throne.

AFTER this I looked, and, behold, a door was opened in heaven: and the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which said, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be hereafter.

Anno DOMINI 96.

2 And immediately I was in the Spirit: and, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat on the throne.

3 And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone: and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.

4 And round about the throne were four and twenty seats: and upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment; and they had on their heads crowns of gold.

5 And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices: and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God.

---

20. Behold, I stand &c.] This verse may thus be paraphrased: Thou seest that I am willing to make the first advances towards a sinner, to bring him to repentance. If therefore thou or any man hearken unto Me, and follow My counsel, I will be ready to receive his worship and obedience, and I will return his kindness by receiving him to share of My glory, and enjoy it in the same manner as I do. Daubuz.

—— and will sup] The kingdom of Christ is described as a feast to all people, Is. xxv. 6; Matt. viii. 11. He is the bread of life, and none, who come to Him, shall hunger or thirst, John vi. 35; Rev. vii. 16. It may be said, If Christ prepares the supper, why is He represented as standing at the door, and knocking for entrance? But this is agreeable to the office He bears in the allegory or parable, Luke xii. 36—38. He is the bridegroom, and His servants sit in His house to a late hour, waiting His arrival; when returning from the wedding, according to Eastern custom, "He cometh and knocketh," and they open to Him, and He maketh them to sit down to meat. See also John xiv. 23, which likewise tends to illustrate this passage. Dean Woodhouse.

21. — to sit with me in my throne,] This is the last reward promised to those who overcome; and it is the richest and most glorious. Yet it is in perfect harmony with similar promises in Scripture. Our Lord's seat is upon the throne of God, at the right hand of the Father, Hebr. viii. 1; Matt. xxvi. 64; and He hath prepared a place for His true followers, "that where He is, there they may be also," John xiv. 3. They are heirs of God, joint-heirs with Christ, and with Him they are to reign, Hebr. i.; Rom. viii. 17, &c. These splendid rewards are to be obtained only through Christ, by those who follow Him faithfully in His career of spiritual warfare, and of victory, "as He hath also overcome." Dean Woodhouse.

22. He that hath an ear, &c.] It hath appeared what is the present state and condition of these once glorious and flourishing churches: and there cannot be a stronger proof of the truth of prophecy, nor a more effectual warning to other Christians. The present appearance of these churches, as Wheler the eastern traveller says, should make us, who yet enjoy the Divine mercies, to tremble; and, seeing the axe has thus been laid to the root of the tree, should make us repent and turn to God, lest we likewise perish. We may truly say, that "all these things happened to them for ensamples, and they are written for our admonition," 1 Cor. x. 11, 12. Bp. Newton.

Chap. IV. After the first terrestrial vision, others, still more amazing, were vouchsafed to the enraptured Apostle by successive openings in heaven, affording new and more extended prospects of futurity: 1st, A door was opened in heaven, which gave him a view of the spiritual church and worship, Rev. iv. 1. 2dly, The spiritual sanctuary was opened, Rev. xi. 19. 3dly, Again, Rev. xv. 5. And 4thly, Heaven itself was fully opened, chap. xix. 11. Hence, the remainder of the book naturally resolves itself into four celestial visions. The first and grand vision begins at chap. iv, and ends at chap. xi. 18; the second begins at chap. xi. 19, and ends at chap. xiv. 20; the third begins at chap. xv, and ends at chap. xix. 10; and the fourth begins at chap. xix. 11, and ends at chap. xxii. 5. Dr. Hales.

Ver. 1. — a door was opened in heaven:] The same kind of opening in the heavens is described by other Prophets, who were favoured with such visions. See Ezek. i. 1; x. 1. Dean Woodhouse.

2. — a throne] This representation has a close resemblance to what it pleases the Holy Spirit to display, at other times, of the Majesty of Jehovah, Is. vi.; Ezek. i. 26. His ineffable Majesty can only be represented by sensible and earthly images. Dean Woodhouse.

3. And he that sat was to look upon &c.] The Person who appeared to sit on the throne made a very majestick and glorious appearance, with a lustre, that may be expressed to common conceptions by the precious stones which the greatest princes of this world were wont to use as their ornaments, when they appeared with their highest grandeur and magnificence. Lowman.

—— jasper] It has been much doubted what precious stone is here intended by the "jasper." Many suppose the diamond to be meant; principally because it is stated at chap. xxi. 11, to be "clear as crystal." Schleusner.

—— sardine stone:] This precious stone is of a red flame colour, and derives its name from the island of Sardinia, where it is found. Schleusner.

—— a rainbow round about the throne,] The rainbow being a token of His mercy and faithfulness to Christians, as it was originally to all mankind after the flood, Gen. ix. 9—17. Pyle.

4. — I saw four and twenty elders] These, answering to the twenty-four heads of the courses of the Jewish priests, were to signify the ministers and pastors of the New Testament. They appeared clad in white to denote the sacredness of their function, and the purity of life to which they were so strictly obliged. And their heads had "crowns of gold," to shew their superiority over the Jewish priests; because Christ has made them a royal priesthood. See 1 Pet. ii. 9. "Kings and priests unto God." Pyle.

5. — lightnings and thunderings] With such terrifick pomp the majesty of God appeared at mount Sinai; and thus it is frequently represented in the book of Psalms. Dean Woodhouse.

Anno DOMINI 96.

6 And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four beasts full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying eagle.

8 And the four beasts had each of them six wings about him; and they were full of eyes within: and † they rest not day and night, saying, [a] Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

† Gr. they have no rest.
[a] Is. 6. 3.

9 And when those beasts give glory and honour and thanks to him that sat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever,

10 The four and twenty elders fall down before him that sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

Anno DOMINI 96.

11 [b] Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

[b] Chap. 5. 12.

CHAP. V.

1 The book sealed with seven seals: 9 which only the Lamb that was slain is worthy to open. 12 Therefore the elders praise him, 9 and confess that he redeemed them with his blood.

AND I saw in the right hand of him that sat on the throne a book written within and on the backside, sealed with seven seals.

2 And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof?

3 And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

—— seven lamps of fire] Answering to the seven lights of the candlestick in the tabernacle. Pyle.

—— which are the seven Spirits] See note at chap. i. 4. Under this symbol was represented the Holy Spirit of God. Dean Woodhouse.

6. — was a sea of glass] Answering to the great molten sea, or laver, in Solomon's temple. Pyle.

—— in the midst of the throne, and round about &c.] The description seems to represent, that they were placed in a circle round the throne, their bodies being concealed within, and their heads appearing in the circle. Jos. Mede.

—— were four beasts &c.] Rather, 'were four living creatures.' A beast is inferiour in intelligence to man, but these living creatures are far superiour. By comparing the description of these living creatures, here given, with the description given at Is. vi.; Ezek. i. 10; it sufficiently appears, that the same are intended in all the passages; and, as Ezekiel has expressly declared that he knew them to be cherubim, it is evident that cherubim are here designated; meaning angelick beings of the highest order, who are nearest to the throne of God, and who cannot be distinctly conceived by human apprehensions. Lowman, Dean Woodhouse.

—— full of eyes] Denoting their knowledge, wisdom, prudence, and foresight. Vitringa. See note at Ezek. i. 18.

8. — and they rest not day and night,] That is, they praise God without ceasing, or at all stated and fit times. Heavenly things are spoken of after a human manner. Abp. Newcome.

—— saying, Holy, holy, &c.] The cherubim, whose office it was incessantly to sing praise, begin the adoration; then "the four and twenty elders" begin their hymn, ver. 10, 11. It is in unison with that of the cherubim, and is a creation hymn, simple and sublime. We have here presented before us a splendid exhibition of the Deity, attended by His ministering spirits. But the scene is not here complete. In chap. v. the Lamb, the Son of God, in His gracious character of a Redeemer, takes His station "in the midst of the throne;" and an innumerable company of angels are seen to encompass the surrounding body of the elders, and the living creatures, and are added to the chorus: which receives a further increase, when (chap. xiv. 1; xv. 2) the innumerable company of the redeemed on earth are presented to their Redeemer, and sing the new song before the throne. The whole representation is wonderfully sublime, and must tend to exalt religious feeling. One of the finest parts of our church service, the beginning of the Te Deum, seems to have been formed principally upon it. Dean Woodhouse.

The six wings of these living creatures denote their zeal and readiness to propagate the Gospel, while the number of their eyes denote their wisdom and foresight. And they are indefatigable in giving honour to the Blessed Trinity of Persons in the unity of the one omnipotent and eternal Godhead. These angels and blessed spirits, who are here represented as paying their constant attendance about the throne of the Majesty on high, and acknowledging with most awful and profound reverence the three Holies, which are one eternal and Almighty Lord God, furnish a fit example for the church militant here to follow; because, in so doing, they not only copy after, but, as it were, anticipate the constant employment of the church triumphant in heaven. Dean Stanhope.

10. — cast their crowns] In token of homage. Dr. Hales. They cast their crowns, the emblems of their borrowed and derived glories, before the throne, the seat of infinite and eternal Majesty. Bp. Pearson.

Chap. V. ver. 1. — a book &c.] Respecting the books of the ancients, which were skins of parchment rolled up, see notes at Is. viii. 1.

—— written within and &c.] This circumstance shews the abundance of the matter; it was the same in the roll of the book spread before Ezekiel, Ezek. ii. 10. See the note there. Bp. Newton.

—— sealed with seven seals.] It was sealed, to shew that the decrees of God are inscrutable; and sealed "with seven seals," with reference to so many signal periods of prophecy. We are to conceive of this book, as consisting of seven rolls, so that the opening of one seal only laid open the contents of one roll. Bp. Newton.

The prophecies delivered to Daniel concerning Christ's kingdom, which were then dark, and only to be unfolded by additional prophecy, (such as is contained in this revelation,) are said to be "sealed," Dan. viii. 26, 27; ix. 24; xii. 4, 9; or, which has the same meaning, to be closed, shut up, for many days. And in chap. x. 4 of this book, the Prophet is commanded not to write certain predictions which were uttered, but to seal them up; which evidently means that they were not to be disclosed at that time. Dean Woodhouse.

2. — a strong angel] An angel of chief power. Lowman.

—— to open the book, &c.] To know and reveal these great futurities of the church of God. Pyle.

3. And no man in heaven, &c.] Rather, 'No one in heaven, &c.' The word "man" is not in the original. Dean Woodhouse. No 'creature' in the world. Dr. Hammond. No being throughout the whole creation, either of angels or saints in heaven, or of men alive, or of any departed souls. Lowman.

Anno DOMINI 96.

4 And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.

5 And one of the elders saith unto me, Weep not: behold, [a] the Lion of the tribe of Juda, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.

[a] Gen. 49. 9.

6 And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

7 And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

8 And when he had taken the book, the four beasts and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of ‖ odours, which are the prayers of saints.

‖ Or, incense.

9 And they sang a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;

Anno DOMINI 96.

10 [b] And hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth.

[b] 1 Pet. 2. 9.

11 And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne and the beasts and the elders: and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands;

12 Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

13 And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and ho-

---

4. — I wept much,] Knowing what instruction and consolation the church would receive from the contents of the book. Abp. Newcome.

5. — the Lion of the tribe of Juda,] The victorious prince of the house of David in the warlike tribe of Judah, compared to a lion, Gen. xlix. 8—10; whom Isaiah calls "the stem of Jesse," Is. xi. 1, 10. Pyle. Under the symbol of a lion, it pleased the Holy Spirit, by the mouth of the dying Patriarch, Gen. xlix. 9, to foretell the victorious superiority of the tribe of Judah, which was seen to take place partially and typically in the person of David and his successors, but was to receive a more sublime and final completion in Christ. For David is declared to be a type of Christ; and on this account, as well as on account of His preexistence and heavenly origin, Christ became "the root," as He styles Himself, Rev. xxii. 16, at the same time that He was the offspring of David; that root, of which all men must be branches, otherwise they cannot bear fruit, John xv. 1, 8. Isaiah calls Him the root of Jesse; intimating that David the son of Jesse was only a branch, of which the original stem was in Christ. Dean Woodhouse.

6. — stood a Lamb] Our Lord Jesus Christ, for whom alone so supreme a station could be designed, is frequently represented under this symbol of innocence, led to suffer at the altar for the sins of mankind, as prefigured in the daily service of the temple. He appears in the character of a suffering victim; the character which endears Him, above all others, to sinful and mortal man, and which, thoroughly considered, is found perfectly to agree with that more splendid description of Him, in which He is styled "the Lion of the tribe of Judah." For it was in this low and suffering form that He fought and obtained the victory. The prophecies of the Old Testament describing the Messiah, sometimes as a despised sufferer, sometimes as an irresistible and triumphant conqueror, appeared dark and irreconcileable, until the event shewed the truth and consistency of both predictions; when "the Lord of glory" effected the salvation of the world, under the character of an innocent unresisting victim. Dean Woodhouse.

—— having seven horns and seven eyes,] "Seven" is a number expressive of universality, fulness, and perfection. See note at chap. i. 4. The "horns" is a symbol of power among eastern nations. See notes at 1 Sam. ii. 1. Thus by the "seven horns" attributed to the "Lamb," is signified that universal and irresistible power which our Lord obtained, when, suffering death under this very form of an innocent victim, He thereby vanquished the formidable enemy of man. See Matt. xxviii. 18. As the seven horns of the Lamb signify our Lord's omnipotence, so do the seven eyes His omnipresence. See Zech. iii. 9; iv. 10. Dean Woodhouse.

8. — golden vials full of odours,] By "vials" seems to be meant a sort of patera, bason, or other open vessel, on which were deposited, before the altar, the offerings of meal or incense. "Full of odours," or full of incense. Dean Woodhouse.

At the dedication of the tabernacle, the twelve elders or princes of Israel offered, each of them, a golden spoon full of incense, Numb. vii. 10, 14. Daubuz.

—— which are the prayers of saints.] Prayer is fitly represented under the symbol of incense, according to the comparison of the Psalmist, Ps. cxli. 2, and according to the custom of holy worship with the Jews, who accompanied the offering of incense with their prayers. See Luke i. 10. Dean Woodhouse.

It is hereby denoted that the prayers of God's true worshippers are acceptable spiritual sacrifices. Abp. Newcome.

9. — a new song,] A new song, as the sufferings and subsequent exaltation of Christ furnished a subject of song unknown to former ages.

—— Thou art worthy &c.] Lord and Saviour of God's people, who besides Thee can be esteemed worthy to enter into the secrets of the Almighty Father, and disclose His future counsels? since to Thy meritorious blood alone it is owing, that we are made members of that kingdom, in which all sincere Christians, Jews and Gentiles, will one day triumph in truth, peace, and righteousness, and partake of honours far exceeding those of any priests or princes on earth. Pyle.

10. — kings and priests:] See note at chap. i. 6.

11. — ten thousand times &c.] "An innumerable company of angels," Heb. xii. 22; in chap. i. 6. all the angels of God are commanded to worship Him. Dean Woodhouse.

12. — Worthy is the Lamb &c.] All power and wisdom, &c. are most worthily attributed to Christ: all this dignity to Himself, and these advantages to believers are a just reward of the sufferings by which He has dearly bought them. Dr. Hammond.

13. — every creature which is &c.] This is a Hebrew mode of expressing the whole creation, the same with that at Phil. ii. 9—11; the world, taken from its beginning to its end, including the living and the dead, that are to rise again. Pyle.

Thus was represented the pure and primitive worship of the Christian church to be performed towards God and Jesus Christ, through all its periods of time on earth. And it is called "new," ver. 9, as belonging peculiarly to Christians, for they only worship God through Christ, the only Mediator. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 96.

nour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever.

14 And the four beasts said, Amen. And the four and twenty elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever.

CHAP. VI.

1 The opening of the seals in order, and what followed thereupon, containing a prophecy to the end of the world.

AND I saw when the Lamb opened one of the seals, and I heard, as it were the noise of thunder, one of the four beasts saying, Come and see.

2 And I saw, and behold a white horse: and he that sat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer.

3 And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second beast say, Come and see.

Anno DOMINI 96.

4 And there went out another horse that was red: and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword.

5 And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast say, Come and see. And I beheld, and lo a black horse; and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, ‖ A measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny; and see thou hurt not the oil and the wine.

‖ The word chœnix signifieth a measure containing one wine quart, and the twelfth part of a quart.

7 And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast say, Come and see.

8 And I looked, and behold a pale horse:

Chap. VI. St. John had seen, in the former part of his vision, a representation of the majesty, glory, power, and supreme authority of God; and the sealed book, in which was contained the order of Divine Providence towards the church and the world, delivered to Christ, the Lamb of God, to open and reveal it, for the encouragement of the church to patience and faithfulness, together with the adoration of the church on this solemn occasion. Now this revelation of Christ begins with a prophetick representation of the future state of the church and world, so far as the wisdom and goodness of God thought fit to make it known, for the consolation of His faithful people. This chapter contains the first period of prophecy, and a description of the state of the church under the heathen Roman empire, from the time of the date of the prophecy. Each of the prophetical descriptions is in part some figurative or hieroglyphical picture, or some representation in the style and figurative expressions of ancient prophecy, describing some particular dispensation of Providence, proper and peculiar to the several successive states of the church and empire, during the space of time contained in this period. Lowman.

Ver. 2. — behold a white horse: and he that sat on him &c.] The opening of the first seal exhibits a white horse, and his rider, an archer, with a crown; which are emblematical of Christ, His victory, triumph, and royalty. The heathen idols and their worshippers are represented as subdued by the shafts of the Gospel, and bowing in submission their necks to the mighty Conqueror. "He went forth conquering and to conquer;" He had not yet completed His conquest, but had laid the foundation of it, to be gradually brought to a full completion. Jos. Mede, Dr. Hales.

Jesus Christ had received a kingdom from the Father, which was to rule all nations; concerning which it had been foretold, that, notwithstanding all opposition, it should be preserved and prevail, so that, finally, all enemies to it should be subdued, and the kingdoms of the world should become the kingdoms of God, and of His Christ. The expressions here used receive further light from the style of the Psalmist, at Ps. xlv. 3, representing Christ in the character of a Conqueror. Lowman.

—— and a crown was given unto him:] This is the crown of life, described at chap. ii. 10. Our Lord's kingdom was not of this world. The crown is the reward of the faithful martyrs who fought and conquered in the cause of Christ. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life," chap. ii. 10. Dean Woodhouse.

4. — another horse that was red: &c.] This second seal or period is noted for war and slaughter. It commenced with the Roman emperour Trajan, and continued during his reign, and that of his successors, till the emperour Commodus, a space of about ninety-five years. In the reigns of Trajan and Adrian particularly, there were horrid wars and slaughters, especially between the rebellious Jews and Romans, in Egypt and Cyprus, and other parts of the world, as appears from the historians of those times. In the reign of Adrian was their great rebellion under their false messiah, Barchocab, and their final dispersion, after near 600,000 men had been slain by the sword, with a great loss and slaughter too of the Romans. Here was another illustrious triumph of Christ over His enemies; and the Jews and Romans, both the persecutors of the Christians, were remarkably made the dreadful executioners of Divine vengeance on one another. The great sword and the red horse are expressive emblems of this slaughtering and bloody period. Jos. Mede, Bp. Newton.

5. — a black horse; — had a pair of balances &c.] This third seal or period is characterized by the strict execution of justice and judgment, and by the procuring of stores of corn, wine, and oil. It commenced with Septimius Severus, and continued during the reign of his family, about forty-two years. Septimius was an enactor of just and equal laws, and was very severe and implacable towards offenders. His successor, Alexander Severus, also bore the same character of being a most severe judge. These two emperors were likewise no less celebrated for the procuring of corn, and oil, and other provisions, and supplying the Roman people with them, after they had experienced the want of them The colour of "the black horse" befits the severity of their nature, and the balances are a well known emblem of justice, as well as an indication of scarcity. Jos. Mede, Bp. Newton.

6. — A measure of wheat for a penny,] The measure here mentioned, called a chœnix, is thought by Grotius and some others to have been a man's daily allowance of food; "a penny," or the Roman denarius, was the price of daily wages, as appears from Matt. xx. 2. These regulations about the necessaries of life imply some want and scarcity of them. The intent of the prophecy is, that corn should be provided for the people, but that it should be distributed in exact measure and proportion. Bp. Newton.

The articles of food here mentioned, wheat, barley, oil, and wine, formed with the Eastern nations of antiquity the main support of life. Dean Woodhouse.

8. — and behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death,] The fourth seal or period is distinguished by a concurrence of evils, war, famine, pestilence, and wild beasts. These are the same "four sore judgments" with which Ezekiel threatened Jerusalem, Ezek. xiv. 21. These four were to destroy "the fourth part" of the earth; the image of death riding on a pale horse, and hell or the grave following with him, ready to swallow up the dead bodies, is highly poetical. This period commences and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. And power was given ‖ unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

Anno DOMINI 96.

‖ Or, to him.

9 And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held:

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And white robes were given unto every one of them; and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season, until their fellowservants also and their brethren, that should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled.

12 And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and, lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood;

Anno DOMINI 96.

13 And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her ‖ untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind.

‖ Or, green figs.

14 [a] And the heaven departed as a scrowl when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places.

[a] Is. 34. 4.

15 And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains;

16 [b] And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb:

[b] Luke 23. 30.

---

with the emperour Maximin, and continues to the time of Diocletian, about fifty years. The history of Maximin and his several successors is full of wars and murders, invasions of foreign armies, rebellions of subjects, and deaths of princes. Here was sufficient employment for "the sword;" and such wars and devastations must necessarily produce a famine; and "the famine" is another distinguishing calamity of this period. An usual consequence of famine is "the pestilence," which is the third distinguishing calamity of this period. This pestilence, it is recorded by an historian of the time, arising from Ethiopia, while Gallus and Volusian were emperours, pervaded all the Roman provinces, and, for fifteen years, incredibly exhausted them. Another historian says, speaking of the devastations of the Scythians, in the reign of Gallus above mentioned, that the pestilence, not less pernicious than the war, destroyed whatever was left of human kind, and made such havock as had never been done in former times. When countries are depopulated by these causes, "the wild beasts" multiply and come into towns to destroy men; which is the fourth distinguishing calamity of this period. This would appear a probable consequence of the former calamities, if history had recorded nothing of it; but it happens that one special instance is recorded of 500 wolves entering a city which was deserted by its inhabitants. The colour of the pale horse is very suitable to the mortality of this period. Jos. Mede, Bp. Newton.

—— over the fourth part of the earth,] Meaning over the greater part of the Roman empire, which was thought by some to be about a fourth part of the world then known. Jos. Mede.

9. — I saw under the altar the souls &c.] The fifth seal or period is remarkable for a dreadful persecution of the Christians, who are represented lying "under the altar," (for the scene is still in the tabernacle of the temple,) as sacrifices newly slain and offered to God. They cry aloud (ver. 10) for the Lord to "judge and avenge" their cause; that is, the cruelties exercised upon them were of so barbarous and atrocious a nature, as to deserve and provoke the vengeance of the Lord. The persecution alluded to is the last general persecution which was begun by Diocletian, and continued by others, and lasted longer and extended farther, and was sharper and more bloody than any which preceded. Bp. Newton.

No persecution of the Christians was so great as that which had its name from the emperour Diocletian, A. D. 284. It began with the slaughter of 17,000 within thirty days; and in Egypt alone, a very small part of the Roman empire, 144,000 were put to death. Mede, Daubuz.

10. And they cried with a loud voice, — How long, &c.] This is a strong mode of expressing the extreme cruelty of the persecutors, which was now ripe for judgment, and loudly called for the vengeance of Heaven. Jos. Mede.

11. And white robes were given &c.] That is, they were admitted into the ranks of the blessed. The metaphor is taken from the custom of the Jews in admitting the priests to their office. Those who, from their genealogy and freedom from personal defects, were judged fit for the office, were clothed with white robes, and received into the court of the priests, which was the form of their admission. Jos. Mede.

—— and it was said unto them, that they should rest &c.] That they should wait a little longer till the glorious number of martyrs should be fulfilled at the conclusion of the persecution, and that then Divine judgments should fall upon their adversaries. Pyle.

12. — had opened the sixth seal,] The sixth seal or period produces mighty changes and revolutions, which, according to the prophetick style, are expressed by great commotions in the earth and in the heavens. The very same images and expressions are employed by other Prophets with relation to changes of religion and government; and are therefore with great fitness and propriety applied to one of the greatest and most memorable revolutions, which ever were in the world, the subversion of the heathen religion, and establishment of the Christian, which was begun by Constantine the Great, and was completed by his successors. Bp. Newton.

—— a great earthquake;] A similar phrase is used by the prophet Haggai, chap. ii. 6, 21. And where was ever a greater concussion, than when Christianity was advanced to the throne of Paganism, and idolatry gave place to the true religion? Bp. Newton.

14. — mountain — island] These are places of the greatest security in times of danger and hostile invasion, and are therefore represented as affording no safety during this dreadful visitation. Dean Woodhouse.

15. And the kings of the earth, &c.] Here follows an enumeration of particulars, shewing that from the highest to the lowest, the powers and subjects of Pagan idolatry own themselves overcome by the Christian religion: thus here is expressed the greatness of the victories which were obtained during the destruction of the idolatrous worship, and the miserable fall of all who endeavoured to uphold it, as Galerius, Maximinus, and others, together with the armies which joined them. Daubuz.

Anno DOMINI 96.

17 For the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?

CHAP. VII.

3 An angel sealeth the servants of God in their foreheads. 4 The number of them that were sealed: of the tribes of Israel a certain number. 9 Of all other nations an innumerable multitude, which stand before the throne, clad in white robes, and palms in their hands. 14 Their robes were washed in the blood of the Lamb.

AND after these things I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the wind should not blow on the earth, nor on the sea, nor on any tree.

2 And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea,

3 Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Anno DOMINI 96.

4 And I heard the number of them which were sealed: and there were sealed an hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel.

5 Of the tribe of Juda were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed twelve thousand.

6 Of the tribe of Aser were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Nepthalim were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Manasses were sealed twelve thousand.

7 Of the tribe of Simeon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Levi were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Issachar were sealed twelve thousand.

---

17. — and who shall be able to stand?] That is, against God and His Christ. Daubuz.

Chap. VII. The former chapter concluded the first period of the sufferings of the church under the persecution of the heathen Roman empire. The second period of prophecy begins with the opening of the seventh seal, chap. viii, and is contained in the events which attend the sounding of the trumpets, chap. viii. and ix. In this chapter we have an account of a little pause or interval, to describe the state of things, for a short time, between the two periods. "After these things," that is, after the prophetick vision, which represented the first period, St. John saw in other visions what is related in this chapter; being apparently a representation of a state of peace and quiet throughout the earth, especially in the Roman empire, and of the great number of persons in every nation, who came in to the profession of Christianity; of the encouraging protection that was given to the Christian church; of thankful acknowledgements for the goodness and power of God and Christ, by the whole church, in such eminent instances of favour and protection; and, finally, of the happy state of all the faithful confessors and martyrs, who, after a short period of tribulation, for the faith of Christ and constancy in His religion, have attained to a state of everlasting rest, in happiness and glory. Lowman.

Ver. 1. — the four corners of the earth,] Meaning the whole earth, Is. xi. 12; Ezek. vii. 2. Dean Woodhouse.

—— holding the four winds &c.] This is a figurative expression, to shew, that God designed in His providence to put a stop to the tumults and commotions, which had before so much disturbed the world, and to give to the church and to the world a time of peace and rest for a season. Lowman. We may apply this prediction to that universal peace which happened during the reign of Constantine, after he had driven out, or subjected, all the supporters of idolatry, when the empire was not only freed from violent wars in its own bosom, but also from the invasion of publick enemies from without. Daubuz.

2. — from the east,] Bringing light, or protection and deliverance, to the church. Daubuz. Omens from the east were esteemed prosperous. Abp. Newcome.

—— having the seal of the living God:] As seals were in use with ancient nations to secure possessions, each person having his peculiar mark, by which he ascertained the property to be his own; hence "the seal of God" affords His mark by which He "knoweth them that are His." Dean Woodhouse.

—— to hurt the earth and the sea,] It has much been doubted what particular judgments are meant by these figurative terms; but all agree that some dismal calamity is intended, from which these who were sealed were to escape; and that the purpose of sealing them was to mark them as exempt from that ruin, in which the greater number, not so marked, would be inevitably swallowed up. Dean Stanhope.

3. — till we have sealed the servants &c.] This is an expression in allusion to the ancient custom of marking servants in their foreheads, to distinguish what they were, and to whom they belonged. Now, among Christians, baptism, being the seal of the covenant between God and man, is therefore by ancient writers often called the seal, the sign, the mark and character of the Lord; and it was the practice in early times, as it is at present, to make the sign of the cross upon the foreheads of the persons baptized. The same sign of the cross was also made at confirmation: and, upon many other occasions, the Christians signed themselves with the sign of the cross in their foreheads, as a token that they were not ashamed of a crucified Master; that, on the contrary, they gloried in the cross of Christ, and triumphed in the symbol and representation of it. "The sealing," therefore, "of the servants of God in their foreheads," at this juncture, can imply no less than that many converts should be baptized, and that those, who before, in times of persecution, could only worship God in private, should now make a free, open, and publick profession of their religion. That such an accession was made to the church, every one knows who knows the history of those times. Bp. Newton.

4. — and there were sealed an hundred &c.] As the church of Christ was first formed out of the Jewish, so here, ver. 4—8, the spiritual Israel is first mentioned; and the number of the thousands of Israel, 144,000, is that of the twelve Patriarchs, multiplied by the twelve Apostles, which we shall find to be a sacred number throughout the Revelation. Bp. Newton.

As the heads of the twelve tribes of the Jewish nation represented the whole body of that people, so these good and faithful Christians are here styled the true Israel of God, who are built upon the foundation of the twelve Apostles of Christ, steadily adhering to the doctrine and worship taught by them. The number here mentioned, 144,000, is not intended to signify a precise and exact number; but, generally, to shew the number of sincere and virtuous Christians to be considerable, though small in comparison with the greater numbers of apostate and idolatrous Christians in the future times of the church. Pyle.

5—7, &c. Of the tribe of Juda &c.] It is observable, that the twelve tribes are not here enumerated in the same method and order, in which they are mentioned in other places of Scripture. Judah has the first rank and precedence, because from him descended the Messiah. Dan is entirely omitted, and Ephraim is not mentioned, because these were the principal promoters of idolatry; and therefore Levi is substituted in the room of the one, and Joseph is mentioned instead of the other. The children too of the bondwoman and of the freewoman are confounded to-

Anno DOMINI 96.

8 Of the tribe of Zabulon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand.

9 After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands;

10 And cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb.

11 And all the angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders and the four beasts, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worshipped God,

12 Saying, Amen: Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.

13 And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

15 Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall [a] dwell among them.

16 [b] They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat.

17 For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: [c] and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

[a] Chap. 21. 3.
[b] Is. 49. 10.
[c] Is. 25. 8. chap. 21. 4.

CHAP. VIII.

1 At the opening of the seventh seal, 2 seven angels had seven trumpets given them. 6 Four of them sound their trumpets, and great plagues follow. 3 Another angel putteth incense to the prayers of the saints on the golden altar.

AND when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour.

2 And I saw the seven angels which stood before God; and to them were given seven trumpets.

3 And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given unto him much incense, that he should ‖ offer it with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne.

‖ Or, add it to the prayers.

---

gether, there being, Gal. iii. 28, "in Christ Jesus neither bond nor free." Bp. Newton.

9. — lo, a great multitude, which no man could number,] The 144,000 of the sealed, the firstfruits to Christ, having led the way, the Gentiles afterwards converted follow, are incorporated with them, and are presented before the throne, clothed in white robes, washed pure from their sins, bearing palmbranches, the signals of joy and festivity and victory. They ascribe their salvation to God and their Redeemer. And the heavenly angels close around them; and, rejoicing at their redemption, unite in a chorus of praise. Dean Woodhouse.

—— clothed with white robes,] In token of their purity. Dr. S. Clark.

13. — What are these which are arrayed &c.] This question is not asked for want of knowledge, but to excite attention, that there may be occasion to shew who they are, and what they are to be. Daubuz.

14. — These are they which came out &c.] These persons were very lately in a state of great afflictions, and suffering for the sake of their faith and constancy; but, having kept the faith, they have received the blessings which Christ obtained by His blood, for His church and faithful people; they are now cleansed from all impurity, adorned with all perfection, and advanced to this state of glory and happiness, in which they now appear. Lowman.

15. Therefore are they before the throne &c.] Here follows a very simple and interesting figurative description of the future happiness of this redeemed multitude. The figures which are here employed are such as frequently occur in the writings of the Old and New Testaments. Dean Woodhouse.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. — the seventh seal,] The seventh seal or period is of much longer duration, and comprehends many more events, than any of the former seals. It comprehends indeed seven periods, distinguished by the sounding of seven trumpets. At the opening of this seal "there was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour." This silence of half an hour is a sign that the peace of the church would continue but for a short season. It is an interval and pause, as it were, between the foregoing and succeeding visions. It is a mark of solemnity to procure attention, and to prepare the mind for great and signal events. Perhaps there is also an allusion to a ceremony among the Jews. As Philo informs us, the incense used to be offered before the morning, and after the evening sacrifice: and, while the sacrifices were made, 2 Chron. xxix. 25—28, the voices and instruments and trumpets sounded: while the priest went into the temple to burn incense, Luke i. 10, all were silent, and the people prayed without to themselves. Now this was the morning of the church, and therefore the silence precedes the sounding of the trumpet. Bp. Newton.

2. — seven trumpets.] The seals foretold the state of the Roman empire till it became Christian, and of the church, till its civil establishment; the trumpets foretell the state of Rome and of the church, afterward. They sound the alarm of war, and excite the nations against Rome: they also sound the alarm of religious corruptions. Abp. Newcome.

3. And another angel came and stood at the altar,] This altar is afterwards expressly called "the golden altar which was before the throne." Upon this altar, standing before the mercy-seat, (the local seat of the Divine glory in the temple,) was to be offered no strange incense, Exod. xxx. 9, 38; or strange fire, Lev. x. 1; and by no strange priest, Numb. xvi.; but incense, offered thereon by the legal priests, was as an atonement for the people, Numb. xvi. 46, who accompanied this offering by their prayers. For it was the custom of devout people to offer up their prayers in the court of the temple, while the priest was burning incense within; see Luke i. 9, 10, 21. This angel may be supposed to represent the Christian priesthood in general, as exercised in subordination to the great High Priest. Dean Woodhouse.

Anno DOMINI 96.

4 And the smoke of the incense, which came with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God out of the angel's hand.

5 And the angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast it into the earth: and there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and an earthquake.

6 And the seven angels which had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound.

7 The first angel sounded, and there followed hail and fire mingled with blood, and they were cast upon the earth: and the third part of trees was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up.

8 And the second angel sounded, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea: and the third part of the sea became blood;

Anno DOMINI 96.

9 And the third part of the creatures which were in the sea, and had life, died; and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

10 And the third angel sounded, and there fell a great star from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters;

11 And the name of the star is called Wormwood: and the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

12 And the fourth angel sounded, and

---

4. — ascended up before God] A testimony of God's gracious acceptance of their worship, and of the continuance of His protection and blessing to His faithful worshippers. Lowman.

5. — voices, and thunderings,] These were the usual prophetick signs and preludes of great calamities and commotions upon earth. Bp. Newton.

7. — and there followed hail and fire] At the sounding of the first trumpet, ver. 7, the barbarous nations, like a storm of "hail and fire mingled with blood," invade the Roman territories, and destroy "the third part of the trees," that is, the trees of the third part of the earth, and "the green grass," that is, both old and young, high and low, rich and poor together. On the death of Theodosius the Great, A.D. 395, the Huns, Goths, and other barbarians, like hail for multitude, and breathing fire and slaughter, broke in upon the best provinces of the empire both in the east and in the west, with greater success than they had ever done before. But by this trumpet I conceive were principally intended the irruptions and depredations of the Goths, under the conduct of the famous Alaric, who began his incursions in the same year 395, first ravaged Greece, then wasted Italy, besieged Rome, took and plundered the city, and set fire to it in several places. The historians of the time give such terrible descriptions of the destruction caused by these incursions, that they might well indeed be compared to "hail and fire mingled with blood." Bp. Newton.

—— hail and fire] A tempest of hail and thunder, that throws down all before it, is a fit metaphor to express the calamities of war, from civil disturbances or foreign invasion, which often, like a hurricane, lays all things waste, as far as it can reach. See Is. xxviii. 2; xxix. 6; Ezek. xiii. 13. The storm is here represented as destroying not only "the green grass," which is more easily blasted, but also a great part of the trees, which are supposed more likely to withstand the violence of it. Lowman.

8. — and as it were a great mountain] At the sounding of the second trumpet, "as it were a great mountain burning with fire;" that is, a great warlike nation or hero, "cast into the sea, turneth the third part into blood;" &c. that is, falling on the Roman empire, maketh a sea of blood with horrible destruction of the cities and inhabitants; for "waters," as the angel afterwards explains to St. John, chap. xvii. 15, "are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues;" and "the third part" means, throughout, the Roman empire, which was about a third part of the then known world. The next ravagers after Alaric and his Goths were Attila and his Huns, who, for the space of fourteen years, shook the east and the west with the most cruel fears, and deformed the provinces of each empire with all kind of plundering, slaughter, and burning. Attila, having first overcome the eastern emperour, turned his arms towards the west, fell upon Italy, and filled all places between the Alps and the Apennines with terrour and devastation. He was preparing to march upon Rome, but was diverted from his purpose by a solemn embassy from the emperour, and the promise of an annual tribute. Such a man might properly be compared to "a great mountain burning with fire," who really was, as he called himself, the scourge of God, and the terrour of men; and boasted that he was sent into the world by God for this purpose, that, as the executioner of His just wrath, he might fill the earth with all kind of evils. Bp. Newton.

—— was cast into the sea:] Great disorders and commotions, especially when kingdoms are moved by hostile invasions, are expressed, in the prophetick style, by carrying, or casting, mountains into the midst of the sea, Ps. xlvi. 2. Lowman.

10. And the third angel sounded,] At the sounding of the third trumpet, a great prince appears like 'a star shooting from heaven to earth,' a similitude not unusual in poetical diction. His coming therefore is sudden and unexpected, and his stay but short. "The name of the star is called Wormwood," and he infects the third part of the rivers and fountains with the bitterness of wormwood; that is, he is a bitter enemy, and proves the author of grievous calamities to the Roman empire. It was within two years after Attila's retreat from Italy, that Genseric king of the Vandals embarked from Africa with 300,000 Vandals and Moors, and arrived upon the Roman coasts, the emperour Maximus and the people not expecting or thinking of such an enemy: he marched towards Rome, and the city fell an easy prey into his hands, the inhabitants flying to the woods and mountains; he abandoned it to plunder, carried off immense booty, and a vast number of captives, and left the state so weakened, that in a short time it was utterly subverted. Some critics understand "rivers" and "fountains" with relation to doctrines, and in this sense the application is very proper to Genseric, who was a most bigoted Arian, and during his whole reign most cruelly persecuted the orthodox Christians. Bp. Newton.

12. And the fourth angel sounded,] At the sounding of the fourth trumpet, "the third part of the sun, moon, and stars," that is, the great lights of the Roman empire, are eclipsed and darkened, and remain in darkness for some time. Genseric left the western empire in a weak and desperate state, in which it struggled about twenty years. At last, in A. D. 476, Odoacer, king of the Heruli, put an end to the very name of the western empire, and caused himself to be proclaimed king of Italy. His kingdom indeed was of short duration, being soon overthrown by Theodoric, who established the kingdom of the Ostrogoths in Italy. Thus the Roman "sun" was extinguished in the western empire; but the other lesser luminaries, "the moon" and the "stars," still subsisted; for Rome was still allowed to have her senate and consuls, and other subordinate magistrates, as before. These lights probably shone more faintly under barbarian kings, than under Roman emperours, but they were not totally supthe third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so as the third part of them was darkened, and the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night likewise.

Anno DOMINI 96.

13 And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe, to the inhabiters of the earth by reason of the other voices of the trumpet of the three angels, which are yet to sound!

CHAP. IX.

1 At the sounding of the fifth angel, a star falleth from heaven, to whom is given the key of the bottomless pit. 2 He openeth the pit, and there come forth locusts like scorpions. 12 The first woe past. 13 The sixth trumpet soundeth. 14 Four angels are let loose, that were bound.

AND the fifth angel sounded, and I saw a star fall from heaven unto the earth: and to him was given the key of the bottomless pit.

Anno DOMINI 96.

2 And he opened the bottomless pit; and there arose a smoke out of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened by reason of the smoke of the pit.

3 And there came out of the smoke locusts upon the earth: and unto them was given power, as the scorpions of the earth have power.

4 And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the grass of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any tree; but only those men which have not the seal of God in their foreheads.

5 And to them it was given that they should not kill them, but that they should be tormented five months: and their tor-pressed till Italy was made a province of the eastern empire; the whole form of government was then changed, the senate and all the former magistrates abolished, and Rome degraded to the level of other places: and from being the queen and empress of the world, was reduced to a poor dukedom, and made tributary to Ravenna, which she used to govern. Bp. Newton.

---

—— and the third part of the sun was smitten,] Darkening, smiting, or setting of the sun, moon, and stars, says Sir Isaac Newton, are put for the setting of a kingdom, or the desolation thereof: and when darkness is opposed to light, Mr. Daubuz observes, as light is a symbol of joy and safety, so darkness is a symbol of misery and adversity. See Jer. xiii. 16; Is. xiii. 10; Ezek. xxxii. 7, 8. Thus, as the subject, order, and scene of action here, is the downfall of the Roman empire, and of the power and authority of Rome, the imperial city, there is fitly represented an entire extinguishing of all its authority and power. Lowman.

13. — saying — Woe, woe, woe,] Notice is now proclaimed by an angel that the three other trumpets sound to still greater and more terrible plagues, and are therefore distinguished from the former by the name of the woes. The design of this messenger is to raise our attention to the following trumpets, which we shall find to be more strongly marked than the foregoing. The foregoing relate chiefly to the downfall of the western empire; the two following to that of the eastern. The former are described more concisely, and comprehend a less compass of time; the two latter are set forth with more particular circumstances, and are of longer duration, as well as of larger description. Bp. Newton.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — a star fall from heaven &c.] Stars, in the language of prophecy, signify angels; and the expression here, of a star falling from heaven, or an angel coming down from heaven with a key to open the bottomless pit, seems to denote the permission by Divine Providence of those evil and calamitous events, which are described as ensuing, which could not have happened except by His permission, and according to the wise and holy order of the Divine government. Lowman.

2. And he opened the bottomless pit;] This prison of Satan, and of his angels, is permitted to be opened for the just punishment of apostate churches, who would not repent of their evil works. Here is something more terrible than we have hitherto seen. Hell opens, and Satan appears, followed by an army of a stronger figure than St. John has any where else described. Lowman, Bossuet.

—— and there arose a smoke] That is, a false religion, the religion of the impostor Mahomet, was set up, which filled the world with darkness and errour. Bp. Newton.

3. And there came out of the smoke locusts] Here is an allusion to the habits of locusts, which, as Pliny and the eastern historians tell us, breed in pits and deep slimy holes in the latter part of the summer; and from the eggs or spawn there laid arise the vast swarms in the spring following. By this, in the same figurative language which is used by the Prophet Joel, (Joel i. 6; ii. 5—7,) are described the terrible forces of the Saracens and Arabians under Mahomet and his successors, their leaders; invading and ravaging not only the European kingdoms, but large tracts both of Asia and Africa: their false and impious religion was as smoke and darkness arising out of hell, and their armies fitly resembled locusts for multitude, and both of them together were as mischievous to the minds and liberties of men, as the poison of serpents is to the human body. Pyle.

4. — not hurt the grass &c.] This shews that they were not natural, but symbolical, locusts. Jos. Mede.

—— but only those men which have not the seal &c.] That is, those who are not the true servants of God, but are corrupt and idolatrous Christians. Now it appears from history, that in those countries of Asia, Africa, and Europe, where the Saracens extended their conquests, the Christians were generally guilty of idolatry in the worshipping of saints, if not of images; and it was the pretence of Mahomet and his followers to chastise them for it, and to reestablish the unity of the Godhead. The parts which remained most free from the general infection were Savoy, Piedmont, and the southern parts of France, which were afterwards the habitation and nurseries of the Waldenses and Albigenses; and it is very memorable that, when the Saracens approached those parts, they were defeated with great slaughters in several engagements. Bp. Newton.

5. And to them it was given that they should not kill &c.] As they were to hurt only the corrupt and idolatrous Christians, so these they were not to kill, but only to torment, and to bring on them such calamities as would make them weary of their life. Thus, though the Saracens greatly harassed and tormented the Greek and Latin churches, they did not utterly extirpate the one or the other. They besieged also Constantinople, and plundered Rome, but did not make themselves masters of the one city or the other. Bp. Newton.

—— but that they should be tormented five months:] Evidently alluding to the time, during which natural locusts commit their devastations, and after which they die. They are hatched, as Bochart observes, about the spring, and die at the latter end of summer, thus living about five months. Lowman.

It is again mentioned at ver. 10, that "their power was to hurt men five months." If these months be taken for natural months in the interpretation of the prophecy, then the meaning is, that the Saracens, after the manner of locusts, made their excursions during the five summer months, and retreated in the winter. And it appears from history that this was their usual practice: in particular it is related, that at the siege of Constantinople they ment was as the torment of a scorpion, when he striketh a man.

Anno DOMINI 96.

6 And in those days shall men seek death, and shall not find it; and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them.

7 And the shapes of the locusts were like unto horses prepared unto battle; and on their heads were as it were crowns like gold, and their faces were as the faces of men.

8 And they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth were as the teeth of lions.

9 And they had breastplates, as it were breastplates of iron; and the sound of their wings was as the sound of chariots of many horses running to battle.

10 And they had tails like unto scorpions, and there were stings in their tails: and their power was to hurt men five months.

Anno DOMINI 96.

11 And they had a king over them, which is the angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name ‖ Apollyon.

‖ That is to say, A destroyer.

12 One woe is past; and, behold, there come two woes more hereafter.

13 And the sixth angel sounded, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar which is before God,

14 Saying to the sixth angel which had the trumpet, Loose the four angels which are bound in the great river Euphrates.

---

always retreated at the approach of winter, and renewed their attacks during the summer months, for seven successive years. But if, as seems more probable, and as accords with the prophetick style, these months designate each a space of thirty prophetick days or years, then the whole period denoted is one hundred and fifty years. And accordingly we shall find, that, though the empire of the Saracens had a longer duration, yet within that period they made their principal conquests, and their power of "tormenting men" was chiefly exerted. It appears from their history, that their greatest conquests were made from the year 612, when Mahomet first began to propagate his imposture, to the year 762, when the caliph Almansor built Bagdad, to fix there the seat of his empire. Syria, Persia, India, and the greatest part of Asia, Egypt, and the greatest part of Africa, Spain, and some parts of Europe, were subdued within this period: but when the caliphs fixed their habitation at Bagdad, then their armies ceased from ravaging like locusts, and they assumed more the character of a settled nation. Bp. Newton.

—— as the torment of a scorpion,] The sting of a scorpion, "when he striketh a man," is severe, attended with inflammation and violent pain. Lowman.

6. — shall men seek death,] That is, so great shall be the calamities of those times, that men shall be tired of life. Jos. Mede.

7. And the shapes of the locusts were like unto horses] In the following verses, the nature and qualities of locusts are described, partly in allusion to the properties of natural locusts, and the description given of them by the Prophet Joel, (see Joel ii. 1, &c. and the notes there,) and partly in allusion to the habits and manners of the Arabians. Many authors have observed, that the head of a locust resembles that of a horse; whence the Italians call them cavalette, or little horses. And the Arabians have in all ages been famous for their horses and horsemanship; it being well known that their strength consists chiefly in their cavalry. Bp. Newton.

—— on their heads were as it were crowns like gold,] Alluding to the headdress of the Arabians, who constantly wore turbans or mitres. Bp. Newton. The "crowns of gold" may also signify the success and extent of their dominion; for there never was a nation which extended its power so widely, or in so short a space of time reduced beneath its yoke so many countries and kingdoms. Jos. Mede.

7, 8. — faces were as the faces of men. And — hair &c.] The Arabians wore their beards, or at least their mustachios, like men, while the hair of their heads was flowing and plaited like that of women. Bp. Newton.

8. — as the teeth of lions.] That is, strong to devour, Joel i. 6. Jos. Mede.

9. — breastplates, as — of iron;] Locusts have a hard shell or skin, which has often been called their armour. This figure is designed to express the defensive, as the former was the offensive, arms of the Saracens. Bp. Newton.

—— and the sound of their wings &c.] Hereby signifying the rapidity of their conquests. Pyle. Natural locusts fly with so great a noise of their wings, that they may be taken for birds. Bp. Newton.

10. And they had tails like unto scorpions,] They are thrice compared to "scorpions," ver. 3, 5, 10; and had "stings in their tails, &c." that is, wherever they carried their arms, there they distilled the venom of a false religion. Bp. Newton.

11. And they had a king over them,] Although the natural locusts have no king, (see the observation of Agur, Prov. xxx. 27,) yet these figurative locusts have one, which is the angel of the bottomless pit, that evil spirit, the prince of the power of darkness, who, from the constant evils he is designing and doing in the world, is called "the destroyer." Lowman.

—— Abaddon, — Apollyon. &c.] The one name in Hebrew, the other in Greek, means "the destroyer." Mr. Mede imagines that here is some allusion to the name of Obodas, the common title of the kings of that part of Arabia, from which Mahomet came, as Pharaoh was the common name of the kings of Egypt, and Cesar of the emperours of Rome; and such allusions are not unusual in the style of Scripture. Bp. Newton.

12. One woe is past;] This is added, not only to distinguish the woes, and to mark more strongly each period, but also to suggest that some time will intervene between this first woe of the Arabian locusts, and that which ensues. Bp. Newton.

13. — I heard a voice from the four horns &c.] Thus it appears that the scene of this vision was still in the temple. The circumstance of the voice proceeding from "the four horns of the golden altar," is a strong indication of the Divine displeasure; and plainly intimates that the sins of men must have been very great, when the altar, which was their sanctuary and protection, called aloud for vengeance. Bp. Newton.

14. — Loose the four angels &c.] These "four angels" are the four sultans, or four leaders of the Turks or Othmans. For there were four principal sultanies or kingdoms of these bordering on the river Euphrates, one at Bagdad, another at Damascus, a third at Aleppo, and a fourth at Iconium in Asia Minor. These subsisted several years afterwards, and the sultans were "bound" and restrained from extending their conquests further than the countries adjoining the Euphrates, primarily by the good providence of God, and secondarily, by the crusades, or expeditions of European Christians into the Holy Land, about the end of the 11th, and in the 12th and 13th centuries. But when an end was put to these crusades, and the Christians abandoned their conquests in Syria and Palestine towards the close of the 13th century, then "the four angels—were loosed:" the Turks gained several victories over the Tartars on one side, and the Christians on the other; and Othman, from whom the people were afterwards called Othmans, being proclaimed sultan, founded a new empire. Jos. Mede, Bp. Newton.

Anno DOMINI 96.

15 And the four angels were loosed, which were prepared ‖ for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, for to slay the third part of men.

‖ Or, at.

16 And the number of the army of the horsemen were two hundred thousand thousand: and I heard the number of them.

17 And thus I saw the horses in the vision, and them that sat on them, having breastplates of fire, and of jacinth, and brimstone: and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions; and out of their mouths issued fire and smoke and brimstone.

18 By these three was the third part of men killed, by the fire, and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths.

19 For their power is in their mouth, and in their tails: for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt.

Anno DOMINI 96.

20 And the rest of the men which were not killed by these plagues yet repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship devils, [a] and idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, and of wood: which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk:

[a] Ps. 115. 4. & 135. 15.

21 Neither repented they of their murders, nor of their sorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts.

CHAP. X.

1 A mighty strong angel appeareth with a book open in his hand. 6 He sweareth by him that liveth for ever, that there shall be no more time. 9 John is commanded to take and eat the book.

15. — which were prepared for — a day, &c.] The meaning of this may be, that they were prepared and ready to execute the Divine commission at any time, or for any time, that God should appoint, or that they were ready all of them together at one appointed time. Daubuz, Lowman. Otherwise, if the expression be taken mystically, and the hour, and day, and month, and year, be a prophetick hour, and day, and month, and year, then a year (according to St. John's computation, who follows herein that of Daniel,) consisting of three hundred and sixty days, is three hundred and sixty years, a month consisting of thirty days is thirty years, a day is a year, and an hour fifteen days; so that the whole period of the Othmans' "slaying the third part of men," or subduing the Christian states in the Greek or Roman empire, amounts to three hundred and ninety-one years and fifteen days. Now it is wonderfully remarkable that the first conquest mentioned in history of the Othmans over the Christians, was in the year of Christ 1281; compute three hundred and ninety-one years from that time, and they will terminate in the year 1672: and in that year Mahomet the Fourth took Cameniec from the Poles, and forty-eight towns and villages in that territory were delivered up to the sultan on the treaty of peace. Whereupon an historian of those events has made this memorable reflection: This was the last victory by which any advantage accrued to the Othman state, or any city or province was annexed to the ancient bounds of the empire. Other wars and slaughters ensued; but since that period they have subdued no new state or potentate of Christendom, and in all probability they never will again, their empire evidently declining. Here then the prophecy and the event agree exactly in the period of three hundred and ninety-one years; and if we possessed more accurate histories, the same exactness might probably be found as to the fifteen days. Bp. Newton.

—— the third part of men.] Meaning, the men of the Roman empire. Bp. Newton. Or, more generally, a considerable number of the countries which they invaded. Lowman.

The kingdoms subdued by the Mahometans, if examined by the maps, will be found to compose a full third part of the then Christian world; and it may be assumed as a general position, that about one third part of the world which was once Christian, was cut off from Christianity by the Mahometan invaders. Dean Woodhouse.

16. — were two hundred thousand thousand:] The number in the original is myriads of myriads, which is to be understood of many myriads, as when we say "thousands of thousands," to express many thousands. It is here affirmed, that the armies of these destroyers should be chiefly horsemen, and that the numbers should be so great that the report of them should be scarcely credible. Lowman.

It is well known from history what mighty armies the Othman emperours brought into the field. Thus, when Mahomet the Second besieged Constantinople, he had about 400,000 men in his army, besides a powerful fleet; it is well known also that their armies consisted chiefly of horsemen, as is here described. Bp. Newton.

17. — having breastplates of fire, &c.] The colour of fire is red, of hyacinth blue, and of brimstone yellow; and this, as Mr. Daubuz observes, has a literal accomplishment; for the Othmans, from the first time of their appearance, have affected to wear such warlike apparel, of scarlet, blue, and yellow. Bp. Newton.

—— were as the heads of lions;] Having a fierce and terrible appearance. Jos. Mede.

—— fire and smoke and brimstone.] Here is a manifest allusion to great guns and gunpowder, which were invented in the period marked by this trumpet, and were of signal service to the Othmans in their wars. For "by these three was the third part of the men killed," that is, by these the Othmans made such havock and destruction in the Greek or Eastern empire. In particular, at the siege of Constantinople, Mahomet employed guns of such a size, as were never made before; one is described so monstrous, that it was drawn by seventy yoke of oxen, and two thousand men. Bp. Newton, Jos. Mede.

19. — their tails were like unto serpents,] By this figure it is meant, that the Turks draw after them the same poisonous train as did the Saracens; they profess and propagate the same imposture; they inflict injury not only by their conquests, but also by spreading false doctrines; and, wherever they establish their dominion, there too they establish their religion. Bp. Newton.

20, 21. And the rest of the men &c.] And, though the gracious end of Providence, in this and the foregoing judgments on the corrupted Christian empire, was, to cause men to consider and reform the several abuses of the Gospel light they had so long enjoyed, yet were these intentions of Heaven frustrated by an incorrigible temper universally prevailing. For even the western Christians, under the influence of Rome, and the Roman Catholick governments, who had seen the eastern and Greek churches thus punished, and quite destroyed, for their superstitious and vicious practices, yet even they still persevered in the practice of idolatry, saint worship, and image worship; nay, would not so much as reform that cruel spirit of persecution, nor of putting cheats, delusions, and impositions, on the understandings and properties of mankind. Pyle.

21. Neither repented they of their murders, &c.] That is, of their persecutions and inquisitions; nor of "their sorceries," their pretended miracles and revelations; nor of "their fornication," their publick stews and uncleanness; nor of "their thefts," their exactions and impositions on mankind; being as notorious for their licentiousness and wickedness, as for their superstition and idolatry. As they therefore refused to take warning by the two former woes, the third woe, as we shall see, will fall with vengeance upon them. Bp. Newton.

Anno DOMINI 96.

AND I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire:

2 And he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth,

3 And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices.

4 And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not.

5 And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven,

6 And sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer:

Anno DOMINI 96.

7 But in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets.

8 And the voice which I heard from heaven spake unto me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel which standeth upon the sea and upon the earth.

9 And I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, [a] Take it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey.

[a] Ezek. 2. 8. & 3. 3.

10 And I took the little book out of the angel's hand, and ate it up; and it was in my mouth sweet as honey: and as soon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

11 And he said unto me, Thou must

Chap. X. ver. 1. And I saw another &c.] St. John, in the conclusion of the last chapter, having touched upon the corruptions of the western church, proceeds now to deliver some prophecies relating to this lamentable event. But, before he enters upon it, he (and the church in him) is prepared for it by an august and consolatory vision. Bp. Newton.

—— clothed with a cloud: &c.] The sublimity of this description, ver. 1—3, made an early impression on the mind of the great Sir William Jones: and 'at a period of mature judgment,' says his biographer, 'he considered it as equal in sublimity to any passage in the inspired writings, and far superiour to any that could be produced from merely human compositions.' Dean Woodhouse.

—— a cloud: — a rainbow &c.] To come in the clouds, or with the clouds, of heaven, is among the Jews a known symbol of Divine power and majesty. The "rainbow" was the emblem of God's covenant with mankind after the flood, and therefore fit to be made a sign that God is always mindful of His covenant and promise. The brightness and splendour of the sun and fire were also proper figures to express the majesty of a Divine appearance. Lowman.

2. — a little book open:] A "little book," or codicil, different from the "book" mentioned before; "open," that all men might freely read and consider it. It was indeed a codicil to the larger book, and properly comes under the sixth trumpet, to describe the state of the western church, after the description of the state of the eastern; and this is with good reason made a separate and distinct prophecy, on account of the importance of the matter, as well as for the purpose of engaging greater attention. Bp. Newton.

—— he set his right foot &c.] This was intended perhaps to shew the extent of his power and commission. Bp. Newton.

3. — seven thunders] Here a particular prophecy, or perhaps seven distinct prophecies, are uttered by seven voices, loud as thunder, awful and terrible as that of the lionlike voice of the angel which introduces them. Dean Woodhouse.

4. — saying — Seal up those things] As we know not the subjects of the "seven thunders," so neither can we know the reasons for suppressing them: but it may be conceived that some things were proper to be revealed to the Apostle, and yet not to be communicated to the church. It would savour rather of vanity and presumption, than of wisdom and knowledge, to pretend to conjecture what these things are, when the Holy Spirit has purposely concealed them. Bp. Newton.

5. — lifted up his hand] An ancient form of taking an oath. See notes at Gen. xiv. 22; Deut. xxxii. 40. This mode of swearing has descended even to our own times and nation, being still used in Scotland. Dean Woodhouse.

6, 7. — that there should be time no longer: But in the days &c.] The expression translated, "that there should be time no longer," does not mean that time itself should be no more; but more literally, 'the time shall not be yet.' Some understand by it, that the time of fulfilling the prophecy should be no longer delayed; or, as Grotius says, it shall not be long before the secret purpose of God is fulfilled. But both the intention of the prophecy, and the more literal meaning of the expression, better agree with the interpretation of Daubuz, who says, The angel in the vision declares with an oath, that the glorious state of the church shall not be as yet, but that, however, it should not be long to it; for in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall sound (that is, in the period of prophecy to which the remainder of the book yet unrevealed relates, under the seventh trumpet) the mystery of God shall be perfected, as He had declared to His Prophets. This was a consolation proper to the general design of the prophecy. Lowman.

9. — Take it, and eat it up;] That is, thoroughly consider and digest it. What St. John is ordered to do here, Ezekiel did on a similar occasion, Ezek. iii. 3. Bp. Newton.

Eating and drinking signify acquiring and possessing; and eating the book is becoming inspired with the prophecy contained in it. It implies being inspired in a vigorous and extraordinary manner with the prophecy of the whole book. Sir I. Newton.

—— it shall make thy belly bitter, &c.] That is, thou shalt find, in the events it shall reveal unto thee, an occasion for comfort and joy, for grief and sorrow. Lowman.

The glorious promises thou wilt see made to the church of Christ, will please and delight thee; but, when thou comest to the sight of the corruptions, idolatries, and persecutions, which this same church will first undergo, before these days of glory are to come, thou wilt be astonished and confounded. Pyle.

—— thy belly bitter, — sweet as honey.] Honey, when taken in excess, like other sweet things, is generally thought to produce bile, and to cause pains in the stomach. Harmer.

11. — Thou must prophesy again &c.] The angel tells him, that he was to consider that the prophecies contained in this book were not intended only for his private instruction and meditation; they were prophecies which concerned the publick, many nations, and people, which he was to publish in farther revelations for the publick use and benefit of the church. Lowman.

Anno DOMINI 96. prophesy again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings.

CHAP. XI.

3 The two witnesses prophesy. 6 They have power to shut heaven, that it rain not. 7 The beast shall fight against them, and kill them. 8 They lie unburied, 11 and after three days and a half rise again. 14 The second woe is past. 15 The seventh trumpet soundeth.

AND there was given me a reed like unto a rod: and the angel stood, saying, Rise, and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein.

2 But the court which is without the † Gr. cast out. temple † leave out, and measure it not; for it is given unto the Gentiles: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty and two months.

‖ Or, I will give unto my two witnesses that they may prophesy. 3 And ‖ I will give power unto my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days, clothed in sackcloth.

4 These are the [a] two olive trees, and the two candlesticks standing before the God of the earth. Anno DOMINI 96.

[a] Zech. 4. 3, 11, 14.

5 And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them, he must in this manner be killed.

6 These have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and have power over waters to turn them to blood, and to smite the earth with all plagues, as often as they will.

7 And when they shall have finished their testimony, the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit shall make war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them.

8 And their dead bodies shall lie in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. And there was given me a reed &c.] After this, I beheld in the visions of prophecy a new representation of the future providence of God towards the church and world; for there was a measuring rod put into my hand, with which I was directed to measure the temple and the court in which the altar stood, where the priests worshipped God and performed the duties of their office, and into which such as offered private sacrifices for themselves were admitted. A proper representation of the true worship of God, and of such as were true worshippers of Him. Lowman.

2. — the holy city shall they tread under foot] That is, they shall trample upon, and tyrannize over, the church of Christ, for the space of "forty and two months." This is the same space of time with the thousand two hundred and threescore days, mentioned in the next verse. For forty-two months, consisting each of thirty days, are equal to 1260 days, or years in the prophetick style: and this, as we have seen in the book of Daniel, Dan. vii. 25, and shall see hereafter in this book of Revelation, is the period assigned for the tyranny and idolatry of the church of Rome. See note at Dan. vii. 25. Bp. Newton.

3. And I will give power unto my two witnesses, &c.] Meaning that God would raise up some true and faithful witnesses to preach and protest against these innovations and corruptions of religion; for there were Protestants long before that name came into use. Of these witnesses there should be, though but a small, yet a competent number; and it was a sufficient reason for calling them two witnesses, that this was the number required by the law and approved by the Gospel, Deut. xix. 15; Matt. xviii. 16. Also, upon former occasions two have often been joined in commission, as Moses and Aaron in Egypt, Elijah and Elisha in the apostasy of the ten tribes, and Zerubbabel and Jeshua after the Babylonish captivity, to whom these witnesses are particularly compared. Our Saviour sent forth His disciples, Luke x. 1, "two and two;" and it has also been observed, that the principal reformers have usually appeared as it were in pairs, as the Waldenses and Albigenses, John Huss and Jerome of Prague, Luther and Calvin, Cranmer and Ridley, and their followers. Not that it is to be thought that any two particular men or churches were intended by this prophecy, but only that, in general, there should be some in every age, though but few in number, who should bear witness to the truth, and declare against the iniquity and idolatry of their times. Bp. Newton.

As this testimony of the witnesses is to be of equal duration with the apostasy itself, it cannot be meant of any two particular persons, nor does there appear any sufficient reason to understand it of any two particular churches, or bodies of men, in perpetual succession. The representation shews, in general, that as God raised up Prophets in the ancient church, to witness against the idolatrous corruptions of religion, and denounce His judgments against the guilty, so it should be in this corrupt state of the Christian church. Lowman.

—— a thousand two hundred and threescore days,] The same period which is called forty-two months at ver. 2, and which Daniel calls "a time and times and dividing of times." See note at ver. 2, and Dan. vii. 25.

—— clothed in sackcloth.] Which represents their mournfully deploring the devastation of the holy city by the introduction of Gentile worship, their bearing testimony to Divine truths, and exhorting to repentance. Jos. Mede.

4. These are the two olive trees, &c.] The two olive trees that fed the lamp of the temple, Zech. iv. 3, 11, 12, the lights and ornaments of the Christian church. Pyle. This representation seems taken from the prophecy of Zechariah, chap. iv, in which Zerubbabel and Jeshua are represented by two olive trees on each side of the candlestick, which afford oil out of themselves; to express that those persons should be supported by Divine Providence and grace in all the difficulties which they had to encounter. Lowman.

5. — fire proceedeth out of their mouth,] That is, they strike down their enemies by the weapons of the mouth, denouncing the judgments of God against them; see Jer. v. 14. Jos. Mede.

6. These have power to shut heaven, &c.] This alludes to the history of Elijah, 1 Kings xvii. 1, as does the next expression of turning water into blood, to the miracles of Moses and Aaron, Exod. iv. 9; vii. 17—20. The meaning is, that as miracles were formerly wrought in defence of the old Prophets, and for the punishment of their malicious persecutors, so will God in His due time verify the words, and vindicate the cause of the Christian reformers; and by exemplary punishment on the antichristian powers, will make way for the establishment of His kingdom of righteousness upon earth. Pyle.

7. And when they shall have finished &c.] The conjectures of interpreters have been extremely various in applying this prophecy of the death and resurrection of the witnesses to events which are now past; but, though the instances adduced may correspond with the prophecy in some points, they are deficient in others. It appears then that this prophecy relating to the witnesses remains yet to be fulfilled. Bp. Newton.

—— the beast] See note at chap. xiii. 1.

Anno DOMINI 96.

9 And they of the people and kindreds and tongues and nations shall see their dead bodies three days and an half, and shall not suffer their dead bodies to be put in graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth shall rejoice over them, and make merry, and shall send gifts one to another; because these two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth.

11 And after three days and an half the Spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon them which saw them.

12 And they heard a great voice from heaven saying unto them, Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies beheld them.

13 And the same hour was there a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city fell, and in the earthquake were slain † of men seven thousand: and the remnant were affrighted, and gave glory to the God of heaven.

† Gr. names of men.

14 The second woe is past; and, behold, the third woe cometh quickly.

15 And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.

Anno DOMINI 96.

16 And the four and twenty elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God,

17 Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned.

18 And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which ‖ destroy the earth.

‖ Or, corrupt.

19 And the temple of God was opened in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his testament: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail.

CHAP. XII.

1 A woman clothed with the sun travaileth. 4 The great red dragon standeth before her, ready to devour her child: 6 when she was delivered she fleeth into the wilderness. 7 Michael and his angels fight with the dragon, and prevail. 13 The dragon being cast down into the earth, persecuteth the woman.

AND there appeared a great ‖ wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars:

‖ Or, sign.

---

13. — the tenth part of the city fell,] Signifying that the tenth part of the idolatrous church should lose its power. Daubuz. The "tenth," meaning a very considerable part of its power shall be taken away. Lowman.

14. The second woe is past; &c.] Let not any person imagine, he adds, that the church will be free in this third period from opposition and persecution, to try their faith and patience, any more than in the two former periods: for a third woe is to follow upon the second, to try those that dwell in the earth. Lowman.

15. And the seventh angel sounded;] We are now come to the seventh and last trumpet, or the third woe trumpet. At the sounding of this trumpet the third woe commences, which is rather implied than expressed, as it will be described more fully hereafter. The third woe, brought on the inhabitants of the earth, is the ruin and downfall of the antichristian kingdom; and then, and not till then, according to the heavenly chorus, "the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever." St. John is rapt, and, as it were, hurried away to a view of the happy period, without considering the steps preceding and conducting to it. At the same time, "the four and twenty elders," or the ministers of the church, ver. 16—18, are represented as praising and glorifying God for manifesting His power and kingdom more than He had done before; and give likewise an intimation of some succeeding events, as the anger of the nations, Gog and Magog, chap. xx. 8; and the wrath of God displayed in their destruction, chap. xx. 9; and the judging of the dead, or the general judgment, chap. xx. 12; and the rewarding of all the good, as well as the punishing of the wicked. Here we have only a summary account of the circumstances and occurrences of the seventh trumpet, but the particulars will be enlarged upon hereafter. Bp. Newton.

19. And the temple of God was opened] This verse would perhaps more properly form the first verse of the twelfth chapter; for it appears to be the beginning of a new subject. "The temple — was opened," that is, more open discoveries were now made, and the mystery of God was revealed to the Prophet. "Lightnings and voices, &c." are the usual concomitants and attendants of the Divine presence, and especially at the giving of new laws and new revelations, Exod. xx. 18; chap. iv. 5; viii. 5. Bp. Newton.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. And there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman &c.] St. John here resumes his subject from the beginning, and represents the church as a woman, and a mother bearing children unto Christ. Bp. Newton.

A woman, in figurative language, is used to signify a city, a state, a body politick. Such is the daughter of Tyre, of Babylon, of Jerusalem; the latter of which, when virtuous, is honoured with the high appellation of the espoused of God; when wicked and idolatrous, she is styled the harlot, the adulteress, Is. liv. 1, 5; lxvi. 6—14; Jer. xxxi. 4. Dean Woodhouse.

—— clothed with the sun, &c.] She was clothed with the sun, to denote the blessing of light and knowledge this church enjoys from Jesus Christ the Sun of righteousness. "The moon was under her feet," signifying perhaps, that the lesser lights of religion, namely, the Jewish ceremonial laws, were now put down and laid aside. And the "crown of twelve stars" may be an emblem of her being illuminated by the doctrine, and governed by the discipline, of the twelve Apostles. Pyle.

The particular allusion of these symbols has been variously conjectured by learned men; but the general meaning is certain, that the blessings of true religion in the revelation of Jesus Christ, as taught by His Apostles, that is, of the true Christian religion, deserve the highest esteem and honour, however they may be despised by the world. Lowman.

Anno DOMINI 96.

2 And she being with child cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered.

|| Or, sign.

3 And there appeared another || wonder in heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads.

4 And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth: and the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for to devour her child as soon as it was born.

5 And she brought forth a man child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne.

6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore days.

Anno DOMINI 96.

7 And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels,

8 And prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

10 And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the ac-

---

2. — cried, travailing in birth,] St. Paul had made use of the same metaphor, and applied it to his preaching and propagating the Gospel in the midst of tribulation and persecution, Gal. iv. 19. But the expression here of St. John is much stronger, and more emphatically expresses the pangs and struggles and torments, which the church endured from the first publication of the Gospel to the time of Constantine the Great, when she was in some measure eased of her pains and brought forth a deliverer. Bp. Newton.

3. And there appeared — a great red dragon,] Which is the well known sign or symbol of the devil or Satan, and of his agents and instruments. We find the kings and people of Egypt, who were the great persecutors of the primitive church of Israel, distinguished by this title in several places of the Old Testament, Ps. lxxiv. 13; Is. li. 9; Ezek. xxix. 3; and with as much reason and propriety may the people and emperours of Rome, who were the great persecutors of the primitive church of Christ, be called by the same name, as they were actuated by the same principle. For that the Roman empire was here figured, the characters and attributes of the dragon plainly evince. He is "a great red dragon;" and purple or scarlet was the distinguishing colour of the Roman emperours, as it has been since of the popes and cardinals. His seven heads, as the angel afterwards (chap. xvii. 9, 10) explains the vision, allude to the seven hills on which Rome was built, and to the seven forms of government which successively prevailed there. His ten horns typify the ten kingdoms into which the Roman empire was divided; and the seven crowns upon his heads denote that at this time the imperial power was in Rome, the city seated on seven hills, which presides over the whole world. Bp. Newton.

4. And his tail drew &c.] That is, he subjected the third part of the princes and potentates of the earth; and the Roman empire is represented as the third part of the world. "He stood before the woman, &c.:" thus the Roman emperours and magistrates kept a jealous watchful eye over the Christians from the beginning. As Pharaoh laid snares for the male children of the Hebrews, and Herod for the infant Christ, the son of Mary; so did the Roman dragon for the mystick Christ, the son of the church, that he might destroy him even in his infancy. Bp. Newton.

5. And she brought forth a man child,] After all these hardships and persecutions under which the Christian church laboured, during the first three hundred years, the time was to come when she should be delivered from them by a famous prince, who was to embrace the Christian faith and be exalted to the throne of this empire, to abolish idolatrous and heathen worship, and defend and support the religion of Jesus Christ. All which was fulfilled in Constantine the Great, whom the other tyrants and princes of the empire endeavoured to destroy. Thus the "child" of the church was brought forth, and, in the prophetick language, exalted to heaven. See chap. vi. 12—17. Pyle.

6. And the woman fled &c.] This is here said by way of anticipation. For the war in heaven between Michael and the dragon, and other subsequent events, were prior in order of time to the flight of the woman into the wilderness: but, before the Prophet passes on to a new subject, he gives a general account of what happened afterwards to the woman. Bp. Newton.

7. And there was war in heaven: &c.] It might be reasonably presumed that all the powers of idolatry would be strenuously exerted against the establishment of Christianity, and especially against the establishment of a Christian on the imperial throne: and these struggles and contentions between the heathen and the Christian religions are represented, ver. 7, by "war in heaven" between the angels of darkness and the angels of light. Michael was (Dan. x. 21; xii. 1,) the tutelar angel and protector of the Jewish church. He and the good angels were the invisible agents on the one side, as the devil and his evil angels were on the other. The visible actors in the cause of Christianity were the believing emperours and ministers of the word, the martyrs and confessors; and in support of idolatry were the persecuting emperours and heathen magistrates, together with the whole train of priests and sophists. This contest lasted several years, and the final issue of it was, ver. 8, 9, that the Christian prevailed over the heathen religion, the heathens were deposed from all rule and authority, and the Christians were advanced to dominion and empire in their stead. Bp. Newton.

According to this understanding of the passage, by applying "the woman in heaven," ver. 1, to the Christian church, and "the man child brought forth by her," ver. 5, to the first Christian emperour, "the war in heaven" implies all the struggles of the primitive saints with enemies and persecutors; "Michael and his angels," the confessors and champions of the Gospel; "the dragon and his angels," the idolatrous and bloody tyrants of Rome heathen, and all other persecutors of Christ in His members; the casting out this dragon was the overthrow of idolatry when Pagans lost the throne; the accusation of the brethren, those abominable, but altogether groundless, calumnies, cast by the worshippers and slaves of the dragon upon the Christians and their religion. And the wrath of the devil, when thus subdued, exerted itself in the violence of some succeeding emperours, the heresies and discords sown among Christians, and all the miseries consequent on the inundation of barbarous nations, which tore in pieces the Roman empire itself. Dean Stanhope.

It is certain that the Christians in the time of Constantine thought this prophecy to be so plainly fulfilled by the great event of Constantine's advancement to the throne of the empire, that this emperour's statue was set over his palace gate, trampling on a wounded dragon. And Constantine himself, in his epistle to Eusebius, calls his conquest of Licinius, the falling of the dragon, and the restoration of Christian liberty to all men. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 96.

cuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night.

11 And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death.

12 Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabiters of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time.

13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which brought forth the man child.

14 And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent.

15 And the serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood after the woman, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood.

16 And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth.

Anno DOMINI 96.

17 And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went to make war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.

CHAP. XIII.

1 A beast riseth out of the sea with seven heads and ten horns, to whom the dragon giveth his power. 11 Another beast cometh up out of the earth: 14 causeth an image to be made of the former beast, 15 and that men should worship it, 16 and receive his mark.

AND I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the ‖ name of blasphemy.

‖ Or, names.

2 And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority.

---

13. And when the dragon saw that he was cast &c.] When the dragon was thus deposed from the imperial throne, and "cast unto the earth," he still continued to persecute the church with equal malice, though not with equal power. He made several attempts to restore the Pagan idolatry in the reign of Constantine, and afterwards in that of Julian, and rent and troubled the church with various heresies and schisms. Bp. Newton.

14. — were given two wings of a great eagle,] To bear on eagles' wings, (see Exod. xix. 4,) is an allusion to the strength and swiftness of an eagle's flight, and well expresses the readiness and power with which God often delivers His church out of its dangers. Lowman.

There were given to the church, by the gracious providence of God, many strong and speedy means of deliverance, that she might retire into a place of security, where He provided for her nourishment and preservation during all the time of her persecution. Bp. Hall.

15. And the serpent cast out — water as a flood] Accordingly, when this great adversary of truth, and his instruments in the empire, found that they could no longer attack the Christian church by way of open force and persecution, they entered into measures to distract and confound the religion of it by heresies, schisms, animosities, and divisions, amongst its own members: which was fulfilled in the terrible disturbances between the Arians and orthodox in Constantine's reign, and long afterwards. This was the flood out of the serpent's mouth, agreeably to the scriptural manner of expressing such events, Is. lix. 19; Prov. xviii. 4. Or else this flood was the inundation of the northern people, who would have destroyed both the empire and the church, had not the empire defended itself for some time, and the northern people themselves afterwards embraced the Christian religion. Pyle.

16. And the earth helped the woman, &c.] The figure in general is a natural representation of stopping the course of a flood, by receiving it into some opening or gap in the earth; and "the earth," taken in its most natural interpretation, for our habitable world and the inhabitants of it, will fully answer the meaning of the figurative expression. Thus the general sense is, that the providence of God raised up persons to aid and support the church and all true Christians, notwithstanding the violence of persecution. Lowman.

17. And the dragon was wroth &c.] In succeeding ages, the same restless adversary pursued the church with fresh fury and vigour, by introducing into it such an apostasy from the truth, both in faith, worship, and morals, that the church itself became absolutely antichristian in its ruling powers, who persecuted and oppressed all the sincere and virtuous professors of Christ's religion, as will be seen more particularly in chap. xiii. and xvii. Pyle.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. — and saw a beast rise up &c.] Here the beast is described at large, which was only mentioned before, (chap. xi. 7;) and a beast in the prophetick style is a tyrannical idolatrous empire. The kingdom of God and of Christ is never represented under the image of a beast. No doubt can exist that this beast was designed to represent the Roman empire; thus far both ancients and moderns, Papists and Protestants, are agreed. The only doubt has been whether Pagan or Christian, imperial or papal, Rome is meant; but that the latter is intended, will be fully and clearly determined by what follows. St. John saw this beast rising out of the sea; but the Roman empire was risen and established long before St. John's time. And therefore this must be the Roman state, not in its then subsisting, but in some future, shape and form. The beast has seven heads and ten horns, which are the well known marks and signals of the Roman state. See note at ch. xii. 3. Bp. Newton.

—— upon his heads the name of blasphemy.] Signifying that it made use of its power to establish the blasphemy of idolatry in all the places within its jurisdiction. Daubuz.

2. — was like unto a leopard, &c.] As Daniel's fourth beast (chap. vii. 7.) was without a name, and devoured and brake in pieces the three former; so this beast is also without a name, and partakes of the nature and qualities of the three former, having the body of a leopard, which was the third beast, or Grecian empire; and the feet of a bear, which was the second beast, or Persian empire; and the mouth of a lion, which was the first beast, or Babylonian empire; and consequently this must be the same as Daniel's fourth beast, or the Roman empire. The beast therefore is the successor and substitute of the dragon, or of the idolatrous heathen Roman empire; and it is well known what other idolatrous power has succeeded to the heathen emperours at Rome. Bp. Newton. See notes at Dan. vii.

—— and the dragon gave him his power, &c.] The old serpent, the devil, who had hitherto persecuted the true worshippers of

Anno DOMINI 96.

3 And I saw one of his heads as it were † wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beast.

† Gr. slain.

4 And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? who is able to make war with him?

5 And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him ‖ to continue forty and two months.

‖ Or, to make war.

6 And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven.

7 And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations.

Anno DOMINI 96.

8 And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

9 If any man have an ear, let him hear.

10 He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: [a] he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints.

[a] Matt. 26. 52.

11 And I beheld another beast coming

God by the several great monarchies of the world, engaged this new power, advanced to the seat of the last of these monarchies, the Roman empire, to use that power in the persecution of true religion, as the preceding tyrannies had done before it. Lowman.

3. — one of his heads as it were wounded &c.] By this description of one of the beast's heads being wounded, and the wound being healed, is signified that this new power arose in the Roman empire, after that empire had received such a blow in one of its heads or forms of government, as left no human probable prospect that Rome would ever rise to power and empire any more, and that it would be greatly to the astonishment of the world, to see its power revive in the new form represented by the beast. Allusion is made to the time when the Roman empire was overturned by the northern nations, when the very name of emperour ceased in Augustulus, and Rome was no longer the seat of government, being reduced to a poor dukedom. Afterwards the new power, here represented, arose, when the government fell into the hands of the popes, and the Roman name again became formidable. Lowman, Bp. Newton.

4. And they worshipped the dragon &c.] The generality of the subjects of these idolatrous Christian governments soon ran into compliance with, and admiration of, the prevailing powers, and submitted to all their superstitious injunctions; and thereby in effect became the subjects of that old serpent, the first deceiver of mankind. Pyle.

5. — a mouth speaking great things &c.] Thus papal Rome called herself the queen and mistress of all churches. Pyle.

—— and blasphemies;] All acts of idolatrous worship may be called blaspheming God and His name. Lowman. This beast perfectly resembles the little horn in Daniel. As the little horn (Dan. vii. 8, 25) had "a mouth speaking proud things," and "spake great words against the Most High," so "there was given unto the beast a mouth speaking great things." As the little horn (Dan. vii. 21) "made war with the saints, and prevailed against them," so "it was given unto the beast to make war with the saints, and to overcome them." As the little horn prospers (Dan. vii. 25) "until a time and times and the dividing of time;" that is, three prophetick years and a half, so "power was given unto the beast to continue," to practise and prosper, "forty and two months;" which is exactly the same portion of time as three years and a half. We see then, that not only the same images, but almost the same words, are employed; we cannot therefore doubt that they both bear the same allusion. Bp. Newton.

6. — his tabernacle, and them that dwell] He blasphemes the tabernacle of God, His temple, and His church, by anathematizing as hereticks and schismaticks true Christians who are of the house of God, or by perverting to the worship of saints and angels places dedicated to the worship of God. He blasphemes "them that dwell in heaven," angels and glorified saints, by idolatrous worship and impious adoration, and disgraces their lives and memory by fabulous legends. Bp. Newton.

7, 8. And it was given unto him to make war &c.] The power of this new Roman government became so great by Divine permission, that it prevailed against the worshippers of God, either to force them to a compliance with its corruptions, or to persecute them for their constancy: and this oppressive power was extended far and wide, insomuch that all the inhabitants of the earth, where it reached, were prevailed upon to receive its idolatrous constitutions, and yield obedience to it; those true and faithful servants of God only excepted, who were enrolled in the registers, as heirs of eternal life, according to the promises of the Gospel of Christ, who from the beginning was the true propitiation, and Mediator of acceptance and blessing. Lowman.

8. — the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.] That is, from the time that the first promise of the new covenant was made. Then Christ undertook to pay this ransom, by dying instead of mankind; which therefore took place immediately in the Divine purpose, as much as if it was already done. Bp. Beveridge.

9. If any man have an ear, &c.] See chap. ii. 7. St. John, after giving a large prophetick description of antichristian power sitting in the seat and temple of God, &c. adds these words, bespeaking attention, to shew that these are matters in which all sincere Christians are more or less concerned to take heed to themselves, that they be not imposed upon by delusions of worldly power and ambition, and by empty shews in matters of religion. Dr. S. Clarke.

10. He that leadeth into &c.] This is added by way of consolation to the church, that these enemies of God and Christ, represented under the character of the beast, shall suffer the law of retaliation, and be as remarkably punished and tormented themselves, as they punished and tormented others. This promise might administer some comfort, which would indeed be wanted, since the patience and the faith of the saints would be tried to the utmost during the reign of the beast. "Here is the patience and the faith of the saints." Of all the trials and persecutions of the church, this would be the most severe, and would exceed, both in duration and in degree, those of the primitive times. Bp. Newton.

11. And I beheld another beast &c.] From the description of the ten horned beast or Roman state in general, the Prophet passes to that of "the two horned beast," or Roman church in particular. "The beast with ten crowned horns" is the Roman empire, as divided into ten kingdoms; "the beast with two horns like a lamb" is the Roman hierarchy, or body of the clergy, regular and secular. This beast is afterwards called "the false prophet," chap. xvi. 13; xix. 20; which sufficiently proves that false doctors or teachers are particularly designed. "He had two horns like a lamb;" he derived his powers from the Lamb, and pretended to be, like the Lamb, all meekness and mildness. But "he spake as a dragon;" he had a voice of terror, in usurping divine titles and honours, in commanding idolatry, and in persecuting and slaying the true worshippers of God, and faithful servants of Jesus Christ. Bp. Newton.

Anno DOMINI 96. up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon.

12 And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed.

13 And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men,

14 And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast; saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast, which had the wound by a sword, and did live.

† Gr. breath. 15 And he had power to give † life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed. Anno DOMINI 96.

16 And he caused all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, † to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: † Gr. to give.

17 And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

18 Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The Lamb standing on mount Sion with his company. 6 An angel preacheth the gospel. 8 The fall of Babylon. 15 The harvest of the world, and putting in of the sickle. 20 The vintage and winepress of the wrath of God.

—— he spake as a dragon.] A dragon in the prophecies is the known symbol of the old Roman government, in its pagan, persecuting state. When therefore it is said that the beast spake as a dragon, the meaning is, that antichrist should assume the highest tone of civil authority, in promoting his tyrannous purposes, though he cloked his fierce pretensions under the meek semblance of a spiritual character. Bp. Hurd.

12. And he exerciseth all the power &c.] This second persecuting power had all the powers of the first, or new revived form of Roman government; and used its authority to spread the power of this new Roman government beyond the bounds of its own proper dominion, so as to oblige the several nations to yield obedience to the new authority revived in the city of Rome, after it had been so long deprived of all authority, and seemed to have lost all hope of recovering it. Lowman.

13. And he doeth great wonders, &c.] He pretends, like other false prophets, to shew signs and wonders, and even to call for fire from heaven, as Elias did. His impostures too are so successful, (ver. 14,) that "he deceiveth them that dwell on the earth." Thus miracles, visions, and revelations, are the mighty boast of the church of Rome, the contrivances of an artful priesthood to impose on an ignorant credulous laity. Bp. Newton.

14. — that they should make an image to the beast,] "The image" or representative of "the beast," here designed, is most probably the pope. He is properly the idol of the church. He represents in himself the whole power of the beast, and is the head of all authority, temporal as well as spiritual. He is nothing more than a private person without power or authority, till the two horned beast, or the corrupted clergy, by choosing him pope, "give life" unto him, and enable him to speak, and utter his decrees, and to persecute even to death as many as refuse to submit to him, and to worship him. Bp. Newton.

16. — to receive a mark &c.] We must understand that it was customary among the ancients for servants to receive the mark of their master, and soldiers of their general, and those who were devoted to any particular deity, of that deity to whom they were devoted. These marks were usually impressed "on their right hand, or on their foreheads." It is in allusion to this ancient custom that the symbol and profession of faith in the church of Rome, as ministering to superstition, idolatry, and tyranny, is called the mark or character of the beast; which character is said to be received "in their foreheads," when they make open and publick profession of their faith; and "in their right hand," when they live and act in conformity to it. If any dissent from the stated and authorized forms, they are condemned and excommunicated as hereticks; and, in consequence, are no longer permitted to "buy or sell;" they are interdicted from traffick and commerce, and all the benefits of civil society. Bp. Newton.

18. Here is wisdom.] That is, here is a secret whereby may be tried the attention and understanding of all serious and religious minds. Among the ancients, one way of propounding and solving secrets and difficult problems, was by finding out things, or persons, or names, by numbers, answering to, or expressing them. See Dan. viii. 13. Pyle.

—— count the number of the beast:] That is, find out, by a given number, the name of the beast, so as to know when this tyrannical power shall arise. Lowman.

—— it is the number of a man;] Meaning, it is a method of numbering, practised among men: as "the measure of a man," chap. xxi. 17, is such a measure, as men commonly use in measuring. Bp. Newton.

—— is Six hundred threescore and six.] The number is here specified, from which we are to collect the name intended. And no name seems more proper or suitable, than that famous one mentioned by Ireneus, who lived not long after the time of St. John, and was the disciple of Polycarp, the disciple of St. John. He says, that the name Lateinos, which is the Greek word for Latin or Roman, contains the exact number "six hundred threescore and six." It is also remarkable that the word Romiith, which signifies in Hebrew the Roman beast or the Roman kingdom, expresses the same number. To explain this, it is to be mentioned, that both the Greeks and Hebrews were accustomed to express numbers by different letters in their respective alphabets. Thus the eight letters in the Greek alphabet, which make the word Lateinos, stand respectively for the numbers 30, 1, 300, 5, 10, 50, 70, 200, making altogether 666: also the six letters of the Hebrew alphabet, which compose the word Romiith, stand respectively for the numbers 200, 6, 40, 10, 10, 400, thus making altogether the same number 666. It is really surprising that such a marked coincidence should take place in both these languages; and here seems to be a most full and satisfactory proof, independently of the many others which we possess, that the idolatrous Roman power is intended in this part of the prophecy. Bp. Newton, Pyle.

Chap. XIV. As the description of the melancholy state of the church and the world, during this period, in the foregoing chapters, might be apt to discourage good Christians, and the faithful worshippers of God, the scene of the prophetical vision is now changed from earth to heaven, from a view of the church under the persecution of the beast, to a view of it in the presence of the Lamb, delivered from its state of corruption and oppression, and arrived at a state of complete and perfect happiness. This vision then represents the sure destruction of the enemies of truth and righteousness in the end; it shews the great reward of the faithful, and the dreadful punishment of the apostate, who shall fall

Anno DOMINI 96. AND I looked, and, lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps:

3 And they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth.

4 These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These † were redeemed from among men, being the firstfruits unto God and to the Lamb. Anno DOMINI 96. † Gr. were bought.

5 And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God.

6 And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people,

7 Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: [a] and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. [a] Ps. 146. 5. Acts 14. 15.

8 And there followed another angel, saying, [b] Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations [b] Is. 21. 9. Jer. 51. 8. chap. 18. 2.

---

from the faith and purity of Christian worship, in the day of trial. Thus this part of the prophecy unites, with awful warnings, the strongest motives to confidence and hope, than which nothing could be more proper or useful to the church, in such a state of providence, or more consistent with the general design of the whole prophecy, which is to encourage the constancy and patience of the saints under all their trials. Lowman.

Ver. 1—3. — and, lo, a Lamb stood &c.] Our Saviour is here seen as the true Lamb of God, standing "on the mount Sion," the place of God's true worship; "and with Him an hundred forty and four thousand," the same select number that was mentioned before, chap. vii. 4, the genuine offspring of the twelve Apostles apostolically multiplied, and therefore the number of the church, as 666 is the number of the beast; and, as the followers of the beast have the name of the beast, so these "have the name of God" (or, as some copies have, of Christ,) "written in their foreheads," being His professed servants; and the same as "the witnesses," only represented under different figures. The angels and heavenly choir, ver. 2, 3, with loud voices and instruments of musick, sing the same "new song," or Christian song, which they sung before, chap. v.; "and no man could learn that song, but the one hundred and forty and four thousand;" they alone are the worshippers of the one true God, through the one true Mediator Jesus Christ; all the rest of mankind offer up their devotions to other objects, and through other mediators. Bp. Newton.

2. — as the voice — thunder:] The sound of the united voices of an immense multitude chanting the praises of God, is compared to the noise of the waves and of thunder. Jos. Mede.

4. These are they which were not defiled &c.] These faithful disciples are called virgins, being pure from all idol worship, which the Scriptures are wont to brand with the name of fornication, whoredom, and adultery. They follow the doctrines of Christ and His Apostles, both in prosperity and adversity. They are the same with relation to God and His true religion, as the firstfruits under the law, namely, an acceptable earnest and assurance of a fuller harvest of reformation to follow hereafter; a reformation wrought by the preaching, and courageous sufferings of men, who scorn to use the word of God deceitfully, or make a worldly gain by imposing on the understandings of mankind. Pyle.

5. — for they are without fault &c.] This expression seems evidently to allude to that law among the Jews, which ordered a strict search into all the creatures brought for sacrifice, and forbade the offering, in which there was any defect, or superfluity, or notable blemish. Hence we find our Lord called "the Lamb without spot," and here the saints are said to be without fault, because "in their mouth was found no guile," that is, on account of their undesigning sincerity, and the uncorrupted probity of their minds. Dean Stanhope.

6, 7. And I saw another angel] The nature and character of the true Christian church having been represented in opposition to the wicked antichristian kingdom, three principal efforts, which were made towards a reformation at three different times, are represented by three angels appearing one after another. "Another angel" (besides those employed in singing, ver. 3) is seen flying in the midst of heaven, and "having the everlasting Gospel to preach unto every nation and people;" so that, during this period, the Gospel should still be preached, which is styled "everlasting," being, like its Divine author, "the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever," Heb. xiii. 8; in opposition to the novel doctrines of the beast and the prophet. This angel is further represented, ver. 7, "saying—Fear God—for the hour of His judgment is come;" prophecy mentioning things as come, which will certainly come. But what this angel more particularly recommends, is the worship of the great Creator of the universe. "Worship Him that made heaven, &c." This is a solemn and emphatick exhortation to forsake the reigning idolatry and superstition; and such exhortations were made even in the first and earliest times of the beast. The publick opposition of emperours and bishops to the worship of saints and images in the eighth and ninth centuries, appears to be meant particularly by the "loud voice" of this first angel flying aloft, and calling upon the world to worship God. In another respect too, these emperours and bishops resemble this angel having "the everlasting Gospel:" for, in their time, and greatly by their means, the Christian religion was propagated and established among the Saxons, Danes, and many other Norman nations. Bp. Newton.

8. And there followed another angel,] As the admonitions of the first angel had not their proper effect on the kingdom of the beast, the second angel is commissioned to proclaim the fall of the capital city. By Babylon is here meant Rome, as all authors of all ages and countries agree. But it was not prudent to denounce the destruction of Rome in open and direct terms; it was, for many wise reasons, done covertly under the name of Babylon, which was the great idolatress of the earth, and the enemy of the people of God in former, as Rome has been in latter, times. Bp. Newton.

—— Babylon is fallen,] That is, Babylon now begins to fall, and will assuredly and finally fall. Pyle. In the style of prophecy, things to be afterwards accomplished are represented as already done, in order to shew the certainty of the prediction. Lowman.

—— because she made all nations &c.] Because she hath enticed all nations to drink of the cup of her spiritual fornications, and thereby hath caused them to drink of that cup of God's wrath and vengeance, which belongs to those grievous offences. Bp. Hall.

Anno DOMINI 96.

drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.

9 And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand,

10 The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb:

11 And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever: and they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name.

12 Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord ‖ from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them.

‖ Or, from henceforth saith the Spirit, Yea.

14 And I looked, and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle.

15 And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, [c] Thrust in thy sickle, and reap: for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harvest of the earth is ‖ ripe.

[c] Joel 3. 13.

‖ Or, dried.

16 And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped.

17 And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle.

18 And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire; and cried with a loud cry to him that had the

---

9—11. And the third angel followed] Another angel made proclamation of most terrible Divine judgments upon all Christians, who, after the light of the reformation, and the preaching of true religion had been bestowed upon them, should wilfully, and by a love for worldly and vicious gratifications, comply any longer with the injunctions of this Babylonish community, and embrace the worship of this idolatrous church, threatening them with the same destruction that was soon hereafter to fall upon it. Which destruction is here described under the same images which Moses formerly used to describe that of the rebellious nation of the Jews, and of their land, Deut. xxix. 22, 23, and which Isaiah used to set forth God's judgments on the oppressors of His people, Is. xxxiv. 5, 9, 10. This last angel, and his solemn denunciations, are an emblematical prediction of the high spirit and courageous preaching of Luther, and the train of reformers following his example; whereby a foundation is laid for the ruin of the antichristian doctrine and worship, to be completed in God's due time. Pyle.

10. — shall drink of the wine of the wrath &c.] Here is a terrible description of most severe punishment, to which there is scarcely any thing equal in the whole of sacred writ. Wine "without mixture," or not diluted with water, causes more complete intoxication. Jos. Mede.

12. Here is the patience of the saints: &c.] Herein the patience and perseverance of the saints shall be manifested and perfected, that, notwithstanding all the evils of persecution, they continue constant in obedience to the commands of God, as the rule of their religion, and steadfastly maintain the truths of Christ's revelation, in opposition to all other doctrines and worship, by whatsoever authority imposed. Lowman.

13. And I heard a voice &c.] The voices of the angels had pronounced the punishments of those who, for worldly purposes, receiving the antichristian mark, deny their Lord. A voice from heaven, from the throne itself, confirms these denunciations, adding thereto this consolation, that, if the fiery trial should proceed to its last stage, even temporal death, this death shall be blessed; shall introduce the martyr to an eternal freedom from pain and trouble, and his sufferings on earth shall be recompensed with everlasting rest and glory. Dean Woodhouse.

—— Blessed are the dead — from henceforth: &c.] From this time forward, he says, considering the extremity and cruel circumstances of this last and severe persecution, we may reckon those who are already dead (provided that they died in the Lord) to be very happy; in that they did not live to see and suffer those things, which will then befall the faithful servants of God. Thus the particular sense of these words is, to declare the happy estate of those saints and martyrs who were already dead, in and for the faith of Christ, and should not live to see those cruel and fearful sufferings, which should afterwards come upon the Christians. And this is grounded upon the general truth, that "they are happy which die in the Lord." Abp. Tillotson.

—— Yea, saith the Spirit, that they &c.] Here two particulars are given, as reasons and grounds why they that die in the Lord are declared to be in so blessed a condition: for good men, when they are departed this life, "rest from their labours," are freed from all the labours and pains with which they were exercised in this world; and also they reap the comfort and reward of all the good which they have done in this world, "their works do follow them," or go along with them, to receive the reward which God hath promised to His obedient servants. Abp. Tillotson.

14. — and behold a white cloud, &c.] The sure execution of Divine judgments, denounced against the corrupters of the Christian religion, was further confirmed by another vision; Christ Himself being represented as sitting on a bright cloud which was spread under Him, as a seat of judgment. He appears like the Son of man in the visions of Daniel, Dan. vii. 13, with a golden crown on His head, the ensign of royalty and sovereign power; and to express the meaning and design of His appearance to judgment, He bears in His hand a sharp sickle, as for reaping corn. Lowman.

15. — for the harvest of the earth is ripe.] This representation of the judgments of God, under the figures of a harvest and vintage, ver. 18, is not unusual in the Prophets, and is copied particularly from the Prophet Joel, who denounced God's judgments against the enemies of His people in like terms, Joel iii. 13. What particular events are signified by this "harvest," and "vintage," it appears impossible for any one to determine beforehand; time alone can make the discovery, for these things are yet in futurity. But it may be observed, that these two signal judgments will as certainly come, as harvest and vintage succeed in their season; and in the course of Providence the one will precede the other, as in the course of nature the harvest is before the vintage; and the latter will surpass the former, and be attended with a more terrible destruction of God's enemies. Bp. Newton.

18. — another angel — which had power over fire;] Having the office of inflicting Divine vengeance. Grotius.

Anno DOMINI 96.

sharp sickle, saying, Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for her grapes are fully ripe.

19 And the angel thrust in his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast it into the great winepress of the wrath of God.

20 And the winepress was trodden without the city, and blood came out of the winepress, even unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

CHAP. XV.

1 The seven angels with the seven last plagues. 3 The song of them that overcome the beast. 7 The seven vials full of the wrath of God.

AND I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven angels having the seven last plagues; for in them is filled up the wrath of God.

2 And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire: and them that had gotten the victory over the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God.

Anno DOMINI 96.

3 And they sing [a] the song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; [b] just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints.

[a] Exod. 15. 1.

[b] Ps. 145. 17.

4 [c] Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy judgments are made manifest.

[c] Jer. 10. 7.

5 And after that I looked, and, behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened:

6 And the seven angels came out of the temple, having the seven plagues, clothed in pure and white linen, and having their breasts girded with golden girdles.

7 And one of the four beasts gave unto the seven angels seven golden vials full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever.

8 And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God, and from his power;

---

20. And the winepress was trodden without the city,] To tread the winepress is a prophetick description of destruction. See Is. lxiii. 3. The images in this vision are extremely strong and expressive: the largest winepresses used generally to be in some places out of the city. Lowman.

—— even unto the horse bridles,] This is a strong hyperbolical way of expressing vast slaughter and effusion of blood. Similar expressions occur in other writings. Bp. Newton.

—— the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.] Mr. Mede ingeniously conjectures, that this is meant as the measure of the estates belonging to the Roman church, called St. Peter's patrimony, which extended two hundred Italian miles, which is exactly "a thousand and six hundred furlongs." Bp. Newton.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. And I saw another sign &c.] God's judgments on the kingdom of the beast, or antichristian empire, are hitherto denounced, and described in general terms under the figures of "harvest" and "vintage." A more particular account of them follows under the emblem of "seven vials," which are called "the seven last plagues," for in them is filled up the wrath of God. These seven last plagues must necessarily fall under the seventh and last trumpet, or the third and last woe trumpet, so that, as the seventh seal contained the seven trumpets, the seventh trumpet comprehends the seven vials. At the sounding of the seventh trumpet, chap. xi. 15, &c. a general intimation is given of God's "taking unto Him His great power" and "destroying them that destroy the earth;" but the particulars are reserved for this place. If then these seven last plagues coincide in time with the seventh and last trumpet, they are all yet to come; for the sixth trumpet is not yet past, nor the woe of the Turkish or Ottoman empire yet ended; and consequently there is no possibility of explaining them in such a manner, as when the prophecies may be compared with histories, and their truth evinced by ocular demonstration. The many fruitless attempts which have hitherto been made to explain them, are a further proof that they cannot well be explained, the best interpreters having failed in this part more than in any other. But, before the vials are poured out, the scene opens with a preparatory vision, which is the subject of this chapter. Bp. Newton.

—— seven angels having the seven last plagues;] As seven angels sounded the seven trumpets, so the same number are appointed to pour out the seven vials; and, in order to shew that these judgments are to fall on the kingdom of the beast, the true worshippers of God and faithful servants of Jesus, who had gotten the victory over the beast, and had never submitted to his tyranny or religion, are described like unto the children of Israel (ver. 2—4) after their deliverance and escape out of Egypt. For, as the children of Israel, (Exod. xv.) having passed through the Red sea, stood on the shore, and, seeing their enemies overwhelmed with the waters, sang the triumphant song of Moses, so these, having passed through the fiery trials of this world, "stand on the sea of glass mingled with fire," which was mentioned before, chap. iv. 6, and seeing the vials ready to be poured out on their enemies, sing a song of triumph for the manifestation of the Divine judgments; which is called "the song of Moses, and the song of the Lamb," the words being in great measure taken from the song of Moses and other parts of the Old Testament, and applied in a Christian sense. Bp. Newton.

3. And they sing the song of Moses] As the Israelites sang the praises of God for their deliverance at the Red sea, in a hymn composed by Moses, so these saints, having obtained a greater deliverance and salvation by Christ, sang a hymn of praise, in the same spirit with that of Moses. Lowman.

6. And the seven angels came out &c.] The seven angels come out of the temple, to denote that their commission is immediately from God; clothed, like the high priest, but in a more august manner, "in pure and white linen," to signify the righteousness of these judgments, and "having their breasts girded," to shew their readiness to execute the Divine commands, "with golden girdles," as emblems of their power and majesty. Bp. Newton.

7. And one of the four beasts gave &c.] One of the four living creatures, chap. iv. 6, the representatives of the Christian church, delivered into their hands the vials or vessels, the symbols of the judgments which they were to execute. Pyle.

8. And the temple was filled with smoke] In the same manner as the tabernacle, when it was consecrated by Moses, Exod. xl. 34, and the temple, when it was dedicated by Solomon, 1 Kings viii. 10, were both filled with a cloud and the glory of the Lord, so that neither Moses nor the priests could enter therein: a further proof of the majestick presence and extraordinary interposition of God in the execution of these judgments. Bp. Newton.

Anno DOMINI 96. and no man was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven angels were fulfilled.

CHAP. XVI.

2 The angels pour out their vials full of wrath. 6 The plagues that follow thereupon. 15 Christ cometh as a thief. Blessed are they that watch.

AND I heard a great voice out of the temple saying to the seven angels, Go your ways, and pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

2 And the first went, and poured out his vial upon the earth; and there fell a noisome and grievous sore upon the men which had the mark of the beast, and upon them which worshipped his image.

3 And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea; and it became as the blood of a dead man: and every living soul died in the sea.

4 And the third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters; and they became blood.

5 And I heard the angel of the waters say, Thou art righteous, O Lord, which art, and wast, and shalt be, because thou hast judged thus.

6 For they have shed the blood of saints and prophets, and thou hast given them blood to drink; for they are worthy. Anno DOMINI 96.

7 And I heard another out of the altar say, Even so, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments.

8 And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the sun; and power was given unto him to scorch men with fire.

9 And men were ‖ scorched with great heat, and blasphemed the name of God, which hath power over these plagues: and they repented not to give him glory. ‖ Or, burned.

10 And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the seat of the beast; and his kingdom was full of darkness; and they gnawed their tongues for pain,

11 And blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their sores, and repented not of their deeds.

12 And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

13 And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — saying to the seven angels, — pour out &c.] In obedience to the Divine command, the seven angels come forth to "pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth;" and as the trumpets were so many steps and degrees of the ruin of the Roman empire, so the vials are of the ruin of the Roman church. Bp. Newton.

2. — and there fell a noisome and grievous sore] The first vial is poured out "upon the earth," as the hail and fire of the first trumpet, chap. viii. 7, "were cast upon the earth." It produces "a noisome and grievous sore," and in this respect resembles the sixth plague of Egypt, Exod. ix. 10. Bp. Newton.

In the prophetick style, both publick and private vices, and their consequences, are frequently compared to bodily distempers. Pyle.

3. — and it became as the blood of a dead man:] Became as congealed blood, so that no creature could live in the sea. The description seems taken from the plagues of Egypt; in one of which, Exod. vii. 20, 21, "all the waters were turned to blood, &c." The general meaning of these figurative expressions seems to point out some very great mortality and slaughter. Lowman.

5. — the angel of the waters] It was a prevailing opinion in the East, that a particular angel presided over the waters, as others did over other elements and parts of nature. Mention was before made, chap. xiv. 18, of "the angel who had power over fire." Bp. Newton.

6. — thou hast given them blood to drink;] Thou hast inflicted on them the punishment they have so justly deserved, and given them blood to drink, by a plentiful effusion of their own. Lowman.

8. And the fourth angel — upon the sun;] As the fourth trumpet affected "the sun," chap. viii. 12, so likewise the fourth vial is "poured out upon the sun." An intense heat ensues, and men blaspheme, &c. Whether by this intense heat of the sun be literally meant, uncommon sultry seasons, scorching and withering the fruits of the earth, and producing pestilential disorders; or, figuratively, a most tyrannical and exorbitant exercise of arbitrary power, by those who may be represented as "the sun" in the firmament of the beast, time must discover. When the events shall take place, and these things shall all be fulfilled, not only these prophecies of the vials shall be better understood, but also those of the trumpets, to which they bear some analogy and resemblance. Bp. Newton.

10. And the fifth angel poured out &c.] This is some great calamity which shall fall upon Rome itself, "the seat of the beast," and shall darken and confound the whole antichristian empire. But still the consequences of this plague are much the same as those of the foregoing one; for the sufferers, instead of "repenting of their deeds," are hardened like Pharaoh, and still persist in their blasphemy and idolatry, and obstinately withstand all attempts at reformation. Bp. Newton.

12. — upon the great river Euphrates;] The punishment figuratively represented by this sixth vial is drying up the river Euphrates, so famous as a boundary against the invasions of the Eastern nations, that they might have an easy passage to invade their neighbours; signifying that a way should be prepared for the enemies of this antichristian kingdom, to break in upon it. Lowman.

Whether by Euphrates be meant the river so called, or only a mystical Euphrates, as Rome is a mystical Babylon: and, whether by the kings of the East be meant the Jews in particular, or any Eastern potentates in general, can be matter only of conjecture, and not of certainty or assurance, till the event shall make the determination. Whoever they be, they appear to threaten the destruction of the kingdom of the beast; and therefore, the agents and emissaries of popery, ver. 13, 14, "of the dragon," the representative of the devil, "and of the beast," the representative of the antichristian empire, "and of the false prophet," the representative of the antichristian church, "unclean spirits like frogs," are employed to oppose them, and stir up the princes and potentates of their communion to make their united and last effort in a religious war. Bp. Newton.

13. — like frogs] Frogs, in ancient authors, are symbols of impurity, vainglory, imposture, flattery, and impudence, as Pliny, Philo, and many others observe. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 96.

14 For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

[a] Matt. 24. 43.

15 [a] Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame.

16 And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.

17 And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying, It is done.

18 And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great.

19 And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remem-

[b] Jer. 25. 15. brance before God, [b] to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

20 And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found.

Anno DOMINI 96.

21 And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

CHAP. XVII.

3, 4 A woman arrayed in purple and scarlet, with a golden cup in her hand, sitteth upon the beast, 5 which is great Babylon, the mother of all abominations. 9 The interpretation of the seven heads, 12 and the ten horns. 8 The punishment of the whore. 14 The victory of the Lamb.

AND there came one of the seven angels which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come hither; I will shew unto thee the judgment of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters:

2 With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication.

3 So he carried me away in the spirit into the wilderness: and I saw a woman

---

15. Behold, I come &c.] As these must of necessity be times of great trouble and affliction, an exhortation is here inserted, by way of parenthesis, of the suddenness of these judgments, and of the blessedness of watching and of being clothed and prepared for all events. Bp. Newton.

16. — into a place called — Armageddon.] The meaning of this name has been variously conjectured. According to some, it is compounded of two words which signify 'the mountain of Mageddo or Megiddo;' a place which was famous in the history of God's people for several memorable slaughters, Judg. v. 19; 2 Kings ix. 27; and which therefore became a proverbial expression for a place of destruction and mourning. Lowman, Pyle. Others conjecture that the name Armageddon means a dry, barren, mountainous, desert country, such as was thought by the Jews to be the abode of unclean spirits. This meaning of the word accords with what is said at ver. 12—14. Schleusner.

17. — poured out his vial into the air; &c.] The seventh vial is poured out "into the air," the seat of Satan's residence, who is emphatically styled, Eph. ii. 2, "the prince of the power of the air;" so that this last period shall not only complete the ruin of the kingdom of the beast, but will also shake the kingdom of Satan every where. Of this vial, as indeed of all the former, the completion is gradual; and the immediate effects and consequences are "voices and thunders, &c.:" these portend great calamities. "And there was a great earthquake:" great earthquakes in prophetick language signify great changes and revolutions; and this is such an one, as men never felt or experienced before. Bp. Newton.

19. And the great city was divided &c.] Not only "the great city is divided into three parts" or factions, but "the cities of the nations fall" from their obedience to her. Her sins are remembered before God, and, like another Babylon, she will soon be made to drink of the bitter cup of His anger. Nay, not only "the cities fall," but (ver. 20) even the works of nature, "the islands" fly away, and the "mountains are not found," which is more than was said before, (chap. vi. 14,) that "they were moved out of their places," and can import no less than an utter extirpation of idolatry. Bp. Newton.

21. — great hail — about the weight of a talent:] Great hail often denotes the judgments of God; and the weight of it, here represented, "about the weight of a talent," or about 100lbs, is a strong figure to denote the greatness and severity of God's judgments. But still the men continue obstinate, and "blaspheme God because of the plague of the hail;" they remain incorrigible under the Divine judgments, and shall be destroyed before they will be reformed. Bp. Newton.

Chap. XVII. As the seventh seal and the seventh trumpet contained many more particulars than any of the former seals, and former trumpets, so the seventh vial contains more than any of the former vials; and the more we consider, the more we shall admire the structure of this book in all its parts. The destruction of the antichristian empire is a subject of such importance that the Holy Spirit has thought fit to represent it under a variety of images. It was declared before, in general, (chap. xiv. 8,) "Babylon is fallen;" but this is a catastrophe deserving of a more particular description, both for a warning to some and a consolation to others. But, before the description of her fall, there is given an account of her state and condition, that there may be no mistake in the application. Bp. Newton.

Ver. 1. — I will shew unto thee the judgment of the great whore &c.] Thus ancient Babylon, which was seated on the great river Euphrates, is described by Jeremiah, Jer. li. 13, as "dwelling upon many waters;" and hence the phrase is borrowed, and signifies, according to the angel's own explanation, ver. 15, ruling over many peoples and nations. Neither was this an ordinary prostitute; for with her "the kings of the earth have committed fornication," ver. 2, as Tyre, Is. xxiii. 17, "committed fornication with all the kingdoms of the world." Nay, not only kings, but inferiour persons, "the inhabitants of the earth, have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication;" as it was said of ancient Babylon, Jer. li. 7, "the nations have drunken of her wine, therefore the nations are mad." Fornication, in the usual style of Scripture, signifies idolatry. Bp. Newton.

3. — I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet coloured beast,] A woman sitting on a beast is a lively and significative emblem of a church or city, directing and governing an empire. Cities, it is well known, in painting and sculpture, as well as in prophetick

Anno DOMINI 96. sit upon a scarlet coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns.

4 And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet colour, and † decked with gold and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand full of abominations and filthiness of her fornication:

† Gr. gilded.

5 And upon her forehead was a name written, MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF ‖ HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH.

‖ Or, fornications.

6 And I saw the woman drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus: and when I saw her, I wondered with great admiration.

7 And the angel said unto me, Wherefore didst thou marvel? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and ten horns. Anno DOMINI 96.

8 The beast that thou sawest was, and is not; and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition: and they that dwell on the earth shall wonder, whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth.

---

language, are often represented in the form of women: and Rome herself is exhibited in ancient coins, as a woman sitting on a lion. Here the beast is scarlet coloured, for the same reason that the dragon was, chap. xii. 3, "a red dragon," to denote his cruelty, and in allusion to the distinguishing colour of the Roman emperours and magistrates. The beast is also "full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns," so that this is the very same beast which was described in the former part of chap. xiii. and the woman in some measure answers to the two-horned beast or false prophet; consequently the woman is not Pagan but Christian Rome, because Rome was become Christian, before the beast had completely seven heads and ten horns, that is, before the Roman empire experienced its last form of government, and was divided into ten kingdoms. The woman is arrayed too in "purple and scarlet colour," ver. 4, this being the colour of the popes and cardinals, as well as the emperours and senators of Rome. She is also "decked with gold and precious stones and pearls;" and who can sufficiently describe the pride and grandeur and magnificence of the church of Rome in her vestments and ornaments of all kinds? She has further "a golden cup in her hand, &c." to signify the specious and alluring arts, by which she bewitches and incites men to idolatry, which is abomination and spiritual fornication. Bp. Newton.

5. And upon her forehead was &c.] Lewd women used to have their names written on their doors, and sometimes on their foreheads. Lowman.

—— MYSTERY, BABYLON &c.] This is a mystical or figurative personage, meaning, under the name and character of Babylon, a power like that of ancient Babylon, a chief promoter of idolatry, by whose authority it was propagated among many nations of the earth. Lowman.

—— MYSTERY,] This mystery is what St. Paul calls the mystery of iniquity, the setting up of a religion pretending to be a mighty mystery, as if it were the only mystery of godliness, the true mystery of God. As if it were thus, She pretends to have a mystery, but she is indeed the mother of whoredoms and abominations of the earth. Daubuz.

Her name "mystery" can imply no less than that she dealeth in mysteries, her religion is a mystery of iniquity, and she herself is mystically and spiritually "Babylon the Great;" and it is indeed a mystery that a Christian city, professing and boasting herself to be the city of God, should prove another Babylon in idolatry and cruelty to the people of God. Bp. Newton.

—— THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS] That is, polluting herself with the grossest idolatry, and corrupting the nations with the same profane worship. Bp. Hurd.

This part of the description can with no propriety be accommodated to Rome before it had embraced the faith of Christ; because, however addicted to the worship of idols that city may have been during its unconverted state, it cannot justly be charged with labouring to spread the same infection to others. But it cannot be denied, that Papal or Christian Rome has been sedulously bent on nothing more, than on extending its religion with the same zeal the ancient Romans did their arms, and by the same methods too, even those of violence and persecution towards all opposers. Bp. Hallifax.

6. — drunken with the blood &c.] This might indeed be applied both to Pagan and Christian Rome, for both have in their turns cruelly persecuted the saints and martyrs of Jesus: but the latter is more deserving of the character, as she has far exceeded the former both in the degree and duration of her persecutions. Bp. Newton.

—— I wondered &c.] It is a very just observation of the learned Vitringa, that St. John by this woman could not possibly mean the heathen Rome, because he was no stranger to the heathen persecution of Christians; he himself had lived to see them, and he could not be surprised at them. But, to find a power professedly Christian drunk with the blood of the saints, might well astonish him. Pyle.

8. The beast that thou sawest &c.] The mystery of the beast is first explained; and the beast is considered first in general, under a threefold state or succession, as existing, and then ceasing to be, and then reviving again, so as to become another and the same. "He was, and is not, and shall ascend, &c." A beast in the prophetick style is a tyrannical idolatrous empire, and the Roman empire was idolatrous under the heathen emperours, and then ceased to be so for some time under the Christian emperours, and then became idolatrous again under the Roman pontiffs, and so has continued ever since. It is the same idolatrous power revived again, but only in another form; and all the corrupt part of mankind, whose names are not enrolled as good citizens in the registers of heaven, are pleased at the revival of it; but, in this last form, it "shall go into perdition," it shall not, as it did before, cease for a time and revive again, but shall be destroyed for ever. Bp. Newton.

9. — here is the mind which hath wisdom.] This is a proclamation to require attention to a thing which must not barely be heard and heeded, but also seriously considered and studied. Here is a secret to be revealed and explained; so that he that hears it, must have wisdom, and employ it, to consider attentively what is proposed. Daubuz.

—— seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth.] This interpretation of the angel leaves no doubt that the persecuting power, of which this is the prophecy, was to be some empire of which the city of Rome was to be the capital or seat. Rome was as well known by its situation on seven hills, as by its name of Rome itself. 'The city on seven hills' was never mistaken for any other city; Roman authors have so fully determined the sense of it. Lowman.

'The city on seven hills' is so characteristick of Rome, that the name itself could not have pointed it out more plainly. Bp. Hurd.

Anno DOMINI 96.

10 And there are seven kings: five are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he must continue a short space.

11 And the beast that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seven, and goeth into perdition.

12 And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast.

13 These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast.

14 These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: [a] for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.

[a] 1 Tim. 6. 15. chap. 19. 16.

Anno DOMINI 96.

15 And he saith unto me, The waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire.

17 For God hath put in their hearts to fulfil his will, and to agree, and give their kingdom unto the beast, until the words of God shall be fulfilled.

18 And the woman which thou sawest

10, 11. — there are seven kings: &c.] In the style of prophecy, kings mean kingdoms, or forms and states of government. Daniel interprets the beasts in his prophecy to mean kings, that is, kingdoms, empires, or distinct governments, Dan. vii. 17, 23. Lowman.

Of these forms of government, "five are fallen," are already past, "and one is," the sixth is now subsisting. The five fallen are kings, consuls, dictators, decemvirs, and military tribunes; as they are enumerated and distinguished by the two greatest Roman historians, Livy and Tacitus. The sixth is the power of the Cesars or emperours, which was subsisting at the time of this vision. Although an end was put to the imperial name by the Ostrogoths, yet a new form of government was not erected till Rome fell under the power of the Eastern emperour, and the emperour's lieutenant, the exarch of Ravenna, dissolved all the former magistracies, and constituted a duke of Rome, to govern the people, and to pay tribute to the exarchate of Ravenna. Rome had never experienced this form of government before, and this seems to be "the other," which in the Apostle's days "was yet to come, and when he cometh, he shall continue a short space." For Rome was reduced to this tributary dukedom about A.D. 566, and the city revolted to the pope from the Eastern emperour in A.D. 727: which is "a short space" in comparison with the imperial power which had preceded for five hundred years, and with the papal power which has followed for above one thousand years. Still it may be matter of doubt whether this was a new form of government, Rome having been still subject to the Greek emperour's deputy, the exarch of Ravenna; and, according as this is determined, "the beast that was and is not," that "was" while idolatrous, and "was not" while not idolatrous, will appear to be the seventh or the eighth. If we reckon this a new form, "the beast that now is," is "the seventh;" if we do not reckon this a new form, the beast is "of the seven;" but whether he be the seventh or the eighth, he is the last form and "goeth into perdition." It is clear that the sixth form of government, subsisting in St. John's time, is the imperial, and the form which succeeded to that in Rome and continued for a long time, can be no other than the papal. Bp. Newton.

12. And the ten horns which thou sawest &c.] The ten horns signify the ten kingdoms of Europe, into which this western empire shall be broken, by the wars and devastations brought on it by the barbarous nations. This, the angel says to St. John, shall happen long after your time. And, about the very same period in which these European princes shall be rending each his kingdom from the empire, and setting up an independent power of his own, this idolatrous church power, this eighth beast, will be, by subtile degrees, raising itself to a heighth that will domineer over them all, and bring them into the old heathen idolatries under a Christian dress. Pyle.

—— one hour] What we translate "one hour," should rather have been rendered 'at the same hour or point of time,' as several learned interpreters have observed. Lowman.

Ten, in prophetick language, does not always mean a precise number, but is used as a certain number for an uncertain, to express in general several or many; so that there seems no necessity of finding a precise number of ten different kingdoms erected on the ruins of the Roman empire. Still several interpreters have reckoned up precisely the number ten. The following are those enumerated by the illustrious Sir I. Newton. 1st, The kingdom of the Vandals and Alans in Spain and Africa. 2nd, Of the Suevians in Spain. 3rd, Of the Visigoths. 4th, Of the Alans in Gaul. 5th, Of the Burgundians. 6th, Of the Franks. 7th, The kingdom of Britain. 8th, Of the Huns. 9th, Of the Lombards. 10th, The kingdom of Ravenna. Lowman.

13, 14. These have one mind, &c.] These kings of the European nations will be seduced and persuaded into so high an opinion, and thence into such dread of this apostolical church government, that they will lend all their arms and join their civil powers in support of it, and force the consciences of Christians to comply with it, and implicitly submit to it. But Christ, by the ministry and steady obedience of His faithful servants, will at length totally subdue this persecuting power. For He is that King of saints, to whom shall be given the "dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heavens," as Daniel hath foretold, Dan. ii. 44; vii. 13, 24—27. Pyle.

15. — are peoples, and multitudes, &c.] See note at ver. 1. So many words in the plural number fitly denote the great extent of the power and jurisdiction of Rome; and it is a remarkable peculiarity of this government, different from all others, that its authority is not limited to its own immediate subjects, and confined within the bounds of its own dominions, but extends over all countries and kingdoms professing the same religion. Bp. Newton.

16. And the ten horns &c.] For the comfort of the faithful it is revealed that these very nations, who will thus support the idolatry and persecution of the beast for a time, will at length grow sensible of her extravagant claims and grievous oppressions, and will not only withdraw their protection from her, but use their power against her, will strip her of her ornaments and riches, expose her to shame, and bring her to destruction by fire and sword, and all the calamities of war. Lowman.

17. For God hath put in their hearts &c.] For God hath permitted the kings of the earth to support the idolatry and persecution of the beast for a limited time: but, when the word of prophecy shall be finished, then He will put it in their hearts to fulfil His farther will, in the destruction of that power which they before supported. Lowman.

—— until the words &c.] Alluding perhaps particularly to the words of Daniel, at chap. vii. 25, 26. Bp. Newton. See note there.

18. And the woman which thou sawest &c.] Although little doubt can remain what idolatrous church is meant by "the whore of Babylon;" yet for the greater assuredness, the angel explains that "the woman is that great city, &c." And what city,

Anno DOMINI 96. is that great city, which reigneth over the kings of the earth.

CHAP. XVIII.

2 Babylon is fallen. 4 The people of God commanded to depart out of her. 9 The kings of the earth, 11 with the merchants and mariners, lament over her. 20 The saints rejoice for the judgments of God upon her.

AND after these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with his glory.

2 And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, [a] Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird.

[a] Chap. 14. 8.

3 For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the ‖ abundance of her delicacies.

‖ Or, power.

4 And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues.

Anno DOMINI 96.

5 For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities.

6 Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works: in the cup which she hath filled fill to her double.

7 How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her: for she saith in her heart, I sit a [b] queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow.

[b] Is. 47. 8.

8 Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire: for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her.

9 And the kings of the earth, who

---

at the time of this vision, reigned over the kingdoms of the earth, but Rome? She has ever since reigned over the kings of the earth, if not with temporal, yet at least with spiritual authority, having far exceeded in the arts of government all the cities both of ancient and modern times. Bp. Newton.

Chap. XVIII. This chapter represents another angel sent from heaven, to reveal the sure judgments of God on these enemies of the pure Christian religion, and to foretell their sure destruction, which was to be effected in as eminent a manner, as God ever punished Babylon or Tyre, the ancient enemies of true religion. This part of the prophecy is very fit and proper for the general design of it, to warn and caution good Christians against the corruption of the time and age in which they live, to give them consolation in their sufferings through hope, under the protection of God, of deliverance in a proper time, and of a glorious reward in the end. Lowman.

Ver. 1—3. And after these things I saw &c.] After this account of the state and condition of spiritual Babylon, there follows a description of her fall and destruction, in the same sublime and figurative style which Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, have employed to foretell the fall of ancient Babylon and Tyre, the types and emblems of this spiritual Babylon. A mighty and glorious angel descends from heaven, and proclaims as before, chap. xiv. 8, the fall of Babylon, and, together with her punishment, the crimes which deserved it, her idolatry and wickedness. Bp. Newton.

2. — the habitation of devils,] This expression seems taken from Is. xiii. 21. "Satyrs shall dance there;" the word "satyrs" there being, in the Greek, demons or devils. Bp. Newton.

3. For all nations have drunk &c.] The cause of her judgment or fall is here assigned. She who, as a church of Christ, should have been the teacher and preserver of pure religion and morality, had become the seducer and corrupter of the nations and their kings, and had set the example of that insolent luxury, disposing them to irreligion, which it was her duty to oppose. Dean Woodhouse.

—— and the merchants of the earth &c.] As the destruction of Rome is here compared to the destruction of Tyre, we easily see how proper it is to describe the sins of Rome by figures taken from the sins of Tyre. The profit of trade created a commerce between that city, then the chief mart of the world, and all nations; so that Tyre spread her luxury and superstition far and wide through all parts of the world, with her trade. Rome in like manner corrupted distant nations, by rewarding her votaries with considerable wealth, encouraging their ambition and luxury; and thus, like Tyre of old, made her corruptions general, and almost universal. Lowman.

4. — Come out of her, my people,] In similar terms the Prophets called upon God's people to flee from Babylon, Is. xlviii. 20; lii. 11; Jer. l. and li. Pyle.

6. Reward her even as she &c.] By the laws of the Jews, some offences were punished by retaliation. In the case of theft, the law required the thief to restore double. It is in allusion to this, that the punishment of Rome for her idolatry and persecution is here represented. Lowman. This command is rather to be considered as a prediction, that the evil she had done to others will be returned upon her. Daubuz.

The language of prophecy often seems to authorize what it only foretells, and to command that which it barely permits: thus in many passages, and in this amongst others, nothing more is intended to be expressed than the certainty of the event. Bp. Hurd.

7. — I sit a queen,] The same imagery is used in Is. xlvii. 7; which prophecy contains the Divine judgment on the literal Babylon. Dean Woodhouse.

8. — she shall be utterly burned] Fire, in prophetick language, implies utter destruction. It is the corruption, the superstition, and usurped dominion of Rome, which is to be utterly destroyed. Dean Woodhouse.

9. And the kings — shall bewail &c.] After the solemn declaration of the fall of Rome, and her destruction by fire, are set forth the consequences of her fall, the lamentations of some, and the rejoicings of others, ver. 20. "The merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her," ver. 11—17, for there is an end of all traffick and commerce with her, whether spiritual or temporal; for it is intimated, ver. 13, that they make merchandise of the "souls," as well as bodies of men. The shipmasters and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, "weep and wail," ver. 17—19, for they can now no longer import or export commodities for her, or convey strangers to and fro; for there is an end of all her costliness. These lamentations are copied from the like lamentations over Tyre, in the 26th and 27th chapters of Ezekiel, and are equal to the most mournful strains of any of the Greek tragedians. In all, they stand afar off, ver. 10, 15, 17, as if they were unable or afraid to help and assist her. In all, they lament the suddenness of her fall, ver. 10, 17, 19, for "in one hour" is her destruction come. At the same time, her destruction is matter of joy and triumph, ver. 20, to "the holy Apostles and Prophets," for God hath avenged them on her. Bp. Newton.

Anno DOMINI 96. have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning, 10 Standing afar off for the fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come.

11 And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise any more:

12 The merchandise of gold, and silver, and precious stones, and of pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all ‖ thyine wood, and all manner vessels of ivory, and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of brass, and iron, and marble,

‖ Or, sweet.

13 And cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots, and ‖ slaves, and souls of men.

‖ Or, bodies.

14 And the fruits that thy soul lusted after are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more at all.

15 The merchants of these things, which were made rich by her, shall stand afar off for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing,

16 And saying, Alas, alas that great city, that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls!

17 For in one hour so great riches is come to nought. And every shipmaster, and all the company in ships, and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off, Anno DOMINI 96.

18 And cried when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, What city is like unto this great city!

19 And they cast dust on their heads, and cried, weeping and wailing, saying, Alas, alas that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships in the sea by reason of her costliness! for in one hour is she made desolate.

20 Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her.

21 And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great milstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all.

22 And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters, shall be heard no more at all in thee; and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee; and the sound of a milstone shall be heard no more at all in thee;

23 And the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived.

24 And in her was found the blood of prophets, and of saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth.

It is remarkable that the kings are described, in chap. xvii., as the instruments of destruction to the spiritual Babylon, yet they are here represented as mourning her fall. Dean Woodhouse.

12, 13. The merchandise &c.] The enumeration of the articles of trade, by which this Babylon is described as making an iniquitous traffick, has something in it very peculiar and striking. It proceeds by a gradation from one article to another, till it rises to the bodies and then to the souls of men. Can we avoid recalling to memory the purgatory, the penances, the commutations, the indulgences, made saleable in the corrupt Papal Church? Dean Woodhouse.

20. Rejoice over her, &c.] The same rejoicing is announced upon the prophesied fall of ancient Babylon, Jer. li. 48, and her eternal desolation is represented under the same imagery. Dean Woodhouse.

21. — took up a stone like a — milstone, &c.] Yet further to confirm the sudden fall and irrecoverable destruction of Rome, an emblem is copied and improved from Jeremiah, Jer. li. 63, 64, of a mighty angel casting "a milstone into the sea," thus declaring that with the same violence "this great city shall be thrown down," and shall never rise again. Bp. Newton.

22, 23, &c. And the voice of harpers, &c.] Musick was the entertainment of the rich and great; trade, the business of men of middle rank; preparing the necessaries of life, the employment of the lowest people; marriages, in which lamps and songs were employed, were required for peopling cities. Thus the desolation of Rome is described in such a manner, that neither rich nor poor, neither persons of the middle nor the lowest ranks, should be able to live there any more, nor should it be repeopled by new marriages, but remain desolate and uninhabited. Lowman.

The denunciation of the judgment of Babylon, contained in this speech of the angel, seems principally intended for the support and comfort of the poor persecuted Christian church, during the high zenith of the antichristian usurpation. To answer this purpose the more effectually, almost every part of the prophecy is taken from the prophetical denunciations of the Old Testament against Babylon, Tyre, &c. which were known to have been literally fulfilled. No other method could afford such perfect confidence to those who, in the new Babylon, clearly discovered the tyranny and wickedness of the old. And, from the time that Papal Rome was acknowledged to be this new Babylon, (and this discovery was made early in the twelfth century,) great must have been the encouragement derived to the Reformers from this chapter of the Revelation. Dean Woodhouse.

24. And in her was found the blood &c.] She is found full of blood and cruelty, as being guilty of the effusion of the blood of God's faithful Prophets and Apostles, and of all His saints and holy martyrs upon earth. Bp. Hall.

Anno DOMINI 96.

CHAP. XIX.

1 God is praised in heaven for judging the great whore, and avenging the blood of his saints. 7 The marriage of the Lamb. 10 The angel will not be worshipped. 17 The fowls called to the great slaughter.

AND after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God:

2 For true and righteous are his judgments: for he hath judged the great whore, which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his servants at her hand.

3 And again they said, Alleluia. And her smoke rose up for ever and ever.

4 And the four and twenty elders and the four beasts fell down and worshipped God that sat on the throne, saying, Amen; Alleluia.

5 And a voice came out of the throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great.

6 And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth.

7 Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready.

8 And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints.

9 And he saith unto me, Write, [a] Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb. And he saith unto me, These are the true sayings of God.

[a] Matt. 22. 2.

10 And I fell at his feet to worship him. And he said unto me, [b] See thou do it not: I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus: worship God: for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.

[b] Chap. 22. 9.

11 And I saw heaven opened, and be-

Chap. XIX. The prophecies which have preceded have concluded with a severe punishment of Rome for her pride, luxury, superstition, and idolatry, and especially for her cruel persecution of all who were found faithful to their duty, in preserving the purity of the Christian doctrines and worship. When Rome thus fell, as ancient Babylon, to rise no more, the heavenly church is introduced as a chorus or choir to praise God for His righteous judgments and faithfulness. This excellent hymn of praise, sung by the united voices of angels and saints, the whole assembly of heaven, strongly represents to all Christians, and to every church on earth, what grateful sense they ought to have of God's faithfulness in their protection, and of His righteous judgments in punishing the persecutors of truth and religion. Lowman.

Ver. 1. — much people — saying, &c.] In the 20th verse of the last chapter, the saints, who are stationed in grand chorus before the throne, are exhorted to rejoice over the fall of Babylon. The representation of this fall being completed, we hear the choral song. Dean Woodhouse.

—— Alleluia;] See note at Ps. cv. 45.

2. For true and righteous are his judgments:] They join praises and thanksgiving to Almighty God, for His truth and righteousness in judging this idolatrous city; His truth in fulfilling His promises and threatenings; and His righteousness in proportioning her punishment to her crimes. Bp. Newton.

3. — And her smoke rose up for ever and ever.] Which intimates, that she should be made as signal a monument of Divine vengeance, as Sodom and Gomorrah. Bp. Newton.

4. — elders — beasts] See notes at chap. iv.

7. — for the marriage of the Lamb is come, &c.] The ancient Prophets describe the favour of God to His people, by the affection of a bridegroom, Is. lxii. 5. The church is represented in the New Testament, in the same similitude of a bride, 2 Cor. xi. 2. As marriages were used to be celebrated with great joy, the marriage of the Lamb with His church is a fit emblem to shew the state of prosperity and happiness to which God will raise it, after all its sufferings for the sake of truth and righteousness. Lowman.

8. — that she should be arrayed in fine linen,] Not in worldly splendour, like the harlot; but in the pure, simple, though resplendent, garments, which are the clothing of the heavenly inhabitants. She "had washed her robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb," chap. vii. 14. By faith in her Redeemer she is become righteous, for this is "the fine linen," "the righteousness of the saints." Dean Woodhouse.

9. — he saith unto me, Write,] Write this down for the comfort of all true Christians. Pyle.

—— Blessed are they which &c.] Blessed are they who, by the grace of God, cooperating with their own endeavours, "make their calling and election sure," 2 Pet. i. 10; who, having on the wedding garment of righteousness, become entitled to "sit down to meat" in the kingdom of heaven, Luke xii. 37. Dean Woodhouse.

10. And I fell at his feet] St. John was in such rapture and ecstacy at these discoveries, that he neither knew nor considered what he did. Bp. Newton.

—— And he said — See thou do it not:] This prohibition to worship angels, or any other being besides God, is repeated in chap. xxii. 9; and, thus repeated, seems to contain a very strong injunction against that angel worship, in which a great part of the Christian world has been involved. Dean Woodhouse.

"See thou do it not:" it is not to me these thanks are due; I have been in this only fulfilling the orders of Him who is my Lord as well as yours; "worship God" therefore, to whom you ought to ascribe these revelations. Harmer.

—— I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren &c.] The sense is plainly this, Direct thy acknowledgment for this important discovery, and that religious adoration which it inspires, to God only who revealed it, and not to me, who am but thy fellowservant in this office of bearing testimony to Jesus. I said, 'in bearing testimony to Jesus:' for know that the spirit of prophecy, with which I am endowed, and by which I am enabled to foretell these great things, is but in other words "the testimony of Jesus;" it has no other use or end, but to do honour to Him; the Prophet, whether he be angel or man, is only the minister of God to bear witness to His Son; and his commission is ultimately directed to this one purpose, of manifesting the glories of His kingdom. Bp. Hurd.

11. And I saw heaven opened, &c.] We are now arrived at that signal and expected point of the prophecy, to which the preceding parts seem principally to tend, and in which they have their completion; the grand and decisive combat between the Christian and antichristian powers. Here the seven seals, the seven hold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war.

Anno DOMINI 96.

12 His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written, that no man knew, but he himself.

[c] Is. 63. 2.

13 [c] And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood: and his name is called The Word of God.

14 And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean.

15 And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron: and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God.

16 And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, [d] KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

[d] Chap. 17. 14.

17 And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God;

18 That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great.

Anno DOMINI 96.

19 And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse, and against his army.

20 And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshipped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone.

21 And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which sword proceeded out of his mouth: and all the fowls were filled with their flesh.

CHAP. XX.

2 Satan bound for a thousand years. 6 The first resurrection: they blessed that have part therein. 7 Satan let loose again. 8 Gog and Magog. 10 The devil cast into the lake of fire and brimstone. 12 The last and general resurrection.

AND I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand.

---

trumpets, the seven vials, and all their accompanying warnings unite. Heaven opens, and the white horse appears. He is the same white horse whom we saw proceeding in his career of victory, in the early part of the vision; whose rider went forth "conquering and to conquer." Faithful and true to His promises, He now gives more manifest assistance to the cause of His religion. And while He confounds and destroys His enemies, it is apparent that 'His judgments are righteous.' The epithets elsewhere applied to the Messiah, are here collected, and so arranged as to display His glory, His power, and His anger, terrible to His unrepentant foes. He leads His armies, the faithful and pure Christians, to assured victory; victory so decisive that none of His enemies escape. Dean Woodhouse.

12. — on his head were many crowns;] Our Saviour is here described in such characters, as are appropriated to Him in this book, and in the ancient Prophets. "On His head were many crowns," to denote His numerous conquests and kingdoms, which were now (chap. xi. 15) "become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ." As the Jewish high priest wore the ineffable name of Jehovah on his forehead, so He had a name written, which none could perfectly comprehend but Himself, and His name is called "the Word of God." Bp. Newton.

13. — The Word of God.] The eternal and incarnate Word of His Father. Bp. Hall.

14. — clothed in fine linen, &c.] An emblem of victory and sanctity. Bp. Newton.

16. — a name written, &c.] Having given, in the demonstration of His power, open marks and proofs of His glorious sovereignty over all creatures, He is publickly proclaimed and acknowledged, "King of kings, and Lord of lords." Bp. Hall.

17. — an angel standing in the sun;] And so conspicuous to all. This angel, in lofty strains, copied from the ancient Prophets, Ezek. xxxix. 17, 18, calls the fowls to the great slaughter of Christ's enemies. Bp. Newton.

18. That ye may eat the flesh] "Flesh," in symbolical language, signifies the riches, goods, and possessions, of any person conquered or slain. Daubuz.

19. And I saw the beast, &c.] "The beast," and "the false prophet," ver. 20, represent the enemies of Christ, the antichristian powers, civil and ecclesiastical, with "their armies gathered together," their adherents and followers combined, and determined to support idolatry, and oppose all reformation. But the principals, as deserving of the greatest punishment, are "taken and cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone;" and their followers are slain with the word of Christ, "the sword which proceedeth out of His mouth, and all the fowls are filled with their flesh;" their substance is seized for other persons, and for other uses. The design of this sublime prophecy is to shew the downfall of popery and the triumph of genuine Christianity; the true word of God will prevail over superstition and idolatry; all the powers of antichrist will be completely subdued, and the religion of Rome, as well as Rome herself, be totally destroyed. Bp. Newton.

Thus are concluded all the several representations of the fall of the corrupt church power in the Christian world; all of them being contained within the seventh seal, which is the grand period, containing all the periods of the seven trumpets, as the seventh trumpet does the periods and events of the seven vials. The battle mentioned in this chapter seems to contain the particulars of that which is shortly mentioned in chap. xvi. 16. The frequent repetition, and variety of the representations of this grand event, are owing to the vast importance of it to the Christian world. Pyle.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. And I saw &c.] After the fall of the antichristian power, there is to succeed a glorious and happy state of the Christian church upon earth; which is to be displayed at large, in the lofty figures of prophetick language, in the concluding chapters of this book. Preparatory to this glorious event, there will be, (ver. 1—3,) in the course of all-powerful Providence, a full (though not absolutely final) stop put to all wicked powers, that formerly corrupted and persecuted the true church of God; all impious hands are to be tied up from acts of violence and fraud, that thus true knowledge and pure worship, with a virtuous life,

Anno DOMINI 96.

2 And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years,

3 And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season.

4 And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

Anno DOMINI 96.

5 But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection.

6 Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years.

7 And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, in peace, charity, and prosperity, may be pursued and enjoyed without interruption. Pyle.

---

—— the key — a great chain] These two symbols expressing the commission on which the angel came. Lowman.

2. — and bound him a thousand years,] Meaning that, for this space of time, the devil, who is represented the first in the apostasy, and principal agent in the opposition to truth, righteousness, and religion, shall be fully restrained from the exercise of all influence and power, either to seduce men into errour and wickedness, or to persecute men of conscience, constancy, and faithfulness. Lowman. The church was now to enjoy purity of religion in peace, without any disturbance from those old enemies of mankind working in the children of disobedience. Daubuz.

4. And I saw thrones, &c.] Much has been written upon this promised millennium; yet little that can afford satisfaction to the judicious. The meaning of a prophecy of this kind can only be made manifest by the event which is to fulfil it. Before that time shall arrive, it is unsafe to conjecture after what method it shall be fulfilled; whether, as some prophecies, literally, or, as others, typically; whether the departed saints and martyrs shall actually be raised in their own persons, to effect so glorious a change in religion and morals; or whether, like Elijah in the person of St. John the Baptist, and David in that of Christ, they shall, as it were, live again in the persons of other saints, who shall fulfil their characters and offices, no man may presume to determine. It is best, therefore, after the example of the wise father Irenæus, respecting another prophecy, to 'wait the completion of the prediction.' Yet, if we are not permitted to descend to a special interpretation, we may receive advantage from a general view. We may confidently indulge a well-grounded expectation, that happy times, of long duration, are yet destined to the Christian church, even here upon earth. For the days will come, when, the beast and false prophet being removed, and Babylon sunk for ever, the devil, that ancient foe, will be deprived of his wonted influence, and the prophecies, both in the Old Testament and in this book of Revelation, which promise happy times, will be accomplished. Dean Woodhouse.

—— and judgment was given unto them:] That is, they received authority to reign and govern. Daubuz.

—— of them that were beheaded] Of those who resisted unto blood the heathen idolatry and practices; the constant servants of Christ, who persevered until death. Dr. Hammond.

In their opinions respecting the sense of this passage, interpreters have differed very widely. Some understand the description of this verse literally to mean, a real and proper resurrection of those who in the former states of persecution were put to death for their constancy in the profession of pure Christianity; that is, the martyrs under the heathen empire, and those who were slain under the reign of the beast. Others understand this description in a figurative sense, and conceive the prophecy to intend those persons who have the true spirit and temper of martyrs, who have the like faith, constancy, and zeal, with those whom no persecutions could prevail upon to deny the truth. Those who entertain this opinion observe, that all the expressions will very well bear this interpretation; that it is more agreeable to the style of prophecy, in particular to the style of this book, which abounds throughout in figurative descriptions; that all these expressions are used in the ancient Prophets in a figurative sense; and that unanswerable difficulties attend a literal interpretation of them. Lowman.

—— and they lived and reigned with Christ] They may well be said to live and rise again, if not in a literal sense, yet in that figurative and moral sense in which the Prophets were wont to describe the church and people of God as restored to life, and rising from death, on their deliverance from captivity, false religion, or any remarkable calamity, Ezek. xxxvii. 1—3; Hosea vi. 1, 2; Ezra ix. 8, 9; Rom. xi. 15. Pyle.

—— a thousand years.] Whether this be intended to denote the precise time of a thousand years, or only such a long time as will in the wisdom of Divine Providence bear a proportion to the time of the antichristian reign, it is not easy, neither is it at all necessary, to determine. Pyle.

It may seem that a literal and proper resurrection of martyrs, to live on earth before the general resurrection, is not a necessary sense of this prophecy, nor so natural and probable a sense, as the figurative; and that the figurative interpretation, according to which, generally, a happy state of the church on earth is intended, well answers the whole design of the prophecy. Lowman.

5. But the rest of the dead &c.] There will be no general resurrection of the bodies of mankind, till the glorious period of "a thousand years" is expired. "This is the first resurrection." Pyle.

—— the first resurrection.] Here figuratively used to express the flourishing condition of the church for that "thousand years." Dr. Hammond.

6. Blessed and holy is he &c.] Blessed will those Christians be, whose lot it is to live within that reign of truth and righteousness. And blessed will be the saints and martyrs who long before shined as examples of virtue to them. They all will be in the highest esteem with their great Master; their deaths will end in everlasting life; and, as both of them will reign, in some sense or other, in the kingdom of Christ upon earth, during the "thousand years" of purity, virtue, and peace, so will they both have their share in His eternal kingdom in heaven. Pyle.

7. — Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, &c.] After the grand period above described, so favourable to the Christian cause, shall have come to its end, another apostasy will unhappily take place. This is expressed figuratively by Satan being again loosed to deceive the nations. This new rebellion against the laws of God and the easy yoke of the Redeemer is of formidable extent. "The four corners of the earth;" that is, the nations of the whole earth, are engaged in it. It is an apostasy of a new kind, different at least from the former apostasy, in which the beast and false prophet were Satan's instruments of mischief. Beyond this we have little ground for conjecture. The enemies of the Christian church, numerous as the sands on the seashore, surround the camp of the saints, which is represented as in a state of siege. But the extinction of these enemies will be sudden, miraculous, and complete. Dean Woodhouse.

Whether the expressions here used be only figurative, or whether they contain also something literal, the substance of the pro-

Anno DOMINI 96.

8 And shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, [a] Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.

[a] Ezek. 38. 2. & 39. 1.

9 And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever.

11 And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them.

12 And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another [b] book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works.

[b] Chap. 3. 5.

13 And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and ‖ hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

Anno DOMINI 96.

‖ Or, the grave.

14 And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death.

15 And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire.

CHAP. XXI.

1 A new heaven and a new earth. 10 The heavenly Jerusalem, with a full description thereof. 23 She needeth no sun, the glory of God is her light. 24 The kings of the earth bring their riches unto her.

AND [a] I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

[a] Is. 65. 17. 2 Pet. 3. 13.

2 And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

3 And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God.

---

phecy will be to this purpose; that, after the "thousand years" of peace and purity, the church will once more be disturbed by persons like the barbarous northern nations, who have often disturbed the peace of the world by their invasions. But it will prove a fruitless attempt, and will end in their complete and final destruction; a day of righteous judgment will come, when true religion, peace, and happiness, will be inseparably united, to be free from any future disturbance or molestation. Lowman.

8. — Gog and Magog,] What nations are designed by these names, it is very hard to determine. Pyle. The nations of Gog and Magog figuratively describe the enemies of true religion and of its faithful professors. Lowman. In Ezekiel, (chap. xxxviii, xxxix.) there is a famous prophecy concerning Gog and Magog; and this prophecy in the Revelation alludes to it in many particulars. Bp. Newton. See notes at Ezek. xxxviii.

11. And I saw a great white throne, &c.] After this last conflict, and the final defeat of Satan, there follows (ver. 11—15) the general resurrection and judgment, represented in a vision of "a great white throne;" great, to shew the largeness and extent; white, to shew the justice and equity of the judgment; and "one sitting on it," who can be none other than the Son of God, to whom "the Father has committed all judgment." The dead, both small and great, (ver. 12,) of all ranks and degrees, as well those who perished at sea and were buried in the waters, as those who died and were buried on the land, are all raised, and stand before the judgment seat of God. Bp. Newton.

14. And death and hell were cast &c.] By "death and hell" being cast into the lake of fire, is meant that temporal death, which had hitherto exercised dominion over the race of men, shall be totally abolished. Bp. Newton.

—— the second death.] See note at chap. ii. 11.

15. — whosoever was not found written in the book of life] Whosoever did not appear before this impartial Judge to be a true and faithful Christian, and, as such, was registered in the rolls of the true church of Christ. Lowman.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. And I saw a new heaven &c.] The general judgment having taken place, and the heavens and earth passed away, as described in chap. xx. 11, and also by St. Peter, (2 Pet. iii. 13,) there follow "new heavens and a new earth," foretold likewise by Isaiah, chap. lxv, lxvi; but this prophecy of the Revelation does not rest on the general assurance given by former Prophets; it proceeds to a more particular description. It presents to us "the new city," "the new Jerusalem," "the bride, the spouse" of Christ. Under these images, which are perfectly accordant with many other texts of Scripture, is represented that assembly of saints purified from sin; that "glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle," which is here contrasted with the great, the impure, idolatrous city, which has been destroyed. Dean Woodhouse.

—— a new heaven and a new earth:] A happy renovation of all things, the heaven and earth refined to their utmost perfection. Bp. Hall.

The most judicious Jewish writers understand "new heavens" and "new earth" to mean a new state of happiness, in which former sorrows and troubles shall be remembered no more. Lowman.

2. And I John saw the holy city, &c.] I beheld, under the emblem of the new Jerusalem, not the literal, the Jewish city of that name, rebuilt and new adorned; but that Israel of God, by which the Prophets were wont to express the true church and worshippers of God, under Christ the Messiah. As this Christian church, in its former corrupt state, answered to the sinful Jerusalem that was to be destroyed by the Chaldeans and Romans, so now, in its reformed and pure condition, it is styled new. As it was once Babylon the Great, now it appears the great and holy city, taking in the whole body of converted Jews and Gentiles, and reformed Christians. It seemed to descend from heaven, as being founded and perfected by the Divine power and providence, and abounding in all those graces and virtues that are taught from heaven, and whereof God Himself is the infinite Fountain and Exemplar. Pyle.

3, 4. — saying, Behold, the tabernacle &c.] Declaring the fulfilment of those ancient predictions concerning this very period of the Christian church, Lev. xxvi. 11, 12; Jer. xxxi. 33; Ezek. xxxvii. 26, 27; Is. xxv. 8. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 96.

4 [b] And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

[b] Chap. 7. 17.

5 And he that sat upon the throne said, [c] Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful.

[c] 2 Cor. 5. 17.

6 And he said unto me, It is done. [d] I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. [e] I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely.

[d] Chap. 1. 8. & 22. 13.

[e] Is. 55. 1.

7 He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

8 But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.

9 And there came unto me one of the seven angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife.

10 And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God,

11 Having the glory of God: and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal;

12 And had a wall great and high, and had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel:

Anno DOMINI 96.

13 On the east three gates; on the north three gates; on the south three gates; and on the west three gates.

14 And the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and in them the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

15 And he that talked with me had a golden reed to measure the city, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 And the city lieth foursquare, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal.

17 And he measured the wall thereof, an hundred and forty and four cubits, according to the measure of a man, that is, of the angel.

18 And the building of the wall of it was of jasper: and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glass.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones. The first foundation was jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald;

20 The fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolyte; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chrysoprasus; the eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyst.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; every several gate was of one pearl: and the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass.

4. — the former things are passed away.] That is, all the evils which were seen and suffered in this world, have vanished and disappeared. Abp. Tillotson.

5. — Behold, I make all things new.] I will remove away all the impurity and imperfection of My creatures, and make all things perfect and glorious. Bp. Hall.

6. — It is done.] All things are brought to a glorious and happy consummation. Abp. Newcome.

—— I am Alpha and Omega,] The triumphant Messiah concludes His address, as He began it, (chap. i. 8, 18,) with such a representation of His eternal power and glory, as must induce His followers to trust in Him. He then (ver. 7, 8) renews His promises of inestimable rewards to those who shall diligently seek Him, and His denunciation of eternal punishments on those who pursue the wages of sin. Dean Woodhouse.

8. — the fearful, and unbelieving,] Those who have not fortitude to persevere on the encouragement of God's promises, or who want faith in the promises themselves. Lowman. Or those who rejected the Christian religion, notwithstanding the clear evidence that was offered for it, and those who out of fear should apostatize from it. Abp. Tillotson.

9. — I will shew thee the bride, &c.] I will shew thee the church of Christ, now purged from corruptions, and clothed, as it were, in true righteousness, represented, as before, (chap. xix. 7—9,) under the image of the bride and spouse of Jesus Christ. Pyle.

11. Having the glory of God:] Having a most glorious brightness, like the shining light of the Shechinah, formerly the glory of God in the temple. Lowman.

—— and her light was like unto a stone most precious,] Here follows (ver. 11—21) a very gorgeous description of the new city, which, conformably to the prophecy of Isaiah, (chap. liv. 11, 12,) is built of precious stones, with a superb costliness, beyond the reach of earthly potentates. The gems, described as decorating this glorious city, are such as have ever been in the highest request in the Eastern regions, which produce them. On the parallel passage in Isaiah, Bp. Lowth has written this judicious observation. "These seem to be general images to express beauty, magnificence, purity, strength, and solidity, agreeably to the ideas of Eastern nations, and to have been never intended to be strictly scrutinized, or minutely and particularly explained, as if they had each of them some moral and precise meaning." Dean Woodhouse.

This description of the new Jerusalem is an assemblage of the sublimest and richest imagery of Ezekiel and other ancient Prophets. Bp. Newton.

14. — had twelve foundations,] Representing that pure and uncorrupt Christianity is built on no other foundation than that of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the head corner stone, Eph. ii. 20. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 96.

22 And I saw no temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it.

[f] Is. 60. 19. 23 [f] And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof.

[g] Is. 60. 3. 24 [g] And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it.

[h] Is. 60. 11. 25 [h] And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day: for there shall be no night there.

26 And they shall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it.

27 And there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life.

CHAP. XXII.

The light of the city of God is himself. 9 The angel will not be worshipped. 18 Nothing may be added to the word of God, nor taken therefrom.

Anno DOMINI 96.

AND he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

2 In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

3 And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him:

4 And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads.

[i] Chap. 21. 23. 5 [i] And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever.

---

22. — for the Lord God &c.] The Almighty God and Jesus Christ the Lamb were present in this city in a much more glorious and perfect manner, than God was ever present in the temple of the earthly Jerusalem. Lowman.

23. — the city had no need of the sun,] The consolatory words at Is. lx. 19, 20; Zech. xiv. 6, 7, shall now receive their proper completion. As much as to say, The happiness and spiritual comforts of this religious kingdom will not be like the lights of the sun and moon to the natural world, appearing only in certain turns, with intervals of night and darkness; but the perfect knowledge of God, the light of Christ's words, and the comforts of His Holy Spirit, will be perpetual, and uninterrupted by any future intervals of ignorance, vice, and superstition. Or, in the prophetick sense of sun and moon, no princes or prelates of arbitrary temper shall rule in the church of Christ. Pyle.

24. And the nations &c.] This glorious city shall be the residence of all who have believed with the heart unto righteousness, and made confession with the mouth unto salvation. All true Christians, out of every nation and people, shall have their portion in this glory, which shall be much greater than the richest and most powerful princes ever enjoyed; greater than if we were to imagine all the princes of the earth collecting all the riches of the world together, to beautify and adorn one city. Lowman.

25. — for there shall be no night there.] The perpetual light of God's glory shall make perpetual day, the inhabitants living in the undisturbed possession of all peace, joy, and happiness. Lowman.

27. And there shall in no wise enter &c.] Though the gates of this city are always open, they are not open for every one to enter in; all who are unfit for this happiness, shall be refused entrance; it is a blessedness peculiar to the saints, and reserved for those who are registered among true Christians. Lowman.

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. And he shewed me a pure river &c.] The first five verses of this chapter are a continuation of the description of the New Jerusalem. It is further described with "the river of life" and "the tree of life," as if paradise were restored and improved. A river flowing through the midst of the streets, and trees growing on either side of the river, are wonderfully pleasing objects, especially in hot Eastern climates. Of the fruits here is such plenty and abundance, that all may freely partake of them at all seasons, and the very "leaves are for the healing of the nations," by all which is signified the blessedness of immortality, without any infirmities. Then too "there shall be no more curse," as there is and has been in this world, ever since the fall of man; but the blessed inhabitants shall enjoy the beatifick vision, shall live in the light of God's countenance, and "serve Him," and "reign for ever and ever." Bp. Newton.

2. — was there the tree of life,] Both "the water of life," ver. 1, and "the tree of life," are emblems of immortality, Gen. iii. 22. The trees of life in this description are so planted that all the inhabitants may come at the fruit freely; they yield their fruit so plentifully and so constantly that there can be no want, and even the leaves have a sovereign virtue against all sorts of indisposition. How elegantly does this represent a perfectly happy state of immortal life! Lowman.

3, 4. And there shall be no more curse: &c.] There shall be no more any thing that looks like the curse upon the first paradise; nothing of the hardships or oppressions that were felt in the foregoing times of the Christian church: but, as the Prophet Zechariah expresses the felicity of this same new Jerusalem, Zech. xiv. 11, "Men shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more utter destruction, but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited;" since every Christian in profession shall be really what he professes to be; and, as such, shall dwell under the sure protection of God and the love of Jesus Christ. Pyle.

3. — and his servants shall serve him: &c.] In these words, our employment and our happiness in a state of blessedness are expressed; but what in particular our employment shall be, and wherein it shall consist, it is impossible now to describe. It is sufficient to know, in the general, that our employment will be our unspeakable pleasure, and every way suitable to the glory and happiness of that state, and as much above the noblest and most delightful employments of this world, as the perfection of our bodies and the power of our souls will then be above what they now are in this world. Abp. Tillotson.

5. — there shall be no night] See chap. xxi. 25. Night and darkness, in the style of prophecy, signify often trouble and affliction. Light, on the contrary, expresses prosperity and joy. Lowman.

There shall be no more night to obscure our glory, as, ver. 3, there shall be "no more curse" to embitter our sorrows. Abp. Tillotson.

—— and they shall reign for ever and ever.] This being the last expression about the reign of the saints in full glory, is as general and full as it is possible to express it.

Anno DOMINI 96.

6 And he said unto me, These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy prophets sent his angel to shew unto his servants the things which must shortly be done.

7 Behold, I come quickly: blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book.

8 And I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which shewed me these things.

[b] Chap. 19. 10.

9 Then saith he unto me, [b] See thou do it not: for I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God.

10 And he saith unto me, Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.

11 He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

Anno DOMINI 96.

12 And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, [c] to give every man according as his work shall be.

[c] Rom. 2. 6.

13 I am Alpha and Omega, [d] the beginning and the end, the first and the last.

[d] Is. 41. 4. & 44. 6.

14 Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

15 For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie.

16 I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star.

17 And the Spirit and the bride say,

We have now finished the prophetick part of the vision of St. John, which concerns the destinies of the Christian church, from its beginning to its consummation in glory. That which follows is an epilogue to confirm the truth of the prophecy, containing also some exhortations to observe the contents of it. Daubuz.

6. And he said unto me, These sayings &c.] In the conclusion the angel ratifies and confirms all these particulars by a repetition of the same solemn assurance which he had before given, chap. xix. 9; xxi. 5. Bp. Newton.

7. Behold, I come quickly:] We may observe, that the angel sometimes speaks in his own person, and sometimes in the person and character of Christ, whose ambassadour and representative he was. Christ is said to "come" upon any notable and illustrious manifestation of His providence, and all these are but so many steps to prepare the way for His last coming to judgment. Bp. Newton.

8. And I John saw these things,] I John, who have committed these revelations to writing for the constant use of the church, do solemnly declare that I was an eye and earwitness to them, having really seen and heard them in the visions of prophecy, as I have faithfully related them. Lowman.

9. — See thou do it not:] See note at chap. xix. 10.

—— worship God.] Pay thy adorations to God Himself, to whom alone they are due. Pyle.

10. — Seal not the sayings &c.] The angel desires him not to seal this prophecy, as was that of Daniel, Dan. xii. 4, 9. "For the time is at hand," that is, some of the particulars were soon to be accomplished, as indeed all would in their due season and order. Bp. Newton.

11. He that is unjust, let him be &c.] The providence of God will indeed permit things to continue in this world, just as these prophecies represent the state of them. Men of evil principles and corrupt hearts will continue to commit acts of injustice and oppression, and to promote false religion and wickedness, notwithstanding all the cautions of religion, or judgments of Providence. Yet the cautions, directions, encouragements of these prophecies, and the judgments of Providence foretold in them, will have a better effect on good minds, so as to make them persevere in truth, righteousness, and holiness. Lowman. In the prophetical style, it is the same whether the thing be uttered in the past or future, or in the imperative. So that to say, "He who is unjust, let him be unjust still," is equal to saying, He that is unjust will still be so, and will not be reclaimed, whatsoever persuasive reasons may be used for his recovery. Daubuz.

—— he which is filthy,] All kinds of vice, but particularly the sin of idolatry, with all the degrees and acts of it, seem to come under this description. Daubuz.

—— he that is righteous,] He that keeps his righteousness, notwithstanding the persecution which he suffers on that account. Daubuz.

12. — and my reward is with me,] I will bring with Me due retributions to every man according to his works. Bp. Hall.

13. I am Alpha and Omega, &c.] See note at chap. i. 8. I was from the beginning with God, and shall for ever be with Him. Pyle.

14. Blessed are they that do &c.] Happy will it be for those who, by virtuous practices and steady obedience to the Divine laws, qualify themselves to enjoy the blessings of My reformed church in this world, and the glories of My future and eternal kingdom in heaven, agreeably to the consolatory promise at Is. xxvi. 1, 2. Pyle.

The books of Scripture, having set before men in the clearest light the commandments of God, as the rule of their duty, and the happiness He has promised them, as the reward of their obedience, are, at the conclusion of the whole, closed with this noble and majestick, as well as affectionate, exclamation. Dr. S. Clark.

—— the tree of life,] See note at chap. ii. 7.

15. For without are dogs, &c.] There can be no admission into this heavenly Jerusalem granted to such as remain unreclaimed in inhumanity, deceit and fraud, in uncleanness and cruelty, idolatry and falsehood. Pyle.

16. I Jesus have sent] It was not deemed sufficient to represent the angel speaking in the person of Christ, but Christ Himself also is here introduced, speaking in His own person, confirming the Divine authority of this book, and attesting it to be properly His revelation. Bp. Newton.

—— I am the root and the offspring of David,] I am both the root of David, whence he had his beginning, according to My divinity, and the branch that issued from David, according to My human nature. Bp. Hall.

—— the bright and morning star.] Giving light to the world, after a long night of ignorance and superstition; and, to those who love such light, a certain prelude and earnest of increasing knowledge and glory "shining forth more and more unto the perfect day." Dean Woodhouse.

17. — the Spirit and the bride] "The Spirit," the Holy Spirit in the hearts of believers; "the bride," the whole catholick church. Dr. S. Clark. This is the response made to the promise of Christ, "I come quickly," ver. 12. Daubuz.

Anno DOMINI 96.

Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. [c] And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

[c] Is. 55. 1.

18 For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, [f] If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book:

[f] Deut. 4. 2. Prov. 30. 6.

19 And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.

Anno DOMINI 96.

20 He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly; Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

21 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

---

18. For I testify unto every man &c.] The book being of this high importance and authority, a solemn adjuration is added by Christ Himself, that no man presume to add any thing to it, or take away any thing from it. This ought to be seriously considered by all visionaries and enthusiasts, on the one hand, who boast their own inventions as divine revelations, and by all scepticks and infidels, on the other, who depreciate the value and authority of these predictions. Bp. Newton.

From the history of the times following the publication of the Apocalypse, we collect the necessity of this prophetical injunction. For in the second century, many spurious works, falsely attributed to Apostles of Christ, were circulated in the world. And, in imitation of this "revelation of St. John," revelations of St. Peter, St. Paul, St. Thomas, and others, were fabricated. The threatenings here denounced against such fabricators, or those who shall attempt additions or alterations in this inspired work, united to that reverential care, with which the Fathers of the church preserved the true reading of the sacred books, seem to have preserved this prophecy free from material interpolation. Dean Woodhouse.

20. — saith, Surely I come quickly;] He not only attests these prophecies to be true, but says that He will come speedily to accomplish them; to which St. John answers, and in him the whole church, "Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus." Bp. Newton.

21. The grace of our Lord &c.] He closes all with the usual apostolical benediction, wishing "the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ" to the churches of Asia in particular, and to all Christians in general. The conclusion is truly excellent, as well as all the other parts of this book: and nothing could be contrived to leave these things with a stronger impression on the mind of the readers. In the whole, from first to last, appears the majesty of the Divine Revealer, "the Alpha and Omega," the beginning and the end, the author and finisher of every good work, and more especially of this. Bp. Newton.

To every mortal, short is the time leading to that awful instant, when he "shall stand before the presence of God." Be it our endeavour, by the assistance of His Holy Spirit, so to direct our thoughts and actions, that we may have trust in our Redeemer, and be of the number of those "who love His appearing," 2 Tim. iv. 8. Thus may we be enabled cordially to unite with the beloved Apostle, in his concluding prayer, "Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus." Dean Woodhouse.

The following Chapters and Verses from the Revelation of St. John are appointed for Proper Lessons, or as Portions of Scripture for Epistles, on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. I.	- - - -	St. John the Evangelist, - - -	Morning.
—— IV.	- - - -	Trinity Sunday, - - - -	Epistle.
—— VII.	- ver. 2—12, -	All Saints' Day, - - - -	Ditto.
—— XII.	- — 7—12, -	St. Michael and All Angels, - -	Ditto.
—— XIV.	- — 1— 5, -	Holy Innocents' Day, - - -	Ditto.
—— XIX.	- — 1—17, -	All Saints' Day, - - - -	Evening.
—— XXII.	- - - -	St. John the Evangelist, - - -	Ditto.

AN

INDEX TO THE HOLY BIBLE;

OR AN ACCOUNT OF

The most remarkable Passages in the Books of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS:

Pointing to the Time wherein they happened, and to the Places of Scripture wherein they are recorded.

		The first Age of the World.
Before CHRIST 4004.	Genesis I, & II.	IN the beginning God created the heaven and the earth, &c. and last of all man after his own image.
	III,	Man falls from his first state, but is promised a Saviour of the seed of the woman.
4003.	IV. 1,	The world first peopled after Adam and Eve had left paradise.
3875.	8.	About this time Cain and Abel offer sacrifice, and Abel is murdered by his brother.
3874.	V. 3,	Seth born.
3769.	6.	Enos born.
	IV. 26.	About this time men begin to call upon the name of the Lord.
3679.	V. 9,	Cainan born.
3609.	12,	Mahalaleel born.
3544.	15,	Jared born.
3382.	18,	Enoch, the seventh from Adam, born.
3317.	21,	Methuselah born.
3130.	25,	Lamech, the father of Noah, born.
3074.	5,	Adam dieth, aged 930 years.
3017.	23, 24,	Enoch in the 365th year of his age taken up to God.
2962.	8,	Seth dieth, aged 912 years.
2948.	28,	Noah, the father and Patriarch of the new world after the flood, born.
2864.	11,	Enos, the third from Adam, dieth, aged 905 years.
2769.	14,	Cainan dieth, aged 910 years.
2714.	17,	Mahalaleel, the fifth from Adam, dieth, aged 895 years.
2582.	20.	Jared, the sixth from Adam, dieth, aged 962 years.
2469.	VI. 3. 1 Pet. III. 20.	God commands Noah to preach repentance, and to build the ark, 120 years before the flood.
2448.	2 Pet. II. 5.	To Noah, aged 500 years, is born Japheth, and two years after, Shem.
2353.	Gen. V. 32. X. 21.	Lamech, the ninth from Adam, dieth, aged 777 years. He is the first man whom the
	V. 31,	Scriptures mention to have died a natural death before his father.
2349.	27.	Methuselah dieth a little before the flood, in the 969th year of his age. He was the oldest man.
	VII. 11.	The flood comes upon the earth in the 600th year of Noah's age.
		The second Age of the World.
2348.	Genesis VIII. 18,	THE flood ceaseth, and Noah, with his family, and the creatures he carried in with him, comes out of the ark, and offers a
	20.	burnt offering. At the same time God makes a covenant with Noah and his seed, promising
	IX. 9,	never more to destroy the world by water; as a token whereof he placeth the rainbow in the
	20.	cloud. The same year Noah begins to plant vines, and is drunk.
2346.	XI. 10,	Arphaxad born.
2311.	12,	Salah born.
2281.	14,	Eber born.
2247.	16.	Peleg born: so called, because in his days the earth was divided.
Before CHRIST 2234.	Gen. X. 8,	About this time Nimrod begins to exalt himself, by laying the first foundation of the Assyrian monarchy.
	11.	Nineve, the metropolis of Assyria, built.
2233.	XI. 4, 6,	About this time the posterity of Nimrod begin to build the city and tower of Babel, so
	8, 9,	called from the confusion of languages which God sent among the workmen.
2217.	18.	Reu born.
2188.		Mizraim, the grandson of Ham, leads colonies into Egypt, and layeth the foundation of
	Psal. CV. 23.	a kingdom, which lasted 1663 years; whence Egypt is called the land of Ham, and the
	Isai. XIX. 11.	Egyptian Pharaohs boasted themselves to be the sons of ancient kings.
2185.	Gen. XI. 20,	Serug born.
2155.	22,	Nahor born.
2126.	24,	Terah, Abram's father, born.
2008.	19,	Peleg, the sixth from Noah, dieth.
2007.	25.	Nahor, the ninth from Noah, dieth.
1998.	IX. 28, 29.	Noah dieth, aged 950 years, 350 years after the flood.
1996.	XI. 32,	Abram born, he was 75 years of age when his father Terah died, aged 205 years; so that
	26,	Terah begat not Abram in the 70th year of his age, but Nahor and Haran, and in the 130th year of his age begat Abram. See Acts vii. 4.
1986.	29, 30. XVII. 17.	Sarai Abram's wife, (called also Iscah) Haran Abram's brother's daughter, born ten years after her husband.
1978.	XI. 21,	Reu, the seventh from Noah, dieth.
1955.	23.	Serug, the eighth from Noah, dieth.
1925.	XIV. 1, 2, 3, &c.	About this time Chedorlaomer king of Elam subdueth the kings of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, Zeboiim, and Bela; who serve him twelve years.
1922.	XI. 31.	Terah with his family leaveth Ur of the Chaldeans, and dwells at Haran.
		The third Age of the World.
1921.	Genesis XII. 1, 2, 3,	ABRAM, after his father's decease, in the 75th year of his age, is commanded by God to enter upon the land of Canaan, which God promiseth to give unto his seed, and that in his seed (viz. Christ Jesus our Lord) all the families of the earth should be blessed.
1920.	10. Gal. III. 17. Ex. XII. 40.	In the year following a famine in the land of Canaan forceth Abram with his family to go into Egypt. From this first coming into Egypt to the departure of the children of Israel out of it are reckoned 430 years.
	Genesis XIII.	Abram and Lot in this same year return into Canaan; but the land not being sufficient for both their flocks, they part asunder. Lot goeth to Sodom. God reneweth his promise to Abram; he removeth to Hebron, and there buildeth an altar.
1913.	XIV. 4.	Bera the king of Sodom with four other kings rebel against Chedorlaomer, but are overcome by him in the valley of Siddim. Lot being taken prisoner, Abram rescueth

Before CHRIST	Genesis
1913.	XIV. 19,	him, slayeth Chedorlaomer and his confederates, and in his return is blessed by Melchisedec king of Salem, and priest of God, to
	20.	whom Abram gives tithe. The rest of the spoils, his partners having had their portions, he restoreth to the king of Sodom.
	XV. 2.	Abram complaineth for want of an heir: God promiseth him a son, and a multiplying of his seed. Canaan is promised again, and confirmed by a sign.
1911.	XVI. 1, 2,	Sarai, being barren, giveth Hagar her handmaid to Abram.
1910.	15.	Ishmael, Hagar's son, born.
1908.	XI. 13.	Arphaxad, the third from Noah, dieth.
1897.	XVII. 5.	God maketh a covenant with Abram, and in token of a greater blessing changeth his name into Abraham. As a seal of this covenant, Circumcision is ordained. Sarai her name also is changed into Sarah, and she is blessed. God promiseth them a son, and commandeth that his name be called Isaac; in him God promiseth to establish his covenant.
	XVIII.	Abraham entertaineth three angels, who renew the promise to him of having a son. God revealeth to Abraham the destruction of Sodom, with whom Abraham intercedes for Lot and his family. See Gen. xix. 29.
	XIX.	Lot is commanded, for the preservation of himself and his family, to get out of Sodom, and to flee to the mountain; but by much intreaty he obtaineth leave to go into Zoar. Sodom, Gomorrah, and all the cities in the vale of Siddim, with all the inhabitants of them, are for the most horrible sins destroyed by fire and brimstone from Heaven. The Dead sea remains a monument thereof unto this day. Lot's wife for looking back upon Sodom, contrary to God's command, is turned into a pillar of salt; and Lot himself, fearing to continue at Zoar, leaves the plain country, and betakes himself to the mountain, carrying his two daughters with him.
1896.	XXI. 2.	Isaac born in the 100th year of Abraham's
	XIX. 36.	age. Not long after to Lot are born Moab and Ammon, his sons at the same time, and his grandsons.
1892.	XXI. 9.	Hagar and Ishmael at Sarah's request are cast forth.
1878.	XI. 15.	Salah, the fourth from Noah, dieth.
1871.	XXII.	God tempteth Abraham to offer Isaac. Abraham giveth proof of his faith and obedience.
1859.	XXIII.	Sarah dieth at Hebron in Canaan in the 127th year of her age.
1856.	XXIV.	Isaac marrieth Rebekah the daughter of Bethuel, the son of Nahor, in the 40th year of his age.
1846.	XI. 11.	Shem, the son of Noah, dieth.
1837.	XXV. 24.	Jacob and Esau born in the 60th year of their father Isaac's age.
1821.	XXV. 7.	Abraham dieth, aged 175 years.
1817.	XI. 17.	Heber, the fifth from Noah, dieth: from him Abraham and his posterity were called Hebrews. Gen. xiv. 13.
1796.	XXVI. 34.	Esau, aged forty years, marrieth Judith the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Bashemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite.
1773.	XXV. 17.	Ishmael dieth, aged 137 years.
1760.	XXVII.	Jacob by his mother's instruction obtaineth the blessing from Isaac his father, which was designed for Esau. Upon which he is forced to flee into Mesopotamia, to shun his brother's
	XXVIII.	rage. Upon the way are foretold unto him in a vision the blessings of his posterity. At
	XXIX.	length he cometh to his uncle Laban's house,

Before CHRIST	Gen. XXIX.
1760.		and covenanteth to serve him seven years for his daughter Rachel, but Laban deceiveth him with Leah; the marriage week being completed, Rachel also is given him to wife, upon condition of serving seven years more.
		Of Leah are born,
1758.	32,	Reuben,
1757.	33,	Simeon,
1756.	34,	Levi,
1755.	35.	Judah, from whom the Jews receive their denomination.
1745.	XXX. 23.	Rachel, having been long barren, at length beareth Joseph: Jacob, desiring to depart, is persuaded by Laban to serve six years more for some part of his flock.
1739.	XXXI.	Jacob, after he had been twenty years in Mesopotamia, sets forward on his journey homewards, without acquainting his father or
	32.	brothers in law. Rachel stealeth her father's
	XXXII.	gods, and is pursued by Laban. Jacob by his prudence is reconciled to his brother Esau. He wrestleth with an angel at Peniel, and is called Israel.
	XXXIV.	About this time Dinah, Jacob's daughter, is deflowered by Sichem the son of Hamor. Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brethren, revenge their sister's quarrel, by putting all the males of Sichem to the sword; for which thing Jacob reproveth them.
	XXXV. 16.	Rachel is delivered of Benjamin on the way betwixt Beth-el, or Beth-lehem, and Ephrath, and dies in childbed. Some think that Job lived about this time.
	XXXVIII. 16.	Judah lieth with Thamar his daughter in law in disguise.
1729.	XXXVII.	Joseph is hated by his brethren, and is sold to merchantmen, Ishmaelites and Midianites, who carry him into Egypt, where he is sold to Potiphar an officer of Pharaoh, and by him made overseer of his house.
1718.	XXXIX.	Joseph resisteth the temptations of his master's wife; he is falsely accused by her, and
	XL.	cast into prison. He interpreteth the dreams of Pharaoh's butler and baker, which come to pass according to his interpretation.
1716.	XXXV. 28.	Isaac dieth, aged 180 years, and is buried by his sons, Jacob and Esau.
1715.	XLI. 25,	Joseph interpreteth Pharaoh's two dreams; he giveth Pharaoh counsel, and is made governor of the whole land of Egypt.
	47,	Here begin the seven years of plenty in the
	50,	land of Egypt. About this time Manasseh and Ephraim, Joseph's two sons, are born of Asenath, the daughter of Potipherah, priest of On.
1708.	54.	Here begin the seven years of famine.
1707.	XLII.	Jacob sendeth his ten sons to buy corn in
	1, 2, 3.	Egypt; they are imprisoned by Joseph for spies; but are set at liberty on condition of bringing Benjamin; and Simeon is kept as a pledge.
	XLIII.	Jacob is with much difficulty persuaded to
	XLV.	send Benjamin. Joseph maketh himself known to his brethren, and sendeth for his father by command from Pharaoh.
1706.	XLVI.	Jacob, having offered sacrifice to God for that his son Joseph is yet alive, goes with all his family into Egypt in the third year of famine, and 130th year of his age. He is seated in the land of Goshen.
1704.	XLVII.	Joseph getteth all the money, lands, and
1703.		cattle, of the Egyptians for bread; only the
1702.		lands belonging to the priests he buyeth not.
1689.	XLVIII.	Jacob adopteth Ephraim and Manasseh, and
	XLIX.	blesseth them, and all his sons: prophesieth

Before CHRIST
1689.	Genesis XLIX.	the descent of the Messiah from Judah, and dieth, aged 147 years; seventeen whereof he lived in Egypt. He is with great pomp carried into Canaan, and buried in the sepulchre of his father.
1635.	L.	Joseph on his deathbed prophesieth unto his brethren their return to Canaan; takes an oath of them to carry his bones out of Egypt, and dieth, aged 110 years. The book of Genesis endeth in the death of Joseph, containing the history of 2369 years: next to which in order of time the book of Job follows, written (as it is generally believed) by Moses.
1619.	Exodus VI. 16.	Levi dieth in Egypt, aged 137 years; he was grandfather to Moses and Aaron.
1577.	I. 8.	Here begins the bondage of the children of Israel, when a king rose up in Egypt, who knew not Joseph.
1574.	VII. 7.	Aaron born three years before his brother Moses, eighty-three years before the departure of the children of Israel out of Egypt.
1573.	I. 15, 22.	Pharaoh having in vain commanded the Hebrew midwives to destroy all the males of the Israelites, sets forth an edict, charging that they be all cast into the river.
1571.	II. 1, 5,	Moses is born, who, being hid in the flags by the river's side, is found by Pharaoh's daughter; and becomes her adopted son.
1531.	11.	Moses in the 40th year of his age, having slain an Egyptian, whom he saw contending with an Hebrew, fleeth into Midian, where he marrieth Zipporah the daughter of Reuel, or Jethro, a priest, and liveth with him forty years.
1530.	Joshua XIV. 7, 10.	Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, born.
1491.	Exodus III. 1, 2, &c.	Whilst Moses keeps his father in law's sheep at mount Horeb, God appeareth to him in a burning bush, and sendeth him to deliver Israel.
	V.	Moses and Aaron having declared to Pharaoh the message, on which they are sent unto him from God, are charged by him as heads of a mutiny, and sent away with many bad words; and more grievous labours are forthwith laid upon the Israelites.
	VII. 7.	Moses being now eighty, and Aaron eighty-three years of age, urged thereunto by God, return again to Pharaoh, where the magicians by their sorcery, imitating the miracle of Aaron's rod turned into a serpent, make Pharaoh more obstinate than he was before.
	Psalm LXXVIII. CV.	Wherefore God by the hand of Moses lays ten plagues upon the Egyptians.

The fourth Age of the World.

1491.	Exodus XII. 11,	UPON the fourteenth day of the first month, (which was May the 4th, upon Monday with us) in the evening, the passover is instituted.
	29, 41.	Upon the fifteenth of the same month, at midnight, the firstborn of Egypt being all slain, Pharaoh and his servants make haste to send away the Israelites; and they, the selfsame day wherein they were let go out of bondage, being the complete term of 430 years from the first pilgrimage of their ancestors, reckoning from Abraham's departure out of Charran, take their journey, and march away, being 600,000 men, beside children, and come to Rameses, from whence by several encampings they come to the Red sea, the Lord conducting them in a pillar of a cloud by day, and in a pillar of fire by night. They carry Joseph's bones with them.
	Numbers XXXIII.
	Exod. XIV.	At the Red sea Pharaoh with his host overtakes them; Moses divides the waters with his rod, and the children of Israel pass through on dry ground unto the desert of Etham; whom when Pharaoh and his army would needs follow, they are all overwhelmed by the waters coming together at the dawning of the day, whereby the Israelites are wholly freed from the bondage of the Egyptians; whose carcases when they see floating all the sea over, and cast upon the shore, they sing a song of praise and thanksgiving unto God.
	XV.
	XVI.	Upon the fifteenth of the second month (our June the 4th, being Thursday) the Israelites come to the wilderness of Zin, which lieth between Elyma and Sinai, where for want of food they murmur against God and their leaders: about the eventide God sends them quails, and the next morning rains upon them manna from heaven; and upon that kind of bread they lived afterward by the space of forty years, even till they came to the borders of the land of promise. An omer of it is preserved for a memorial.
	XVII. 1,	At Rephidim, which was the eleventh place of their encamping, the people murmur for want of water: Moses gives them water by striking the hard rock in Horeb with his rod.
	8, 9, &c.	The Amalekites falling upon the rear of the Israelites are discomfited by Joshua, whilst Moses holds up his hands to God in prayer.
	XX.	God publisheth his Law contained in the Ten Commandments with a terrible voice from mount Sinai.
	XXI. XXII, &c.	The people being in great fear, God gives them sundry other laws, all which being written in the book of the covenant, Moses proposeth them to the people: which done, rising early in the morning, he builds an altar at the foot of the mountain, and sets up twelve statues, according to the twelve tribes of Israel, and sends twelve young men of the firstborn (whom the Lord had consecrated to himself as ministers of those holy things, before the Levitical Priesthood was ordained) which offer sacrifice, first for sin, and then for thanksgiving, to the Lord: and when Moses had read the Book of the Covenant, he takes the blood of the calves and goats so offered, and with water, scarlet wool, and hyssop, sprinkles the book therewith, and all the people, or those twelve statues representing them; and so performs a solemn covenant between God and his people.
	XXIV.
	9, 18.	Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy men of the elders of Israel, go up into the mount, and there behold the glory of God: the rest returning, Moses with his servant Joshua abides there still, and waits six days, and upon the seventh day God speaks unto him, and there he continues forty days and forty nights (reckoning those six days which he waited for the appearance of the Lord) eating no meat all that while, nor drinking water; (Deut. ix. 9.) where he receives God's command touching the frame of the tabernacle, the priests' garments, their consecration, sacrifices, and other things comprised in this and the six following chapters.
	XXV, &c.
	XXXI. 18.	At the end of forty days God gives Moses the two tables of the Law in stone, made by God's own hand, and written with his own finger; bidding him withal quickly to get him down, for that the people had already made to themselves a molten calf to worship.
	XXXII.	Moses by prayer pacifieth God, and goes down from the mount, and seeing the people keeping

Before CHRIST 1491.	Exodus XXXII.	a festival in honour of their idol in the camp, he breaks the tables of the law at the foot of the mount: for which the Jews keep a solemn fast unto this day.
	20, 28.	Moses, having burnt and defaced the idol, puts 3000 of the idolaters to death by the hands of the Levites.
	XXXIV.	God commands Moses to frame new Tables of stone, and to bring them with him into the mount: Moses brings them the next morning, and whilst he stands in the cleft of a rock, God passeth by, and sheweth him a glimpse of his glory.
	10.	God renews his covenant with his people, and upon certain conditions gives them his Laws again.
1490.	XXXIX.	In the first six months of this year, the tabernacle, the ark of the covenant, the altar, the table of shewbread, the priests' garments, the holy ointments, the candlestick, and other utensils and vessels belonging to the sacrifices, are finished in the desert at mount Sinai, and are brought unto Moses.
	XL.	The tabernacle is set up and anointed with holy oil. Aaron and his sons are consecrated for the priesthood.
	Lev. X.	Nadab and Abihu for offering strange fire are struck dead in the place by fire from heaven.
	Numb. VII.	The princes of the tribes present their offerings toward the dedication of the tabernacle. God speaketh to Moses from the mercy seat.
	IX.	The second passover is instituted.
	X. 29.	Jethro, who is also called Hobab, brings his daughter Zipporah, with her two sons, Gershon and Eliezer, which were left with him, to his son in law Moses: and having congratulated his and the whole people of Israel's deliverance out of bondage, he openly declares his faith and devotion toward the true God. By his advice Moses imparts the government of the people to some others, and ordains magistrates for the deciding of lesser causes.
	Exodus XVIII.
	Numb. XI.	Moses complains to God of the over great burden of his government; God, to ease him of his charge, gives him for assistance the court of seventy Elders.
	31.	The people lust for flesh, God gives them quails in wrath; and sends withal a most grievous plague among them.
	XII.	God rebukes the sedition of Miriam and Aaron, and maintaineth Moses his right.
	XIII.	From the wilderness of Paran, near Kadesh-barnea, twelve men are sent (among whom are Caleb and Joshua) to discover the land of Canaan. Returning, they bring with them a branch of a vine, with a cluster of grapes upon it; ten of the twelve so sent speak ill of the country, declare it barren, and magnify the cities for their strength, and the giantly stature of the inhabitants.
	XIV.	The people, terrified with this relation, are about to return into Egypt, from which Caleb and Joshua endeavouring to dissuade them are like to be stoned. At this God is so provoked, that he threatens to destroy them; but is prevailed upon by Moses his prayers to spare them. Nevertheless he denounceth that all who are now twenty years old and upward (except Caleb and Joshua) shall die in the wilderness. The men who raised the evil report are all destroyed by sudden death. Some endeavouring to enter upon the promised land, contrary to the command of God, are smitten by the Amalekites and Canaanites.
Before CHRIST 1489.	Deut. I. 46.	In this place, viz. Kadesh-barnea, the Israelites continue many days; but that in some places they continued many years, appeareth, for that in the space of thirty-seven years there are but seventeen encampings mentioned.
	Numb. XXXIII.	To their long continuance in Kadesh, and the encampings from thence, all that we find delivered in the 15th and four next ensuing chapters of Numbers seems to refer; as how
1471.	XVI.	Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, for raising a mutiny against Moses and Aaron, were swallowed alive into the earth, and 250 of their associates; and how the people, murmuring against Moses and Aaron for the calamity which had befallen their brethren, were destroyed by God to the
	XVII.	number of 14,700 men; and how twelve rods being brought by twelve princes, and laid in the sanctuary, Aaron's rod only budded, and brought forth almonds, and was laid up before the Ark, for a memorial to those who should afterwards be given to rebellion.
1452.	XX.	In these thirty-seven years the Israelites by seventeen encampings having compassed the hill country of Seir and Edom, they come to the wilderness of Zin in the first month of the 40th year after their departure out of Egypt.
	1,	Here Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron, dieth.
	2,	The people again for want of water murmur against Moses and Aaron, whom when God had commanded to call water out of the rock only by speaking to it, Moses, being moved in his mind through impatience and diffidence of the thing, speaks something, whatever it was, unadvisedly with his lips, and strikes the rock thrice with Aaron's rod,
	12,	and thereby draws water from it; but for transgressing God's command they are both debarred from entering into the land of Canaan.
	23, 28.	In the fifth month of this year Aaron dieth at Mosera, on the top of mount Hor, at the age of 123 years, leaving his son Eleazar his successor in the high priesthood.
	XXI. 5, 9. John III. 14. 1 Cor. X. 9.	The people murmuring are plagued with fiery serpents, whereof many die; upon their repentance God commands that a brasen serpent be made, and lifted up upon a pole, that as many as look on it may live.
	Numb. XXI.	About the latter end of this year, all those who at Kadesh-barnea mutinied against God being wholly extinct and dead, the Israelites pass over Zared, and come to the borders of Moab at Ar, and at length they arrive at Bamoth, a valley in the country of the Moabites, and pitch at mount Pisgah.
1451.	21,	Sihon king of the Amorites, refusing them passage through his country, is slain, and the Israelites possess his land.
	33.	Og the king of Basan, coming out against Israel, is destroyed with all his people, not one left alive, and his country possessed by the Israelites.
	XXII. 1,	After these victories the Israelites set forward, and encamp in the plains of Moab.
	2, 3,	Balak king of Moab, considering what the Israelites had done to the Amorites, fears, lest under pretence of passing through his country they should possess themselves of his whole kingdom; takes counsel with the princes of the Midianites his neighbours, and sends for Balaam a soothsayer out of Mesopotamia to come
	Josh. XXIV. 9.	and curse the Israelites, promising him great

Before CHRIST 1451.

Joshua XXIV. 9. rewards for his labour; purposing afterwards to make war upon them.

Numb. XXII. 7, 35. Balaam, forewarned of God, refuseth at first to come; but being sent for a second time, he importuneth God to let him go, and goes with a purpose indeed to curse Israel; but God, offended thereat, makes the dumb ass of this wizard, on which he rode, speaking in a man's voice, to reprove his folly.

2 Pet. II. 15, 16.

Numb. XXIII. Deut. XXIII. 5. Joshua XXIV. 10. Balaam twice offers sacrifice, and would fain have cursed Israel, to gratify Balak therein; but being forced thereto by the Spirit of God, instead of cursing, he blesseth them altogether; foretelling what felicity attended them, and what calamities should befall their enemies.

Numb. XXV. 1, 2, 3, &c. By his advice the women of Moab and Midian are set on work to turn the Israelites away to idolatry. Wherefore God commands Moses first to take all the ringleaders of this disorder, and to hang them up before the sun, and then gives order to the judges to put to death all such as had joined themselves to Baal-peor. Last of all God sends a plague upon the people, whereof die 23,000 men in one day: which added to them which were hanged and killed with the sword amount in all to 24,000.

Deut. IV. 3. Psalm CVI. 28. Rev. II. 14. 1 Cor. X. 8.

Numb. XXV. 7. Psalm CVI. 30. Phinehas the son of Eleazar, by killing Zimri, the chief of his father's family, and Cozbi the daughter of Zur, a prince of the Midianites, appeaseth the wrath of God, and the plague ceaseth. God therefore settleth the high priesthood for ever upon the house of Phinehas, and commands that war be made upon the Midianites.

Numb. XXV. 13, 17.

Numb. XXVI. Moses and Eleazar, by God's command, in the plain of Moab, near unto Jordan, over against Jericho, number the people from twenty years old and upwards, and find them to be 601,730 men, beside the Levites, whose number, reckoning them from one month old and upwards, come to 23,000; and then Moses receives command for the parting of the land of promise among the Israelites.

XXVII. 1, 2, The daughters of Zelophehad have their father's land parted among them, for want of issue male; this occasions the law for succession in heritages to be made.

12, 23. Deut. III. 26, 27, 28. God signifies to Moses that he shall die; and Joshua thereupon is declared to be his successor; upon whom Moses lays his hands, and gives him instructions. Several laws are made.

Numb. XXXI. Twelve thousand of the Israelites under the command of Phinehas vanquish the Midianites, and put to the sword all the males among them with their five princes, and among them

Josh. XIII. 21, 22. Zur, the father of Cozbi, and Balaam the wizard; but they save the women alive; at which Moses is wroth, and commands that every male child, and all the women, except such as be virgins, be killed.

Numb. XXXII. Deut. III. Joshua XIII, & XXII. The lands which belonged to Sihon and Og, namely, all from the river Arnon to mount Hermon, Moses divides, and gives to the tribes of Reuben and Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh; so that their possessions lay on this side Jordan; nevertheless they assist the rest of the tribes in all their wars, till they have subdued the Canaanites, and possessed the promised land.

Deut. XXVII. Moses commands the people, that in their passage over Jordan they shall set up great

Before CHRIST 1451.

Deut. XXVII. XXVIII. stones, and engrave the Ten Commandments on them, with the form of blessing upon mount Gerizim, and of cursing on mount Ebal; exhorting them to observe the law of God, by setting before their eyes the benefits that would ensue thereon.

XXIX. He also renews the covenant made by God with them and their children on mount Horeb, and again persuades them to keep that covenant by all the blessings and curses, which would undoubtedly follow the keepers or

XXX. breakers of it: yet with a promise of pardon and deliverance, if at any time, having broken it, they shall repent them of their sin; and tells them further, that God had therefore thus declared his will unto them, to the end that none hereafter offending shall pretend ignorance.

XXXI. Moses, having written this law, delivers it to the priests the sons of Levi, and the elders

XXXII. of the people, to be kept; the same day also he writes his most excellent song, and teaches the same to the children of Israel to be sung; and having finished the book of the law, he takes order to have it laid up in the side of the ark.

XXXIII. Moses, now drawing near to his end, blesseth every tribe in particular by way of prophecy, save only the tribe of Simeon.

XXXIV. In the twelfth month of this year he goes up to mount Nebo, and from thence beholds the land of promise, and there dieth, aged 120 years; the body of Moses God translates out of the place where he died into a valley of the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor, and there burieth it; nor doth any man know the place where he laid it unto this day. The Israelites mourn for him thirty days.

Here ends the Pentateuch, or five books of Moses, containing the history of 2552 years and an half, from the beginning of the world; and the book of Joshua begins with the 41st year after the departure of the children of Israel out of Egypt.

Josh. II. Joshua, being confirmed in his government by God, sends forth spies from Shittim to the city of Jericho, who, being harboured by Rahab, are privily sent away, when search is made for them.

III. Upon the tenth day of the first month, (April 30) to wit, the same day that the Paschal Lamb was to be chosen out of the flock, the Israelites under the conduct of Joshua, a type of Jesus Christ, go up out of the river Jordan into the promised land of Canaan, a type of a more heavenly country. They pass through the river on dry ground, the waters being for that present divided; for a memorial of which

IV. miraculous passage Joshua sets up twelve stones in the very channel of Jordan, and taking twelve other stones out of the midst thereof sets them up at Gilgal, the place where they next encamp.

V. The day following Joshua renews the use of circumcision, which had been omitted forty years.

10, Upon the fourteenth day of the same month, in the evening, the Israelites celebrate their first passover in the land of Canaan.

11, 12, 13. Next day after the Passover manna ceaseth. Our Lord Jesus, Captain of his Father's host, appears to Joshua, the typical Jesus, before Jericho, with a drawn sword in his hand, and promiseth there to defend his people.

Before CHRIST 1451.	Joshua VI.	Jericho, the ark of the Lord having been carried round about it, is taken the seventh day, the walls thereof falling down at the sound of the priests' trumpets; all the inhabitants are put to the sword, except Rahab and her family.
	VII.	The Israelites besiege Ai, and are smitten by their enemies, God having abandoned them for sacrilege committed by Achan; Achan's sin being discovered by the casting of lots, and himself found guilty, he is stoned to death, and together with his children and
	VIII.	cattle, burned with fire. God being pacified hereby, Ai is taken by ambushment, and utterly destroyed.
	30, 35.	On mount Ebal, according to the law made, is an altar erected, and the Ten Commandments engraven on it; the blessings and cursings are repeated on mount Ebal and mount Gerizim, and the book of the law read in the ears of the people.
	IX.	The kings of Canaan combine against Israel; only the Gibeonites craftily find a way to save their own lives, by making a league with them; but are afterwards deputed to the servile offices of the house of God.
	Joshua X.	Adoni-zedek king of Jerusalem, with the kings of Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon, hearing that Gibeon is fallen off from them, join their forces together, and besiege it; but Joshua raiseth the siege, pursueth those five kings, and smiteth them as far as Azekah, the Lord in the mean while killing more with hailstones from heaven, than the Israelites with their swords. Joshua commands the sun to stand still over Gibeon, and the moon over the valley of Ajalon, by the space almost of one whole day, until the Israelites are fully avenged of their enemies. The five kings hide themselves in a cave at Makkedah; from whence they are brought forth, scornfully used, and hanged.
1450.	Exodus XXIII. 10, 11.	From the autumn of this year, wherein, after the failing of manna, they began to till the ground, the rise of the sabbatical years is to be taken.
1445.	Josh. XIII.	Joshua, now grown old, is commanded by God to divide all the land on the west of Jordan among the nine tribes remaining, and the other half tribe of Manasseh. The Lord and his sacrifices are the inheritance of Levi.
	XI.	The rest of the kings, with whom Joshua had waged war for six years, resolve to set upon him with united forces: but Joshua comes upon them unawares, slays them, and possesseth their countries.
	21.	Joshua now roots out those giants, the Anakims, with their cities, out of the hill-
	XIV.	countries, out of Hebron, Debir, and Anab, and generally out of all the mountains of Ju-
	XV.	dah and all Israel. And having gotten the whole land into his hands, he divides it among the children of Israel according to their tribes; and the land rested from war.
1444.		The first sabbatical year, or year of rest; from hence the year of Jubile, or every fifty years' space, is to be reckoned.
	XVIII.	The tabernacle is set up at Shiloh, (thought to be the same with Salem,) where it continued 328 years.
	XXII.	The Reubenites, Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, with a blessing are sent home to their possessions on the other side of Jordan.
Before CHRIST 1443.	Joshua XXIII. XXIV.	Joshua gathers together all Israel, exhorts them to obedience, briefly recites God's benefits to them, reneweth the covenant between them and God, and dieth 110 years old.
1413.	Judges II. 7.	After the decease of Joshua, and the elders who outlived him, and who remembered the wonders which God had wrought for Israel,
	III. 6, 7.	there succeeds a generation of men which forget God, and mingle themselves with the Canaanites by marriage, and worship their idols. In this time of anarchy and confusion, when every man did that which seemed right in his own eyes, all those disorders were committed, which are reported in the five last chapters of the Book of Judges; to wit, the idolatry of Micah, and the children of Dan; the war of the Benjamites, and the cause thereof. God, being highly provoked, gives
	8,	them up into the hands of Cushan king of Mesopotamia; which first calamity of their's holds them but eight years.
1405.	9,	Othniel, the son of Kenaz, and son in law to Joshua, stirred up by God as a judge and
	10,	avenger of his people, defeats Cushan, and delivers the Israelites out of bondage; and the land rested forty years after the first rest which Joshua procured for them.
1343.	12,	Othniel dying, the Israelites fall again to sin against God, and are given over into the hands of Eglon king of Moab, who, joining with the Ammonites and the Amalekites, overthrows the Israelites, and takes Jericho; and this second oppression continueth eighteen years.
1325.	15,	Ehud the son of Gera is raised up by God
	30,	to be an avenger of his people; for feigning a message to Eglon, he runs him into the belly with his dagger; then getting away, he gathers all Israel into a body on mount Ephraim, and slays 10,000 of the most valiant men of Moab: and the land resteth forty years after the former rest obtained by Othniel.
	31.	After him Shamgar, the son of Anath, slayeth 600 Philistines with an ox goad, and he also avengeth Israel.
1305.	IV. 1, 2, 3,	The Israelites, after the death of Ehud returning to their old sin, are given up by God into the hands of Jabin king of Canaan; and this thraldom of their's continueth twenty years.
1285.	4.	Deborah, the wife of Lapidoth, a prophetess, who at this time judgeth Israel in mount Ephraim, and Barak of the tribe of Naphtali, being made captain of the host of Israel, in sight of Megiddo overcome Sisera, captain of Jabin's army, whom Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite afterwards kills in her own tent. For a memorial of which victory Deborah composeth a song; and the
	V. 31.	land resteth forty years after the former rest obtained by Ehud.
1252.	VI.	The Israelites sinning again are delivered into the hands of the Midianites; which
1245.		fourth thraldom lasteth seven years. Hereupon they cry unto God for help, and are reproved by a prophet. Then Gideon the son of Joash, of Manasseh, is by an angel from God sent to deliver them. He first overturns the altar of Baal, and burns his
	VII.	grove, and is called Jerubbaal. He out of 32,000 men, which came unto him, chooseth only (God so commanding) 300; but with them he puts to flight all the host of

Before CHRIST
1245.	Judges VII. VIII.	the Midianites, whom the Ephraimites afterwards pursue, and slay their princes, Oreb and Zeeb. Gideon having pacified the Ephraimites, who complain that they were not called to the battle at first, passeth the river Jordan, and defeats the remainder of the Midianitish army; he chastiseth also the men of Succoth and Penuel, who had refused him victuals in his journey; and slays the two kings of the Moabites, Zebah and Zalmunna. After which great victories the Israelites offering to settle the kingdom upon him and his posterity, he refuseth it; but receiving their golden earrings, he makes thereof an ephod, which afterwards proves an occasion of idolatry. The Midianites being thus vanquished, the land enjoys rest forty years, after the former rest restored to them by Deborah and Barak.
1236.	33.	Gideon dieth, and the Israelites, falling back again to idolatry, worship Baal-berith for their God.
	XI. 1, 2, &c.	Abimelech the son of Gideon, (begotten upon his concubine) purposing to get to himself the kingdom which his father had refused, slayeth seventy of his brothers all upon one stone; and having by the help of the Shechemites got to be made king, Jotham the youngest son of Gideon, who only escaped Abimelech's fury, from the top of mount Gerizim expostulates with them the wrong they had done to his father's house; and by way of a parable foretells their ruin; which done, he flies, and dwells quietly in Beerith.
1235.
1233.	22,	Abimelech having reigned three years over Israel, Gaal a Shechemite conspires against him; which being discovered to him by Zebul, he utterly destroys the city of Shechem, and puts all the inhabitants to the sword, and burns the temple of their god Beerith with fire; from thence he goeth and layeth siege to Thebez, where he is knocked on the head with
	50.	a piece of a milstone, cast upon him by a wo-
	2 Sam. XI. 21.	man from the walls, and then killed outright by his armourbearer.
1232.	Judges X. 1, 2,	Tolah the son of Puah, after Abimelech, judgeth Israel twenty-three years.
1210.	3,	Jair the Gileadite succeeds Tolah, and judgeth Israel twenty-two years.
1206.	8,	The Israelites, forsaking again the true God, fall to worship the gods of several nations, and are given up into the hands of the Philistines and Ammonites; which fifth thraldom lasteth eighteen years. Upon their repentance, and abandoning their idols, at length they obtain mercy.
1188.	15.
1187.	XI.	Jephthah the Gileadite, being made captain of the host of Israel, subdues the Ammonites; before the battle he vows his daughter unawares to be offered in sacrifice, and afterwards performs it. He puts to the sword 42,000 Ephraimites, who had behaved themselves insolently against him, and judgeth Israel six years.
	XII. 6,
1182.	8,	Ibzan the Bethlehemite succeeds Jephthah, and judgeth Israel seven years.
1175.	11,	Elon the Zebulonite succeeds Ibzan, and judgeth Israel ten years.
1164.	13.	Abdon the Ephraimite succeeds Elon, and judgeth Israel eight years.
1156.	1 Sam. IV. 18. Judges XIII. 1.	Eli the high priest (in whom the high priesthood was translated from the family of Eleazar to Ithamar's) succeeds Abdon, and judgeth Israel forty years. The Israelites again provoke the Lord to anger, and he delivers

Before CHRIST
	Judges XIII. 2,	them into the hands of the Philistines. This sixth thraldom begins seven months after Eli's entering upon the government, and lasteth forty years, even till seven months after his death, when the ark was brought back again.
1155.	24.	Samson the Nazarite, as an angel had foretold, is born at Zora.
1137.	XIV. 4.	Whilst Eli the high priest executeth the office of a judge in civil causes under the Philistines, Samson takes an occasion to quarrel with them, by marrying a woman of Timnath; for having on the day of his betrothing propounded a riddle to the Philistines, and laid a wager, his wife tells them the meaning of it: enraged hereat, he goes and slays thirty men of Askelon, and gives them the suits of raiment which he had stript off their bodies, in performance of the wager which he had lost, and returns home to his father.
1136.	XV.	Samson again in harvest time goes to present his wife with a kid at her father's house, but finds her given away in marriage to another man; Samson resolves to be revenged; he catcheth 300 foxes, and tying firebrands to their tails turns them all into the cornfields of the Philistines, and into their vineyards and olive gardens, and sets them all on fire. The Philistines take Samson's wife and father in law, and burn them; Samson in revenge slays a great multitude of them, and sits down upon the rock Etam, from whence being taken by 3000 of the Jews, and by them delivered into the hands of the Philistines, he slays of them a thousand men with the jawbone of an ass; in which place he is miraculously refreshed, when thirsty and ready to faint.
1117.	XVI.	Samson is betrayed by Delilah his concubine, bereaved of the hair of his Nazariteship, and delivered to the Philistines; who put out his eyes, and bind him with chains of brass. The Philistines gather together to offer sacrifice to Dagon their god, and Samson is brought to make them sport; whose hair being grown, and his strength in a great measure restored, he takes hold of the two chief pillars whereon the house stood (wherein were the princes of the Philistines, and a great multitude of people) and pulls down the house, killing more men at his death, than he did in all his life time. So he died, having judged Israel in the days of the Philistines twenty years.
1116.	1 Sam. IV.	The Israelites take up arms against the Philistines, but with very ill success, for they lose 4000 men in one battle. Then they send for the ark of the covenant from Shiloh, and cause it to be brought into the camp. The Philistines, seeing now all lie at stake, encourage one another to behave themselves like men that day; and so falling on, they slay of the Israelites 30,000 men. The ark of God is taken, and Hophni and Phinehas, priests, and sons of Eli, are slain. Of all which when tidings are brought to old Eli, frighted thereat, he falls from his chair, and breaks his neck, in the 98th year of his age.
	V.	The Philistines, having brought the ark into Ashdod, set it in the house of Dagon their god. But when Dagon had been found two several times fallen groveling before it, and broken in pieces, and the inhabitants of the place sorely plagued, they remove it from thence to Gath, and from thence to Ekron.
	VI.	But the same plagues and judgments follow-

Before CHRIST
1116.	1 Sam. VI.	ing wherever it went, after seven months, by the advice of their priests, they send home the ark again with presents and gifts into the land of the Israelites, and it is brought to Beth-shemesh, where 50,070 men are smitten for looking into the ark. From hence
	VII.	it is carried to the house of Abinadab in Kirjath-jearim, who sanctifieth his son Eleazar to keep it.
1096.		After twenty years the Israelites by Samuel's persuasion solemnly repent at Mizpeh, and upon their conversion God by thunder from heaven delivers them from the invasion of
	13.	the Philistines, who are subdued, the hand of the Lord being against them all the days of Samuel.
1095.	VIII.	Samuel being grown old takes for his assistants in the government his sons; by whose ill management of affairs, the Israelites require
	Hosea XIII. 10.	a king to be given them; whereupon God gives them a king in his wrath, to wit, Saul the son of Kish, after Samuel had judged Israel twenty-one years. Saul is privately anointed
	1 Sam. XI. 12.	by Samuel, and afterward publickly proclaimed king at Mizpeh. About a month after Jabesh-gilead is besieged by Nahash king of the Amorites, and the siege raised by Saul: whereupon the whole congregation of Israel, coming together at Gilgal, again proclaim Saul king.
1085.	XVII. 12.	David the son of Jesse the Ephrathite born at Beth-lehem-judah thirty years before he succeeded Saul in the kingdom. He was his father's youngest son.
1063.	XVI. 11.	God rejects Saul, and sends Samuel to Beth-lehem, there to anoint David king, whom Saul ever after extremely persecuteth.
	XVIII.	Yet Jonathan, Saul's son, loveth him, and oftentimes rescueth him from Saul's cruelty.
	XXIV. XXVI.	David having Saul twice in his power forbears to hurt him.
1060.	XXVII.	David, fearing he may some time or other fall into the hands of Saul, flies to Gath unto king Achish, carrying with him 600 men;
1056.		and having obtained of him the town of Ziklag to dwell in, he continueth one year and four months in the land of the Philistines: from whence he invadeth the countries of the Geshurites, Gezrites, and Amalekites, and puts to the sword all, both men and women, not leaving one alive to carry the news thereof to king Achish.
1055.	XXVIII.	Achish, proposing to make war upon the Israelites, takes David along with him in that expedition, to whom, whilst he is upon his
	1 Chron. XII.	march with his 600 men, repair a great many others of the tribe of Manasseh, and join with him.
	1 Sam. XXVIII.	Saul, seeing the army of the Philistines, is in great fear, and (Samuel being now dead) goes to En-dor to consult with a witch there; the woman raiseth an apparition of Samuel, and Saul receives from it that dreadful doom, The Lord will deliver Israel, together with thyself, into the hands of the Philistines.
	XXIX.	The princes of the Philistines growing jealous of David, he and his company early the next morning leave the army, and return to Ziklag.
	XXXI.	The armies join battle; and the Israelites are defeated; the three sons of Saul are slain, and he himself falls on his own sword.
	2 Sam. I.	Three days after an Amalekite brings Saul's crown, and the bracelet that was upon his arm,

Before CHRIST
1055.	2 Sam. I.	and presents them to David, professing that, finding him fallen upon his sword, he had killed him outright, and taken the crown from off his head: whereupon David causeth him to be put to death for stretching forth his hand to slay the Lord's anointed, and lamenteth the death of Saul and Jonathan his son in a
	II.	funeral song. David, having asked counsel of God, goes up to Hebron with those that are about him, where he is anointed king by
	1 Chron. XII. 23.	the men of Judah, his own tribe, in the 30th year of his age; and there he reigns seven years and six months.
	2 Sam. II. 8,	Abner, who was captain of the host to Saul, carries Ishbosheth Saul's son to Mahanaim, and there makes him king over the rest of Israel.
1053.	12.	After two years there arise frequent and mortal skirmishes between a party of men on David's side, headed by Joab David's nephew, and another party on Ishbosheth's side, whereof Abner is chief; but the former still grows stronger and stronger.
1048.	III. 6,	Abner, affronted by Ishbosheth, revolteth to David, and deals with the chief men of Israel to transfer the whole kingdom unto him, and this in the hearing of the Benjamites.
	22.	He comes to David, and is kindly received; returning he is treacherously murdered by Joab. David much laments his untimely death, and buries him at Hebron.
	IV. 2.	Baanah and Rechab murder their lord and master Ishbosheth, as he lieth resting himself upon his bed. They bring his head to David, who in detestation of their treason causeth them immediately to be put to death.
	V. 1 Chron. XI.	The captains and elders of all the tribes coming to Hebron anoint David a third time, and make him king over all Israel.
1047.	2 Sam. V. 5, 6, 7, 9.	David with all Israel marcheth to Jerusalem against the Jebusites, and taketh the fort of Zion, and calls it the city of David, and making Jerusalem the seat of his kingdom, reigneth there over all Israel thirty-three years.
1045.	VI. 1 Chron. XVI. 2 Chron. I. 4.	The ark of the covenant, which in the first sabbatical year was brought from Gilgal to Shiloh, is this year, being also a sabbatical year, brought from Kirjath-jearim out of the house of Abinadab, and placed at Zion; 30,000 choice men of Israel attending it, and singing the 68th Psalm.
1044.	2 Sam. VII. 1 Chron. XVII. XXII.	David now dwelling in his house of cedar, which he had built, and living in a full and perfect peace, imparteth to Nathan the prophet his purpose of building a house for God; but is answered from God, that this was a work which should be done, not by him, because he was a man of blood, and trained up in war; but by his son Solomon, a man of
	2 Sam. VIII. 1 Chron. XVIII.	peace, which should be born unto him. The time which passeth from hence till the birth of Solomon is spent in wars; wherein David subdues the Philistines, Edomites, Amalekites, Moabites, Ammonites, and Syrians, and extends his kingdom to the utmost bound of
	Gen. XV. 18. Deut. XI. 24. 1 Kings IV.	that land which had been promised to the seed of Abraham, and never possessed by any of them, save only by David and his son Solomon.
1035.	2 Sam. XI. 1 Chron. XX.	At the end of this year Joab, going with the army against the Ammonites, besiegeth Rabbah the metropolis of Ammon, whilst David takes his ease at Jerusalem, and there commits adultery with Bath-sheba the wife of

Before CHRIST
		Uriah the Hittite, who was then in the army, whom he also procures to be slain.
1034.	2 Sam. XII.	The child so gotten in adultery is born. David is convicted by Nathan the prophet of his sin, and he repents; in testimony whereof he composeth the 51st Psalm. The child dieth.
1033.	25.	Bath-sheba becomes now David's wife, and beareth him a son, unto whom, as unto one who should prove a man of peace, God gives the name of Solomon; and, as to one beloved of the Lord, the name of Jedidiah.
	1 Chron. XXII. 9.
1032.	2 Sam. XIII. 1,	Amnon, David's eldest son, deflowereth his sister Thamar.
1030.	23.	Absalom avengeth his sister Thamar, and killeth his brother Amnon; for which thing he fleeth to Geshur in Syria, where he continues three years with king Talmai, his grandfather by the mother's side.
1027.	XIV.	After three years' exile he returns to Jerusalem, where he continues two years, before the
1025.		king his father admits him into his presence, and is reconciled to him.
1024.	XV.	This rebel son having got chariots and horses, and a guard to attend him, insinuates himself into the favour of the people, and steals away their hearts from his father David.
1023.	7.	The next year following, under pretence of a vow, he obtaineth leave to go to Hebron, where by Ahithophel's counsel he breaks out into open rebellion, and forceth his father to fly from Jerusalem.
	XVII.	Ahithophel, because his counsel in all matters is not followed by Absalom, hangs himself.
	XVIII.	Absalom, having lost 20,000 men, fleeth, and a bough of an oak catching hold of him, he there hangs, and is run through by Joab.
1017.	XXIV.	David, tempted by Satan, commandeth Joab to number the people: God, offended thereat, sends a prophet to put three plagues
	1 Chron. XXI.	to his choice, viz. the famine, sword, or pestilence. David chooseth to fall into the hands of a merciful God, rather than into the hands of men. So God sends a pestilence; whereof 70,000 men die in one day. The angel being about to destroy Jerusalem, God bids him hold his hand; for he beholds David repenting in sackcloth, and intreating him to spare the innocent people, and to turn his hand upon himself, and upon his father's house.
1016.	1 Kings XIV. 21.	Rehoboam is born unto Solomon by Naamah an Ammonitish woman.
1015.	1 Kings I.	David being now seventy years of age, and broken with continual cares and wars, grows so weak and feeble, that clothes can no longer preserve heat in him. Therefore Abishag a young virgin is appointed to keep him warm. Adonijah, seeing his father thus declining, by the assistance of Joab and Abiathar makes himself king: which David understanding, he presently commands Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, with other great men, to anoint Solomon king. Adonijah hearing this betakes himself to the sanctuary, and is pardoned.
	II.	David, having given instructions to his son Solomon, dieth; after he had reigned in Hebron seven years and six months, and thirty-three years in Jerusalem over all Israel.
	III. 1.
1014.	2 Chron. VIII. 11.	Pharaoh king of Egypt gives his daughter in marriage to Solomon.

Before CHRIST
1014.	1 Kings III. 5.	The Lord appears to Solomon in a dream, and bids him ask what he will, and it shall be given him. Solomon asketh wisdom; God gives him wisdom from above, and adds thereunto riches and honour. Of this divine wisdom Solomon makes an eminent manifestation in judging between two harlots.
		The fifth Age of the World.
1012.	1 Kings VI. 1. 2 Chron. III. 1.	SOLOMON layeth the foundation of the temple in the 480th year after the departure of the children of Israel out of Egypt.
1005.	1 Kings VI. 38.	Solomon's temple finished in the eleventh year of his reign; having been seven years and an half in building.
1004.	VIII.	Solomon this year (being the ninth Jubile, and opening the fourth Millenary of the world)
	2 Chron. V, VI, VII.	with great magnificence celebrates the dedication of the temple; at which time God giveth a visible sign of his favour.
975.	1 Kings XI.	Solomon having, as it is with reason believed, forsaken his lusts and vanities, to which
	2 Chron. IX.	he had been too intemperately addicted, and written, as a testimony of his repentance, his book called, The Preacher, dieth. He reigned forty years.
	1 Kings XII.	The Israelites assemble at Shechem to crown Rehoboam, Solomon's son, king over all Israel. The people by Jeroboam sue unto him for a removal of some grievances; to whom Rehoboam, by the advice of young men, returning an harsh answer, alienates the hearts of ten tribes from him, who make Jeroboam king over them, and fall at the same time from the house of David, and from the true worship of God.
	25.	Jeroboam in the beginning of his reign repairs Shechem, destroyed by Abimelech 258 years before, and there dwells; afterwards
	XIV. 17.	going over Jordan he builds Penuel, and at length makes Tirzah the seat of his kingdom.
	XII. 26.	But fearing lest his new subjects by going to Jerusalem to worship may be induced to revolt from him, he deviseth a new form of religion, setting up two golden calves, the one at Beth-el, the other at Dan, for the seduced people to bow down unto.
	XIV.	From the time of this dismal rent Rehoboam
	2 Chron. XII.	reigneth over Judah and Benjamin seventeen years, and Jeroboam over Israel, or the other ten tribes, twenty-two years.
974.	XI. 17.	The Priests and Levites, and other Israelites who feared God, stick to Rehoboam, and maintain the kingdom of Judah three years; after which time Rehoboam falls to idolatry, and walketh no more in the ways of David and Solomon.
	1 Kings XII. 32. XIII. 2.	Jeroboam sacrificing to his calf at Beth-el, a prophet is sent unto him from God, who foretells the judgment which should one day be executed upon that altar, and the priests (viz. those whom Jeroboam had made of the lowest of the people) that served at it. Which prophecy then and there is confirmed by signs and wonders upon the king himself, and upon the altar.
971.	XIV. 25. 2 Chron. XII.	Shishak king of Egypt spoileth Jerusalem and the temple; but the king and the princes repenting at the preaching of Shemaiah the prophet, God gives them not over to utter destruction.
958.	1 Kings XV.	Abijam the son of Rehoboam succeeds his father in the kingdom of Judah, and reigns three years.

Before CHRIST
957.	2 Chron. XIII.	He obtains a great victory over Jeroboam, killeth 500,000 men in one battle, and taketh Beth-el.
955.	1 Kings XV. 8,	Asa in the 20th year of Jeroboam succeeds his father Abijam, and reigns forty-one years.
954.	25,	Nadab in the second year of Asa succeedeth his father Jeroboam in the kingdom of Israel, and reigneth not full two years.
953.	27.	Nadab at the siege of Gibbethon (a town of the Philistines) is slain by Baasha of the tribe of Issachar in the third year of Asa; and the same year having made himself king over Israel, he utterly destroyeth the whole race of Jeroboam, and reigneth twenty-four years. At this time lived the prophets Jehu, Hanani, and Azarias.
951.	2 Chron. XIV.	Asa destroyeth idolatry, and, enjoying ten years of peace, strengthens his kingdom with forts and a standing army.
941.	9.	Zerah the Ethiopian with an innumerable army invadeth Judah: Asa overcomes him, sacrificeth to God of the spoil, and maketh a solemn covenant with God. He also deposeth Maacah his grandmother, a great patroness of idolatry; bringeth into the temple those things which his father and himself had consecrated unto God, and enjoys a long peace.
	XV.
930.	1 Kings XVI. 6,	Elah the son of Baasha succeeds his father in the kingdom of Israel.
929.	8,	In the second year of his reign, and the 27th of Asa's, Zimri, one of his captains, conspires against him, kills him, and reigneth in his stead. As soon as he sits in the throne, he destroyeth the whole family of Baasha; but the army, which then lay before Gibbethon, make Omri their king, who presently besiegeth Tirzah, and taketh it; which Zimri seeing, he sets on fire the king's palace, and perisheth in the flames.
	21,	The people of Israel are now divided into two factions; one follows Tibni the son of Ginath, and endeavours to make him king;
925.	22,	the other adheres to Omri; but Tibni dying, Omri reigns alone in the 31st year of Asa.
924.	23, 24,	Omri, having reigned six years in Tirzah, removes the seat of his kingdom to Samaria, a place which he himself had built.
918.	29.	Ahab succeeds his father in the kingdom of Israel, and reigneth twenty-two years in Samaria. He did evil in the sight of the Lord above all that were before him.
914.	XXII. 41. 2 Chron. XX. 31.	Jehoshaphat succeedeth his father Asa in the fourth year of Ahab king of Israel, and reigneth twenty-five years in Jerusalem.
912.	XVII. 7.	Jehoshaphat being settled in his kingdom, and having demolished the high places and groves, in the third year of his reign he sends Levites with the princes to instruct the people in the law. God in the mean time subdueth his enemies under him.
901.	1 Kings XX.	Ben-hadad king of Syria layeth siege to Samaria, who by the direction of a prophet is beaten off, and a vast number of the Syrians slain.
899.	XXI.	Ahab, not being able to persuade Naboth to sell him his vineyard, falls sick upon it; Jezebel his wife, suborning false witnesses to accuse him of blasphemy, causeth Naboth to be stoned, and puts the king in possession of the vineyard. Whereupon the prophet Elijah denounceth judgments against Ahab and Jezebel; wicked Ahab repenting, God defers the judgment.
898.	XXII. 51.	Ahab in the 17th year of the reign of Jehoshaphat maketh his son Ahaziah his associate in the government of his kingdom.
898.	2 Kings III. 1.	Jehoshaphat also maketh Jehoram his son copartner with him; whence it is, that Jehoram the son of Ahab, who succeeded his brother Ahaziah in the kingdom of Israel, in the 18th year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, is said to have begun his reign in the second year of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat.
	I. 17.
897.	1 Kings XXII. 2 Chron. XVIII.	Ahab having got Jehoshaphat to assist him in the siege of Ramoth-gilead, before he goes, he asketh counsel of 400 false prophets, who promise him victory and success; but by Jehoshaphat's advice Micaiah a true prophet of God is consulted, who foretells his overthrow; and according to his word Ahab is slain at Ramoth-gilead, and buried at Samaria.
896.	2 Kings I. 1. III. 5. 2 Sam. VIII. 2. 2 Kings I.	Ahab being dead, the Moabites revolt from Israel, who had continued in subjection ever since king David's days. Ahaziah king of Israel, lying ill of a fall, sends to consult Baal-zebub the god of Ekron concerning his recovery. Elijah the prophet meeteth the messenger, and telleth him Ahaziah shall surely die; whereupon two captains over fifty men apiece are sent to apprehend him, and bring him before the king; Elijah calleth for fire from heaven, and destroyeth both them and their companies. A third captain with his fifty men being sent, and behaving himself submissively, Elijah goes along with him; the prophet certifies the king that he shall not come down from his bed alive.
	1 Kings XXII.	So Ahaziah dieth, having governed (partly by himself, and partly together with his father) two years.
	2 Kings III. 1.	Jehoram succeedeth his brother Ahaziah in the kingdom of Israel in the latter end of the 18th year of Jehoshaphat, and reigneth twelve years.
	II. 11.	Elijah is taken up into heaven in a fiery chariot.
892.	2 Chron. XXI. 2, 3. 2 Kings VIII. 16.	Jehoshaphat grown old gives to his sons many gifts with fenced cities in Judea; but his eldest son Jehoram he now more absolutely investeth with the throne of the kingdom in the fifth year of Jehoram king of Israel.
889.	2 Chron. XXI. 4, 5.	Jehoram now by the death of his father has the kingdom of Judah to himself, which he holds four years. He is no sooner settled in his throne, but he puts all his brethren to the sword, with many of the princes of Israel. At this time the Edomites, who ever since king David's time had lived in subjection to Judah, revolt, and (as it was foretold by Isaac) they for ever shake off his yoke. Libnah also, a city of the priests in the tribe of Judah, falls off from him about this time.
	Genesis XXVII. 40. 2 Chron. XXI.
888.	10, 11,	Jehoram following the counsel of his wicked wife Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab king of Israel, sets up in Judah, and even in Jerusalem itself, the idolatrous worship of Baal, and compels his subjects thereto; a letter
	12.	which was left for him by Elijah the prophet comes to his hands, which reproves him, and denounces all those calamities and punishments which afterwards befell him.
885.	2 Kings VIII. 25,	Ahaziah succeeds his father in the kingdom of Judah (having had part of the government bestowed upon him the year before) in the 12th year of Jehoram king of Israel, and reigneth one year in Jerusalem.
884.	28.	Jehoram king of Israel and Ahaziah king of Judah lead their armies to Ramoth-gilead

Before CHRIST
884.	2 Kings VIII.	against Hazael, who had newly succeeded Ben-hadad in the kingdom of Syria; Jehoram is dangerously wounded, and retires himself to
	IX.	Jezreel to be cured. In the mean time Elisha sendeth a young prophet with instructions to anoint Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat, the son of Nimshi, at Ramoth-gilead, king over Israel, and to open to him the will of God for the rooting out of the house of Ahab; who, being proclaimed king by the soldiers, marcheth straight to Jezreel, killeth Jehoram in the field of Naboth, and causeth Jezebel to be cast out at a window, where she is eaten by dogs.
	X.	He dispatcheth letters also to Samaria, and causeth seventy of Ahab's children to be beheaded. Then taking with him Jehonadab the son of Rechab, he comes himself to Samaria, and destroys the whole family of Ahab, and all the priests of Baal. Nevertheless, having put down the worship of Baal, he departs not from the worship of Jeroboam's golden calves, but maintains that idolatry all the time of his reign, which was twenty-eight years.
	IX.	Jehu proceeds farther, and executes the divine vengeance upon the idolatrous house of Judah; he pursues Ahaziah who fled towards Megiddo, and, overtaking him at Gur,
	X.	causeth him to be killed in his chariot. Going also to Samaria, he meeteth with forty-two of Ahaziah's kinsmen, whom he causeth to be slain.
	XI. 2 Chron. XXII. 10.	Athaliah the daughter of Ahab, seeing her son Ahaziah dead, usurps the kingdom, destroying those that had right to the succession; but Jehosheba, the daughter of king Jehoram, and wife to Jehoiada the high priest, takes Jehoash, being then an infant, and son to her brother Ahaziah, and hides him in the temple, and so saves him from that massacre which was made of the rest of the blood royal.
878.	2 Kings XI. 2 Chron. XXIII.	Jehoiada the high priest brings out Jehoash, now seven years old, and anoints him king; causeth Athaliah to be slain, and restoreth the worship of the true God, destroying the house of Baal, and commanding the idolatrous priest Mattan to be killed before his altars. Jehoash, now beginning his reign in the seventh year of Jehu, reigneth forty years in Jerusalem.
857.	2 Kings XII. 7.	Jehoash in the 23d year of his reign giveth order for the repair of the temple, committing the charge thereof to Jehoiada the high priest.
	XIII. 1.	Jehoahaz succeedeth his father Jehu in the kingdom of Israel, and reigneth seventeen years: during all which time Hazael king of Syria oppresseth him, and exerciseth all those
	VIII. 12.	cruelties upon the Israelites, which Elisha the prophet had foretold.
841.	XIII. 10.	Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, is taken into the consortship of that kingdom by his father in the 27th year of Jehoash king of Judah, and reigneth sixteen years.
840.	2 Chron. XXIV.	Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada the high priest, for reproving the people of Judah, that fall to idolatry after the decease of Jehoiada, is stoned to death in the court of the house of the Lord by the commandment of king Jehoash, who the next year after is murdered by some of
	2 Kings XII. 20.	his servants, as he lay in his bed; and Amaziah his son succeedeth him.
839.	XIII.	Jehoahaz dieth, and Jehoash his son succeedeth in the kingdom of Israel. Not long after his father's funeral he visits Elisha the prophet, then lying sick, and with many tears asketh counsel of him, who promiseth him victory over the Syrians. A dead man is brought to life by being laid in Elisha's grave.
836.	XV. 1.	Jeroboam the second is this year taken into the consortship of the kingdom of Israel by his father Jehoash, going to war against the Syrians. This is gathered from Azariah king of Judah's beginning his reign in the 27th year of this Jeroboam.
826.	XIV. 2 Chron. XXV.	Amaziah king of Judah, growing proud upon a victory obtained against the Edomites this 14th year of his reign, provoketh Jehoash king of Israel to battle. Jehoash overcomes him, and takes him prisoner, breaks down 400 cubits of the wall of Jerusalem, and, having spoiled the temple and the king's house of a vast treasure, returns to Samaria.
825.	2 Kings XIV. 23.	Jehoash dies fifteen years before Amaziah, and Jeroboam the second his son reigneth in Samaria forty-one years.
810.	XIV. 2 Chron. XXV. 2 Kings XV.	Amaziah, finding a conspiracy against him at Jerusalem, flies to Lachish, where he is murdered; after whom comes his son Uzziah, or Azariah, in the 27th year of Jeroboam the second, and reigneth fifty-two years in Jerusalem.
808.		Now is held the 13th Jubile under the two most flourishing kings; in whose times live sundry great prophets in both kingdoms; Isaiah and Joel in Judah; Jonas, Hosea, and Amos, in Israel.
	2 Kings XIV. 25.	Jonas of Gath-hepher, a town belonging to the tribe of Zebulon in Galilee of the Gentiles, (observe here the blindness of the Pharisees, John vii. 52,) was afterwards sent into
	Isaiah IX. 1. Jonah III. Matthew XII. 41.	Nineve, the metropolis of Assyria, where both king and people at his preaching repented. Jeroboam king of Israel (under whom that kingdom came to its full height of glory)
784.	2 Kings XIV. 29.	dieth; after his death all things fall into confusion, and the state is reduced to a plain anarchy, which lasteth eleven years and an half; for such an interregnum or vacancy the synchronism of Kings requires, that the six months of Zachariah the son of Jeroboam may answer the thirty-eight years and one month of Shallum, who murdered him in the 39th year of Azariah, or Uzziah, king of Judah.
773.	XV. 8,	Zachariah the son of Jeroboam, the fourth and last of the race of Jehu (as was foretold) begins his reign over Israel in the 38th year of Azariah, or Uzziah, king of Judah, and reigneth six months.
772.	10.	Shallum the son of Jabesh at the end of six months murders him in the sight of the people, and reigns one month, in the 39th year of
	Amos VII. 9.	Uzziah king of Judah. After Zachariah's death follow those direful calamities foretold by Amos the prophet.
	2 Kings XV. 14,	Menahem the son of Gadi, going from Tirzah to Samaria, killeth Shallum, wasteth Tiphsah and the borders thereof; and because the town would not open to him, he takes it, and rips up all the women with child.
771.	19,	While Menahem in these broils labours to get the possession of the kingdom, Pul king of Assyria invadeth his country, to whom Menahem giveth 1000 talents of silver, and afterwards reigneth quietly ten years.
761.	23.	Pekahiah succeedeth his father Menahem

Before CHRIST 759.	2 Kings XV. 23, 25, 27,	in the 50th year of Uzziah king of Judah, and reigneth two years. Pekah, one of his captains, kills him in his own palace at Samaria, and reigneth twenty years.
758.	32.	Jotham succeedeth his father Uzziah in the kingdom of Judah at the age of twenty-five years, and reigneth sixteen years in Jerusalem.
	2 Chron. XXVII. 5. Mic. I. 1.	Jotham subdues the Ammonites, and makes them tributary for three years. Under him and his two successors the prophets Micah and Hosea execute their prophetical office. About this time lived the prophet Nahum, and prophesied the destruction of Nineve.
742.	2 Kings XVI. 1.	Ahaz succeedeth his father Jotham in the 17th year of Pekah king of Israel, and reigneth sixteen years.
	2 Chron. XXVIII. 1.	This year Rezin king of Syria and Pekah king of Israel are confederate against Judah, which strikes a great terror into that nation:
	Isai. VII.	but unto Ahaz God by the prophet Esay sends a gracious message, with a promise of deliverance; for a sign whereof (when the incredulous king, being bid to ask a sign, refused to do it) God gives him the promise of Immanuel to be born of a virgin. Rezin and Pekah now lay siege to Jerusalem, and therein to Ahaz, but are beaten off; Ahaz is no sooner delivered from his enemies, but he
741.		forsakes God his deliverer, and falls to idolatry. Wherefore God gives him over into the hands of the king of Israel, who slays of the men of Judah 120,000 in one day, with a great many of the nobility, and carrieth away 200,000 captives; but these by the advice of the prophet Oded are released and sent home.
739.	2 Kings XV. 30.	Hoshea the son of Elah murders Pekah king of Israel, and gets the kingdom into his own hands; it is said, in the 20th year of Jotham, that is, from the time that Jotham first began to reign, which is the same with the fourth of Ahaz his son. Hoshea, by reason of the tu-
730.		mults and disorders which ensued, cannot be said to have reigned till nine years after, the state continuing all that time in great confusion, without any form of government.
728.	XVII. 3.	Shalmaneser king of Assyria comes up against Hoshea, and makes him to serve him, and pay him tribute.
726.	XVIII. 1. 2 Chron. XXIX, XXX, XXXI.	Hezekiah succeedeth his father Ahaz in the kingdom of Judah; he destroyeth idolatry, and prospers; he also celebrates a solemn passover, and reigneth twenty-nine years in Jerusalem; his father had made him in the last year of his reign his assistant in the government.
725.	2 Kings XVII. 4.	Hoshea king of Israel, having consulted with So king of Egypt, refuseth to pay tribute to Shalmaneser; provoked hereby, and jealous of some farther design in that confede-
724.		racy of Hoshea with the king of Egypt, Shalmaneser layeth siege to Samaria, and towards
721.		the latter end of the third year taketh it, and carrieth away the Israelites captive into his own country. This was the end of the kingdom of Israel, when it had stood divided from the kingdom of Judah 254 years.
713.	XVIII.	Sennacherib king of Assyria, coming up against Judah, besiegeth their fenced cities, and taketh many of them, but is pacified by a tribute.
	XX.	About this time Hezekiah falls sick, and

Before CHRIST 713.	2 Kings XX. Isaiah XXXVIII.	is told by Isaiah that he shall die; but pouring out his tears and prayers unto God, he recovereth his health, and obtaineth a prolongation of his life and kingdom for fifteen years. For a sign whereof the sun goes ten degrees backward.
710.	2 Kings XIX. Isaiah XXXVII.	Sennacherib, not observing the articles of peace, layeth siege to Jerusalem, and sendeth a blasphemous letter to Hezekiah; which he opening, and spreading before the Lord in the temple with many tears, craves assistance from God against the Assyrians. Whereupon the prophet Isaiah assures him that God will deliver him, and defend that city. The self- same night an angel of the Lord slays 185,000 men in the Assyrian army; and the next morning Sennacherib departeth, and returns to Nineve; where not long after, whilst he is worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god, he is slain by his own sons.
698.	2 Kings XXI. 2 Chron. XXXIII.	Manasseh at twelve years of age succeedeth his father Hezekiah, and reigneth fifty-five years. He setteth up idolatry, and sheddeth much innocent blood. Wherefore God delivers him up into the hands of the Assyrians,
677.		who in the 22d year of his reign carry him away captive to Babylon: but upon his repentance God restores him to his liberty and kingdom.
656.	Judith XIII.	This year Nabuchodonosor king of Assyria, purposing to make himself universal monarch, sends Holofernes his general against Judea, who layeth siege to Bethulia, and there hath his head taken off by Judith, a woman of the tribe of Simeon.
643.	2 Kings XXI. 19. 2 Chron. XXXIII. 21, 22.	Amon aged twenty-two years succeedeth his father Manasseh, and reigneth two years. An idolater indeed, as his father, but no penitent: he is murdered by his own servants. Josiah, a child of eight years old, succeed-
641.	2 Kings XXII. 1. 2 Chron. XXXIV.	eth his father Amon, and reigneth thirty-one years. In his time lived Jeremiah and Zephaniah the prophets, and Huldah the prophetess.
630.		In the 12th year of his reign he begins a
624.		reformation in Judah and Jerusalem, and carries it on successfully. This year he giveth order for the repair of the temple. Hilkiah the high priest, having found a book of the law, sends it to the king, who hears it read all over to him; and there- upon asketh counsel of Huldah the prophetess, who prophesieth the destruction of
	2 Kings XXIII.	Jerusalem, but not in his days. Josiah calling to him the elders of Judah and Jerusalem, with the priests and prophets, causeth the book of the law to be read over before all the
	2 Chron. XXXIV.	people, and reneweth the covenant between God and his people; he burneth also dead men's bones upon the altar at Beth-el, as was foretold; and keepeth a most solemn pass- over.
610.	2 Kings XXIII. 29.	At this time a war breaks out between the king of Egypt and the king of Assyria. Josiah unadvisedly engageth in this war against Necho king of Egypt, and is slain in the valley of Megiddo. The good king being thus taken out of the world, whose life only
	Zech. XII. 11.	kept off the Babylonish captivity from that nation, not only the people then living bewailed his death, but even in after time a
	2 Chron. XXXV. 25.	publick mourning for him was kept. The prophet Jeremy also in remembrance thereof composeth his Lamentations; wherein bewail-

Before CHRIST
610.	2 Chron. XXXV. 25.	ing the calamities which were shortly to befall that people, as present before his eyes, in a most compassionate manner he points,
	Lam. IV. 20.	as it were with his finger, at the death of Josiah, as the source and original of all those ensuing miseries.
	2 Kings XXIII. 2 Chron. XXXVI.	After the death of Josiah the people anoint Shallum, one of his younger sons, to be their king. After three months reign he is deposed by Pharaoh-necho, who makes Eliakim, his elder brother, king over Judah and Jerusalem, and changes his name into Jehoiakim; but Jehoahaz he carries along with him captive into Egypt, where he ends his days.
	5.	Jehoiakim at twenty-five years of age begins to reign, and he reigneth eleven years.
609.	Jerem. XXVI.	Uriah and Jeremiah prophesy against Jerusalem; the former is put to death, the latter is acquitted, and set at liberty. About this time Habakkuk also prophesieth.
607.	XXV. 1.	This year is Nebuchadnezzar the Great made by his father Nabopolazzar his associate in the kingdom of Assyria and Babylon; into
606.	2 Chron. XXXVI. 6.	whose hands God delivers up Jehoiakim, who is put in chains to be carried to Babylon; but upon his submission and promises of obedience is left in his own house, where he lives a servant to Nebuchadnezzar three
	Jerem. XXV. 11. XXIX. 10.	years. From which entering of the king and people of the Jews into the subjection and service of Nebuchadnezzar are the seventy years of the captivity of Babylon to be reckoned, which were foretold by the prophet Jeremy.
	Dan. I. 3, 7.	Nebuchadnezzar gives order to Ashpenaz, master of the eunuchs, that he shall carry from thence of the children of Israel, both of the blood royal (as was foretold by the Isaiah XXXIX. 7.	prophet Esay to Hezekiah) and also of the nobility, the choicest youths both for beauty and wit that he can find; who, being educated three years in the language and sciences of the Chaldeans, may afterwards be fit to serve the king in his palace; among whom, of the tribe of Judah, are Daniel, called Belteshazzar; Hananiah, called Shadrach; Mishael, called Meshach; and Azariah, called Abednego: their names being thus changed by the master of the eunuchs.
605.		Whilst Nebuchadnezzar pursues his victories over the king of Egypt, his father dies; which coming to his knowledge, he gives order for the bringing away of the captives, and posts with a small company the nearest way to Babylon, where he is received as the lawful successor to his father's dominions.
	Dan. I. 2. 2 Chron. XXXVI. 7.	He causeth to be brought to Babylon what he thinks fit of the vessels and furniture of the temple, and placeth them in the house of his god, viz. Belus.
603.	2 Kings XXIV. 1.	Jehoiakim, having lived three years in subjection to the king of Babylon, falls off, and rebels against him.
	Dan. II.	This year (being the second of Nebuchadnezzar's reign, taking it as it begun at his father's death,) Daniel recovers Nebuchadnezzar's dream, and interprets it to betoken the four chief monarchies; whereupon he and his companions are highly advanced.
600.	2 Kings XXIV. 2.	Nebuchadnezzar sends an army, consisting of Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites, and Ammonites, against Jehoiakim; these waste the
599.	Jerem. XXII. 18.	whole country of Judea, and carry away from thence 3023 captives: Jehoiakim also is taken
Before CHRIST 599.	Jerem. XXII. 18. XXXVI. 30.	prisoner; whom they put to death, cause his carcase to be drawn out at the gate of Jerusalem (as was foretold by the prophet Jeremiah) and leave it without the walls unburied.
	2 Kings XXIV. 8. 2 Chron. XXXVI. 9.	Jehoiachin (called also Conias and Jeconias) at eighteen years of age succeeds his father Jehoiakim, and reigns three months in Jerusalem.
		Against him Nebuchadnezzar leads an army, and besiegeth Jerusalem: Jehoiachin with all his kindred and courtiers come out to meet him. Nebuchadnezzar makes them all pri-
	Isaiah XXXIX. 6. Jerem. XXIV. 1. Ezekiel XVII. 12.	soners, enters Jerusalem, and takes all the treasure he can find in the temple and the king's palace, breaking in pieces all the vessels of gold and furniture which Solomon had made for the temple; he carrieth away captive to Babylon the king, his mother, wives, courtiers, magistrates, and 10,000 able men out of Jerusalem, leaving none behind but the poorer sort of people; and out of the country round about he carries also away 8000 artificers; among the captives are Mordecai, and Ezekiel the priest; Ezekiel there-
	I. 2, 3.	fore in his prophecy reckons the time all along from the beginning of this captivity.
	Baruch VI.	An Epistle, said to be Jeremiah's, is now sent to the captives, admonishing them to beware of the idolatry which they shall see in Babylon.
	2 Kings XXIV. 17.	Nebuchadnezzar before his departure from Jerusalem makes Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's father's brother, king, changing his name into Zedekiah.
	2 Chron. XXXVI.	Zedekiah, beginning his reign at twenty-one years of age, reigneth eleven years; he, by rebelling against Nebuchadnezzar, or rather by continuing in an open rebellion (as his fathers had done) against God, brought upon Jerusalem and the whole nation of the Jews those long deserved calamities, which God had so often forewarned them of by his pro-
588.	2 Kings XXV. Jer. I. 3. XXXIX. LII.	phets; for in the latter end of the 11th year of Zedekiah Jerusalem after a long siege is taken by Nebuchadnezzar, and his Chaldeans enter it. Zedekiah flees away by night, but being pursued is taken, and brought prisoner to Riblah, Nebuchadnezzar's head quarters; there having first seen his children slaughtered before his eyes, he has afterwards those eyes put out, and, being loaden with chains, is carried away captive to Babylon. About a month after the taking of the city, Nebuzar-adan, captain of the guard, sent by Nebuchadnezzar, makes his entry into it, sets fire to the temple, the king's palace, and some noblemen's houses, and so layeth the whole city in ashes; the walls of Jerusalem being rased to the ground, all that were left in the city, and those that a little before had fallen to the Chaldeans, with what treasure he can find, doth Nebuzar-adan carry with him into Babylon.
	26. 2 Kings XXV. 21.	And thus was Judah carried out of her own land 468 years after David began to reign over it, 388 years after the falling off of the ten tribes, and 134 years after the destruction of the kingdom of Israel.
	Jerem. XLIX. 7.	Obadiah the prophet denounceth God's judgments against the Edomites, who now insult over the calamity of the Jews. The
	Ezekiel XXV. 12.	same do Jeremy and Ezekiel, and the author of the 79th and 137th Psalms, who wrote all about the same time.

The sixth Age of the World.

Before CHRIST 569. The Babylonian Empire.

Dan. IV. 29, 33, NEBUCHADNEZZAR, proud of his victories over Egypt, and his conquest of Judea and other countries, and boasting the magnificence of his buildings, falls distracted, and is driven from the society of men.

562. 34. After seven years spent among the beasts of the field, his understanding returning to him, he humbly acknowledgeth the power of God, and his goodness toward him: and is restored to his kingdom. A few days after he dies, having reigned about twenty months together with his father, and forty-three years by himself.

2 Kings XXV. 27. Jer. LII. 31. Evil-merodach his son succeeds him in the 37th year of the captivity of Jehoiachin, or Jeconiah, who presently gives order for the enlargement of Jehoiachin, and two days after changeth his prison clothes, sets him above all the princes of his court, and causeth him to eat at his own table. Jehoiachin dies about two years after.

555. Dan. VII. 1. Belshazzar having removed some persons, who had murdered his father Evil-merodach, and usurped his throne, succeeds in the kingdom of Babylon. In the first year of this king's reign Daniel has the vision of the four beasts, signifying the four monarchies of the world, and of God delivering over all power and sovereignty to the Son of man.

553. VIII. 1. In the third year of Belshazzar Daniel receives the vision of the ram and he goat, betokening the destruction of the Persian monarchy, and the great misery which Antiochus should bring upon the people of God.

538. V. This year Belshazzar makes a great feast for all his nobles, and causeth to be brought forth all the vessels of the house of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar his grandfather had Jer. XXVII. 7. brought away from Jerusalem, to the glory of his idols, and dishonour of the true God. In the midst of all this jollity a hand appears writing on the wall of the room, in which the king and his numerous guests sit drinking. Dan. V. The king, greatly terrified hereat, sends for his Chaldean astrologers and wizards, and commands them to read the writing, and give him the interpretation of it; but they not being able to do either, Daniel is sent for, who reads the writing, and gives the king the interpretation of it: whereupon Daniel is publickly proclaimed the third man in the kingdom.

Isai. XIII. Hab. II. Jer. XXV. 12. L, LI. The same night Belshazzar is slain, Babylon taken by Cyrus, and the empire translated to the Medes and Persians, as had been sundry times foretold by the prophets.

Dan V. 31. Cyrus having given the kingdom of Babylon to Darius the Mede, reserving some palaces in the city for himself, he returns through Media into Persia.

VI. 6. Daniel's greatness raising envy in some principal courtiers and officers, these contrive his ruin: but finding nothing in his management of affairs whereof to accuse him, they resolve to order matters so, that Daniel's piety towards God shall become an offence worthy of death. They move the king to make a decree, that for thirty days no petition shall be made to any God or man, but to himself only. Which decree Daniel breaks, by making supplication to his God, and is for doing so cast into a den of lions; but being found to have received no hurt there, Darius commands the conspirators to be cast into the same den, who are

Before CHRIST 538. The Babylonian Empire.

Dan VI. 6. presently devoured; and the king publisheth a decree, that all persons throughout his dominions shall reverence and fear the God of Daniel.

537. Dan. IX. Jer. XXIX. 10. Toward the end of the first year of the reign of Darius the Mede, to be reckoned from the subversion of the Babylonish empire, begins the 70th year of the captivity of the Jews, which, by Jeremiah's prophecy, was to be the last year of their calamity. Upon consideration of which time so near at hand, Dan. IX. Daniel pours out most fervent prayers to God for the remission of his own sins, and those of his people; and for that promised deliverance out of their captivity. To whom the angel Gabriel brings an answer not only of this, but also of the spiritual deliverance of the Church by the death of the Messiah; uttering that memorable prophecy of the seventy weeks.

536. The Persian Empire. Cyrus his father Cambyses and his father in law Cyaxares both dying, Persia falls to him by inheritance, and Media by contract of marriage; and so he is possessed of the whole eastern empire; from which time both Xenophon (Inst. lib. 8.) reckons the seven years of his reign, and the Holy Scripture, out of the records of the Medes and Persians, reckons this his first year; for it teacheth us, that in this year came forth that renowned edict of Ezra I. 2. his, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah, &c. At which time the seventy years of the Babylonish captivity being expired (as was foretold by Isaiah and Jeremiah, Isai. XLIV. 28. XLV. 1, 13. the former making mention of Cyrus by name) he gives leave to all the Jews, dwelling in all parts of his dominions, to return into their own country, and commands them immediately to fall in hand with rebuilding of the temple.

He restoreth also all the vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought from thence; and contributes towards the building.

Ezra I. 5, 6. The Jews therefore return into their own country; the poorer sort having allowance made them to defray their charges upon the II. way. The number of the children of the province, or Hebrews born in Chaldea, which Neh. VII. with their captain Zerubbabel, and their high priest Jeshua, return out of captivity, is 42,360, beside proselytes, menservants, and maidservants, to the number of 7,337. Now the particular sums of Ezra's catalogue being cast up amount only to 29,818; and those in Nehemiah's account make but 31,031, both which come far short of that universal sum of 42,360, which at the bottom of each catalogue is said to be the number of the whole congregation. Wherefore the Hebrews in the xxixth chapter of their great chronicle tell us, that to complete the full sum of 42,360 we must cast in those of the other ten tribes of Israel, who came out of captivity with the Acts XXVI. 7. Jews. For even till the last extirpation of the Jewish state there remained some reliques of Lam. I. 1. the other ten tribes, not only in the dispersion, Luke II. 36. and at Jerusalem, and other cities of Judah; 2 Chron. XI. 16. but also of those who kept still in their own seats; for Shalmaneser swept not away all out of the whole ten tribes, but left a remnant of

Before CHRIST 536. The Persian Empire.

2 Chron. XI. 16. them in their own country, who were afterwards, together with the Jews, Benjamites, and Levites, carried away by Nebuchadnezzar into Babylon, and are now dismissed and sent back again by Cyrus.

535. Ezra III. 8, 13. In the second year after their return from Babylon, in the second month, they appoint Levites to oversee the work of the house of God, and lay the foundation of the temple; the old men lamenting, who fifty-three years before had seen the old temple standing, and the younger sort rejoicing to see the new one going up.

534. IV. 5, The Samaritans by the means of certain courtiers about Cyrus, whom they had bribed for that purpose, disturb the Jews in their work of the temple.

529. 6. In the beginning of the reign of Artaxerxes (called in profane story Cambyses) the Samaritans, who, whilst Cyrus lived, had secretly undermined the Jews, now openly frame a direct accusation in writing against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem, and present it to the king, who presently forbids the Jews to proceed in the building.

520. V. 1. In the second year of king Darius Hystaspes (the same with Ahasuerus) Zerubbabel and Jeshua, incited by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, set forward the building of the temple.

Hag. II. 1, 9. Haggai prophesieth that the glory of this second temple shall be greater than that of the former; not as being a more magnificent structure, but in regard the blessed Messiah shall one day honour it with his presence, and from thence propagate peace to all nations.

Zech. I. 1, 6. About this time Zechariah the prophet exhorteth the Jews to repentance.

519. Esther I, II. Ahasuerus puts away queen Vashti his wife,
518. and not long after espouseth Esther, the niece of Mordecai the Jew.

515. Ezra VI. In the sixth year of Darius, or Ahasuerus, the temple is finished; the dedication whereof is celebrated with great joy and abundance of sacrifices, the Priests and Levites, every one in his place, attending on the ministry of the temple. The passover also is celebrated.

510. Esther III. Haman an Agagite, of the race of the Amalekites, a great favourite of king Ahasuerus, offended at Mordecai, because he falls not down and adores him, as others do, resolves to be revenged of the whole nation of the Jews,
Deut. XXV. 19. (which was ever averse to his) and to root it out; for the executing of which purpose that he may find a successful time, he causeth Pur, that is, the Lot, to be cast before him, for to know the day and month wherein the Jews shall be destroyed, and the lot falls on the twelfth month Adar.

Haman obtains an edict from the king, that all Jews, without respect to sex or age, upon the thirteenth day of the month Adar be put to death in all the provinces of the king's dominions.

Esther IV. Hereupon Mordecai, Esther, and all the Jews, humble themselves before the Lord by fasting and prayer.

VI. Ahasuerus hearing it read in the chronicles, that a conspiracy had been discovered to him by Mordecai, commandeth that he be publickly honoured, and that by Haman himself, his deadly enemy.

VII. Esther, entertaining the king and Haman at a banquet, maketh suit for her own life, and her people's, and accuseth Haman. The king, understanding that Haman had provided a gallows for Mordecai, causeth him to be hanged thereon. In memory of this great deliverance the two days of Purim are made festival.

Before CHRIST 509. The Persian Empire.

Ezra VII. Ezra the priest, a man skilled in the law of Moses, obtains a large commission from king 467. Artaxerxes, to settle the Jewish commonwealth, and to reform the church at Jerusalem.

VIII. In the seventh year of Artaxerxes, Ezra, with a great multitude of Jews, sets out from Babylon.

IX, X. Ezra obligeth those who had taken strangers to wife to send them back.

445. Neh. II. In the 20th year of king Artaxerxes, Nehemiah a Jew, one of his cupbearers, being made governor of Judea, obtains leave to build the walls of Jerusalem, and finish that great work.

Dan. IX. 24. Here begin Daniel's seventy weeks to be fulfilled before the passion of our Saviour.

442. Neh. V. 14. Nehemiah, having governed Judea twelve years, returns to the king of Persia.

415. XIII. 6. This year is the 21st Jubile, the last that ever the prophets of the Old Testament saw; for that place in Nehemiah, chap. xii. 22, is not to be understood of the last Darius, but of Darius Nothus, who now reigns in Persia; the full history of Nehemiah ending with the time of Artaxerxes Longimanus, father of this Darius Nothus.

Hitherto (saith Eusebius in his Chronicle, to the 32d year of Artaxerxes) the Divine Scriptures of the Hebrews contain the annals of the times. But those things which were done among them afterwards we must deliver out of the books of the Maccabees, and out of the writings of Josephus, who have delivered a general history of the Jewish affairs from thence down to the times of the Romans.

That Malachi, the last of the prophets, was contemporary with Nehemiah, appears from hence, That he no where exhorts the people to the building of the temple, as Haggai and Zachary did; but, the temple being now built, he reproves those disorders, which Nehemiah at his second return with a new commission from Babylon saith he found in his absence to have crept in among the Jews; as marriage with strange women, withholding of tithes, and abuses in the worship of God.

XIII.

Malachi IV. 4. And because a succession of prophets was not to be expected, as before, he exhorteth the Luke I. 17. people constantly to adhere to the law of Mo-
Matth. XI. 14. ses, till Christ the chief Prophet should ap-
XVII. 12. pear; whose forerunner John the Baptist should come in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers unto their children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just. See 1 Mac. iv. 46, and ix. 27.

335. Jos. Ant. l. 11. c. 8. ALEXANDER the Great, king of Macedonia, passeth out of Europe into Asia, and begins to lay waste the Persian empire.

332. Id. ibid. Manasses, brother to Jaddus the high priest, refusing to put away his strange wife, is driven from the sacrifice: Sanaballath his father in law, governor of Samaria, revolteth from Darius, obtains leave of Alexander to build a temple on mount Gerizim, and makes Manasses high priest thereof: to which resort all such as are entangled in unlawful marriage, with all such offenders as think themselves not safe at Jerusalem. This was the rise of that schismatical conventicle of the Samaritans. See John iv. 20.

Before CHRIST 332. The Persian Empire.	Jos. Ant. l. 11. c. 8.	Alexander marcheth toward Jerusalem, intending to besiege it. Jaddus the high priest, hearing of it, putteth on his priestly ornaments, and, accompanied with the people all in white, goeth out to meet him. Alexander, seeing his habit, falls prostrate before him, saying that, whilst he was in Macedonia, a man appeared unto him in the very same habit, who invited him to come into Asia, and promised to deliver the Persian empire into his hands. After this he goes to the temple, and offers sacrifice according to the high priest's direction. They shew him the prophecy of Daniel, That a Grecian should come and destroy the Persians; whereby he is mightily confirmed in his persuasion that he himself is the man. Lastly, he bestoweth on the Jews whatever favours they desire, and departeth.
	Dan. VIII. 7. XI. 13.
330. The Macedonian Empire.		The Persians are overcome, Darius slain, and Alexander remains universal monarch of the eastern world.
323.	Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 1. 1 Mac. I.	Alexander, having reigned six years and ten months, dieth; his army and dominions are divided among his captains. Antigonus makes himself governor of Asia; Seleucus of Babylon, and the bordering nations; Lysimachus hath the Hellespont; Cassander, Macedon; and Ptolemeus, the son of Lagus, gets Egypt.
320.	Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 1.	Ptolemeus, surnamed Soter, makes himself master of Jerusalem by a stratagem; for he enters the city upon a sabbath day under pretence of offering sacrifice; and whilst the Jews suspect nothing, but spend the day in ease and idleness, he surpriseth the city without resistance, and maketh the citizens captives. He sendeth several colonies of Jews into Egypt, and puts great confidence in them.
277.	Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 2.	Ptolemeus Philadelphus, son of Ptolemeus Soter, being a great favourer of learning, builds a most magnificent library at Alexandria. Demetrius Phalereus, to whom he had committed the care of procuring all sorts of books, and out of all countries, persuades him to employ seventy-two Jews in translating the Holy Scriptures out of the original Hebrew into the Greek tongue, which was done in the seventh year of his reign. The king also dismisseth many captive Jews, and dedicates many presents to the temple of God at Jerusalem.
177.	2 Mac. III.	One Simon, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, governor of the temple, falling out with Onias the high priest, goes to Apollonius the governor of Cœlosyria, and informs him that there is a vast treasure in the temple: Apollonius acquaints king Seleucus his master with it, who presently sends his treasurer Heliodorus to Jerusalem, to bring this money away. Heliodorus entering the temple is by angels struck down in the very place, and carried from thence half dead; but by the prayers of Onias he is soon after restored to his health. Returning to Seleucus that sent him, he magnifies the holiness of the temple, and the power of God dwelling in it.
176.	1 Mac. I. 10.	Antiochus Epiphanes succeeds Seleucus in the kingdom of Syria, and reigneth eleven years, and some months.
175.	2 Mac. IV. 7,	Jason by corrupting king Antiochus obtaineth the office of high priest.
172.	23, 24.	Menelaus, brother to Simon the traitor, being employed by Jason to carry the money to the king, promiseth 300 talents of silver above what Jason had sent, and getteth the priesthood to himself.
Before CHRIST 170. The Macedonian Empire.	2 Mac. IV. 27.	Menelaus, not paying the money he had promised the king at his admission, is summoned to appear before Antiochus; he substitutes Lysimachus his brother in his place.
	1 Mac. I. 21, 22. 2 Mac. V. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 7. Dan. XI. 28.	Antiochus taketh Jerusalem, and sacking it pillageth the temple, destroyeth 40,000 of the inhabitants, and selleth as many more. He endeavoureth also to abolish the worship of God, and forceth many Jews to forsake their religion. The Samaritans now disown their relation to the Jews, to whom in prosperity they pretended alliance, and consecrate the temple on mount Gerizim to Jupiter.
168.	1 Mac. VIII. 5.	Perseus, having made war upon the Romans, is this year overcome by them, and the kingdom of the Macedonians ends, when from Caranus it had stood 626 years. Nevertheless the reliques of the Macedonian empire, while that of the Roman was rising, did yet survive in the Ptolemies of Egypt, and the kings of Syria.
167.	I. 45.	King Antiochus by a publick edict commands all nations that are subject unto him to observe the same way of divine worship, and laying aside their peculiar customs, to profess the same religion with the Grecians; the punishment of death being threatened unto such as shall be disobedient; and he appoints overseers over every people and nation, who shall compel them hereunto. Of the Jews many choose rather to undergo the most cruel torments, than to offer sacrifice unto idols; all which martyrdoms, with those glorious sufferings of the seven Maccabean brethren, are recorded in the two Books of Maccabees.
	II. 2 Mac. VI. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 8.	Mattathias a priest with his five sons slay those that are sent by king Antiochus to compel them to offer abominable sacrifices, and after betake themselves to the desert. They are followed by many others, of whom a great number are stifled in their caves, because they would not defend themselves on the sabbath day. Mattathias abolisheth that superstition, and exhorts his sons to assert their privileges, and deliver their country from bondage.
166.	1 Mac. III. 2 Mac. VIII. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 9.	Mattathias dies, and Judas Maccabeus takes upon him the management of this affair. He delivers his country, and purgeth it from the abominations which had been committed in it.
	1 Mac. III. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 10.	Apollonius, governor of Samaria, having raised an army among the Gentiles and Samaritans, falls upon the Jews; but is discomfited and slain by Judas Maccabeus.
	1 Mac. III. 13. Joseph. ut supra.	Seron also, governor of the lower Syria, musters up all the forces under his command, and invades Judea; him Judas Maccabeus encounters, slays 800 of his men on the place, and puts the rest to flight.
165.	1 Mac. III. 27. IV. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 11.	Judas Maccabeus defeats a great army, which Antiochus sent against the Jews. Lysias returns with a greater power; Judas kills 5000 of his men, and causeth him to retreat. He purifieth the temple, and setteth it in order, after it had lain desolate three years; and buildeth a wall about Sion.
	1 Mac. VI. 2 Mac. IX. 9. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 13.	Antiochus is taken with a violent pain in his bowels, and such a rottenness seizeth his flesh, that worms breed in it; he confesseth that he is plagued for the wrong done to Jerusalem, and dieth in the 149th year of the kingdom of the Grecians. His son Antiochus Eupator, a child about nine years old, succeeds him. He maketh peace with the Jews, but quickly breaketh it: he puts to death Menelaus 163.
162.	2 Mac. XIII.

Before CHRIST 162. The Macedonian Empire.	Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 15.	the high priest, and confers that honour upon Alcimus, or Jacimus. Onias, the son of Onias III, retires into Egypt, where Ptolemeus Philometor and Cleopatra his wife permit him to build a temple at Heliopolis in imitation of that at Jerusalem, and they constitute him high priest there.
162.	1 Mac. VII.	Demetrius Soter, the son of Seleucus, escapes from Rome, and comes into Syria, where he causeth himself to be crowned king, and putteth to death Antiochus and Lysias.
161.	2 Mac. XIV. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 17.	Demetrius, at the instance of Alcimus, sends Nicanor with a great army against Judas Maccabeus, whom he endeavours to surprise. They join battle, and Nicanor is slain. Here ends the continued history of the second book of Maccabees, being an abstract and breviary of the five books of Jason, a Jew of Cyrene.
	1 Mac. IX. Jos. Ant. l. 12. c. 18, 19.	King Demetrius sends Bacchides with a new army, consisting of 20,000 men, against Judas Maccabeus; Judas, having with him but 800 men, ventures to engage him; and is slain. His brother Jonathan is chosen general in his stead.
	1 Mac. VIII. 19. Jos. Ant. l. 18. c. 17.	Jonathan enters into an alliance with the Romans. Josephus observes, that this was the first league that ever was known to be between the Romans and the Jews.
160.	1 Mac. IX. 55,	Whilst Alcimus commands the wall of the inner court of the temple to be pulled down, God strikes him suddenly with a palsy, so that without speaking a word he dies in great torment.
158.	70. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 2.	Jonathan, having wearied Bacchides by war, compelleth him to make a league, and draw off his army.
153.	1 Mac. X. 1. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 3.	Alexander Balas, the son of king Antiochus Epiphanes, enters with an army into Syria: the garrison of Ptolemais set open their gates to him, by reason of their hatred to king Demetrius; who prepares himself for war.
	1 Mac. X. 3, 10. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 4.	Demetrius desireth an alliance with Jonathan, who makes use of this occasion to repair the fortifications of Jerusalem. Alexander Balas is no less careful to obtain
	1 Mac. X. 15. Jos. Ant.	the friendship of Jonathan, and, to oblige him, confers on him the high priesthood.
152.	l. 13. c. 5. 1 Mac. X. 21. Id. ibid.	Jonathan puts on the holy vestment on the seventh month of the 160th year of the kingdom of the Grecians, at the feast of tabernacles. He was the first high priest of the Hasmonean family.
150.	1 Mac. X. 49, 50. Jos. ubi supr.	Demetrius and Alexander come to a battle, and Demetrius is slain. Alexander Balas, finding himself in the peaceable possession of the kingdom of Syria,
	1 Mac. X. 51. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 7.	espouseth Cleopatra, the daughter of Ptolemeus Philometor king of Egypt. Alexander highly honours Jonathan the high priest at his nuptials.
148.	1 Mac. X. 75. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 8.	Demetrius Nicanor, eldest son of Demetrius Soter, enters into Cilicia with an army. King Alexander Balas gives the command of Syria to Apollonius, who sets upon Jonathan the high priest; Jonathan defeats him, and takes Joppe and Azotus, and burns the temple of Dagon.
146.	1 Mac. XI. Jos. loc. citat.	Ptolemeus Philometor, king of Egypt, comes to the relief of king Alexander his son in law; Alexander ungratefully sets Ammonius to lie in ambush to kill him. The treachery being discovered, Ptolemeus takes away his daughter from Alexander, and marrieth her to Demetrius. Alexander having been driven from Antioch, the inhabitants of that place make
Before CHRIST 146. The Macedonian Empire.	1 Mac. XI.	offer of the kingdom to Ptolemeus; but he refuseth it, and persuadeth them to accept of Demetrius for their king.
145.		Alexander returns with a great army. Ptolemeus and Demetrius unite their forces, and overcome him in a pitched battle; but Ptolemeus dies of the wounds which he received, after he had seen the head of Alexander sent to him by Zabdiel an Arabian prince. Jonathan besiegeth the citadel at Jerusalem, held by a garrison of Macedonians. Complaint hereof being made to Demetrius, Jonathan appeaseth him by presents, and obtaineth new favours for the Jews. Demetrius incurreth the hatred of his soldiers by abridging their pay in time of peace.
	1 Mac. XI. 54. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 9.	Tryphon, with some soldiers that revolted from Demetrius, undertakes to establish Antiochus, the son of Alexander Balas, in the kingdom of Syria.
144.	1 Mac. XI. 55.	Demetrius is vanquished by young Antiochus, and made to fly into Seleucia. Great honours are by Antiochus conferred on Jonathan, who assists him against Demetrius.
	XII. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 9.	Jonathan renews his alliance with the Romans and Lacedemonians, and fortifies Jerusalem.
143.	c. 10.	Tryphon contrives how he may quit himself of Antiochus, and reign in his stead; but fearing Jonathan's opposition, he invites him to come to Ptolemais, and bring with him some few of his soldiers, promising to deliver that city into his hands. Jonathan, suspecting no treachery, comes only with 1000 men to Tryphon at Ptolemais; but as soon as he is entered the city, Tryphon commands the gates to be shut. Jonathan is taken prisoner, and all his men put to the sword.
	1 Mac. XIII. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 10, 11.	The Jews hereupon make choice of Simon Maccabeus for their general in the place of his brother Jonathan. Tryphon leads an army against Simon. He promiseth for 100 talents of silver to release Jonathan; the money being paid him, he breaks his promise, and puts Jonathan to death. Simon erects a stately monument for his father and his brethren.
	1 Mac. XIII. 31, 32. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 12.	Tryphon murders the young king Antiochus, and puts the crown on his own head. The Romans and Lacedemonians renew their leagues with Simon, and write them in tables of brass.
142.	1 Mac. XIV. 18. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 13.	Simon has the government and high priesthood settled on him and his heirs: the Jews are by his means discharged from all manner of tribute to any foreign prince. He takes Sion the fortress of Jerusalem, drives out of the city all idolaters, clears the houses of their idols, and placeth in the city such as are true worshippers of God.
139.	Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 12.	Tryphon's vices render him so odious to his soldiers, that they submit themselves to Cleopatra, Demetrius's relict. She marrieth Antiochus Soter, Demetrius's brother, and causeth
138.		him to be crowned king. Antiochus drives Tryphon out of Syria, besiegeth him in Dora, whence he flies to Apamea, where he is taken and slain.
135.	1 Mac. XVI. Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 14.	Simon the high priest traversing the cities of Judea, and taking care for their orderly government, comes down with his two sons Mattathias and Judas to Jericho; Ptolemeus the son of Abubus, Simon's son in law, invites them to a castle which he had fortified, called Dochus, and there, whilst he entertains them

Before CHRIST 135. The Macedonian Empire.		at a banquet, barbarously murders them. John Hircanus succeeds his father in the high priesthood.
		Here ends the first book of Maccabees, containing the history of forty years.
130.	Jos. Ant. l. 13. c. 17. Jos. l. 1.	John Hircanus takes Shechem, and demolisheth the temple on mount Gerizim 200 years after it had been built by Sanaballat.
107.	Bell. c. 3. Ant. lib. 13. c. 19. & lib. 20. c. 8.	Judas, eldest son of Hircanus, otherwise called Aristobulus, and surnamed Philellen, succeeds his father in the government and the high priesthood; he was the first of any, that after the return from the captivity of Babylon set a crown upon his head, and changed the state into a monarchy.
88.	Luke II. 37.	Anna the prophetess, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser, this year becoming a widow, departs not from the temple, but serveth God with fasting and prayer night and day, for eighty-four years together, until such time as she sees Christ in the temple.
63.	Jos. l. 1. Bell. c. 5. Ant. lib. 14. c. 8.	Jerusalem is this year taken by Pompey; who meddles not with any of the treasure which was in the temple, but makes the Jews tributary to the Romans.
49. The Roman Empire.		Here begins the empire of the Roman Cesars, when Julius Cesar, having overthrown Pompey at the battle of Pharsalia, was made perpetual dictator.
40.	Jos. l. 14. c. 25.	Herod the son of Antipas, or Antipater, an Idumean, is this year by the Romans declared king of Judea.
38.	Id. ibid. c. 28. l. 1. Bell. c. 13.	Herod, assisted by Sosius the Roman general, lays siege to Jerusalem, and takes it; the soldiers fill all corners of the city with blood, rapine, and cruelty. Antigonus, the prince and high priest, is by Sosius carried away prisoner to Rome, and Herod put in full possession of the kingdom.
31.		About this time Hillel a Babylonian, descended from David, flourished at Jerusalem; one of whose disciples was Jonathan the son of Uzziel, the famous author of the Chaldee paraphrase.
28.	Dionys. lib. 52.	Cesar Octavianus, nephew to Julius Cesar, in his fifth consulship, with the assent of the senate and people of Rome, assumes the title of emperor; at which time the government among the Romans was legally changed from a republick into a monarchy. The next year following he is by the senate surnamed Augustus.
27.	Jos. Ant. lib. 20.
18.	John II. 20.	Herod this year begins to enlarge, or rather to rebuild, the temple at Jerusalem, forty-six years before the first passover of the ministry of Christ, and in nine years and an half finisheth that magnificent structure.
6.	Luke I. 11,	The angel Gabriel appears to Zachary the priest, as he is offering incense in the temple, telling him that a son shall be born unto him, whom he shall call John; who also shall be a Nazarite, and the forerunner of the Lord in the spirit and power of Elias.
5.	26,	In the sixth month after John was conceived, the same angel Gabriel is sent by God to Nazareth in Galilee, to the most blessed Virgin Mary (espoused to Joseph, a person of the house and lineage of David;) the angel declares unto her, that she shall conceive by the overshadowing of the Holy Ghost, and bring forth a son, and call his name JESUS.
1.	57.	John the Baptist born six months before Christ.

Before CHRIST 4. The Roman Empire.	Luke II. 6,	The seventh Age of the World. CHRIST our Lord and Saviour in the fulness of time is born of the blessed Virgin Mary at Bethlehem, and laid in a manger.
	21.	On the eighth day after his nativity he is circumcised, and named JESUS.
	Matt. II. 1, 12,	The wise men of the east bring presents to the new born King of the Jews.
	14,	Joseph flees into Egypt with the child Jesus, and Mary his mother.
	16,	Herod commands the infants in and about Bethlehem to be slain.
3.	19. Jos. Ant. l. 17. c. 10.	Herod dieth, and his son Archelaus is by Cesar made tetrarch of Judea; other dominions, which belonged to Herod, are divided among his sons.
	Matt. II. 21, 23.	Christ, by God's appointment, is brought back out of Egypt into Nazareth.
		The first year of the vulgar Christian Æra begins here.
After CHRIST 8.	Luke II. 46.	By occasion of the passover our Lord goes up with his parents to Jerusalem, and there disputes with the doctors in the temple.
14.		Augustus dies, and Tiberius succeeds him.
26.	Jos. Ant. l. 18. c. 3.	Josephus, called Caiaphas, is made high priest of the Jews by the favour of Valerius Gratus the Roman governor.
27.	Matt. III. 1. Mark I. 2. Luke III. 3. John I. 7. Isai. XLI. 1.	Towards the end of this year Pontius Pilate is sent to be procurator of Judea in the place of Valerius Gratus.
		John the Baptist begins to preach and to baptize in the desert of Judea, thereby preparing the way of the Lord, and doing his endeavour that Christ coming after him may be made known unto Israel. Unto John God gives a sign whereby he may know the Lord's Christ, that upon whom he shall see the Spirit descending and remaining on him, the same is he which shall baptize with the Holy Ghost.
	Matt. III. 13. Mark I. 9. Luke III. 22.	Jesus, entering upon the 30th year of his age, comes from Galilee to Jordan, and is baptized of John; at which time a most illustrious manifestation is made of the blessed Trinity; for the Son of God ascending out of the water, and praying, the heavens are opened, and the Spirit of God in the shape of a dove descends upon him; and the voice of the Father is heard from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.
	John I. 34.	John sees it, and bears record that this is the Son of God.
	Matt. IV. 1. Mark I. 12. Luke IV. 1,	Jesus, full of the Holy Ghost, returns from Jordan, and is led by the spirit into the wilderness, where he fasteth forty days and forty nights, and is tempted by the devil.
	14.	After this our Lord returns into Galilee.
30.	John I. 35, 47.	John gives testimony to our Saviour passing by him; Andrew, Peter, Philip, and Nathanael, acknowledge him to be the Messias, and become his disciples.
	II. 1,	Christ at a marriage in Cana of Galilee turneth water into wine; this was his first miracle.
		The first passover of Christ's publick ministry, from which the first year of the seventieth and last of Daniel's weeks begins: In which the covenant is confirmed with many, Dan. ix. 27, compared with Matth. xxvi. 28.
13.		JESUS cometh to Jerusalem at the time of the passover, and, entering into the temple, scourgeth out those that bought and sold there. The Jews require a sign of his authority: Christ bids them destroy that temple,

After CHRIST
		(understanding the temple of his body) and in three days he will raise it up.
30. The Roman Empire.	Matth. XIV. 3. Mark VI. 17. Luke III. 19.	Herod the tetrarch casteth John the Baptist into prison for reprehending his incest with his brother Philip's wife, and other evils done by him.
	John IV. 7, 42.	Christ discovers himself to the woman of Samaria.
31.	Luke IV. 43.	He goes throughout all Galilee, teaching in the synagogues, and working miracles.
	V 27.	Matthew called to be a disciple.
		The second passover of Christ's ministry, John v. 1, compared with iv. 3, 5, from which the second year of the seventieth week of Daniel begins.
	John V. 1.	JESUS comes up to Jerusalem at the time of the feast, and heals on the sabbath day a man that had an infirmity thirty-eight years, lying at the pool of Bethesda. He makes a most divine apology to the Jews that sought to kill him, because he said that God was his Father.
	Luke VI. 13. Matth. V, VI, VII. Luke VI. 20. IX. 1. Mark VI. 7.	Christ out of the multitude of his disciples chooseth twelve, whom he calleth Apostles: namely, Peter, Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James the son of Alpheus, Simon called Zelotes, Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot. To these our Saviour chiefly directs his discourse in that glorious, full, and admirable, sermon on the mount.
	Matt. X. 1.	Jesus sends his twelve Apostles by two and two to preach, and heal the sick.
32.	XIV. 6, 15.	John the Baptist is beheaded in prison by Herod's command.
	Mark VI. 35. Luke IX. 12. John VI. 1, 15.	Jesus feeds 5000 men, besides women and children, with five barley loaves and two little fishes. He refuses to be made a king.
		The third passover of Christ's ministry, John vi. 4. from which the third year of the seventieth week of Daniel begins.
	Matth. XVII. 1. Mark IX. 1. Luke IX. 28.	JESUS is transfigured on the mount; Moses and Elias are seen to talk with him, and a voice from heaven is heard a second time, saying, This is my beloved Son; hear him.
	Matth. XVII. 24.	Christ payeth tribute to Cesar.
	Luke IX. 51.	A certain village of the Samaritans refuseth our Saviour entertainment in his way to Jerusalem: the disciples, desiring to call for fire from heaven to consume them, are severely reprehended.
	X. 1.	The seventy disciples are sent out by two and two to work miracles, and to preach.
	XI. 1.	Christ teacheth his disciples to pray.
33.	John XI. 1,	Christ raiseth Lazarus, that had been buried four days.
	47.	Caiaphas, high priest of the Jews, prophesieth concerning the death of Christ.
	Lu. XIX. 1.	Zaccheus a publican converted.
	Mark X. 46.	Christ restoreth to blind Bartimeus his sight.
	John XII. 3.	Mary the sister of Lazarus anoints our Saviour's feet with costly spikenard, and wipeth them with the hair of her head.
	Matth. XXI. Mark XI. Luke XIX. John XII. Isaiah LII. Zech. IX. 9.	Christ rideth in triumph into Jerusalem; the multitude spread their garments in the way, and cry, Hosanna to the son of David. Coming near the city, he weeps over it, and foretells its destruction. He enters the temple, and casteth out those that bought and sold there; and heals the blind and lame.
	Matth. XXI. 17.	He curseth the fruitless fig tree, and the next morning it is found dried up and withered.
		Thence he takes occasion to shew the power of faith.
		The fourth passover, in which Christ our passover was sacrificed, 1 Cor. v. 7, and so an end is put to all legal sacrifices prefiguring this great expiation. The fourth or middle year of Daniel's last week begins, Dan. ix. 27.
	Matt. XXVI. Mark XIV. Luke XXII.	ON the first day of unleavened bread, when the passover of the Jews was to be slain (April 2) in the evening, Jesus eateth the passover with his disciples, and institutes the Sacrament of his Body and Blood in Bread and Wine.
	John XIII,	Christ washeth his disciples' feet, and exhorteth them to humility and charity.
	XVIII.	In the selfsame night Christ is betrayed by Judas, mocked, buffeted, and spit upon, by the soldiers.
	Matth. XXVII. Mark XV. Luke XXIII. John XIX.	Next day he is condemned by Pilate, and crucified; the sun during the crucifixion is darkened, and the veil of the temple rent in the midst. Christ praying for his enemies gives up the ghost. Joseph of Arimathea begs the body, and lays it in a new sepulchre.
	Ps. XXII. Matth. XXVIII. Mark XVI. Luke XXIV. John XX.	On the third day, the next after the Jewish Sabbath, (April 5,) Christ riseth from the dead; his Resurrection is declared by angels to the women that came to the sepulchre. Christ first appeareth to Mary Magdalene, and afterward to his disciples, and dineth with them.
	Acts I. Matth. XXVIII.	Christ bringeth his Apostles to mount Olivet; commandeth them to expect in Jerusalem the sending down of the Holy Ghost: sends them to teach and baptize all nations, and blesses them; and while they behold, he is taken up, and a cloud receives him out of their sight. After his Ascension the disciples are warned by two angels to depart, and to set their minds upon his second coming; they accordingly return, and, giving themselves to prayer, choose Matthias to be an Apostle in the place of Judas.
	Acts II.	On the day of Pentecost (May 24) the Holy Ghost descendeth on the Apostles in the form of cloven tongues, like as of fire, and enableth them to speak all languages. Peter the same day preacheth Christ and the resurrection, and about 3000 believers are added to the Church.
	III.	Peter by faith in Christ's Name healeth a lame man.
	IV.	The rulers of the Jews, offended at Peter's sermon, and his miraculous cure of the lame man, cast both him and John into prison; upon their examination they boldly avouch the lame man to be healed by the Name of Jesus, and that by the same Jesus we must be eternally saved. After this the Jews forbid them to speak any more in that Name; but the Apostles answer, That it is fit they should obey God rather than men. They are threatened, and let go.
	V. 1,	Ananias and his wife Sapphira for their hypocrisy are suddenly struck dead.
	17.	The Apostles are again cast into prison by the high priest; but an angel sets them at liberty, and bids them preach the Gospel to the people without fear; being taken again teaching in the temple, they are brought before the council; where by the advice of Gamaliel, a Pharisee, and doctor of the law, they are delivered.
34.	VI.	The number of believers increasing at Je-

After CHRIST 34. The Roman Empire.	Acts VI.	rusalem, the Apostles ordain seven deacons, who should distribute the alms of the whole Church to the widows and poorer sort of believers. Stephen, one of these deacons, having confounded some that disputed with him,
	VII.	is by them falsely accused of blasphemy, and brought before the council, where he reprehends their rebellion, and murdering of Christ. Whereupon they cast him out of the city, and stone him; he in the mean time praying for them.
	VIII.	A great persecution of the Church at Jerusalem follows after the death of the first martyr Stephen.
	5,	Philip, one of the seven deacons, preacheth at Samaria, and converteth many; worketh miracles, and healeth the sick. Simon the sorcerer, seeing the wonders that are done by Philip; believeth, and is baptized.
	15,	The Apostles at Jerusalem, hearing that Samaria had received the faith, send thither Peter and John to confirm and enlarge the Church. The Apostles by prayer and imposition of hands confer the Holy Ghost on all believers. Simon Magus offers them money, that he may receive power of conferring the same, whose impiety is sharply reproved by Peter. Having completed their ministry in those parts, they return to Jerusalem.
35.	26.	An angel sendeth Philip to teach and baptize the Ethiopian eunuch.
	IX. 1,	Saul, a violent persecutor of all that call on the Name of Jesus, and one who consented to the death of Stephen, goes now towards Damascus with commission from the high priest and the council to apprehend all Christians in those parts, and to bring them bound to Jerusalem; on the way he is miraculously converted by a voice from heaven; and three days after baptized by Ananias at Damascus, where he preacheth the Gospel of Christ with great boldness, to the astonishment of those that knew upon what design he was sent thither.
38.	23.	Saul having preached the Gospel at Da-
	2 Cor. XI. 32.	mascus a long time, the Jews lay wait to kill
	Gal. I. 18.	him, but he escapeth from thence, and comes to Jerusalem; there he sees Peter, and James the brother of our Lord, and abides with them fifteen days. Here he speaks boldly in the Name of Jesus, and disputes with the Grecians, or rather Jews that used the Greek tongue. These also consult how they may kill him.
	Acts XXII. 17.	While Saul prays in the temple, he is in a trance, and the Lord appears unto him, and bids him to depart from Jerusalem, because they will not receive his testimony; adding, that he will send him to the Gentiles.
	IX. 30.	Saul leaving Jerusalem goes to his own
	Gal. I. 21.	country Tarsus, and from thence travels into Syria and Cilicia.
	Acts. IX. 32, 36.	Peter visits the churches of Judea, Galilee, Samaria, &c. At Lydda he cureth Eneas of the palsy; and at Joppa restoreth Tabitha to life.
41.	X.	At Cesarea Cornelius, a centurion, by prayers and alms finds favour in the sight of God, and is commanded by an angel to send for Peter, now at Joppa. God by a vision teacheth Peter not to despise the Gentiles. Peter, being sent for by Cornelius, goes and preacheth Christ to him and a great company that were met at his house: while Peter preacheth, the Holy Ghost falls upon them all; and immediately the Apostle baptizeth them.
After CHRIST 41. The Roman Empire.	Acts XI.	Peter at his return to Jerusalem is accused by those of the circumcision for conversing with the Gentiles; but he declares to them his vision, and the whole matter concerning Cornelius; and they glorify God for granting to the Gentiles also repentance unto life.
		The believers, who ever since the martyrdom of Stephen, and the persecution thereupon ensuing, had been dispersed throughout all Phenice and Cyprus, come now to Antioch, and preach the Gospel to the Greeks there, having before preached to none but the Jews. The Church at Jerusalem understanding this, and that the number of believers increased exceedingly, sends Barnabas thither to confirm them; he goes to Tarsus, and takes Saul along with him to Antioch, where they continue a whole year, converting multitudes to the faith. Here the disciples were first called Christians.
44.	XII.	About this time James the brother of John is beheaded by the command of Herod Agrippa. He also imprisoneth Peter, whom an angel delivers upon the prayers of the church. This same Herod not long after speaking to the people at Cesarea, some of them cry out, It is the voice of God, and not of man: and immediately an angel of the Lord smites him, because he gave not the glory to God; and he is eaten of worms, and dieth.
45.	XIII.	Barnabas and Saul set forward in their preaching of the Gospel. They plant the Christian faith in Seleucia, Cyprus, and other places. At Paphos they preach the Gospel to Sergius Paulus, governor of that country: Elymas a sorcerer withstanding them, and endeavouring to turn away Sergius from the faith, is at Saul's rebuke struck blind. From this time Saul is always called by his new name Paul; he preacheth at Antioch; the Gentiles believe, but the Jews gainsay and blaspheme. Whereupon he and his assistants turn to the Gentiles, and come to Iconium.
46.	XIV.	At Iconium they are persecuted and ready to be stoned. From hence they fly to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia. At Lystra Paul healing a cripple, the multitude cry out, that the gods are come down, and call Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius; and would have sacrificed to them, had not the Apostles with clothes rent run in among them, and assured them that they were men like themselves. Soon after there come Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who excite the people against them.
	2 Cor. XI. 24.	Paul is by the furious multitude stoned, and drawn out of the city as dead; but whilst the disciples stand about him, he riseth up, and the next day departs with Barnabas to Derbe.
	XII. 2.	In this year, perhaps at this very time, Paul was caught up into the third heaven, and heard unspeakable words, fourteen years before he wrote his second epistle to the Corinthians.
	2 Tim. I. 2, 5.	About this time Timothy, though a child, with his mother Eunice, and his grandmother Lois, embrace the Christian faith, preached by Paul.
52,	Acts XV.	Certain Judaizing Christians come from Judea to Antioch, and teach that the Gentiles ought to be circumcised, and observe the law of Moses; these Paul and Barnabas oppose, and a council is held by the Apostles and others at Jerusalem, to determine this controversy. The decrees of the synod are sent to the churches.
53.	36.	Paul and Barnabas, thinking to visit the

After CHRIST 53. The Roman Empire.		churches together, fall at strife, and part asunder; Barnabas and Mark go into Cyprus; Paul and Silas into Syria and Cilicia.
	Acts XVI.	Paul coming to Derbe finds there Timothy, whom (because his mother was a believing Jew, though his father a Gentile) he causeth to be circumcised, and takes him along with him. He is by a vision admonished to go into Macedonia; coming to Philippi, the chief city of that part of Macedonia, he converts Lydia; casteth out of a certain maidservant a spirit of divination, whose master, losing a considerable gain thereby, brings Paul and Silas before the magistrates; these cause them to be whipped and imprisoned; but at midnight, Paul and Silas praying and singing psalms, the doors of the prison fly open, and their bonds are loosed: the jailor, ready to kill himself, is converted to the faith, and baptized the same night with his whole family. Next day the magistrates come themselves, and pray them to depart the city.
54.	XVII.	From Philippi Paul takes his journey through Amphipolis and Apollonia, and comes to Thessalonica, where he finds a synagogue of the Jews; there he preacheth three sabbath days; some believe, others persecute him. Leaving Thessalonica, he comes to Berea, and soon after arrives at Athens, disputes with the philosophers, and declares unto them that UNKNOWN GOD, whom they had ignorantly worshipped. He converts Dionysius the Areopagite, and thence passeth to Corinth.
	XVIII.	Paul at Corinth meets with Aquila and Priscilla, not long before banished Rome by the decree of Claudius. Here he continues a year and six months, and thence writes to the Thessalonians.
55.		Paul is accused by the Jews, and brought before Gallio, proconsul of Achaia, who refuseth to be judge in a controversy about religion, and so drives them away from the judgment seat.
56.	18.	Paul departs from Corinth, and passeth to Ephesus, thence he sets out toward Jerusalem, that he may be at the feast; he lands at Cesarea, goes down to Antioch, and comes into the regions of Galatia and Phrygia, confirming the disciples in all those places.
57.	XIX.	Paul returns to Ephesus, disputes daily in the school of Tyrannus, and continues preaching there, and the parts thereabouts.
58.		He writes his epistle to the Galatians.
60.		At Ephesus Demetrius a silversmith, jealous of his gain, raiseth a tumult against Paul, which is appeased by the townclerk.
	1 Cor. I. 11.	About this time a schism ariseth in the Church of Corinth, which causeth Paul (now
	XVI. 8.	in or about Ephesus) to write his first epistle
	Acts XX.	to the Corinthians. Paul departs from Ephesus, and comes into
	2 Cor. VIII.	Macedonia, and gathers a contribution for the
	1, 2, 6, 19.	relief of the saints at Jerusalem.
	1 Cor.	The Apostle, having learnt from Titus the
	XVI. 5.	success of his first, writes now his second epistle to the Corinthians; out of Macedonia he goes into Greece, and comes to Corinth, where he writes his epistle to the Romans.
	Acts XX. 3, 4.	Paul purposing to go directly from thence into Syria, that he may carry the collections to Jerusalem, the Jews lay wait for him; he understanding this thinks it best to return into Macedonia the same way he came, and thence to pass into Asia.
After CHRIST 60. The Roman Empire.	Acts XX. 6.	After the days of unleavened bread Paul sails from Philippi, and comes to Troas; there he restores Eutychus to life. Having passed through several cities of Greece, he arrives at Miletus; from thence he sends to call the elders of the Church of Ephesus, whom he earnestly exhorts to the performance of their duty.
	XXI.	Paul comes to Jerusalem, is apprehended in the temple, and secured in the castle; he claimeth the privilege of a Roman, and escapeth scourging.
	XXII.	Paul pleadeth his cause before Ananias the
	XXIII.	high priest. The chief captain, understanding that above forty Jews had bound themselves under a curse neither to eat nor drink till they had killed him, sends him to Felix the governor of the province, by whom he is imprisoned at Cesarea.
62.	XXIV.	Paul is accused before Felix by Tertullus the orator: Felix goes out of his office, and, to gratify the Jews, leaves Paul in prison. Porcius Festus succeeds him in the government.
	XXV.	The Jews come to Cesarea, and accuse Paul before Festus. He answereth for himself, and appeals unto Cesar. King Agrippa comes to Cesarea, and Festus opens the whole matter to him.
	XXVI.	Paul makes his defence in the presence of Agrippa; who thereby is almost persuaded to be a Christian, and the whole company pronounce him innocent.
63.	XXVIII.	Paul comes to Rome, is a prisoner at large, and preacheth there two years.
		Here ends the History of the Acts of the Apostles, written by St. Luke, St. Paul's beloved companion in his travels.
62.		Saint Paul from Rome writes his epistles,
		To the Philippians.
		To Philemon.
		To the Colossians.
		To the Ephesians.
65.	Hebr. XIII. 24.	About the latter end of this year St. Paul is set at liberty; and a little before his departure out of Italy into Asia he writes his epistle to the Hebrews.
	Tit. I. 5.	He preacheth the Gospel in the isle of Crete, and leaves Titus there to set things in order, and ordain elders in every city.
66.		Saint Paul writes his epistles,
		To Timothy I.
		To Titus.
		To Timothy II.
		About this time the epistles of St. Peter, St. John, and St. Jude, seem to be written.
67.	Euseb. Hist. Eccl. l. 2. c. 24.	St. Peter and St. Paul are said to have suffered martyrdom at Rome towards the latter end of Nero's reign.
70.	Luke XIX. 43, 44.	This year Jerusalem (according to Christ's prophecy) is besieged, taken, sacked, and burnt, by Titus, 1,100,000 of the Jews perish, 97,000 are taken prisoners; beside an innumerable company that in other places of Judea kill themselves, or perish through famine, banishment, or other miseries.
96.		St. John is banished into the isle of Patmos by Domitian, and there receives and writes his Revelation.
		After the death of Domitian St. John returns to Ephesus, and at the request of the Church writes his Gospel.

END OF THE INDEX.

TABLES

OF SCRIPTURE MEASURES, WEIGHTS, AND COINS:

WITH AN APPENDIX,

Containing the Method of calculating its MEASURES OF SURFACE, hitherto wanting in Treatises on this Subject.

BY THE RIGHT REVEREND RICHARD LORD BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH.

A MEASURE is a known quantity applied to another of the same kind that is less known, to make its dimensions better known, by help of numbers expressing the proportion that the known quantity bears to the unknown. The dimensions to be measured are three: 1. Mere length, which hath but one dimension. 2. Surface, which consists of length multiplied into breadth; so it hath two dimensions, as it were interwoven; and this is always measured by some square surface already known, as by a square foot, or a square cubit, or any other square already known, by help of its side. Moses generally useth the square cubit. 3. Solidity, or Capacity, which hath three dimensions multiplied into each other: length, breadth, and height, or depth. This is measured by a known cube. From solidity ariseth weight in all sublunary bodies; and by weight we measure the value of coins. Therefore I shall join weights and coins together in the fourth table.

I use = to signify Equal; : : to express Proportion; ∠ is called Separatrix, parting Decimals from Integers.

I. TABLE. Measures of Length.

I express the Cubit, and its Parts, both by Inch Measure and by Foot Measure; which I deduce from Inches by this Proportion:

	Inch Meas.	Foot Meas.
As 12. 1. : :	21∠888	1∠824.
	Inch Dec.	Foot Dec.
A Cubit is = to	21∠888	1∠824.
A Span the longer = $\frac{1}{2}$ a Cubit =	10∠944 =	∠912.
Span the less = $\frac{1}{3}$ of a Cubit =	7∠296 =	∠608.
A Hand's breadth = $\frac{1}{6}$ of Cubit =	3∠684 =	∠304.
A Finger's breadth = $\frac{1}{24}$ of Cubit =	∠912 =	∠076.

Measures of many Cubits Length I express only in Foot Measure.

		Feet. Dec.
A Fathom	= 4 Cubits	= 7∠296.
Ezekiel's Reed	= 6 Cubits	= 10∠944.
Schœnus, The Egyptian Line for Land Measure, which I think Scripture useth to divide Inheritances. Psalm xvi. 6, and lxxviii. 55. They used different Lengths, but the shortest and most useful was	Cubits. = 80	= 145∠92.

Herodotus mentions a Schœnus just 300 times as long: I judge that all the greater were made in proportion to the least.

The Mile = 4000 Cubits = 7296 Feet.
Stadium, $\frac{1}{10}$ of their Mile = 400 Cubits = 729 ∠6.
Parasang, 3 of their Miles = 12000 Cubits = 4 English Miles, and 580 Feet.

II. TABLE. Measures of Surface.

Moses hath described these by square Cubits. I here express them reduced to our square Feet. The method of this reduction is taught in an Appendix. I first propose three clear examples given by Moses: Secondly, I place six instances of greater difficulty.

The clearest examples are,

I. The Altar of Incense. Only two sides of it, viz. its length and breadth are expressed by Moses; each of them is affirmed to be one Cubit. Yet he declares that it was four square: whence we collect, that it was just one square Cubit. See Exod. xxx. 2. Now it is demonstrated in the Appendix, that one Jewish square Cubit amounts to in surface three English square Feet, and about 47 square Inches.

II. The Table of Shewbread. Exod. xxv. 23. It is affirmed to be two Cubits in length, and one in breadth. None doubt but it was rectangular, containing two Jewish square Cubits. These amount to above six English square Feet, and above half, viz. 94 square Inches.

III. The Boards of the Tabernacle, each 10 Cubits in length, and one and an half in breadth, Exod. xxvi. 16, being rectangular, must contain 15 square Cubits, Jewish. These are proved to contain very near 50 square Feet of English measure.

The more difficult cases reserved to the Appendix are,

I. The Mercy Seat, whose surface is = 12 square Feet and $\frac{1}{2}$.

II. A general method is taught of reducing any given number of Jewish Cubits to English square Feet.

III. The example of the 15 square Cubits in the Boards of the Tabernacle is made clearer.

IV. The Court of the Tabernacle, described Exod. xxvii. 18, is found to be just half the Egyptian Aroura, and to contain 1 Rood, 21 Perches, 27 square Feet, &c.

V. The whole Aroura is determined, and reduced to our English Measures, 3 Roods, 2 Perches, 55 square Feet.

VI. The suburbs, or Glebe Land, given to each city of the Levites, Numb. xxxv. 3—5, is shewed to be a square, on each of the four sides of every city, containing a million of Jewish square Cubits, or 100 Arourœ; which amount to in each square 76 Acres, 1 Rood, 20 Perches, 80 square Feet. Whence we collect, that all the four squares amounted to 305 Acres, 2 Roods, 1 Perch, beside 51 Feet square.

III. TABLE. Measures of Capacity.

	Wine Gall.	Pints.	Inch. Sol.
Epha, or Bath	7	4	15
Chomer, Homer in our translation	75	5	7
Seah $\frac{1}{3}$ of Epha	2	4	3
Hin = $\frac{1}{6}$ of Epha	1	2	1
Omer $\frac{1}{10}$ of Epha	0	6	0∠5
Cab $\frac{1}{18}$ of Epha	0	3	10
Log $\frac{1}{72}$ of Epha	0	0½	10
Metretes of Syria (John ii. 6.) = Cong. Rom.	0	7½	0
Cotyla, Eastern, $\frac{1}{100}$ of Epha	0	0½	3

This Cotyla contains just 10 Ounces Averdupois of Rain Water: Omer 100: Epha 1000: Chomer 10,000. So by these Weights all these Measures of Capacity may be expeditiously recovered very near exactness.

IV. TABLE. Of Weights and Coins.

The Jewish Weights are reduced to the Standard Grains of our Troy Weight; whereof 438 are equal to the Roman Ounce, and to our ancient English Averdupois Ounce.

The Value of Jewish and Roman Weights and Coins, at the present Rate of Silver and Gold, expressed in Pence and Decimals of a Penny.

	Grains. Dec.	Pence. Decim.	s.	d.	q.
Shekel is the original w^t	= 219 ——	= 28∠2875 —	= 2	—4	—1
Bekah $\frac{1}{2}$ a Shekel	— = 109∠5 —	= 14∠1437 —	= 1	—2	—$\frac{1}{2}$x
Gerah $\frac{1}{10}$ of Bekah	— = 10∠95 —	= 1∠41437 —	= 0	—1	—$\frac{1}{2}$x

		Pence. Dec.	l.	s.	d.
Maneh = 100 Shekel w^t	= 21900
Maneh in Coin = 60 Sh.	= 13140	= 1697 ∠25	= 7	—1	—5
Talent Sil. = 3000 Sh.	= 657000	= 84862 ∠ 5	= 353	—11	—10*ob.*
Talent of Gold the same Weight		= 5075	—15	—7	ob.

The Golden Darics, Ezra ii. 69, seem to be Coins of Darius the Mede. They weighed 12 Gerahs.

	l.	s.	d.
= 131∠4 —	= 1	—0	—4

Roman Money mentioned in the New Testament.

	Pence.	Farthings.
Denarius, Silver,	7	3
Assis, Copper,	0	5
Assarium,	0	1½
Quadrans,	0	¾
A Mite,	0	⅓

AN APPENDIX

TO THE

SECOND TABLE OF MEASURES OF SURFACE DESCRIBED BY MOSES, SHEWING THE

METHOD OF REDUCING THEM BY CALCULATION TO THE MEASURES USED IN ENGLAND,

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THOSE THAT UNDERSTAND DECIMAL ARITHMETICK, AND DESIRE TO TRY THE REDUCTION GIVEN IN THE TABLE, OR TO MAKE FURTHER IMPROVEMENTS IN THIS KIND OF MEASURES.

1. THE MERCY SEAT.

I SHALL begin with Reduction of the Measures of the Mercy Seat, which was God's Throne of Grace among the Jews. Moses in Exod. xxv. 17. affirms, that its length was two Cubits and an half, its breadth one Cubit and an half. The fractions adhering to its length and breadth make some difficulty to beginners in Arithmetick, which the Decimal way doth much abate. Supposing therefore, what I have elsewhere proved, that the Jewish Cubit was in Foot measure 1∠824; the length must be expressed in Foot measure, and Decimals thereof, 4∠560. The breadth in like measure will be 2∠736. Wherefore the product of these numbers multiplied into each other gives its surface 12∠47,616: in number of its square Feet, and Decimals thereof, 12 square Feet, and very near half a square Foot; if the Decimals had been ∠50, it had been just half a Foot. If we desire to express those Decimals of a Foot in square inches, as is usual in England, we must multiply ∠47,616 by 144, the square Inches of a Foot, and the product will be 68∠56,704; which shews that the Decimals we found amount to 68 square Inches, and about half an inch more: we need not be nicer.

2. A SQUARE CUBIT REDUCED TO OUR MEASURE.

In the Altar of Incense Moses describes the Jewish square Cubit, which must be reduced to our Foot measure, thus, $\frac{1,824}{1,824}$. The product of these numbers multiplied will be the upper surface of this Altar, 3∠326,976, that is, three square Feet, and ∠326,976 Decimals of a square Foot, which we may express by 47 square Inches, and a few Decimals of an Inch square inconsiderable.

3. THE BOARDS OF THE TABERNACLE.

Moses's description of the Boards of the Tabernacle, Exod. xxvi. 16, by ten Cubits in length, and one and an half in breadth, naturally leads a man to discern in each Board's surface 15 Jewish square Cubits; because if we conceive a line drawn from the end of one Cubit at the bottom of the Board to the end of one Cubit at the top of the Board, this must needs be ten whole square Cubits on one side of that line, and 10 half square Cubits (=5 whole) on the other side of that line: here therefore are 15 square Cubits. The reduction of these into English square Feet is performed by multiplying 15, viz. the number of Cubits given into 3∠326,976, the Feet and Decimals of one square Cubit, and the product will be 49∠90,464, and that is very near to 50 square Feet; for those Decimals amount to above 130 square Inches; and little more than 13 square Inches would make it just 50 Feet, which abatement we need not here regard.

4. THE COURT OF THE TABERNACLE.

Let us now go to the measure of the surface of land. But we will begin with the Court of the Tabernacle, the ground on which the Priests performed all the solemn publick worship of Israel in Moses's time. The Area of this Court is described by Moses, Exod. xxvii. 18, by its length 100 Cubits, and its breadth every where 50 Cubits. Wherefore this Area must be in Jewish measure 5000 square Cubits, for that is the product of 100 multiplied into 50. To reduce these 5000 Jewish Cubits into English square Feet, I must multiply 5000 into 3∠326,976, the product is 16,634∠88 English square Feet.

But in cases of such long numbers of Feet we use for brevity's sake, and to help our memories, to reduce them into Perches, or Roods, or Acres, which contain known numbers of square Feet. A Perch contains 272 square Feet and $\frac{1}{4}$. A Rood is = to 10,890 square Feet. An Acre is = to 43,560 square Feet. It is plain that the number 16,634∠88 hath not integers equal to those of an Acre; but it hath enough to answer those in a Rood, and some overplus; therefore I must divide 16,634∠88 by 10,890, which is a Rood. By such division continued in the Decimal way, until I have a fraction of five or six places, which is exact enough, I find the quote to be 1∠527,537, which assures me that my number 16,634∠88 hath but once entirely in it a whole Rood: but it hath moreover in it many Decimal parts of a Rood. These therefore I reduce to the Perches contained in them, by multiplying them into 40, which is the number of Perches that make up a Rood: and cutting off six places from the product, which is 21∠101,480; so I find there are 21 Perches entire, and the figures after the Separatrix are Decimals of a Perch. These also I multiply by 272∠25, which are the square Feet and Decimals of a Perch. The product of this last multiplication, after eight places cut off from it by the Separatrix, because there were six places of Decimals in one of the multipliers, and two in the other, is 27∠62,793,000. Hence I learn that there are therein but 27 entire Feet; all the eight Decimal places amount to little above half a Foot, and therefore I cast them away as inconsiderable in the measure of land. This method of reduction by multiplication of Decimals I find to be easier than the common way of reduction by division, and therefore I propose it to be used by beginners in this practice of surveying. So I find this Court to contain in English measure 1 Rood, 21 Perches, 27 Feet, and little more than half a Foot squared. But reflecting upon Moses's measure by Cubits, and finding them to be precisely 5000 square Cubits, I observed that they were just half 10,000, which I had observed from Herodotus's Euterpe to be the Area of the Egyptian Aroura, by which their land was as generally measured, as our's is by Acres and Roods. See Herodot. l. 2. c. 168. I called also to mind a passage in Manetho an Egyptian Priest, cited by Josephus in his first book against Apion, where he affirms, that Manetho in his history of the reign, wars, and expulsion, of the Pastors, (whom Africanus affirms to be Phœnicians, or Canaanites, and Josephus vainly believed to be Jews,) wrote out of the publick records of Egypt, that these Pastors made at Abaris a very large and strong encampment, that encompassed 10,000 Arourœ, sufficient to contain 240,000 men, and long to maintain their cattle. Hence it appears, that not only the Egyptians, but the Phœnicians or Canaanites also, that had dwelt among them, and had reigned there during the time of six kings successively, used this measure of land called Aroura. Now this was long before Moses's time; for the beginning of Amosis or Tethmosis, who expelled them out of Egypt, was very near the time of Abraham's death, as appears by the Annals of the learned Primate of Ireland. Wherefore I believe that Moses, who was skilled in all Egyptian learning, especially surveying, did of choice make the Court of the Tabernacle to be just half an Aroura, which was a known measure to him and his people, who had long dwelt in Egypt, and Divine Authority directed him so to do.

5. THE REDUCTION OF AN AROURA IN ENGLISH MEASURES.

Because we have shewn from Herodotus, that an Aroura is the square of 100 Jewish or Egyptian Cubits, and 100 such Cubits may in English Foot measure be expressed by 182∠4 English

Feet, it follows, that the square of this number will express exactly the number of the English square Feet that are contained in an Aroura. Now by multiplication of 182∠4 into itself, I find the product to be 33,269∠76: Therefore I conclude that there are 33,269 square Feet entire, and ∠76 Decimals of a square Foot, in an Aroura. Now to reduce these English square Feet into Roods, Perches, and the remainder of square Feet, I use the method used in the last paragraph: First, I divide them by 10,890, the square Feet in a Rood; and the quote I find 3∠055,074, that is, 3 Roods, and ∠055,074 Decimals of a Rood. Secondly, I multiply those Decimals by 40, which is the number of Perches in a Rood, the product is 2∠202,960. Hence I conclude there are therein two Perches, and ∠202,960 Decimals of a Perch. Thirdly, I multiply these last Decimals by 272∠25, which are the square Feet of a Perch. The product is 55∠25,586,000, that is, 55 entire square Feet: the eight places of Decimals amount to little above $\frac{1}{4}$ of a square Foot, therefore I reject them as inconsiderable in measure of land. By all these reductions it is found, that an Aroura is in English measure three Roods, two Perches, 55$\frac{1}{4}$ square Feet. Hence it follows also, that it is not well translated by Jugerum, for it is much larger; nor is it well in English called an Acre, for it is considerably less. To this place I refer the use of the lesser sort of σχοῖνος, which yet is most convenient for the use of the Egyptians, and of the Jews, to measure out private men's inheritances by a line which was 80 Cubits long. For the length of this line will measure one side of an Aroura, if the other side be 125 Cubits long, which is the length of this line, and its half, and 5 Cubits above half of it, which they might easily mark in it by a knot or a ring. And by this means they might easily lay any number of Arourœ together, all of them rectangular and parallel to each other. Such lines I suppose for measure of inheritances are intimated, Ps. lxxviii. 55, and xvi. 6, &c.

6. THE LEVITES' GLEBE.

I shall conclude with an example amounting after reduction to a number of English Acres, which measure we have not yet reached to. This I take from Numbers xxxv. 3—5, verses. There Moses describes what measure of land the Levites were to be allowed for their cattle, their goods, and all their beasts, on the north, east, south, and west, sides of each of their cities. So that the city was to be in the midst of the land belonging to it. This land in our translation is called suburbs, because of its nearness to all their cities. But we must not thence imagine that it means houses and streets adjoining to their cities, in which sense we sometimes use the word suburbs. For Moses plainly tells us they were places for their several sorts of cattle to feed in, such as might also be orchards or gardens for fruits, or perhaps for a little corn, comprehended in the word, their Goods. These fields he limits by 1000 Cubits, which was just a quarter of an eastern mile, but amounts in mere length to 608 yards English measure, and therefore exceeds a quarter of an English mile by 168 yards in length. But it is certain that cattle cannot feed upon mere length, but this must signify the side of some surface of land bounded thereby, and we must have two sides of that surface given, before we can find the Area, or surface contained. Therefore Moses, ver. 5, tells us, that on each side of each city they must measure 2000 Cubits, which will determine no surface, unless we understand it to mean the two sides of a square, bounded on every side by 1000 Cubits; these two sides multiplied into each other will produce a square that contains just a million of square Cubits, and that is a known and exact measure of just 100 Arourœ: and this shews that the 2000 Cubits mentioned ver. 5, are the two sides of that square, whereof the 1000 mentioned ver. 4, is one, and may be called the root of the square. This shews the agreement of the two different numbers. The reduction of this million of square Cubits will be performed by the same method that I have used before. Therefore, first, I express 1000 Jewish by 1824 English Feet, without any Separatrix, according to the principles owned in Decimal Arithmetick; and the square of that number will be 3,326,976, without a Separatrix. Secondly, I divide this number by 43,560, which are the square Feet of an Acre, and find the quote to be 76∠376,859, which signify 76 entire Acres, and ∠376,859 Decimals of an Acre. Thirdly, to find what Roods are contained in these Decimals, I multiply them by four, the number of Roods in an Acre, and find the quote to be 1∠507,436, which proves that there is but one Rood in them, and the six figures cut off by the Separatrix (because there were six Decimals in one of the multipliers) are all Decimals of a Rood. Fourthly, therefore to find what Perches are in these last Decimals, I multiply them by 40, which is the number of Perches contained in a Rood. The product is 20∠297,440; hereby I find there are 20 entire Perches, besides the Decimals of a Perch placed after the Separatrix. Fifthly, to find what square Feet are in those last Decimals, I multiply them by 272∠25, which are the square Feet and Decimals in a Perch, the product is 80∠97,804, which is 80 square Feet, and all the Decimals not amounting to a square Foot, I reject as inconsiderable in measure of land. Thus we have found that this and every other square on each side of every Levitical City was prescribed to be 76 Acres, 1 Rood, 20 Perches, 80 square Feet in our measure, but was just a million of square Cubits in their measure.

To add the four squares belonging to one Levitical City together, the best way will be to take the first quote that we found in Acre measure, viz. 76∠376,859, and we must multiply it by four, and we shall find, by the method I have used, all the four squares together to amount to 305 Acres, 2 Roods, 1 Perch: we need not take notice of any lesser quantities in this case. We may also by this method find the sum of the Acres belonging to all the 48 cities of the Levites, and many other improvements in this kind of measuring surfaces. But I leave them to the industry of others.

A TABLE OF OFFICES AND CONDITIONS OF MEN.

PATRIARCHS, or Fathers of Families, such as Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and his sons.

Judges, Temporary Supreme Governors, immediately appointed by God over the children of Israel.

Kings, and they either of the whole nation, or after the falling off of the ten tribes, of Judah or Israel.

Elders, Senators, the LXX, or Sanhedrin.

Officers, Provosts, Sheriffs, or Executioners.

Judges, Inferior Rulers, such as determine controversies in particular cities.

Israelites, Hebrews, descendants from Jacob.

An Hebrew of Hebrews, an Israelite by original extraction.

A Proselyte of the Covenant, who was circumcised, and submitted to the whole law.

A Proselyte of the Gate, or Stranger who worshipped one God, but remained uncircumcised.

OFFICERS UNDER THE ASSYRIAN OR PERSIAN MONARCHS.

Tirshatha, or Governor appointed by the kings of Assyria or Persia.

Heads of the Captivity, the Chief of each tribe or family, who exercised a precarious Government during the Captivity.

UNDER THE GRECIAN MONARCHS.

SUPERIOR OFFICERS.

Maccabees, the Successors of Judas Maccabeus, high priests, who presided with kingly power.

UNDER THE ROMAN EMPERORS.

Presidents, or Governors, sent from Rome with Imperial power.

Tetrarchs, who had kingly power in four Provinces.

Proconsuls, or Deputies of Provinces.

INFERIOR OFFICERS.

Publicans, or Taxgatherers.

Centurions, Captains of an hundred men.

ECCLESIASTICAL OFFICERS, OR SECTS OF MEN.

High Priests, who only might enter the Holy of Holies.

Second Priests, or Sagan, who supplied the High Priest's office, in case he were disabled.

High Priests for the War, set apart for the occasion of an expedition.

Priests, Levites of the sons of Aaron, divided into twenty-four ranks, each rank serving weekly in the temple.

Levites, of the tribe of Levi, but not of Aaron's family; of these were three orders, Gershonites, Kohathites, Merarites, several sons of Levi.

Nethinims, Inferior servants to the Priests and Levites (not of their tribe) to draw water, and cleave wood, &c.

Prophets, anciently called Seers, who foretold future events, and denounced God's judgments.

Children of the Prophets, their disciples or scholars.

Wisemen, called so in imitation of the eastern Magi, or Gentile Philosophers.

Scribes, Writers and Expounders of the law.

Disputers, that raised and determined questions out of the law.

Rabbies or Doctors, Teachers of Israel.

Libertines, Freed men of Rome, who, being Jews or Proselytes, had a synagogue or oratory for themselves.

Gaulonites, or Galileans, who pretended it unlawful to obey an heathen magistrate.

Herodians, who shaped their religion to the times, and particularly flattered Herod.

Epicureans, who placed all happiness in pleasure.

Stoicks, who denied the liberty of the Will, and pretended all events were determined by fatal necessity.

Simon Magus, author of the heresy of the Gnosticks, who taught that men, however vicious their practice was, should be saved by their knowledge.

Nicolaitans, the disciples of Nicolas, one of the first seven Deacons, who taught the community of wives.

Nazarites, who under a vow abstained from wine, &c.

Nazarens, Jews professing Christianity.

Zelots, Sicarii, or Murderers, who, under pretence of the law, thought themselves authorized to commit any outrage.

Pharisees, Separatists, who upon the opinion of their own godliness despised all others.

Sadducees, who denied the resurrection of the dead, angels, and spirits.

Samaritans, mongrel professors, partly Heathen, and partly Jews, the offspring of the Assyrians sent to Samaria.

Apostles, Missionaries, or persons sent; they who were sent by our Saviour from their number were called, The Twelve.

Bishops, successors of the Apostles in the government of the Church.

Deacons, Officers chosen by the Apostles to take care of the poor.

A TABLE OF TIME.

1 NISAN, or Abib. -	March. / April.
2 Ijar, or Zif. - - - -	April. / May.
3 Sivan. - - - - - -	May. / June.
4 Thamuz. - - - - -	June. / July.
5 Ab. - - - - - -	July. / August.
6 Elul. - - - - - -	August. / September.
7 Tisri, or Ethanim. -	September. / October.
8 Marchesvan, or Bul.	October. / November.
9 Chisleu. - - - - -	November. / December.
10 Tebeth. - - - - -	December. / January.
11 Shebat. - - - - -	January. / February.
12 Adar. - - - - - -	February. / March.
13 Veadar, intercalary.

Days of the Week.

1st day of the week, - - Sunday.
2d day, - - - - - - - Monday.
3d day, - - - - - - - Tuesday.
4th day, - - - - - - - Wednesday.
5th day, - - - - - - - Thursday.
6th day, - - - - - - - Friday.
7th day or Sabbath, - - Saturday.

Hours of the Day.

The day, reckoning from sunrise, and the night, from sunset, were each divided into 12 equal parts, called, The 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, &c. Hours.

Watches.

The 1st watch, from sunset to the 3d hour of the night.
The 2d, or middle watch, from the 3d hour to the 6th.
The 3d watch, or cockcrowing, from the 6th to the 9th.
The 4th, or morning watch, from the 9th hour to sunrise.

A TABLE

OF

KINDRED AND AFFINITY,

Wherein whosoever are related are forbidden in Scripture and our Laws to marry together.

A Man may not marry his	A Woman may not marry with her
1 GRANDMOTHER,	1 GRANDFATHER,
2 Grandfather's Wife,	2 Grandmother's Husband,
3 Wife's Grandmother.	3 Husband's Grandfather.
4 Father's Sister,	4 Father's Brother,
5 Mother's Sister,	5 Mother's Brother,
6 Father's Brother's Wife.	6 Father's Sister's Husband.
7 Mother's Brother's Wife,	7 Mother's Sister's Husband,
8 Wife's Father's Sister,	8 Husband's Father's Brother,
9 Wife's Mother's Sister.	9 Husband's Mother's Brother.
10 Mother,	10 Father,
11 Step-Mother,	11 Step-Father,
12 Wife's Mother.	12 Husband's Father.
13 Daughter,	13 Son,
14 Wife's Daughter,	14 Husband's Son,
15 Son's Wife.	15 Daughter's Husband.
16 Sister,	16 Brother,
17 Wife's Sister,	17 Husband's Brother,
18 Brother's Wife.	18 Sister's Husband.
19 Son's Daughter,	19 Son's Son,
20 Daughter's Daughter,	20 Daughter's Son,
21 Son's Son's Wife.	21 Son's Daughter's Husband.
22 Daughter's Son's Wife,	22 Daughter's Daughter's Husband,
23 Wife's Son's Daughter,	23 Husband's Son's Son,
24 Wife's Daughter's Daughter.	24 Husband's Daughter's Son.
25 Brother's Daughter,	25 Brother's Son,
26 Sister's Daughter,	26 Sister's Son,
27 Brother's Son's Wife.	27 Brother's Daughter's Husband.
28 Sister's Son's Wife,	28 Sister's Daughter's Husband,
29 Wife's Brother's Daughter,	29 Husband's Brother's Son,
30 Wife's Sister's Daughter.	30 Husband's Sister's Son.

LIST OF AUTHORS.

The following is an Alphabetical List of the principal Authors, from whose writings the Notes in this Work have been extracted: the dates of the birth and death of each, wherever they could be ascertained, are annexed to his name and description, together with the titles of those works, from which the quotations have for the most part been made. In the few instances, where the date of neither the birth nor the death could be ascertained, the date of the publication is annexed. Where no date at all is inserted, the Reader will infer that the Author is supposed to be still living. (December, 1816.)

Author's name and description.	When born.	When died.	Works principally quoted.
Allix Peter, D. D. Dean of Ely	1641	1717	Reflections on the Books of Holy Scripture: and Vindication of the ancient Jewish Church against the Unitarians.
Andrewes Lancelot, D. D. Bishop of Winchester	1565	1626	Sermons.
Arnald Richard, B. D. Rector of Thurcaston, Leicestershire	1700	1756	Commentary on the Apocrypha.
Atterbury Francis, D. D. Bishop of Rochester	1662	1731	Sermons.
Bagot Lewis, D. L. Bishop of St. Asaph	1740	1802	Sermons on the Prophecies, at Bp. Warburton's Lecture.
Balguy John, M. A. Prebendary of Sarum	1686	1748	Sermons.
Barrow Isaac, D. D. Master of Trinity College, Cambridge	1630	1677	Sermons.
Beausobre Isaac de, a French Protestant Divine	1659	1738	Notes on the New Testament.
Bentley Richard, D. D. Master of Trinity College, Cambridge	1662	1742	A Confutation of Atheism, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Berriman William, D. D. Rector of St. Andrew's, Undershaft	1688	1750	The gradual Revelation of the Gospel, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Beveridge William, D. D. Bishop of St. Asaph	1638	1707	Sermons.
Biscoe Richard, M. A. Prebendary of St. Paul's		1748	History of the Acts of the Apostles confirmed, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Blackhall Offspring, D. D. Bishop of Exeter	1654	1716	Sufficiency of a standing Revelation, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Blayney Benjamin, D. D. Regius Professor of Hebrew, Oxford	1728	1801	Translation of Jeremiah and Zechariah, with Notes.
Bochart Samuel, a French Protestant Divine	1599	1667	Hierozoicon; or a Treatise on the Animals of the Holy Scriptures.
Bradford Samuel, D. D. Bishop of Rochester	1652	1731	Credibility of the Christian Revelation from internal Evidence, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Bragge Francis, B. D. Prebendary of Lincoln		1728	Sermons on our Lord's Miracles and Parables.
Brewster John, M. A. Rector of Redmarshall, Durham			Lectures on the Acts of the Apostles.
Bruce James, Esq.	1730	1794	Travels to discover the Source of the Nile.
Bryant Jacob, Esq.	1715	1804	Observations on the Plagues of Egypt, &c.
Bull George, D. D. Bishop of St. David's	1634	1709	Sermons; and Harmonia Apostolica.
Burkitt William, M. A. Vicar of Dedham, Essex	1650	1703	Practical Exposition of the New Testament.
Burnet Gilbert, D. D. Bishop of Salisbury	1643	1715	Exposition of the Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of England.
Burnett Thomas, D. D. Prebendary of Sarum		1750	Demonstration of true Religion, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Butler Joseph, D. L. Bishop of Durham	1692	1752	Sermons.
Calmet Augustine, a French Benedictine	1672	1757	Historical, Critical, and Chronological Dictionary of the Bible; and literal Commentary on all the Books of Scripture.
Campbell George, D. D. Principal of Marischal College, Aberdeen.	1719	1796	Commentaries and Notes on the Gospels.
Caryl Joseph, M. A.	1602	1673	Commentary on the Book of Job.
Cave William, D. D. Canon of Windsor	1637	1713	Lives of the Apostles.
Chandler Edward, D. D. Bishop of Durham	1668	1750	Defence of Christianity from the Prophecies of the Old Testament.
Chandler Samuel, D. D.	1693	1766	History of the Life of David.
Chappelow Leonard, B. D. Arabick Professor, Cambridge	1683	1768	Commentary on the Book of Job.
Clagett William, D. D. Preacher at Gray's Inn	1646	1688	Sermons, and Commentary on part of St. John's Gospel.
Clarendon, Edward Hyde, Earl of	1608	1673	Remarks on the Scriptures, and Observations on the Psalms.
Clarke Samuel, D. D. Rector of St. James's	1675	1729	Sermons; and Paraphrase of the Gospels.
Clarke John, D. D. Dean of Sarum	1687	1757	Inquiry into the Cause and Origin of Evil, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture,
Clark Samuel, M. A.	1625	1682	Edition of the Bible, with Annotations.
Collyer David, Vicar of Great Coxwell, Berks		1724	Sacred Interpreter.
Conybeare John, D. D. Bishop of Bristol	1692	1755	Sermons.
Cranmer Thomas, D. D. Archbishop of Canterbury	1489	1556	Necessary Doctrine and Erudition of a Christian Man.

LIST OF AUTHORS.

Author's name and description.	When born.	When died.	Works principally quoted.
Danæus, or Daneau Lambert, a Protestant Divine of Leyden	1530	1596	Commentary on the Twelve Minor Prophets.
Daubuz Charles, Vicar of Brotherton, Cheshire	1670	1740	Commentary on the Revelation.
Delaney Patrick, D. D. Dean of Downe	1686	1768	Life of David king of Israel.
Derham William, D. D. Canon of Windsor	1657	1735	Physico-theology; or a Demonstration of the Being and Attributes of God, from his Works of Creation, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Dimock Henry, M. A. Rector of St. Edmund the King	1728	1810	Notes on the Book of Psalms.
Doddridge Philip, D. D.	1702	1751	Family Expositor of the New Testament.
Durell David, D. D. Principal of Hertford College, Oxford	1728	1775	The Prophecies of Jacob and Moses explained; and Critical Remarks on the Books of Job, Psalms, Ecclesiasticus, and Canticles.
Edwards Thomas, D. D. Vicar of Nuneaton, Warwickshire	1729	1785	Translation of the Psalms, with Notes.
Fell John, D. D. Bishop of Oxford	1625	1686	Paraphrase and Annotations upon St. Paul's Epistles.
Graves Richard, D. D. King's Professor of Divinity, Trinity College, Dublin			Lectures on the Pentateuch; and Essay on the Character of the Apostles.
Gray Robert, D. D. Prebendary of Durham			Key to the Old Testament.
Green William, M. A. Rector of Hardingham, Norfolk	1714	1794	Translation of the Psalms, with Notes.
Hales William, D. D. Rector of Killesandra in Ireland			New Analysis of Chronology.
Hall Joseph, D. D. Bishop of Norwich	1574	1656	Paraphrase on the Hard Texts of Scripture; and Contemplations.
Hallifax Samuel, D. D. Bishop of St. Asaph	1733	1790	Sermons on the Prophecies, at Bp. Warburton's Lecture.
Hammond Henry, D. D. Canon of Christ Church	1605	1660	Commentary on the Psalms; and Annotations on the New Testament.
Hare Francis, D. D. Bishop of Chichester		1740	Notes on the Psalms.
Harmer Thomas, M. A.	1715	1788	Observations on various Passages of Scripture.
Heath Thomas, Esq. of Exeter			Essay towards a New Version of the Book of Job, with a Commentary, 1755.
Hodgson Bernard, D. L. Principal of Hertford College, Oxford		1805	Translation of the Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Canticles.
Hooker Richard, M. A. Master of the Temple	1553	1600	Ecclesiastical Polity.
Horne George, D. D. Bishop of Norwich	1730	1792	Sermons; Considerations on the Lives of Abel, Enoch, and Noah; and on the Life of St. John the Baptist; Commentary on the Psalms; and Letters on Infidelity.
Horsley Samuel, D. D. Bishop of St. Asaph	1733	1806	Sermons; and Translation of Hosea, with Notes.
Hurd Richard, D. D. Bishop of Worcester	1720	1808	Sermons on the Prophecies, at Bp. Warburton's Lecture; and Miscellaneous Sermons.
Ibbot Benjamin, D. D. Prebendary of Westminster	1680	1725	On the Exercise of Private Judgment, or Free-thinking, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Isham Zachariah, D. D. Prebendary of Canterbury		1705	Explanatory Notes on the Books of Job, Proverbs, and Wisdom.
Jackson Thomas, D. D. Dean of Peterborough	1579	1640	Treatises, Commentaries, &c.
Jennings David, D. D.	1691	1762	Jewish Antiquities.
Jenyns Soame, Esq.	1704	1787	View of the Internal Evidences of Christianity.
Jones William, M. A. Perpetual Curate of Nayland, Suffolk	1726	1801	Sermons; Catholick Doctrine of a Trinity; Essay on the Church; and Lectures on the Epistle to the Hebrews.
Jortin John, D. D. Archdeacon of London	1698	1770	Sermons.
Kennicott Benjamin, D. D. Reg. Professor of Hebrew, Oxford	1718	1783	Remarks on certain Passages of the Old Testament; and Dissertations on the Tree of Life, and on Cain and Abel.
Kidder Richard, D. D. Bishop of Bath and Wells		1703	Commentary on the Pentateuch; and Demonstration of the coming of the Messiah.
Lamy Bernard, a French Divine	1640	1715	Apparatus Biblicus.
Latimer Hugh, D. D. Bishop of Worcester	1475	1555	Sermons.
Law Edmund, D. D. Bishop of Carlisle	1703	1787	Reflections on the Life and Character of Christ.
Leng John, D. D. Bishop of Norwich	1665	1727	Natural Obligations to believe the Principles of Religion and Divine Revelation, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Leland John, D. D.	1691	1766	View of the Deistical Writers that have appeared in England.
Leslie Charles, M. A. Chancellor of Connor	1656	1722	Socinian Controversy discussed; and Short Method with the Deists.
Lewis Thomas, M. A.			Origines Hebrææ, or the Antiquities of the Hebrew Republick, 1725.
Lightfoot John, D. D. Master of Catherine-hall, Cambridge	1602	1675	Harmony of the Old and New Testaments; Observations on several Books in the Bible.
Locke John, Esq. D. M. Student of Christ Church	1632	1704	Paraphrase, and Notes on some of St. Paul's Epistles; and Remarks in Dodd's Bible.
Lowman Moses,	1680	1752	On the Hebrew Ritual; and Commentary on the Revelation of St. John.
Lowth William, B. D. Prebendary of Winchester	1661	1732	Commentary on the Prophetical Books of the Old Testament.
Lowth Robert, D. D. Bishop of London	1710	1787	Translation of Isaiah, with Notes; and Lectures on Hebrew Poetry.
Lyttelton, George Lord	1609	1773	Observations on the Conversion and Apostleship of St. Paul.
Macknight James, D. D. Minister of the Old Church, Edinburgh	1721	1800	Translation of the Apostolical Epistles, with a Commentary.

LIST OF AUTHORS.

Author's name and description.	When born.	When died.	Works principally quoted.
Magee William, D. D. Dean of Cork			Discourses on the Scripture Doctrines of Atonement and Sacrifice.
Mann Isaac, D. D. Bishop of Cork		1788	Notes on the Gospels, and the Acts of the Apostles.
Maundrell Henry, M. A. Chaplain to the Factory at Aleppo			Journey from Aleppo to Jerusalem in 1697.
Mede Joseph, B. D. Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge	1586	1662	Sermons; and Commentaries on the Prophecies of Daniel, and on the Apocalypse.
Merrick James, M. A. Fellow of Trinity College, Oxford	1718	1768	Annotations on the Psalms.
Mudge Zachary, Prebendary of Exeter		1769	Essay towards a New English Version of the Psalms, with Notes.
Nelson Robert, Esq.	1656	1714	Companion for the Festivals and Fasts of the Church of England.
Nicholson William, D. D. Bishop of Gloucester	1590	1672	Analysis of the Book of Psalms.
Newcome William, D. D. Archbishop of Armagh	1729	1799	New Version of Ezekiel; and of the Twelve Minor Prophets; and of the New Testament; with Notes: and Observations on our Lord's Conduct.
Newton Sir Isaac	1642	1726	Observations on the Prophecies of Daniel and St. John.
Newton Thomas, D. D. Bishop of Bristol	1704	1782	Dissertations on the Prophecies; and Miscellaneous Works.
Ogden Samuel, D. D. Rector of Lawford, Essex	1716	1778	Sermons.
Ostervald John Frederick, a Protestant Divine of Neufchatel, in Switzerland	1663	1747	Arguments and Reflections on all the Books of the Bible.
Owen Henry, D. D. Rector of St. Olave's, Hart Street	1716	1795	Intent and Propriety of the Scripture Miracles, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture; and Modes of Quotation adopted by the Evangelists explained and vindicated.
Paley William, D. D. Archdeacon of Carlisle	1743	1805	Sermons; Evidences of the Christian Religion; and Horæ Paulinæ.
Parker Samuel,	1680	1730	Bibliotheca Biblica, or a Commentary on the Five Books of Moses, extracted chiefly from the Fathers.
Parkhurst John, M. A. Fellow of Clare Hall, Cambridge	1728	1797	Hebrew and English Lexicon; and Greek and English Lexicon.
Patrick Simon, D. D. Bishop of Ely	1626	1707	Commentary on the Historical Books of the Old Testament; and Paraphrase on the Books of Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Canticles.
Pearce Zachary, D. D. Bishop of Rochester	1690	1774	Commentary on the Gospels, Acts, and St. Paul's 1st Epistle to the Corinthians; and Sermons.
Pearson John, D. D. Bishop of Chester	1612	1686	Exposition of the Creed.
Percy Thomas, D. D. Bishop of Dromore	1728	1811	Key to the New Testament; and New Version of the Song of Solomon, with Annotations.
Peters Charles, M. A. Rector of St. Mabyn, Cornwall		1774	Critical Dissertation on the Book of Job; and Sermons.
Pocock Edward, D. D. Regius Professor of Hebrew, Oxford	1604	1691	Commentary on Hosea, Joel, Micah, and Malachi.
Pococke Richard, D. D. Bishop of Meath	1704	1765	A Description of the East.
Poole Matthew, M. A.	1624	1679	Annotations on the Bible.
Porteus Beilby, D. D. Bishop of London	1731	1808	Sermons; Lectures on St. Matthew's Gospel; and Summary of the Evidences of Christianity.
Potter John, D. D. Archbishop of Canterbury	1674	1747	Discourse on Church Government.
Prideaux Humphrey, D. D. Dean of Norwich	1648	1724	Connexion of the Old and New Testaments.
Pyle Thomas, M. A. Canon of Salisbury	1674	1715	Paraphrase on the Historical Books of the Old Testament; on the Acts of the Apostles, and the Epistles; and on the Revelation.
Randolph Thomas, D. D. Archdeacon of Oxford	1701	1788	Sermons.
Reading William, M. A. Librarian of Sion College		1744	Sermons on the First Lessons for all Sundays in the Year.
Richards George, M. A. Vicar of Bampton, Oxon			Sermons on Prophecy at Bampton's Lecture.
Ridley Glocester, D. D. Prebendary of Sarum	1702	1774	Sermons on the Divinity and Operations of the Holy Ghost, at Lady Moyer's Lecture.
Russell Alexander, D. M. Physician to the British Factory at Aleppo		1768	Natural History of Aleppo.
Sanderson Robert, D. D. Bishop of Lincoln	1587	1663	Sermons.
Scott Thomas		1775	Translation of the Book of Job, with Remarks.
Secker Thomas, D. L. Archbishop of Canterbury	1693	1768	Sermons; and Lectures on the Church Catechism.
Sharp John, D. D. Archbishop of York	1644	1713	Sermons.
Shaw Thomas, D. D. Regius Professor of Greek, Oxford	1692	1751	Travels in Barbary and the Levant.
Sherlock Thomas, D. D. Bishop of London	1678	1761	Sermons; and Discourses on the Prophecies.
Shuckford Samuel, D. D. Prebendary of Canterbury		1754	The Sacred and Profane History of the World connected.
South Robert, D. D. Canon of Christ Church	1633	1716	Sermons.
Sparrow Anthony, D. D. Bishop of Norwich	1611	1685	Rationale on the Book of Common Prayer.
Spencer John, D. D. Dean of Ely	1630	1693	Treatise on the Hebrew Laws and Ritual.
Stack Richard, D. D. Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin			Lectures on the Acts.
Stackhouse Thomas, M. A. Vicar of Beenham, Berks	1680	1752	History of the Bible.
Stanhope George, D. D. Dean of Canterbury	1660	1728	Paraphrase and Comment on the Epistles and Gospels.
Stebbing Henry, D. D. Chancellor of Sarum	1687	1763	Polemical Tracts.
Stebbing Henry, D. D. Preacher at Gray's Inn	1716	1787	Sermons on practical Subjects.
Stillingfleet Edward, D. D. Bishop of Worcester	1635	1699	Origines Sacræ, or a rational Account of Natural and Revealed Religion; and Sermons.

LIST OF AUTHORS.

Author's name and description.	When born.	When died.	Works principally quoted.
Stock Joseph, D. D. Bishop of Killala			Translation of Job, with Notes, 1805.
Stokes David, D. D. Canon of Windsor	1591	1669	Paraphrastical Explication of the Twelve Minor Prophets.
Taylor Jeremy, D. D. Bishop of Downe and Connor	between 1600 and 1610	1667	Sermons; and the Great Exemplar, or the Life and Death of Jesus Christ.
Tenison Thomas, D. D. Archbishop of Canterbury	1636	1715	A Discourse upon Idolatry.
Tillotson John, D. D. Archbishop of Canterbury	1630	1694	Sermons.
Tomline George, D. D. Bishop of Lincoln			Elements of Christian Theology; and Refutation of Calvinism.
Townson Thomas, D. D. Archdeacon of Richmond	1715	1792	Discourses on the Four Gospels.
Travell F. T. M. A. Rector of Upper Slaughter, Gloucestershire	1740	1808	Paraphrase and Notes on the Psalms.
Tucker Josiah, D. D. Dean of Gloucester	1711	1799	Sermons.
Veysie Daniel, B. D. Rector of Plymtree, Devon			The Doctrine of Atonement illustrated and defended, in Sermons at Bampton's Lecture.
Vitringa Campege, a Protestant Divine of Franeker, in Dutch Friesland.		1722	Commentary on Isaiah.
Wake William, D. D. Archbishop of Canterbury	1657	1737	Sermons; and Exposition of the Church Catechism.
Waldo Peter, Esq.	1689	1762	Commentary on the Liturgy.
Wall William D. D. Vicar of Shoreham, Sussex	1646	1728	Critical Notes on the Old and New Testaments.
Warburton William, D. D. Bishop of Gloucester	1698	1779	Sermons; and Divine Legation of Moses.
Waterland Daniel, D. D. Archdeacon of Middlesex	1683	1740	Sermons; and Scripture vindicated.
Watson Richard, D. D. Bishop of Llandaff	1737	1816	Apology for the Bible.
Wells Edward, D. D. Rector of Cotesbach, Leicestershire	1665	1730	Help to the Understanding of the Scriptures; and Geography of the Old and New Testaments.
West Gilbert, Esq. D. L.	1706	1756	Observations on the Resurrection.
Wheatly Charles, M. A. Vicar of Brent and Furneux Pelham, Herts.	1686	1742	Rational Illustration of the Book of Common Prayer.
Whiston William, M. A. Rector of Lowestoff, Suffolk	1667	1752	Accomplishment of Scripture Prophecies, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture; and Translation of Josephus, with Notes.
Whitby Daniel, D. D. Prebendary of Sarum	1638	1725	Paraphrase and Exposition of the New Testament; and Treatise on the Five Points.
Wilson Thomas, D. D. Bishop of Sodor and Man	1663	1755	Sermons; and Edition of the Bible with Notes.
Wintle Thomas, B. D. Rector of Brightwell, Berks.	1737	1814	Translation of Daniel, with Notes.
Wogan William, Esq. of Ealing, Middlesex		1758	Essay on the Proper Lessons of the Church of England.
Womack Lawrence, D. D. Bishop of St. David's	1612	1685	Result of False Principles.
Woodhouse John, D. D. Dean of Litchfield			Translation of the Apocalypse, with Notes.
Woodward Josiah, D. D. Rector of Newchurch, Kent	1660	1712	Divine Original and Excellence of the Christian Religion, in Sermons at Boyle's Lecture.
Young Edward, D. D. Rector of Welwyn, Herts	1681	1765	Paraphrase on Part of the Book of Job, with Notes.
Zouch Thomas, D. D. Prebendary of Durham	1737	1815	Inquiry into the Prophetick Character of the Romans as described in Daniel, chap. viii.

The foregoing List contains the names of the principal Authors, whose works have been most regularly quoted. In the notes there occur other names, of English and Foreign divines, travellers in the East, and writers of various descriptions, whose works have been occasionally consulted. With an account of those occasional contributors it has been judged unnecessary to swell the catalogue: it may however be satisfactory to the reader to be informed with respect to them, that the notes, designated by the names of Badwell, Castalio, Cappellus, Desvoeux, Drusius, Edwards, Grotius, Houbigant, Junius, Le Clerc, Masius, Michaelis, Munster, Rosenmüller, Schultens, Willet, are taken either from the Critici Sacri, or from Poole's Synopsis, or from some entire or partial commentary on the Holy Scriptures by the respective annotator: that many of the illustrations from Sir John Chardin, Dr. Chandler, Hasselquist, Thevenot, and other travellers, relating to the manners, climate, and other peculiarities of the East, may be found in Harmer's Observations, Burder's Oriental Customs, and the Fragments appended to Calmet's Dictionary: that the remarks introduced from Addison, Dr. Johnson, Steele, and Dr. Jos. Warton, are in general selected from the Spectator, Rambler, and other esteemed periodical works: and that those, which remain unappropriated after this enumeration, are furnished either by some Lexicon of credit, as in the case of Schleusner's Greek Lexicon; or by some Sermon, perhaps on the particular passage remarked on, as in the case of Dr. Postlethwaite on Isaiah, chap. vii. 10—16, and of Dr. Eveleigh on Zechariah, chap. ii. 8—11; or by some other work of a theological or other character, as Dr. Jenkin on the Reasonableness and Certainty of the Christian Religion, and Dr. Robertson on ancient India; the authors of which have not been specified in the catalogue, on account of the rare occurrence of their names in the commentary.

It is proper to add for the reader's information, that the Editors are accountable for those notes, which appear with the term Edit. annexed, or without any subscription: an anonymous note however may sometimes be found on examination to have been borrowed from some commentator, whose name was inadvertently omitted at the time of transcription, and could not be easily recovered. The Editors also hold themselves responsible for occasional deviations from the language of the original annotator, whose sense they have at the same time been studious to preserve: such deviations have been adopted for the sake of perspicuity and compression; and were rendered necessary by a regard to the purposes, for which the work was designed, and the extent, to which it was limited.

INDEX

TO

THE PRINCIPAL MATTERS

CONTAINED IN THE NOTES.

A.

AARON, why not subject to the decree of Pharaoh, Exod. i. 22. older than Moses, Exod. ii. 1. manner of his introduction into the history, Exod. iv. 14. why not preferred to Moses, ibid. probably a person of distinction in his tribe, ibid. well assured of the authority which sent him to meet Moses, ibid. spokesman to Moses, Exod. iv. 16. probably a governour over the Israelites, Exod. v. 1. in what sense a Prophet to Moses, Exod. vii. 1. he and his sons first regular priests, Exod. xxviii. 1. his compliance in the matter of the calf condemned, Exod. xxxii. 4. his plea for making the image, ver. 24. with his sons, solemnly consecrated by Moses, Lev. viii. 3. his authority miraculously established by God, Lev. ix. 24. reflections on his silence at the punishment of his sons, Lev. x. 3. why necessary that he should offer sacrifice for himself, Lev. xvi. 11. why placed before Moses in the account of their genealogy, Numb. iii. 1. why not united with Moses in the command to number the Levites and the firstborn, ver. 14. reflections on his mutiny against Moses, Numb. xii. 1. rescued from punishment by repentance, ver. 11. his just title to the priesthood, Numb. xvi. 46. his intercession for Israel accepted for Christ's sake, ver. 47; Exod. xxviii. 38. why threatened with punishment if unfaithful in his office, Numb. xviii. 1. why stript of his priestly robes, Numb. xx. 26. called the blameless man, Wisd. xviii. 21.

—— a type of Christ, Numb. xvi. 47.

—— twelve high priests in the line of Eleazar from him till the time of David, 1 Chron. vi. 49.

—— house of, for priests and Levites, Ps. cxv. 10.

—— family of, chambers allotted to them, Ezek. xl. 46.

ABADDON, meaning of the name, and its possible allusion, Rev. ix. 11.

ABANA and PHARPAR, the course of these rivers, 2 Kings v. 12, not now to be distinguished, ibid.

ABARIM, mount, where situated, Numb. xxvii. 12; Deut. xxxiv. 1.

Abasement before God, recommended by the example of David, 1 Chron. xxix. 14.

ABBA, meaning of the appellation, Mark xiv. 36; Rom. viii. 15. what it intimates, ibid.

ABEL, meaning of his name, Gen. iv. 2. instruction to be derived from his offering, ver. 4. why God had respect to it, ibid. a monitor to every Christian, ibid. how God accepted his offering, ibid. an example of the spirit of faith, ver. 16. what meant by the expression that 'he being dead yet speaketh,' Heb. xi. 4.

ABIATHAR, why called 'the high priest' when Ahimelech was actual high priest, Mark ii. 26.

—— reprieved by Solomon, 1 Kings ii. 26. worthy of death, ibid. doubts whether more than one high priest of this name, ibid. 1 Kings iv. 4. in what manner Zadok and he were both high priests, ibid.

ABIB, month, why so called, Exod. xii. 2. what part of our year it answers to, ibid. first month of the ecclesiastical year, ibid.

'Abide in Christ,' what it does not denote, 1 John ii. 6. what it does denote, ibid. brief exposition of the phrase, ibid.

ABIJAH, son of Jeroboam, God's favour to him in removing him from life, 1 Kings xiv. 12. his promising qualities, ibid.

ABIJAM, (or ABIJAH, son of Rehoboam,) the time when he began to reign, 1 Kings xv. 1. his mother called by two names, 2 Chron. xiii. 2. he enters into a parley with Jeroboam and his officers, ver. 4. why he is particular in detailing the case of religious matters that prevailed in Judah, ver. 11.

ABIMELECH, general name of the kings of Palestine, Gen. xx. 2.

—— I, meaning of his name, Gen. ix. 25. probably a Canaanite, ibid. his character, Gen. xx. 2. why God dealt gently with him, ibid. his continence a condemnation of those who commit or encourage others to commit adultery, ver. 5. his speech to Sarah explained, ver. 16.

—— II, son of Abimelech I, Gen. xxvi. 1.

—— Gideon's son, why particularly named, Judg. viii. 31. what meant by the 'one stone' on which he slew his brethren, Judg. ix. 5. his worthlessness represented by the bramble, ver. 14. the folly of his attempt to maintain the authority of a king, ver. 15. the proper reward of his wickedness returned upon his own head, ver. 56. in what sense God sent an evil spirit between him and the men of Shechem, ver. 23. the treacherous behaviour he experienced a just punishment for his own, ibid. his whole history a striking instance of God's providential dealings with His people, ver. 56.

—— conjectured common title of kings of Gath, Ps. xxxiv.

ABISHAG, whether David's wife, 1 Kings i. 2.

ABISHALOM, thought by some the same as Absalom, 1 Kings xv. 2.

'Able to succour them that are tempted' explained, Heb. ii. 18.

ABNER, not actuated by justice in setting up Ish-bosheth for king, 2 Sam. ii. 8. his reasons for retreating to Mahanaim, ibid. the meaning of his proposal that the young men should play before them, ver. 14. the consequences of it, ver. 16. his smiting Asahel 'with the hinder end of the spear,' ver. 23. the light in which his going into Saul's concubine was considered, 2 Sam. iii. 7. knowingly opposes himself to the will of God, ver. 9. the inconsistency of his behaviour, ver. 12. why he openly acknowledges David's right to the throne, ver. 18. slain by Joab, ver. 27. the retributive justice of God thereby displayed, ibid. the words 'died Abner as a fool dieth?' explained, ver. 33. reflections on his death, ver. 38.

'Abominable flesh' explained, Ezek. iv. 14.

'—— idolatries,' what meant by them, 1 Pet. iv. 3.

—— meats forbidden by God, why so called, Deut. xiv. 3.

Abomination of the Egyptians, meaning of, Exod. viii. 26. and why, ibid.

—— silver and gold which had belonged to idols so called, Deut. vii. 26.

—— of desolation, meaning of the phrase, Matt. xxiv. 15.

Abominations, idols stamped on the standards, Dan. ix. 27.

ABRAHAM, meaning of the name Abram, Gen. xvii. 5. why named before his younger brothers, Gen. xi. 26. remark on his renunciation of his own country, Heb. xi. 15. whether meant by 'righteous man from the East,' Is. xli. 2. his history largely treated of by Moses, Gen. xii. and why, ibid. why sent out of his own country, ver. 1. proof of his faith, ibid. was made acquainted with the coming of the Messiah, ver. 3. divers promises made to him enumerated, Gal. iii. 16. what was the chief of all, ibid. in what sense he 'obtained the promise,' Heb. vi. 15. why God appeared to him, Gen. xii. 3. his posterity by Isaac attended by a particular providence, ibid. his example a pattern to Christians, ver. 4. his faith and obedience rewarded, ver. 7. reflections on his conduct in Egypt, ver. 13, 19. his frailty a caution and encouragement to Christians, ver. 13. compared to an Arab prince, Gen. xiv. 14. how he fell upon the camp of the four kings, ver. 15. his disinterestedness, ver. 23. proofs of his religious character, Gen. xiii. 18. his religion the same as Melchisedek's, ibid. his riches, ver. 2. instance of infirmity in, Gen. xv. 2. his faith commended, ver. 6. what things were to befall his seed, ver. 13. how the promise fulfilled, ibid. the two promises to him distinguished, Rom. iv. 17. his motives in taking Hagar to wife, Gen. xvi. 4. in what sense a father of many nations, Gen. xvii. 4. meaning of the name Abraham, ver. 5. what kings sprang from him, ver. 6. how qualified to be the father both of Gentiles and Jews, Rom. iv. 11. his posterity to be governed and disciplined as God's select people, Gen. xvii. 7. and prepared for the promised Deliverer, ibid. why he rejoiced at the renewal of the covenant, ver. 17. distinguished for instructing his children and servants, Gen. xviii. 19. why made acquainted with God's intentions against Sodom, ibid. efficacy of his intercession, ver. 32. in what idea his answer to God is founded, Rom. iii. 6. the first person called a prophet, Gen. xx. 7. his conduct in casting out Hagar and Ishmael justified, Gen. xxi. 20. his wisdom in an affair with Abimelech, ver. 25. noble manifestation of his faith and obedience, Gen. xxii. 2. peculiar severity of the order to offer up Isaac, ver. 4, 8. the only imaginable motive for his obedience, ver. 3. reasonableness of his faith, ibid. his sacrifice of Isaac an emblem of the love of God, ver. 9. the sacrifice of his mind complete, ver. 10. how said to have 'offered up Isaac,' Hebr. xi. 17; James ii. 21. his own character and the piety of Isaac manifested in this trial, Gen. xxii. 12. his blessings enlarged in proportion to his obedience, ver. 16. his obedience rewarded, ver. 18. his purchase of a piece of land, Acts vii. 16. inference from his declaration that he was a stranger and a sojourner, Gen. xxiii. 4. why called 'one,' Ezek. xxxiii. 24. what is meant by his giving gifts to the sons of his concubines, Gen. xxv. 6. the great restorer of religion, ver. 8. extent of his fame, ibid. great veneration of the Jews for him, Luke xvi. 22. his blessing, in what line continued, Gen. xxviii. 4. a great example of humility and docility, John viii. 40. how his 'children' ought to have resembled him, ver. 39. in what sense he saw Christ's day, ver. 56.

—— his justification by faith, use made of it by St. Paul, Rom. iii. 21. why not justified by his works, Rom. iv. 1, 2. his first justification spoken of, ibid. case of, how considered by St. Paul, ver. 2. faith of, what works opposed to it, ver. 2, 3. faith of, why only one instance mentioned by St. Paul, ver. 3. in what his faith consisted, ibid. exercised through the whole course of a long life, ibid. hence he was constituted by God the father of all believers, ibid. manner of his justification recorded for our instruction, ver. 23. our justification to be wrought by the same sort of faith that his was, ver. 25. improper use made of his case by the Jews, Gal. iii. 6. reason for St. Paul resting on it so much, ibid. justified upon his obedience, Jam. ii. 21. cooperation of his faith and obedience, ver. 22, 23. his example a proof of the insufficiency of faith without obedience, ibid. case of, how stated by St. Paul and St. James, Jam. ii. 26. his case an example of that of every Christian, ibid.

—— a type of Christ, Gen. xix. 28.

—— who are his true children, Gal. iii. 7.

—— seed of, of whom declaratory according to the Jews, Gal. iii. 16. in whom realized, ibid.

ABRAHAM'S bosom, meaning and illustration of the phrase, Luke xvi. 22.

ABSALOM, his polling his head at stated seasons, 2 Sam. xiv. 26. the weight of his hair, ibid. his stealing the hearts of the people, 2 Sam. xv. 6. why his conspiracy permitted by God's providence, ver. 13. why his wicked deeds permitted, 2 Sam. xvi. 21. reflections on his unnatural behaviour, 2 Sam. xvii. 4. his pillar still remaining, according to the Turks, 2 Sam. xviii. 18.

Absence of St. Paul from Philippi, an ambiguity in what he says of it, Phil. ii. 12.

Absolute power not exerted by God in His dealings with men, Deut. xxx. 19. See Decrees.

Abstinence from wine, &c. in the East, effects attributed to, Dan. i. 15.

Abstain, abstaining from actions that appear evil to others recommended, Rom. xiv. 21.

Abyss, the subterranean, described, Job xxxviii. 8.

'Accept the persons' explained, Ps. lxxxii. 2.

'—— of the punishment' explained, Lev. xxvi. 41.

Acceptance with God, what insures it, 1 Cor. viii. 3.

—— the terms of, declaration respecting them, Acts x. 35. errour grafted on St. Peter's words, ibid.

'Accomplishing the service of God' explained, Heb. ix. 6.

'According to his deeds' explained, Rom. ii. 6.

'—— to the flesh' explained, Rom. i. 3; iv. 1.

'—— to this time it shall be said' explained, Numb. xxiii. 23.

'Accursed thing' explained, Deut. vii. 25; Josh. vi. 17. different senses of 'accursed,' Josh. vi. 17.

'—— from Christ,' remarks in explanation of St. Paul's wish, Rom. ix. 3. his meaning set right and vindicated, ibid.

'—— of God,' what persons said to be so, Deut. xxi. 23.

Accusation written over the head of malefactors, a Roman custom, Matt. xxvii. 37.

Accuser stood at accused's right hand, alluded to, Ps. cix. 6.

ACELDAMA, its interpretation, why added, Acts i. 19.

ACHAD or ADAD, a Syrian idol, his worship alluded to, Is. lxvi. 17.

ACHAIA, why mentioned in connexion with Corinth, 2 Cor. i. 1.

ACHAN, his sin in taking of the accursed thing, Josh. vii. 1; Deut. vii. 25. whether his sons and daughters and all his possessions suffered in the judgment upon him, Josh. vii. 24. how his name allied to Achar, ver. 25. effect of his love of riches and of his sacrilege, ibid. design of his punishment, ibid.

ACHIOR's speech, on what founded, Judith v. 20.

ACHMETHA, meaning Ecbatana, its situation, Ezra vi. 2.

ACHOR, valley of, where situate, Is. lxv. 10. allusion to it explained, Hos. ii. 15.

ACHZIB, signification of the word, Mic. i. 14. town where situate, ibid.

'Acquaint thyself with God' explained, Job xxii. 21.

ACRA, the garrison of Jerusalem, how called, 1 Mac. iv. 2.

Action, significative, information thus communicated in the East, Gen. xxxii. 25. used to foreshew events, Is. xx. 2; Jer. xxvii. 2.

Actions, fair, malice of accusing their motives, Job i. 9.

Acts of the Apostles, a continuation of St. Luke's Gospel, subject of the book, date of its publication, its inspiration, &c. Introd. to Acts—not intended as a regular history of the progress of Christianity, ibid. twofold object of the author, ibid. great value of the work, ibid. its history in exact agreement with things incidentally noticed in the Epistles, Acts xviii. 5. to what period it reaches, Acts xxviii. 30. proof of the intelligence and general fidelity of the historian, Phil. i. 30.

ADAM, significations of the name, Gen. ii. 19. name common to both sexes, Gen. v. 2.

—— sad effects of his sin in his two sons, Gen. iv. principal persons only of his posterity mentioned, Gen. v. 1. what meant by its being said that he 'was not deceived,' 1 Tim. ii. 14. his conduct referred to, Job xxxi. 33. See Man.

—— how a figure of Christ, Rom. v. 14. why so represented by St. Paul, ibid. contrast between him and Christ the second Adam, 1 Cor. xv. 47—49.

—— a place on the Jordan, Josh. iii. 16.

Adamant, what meant by the word, Ezek. iii. 9.

—— stone, what meant by, Zech. vii. 12.

ADAR, Jewish month, what answering to, Ezra vi. 15; 1 Mac. vii. 43.
ADASA, its situation, 1 Mac. vii. 40.
'Add drunkenness to thirst' explained, Deut. xxix. 19.
Admonitions to the faulty, by what rule to be regulated, Jude ver. 23.
ADONI-BEZEK, for what purpose he was maimed, Judges i. 6. brought to confess the justice of the judgment upon him, ver. 7.
ADONIJAH, his attempt upon the kingdom another trial for David, 1 Kings i. 5. why permitted during David's lifetime, ibid. his father's excessive indulgence of him, ver. 6. aggravation of his crime, ver. 13. had not asked counsel of Nathan, 1 Kings i. 26. his flying to the altar as a privileged place, 1 Kings i. 50. his pretension to the kingdom, 1 Kings ii. 15, 22.
ADONIS, why thought to be the image of jealousy, Ezek. viii. 3.
Adopted sons, in what respect equal with natural, Rom. viii. 17.
'Adoption of children,' what it imports in the Scripture phrase, Eph. i. 5.
—— of slaves by the people of the East, Gen. xv. 3.
ADORA, city of, tribe of Judah, its situation, 1 Mac. xiii. 20.
ADORAM, imprudence of his being sent to treat with the revolted tribes, 1 Kings xii. 18.
Adoration, Eastern, to their monarch, how paid, Is. xlix. 23.
—— what sort of, paid to Christ by the first Christians, Phil. ii. 10. See CHRIST, object of worship.
ADRAMYTTIUM, its situation, Acts xxvii. 2.
ADULLAM, its situation, 1 Sam. xxii. 1. description of it, Mic. i. 15.
ADRIA, what comprehended by the name, Acts xxvii. 27.
ADULLAMITE explained, Gen. xxxviii. 1.
'Adulterous generation' explained, Matt. xii. 39.
Adultery, what punishment it deserves in God's account, Gen. xx. 3. its sinfulness in those who have the knowledge of God's will, ver. 5. how punished under the law, Exod. xx. 14; Deut. xxii. 22; Prov. vi. 32; John viii. 5. reason of such punishment, Exod. xx. 14. heinousness of the sin, Deut. xxii. 22. reflection on the mildness of its punishment in Christian nations, ibid. a particular punishment sometimes inflicted on it in ancient times, Ezek. xxiii. 25. plagues and miseries attend it even in this world, Prov. ii. 18. Christ's condemnation of this crime, John viii. 11. the only just cause of divorce, Matt. xix. 8.
—— woman taken in, Christ's behaviour towards her explained, John viii. 9, 11.
Advent, second, a prophecy relating to it, Is. xviii. 1. foretold and described, Is. xxxiii. 11, 12. See CHRIST, second coming of.
Adversity, its use in awakening reflection exemplified in the Jews, Judg. iii. 12; iv. 1. in alarming the conscience of the hardened sinner, 1 Sam. xxviii. 6. in moving us to implore the mercy of God, Matt. xv. 22. patience and acquiescence in, what it shews on our parts, 1 Pet. v. 6. how accounted on God's, ibid.
Advice, none good which is inconsistent with piety, Prov. viii. 12.
Advocate, what it means, 1 John ii. 1. how applied to Christ, ibid. See CHRIST, our Mediator.
ÆNON, near to Salim, where situated, John iii. 23.
Affliction, considerations for the hour of, Ps. xxxi. 23. what intended to effect, Ps. lxxix. 12. duties which can only be practised in, Ps. cxix. 71. God's past mercies to be thought on in day of, Ps. cxxxviii. 6. in what way figuratively described, Ezek. xxiii. 34. for the cause of Christ, under what notion represented, Jam. i. 4.
Afflictions, God makes use of them to humble us, Gen. xliv. 33. and reclaim us, Amos iv. 6. and in token of His love, 2 Kings iv. 37; Heb. xii. 11. their utility in leading men to pray, Numb. xxi. 7; Job i. 20. and to repent, 2 Chron. xxxiii. 13. trust in God the great support under them, Neh. iv. 14. happy consequences of them, Job xxxvi. 8. shew the difference between the pious and the hypocrite, ver. 13. why the subject of thanksgiving, Phil. iv. 6. instruction conveyed by them, Heb. xii. 5. what they prove on God's part, ver. 8. how they should be borne, ibid. to what kinds of, the primitive church was exposed, Jam. i. 2. why matter, not of discouragement, but of triumph, ibid. when only suffered by God's servants, 1 Pet. i. 6. rightly undergone, their good effects, 1 Pet. v. 10. what duty belongs to us whilst they continue, ibid.
'Afflictions of Christ,' explanations of the phrase, Col. i. 24.
'Afflicted our soul' explained, Is. lviii. 3.
AGAG, consideration on the mention of him in Balaam's prophecy, Numb. xxiv. 7. fulfilment of it, ibid.
—— his coming delicately, 1 Sam. xv. 32. cut off for his own sins, as well as those of his forefathers, ver. 33.
Age of man, why long before the flood, Gen. v. 3.
—— old, respected by most civilized people, Lev. xix. 32. remarkable solicitude of the law of Moses concerning it, ibid. the form of shewing respect for it, ibid. infirmities of, do not justify children's neglect, Ecclus. iii. 13. described, Eccles. xii. 2.
Aged, and full of days, distinction between, Jer. vi. 11.
—— blessed the younger, Tob. vii. 7.
Ages of the world, three counted by the Jews, 1 Cor. x. 11. last of them indefinite, ibid.
Agreement and harmony among Christians, proofs of the Holy Spirit's love of, 1 Cor. xii. 25.
Agriculture, how encouraged by the Jewish law, Lev. xxv. 30. why much honoured amongst them, ibid.
AGRIPPA, king, the son of Herod Agrippa, Acts xxv. 13. account of him and Bernice, ibid. St. Paul not brought to a regular trial before him, ver. 23. entrusted by the Roman emperour with the management of matters relating to the Jews, Acts xxvi. 3. St. Paul's argument for Christianity to him from his belief of the Prophets, ver. 27. the impression made upon him was not to salvation, ver. 28. the obstacles to his becoming a Christian, ibid. his attestation of St. Paul's innocence highly advantageous to him, ver. 32. an example of many who are not real Christians, though Christians in name, ver. 28.
Agony of Christ in the garden, why St. Peter and the two sons of Zebedee were present at it, Matt. xxvi. 37. the 'iniquity of us all' laid upon Him, ver. 38. the scene shews that pain is a real evil, ibid. should impress us with shame and humility, ibid. caused by the weight of human sins, Luke xxii. 44. reflections upon it, ibid.
AGUR's prayer, in what light to be considered, Prov. xxx. 8.
AHAB, his wickedness in renouncing the worship of God, 1 Kings xvi. 30. shews some sparks of publick virtue, 1 Kings xx. 7. uncertain what Prophet sent to him, ver. 13. a victory to be obtained by him entirely through God's assistance, ver. 14. why God twice granted him the victory over the Syrians, ver. 29. his offence in suffering Ben-hadad to go unpunished, ver. 42. remarks on the conduct of a Prophet to him, ver. 35. his discontent after the repeated instances of God's goodness, 1 Kings xxi. 1. why the account of his coveting Naboth's vineyard follows immediately after that of his sparing Ben-hadad, ibid. the impropriety of his request to Naboth, ver. 3. his excessive disappointment at the refusal, ver. 4, 6. struck by his guilty conscience at the sight of Elijah, ver. 20. the sense of God's message to him, ver. 19. his excessive wickedness, ver. 25. his example a warning in our choice of companions, ibid. reflections on his repentance, ver. 29. and on God's mercy towards him, ibid. concealed in the battle from the knowledge of men, not of God, 1 Kings xxii. 34. his death and general character, ver. 37. an instance of the retributive justice of God, ver. 38. reflections on the execution of the judgments denounced against him and his family, 2 Kings ix. 8; x. 1, 7.
—— his seventy sons, in what sense probably spoken of, 2 Kings x. 1.
AHASUERUS, a title common to the kings of Media and Persia, Ezra iv. 6. who intended by it in the book of Ezra, ibid.
—— opinions concerning the person intended by the name in the book of Esther, Introd. to Esth. who he probably was, ibid. remarks on his conduct towards Vashti, Esth. i. 21. why recorded in Scripture, ibid. reflections on his weakness, Esth. iii. 11.
AHAVA, river and town, opinions respecting them, Ezra viii. 15.
AHAZ, his abominable idolatry, 2 Kings xvi. 3. his example in offering sacrifices to idols, ver. 4. his great wickedness in adopting the idolatrous worship of the Syrians, 2 Kings xvi. 10. why he ordered an altar after the pattern of a Syrian altar, ibid. his pretence about reserving the altar of the true God, ver. 15. his defacing the vessels of the temple of God, ver. 17. conjectures respecting his dial, 2 Kings xx. 11. miracle of the shadow going backward on it, ibid. why the Lord is called his God, 2 Chron. xxviii. 5. branded as a notorious offender, ver. 22. of all the kings of Judah, the most dreadful example of sin and of judgments, ibid. reflections on his progress in wickedness, ibid. remarkable expression by which he is stigmatized, ibid. why not buried with his fathers, ver. 27. why he rejected a sign, Is. vii. 12. his alliance with Assyria alluded to, Jer. xiii. 21.

Ahaziah, what meant by his brethren, 2 Kings x. 14.

—— (son of Ahab) how long he reigned, 1 Kings xxii. 51. conjecture on the manner of his death, 2 Kings i. 2.

Aher, conjecture concerning the signification of the word, 1 Chron. vii. 12.

Ahijah the Shilonite, account of him, 1 Kings xi. 29. remarks on his use of a symbolical action, ver. 30.

Ahikam, chief minister under Josiah, his influence, Jer. xxvi. 24.

Ahimelech, his excuse for consulting the oracle for David explained, 1 Sam. xxii. 15.

Ahithophel, a profane politician, 2 Sam. xvi. 21. his design of making David and Absalom irreconcileable enemies, ibid. the estimation in which his counsel was held, ver. 23. disappointment of his vanity and ambition, 2 Sam. xvii. 23. his wretched end, ibid. his misfortune in associating with bad men, ibid. a type of Judas, Ps. xli. 9.

Ahitub, why called 'ruler of the house of God,' 1 Chron. ix. 10.

Aholah, what the name signifies, Ezek. xxiii. 4.

Aholibah, what the name signifies, Ezek. xxiii. 4.

Ai, considerations on the number of men employed against it, Josh. viii. 3. permission to the Israelites to take the spoil of it, ver. 2. in what sense said to be 'set on fire,' ver. 8. the king of it made a publick example, Josh. viii. 29. See Beth-el.

—— a city of the Ammonites, Jer. xlix. 3.

Aijeleth Shahar, term explained, Ps. xxii. title.

Alamoth, signification of the word, 1 Chron. xv. 20; Ps. xlvi. title.

Alcimus, account of, 1 Mac. vii. 5. why he ordered the wall of the sanctuary to be taken down, 1 Mac. ix. 54.

Alexander, character of his conquests, Dan. ii. 39. prophesied of, Dan. xi. 3; Zech. vi. 2, 6. prophecy fulfilled under him, Joel iii. 7.

—— Balas, his history, 1 Mac. x. 1.

—— the coppersmith, remark on St. Paul's language concerning him, 2 Tim. iv. 14.

'Alienated from the life of God' explained, Eph. iv. 18.

Aliens, why obliged by the law against blasphemy, Lev. xxiv. 16.

All, instances of the word used in a restricted sense, 1 Chron. xiv. 17; Matt. x. 22; Acts i. 1.

'—— and in all,' what meant by Christ being so, Col. iii. 11.

—— men, salvation of, how it appears agreeable to the will of God, 1 Tim. ii. 4. arguments to prove that God wills it, ver. 6.

—— men, sins of, taken unto Christ, 1 John ii. 2. See Christ.

'—— Scripture is given by inspiration from God,' what Scriptures here intended, 2 Tim. iii 16. the same title, how applied elsewhere, ibid. what influence signified by their being inspired, ibid.

'—— things,' limitation of the term, in speaking of the properties of charity, 1 Cor. xiii. 7.

'All-to' or 'al-to,' the word explained, Judg. ix. 53.

Allegory, explanation of the word, Gal. iv. 24. a striking one, Ezek. xlvii. 12. an instance of, Hab. ii. 15, 16. between Christians and a well compacted building, explained, Eph. ii. 22.

Alliances, foreign, profusion of Israel and Judah in forming, Hos. viii. 9. Israelites upbraided for, Hos. xiv. 3.

'Allure' used in a good sense, Hos. ii. 14.

Allusions and addresses made by St. Paul in his Epistles, a cause of difficulty, Gen. Introd. par. 7.

Almighty God, the name when first used, Gen. xvii. 1. and why, ibid.

Almond tree described, Jer. i. 11.

Alms, why used for general kindness, Ecclus. xvii. 22. what meant by their being 'as a signet with God,' ibid. how they deliver from death, Tobit iv. 10.

Almsgiving, on what particular occasions it should be practised, Esth. ix. 22. ostentation in it to be avoided, not publicity, Matt. vi. 1, 3. unprofitableness of, without charity, 1 Cor. xiii. 3. still a considerable part of charity, ibid. sometimes a symptom of covetousness, 2 Cor. ix. 5. four different fruits of, enumerated, ver. 14. not immediately denoted by charity, 1 Pet. iv. 8.

Almug trees, conjectures respecting them, 1 Kings x. 11.

Aloes, lign-aloes, properties of, Song of Sol. iv. 14.

Alpha and Omega explained, Rev. i. 8. why Christ so called, ibid.

Altar, first mention of one in Scripture, Gen. viii. 20. how Joab could think to find sanctuary there, 1 Kings ii. 28. what it signifies in the prophetick style, Is. xix. 19. having communion with, what it imports, 1 Cor. x. 18. signification of that of which St. Paul speaks, Heb. xiii. 10. what they testify who partake of it, ibid.

—— of brass, opinions concerning that erected by Solomon, 2 Chron. iv. 1.

—— of burnt offerings, remarks on its position, Joel ii. 17.

—— what ceremony intended by 'compassing' it, Ps. xxvi. 6.

—— of earth, why commanded, Exod. xx. 24.

—— of gold, what meant by it, 1 Kings vii. 48.

—— the golden, what offerings to be made upon it, Rev. viii. 3.

—— of the Lord, repaired by Elijah, what it was, 1 Kings xviii. 30. not affected by the general law respecting altars, ver. 31. account of those which Elijah complains had been thrown down, 1 Kings xix. 10.

—— of stone, directions concerning, explained, Exod. xx. 25. why not to be ascended by steps, ver. 26.

—— and twelve pillars, what they represented, Exod. xxiv. 4.

—— and table used promiscuously, Ezek. xli. 22.

Altars, idolatrous, why men's bones burnt upon them, 2 Kings xxiii. 20. heathen, in what way frequently used, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 4. remark on those made of bricks by Jewish apostates, Is. lxv. 3. and on those erected in publick ways, 2 Mac. x. 2.

Al-taschith explained, Ps. lvii. title.

Alternate singing of Psalms, examples of, Ps. xxiv. 7; cxxxvi. 1.

Amalek, state of, in Balaam's time, Numb. xxiv. 7. prophecy concerning, when accomplished, ibid. power of, when Balaam prophesied, Numb. xxiv. 20. sentence of him to destruction, when fulfilled, ibid.

Amalekite, his false account of Saul's death, 2 Sam. i. 15. his motive for giving it, ibid. his punishment by David's order commended, ibid.

Amalekites, their descent, Exod. xvii. 8. reflections on their fighting with Israel, ibid. God's denunciation upon them explained, ver. 16. reasons of it, ibid. God's sentence against them reconcileable with His high attributes, 1 Sam. xv. 3. some remained in the country after the slaughter by Saul, 1 Sam. xxvii. 8.

Amana, part of mount Libanus, figuratively used, Song of Sol. iv. 8.

Amasa, his relation to David, 2 Sam. xix. 13. a reason of David's conduct respecting him, ibid.

Amasai, 'the spirit came upon him,' explained, 1 Chron. xii. 18.

Amaziah, his justice and clemency as to the murderers of his father, 2 Kings xiv. 5. his challenge to the king of Israel, ver. 8. how he complied with the law, 2 Chron. xxv. 2. his presumptuous conduct, ver. 6. mercifully reprimanded by a Prophet, ver. 7, 8. his covetousness, ver. 9. his punishment for leaguing with idolaters, ver. 13. his regard to evil advice, ver. 17. his progress in iniquity, ver. 27. reflections on the course of his conduct, and of God's dealings with him, ver. 27.

—— the priest at Beth-el, who, Amos vii. 10. prediction against him, ver. 17.

Amber, among the ancients, what meant by it, Ezek. i. 4.

Ambition, remedy for it, Numb. xvi. 9; Prov. xxv. 6; Ecclus. vii. 4.

—— of the disciples, repressed by Christ, Luke ix. 44.

Ambitious views of two Apostles, James and John, Matt. xx. 21; Mark x. 37. founded on carnal notions of Christ's kingdom,

Matt. xx. 22. reproved by Christ, ver. 23, 25; Luke xxii. 24, 27, 28.
Ambushments, in what sense 'the Lord set ambushments against the children of Ammon,' &c. 2 Chron. xx. 22.
Amen, its signification in Hebrew, Deut. xxvii. 15. what it is used to express, ibid. Matt. vi. 13; 2 Cor. i. 20. different places and occasions of using it, ibid. antiquity of the use of it, 1 Chron. xvi. 36. practice of saying it at the end of the prayers in the primitive Church, 1 Cor. xiv. 16. copied from the Jewish Church, ibid. and observed in the Christian after the Apostles' days, ibid. not to be neglected, ibid. what it signifies in the Commination Service, Deut. xxvii. 26.
—— reverential attestation of St. John to the truth of his Gospel, John xxi. 25.
—— the God of, an Hebrew phrase, how translated, Is. lxv. 16.
—— 'The Amen,' what the name imports, Rev. iii. 14.
America, means of communication between it and the Eastern continent, Gen. ix. 19.
Ammi, the word explained, Hos. ii. 1.
Ammi-nadib, who he was, Song of Sol. vi. 12.
Ammonites, why the strength of their border mentioned, Numb. xxi. 24. joined with the Moabites in sending to Balaam, Numb. xxii. 3. mark set upon them in the Jewish law, Deut. xxiii. 3. discussion respecting David's cutting them with saws, &c. 1 Chron. xx. 3. insulted over their brethren the Jews, Ezek. xxi. 28. were destroyed in their own country, ver. 30; now long forgotten, ver. 32.
Amnon, exposition of Tamar's entreaty to him, 2 Sam. xiii. 12. reflections on his sudden transition from love to hatred, ver. 15.
Amon of No, what denoted by the name, Jer. xlvi. 25.
Amorites, used in a large sense, Gen. xv. 16; Josh. x. 5. the two kings of, boundaries of their country, Deut. iii. 8. those on the west of Jordan distinguished from those on the east, Josh. v. 1.
Amos, contemporary with Hosea, when he began to prophesy, native of Tekoa, a herdsman, not of the sons of the Prophets, his style, Introd. to Amos—taken to the office of Prophet as Moses and David, Amos vii. 15.
Amplification, sublime instance of, Ezek. xxxix. 17.
Amraphel, what his kingdom was, Gen. xiv. 1.
Anak, who he was, Numb. xiii. 22.
Ananias, in what his sin consisted and the aggravations of it, Acts v. 4, 10. the presumptuousness of it, ver. 4. the reason of his prompt and severe punishment, ver. 10. no injustice in the punishment of him and Sapphira, ibid. covetousness the foundation of his crime, ver. 2. no extenuation of his guilt that he suffered Satan to fill his heart, ver. 3.
—— the high priest, the circumstances related of him in the Acts explained by Josephus, Acts xxiii. 2. his violent death, in conformity with St. Paul's prediction, ver. 3. explanation of St. Paul's words, 'I wist not that he was the high priest,' ver. 2, 5.
Anathema, how used in the old Greek writers, Rom. ix. 3. why repeated by St. Paul, Gal. i. 9.
'—— maranatha' explained, 1 Cor. xvi. 22.
Anathoth, its situation, 1 Kings ii. 26; Introd. to Jer.
Anatomy affords proof of God's wisdom, Ps. cxxxix. 14.
Anchors cast out of the stern, remarks on the practice, Acts xxvii. 29.
Ancients, who intended, Is. xxiv. 23.
—— of the city, what persons so called, Judith viii. 10.
Angel, different uses of the word, Rev. i. 20. what meant by it, Exod. xxxiii. 2.
—— from heaven, supposition that such an one would preach any thing contrary to the Gospel, why introduced, Gal. i. 8. meaning insinuated by it, ver. 9.
—— a mighty, from heaven, great sublimity of this description, Rev. x. 1.
—— guardian, a persuasion among Hebrews concerning, Tob. v. 21.
—— of the Lord, first appearance of, Gen. xvi. 7. to be understood of Christ, ibid. Exod. iii. 2; Judg. ii. 1; vi. 11; xiii. 19; Ps. xxxiv. 7; Zech. i. 8, 10.
—— of God, which went before Israel, namely Christ, Exod. xiii. 21; xiv. 19.
Angel of His presence, that is, Christ, Is. lxiii. 9.
—— which redeemed Jacob, the same, Gen. xlviii. 16.
—— used for 'the Messenger of the covenant,' Eccles. v. 6.
—— standing at the altar, what signified by it, Rev. viii. 3.
—— flying in the midst of heaven, what represented, Rev. xiv. 6, 7.
—— that had power over fire, what signified, Rev. xiv. 18.
—— 'as the face of an angel,' the phrase explained, Acts vi. 15.
—— of God, to be 'as an angel of God,' what it denotes, 2 Sam. xiv. 17.
Angels, grounds for believing their existence from analogy, 1 Tim. iii. 16. par. 6. what the solid proof of it, ibid. their subjection to the Redeemer, ibid. par. 7. how they ministered to Him, ibid. par. 8. with what sensations He was seen of them, ibid. par. 9. their nature and ministry, by what comparisons described, Heb. i. 7. their inferiority to the Son of God, ver. 4.
—— of God, required to worship Christ, in what character, Phil. ii. 11. remark on the time when the command was given them to worship Christ, Heb. i. 6. inference from the command with respect to His divinity, ibid. kind of worship which they paid to Him, ibid. application to the inhabitants of earth, ibid. state of even the highest orders of them compared with Christ, ver. 14. general reflections on the comparison dwelt on between Him and them, ibid. at first united with men in subjection to the Son of God, Eph. i. 10. reunited by the sufferings of the Son of man, ibid. what meant by Christ taking not on Him their nature, Heb. ii. 16. called sons of God in an inferiour sense, Heb. i. 5. ministers of God, ibid. and of our Lord, ibid. their agency considered, Introd. to Tob. an ancient opinion concerning them, Tob. xii. 12. who the seven holy are, ver. 15. why the entertainment of them by Abraham and Lot mentioned, Heb. xiii. 2. remark on their ministration for the giving of the law, Gal. iii. 19. how spoken of, Ps. civ. 4. charged with executing God's judgments, Ezek. ix. 1. remarks on their information concerning God's purpose of redemption in Jesus Christ, Eph. iii. 10. remarks on their desire to look into the scheme of man's redemption, 1 Pet. i. 12. application to ourselves, ibid. present at Daniel's visions, Dan. vii. 16. what the Jews usually ascribed to their ministry, John v. 4. an opinion of the Jews concerning their appearance, Acts xii. 15. belief in the East concerning them, Rev. xvi. 5. at the judgment why compared to reapers, Joel iii. 13. why joined with Christ in the mention of the day of judgment, 1 Tim. v. 21.
—— worshipping of, on what pretences justified, Col. ii. 18. condemned unreservedly by St. Paul, ibid. no degrees of it consistent with the Christian religion, ibid. hardly distinguishable from idolatry, ibid. no excuse that they are worshipped only as mediators, ibid. when it crept into the Church, ibid. practised and defended at this day by the Papists, ibid.
—— and departed saints, no instance of prayers to them, Philem. ver. 22. the worship of them prohibited, Rev. xix. 10.
—— good, contests of them with evil angels in God's presence alluded to, 2 Pet. ii. 11.
—— evil, the fall of, intimated, Job xv. 15. sin, for which punished, Jude ver. 6.
'—— evil,' what meant by, Ps. lxxviii. 49.
—— of the seven churches, what meant by them, Rev. i. 20. why called stars, ibid.
—— four, loosed, what they signify, Rev. ix. 14. prepared for an hour, &c. the meaning of this and its confirmation by history, ver. 15.
—— seven, their description, Rev. xv. 6. what meant by their pouring out the vials of the wrath of God, Rev. xvi. 1.
Angelical visions considered, 2 Mac. iii. 25; v. 2.
Anger, sad consequences of giving way to it, Gen. xxxvii. 18; Esth. iii. 6; 1 Sam. xxv. 38. the folly of, Prov. xiv. 29. the seat of it, why placed in the nostrils, Ps. xviii. 8. may be innocent and commendable, Eph. iv. 26. examples of it in Moses and our Saviour, ibid. seems in some cases to be thought warrantable by St. Paul, ibid. caution with respect to it, ibid. a precept of Pythagoras concerning it, ibid. the duty of Christians with respect to it, ibid.
—— in Christ, unmixed with a desire of revenge, Mark iii. 5.
—— God's, a fearful apprehension of it useful, Job vi. 4.

Anguish, doubts about the word so translated, 2 Sam. i. 9.
Animals, instances of God's providence in providing their food, Job xxxviii. 39, 41.
—— humanity towards, enjoined, Deut. xxii. 6. intended as an obligation to mutual charity, ibid.
—— sacrifice of, esteemed a profanation by the Egyptians, Exod. viii. 26. Israelites debarred from it during their slavery, ibid.
—— number of, sacrificed at the tabernacle, Numb. xxix. 39.
Anna, a prophetess, her life an example of piety to Christians, Luke ii. 38.
Annas, why called 'the high priest,' Acts iv. 6.
Annas and Caiaphas, why both called high priests, Luke iii. 2.
Annihilation, the hope of it vain, Job xxxiv. 22.
Anointed, what persons so distinguished, Lev. ii. 1. who called the Lord's anointed, Ps. cxxxii. 10; Is. x. 27; Lam. iv. 20. on what occasion the kings of Israel were anointed, 2 Kings ix. 1. what drugs used for it, Ps. xlv. 8. in what sense the word may be used, 1 Kings xix. 15.
Anointing of Jesus, performed on two separate occasions, John xii. 3.
—— the sick, on what occasion practised by the Jews, Jam. v. 14; Mark vi. 13. remark on St. James's direction about it, Jam. v. 14. improperly kept up by the Romish Church, ibid.
'—— oil of the Lord,' phrase explained, Lev. x. 7.
—— what it signifies, 1 John ii. 27. remarks on the misapplication of the passage, ibid.
'Another Jesus,' 'another Spirit,' what they signify, 2 Cor. xi. 4.
Answer, the use of the word explained, Is. xxi. 9,
Answered, a phrase used where nothing had preceded, Matt. xi. 25.
Antediluvians, how they might have known God's will, Gen. vi. 11.
Antichrist, how spoken of by the Fathers, 2 Thess. ii. 11. general doctrine of the reformers about it, ibid. doctrine concerning in the primitive Church, 1 John ii. 18. how St. John uses the appellation, ibid. inference from the use of it, ibid. where the word found, ibid. two meanings of it, ibid. whom St. John meant by it, ibid. why he mentions the persons intended sometimes in the singular, sometimes in the plural number, ibid. denial of the Incarnation and Atonement one of its characters, 1 John iv. in what sense used, 1 John iv. 3.
Antichristian power in the Church foretold, Dan. xi. 36, 38. marks of it, ver. 37. destruction perhaps referred to, Dan. xii. 7. See Antichrist.
Antinomians, their vain imaginations confuted, Rom. viii. 4.
Antioch, (in Syria,) its history and situation, 1 Mac. iii. 37; Acts xi. 19. freedom of it how esteemed, 2 Mac. iv. 9. exemplary eagerness of the Gentiles there to hear the Gospel, Acts xiii. 44.
—— in Pisidia, its situation, Acts xiii. 14.
Antiochus the Great, a prophecy fulfilled by him, Dan. xi. 10. his wars with Ptolemy, ver. 13. defeats Scopas, ver. 15. marries his daughter to Ptolemy, ver. 17. takes Samos and other islands, ver. 18. died ignominiously, ver. 19.
—— Epiphanes, justly called a vile person, Dan. xi. 21. his successes, ver. 23—30.
—— his repentance too late, 1 Mac. vi. 16.
Antipas, martyr, no account of him preserved, Rev. ii. 13.
Antipatris, its situation, Acts xxiii. 31.
Antonia, castle so called, account of it, Acts xxi. 34.
Ants, their manner of preserving corn, Prov. vi. 8.
Anxiety, excessive, why blamable, 1 Pet. v. 7. to repress it not inconsistent with prudent care for our welfare, ibid.
Aphek, three places of this name, 1 Sam. xxix. 1.
—— in the tribe of Asher, remark on its wall falling on the Syrians, 1 Kings xx. 30.
Aphrah, what used for, Mic. i. 10.
Apis alluded to in comparing Egypt to an heifer, Jer. xlvi. 20.
Apocalypse. See Revelation.
Apocryphal Books, why so called, not inspired writings, sacred in inferiour sense, not cited by our Saviour or His Apostles, styled ecclesiastical, read for example of life and instruction of manners, why the Roman Catholicks defend their authority, Pref. to Apoc.
Apollonius, governour of Celosyria, who, 1 Mac. x. 69.
Apollos, why he was not willing to go to Corinth at the time of St. Paul's writing, 1 Cor. xvi. 12. supposed to be alluded to, 2 Cor. viii. 22.
Apollyon, the destroyer, Rev. ix. 11.
Apostasy, what it is, 2 Thess. ii. 3. what particular one predicted by St. Paul, ibid. the same more fully described to Timothy, 1 Tim. iv. 1. remark on the original words by which it is signified, ibid. particular marks of it examined and explained, ver. 2, 3.
—— the same that St. Paul had prophesied of twice before, again foretold, 2 Tim. iii. 1. how this prophecy distinguished from the others, ibid. effect of the three taken together, ibid. prophecies concerning it, a general representation of a succession of ages, ver. 6. the whole of the prophecy concerning it how fulfilled, ver. 9.
—— from the faith, its punishment, Matt. x. 39.
—— and disobedience, motive to deter us from them, Heb. xii. 29.
Apostates from Christianity, their desperate condition, Heb. xii. 17. considerations which aggravate their danger, ver. 18.
Apostle, the word how used in different times, Phil. ii. 25.
—— of the Gentiles, St. Paul not exclusively so, Gal. ii. 9.
Apostles, signification of the name, Matt. x. 2. their general character and description, ver. 5. most unfit instruments for establishing a new religion by natural means, ibid. very fit to afford unsuspected testimony of what they saw and heard, ibid. import of their title, 2 Cor. v. 20. and nature of their employment, ibid. their rank and qualifications, Matt. iv. 18; Luke vi. 13; 1 Cor. i. 27. why selected from low stations, Matt. iv. 18; Luke vi. 13. an illustration of God's majesty and power, 1 Cor. i. 27. known to be Galileans and uneducated persons, Acts ii. 7. their want of human learning a great confirmation of our faith, Acts iv. 13. why after Christ's death they followed their customary occupations, John xxi. 3.
—— instructions relating to their first mission, Matt. x. 5, 9, 10. how they were to proceed on it, ver. 10. a proof of their confidence in their Master, ibid. the general character of their mission, ver. 16. special assistance of the Spirit promised them, ver. 19, 20. apprized that they must expect to encounter persecutions, ver. 21. exhorted to perseverance, ver. 22. and fearlessness, ver. 26. by the hopes of eternal happiness, ver. 28.
—— how commissioned by Christ to teach and preach the Gospel, and to administer the sacraments, Matt. xxviii. 18, 19; John xx. 21. their power of commissioning others, ibid. what qualification given them, ver. 22. and what authority, ver. 23. ever mindful of their commission, Acts viii. 25. alone had the privilege of conferring the Holy Spirit, ver. 15. reserved the appointment of deacons to themselves, Acts vi. 6. conveyed spiritual powers to them by imposition of hands, ibid. settled the order and government of the Church for all succeeding ages, Acts xiv. 23. the privilege of binding and loosing extended to them all equally, Matt. xvi. 19. two supernumerary ones ordained by imposition of hands, Acts xiii. 3. of what this is a proof as to ministers of the Gospel, ibid.
—— why commanded to go to Jerusalem after the resurrection, Acts i. 4. the order in which they preached the Gospel in different places, ver. 8. why not forbidden to preach to Gentiles after Christ's death, Acts viii. 5. their expulsion from Antioch the means of spreading the Gospel, Acts xiii. 51. instance of their adapting their language to the prepossessions of the Jews, Rom. iii. 27. disclaimed all jurisdiction over heathens, 1 Cor. v. 12. what they decide concerning them, ibid. were not to continue preaching to obstinate unbelievers, Matt. vii. 6.
—— why prepared beforehand for the loss of their Master, Matt. xx. 19. consolations addressed to them by Christ, John xiv. 1, 2. their temptation by Satan, Luke xxii. 31. forewarned of approaching danger, ver. 36. forbidden to employ outward weapons, ver. 38. promise of their advancement to glory, ver. 29. what meant by the promise, that they shall sit on twelve thrones at the day of judgment, Matt. xix. 28. Christ's farewell and parting blessing to them, John xiv. 27. the object of His addressing them, John xvi. 33. evidence of their affliction at His departure, ver. 5, 6. their want of expectation of Christ's resurrection, Matt. xxviii. 7; John xx. 9. their slowness in believing it, Luke xxiv. 11. reflections on their behaviour after it, ver. 21. instruction to be derived from their backwardness in believing it, John xx. 25. why the Divine wisdom suffered them to doubt, John xx. 29. possessed after the resurrection with temporal notions of Christ's kingdom, Acts i. 6. occupied with the splendour of the ascension, ver. 11. their attention directed by the angels to higher matters, ibid. reflections on it, ibid.

Apostles, courage enjoined upon them in preaching the Gospel, Luke xii. 3. prepared by Christ to encounter persecution, Matt. xvi. 28. voluntarily encountered persecutions, of which they were forewarned, Matt. x. 22; 1 Cor. iv. 9. a strong proof of the sincerity of their conviction, ibid. their lives a continued scene of persecution, Matt. xxiv. 9. several kinds of sufferings to which they were exposed, 1 Cor. iv. 13. manner in which they supported them, ibid. for what reason continually exposed to death, 2 Cor. iv. 11. compared to combatants in the Roman theatre, 1 Cor. iv. 9. why called persons appointed to death, ibid. affecting picture of the dangers which they encountered, ibid. design of Providence herein, ibid. their case in general under difficulties resembles that of St. Paul, 2 Cor. iv. 8, 9. their acts and patience, a proof of Christ's being alive, ver. 10.

—— not infallible or impeccable, Gal. ii. 11. not exempt from human passions, Acts xv. 39. not secured from all imprudence by their inspiration, Gal. ii. 11. what meant by their complaint of want of faith, Luke xvii. 5. their notions of the temporal kingdom of Christ, Matt. xviii. 1. their ambitious views, ibid. repressed by Christ, ver. 3. ambition of two of them, Mark x. 37. Christ's gentle rebuke to them, ver. 39. their mistaken zeal for their Master's interest, Luke ix. 54. rebuked by Him for it, ver. 55. their unseasonable contention for superiority, Luke xxii. 24. differences between, no objection to Christianity, Gal. ii. 11. an evidence to the truth of it, ibid.

—— their remoteness from enthusiasm, Luke xxiv. 21; Acts i. 24. and from an over-easy credulity, John xi. 7. their conduct widely different from that of deceivers, Acts i. 21. their piety and remoteness from fanaticism, ver. 24. their humility in disclaiming all excellency in themselves, Acts iii. 12. remarks on their declaration that they wrought miracles by the power of Jesus, ver. 13, 16. their fidelity to their Master, Luke xxii. 28. their perfect disinterestedness, Acts iv. 35; vi. 3. and veracity, 2 Cor. xiii. 2. their quick recovery from sin, Acts xv. 39. how placed in a trying situation, 1 Tim. v. 8. their conduct therein an example of prudence and discretion, ibid. their grief and detestation at idol worship being offered to them, Acts xiv. 14. did not undervalue the common duties of life, 1 Cor. iv. 12. practised no unnecessary austerities, ibid. examples of numerous virtues, ver. 13. peculiar difficulty of their situation at that time, ibid. effect of their magnanimity on the propagation of Christianity, ibid. their sufficiency as present witnesses of Christ's resurrection, Acts ii. 32. proof of the high esteem in which they were held by the people, Acts v. 13.

—— promises of providential assistance to them in their ministry, John xiv. 13; xv. 6, 7. appear in a new character after the effusion of the Spirit, Acts ii. 14; iv. 31. their preaching, how rendered effectual, Mark xvi. 20. remarks on their being endowed with the power of speaking different languages, Acts ii. 4. their want of accomplishments to convert men to the faith, 2 Cor. iii. 5. how supplied, ibid. most fallaciously alledged as instances of illiterate preachers, 1 Cor. xii. 8, 9, 10. how rendered learned, ibid. inspired by the Holy Ghost, 1 Cor. ii. 13. their instructions how to be regarded, 1 Thess. iv. 2. could inflict temporal punishments on notorious sinners, 1 Cor. iv. 21. instances illustrative of it, ibid. a power peculiar to them, 1 Cor. v. 4. proof of their miraculous power, 2 Cor. xiii. 2.

—— the other, not meant to be disparaged by St. Paul, Gal. ii. 6.

—— and Evangelists, of what their doctrine is a criterion, 1 John iv. 6.

—— and Prophets, why called the foundation of the Christian Church, Eph. ii. 20.

Apostolical Epistles, method pursued in them, Gen. Introd. to St. Paul's Epist. parag. 3. necessity of attending to the state of the questions discussed, ibid. neglect of this the cause of errors and disputes, ibid.

—— office, in what phrase described, Rom. i. 5.

—— benediction, a prayer for the highest possible blessings, 2 Cor. xiii. 14. meaning of the whole passage, ibid. reflections on different points of belief and practice that follow from it, ibid. why the Church concludes her daily prayers with it, ibid. the same in effect as the benediction prescribed by God under the law, ibid.

Apostleship, particular manner in which St. Paul proves the truth of his, 2 Cor. xi. 23.

—— of the circumcision, not exclusively exercised by Peter, James, and John, Gal. ii. 9.

Apparel, &c. moderation in, commanded, 1 Pet. iii. 3. best general rule to follow, ibid. reasonableness of such restrictions, ibid.

'Apparel, strange,' how the text may be explained, Zeph. i. 8.

Appearance of God, in what way described as taking place, Tit. ii. 13.

Apphia, who she was, Philem. ver. 2.

'Apple of His eye,' namely, God's; in what sense Israelites compared to it, Deut. xxxii. 10. phrase explained, Prov. vii. 2.

'Apples of gold,' what meant by, Prov. xxv. 11.

Appointed, 'whereunto also they were appointed' explained, 1 Pet. ii. 8.

'Appointed to wrath,' who were so, 1 Thess. v. 9.

'Apprehend,' 'apprehended,' explained, Phil. iii. 12 and 13.

Apries king of Egypt, prophecies relating to, Ezek. xxix. 4, 5.

Aquila and Priscilla, why mentioned as sending salutations to Corinth, 1 Cor. xvi. 19.

Ar, where situated, Deut. ii. 9. how used, ibid.

Arabia, what described as famous for, Jer. xlix. 7. St. Paul's journey thither, why not noticed in the Acts, Gal. i. 17. why St. Paul speaks of it, ver. 16.

—— Felix, remarks on its mines of gold, Job xxviii. 1.

—— Petrea, character of the country, Job xxx. 6.

Arabians, descendants of Ishmael, their prophetical character, Gen. xvi. 10. their numbers, ibid. their wildness, ver. 12. their hostility to mankind in general, ibid. their subsistence as a distinct people and their independency, ibid. improbability that their character would have been preserved, ibid.

Arabs, or Arabians, how they acquire wealth, Gen. xiii. 2. power of their princes, Gen. xiv. 14. how they make war, ver. 15. how they try delinquents of high rank, Job xxxi. 34. their manner of waiting for their prey, Jer. iii. 2. their manner of cutting the hair, Jer. ix. 26. their way of living, Jer. xxxv. 2. their practice when in anguish, xlviii. 37. a peculiar custom of theirs probably alluded to, Jer. xlix. 8.

Aram, the Syrians why so called, Ps. lx. title.

Aram-naharaim, why called Padan-aram, Gen. xxv. 20. what Syrians so called, Ps. lx. title.

Aram-zobah, what Syrians so called, ibid.

Ararat, mount, where situated, Gen. viii. 4.

—— kingdom of, what intended, Jer. li. 27.

Araunah, his threshing-place, where situate, 2 Sam. xxiv. 16. remark on the price of it, ver. 24.

Archers, in Hebrew, 'persons who tread the bow,' explained, 1 Chron. viii. 40.

Archelaus, under what circumstances he reigned in Judea, Matt. ii. 22.

Archippus, who he was, Philem. 2. why called by St. Paul a fellow soldier, ibid. conjecture concerning the purport of the caution to him, Col. iv. 17.

Areopagus, what the meaning of the word, Acts xvii. 19. why the highest court of judicature at Athens so called, ibid. why St. Paul was brought before it, ibid. what its members were distinguished for, ver. 34.

Argob, region of, where situated, Deut. iii. 4. what called in the New Testament, ibid.

Arian heresy, confession of the Church in opposition to it, Heb. i. 3.

Ariel, what it signifies, Is. xxix. 1.

Arimathea, how called by the Hebrews, Matt. xxvii. 57.

Aristarchus, account of him, Acts xxvii. 2.

Ark, Noah's, described, Gen. vi. 14. meaning of the word, ibid. its size and capacity, ver. 15. use of its several parts, ver. 16.

—— of Moses described, Exod. ii. 3.

—— what the word signifies, Exod. xxv. 10. meaning of the crown of gold round about it, ver. 11. why called the ark of the testimony, ver. 16.

—— of the covenant, why appointed to go in front of the Israelites, Josh. iii. 3. why God permitted it to be taken by the Philistines, 1 Sam. v. 1. why carried by the Philistines into the open fields, 1 Sam. vi. 1. reflections on the men of Beth-shemesh being smitten for looking into it, ver. 19. the object of this judgment, ibid. inconveniences of its want of a fixed habitation, 2 Sam. vi. 2. David's honourable conduct in providing one, ibid. why the command that it should be borne by the Kohathites broken, ver. 3. the danger of its being thrown down, ver. 6. the reverence of the people for it much impaired, ver. 7. why carried into the field of battle, 2 Sam. xi. 11. why carried by the priests into the most holy place, 1 Kings viii. 3. whether it contained any thing besides the two tables of stone, ver. 9. why called 'the footstool of God,' 1 Chron. xxviii. 2. solemnity of bringing it into the temple, 2 Chron. v. 11. remarks on God's testifying thereupon His acceptance of the temple as the place of His worship, ibid. why removed from the temple, 2 Chron. xxxv. 3.

Ark, not the ark of the covenant, for what purposes made, 1 Sam. xiv. 18.

'Arm uncovered' or 'made bare' explained, Ezek. iv. 7.

Arms of the vanquished, how treated by heathens, Ps. xlvi. 9.

'—— stand up' explained, Dan. xi. 31.

Armageddon, conjectures various concerning its meaning, Rev. xvi. 16.

Armenia, Noah's ark providentially wafted thither, and why, Gen. viii. 11.

Armies of Israel consisted of foot, Deut. xx. 1. for what reason, ibid.

Armour of God, what it consists of, Eph. vi. 11. why the particulars are so styled, ibid. necessity of the whole armour, ibid. what it represents, Eph. vi. 13. to be worn constantly, ibid. several parts of it explained, ver. 14, &c.

'—— of righteousness on the right hand and on the left,' explained, 2 Cor. vi. 7.

Arnon, country of, why so called, Jer. xlviii. 20.

—— river of, its course, Deut. iii. 8. middle of the river of, boundary of the country of the Reubenites, &c. Deut. iii. 16.

Aroer, where situated, Jer. xlviii. 19.

Arpad, where situated, Is. x. 9.

Arphaxad, who he probably was, Judith i. 1.

Arrows, custom of dipping them in poison, Job vi. 4. divination by, described, Ezek. xxi. 21. figuratively used, Ps. xxi. 12; xxxviii. 2; lxxvii. 17; cxx. 4; Hab. iii. 11.

Arsaces, family name of kings of Parthia, 1 Mac. xiv. 2.

Artaxerxes Longimanus, why called king of kings, Ezra vii. 12. excellence of his decree in favour of the Jews, ver. 23. his permission to the Jews to live by their own laws, ver. 26. his concern for the grief of Nehemiah, Neh. ii. 2.

—— called Smerdis, who, Ezra iv. 7. conjectures respecting the letter to him being 'interpreted in the Syrian tongue,' ibid. why God permitted his decree to prevent the Jews from proceeding in their building, ver. 21, 23. duration of his reign, ver. 24.

Article first, of the Church, doctrine of it proved, 1 Pet. i. 11.

—— second, of the Church, whence it borrows an expression, Mic. v. 2.

—— seventh, of the Church, its judgment about the hopes of a future life entertained by the Patriarchs, &c. Heb. xi. 16.

Articles of faith, two most important ones on which our salvation depends, Rom. x. 6, 7.

—— the more necessary, practice of the Church concerning them, 2 Tim. i. 13. how embodied among us, ibid.

Artillery, what it means, 1 Sam. xx. 40.

Arts useful, invention of, a proof of God's superintendence of the world, Gen. iv. 20.

Arvad, what meant by it, Ezek. xxvii. 8.

'As,' the particle, in Scripture frequently understood, Is. xxi. 8.

'As thy days so shall thy strength be' explained, Deut. xxxiii. 25.

Asa, proof of his pious disposition, 1 Kings xv. 13. reflections on his suffering high places for the worship of God to stand, ver. 14; 2 Chron. xv. 17. in what sense his heart was 'perfect with the Lord,' 1 Kings xv. 14; 2 Chron. xv. 17. for what purpose he fortified Ramah, 1 Kings xv. 17. without necessity he stript the temple of its treasure, ver. 18. the length of his reign in the blessings of peace, 1 Kings xvi. 29. discussion of a chronological difficulty respecting his reign, 2 Chron. xvi. 1. his false policy in leaguing himself with Ben-hadad, ver. 3. the evil change wrought in him a warning to all to be ever on their guard, ver. 9. his want of trust in God, and sole reliance on man's assistance, ver. 9, 12. remark on his disease, ver. 12. his melancholy end in sin after virtuous beginnings, ver. 13. the burning of various spices at his burial, ver. 13, 14.

Asaph, uncertain who he was, Ps. l. 1; lxxiii. 1.

'Ascend into heaven,' 'descend into the deep,' proverbial expressions, what they signify, Rom. x. 6. how used by the Apostle, ibid.

Ascension of Christ, foreshewn before and under the law, Gen. v. 24. particular ceremony by which represented, Ps. xxiv. 1. visibly took place before the Apostles, Luke xxiv. 51. very availing for the confirmation of our hopes, ibid. the spot where it took place now shewn by tradition, ibid. Christ's welcome among the angels of heaven, Mark xvi. 19. See Christ.

'Ashamed,' in what sense used, Ps. xxv. 20.

Ashchenaz, kingdom of, what intended, Jer. li. 27.

Ashdod, its situation, 1 Sam. v. 1. how called in the New Testament, ibid. account of it, Is. xx. 1. sieges sustained by it, Jer. xxv. 20.

Asher, tribe of, fertility of its situation foretold by Jacob, Gen. xlix. 20. its blessing by Moses explained, Deut. xxxiii. 24. allusion to the meaning of its name, ibid.

Ashes, sprinkling with, what it denoted, Job ii. 8; 1 Kings xx. 38.

—— feeding on, a proverbial expression, Is. xliv. 20.

Ashkelon, where situate, Jer. xlvii. 5.

Asia, used in a limited sense, Acts ii. 9. what district meant by it in the Acts and St. Paul's Epistles, 1 Cor. xvi. 19.

—— proconsular, the number of cities contained in it, Rev. i. 4.

—— the chief of, the expression explained, Acts xix. 31.

Asiatick Christians, which of them alluded to by St. Paul, 2 Tim. i. 15.

Asmodeus, name explained, Tob. iii. 8.

Asmonean dynasty, when begun, 1 Mac. iii. 1.

—— princes, how they profaned the holy ground of the temple, Ezek. xliii. 12.

Asnapper, conjectures respecting the person meant, Ezra iv. 10.

Asps, their venom particularly acute, Deut. xxxii. 33; Job xx. 14.

Ass, why mentioned, Exod. xiii. 13. what it comprehends, ibid.

—— Balaam's, why caused to speak, Numb. xxii. 28. the miracle agreeable to heathen opinions, ibid. ascribed to an adequate cause, ibid. its fitness and consonance to reason, ibid. the animal a mere organ, ver. 30.

—— wild, described, its preference of salt water, Job xxxix. 5, 6. its fleetness, ver. 7. why called by Persians mountain-ass, ver. 8. its sharpsightedness, Jer. xiv. 6.

—— 'wild ass alone,' Ephraim why compared to, Hos. viii. 9.

Asses, quality and value of in the East, Numb. xxii. 21; Judg. x. 4; Prov. xxvi. 3. by whom used for riding, Judg. v. 10; x. 4. why Messiah described riding on one, Zech. ix. 9. meaning of the epithet 'white,' Judg. v. 10. their value as beasts of burden, and for agriculture, Is. xxx. 24.

Assembling of themselves together, the practice of the primitive Christians, Heb. x. 25. the New Testament supposes them so to do, ibid. its provisions made accordingly, ibid. why some omitted it, ibid.

Assembly, literal meaning of the word, Jam. ii. 2. how used in this passage, ibid. what sort of meeting here intended, ibid.

Assertions, strong, how made by the Hebrews, Rom. iv. 19.

Asshur, what people denoted by the name, Gen. x. 11; Numb. xxiv. 24; Ps. lxxxiii. 8; Ezek. xxvii. 6. fulfilment of Balaam's prophecy concerning it, Numb. xxiv. 24.

Assideans, who they were, 1 Mac. ii. 42.

Assos, its situation, Acts xx. 13.

Asuppim, house of, conjectures respecting its nature and situation, 1 Chron. xxvi. 15.

Assur, see Asshur.

Assurance of salvation, very few can boast of it, 2 Tim. iv. 6. why vouchsafed to St. Paul, at the approach of martyrdom, ibid. difference of his condition at an earlier period, ibid. such assurance not expedient for a man during his trial, 2 Tim. iv. 6. parallel between our bodily and spiritual welfare, ibid.

Assyria, king of, why called king of princes, Hos. viii. 10.
—— kingdom of, when first mentioned in Scripture, since the days of Nimrod, 2 Kings xv. 19. history of it, ibid. See Ashur.
Assyrian, what meant by, Mic. v. 5.
Assyrians, injurious effects of their intercourse with the Jews, Ezek. xxiii. 5.
Astonishment compared to drunkenness, Jer. xxv. 16.
Astrologers, who they were, Dan. i. 20. why removed when the king dies, Dan. v. 11.
Astrology, by what ancient people chiefly valued, Dan. i. 4.
At hand, 'the Lord is at hand,' interpretation of its meaning, Phil. iv. 5. reflections on it, ibid.
Atad, threshingfloor of, uncertainty concerning it, Gen. l. 10. why the scene of lamentation at Jacob's funeral, ibid.
Atargatis deity described, 2 Mac. xii. 26.
Athaliah, her cries of treason, 2 Kings xi. 14. her resemblance to Jezebel in her conduct and in her death, ver. 16. reflection on her history, ibid.
Athanasius, who he was that wrote the Prologue to Ecclesiasticus, Prol. to Ecclus.
Atheism, arguments against, Ps. xiv. 7.
Atheist, the fool described by the Psalmist, xxxix. 8.
Athenians, their character for love of novelty, Acts xvii. 21.
Athens, how St. Paul probably went to it, Acts xvii. 14. character of the city, ver. 16.
Atonement, what so called in Scripture, Job xxxiii. 24. used for reconciliation, Rom. v. 11. remarks on it, ibid. the end attained by the Redeemer's death, so called by the sacred writers, Heb. x. 1. connexion of it with animal sacrifice, Lev. i. 2. how atonement for the sins of mankind effected, Lev. xvi. 22. that under the law compared with that by the sacrifice of Christ, ibid. implies a double effect, Numb. viii. 12. that made by Christ prefigured by Aaron's atonement for Israel, Numb. xvi. 47. scriptural attestations to the atonement by the death of Christ, Heb. vii. 27. not capable of a question, ibid. necessary for the most virtuous person, Heb. x. 19. the only means of clearing him before his Judge, ibid. remarks on its efficacy, 1 John ii. 2.
—— what the word sometimes signifies, Lev. xiv. 18.
—— doctrine of, unanswerable argument for it, Heb. ii. 10. our duty in consequence, ibid. included in that of the Incarnation, 1 John iv. how the two articles reciprocate, ibid. danger and guilt of rejecting it, Heb. x. 38. resemblance which such rejection bears to apostasy, ibid. remarks and reflections thereon, ibid.
'Attained,' term taken from the Grecian games, explained, Phil. iii. 12.
Attalia, its situation, Acts xiv. 25.
Attributes of God, knowledge of, its importance, Exod. xxxiii. 19. how manifested to the Israelites, Deut. ix. 5. much of them known by the light of nature, Rom. i. 19, 20. severally glorified by his works, Eph. i. 6.
Augustus, a title assumed by all the Roman emperours, Acts xxv. 21.
Auricular confession, Romish practice of, not founded in Scripture, Jam. v. 16.
Austerities, none enjoined by Christ as absolute duties, Matt. xi. 19. nor practised by the Apostles, 1 Cor. iv. 12.
'Author and finisher of our faith,' reasons for the appellation being given to our Saviour, Heb. xii. 2.
Authority, proneness of men to oppose it, Numb. xii. 3. duty of those who possess it, Prov. xxiv. 11.
—— undue, not to be usurped by Christ's disciples, Matt. xxiii. 8.
—— in the Church, how derived to the Apostles, Introd. to 1 Tim. and from them to others, ibid. remarks on the succession in which to be continued, ibid. and on the directions for the exercise of it, ibid. what these directions import, ibid.
—— of God, consequence of despising it in one particular, Jam. ii. 11.
Aven, plain of, where situated, Amos i. 5.
Azariah, in what sense son of Zadok, 1 Kings iv. 2.
Azarias, same as Abednego, Song of the Three Children, ver. 2.
Azekah, where situate, 1 Sam. xvii. 1.
Azotus, its situation, Acts viii. 40. See Ashdod.
Azzah, its situation and other name, 1 Kings iv. 24.

B.

Baal, signification of the name, Numb. xxii. 41. who probably intended, ibid. high places of, described, ibid. why called by the Hebrews, Bosheth, Jer. iii. 24. under what name supposed to be described, Ezek. viii. 3.
—— prophets of, why their eating at Jezebel's table particularly mentioned, 1 Kings xviii. 19. what meant by their leaping on the altar, ver. 26. their cutting themselves with knives conformable to idolatrous rites of many nations, ver. 28. what intended to express, ibid. what meant by their prophesying, ver. 29.
—— the priests of, remark on their clothing and ornaments, 2 Kings x. 22.
Baal-berith, an idol, opinions respecting it, Judg. viii. 33.
Baale of Judah, meaning and reason of the name, 2 Sam. vi. 2.
Baal-hamon, where situated, Song of Sol. viii. 11.
Baali, meaning and force of the appellation, Hos. ii. 16.
Baalim, meaning of the word, Judg. ii. 11; Hos. ii. 16. what intended by 'the days of Baalim,' Hos. ii. 13. and by 'taking away the names of Baalim,' Hos. ii. 16, 17.
Baal-meon, where situated, Ezek. xxv. 9.
Baal-peor, why so called, Numb. xxiii. 28. who intended by it, Numb. xxv. 3. what meant by Israel joining himself to Baal-peor, ibid.
Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, meaning of the name, 2 Kings i. 2. why so called, ibid.
Baal-zephon, a place of idolatrous worship, Exod. xiv. 2. why the Israelites were directed towards it, ibid.
Baasha, remarkable language in which his elevation was foretold, 1 Kings xiv. 14. why he cut off Jeroboam's family, 1 Kings xv. 29. in what sense his exaltation is ascribed to God, 1 Kings xvi. 2. the execution of God's threats against him, ver. 3, 12. resemblance between him and Jeroboam, ibid.
'Babbler' explained, Eccles. x. 11.
Babel, tower of, how constructed, Gen. xi. 3. probably extant in Herodotus's time, ibid. supposed to have been the citadel, ver. 4. history of it, how misapplied by the heathens, ibid. design with which it was built, ibid.
Babes, who intended by the appellation, Matt. xi. 25. why the Hebrews compared to them, Heb. v. 13.
—— in Christ, who they are, 1 Cor. iii. 1.
Babylon, built by Nimrod, Gen. x. 10. description of it, Is. xiii. 19. its advantageous situation, Is. xliii. 14. why called 'the desert of the sea,' Is. xxi. 1. and 'a land of traffick,' Ezek. xvii. 4. remark on its being called 'brook of the willows,' Is. xv. 7. description of its gates, Is. xlv. 1, 2. siege of it, Is. xlvii. 9. capture of it, Jer. li. 31, 32, 36. its desolation, Is. xiv. 21—23.
—— question concerning what St. Peter meant by it, 1 Pet. v. 13.
—— figuratively expressing Rome, Rev. xiv. 8. why Rome was prophesied of under this name, ibid. meaning of the phrase 'Babylon is fallen,' ibid. her spiritual fornications, ibid.
—— spiritual, her destruction and downfall, Rev. xviii. 1—3. the cause of her judgments, ver. 3. her encouraging the ambition and luxury of her votaries, ibid. the certainty of just retaliation upon her, ver. 6. rejoicings of some and lamentations of others at her fall, ver. 9. her merchandise of penances and indulgences, Rev. xviii. 12, 13. her complete desolation, ver. 22, 23. denunciation of judgments, for what intended, ibid.
Babylonish captivity, the time from which it is to be dated, 2 Kings xxiv. 1. See Captivity.
—— garment, where made, Josh. vii. 21.
Babylonian kingdom described, Dan. ii. 32. its extent, how signified, Dan. iii. 4. its duration, Is. xxiii. 15.
Baca, the valley of, described, Ps. lxxxiv. 6.
'Backs turned towards the temple,' impiety of explained, Ezek. viii. 16.
Badgers' skins, doubts respecting the word, Exod. xxv. 5.
Bagoas, common name for eunuchs, Judith xii. 11.

Bags, how used in the East for carrying money, 2 Kings xii. 10.
Bakers' street explained, Jer. xxxvii. 21.
Balaam, a heathen, but a true Prophet, Numb. xxii. 5. singularity of his character accounted for, ibid. why employed by God on the occasion there recorded, ibid. why sent for by Balak to curse the Israelites, ver. 6. reflections on his giving way to temptation, Numb. xxii. 17. in what sense permitted by God to go with the Moabites, ibid. and 20. why God's anger was kindled because he went, ver. 22. his fault in smiting the ass, ver. 27. remarks on his expressing no surprise at the ass's speaking, ver. 29. what meant by his eyes being opened, ver. 31. defect in his confession of sin, ver. 34. remarks on his desire to have seven altars built, Numb. xxiii. 1. what meant by his going to a high place, ver. 3. what by taking up his parable, ver. 7. remarks on his return to his place, Numb. xxiv. 25. manner in which he seduced the Israelites from their obedience, ibid. his history, an alarming example of the deceitfulness of the human heart, ibid. and of the distinction between the gifts and fruits of the Spirit, ibid. how it happened that he went with the Midianites to battle, Numb. xxxi. 8. reflections on his wickedness and death, ibid. how his infamy perpetuated by the Jewish law, Deut. xxiii. 3.
—— explanation of his being called the son of Bosor, 2 Pet. ii. 15.
—— considerations on what Micah says of him, Mic. vi. 5, 6.
—— prophecies of, wonderful both in matter and style, Numb. xxiii. 7. a continuation of those of Jacob, Numb. xxii. 12; xxiii. 24. predicted the victories of the Israelites, and their subsequent prosperity, ibid.
—— his prophecy concerning Amalek, confirmation of that by Moses, Numb. xxiv. 20.
Balak, why he sent for Balaam, Numb. xxii. 3, 6. why he promised to promote him to great honour, ver. 17. why he carried him to the high places of Baal, ver. 41. why he desired him to come with him to another place, Numb. xxiii. 13, 27. why he prevented him from seeing all the Israelites, ibid. his superstition illustrated by a conceit in the Romish church, ibid.
Baldhead, why the term applied to Elisha, 2 Kings ii. 23.
Baldness, why forbidden to the Israelites, Lev. xxi. 5. of what it was a token, Is. xv. 2.
Balm of Gilead, its value, Gen. xliii. 11. what meant by it, Jer. viii. 22.
Bamah, to what the word refers, Ezek. xx. 29.
Bands, staff of, explained, Zech. xi. 7.
Banners, set up for what purpose, Ps. xx. 5.
Banquets, posture of the Jews at them, Matt. viii. 11.
Baptism, remarks on the Apostles being commanded to administer it, Matt. xxviii. 19. typified by the passage of the Israelites through the Red sea, Exod. xiv. 31. and by the Jewish purifications, Ezek. xxxvi. 25. what circumcision was of old, Exod. iv. 26. its necessity, ibid. sin of withholding it, ibid. guilt of neglecting it, Acts ix. 18. to what end appointed, Eph. v. 26. the seal of the covenant between God and man, Rev. vii. 3. converts who were baptized why said to be sealed, ibid. why the sign of the cross made on the forehead at baptism, ibid.
—— ordinance whereby we are admitted into the Christian covenant, John iii. 5. sacrament of initiation into the Christian church and faith, Rom. ii. 28; 1 Cor. xii. 13. means of putting us into the way to heaven, 1 Pet. iii. 21. what it represents, Rom. vi. 4. what it necessarily implies, Gal. iii. 27. what word used to denote it, Tit. iii. 5. why called in the XXVIIth Article 'a sign of regeneration,' Rom. vi. 11.
—— its value consists in the inward efficacy of the Spirit, John iii. 5. who regenerates us at it, ibid. accompanying it when duly administered, Gal. iii. 27. and unites us unto Christ in the very act of it, ibid. what we are thereby made, ibid. 1 John v. 4.
—— efficacy and advantages of it, Tit. iii. 5. what powers it communicates, Rom. vi. 4. what it is not, and what it is, ver. 11. benefits accompanying it, how limited to it, 1 Cor. vi. 11. grace conferred by it, from what to be distinguished, Tit. iii. 5. inward effect of it constantly affirmed in Scripture, Rom. vi. 11.
—— of water, necessary for those who have received the baptism of the Spirit, Acts x. 47. errour of the Quakers in this respect, ibid.
Baptism, what obligations it lays us under, Rom. vi. 4. promises then made, 1 Pet. iii. 21. our being saved depends on our performance of them, ibid. remark on one of the engagements contracted at it, 1 John v. 4.
—— when to be administered, Exod. iv. 26. no restriction as to age, Matt. xxviii. 19. reasons why it should be administered to infants, ibid. xix. 14; 1 Cor. vii. 14. administered to whole families at once, Acts xvi. 33. infant baptism practised from the earliest times, ibid.
—— not to be repeated, Eph. iv. 5. repetition of it inconsistent with the doctrine of the grace communicated by it, ibid. vital principle then imparted is for a man's whole life, Rom. vi. 9. work begun in it, how to be continued, Rom. ii. 28. necessity of exerting the principles of spiritual life conferred in it, Gal. vi. 15.
—— its power and blessings instanced in Christ, Luke iv. 1.
—— form of, parallel to the form of benediction under the law, Numb. vi. 26. its connexion with the doctrine of the Trinity, Matt. xxviii. 19; 1 John v. 7. never performed only in the name of Jesus, Matt. xxviii. 19; Acts ii. 38; xix. 5.
—— to deny the resurrection a contradiction to it, 1 Cor. xv. 29.
—— Jewish, its origin, Exod. xix. 10. a symbol of purification among the Jews, Matt. iii. 6. propriety of it as preparatory to the Gospel, ibid.
—— of John, the purpose of Christ's question to His disciples respecting it, Matt. xxi. 27.
—— of our Lord, what shewn by the miraculous circumstances attending it, Matt. iii. 17.
'—— of repentance,' explanation of the expression, Mark i. 4.
—— how used metaphorically, Luke xii. 50.
Baptisms, opinions about the meaning of the word in the plural number, Heb. vi. 2.
Baptismal promise, an article in it explained, Tit. ii. 12.
Baptize, for what reasons Christ Himself did not baptize, John iv. 2. St. Paul's meaning when he says that 'Christ sent him not to baptize,' 1 Cor. i. 17.
Baptized persons, what state placed in by baptism, Rom. vi. 9. what their condition under the dominion of sin, ibid. what on their repentance, ibid.
Baptized, privileges of persons rightly baptized, Gal. iii. 27.
'—— for the dead,' sense and design of the phrase, 1 Cor. xv. 29. difficulty attending it, ibid.
'—— into Christ,' what it means, Rom. vi. 3.
'—— unto Moses,' how the Israelites were so, 1 Cor. x. 2. what the phrase signifies, ibid. into whose name they were baptized, ibid.
—— the term used figuratively, Acts i. 5.
Baptizing, two different practices of, Rom. vi. 4. expressive of the same things, ibid.
Bar explained, Numb. iv. 10.
Barabbas, description of him, Matt. xxvii. 16.
Barak, the nature and strength of his faith, Judg. iv. 8. not appalled by the number of his adversaries, ver. 14.
Barbarians, meaning of the term, Rom. i. 14. who so called by the Greeks, 1 Cor. xiv. 11. and by the Romans, ibid. sense of the word afterwards, as used by St. Paul, ibid. how opposed to Scythians, Col. iii. 11.
Barbarous, use of the term by the Greeks and Romans, Acts xxviii. 2.
Barefoot, to walk barefoot, what it indicated, 2 Sam. xv. 30; Is. xx. 2; Ezek. xxiv. 17.
Barley, use made of it in Egypt, Exod. ix. 31. great loss sustained by it in the plague of hail, ibid. when reaped, ibid. why particularly valuable in the East, Ruth iii. 15.
—— harvest, the season of it, Josh. iii. 15.
Barnabas, his name and general character, Acts iv. 36. why particularly noticed as one who laid his money at the Apostles' feet, ver. 37. why named by St. Paul, 1 Cor. ix. 6. how he maintained himself, ibid. inference from St. Paul's mention of him, ibid.
Barrel of meal, illustrated by an Eastern custom, 1 Kings xvii. 12.
Barrenness, why reckoned a reproach, Gen. xxx. 23. effect of the opinion on the kings of Israel, 2 Chron. xi. 21.

BARTIMEUS, why called 'son of Timeus,' Mark x. 46.
BARUCH the scribe, his office, Jer. xxxii. 12. Jews' treatment of him, Jer. xliii. 3.
—— book of, whether written by Baruch, not canonical, why cited under the name of Jeremiah. Introd. to Baruch.
BARZILLAI, his loyalty and affection to David, 2 Sam. xix. 35. in what respect an excellent pattern to men in years, ibid.
BASHAN, where situated, Numb. xxxii. 1. its produce, ibid. famous for cattle, Deut. xxxii. 14; Ezek. xxxix. 18.
—— kine of, metaphorically used, Amos iv. 1.
Basket and store, probable meaning of the words, Deut. xxviii. 5.
Bastard, what it means, Zech. ix. 6.
Bat, meaning of the Hebrew and Greek names, Lev. xi. 19.
Bats, 'casting to the moles and to the bats,' meaning and allusion of the phrase, Is. ii. 20.
Bath, contents of the measure, 1 Kings vii. 26; Is. v. 10; Ezek. xlv. 11.
BATH-RABBIM, gate of, what it was, Song of Sol. vii. 4.
BATH-SHEBA, her wish to conceal her infamy, 2 Sam. xi. 5. why she consented to Adonijah's request, 1 Kings ii. 18. gently reproved by Solomon, ver. 22.
Battering rams, their use and antiquity, Ezek. iv. 2.
Battlements of houses, explained, Deut. xxii. 8.
Battles, 'the Lord's battles,' what meant by them, 1 Sam. xviii. 17.
Bay tree, what the original signifies, Ps. xxxvii. 35.
Bdellium and onyx stone explained, Gen. ii. 12.
Beam in the eye, its meaning, Matt. vii. 3.
BEAN, proper name, meaning of, 1 Mac. v. 4.
Bear, kingdom of Medes and Persians, why compared to, Dan. vii. 5.
Bear, female, why David compared to one, 2 Sam. xvii. 8. affection for her young, ibid. Prov. xvii. 12.
'Bear iniquity,' how spoken of the priests, Lev. x. 17. and of our great High Priest, ibid. 'bear his iniquity' explained, Lev. xvii. 16.
Beard, esteem for it in the East, Is. vii. 20. shaving it, of what a token, 2 Sam. x. 4; Jer. xli. 5. loss of it, when inflicted as a punishment in Sparta, 2 Sam. x. 4. how made a means of salutation, 2 Sam. xx. 9.
'Beareth all things,' as spoken of charity, remark upon it, 1 Cor. xiii. 7.
Beast rising out of the sea, what it represented, Rev. xiii. 1. blasphemy of idolatry on its head, ibid. what signified by the description of it, ver. 2. its resemblance to the little horn in Daniel, ver. 5.
—— two horned, what it signified, Rev. xiii. 11. the mark of the beast, ver. 16. the number of it explained, ver. 18.
Beasts, why such as killed a man should themselves be killed, Gen. ix. 5.
—— clean and unclean, when distinguished, Gen. yii. 2. why more clean than unclean in Noah's ark, ibid. their distinction, Lev. xi. 2. why appointed, ibid.
—— exposure to them, how Moses' prophecy about the Israelites fulfilled, Deut. xxxii. 24.
—— fighting with, a punishment of great malefactors, 1 Cor. xv. 32. question whether St. Paul literally fought with beasts, ibid. arguments for supposing that he did so, ibid. probably alluded to, 2 Cor. i. 8.
—— God's providence extends its care to, and mankind are accountable for their ill use of them, Jonah iv. 11.
—— how that said to befall man which befalls them, Eccles. iii. 19.
—— evil, their increase in an abandoned country, probably alluded to, Ezek. v. 17.
—— four, round the throne of God, why it should rather be 'four living creatures,' Rev. iv. 6. what they mean, ibid. their song of sublime adoration to the blessed Trinity, ver. 8. what their wings denote, ibid. their adoration an example to the Church militant, ibid.
Beautiful gate, why so called, Acts iii. 2.
Beauty, why a term for ornament of the head, Is. lxi. 3.
—— of the Lord, what it means, Ps. xxvii. 4.
—— staff of, explained, Zech. xi. 7.
Bed, 'coming down from a bed' illustrated by Moorish customs, 2 Kings i. 4. probable meaning of the phrase 'my children are with me in bed,' Luke xi. 7. 'I will cast her on a bed' explained, Rev. ii. 22.
Bed, what so called, Ezek. xxxii. 25.
Beds, in what part of the chamber situated, Gen. xlix. 4. those in use among the Hebrews, 2 Kings iv. 10. how placed, 2 Kings xx. 2. how used by the ancients at meals, Esth. vii. 8. how disposed for poor families, Luke xi. 7. meaning of the phrase 'let them sing aloud in their beds,' Ps. cxlix. 5.
BEDAN, question concerning the person intended, 1 Sam. xii. 11.
Bedchamber, used in a comprehensive sense, 2 Kings xi. 2.
BEDOWEEN ARABS, their principal riches, Job i. 3. See ARABS.
Bedstead, remarks on that of Og, Deut. iii. 11. bedsteads of metal not unusual in ancient days, ibid. nor in warm countries, ibid. in the East sofas serve for beds at night, ibid.
BEEROTH, its situation, 2 Sam. iv. 2.
BEER-SHEBA, meaning of the name, Gen. xx. 1. the site of a considerable town in after times, ibid. how used in conjunction with Dan, Gen. xxi. 31. fortified by the Western Christians, ibid.
—— why necessary to be understood for the same name as Sheba, Josh. xix. 2.
—— why its situation beyond Jezebel's power, 1 Kings xix. 3.
'—— manner of,' Greek rendering of the phrase, Amos viii. 14. what it signifies, ibid.
Bees, observation of naturalists respecting them, Judg. xiv. 8.
'Began to do,' &c. Hebraism for 'did,' &c. instanced, Acts i. 1.
'Begat he us with the word of truth' explained, James i. 18. argument founded on the passage, ibid.
Beggars who can labour have no right to alms, 2 Thess. iii. 10. what giving of alms to them is, ibid. character of their calling, ibid.
Beginning, why Christ called 'the beginning,' Col. i. 18. what so called by the Greek philosophers, ibid.
—— in the, used in the same sense by St. John as by Moses, John i. 1. what the expression frequently signifies, ibid.
'—— of revenges,' considerations upon the meaning of the passage, Deut. xxxii. 42.
'Begotten you through the Gospel' explained, 1 Cor. iv. 15.
'—— us again,' how God is said to have done so, 1 Pet. i. 3.
Behemoth, the hippopotamus, or river horse, described, Job xl. 15, 18, 24.
Beings, others besides men interested in our blessed Lord, Eph. i. 10. proper use to be made of such hints as Scripture gives on the subject, ibid.
BEL, same as Baal, Gen. x. 9. meaning of the name, ibid. god of the Babylonians, ibid. what meant by it, Is. xlvi. 1.
BEL and the DRAGON, never in Hebrew canon, called fabulous by St. Jerome. Introd. to Bel and the Dragon.
BELIAL, what the Hebrew word implies, Deut. xiii. 13. its meaning in later writings, ibid. what the name denotes, 2 Cor. vi. 14—16.
—— children of, who so called in Scripture, Deut. xiii. 13; 1 Sam. ii. 12; x. 27.
Belief, the importance of true religious belief, Acts x. 35. what supposed in Scripture to arise from, 2 Chron. xx. 20.
—— articles of, in the primitive Church, Col. ii. 2.
Believe, in what sense the Jews could not believe, John xii. 39.
'—— with the heart,' what it is, Rom. x. 10. phrases by which it is expressed, ibid.
'Believed on in the world,' indicating the prevalence of the Gospel, 1 Tim. iii. 16. par. 12. reflections on it, ibid. par. 13.
Believers, all things made subservient to their virtue and happiness, 1 Cor. iii. 22. conclusion from hence, ver. 23. indiscriminately accepted in Christ, Gal. iii. 28.
—— who probably intended by the expression, Acts i. 15. conjecture as to the whole number at the time, ibid.
Believing the Gospel, includes obedience to its precepts, Mark xvi. 16; Rom. iii. 26.
Bells, a sacred utensil of ancient use in Asia, Exod. xxviii. 33. the intent of them in high priest's robe, ibid. used in the same manner by kings of Persia, ibid. make part of horses' trappings in Arabia, Zech. xiv. 20.
Belly, the inward parts of, what it denotes, Prov. xx. 30.
'Beloved of God,' Christians so called, Rom. i. 7.

BELSHAZZAR, his character, Jer. l. 43. whose son he was, Dan. v. 2. his impiety and sacrilege, ver. 2, 4. his confusion, ver. 6. judgment on him a proof of Divine vengeance, ver. 31.

BELTESHAZZAR, name whence derived, Dan. i. 7.

BELUS, temple of, remark on, Is. xv. 3.

BENAIAH, a chief priest, rather, a chief prince, 1 Chron. xxvii. 5. his ready consent to proclaiming Solomon king, 1 Kings i. 36. his killing Joab, 1 Kings ii. 34.

Benediction closing the book of revelation, Rev. xxii. 21. of St. Paul. See Apostolical Benediction.

Benefactor, a title by whom affected, Luke xxii. 25.

Beneficence, rules by which to be distributed, 1 Tim. v. 8.

Benevolence enjoined by the law, Deut. xvi. 16. as much at least by the Gospel, ibid.

—— and self-government, reflections on them as parts of religion, Jam. i. 27.

—— of Christ, exemplified eminently in His raising the widow's son, Luke vii. 15.

—— Christian, general rule of, Gal. vi. 10. to be exerted in different degrees, ibid. rule for regulating the exertion of it, ibid.

Benevolent disposition, model for its exhortations to works of charity, 2 Cor. ix. 15.

BEN-HADAD, king of Syria, account of him, 1 Kings xx. 1. his boast against Israel, ver. 11. the meaning of Elisha's answer to him, 2 Kings viii. 10. no deceit in that answer, ibid.

— common name of Syrian kings, Jer. xlix. 27.

BENJAMIN, why called the lad, Gen. xliii. 8.

—— why called their ruler, Ps. lxviii. 27.

—— tribe of, why compared by Jacob to a wolf, Gen. xlix. 27. character of the tribe, ibid. its long continuance, ibid. its connexion with Judah, ibid. blessing by Moses explained, Deut. xxxiii. 12. why mentioned next to Levi, ibid. safety of their residence, ibid. what meant by the Lord dwelling between his shoulders, ibid. the line of their border, Josh. xviii. 14. why a more particular account of its genealogy given, 1 Chron. viii. 1. why St. Paul specifies his descent from it, Phil. iii. 5.

—— gate of, where situate, Jer. xx. 2.

—— his mess explained, Gen. xliii. 34.

BENJAMITES, their punishment approved by God, Judg. xxi. 15.

BEREA, its situation, Acts xvii. 10. the docility, wisdom, and honest disposition of its inhabitants, ver. 11. a fit pattern for our imitation in examining the grounds of our faith, ibid.

Bereaved, if I be, &c. explained, Gen. xliii. 14.

BERENICE, daughter of Ptolemy Philadelphus, married to Antiochus Theus, Dan. xi. 6.

BERITES, who they were, 2 Sam. xx. 14.

BEROTHAH, where situate, Ezek. xlvii. 16.

BEROSUS, his testimony to Nebuchadnezzar's conquest of greatest part of Africa, Jer. xlvi. 13.

Beryl, a chrysolite, a topaz, Ezek. i. 16.

Beset, 'the sin which doth so easily beset us,' what particular sin meant, Heb. xii. 1.

'Best and greatest,' supreme Being so called by the Gentiles, Rom. i. 21.

BETH-AVEN, Beth-el why so called, Is. xix. 18; Hos. iv. 15; x. 5, 8.

BETH-EZEL, where situated, Mic. i. 11.

BETH-HACCEREM, where situated, Jer. vi. 1.

BETH-PEOR, meaning of the name, Numb. xxiii. 28.

BETH-SHEMESH, in Egypt, what city, Jer. xliii. 13.

BETHBASI, where situated, 1 Mac. ix. 62.

BETHABARA, its situation, and meaning of the name, John i. 28.

BETH-BARAH, conjecture about it, Judg. vii. 24. its situation, ibid.

BETHANY, its situation, Matt. xxvi. 6.

BETH-EL, why so called, Gen. xii. 8. character of the place, 1 Sam. x. 3. why said to inflict sufferings on the Israelites, Hos. x. 15.

—— people of, included in the destruction of Ai, Josh. viii. 25. their folly in attempting to oppose the Israelites, ibid.

—— the old prophet of, doubts whether he was a true or false prophet, 1 Kings xiii. 11. probably a true prophet of God, but corrupt, ibid. reflections on his falsehood, ver. 18. the reason of his desiring his bones to be laid beside the bones of the prophet of Judah, ver. 31. he made a right comment on what had happened, ibid.

BETH-EL, destruction of altar in, by whom foretold, Amos iii. 14.

BETHER, what it means, Song of Sol. ii. 17.

BETHORON, meaning the place afterwards so called, Josh. x. 10.

BETHESDA, meaning of the name, John v. 2.

—— pool of, its porches, John v. 2. still shewn by tradition, ibid. the miraculous virtue of its waters, ver. 4.

BETH-JESHIMOTH, its situation, Ezek. xxv. 9.

BETH-LEHEM, well of, tradition relating to it, 2 Sam. xxiii. 15.

—— EPHRATAH, or of Judea, where situate, Mic. v. 2; Matt. ii. 1. why so called, Mic. v. 2. honoured by Christians, ibid. application of prophecy respecting it, Matt. ii. 6.

BETHPHAGE, its situation, Matt. xxi. 1.

BETHSAIDA, its situation, Matt. xi. 21. its present state, ibid.

BETHSURA, where situated, 1 Mac. iv. 29.

BETH-REHOB, the Syrians of, described, 2 Sam. x. 6.

BETH-SHAN, its situation, 1 Sam. xxxi. 10.

BETH-SHEMESH, men of, error as to the number smitten for looking into the ark, 1 Sam. vi. 19. reflections on their offence, and their punishment, ibid.

BETHUEL, why called the Syrian or Aramite, Gen. xxv. 20.

BETHULIA, where situate, Judith iv. 6.

Bewitched, what the word alludes to, Gal. iii. 1. its meaning, ibid.

Beyond Jordan, phrase explained, Gen. l. 10. what the original phrase means, Matt. iv. 15.

BEZALEEL, why supernaturally endowed with skill in the arts, Exod. xxxi. 3.

—— and AHOLIAB, why said to be filled with wisdom of heart, Exod. xxxv. 35.

Bier, or bed, on which persons of quality were carried forth to their graves, 2 Sam. iii. 31.

Bird, speckled, similitude explained, Jer. xii. 9.

Birds, forbidden to the Hebrews, uncertainty concerning them, Lev. xi. 16. general character of them, ver. 19.

—— allowed to the Hebrews, their general character, Lev. xi. 19.

—— flying, similitude explained, Is. xxxi. 5. particular places where they lodge instanced, Zeph. ii. 14.

Bird's nest, injunction concerning, why given, Deut. xxii. 6.

Birthday, how celebrated in the East, Job i. 4.

Birthright, many privileges annexed to it, Gen. xxv. 31.

—— prerogatives of, in what they consisted, Gen. xlix. 3. taken by Jacob from Reuben, ibid. to which of his sons given, ibid.

Bishop, how the word is often used in the New Testament, Phil. i. 1.

—— and presbyter, sometimes used promiscuously, 1 Tim. iii. 1. when distinguished, ibid. how severally appropriated, ibid. not necessary to determine which order here intended, ibid.

Bishops, how styled in the first age of the Church, Phil. ii. 25. the office of confirmation to be administered only by them, Acts viii. 17. imposition of hands by them in confirmation and ordination, ibid.

—— and governours of the Church how fixed from the first ages, 1 Tim. i. 18. reasons of their being appointed, ibid. who generally understood by the phrase here, Phil. i. 1.

Bishoprick, how used, Acts i. 20.

Bitter water explained, Numb. v. 18.

Bitterness, what it signifies in Scripture, Heb. xii. 15. what meant by a root of bitterness, ibid. purport of the metaphor, ibid.

Black, how the word used, applied to the countenance, Jer. viii. 21; Lam. iv. 8.

—— horse, what period it denotes, Rev. vi. 5. by what characterized, ibid.

Blackness in the countenance, what it indicates, Joel ii. 6.

Blameless, what meant by 'touching the righteousness that is in the law, blameless,' Phil. iii. 6.

'Blasphemed,' how used, Tit. ii. 5.

Blasphemer, reason of St. Paul acknowledging himself one, 1 Tim. i. 13.

Blasphemy, two significations of it, Col. iii. 8.

—— and cursing, punishment recorded of, Lev. xxiv. 14. practical inference, ibid. on what principle so punished, ver. 16.

—— against the Holy Ghost, what the nature of this sin, Matt. xii. 31. confined to the Pharisees in our Saviour's time, ibid. some sins of a nature approaching to it may be committed by all Christians, ibid. why it was unpardonable, ver. 32.

Blasting and mildew, what they signify, Deut. xxviii. 22.

Bless, how God blesseth man, Gen. xiv. 20. how man blesseth God, ibid.
'—— the sacrifice,' alluding to the custom of giving thanks before meals, 1 Sam. ix. 13.
—— 'in thee shall Israel bless' explained, Gen. xlviii. 20.
Blessed, in what sense Jacob blessed Reuben, Simeon, and Levi, Gen. xlix. 28.
'—— be thou,' a form of salutation, 1 Sam. xv. 13. 'the less is blessed of the better' explained, Heb. vii. 7.
—— 'the blessed,' used as the title of God the Father, Mark xiv. 61.
'—— for evermore,' remark on the use of it, 2 Cor. xi. 31; Rom. ix. 5.
Blessing, office of the priest, Lev. ix. 22; Numb. vi. 23. people not to depart without it, Lev. ix. 22; Ecclus. l. 21.
—— that which the Levitical priests were commanded to use, Numb. vi. 23, 26. esteemed a mystery by the Jews, ver. 26. had respect to the Trinity, ibid. corresponds to the form of Christian baptism, ibid. articles of it agree to the three Persons in their usual order, ibid. inserted in the Visitation of the Sick, ver. 27. accompanied with God's blessing, ibid. the same as the apostolical benediction, ibid. See Apostolical benediction.
—— of God connected with the priest's blessing under the law, Numb. vi. 27. continues to be so under the Gospel, ibid. in conformity with God's ordinance, ibid.
—— form of, among the Jews, by laying on hands, Matt. xix. 13.
—— the Divine, to be implored in all our undertakings, Prov. xvi. 3.
—— of Abraham, what St. Paul means by it, Gal. iii. 14. why he so expresses himself, ibid.
—— bishop's, how received, Ecclus. l. 21.
—— in the Communion Service, wisdom of the Church in regard to it, Phil. iv. 7.
—— meaning a present, 1 Sam. xxv. 27.
Blessings, God's, although promised, must be prayed for, Ezek. xxxvi. 37. See Spiritual Blessings.
Blind, 'making the blind to wander,' moral meaning of the law concerning it, Deut. xxvii. 18.
—— man, so born, how affected by his miraculous cure, John ix. 33. the strict scrutiny to which this miracle was subjected, ver. 34. Jewish opinions of the greatness of this miracle, ver. 32. remarks on the manner in which the Jews resisted the evidence of it, ver. 41.
—— men, Evangelists differing respecting their number may be easily reconciled, Matt. xx. 30.
'—— people that have eyes,' who intended, Is. xliii. 8.
Blood, why the eating of it forbidden, Gen. ix. 4; Lev. iii. 17; vii. 26; penalties under which forbidden to the Hebrews, Lev. xvii. 11. custom of eating it prevalent when and where, Lev. vii. 26. the seat of life, Gen. ix. 4. distinction between blood of the soul and blood of a limb, Lev. xvii. 11. why commanded to be covered with dust, ver. 13; Ezek. xxiv. 7. practice of the Israelites in consequence, Lev. xvii. 3. custom of the ancient heathens noticed, ibid.
—— making atonement for the soul, principle of the Levitical service, Lev. xvii. 11.
—— of Christ prophesied of, Zech. xiii. 1. the occasion of blessings to believers, Eph. i. 7. why mentioned to the Ephesians, ibid. its correspondence to the Levitical sacrifices for sin, Heb. ix. 14. its superiour excellence, ibid. and efficacy, ibid. with what allusion called the 'blood of sprinkling,' Heb. xii. 24. why said to 'speak better things than that of Abel,' ibid.
—— of the covenant between God and Israel, a figure of the blood of Christ, Exod. xxiv. 8.
'—— of the everlasting covenant' explained, Heb. xiii. 20.
—— abhorred by the Egyptians, Exod. vii. 20. remarks on the river turned to blood, ibid.
—— festival of, idolatrous opinion concerning it, Lev. xix. 26. prohibition in the law in consequence, ibid.
—— meaning of the phrase 'his blood shall be upon him,' Lev. xx. 9.
—— in what sense the people ate the spoil 'with the blood,' 1 Sam. xiv. 32.
—— 'to make inquisition for,' explained, Ps. ix. 12.
—— 'drink offerings of,' explained, Ps. xvi. 4.
'Blood of the innocents' explained, Jer. ii. 34.
—— in Scripture includes all heinous sins, Ezek. ix. 9. every kind of premature death, Ezek. xiv. 19.
'—— toucheth blood,' murders committed without intermission, Hos. iv. 2.
—— of sacrificed beasts why received in bowls, Zech. ix. 15.
—— 'the price of,' what meant by the expression, Matt. xxvii. 6.
—— 'even unto the horse bridles,' strong manner of expressing vast slaughter, Rev. xiv. 20.
'—— of the grape,' wine so called, Deut. xxxii. 14.
—— and blood, a cause between, explained, 2 Chron. xix. 10.
Bloody husband, Zipporah's saying explained, Exod. iv. 25.
'Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances,' what practice it alludes to, Col. ii. 14. what it imports, ibid.
Blow an alarm, distinguished from blowing, Numb. x. 3.
Blue, dresses of, reserved for princes and great lords, Ezek. xxiii. 6.
Boanerges, meaning of the word, and what was implied by it, Mark iii. 17.
'Boasteth great things' explained, Jam. iii. 5.
Boasting, what that spoken of by St. Paul consists in, Rom. iii. 27. how excluded by the Gospel, ibid.
Boat, usually fastened to the stern of the vessel in the East, Acts xxvii. 16.
Boaz, his kindness to Ruth, on account of her piety towards her mother in law, Ruth ii. 11. the simplicity of his mode of living, Ruth iii. 7. his honourable testimony to Ruth's character, ver. 10. the uprightness and purity of his conduct, Ruth iv. 5. his descent from Pharez, ver. 12.
Bochim, probably the same as Shiloh, or near it, Judg. ii. 1.
Body, human, parts of it figuratively alluded to, Eccles. xii. 6. described as the dwelling-place of the soul, 2 Cor. v. 1. qualities of in its present and future state, how contrasted, 1 Cor. xv. 42. remark on the change of it in a future state, Phil. iii. 21. mitigation afforded by the change to our concern on account of death, ibid. how applied by our Liturgy, ibid.
—— natural and mystical, analogy between, usual in Scripture, Rom. xii. 4.
—— of Christ, why the Church so called, Eph. i. 23.
—— meaning of Christ's saying, This is My body, &c. 1 Cor. xi. 24.
'—— of this death,' considerations on, Rom. vii. 24.
'—— of sin' explained, Rom. vi. 6.
'—— of the sins of the flesh,' what it may signify, Col. ii. 11.
Bodies, here and hereafter, difference between, how set forth by St. Paul, 1 Cor. xv. 39. our present mortal ones not adapted to a heavenly state, ver. 50. in a future state how represented, 2 Cor. v. 1, 2. St. Paul's desire concerning them, ver. 4.
—— of Christians, why to be kept pure, 1 Cor. vi. 13, 14. why called the members of Christ, ver. 15.
—— what so called by the ancients, Heb. x. 5. application to the explanation of a passage, ibid.
Bodily, 'in a bodily shape' explained, Luke iii. 22.
—— exercise, what meant by it, 1 Tim. iv. 8. its inferiority to true piety, ibid.
Boil breaking forth with blains, meaning of the expression, Exod. ix. 9.
Boils and blains, plague of, why brought on without notice, Exod. ix. 8. remarks on it, ibid. how a proper punishment of the Egyptians, ibid. very significant, ver. 10.
Bondage in Egypt, why the Israelites so often reminded of it, Deut. v. 15.
—— of corruption, what it signifies, Rom. viii. 21.
Bondservant, explained, Lev. xxv. 39.
Bone, 'breaketh the bone' explained, Prov. xxv. 15.
—— of the Messiah not to be broken, Ps. xxxiv. introd.
Book sealed with seven seals, why written within and without, Rev. v. 1. why sealed, and with seven seals, ibid. none in heaven able to open it, ver. 3.
—— 'a little book open,' a separate prophecy coming under the sixth trumpet, Rev. x. 2.
—— to be written in, what it signifies, Dan. xii. 1.
'—— of the generations' explained, Gen. v. 1.
—— of life, what custom it refers to, Phil. iv. 3; Rev. iii. 5. of whom it is a register, Phil. iv. 3; Rev. xx. 15. blotting out of, import of the phrase, Exod. xxxii. 32. what the desire of Moses signified, ibid. allusion to a Jewish custom, ibid. phrase still retained by the Jews, ibid.

Book of the Lord, used for God's omniscience, Is. xxxiv. 16.
—— of remembrance, what it alludes to, Mal. iii. 16.
'—— of the wars of the Lord,' what it means, Numb. xxi. 14.
Books, ancient, how written, Ezek. ii. 10; Ps. xl. 7; Luke iv. 17. formerly in few hands, Rev. i. 3.
—— Jeremiah's several prophecies so called, Dan. ix. 2.
Booth, or temporary hut in vineyard, Job xxvii. 18; Is. i. 8. what meant by it, Jonah iv. 5.
Born again of water and the Spirit, when persons are so, John iii. 5; Rom. vi. 9—11. names of such entered in the book of life, Ps. lxxxvii. 6.
—— of God, how the phrase is to be taken, 1 John iii. 9. reference to similar scriptural expressions, ibid. what it signifies generally in this Epistle, ibid. what meant by its being said of such a man that 'he cannot sin,' ibid. who so described, 1 John v. 4. necessity which they lie under, ibid. weapon put into their hands for the purpose, ibid. ornaments of those in the Christian Church, Ps. xlv. 13.
'—— out of due time', why St. Paul thus speaks of himself, 1 Cor. xv. 8. an Hebrew and Roman phrase, ibid.
Borrowed, in what sense the Israelites borrowed of the Egyptians, Exod. iii. 22; xii. 31.
Bosheth, why a name used for Baal, Jer. iii. 24.
Bosom of a garment described, Ps. lxxix. 12. use made of it by the Hebrews, how applied, Prov. xvii. 23.
Bottles, how made in the East, Josh. ix. 4; 1 Sam. xxv. 18; 2 Sam. xvi. 1; Matt. ix. 17. different kinds of, described, Job xxxii. 19. usually carried on journeys, Josh. ix. 4. force of the comparison 'like a bottle in the smoke,' Ps. cxix. 83.
Bottle to hold tears explained, Ps. lvi. 8. ancient custom alluded to, ibid.
Boughs of trees, why cut at the feast of tabernacles, Lev. xxiii. 40. interpretation of the Hebrew word for boughs, ibid.
Bought, how God said to have bought the Israelites, Deut. xxxii. 6.
'Bound in the spirit,' the phrase explained, Acts xx. 22.
—— up, iniquity when said to be so, Hos. xiii. 12. what custom alluded to, ibid.
Bounds of Israel specified, Exod. xxiii. 31.
Bounty of God in providing food for His creatures, Matt. xiv. 21.
Bow, a figurative expression, what used for, Job xx. 24. of steel, explained, Ps. xviii. 34. a stone bow, what it means, Wisd. v. 22. breaking of, what signified by, Hos. i. 5. deceitful, Hos. vii. 16. filled with Ephraim, explained, Zech. ix. 13.
Bows, Oriental, carried in a case, Hab. iii. 9.
Bow down, submission required by Eastern pride, instanced, Is. li. 23.
Bowels, figurative expression explained, Phil. i. 8. figurative use of the expression, whence derived, Philem. ver. 7. when said to be refreshed, ver. 20.
—— of mercies, not an uncommon phrase, Col. iii. 12. whence taken, ibid.
Bowing the knees, mark of humility in prayer, Eph. iii. 14.
Box, the phrase explained of breaking the alabaster box, Mark xiv. 3.
Bozrah, capital of Edom, deemed impregnable, Ps. lx. 9. what the name signifies, Is. xxxiv. 6. coming from, what it means, Is. lxiii. 1.
—— called Bezer, different from Bozrah in Edom, Jer. xlviii. 24.
Bracelets, very heavy, worn by the women of Asia, Gen. xxiv. 22. different interpretations of the word so translated, Gen. xxxviii. 18. ornaments for brides, Ezek. xxiii. 42.
Branch of the Lord explained, Is. iv. 2. why Messiah called 'the Branch,' Jer. xxiii. 5; Zech. iii. 8.
'—— and rush,' meaning of the metaphor, Is. ix. 14.
'—— abominable,' comparison explained, Is. xiv. 19.
Branches, how made white, Joel i. 7.
Brass, in Scripture, meaning copper, 1 Chron. xxix. 2; Job xxviii. 2. used to adulterate silver, Jer. vi. 28. appearance of, what it signifies, Ezek. xl. 3.
Breach of promise, how the Hebrew phrase may be understood, Numb. xiv. 34.
Breach upon Uzzah explained, 2 Sam. vi. 8.
—— in a wall, expressiveness of the image, Is. xxx. 13.
Bread, taken in a comprehensive sense, Gen. xviii. 5; Ruth ii. 14. much used by the people of the East, Gen. xviii. 5. put for a religious feast, Ezek. xliv. 3. why the Israelites were said not to have eaten it, Deut. xxix. 6.
—— breaking of, a concise mode of expressing the sacrament of the Lord's supper, Acts ii. 42, 46.
—— proof that what is eaten at the Lord's supper is still bread, 1 Cor. xi. 26. inference therefrom, ibid.
—— of their God, why the sacrifices so called, Lev. xxi. 6.
—— of men, of mourners, explained, Ezek. xxiv. 17.
—— from heaven, the true, John vi. 32, 48—50.
—— unleavened, why eaten with the passover, Exod. xii. 8.
—— unleavened, feast of, what days observed for it, Exod. xii. 15. first and last days, why kept holy, ver. 16.
'Breadth and length and depth and height,' what intended by the enumeration, Eph. iii. 18. compared with other passages, ibid.
Breaker, the, a title of Messiah, Mic. ii. 13.
Breaking of bread, used to express the holy communion, Acts xx. 7, 11. the receiving of the cup implied, ver. 11.
Breastplate of judgment, why so called, Exod. xxviii. 15. how made, ibid.
—— of the priest, probably the same as the Urim and Thummim, Lev. viii. 8.
—— of righteousness, what so called, Eph. vi. 14. how styled in the parallel passage, ibid. what the Apostle alluded to, ibid. use of it to a Christian, ibid.
Brethren, extent and sense of the Hebrew term, Gen. ix. 25; xiii. 8.
—— Israelites ordered to live together as such, Deut. xxiii. 20. instances of precepts to that effect, ibid.
—— remnant of converted Gentiles, Mic. v. 3.
—— cousins or kinsmen so called, Matt. xiii. 55; Acts i. 14. who are meant by our Lord's brethren, Matt. xiii. 55; 1 Cor. ix. 5.
—— of Christ, their disbelief in Him, John vii. 5. their worldly-minded notions, ibid.
—— why St. Paul twice together calls the Corinthians so, 1 Cor. i. 11.
—— which are with me, whom they denote, Gal. i. 2. from whom distinguished, ibid.
Brick, why used in the tower of Babel, Gen. xi. 3.
Bricks, composition of, in Egypt, Exod. v. 7. Eastern, how made, Is. ix. 10.
Brickkiln, nature of, explained, Jer. xliii. 9.
Bride, crowned by her mother, Song of Sol. iii. 11.
—— meaning the whole Catholick Church, Rev. xxii. 17.
Briers and thorns, used figuratively, Is. ix. 18.
Brigandines explained, Jer. xlvi. 4.
'Brightness of His glory,' meaning of the phrase, Heb. i. 3. what it alludes to, ibid. what it teaches, ibid. confession of the Church founded on it, ibid.
Brokenhearted, who they are that will be healed by Christ, Luke iv. 18.
Brooks, signify canals, an allusion to them, explained, Is. xix. 7.
Brother not to marry the brother's wife, reconciled with another command, Lev. xviii. 16. inference from the prohibition with respect to sisters, ibid.
—— 'he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen,' &c. explained, 1 John iv. 20.
Brothers, why younger preferred to the elder, Gen. ix. 26; xlviii. 14.
Brotherly-kindness, how distinguished from charity, 2 Pet. i. 7.
—— love, what meant by it, Rom. xii. 10.
Brown, Sir T. his ingenious remark, Song of Sol. vii. 8.
Buckle of gold, singular mark of distinction, 1 Mac. x. 89.
Buckler, the great shield, Ps. xxxv. 2.
—— lifting up, this manœuvre described, Ezek. xxvi. 8.
Building a city, what the phrase frequently means, 2 Chron. xi. 6.
Builded, different senses of the original verb, Heb. iii. 3.
Builders, unskilful, false prophets compared to, Ezek. xiii. 10.
'Building of God in the heavens,' what it means, 2 Cor. v. 1.

Bullock, body of, why to be burnt without the sanctuary, Ezek. xliii. 21.
Bullocks used for riding by husbandmen, application of the practice, Hos. x. 11.
Bulrushes, flags of the papyrus, Exod. ii. 3. ark of, described, ibid. vessels of, described, Is. xviii. 2.
Bundle of life, to be bound in the, expression explained, 1 Sam. xxv. 29.
Burden of the Levites explained, Numb. iv. 3.
—— what meant by, explained, Is. xiii. 1. observations on, Jer. xxiii. 9. abuse of the word, ver. 33. for prophecy in general, Lam. ii. 14. for message, Mal. i. 1.
—— of the word of the Lord, a burdensome prophecy, Zech. ix. 1.
—— 'bear one another's burdens' explained, Gal. vi. 2. reference to parallel exhortations, ibid. 'every man shall bear his own burden' explained, ver. 5.
Burial, Eastern, of the higher ranks, explained, Is. xiv. 9.
—— of the dead, an act of mercy, Tob. i. 18.
—— Jewish custom of anointing dead bodies, John xii. 7. why carried without the city by the Jewish law, Luke vii. 12.
—— of Christ, so contrived as to prevent the possibility of the body being stolen, Matt. xxvii. 60. wisdom of Providence in so ordaining, ver. 66.
—— Service, use to be made of a passage in it, Phil. iii. 21. fitness of the chapter then appointed to be read, 1 Cor. xv. 58; par. 5. always used in this office, ibid.
Burn, to consume in any way by war, Is. xxiv. 6.
Burning of an adulteress, how to be understood, Gen. xxxviii. 24.
—— alive, a Babylonian punishment, Dan. iii. 6.
—— bush, an emblem of the church, Exod. iii. 2.
—— wind, in the Arabian deserts, probably spoken of, Numb. xi. 1. described, ibid. its effects, ibid.
Burnt offerings, consumed wholly upon the altar, Jer. vii. 21. put for worship in general, Jer. xxxiii. 18.
—— sacrifices, why so called, Lev. i. 3. their antiquity, ibid. their excellence, ibid. their use, ibid. a type of the atonement of Christ, ibid.
Buryingplaces anciently in the fields, Gen. xxiii. 9; Lev. x. 5.
'Busybody in other men's matters,' what it particularly refers to, 1 Pet. iv. 15.
Butler and baker of Pharaoh, nature of their offices, Gen. xl. 1. reflections on the butler's forgetfulness of Joseph, ver. 23.
Butter, or buttermilk, much esteemed by the Arabs, Judg. v. 25. the Eastern mode of churning, ibid.
—— Eastern, described, Job xx. 17.
—— and honey, what it signifies, Is. vii. 14, 15.
Buz, supposed ancestor of Elihu, Gen. xxii. 20.
—— city of, where situate, Jer. xxv. 23.

C.

Cab, one of the smallest Hebrew measures, 2 Kings vi. 25.
Cabul, why Hiram called by this name the lands offered him by Solomon, 1 Kings ix. 13. conjectures respecting 'the land of Cabul,' ibid.
Caiaphas, God's providence in giving a prophetical issue to his words, John xi. 51, 52.
Cain, meaning of his name, Gen. iv. 1. why God had not respect to his offering, ver. 4. added sin to sin, ver. 6. further aggravation of his guilt, ver. 7. consummation of it, ver. 8. his transgression a warning to Christians, ibid. why styled a child of that wicked one, ver. 9. his punishment, ver. 11—14. what was the mark set upon him, ver. 15. his history an example of the spirit of infidelity, ver. 16.
Cakes, how made and baked in the East, Gen. xviii. 6. how made and turned in Chaldea, &c. Hos. vii. 8. idolatrous, offered to the moon, Jer. vii. 18.
Calamities, national, punishments inflicted by God, Ezek. xiv. 23.
Calamus, sweet scented cane, Song of Sol. iv. 14.
Caleb, reflections on his resolution, Numb. xiv. 9. and on his confidence in God, Numb. xiv. 24. his example recommended, ibid. his claim for a peculiar possession preferred and allowed, Josh. xiv. 6. the period marked at which this took place, ver. 10. his daughter's request and his consent to it, Josh. xv. 18.
Caleb, son of Hezron, different from the Caleb whom Moses sent to spy out the land, 1 Chron. ii. 18.
—— a country, its probable situation, 1 Sam. xxx. 14.
Calf, molten, how made, Exod. xxxii. 4. how ground to powder, ver. 20. how drunk by the children of Israel, ibid.
—— idol of Israelites, how said to cast them off, Hos. viii. 5, 6. why called 'calves of Beth-aven,' Hos. x. 5.
'Call upon the name of the Lord,' probable signification of the phrase, Gen. iv. 26.
'Called to be an Apostle' explained, Rom. i. 1.
—— 'the called of Jesus Christ' explained, Rom. i. 6, 7.
—— 'the called according to his purpose' explained, Rom. viii. 28. interpretation of the passage and its context, ibid.
—— 'from him that called you,' who meant by it, Gal. i. 6.
Calling on the name of Christ, the character of a Christian, 1 Cor. i. 2.
—— duties belonging to it to be attended to, Numb. xxv. 13.
—— of the Gentiles, why termed a mystery, Eph. i. 9.
—— and election of Christians not absolute, 2 Pet. i. 10. on what their ultimate efficacy depends, ibid. only a conditional election, ibid.
Calm, suddenly produced, miraculous, Matt. viii. 26. inference of Christ's disciples from His producing it, ver. 27.
Calneh, city of, where situate, Amos vi. 2.
Calno, where situate, Is. x. 9.
Calumny, provision against it in the Jewish law, Deut. xxii. 18. its connexion with oppression and impiety, ibid.
Calves, golden, why set up at Dan and Beth-el, 1 Kings xii. 29.
Camel, his great value to the Arabs, Gen. xxiv. 10. his abstinence, ibid. his peculiar conformation for supplying himself with water, ibid. the weight that he will carry, ibid. the distance he will go in a day, ibid. habit of bending his knees to be loaded, &c. ver. 11. furniture of, explained, Gen. xxxi. 34.
—— proverbially used with the Jews for any thing large, Matt. xix. 24. 'passing through the needle's eye,' a frequent proverb in the East, ibid. the probable allusion of it, ibid.
Camel's hair, raiment of, described, Matt. iii. 4. still used in the East, ibid.
—— their milk much esteemed, Gen. xxxii. 15.
Camp of the Israelites in the wilderness, order of it described, Numb. ii. 1. different from the order of march, ver. 17. situation of it when Moses spoke to them in Deuteronomy, Deut. i. 1. why heathens not to be brought within it, Josh. vi. 23.
—— Arab, description of, 1 Sam. xxvi. 5. similar descriptions in Homer, ibid.
Camps, three in the wilderness, Numb. v. 2. distinction with respect to them, ibid.
Camphire, what meant by, Song of Sol. i. 14.
Cana, its situation, and why named 'of Galilee,' John ii. 1.
Canaan, extent of Noah's curse upon him, Gen. ix. 25. why the account of it delivered by Moses, ibid. accomplished in the subjection of his descendants to those of Shem and Japheth, ibid.
—— why opposed to Jacob, as a name for the Israelites, Hos. xii. 7.
—— land of, its situation and extent, Gen. xii. 5. its different names, and the reason of them, ibid. more exposed to drought than Goshen, Gen. xlvii. 4. limits of the original grant to Abraham, Numb. xxxiv. 2. its boundaries accurately described by Moses, ibid. subdued principally by Joshua, ibid. the conquest completed by David and Solomon, ibid. the Abrahamick covenant realized in full, ibid. how occupied in Abraham's days, Deut. vii. 1. and in those of Moses, ibid. nations in it how distributed, ibid. its produce hardly to be estimated in Europe, Deut. viii. 8. why its minerals mentioned by Moses, ibid. why compared by Moses to the land of Egypt, Deut. xi. 10. divided among the tribes of the Israelites, Josh. xiii. 1. possession of the greater part, and the right to the whole, given to the Israelites, Josh. xxi. 43. remarks on the division of it among the tribes, Josh. xix. 51. described according to its general appearance, and according to its former inhabitants, Josh. xii. 8. divided into many petty kingdoms, ver. 24. fruitfulness of it, Ps. cvii. 37.
—— woman of, why also called a Syrophenician, Matt. xv. 22. the first heathen who implored our Lord's aid, ver. 23.

how she heard of an expected Deliverer, Matt. xv. 22. her faith, humility, and perseverance, ver. 23, 27, 28. a rare example of faith, firmness, and resignation to the will of God, Mark vii. 28.
CANAANITE, used in a limited sense, Gen. xii. 6. why said to have been in the land in Abraham's time, Gen. xiii. 7.
—— term explained, Zech. xiv. 21.
CANAANITES, properly so called, who they were, Josh. v. 1. their consternation subservient to the Divine purpose, with respect to the Israelites, ibid.
—— why delivered up by the Lord to the Israelites, Numb. xxi. 3. when the execution was effected, ibid. reflections on the destruction brought on them by the Israelites Deut. ii. 34. true and satisfactory statement of the case, ibid. their notorious depravity, Deut. vii. 24. their extermination agreeable to God's moral justice and goodness, Josh. x. 40. signal proof of His displeasure against sin, Deut. vii. 24. and a benevolent warning to others, ibid. why they were destroyed, Deut. ix. 5. proofs of the alleged reason, ibid. repeatedly warned by God to repent, ibid. Israelites commanded to exterminate them as criminals condemned by God, Deut. xiii. 6; Josh. x. 40. their extermination justified, Deut. xx. 16. its analogy to other judgments of God, ibid. peculiar fitness of the instruments employed for it, ver. 17. their consternation subservient to the Divine purpose, Josh. v. 1. why not wholly driven out by the Israelites, Numb. xxxiii. 55; Josh. xiii. 1. why some of them left in the land, Judg. iii. 2. were content to pay tribute to the Israelites, Judg. i. 27, 28.
—— whether cannibals, Wisd. xii. 5.
CANAANITE cities, why some of them not destroyed, Josh. xi. 13.
CANDACE, the common name of the queens of Ethiopia, Acts viii. 27.
Candle, light of, taken away, what it signifies, Jer. xxv. 10.
Candlesticks, denoting churches, and why, Rev. i. 12.
'Cankered,' spoken of gold, what it signifies, Jam. v. 3. strong poetical figure applied to it, ibid.
CANNEH, where situated, Ezek. xxvii. 23.
Canopy, what it signifies, Judith xiii. 9.
CAPERNAUM, its situation, Is. ix. 2; Matt. iv. 13. peculiarly fitted for our Lord's residence, ibid. the expression of 'coming down' to it illustrated, John iv. 47. its distance from Cana, ibid.
CAPHARSALAMA, where situated, 1 Mac. vii. 31.
CAPHENATHA, why so called, 1 Mac. xii. 37.
CAPHTORIM, who they were, Jer. xlvii. 4. what country called after them, ibid.
Capital, what offences were such by the Jewish law, Lev. xxiv. 19.
—— punishment, when inflicted in Abyssinia, Esther vii. 10. illustrative of the case of Haman, ibid.
—— punishments, four kinds of, under the law, Deut. xxi. 23. treatment of some criminals after execution, ibid. and the reasons of it, ibid.
—— punishments inflicted by the law of Moses, Rom. xiii. 4. not condemned by the New Testament, ibid. apparently admitted by St. Paul, ibid.
Captain of the temple, what is meant by the term, Acts iv. 1.
—— of the guard, who meant, Acts xxviii. 16.
—— of the host of the Lord, difference of opinion respecting the person meant, Josh. v. 14. probably Christ the Son of God, ibid. the design of this appearance, ibid.
Captains, who meant by them, Luke xxii. 4.
—— of the host, who meant by them, 1 Chron. xxv. 1.
Captive in the dungeon. See Maidservant behind the mill.
Captives, barbarous treatment of, Is. iii. 17; Jer. xiii. 22.
Captivity, 'bringing into captivity every thought, &c.' a military term, how applied, 2 Cor. x. 5.
'—— turned,' a proverbial expression, what it denotes, Job xlii. 10.
'—— led captive,' what it signifies, Eph. iv. 8.
—— the day of, probable meaning of the expression, Judg. xviii. 30.
—— Jewish, in Babylon, series of prophecies on it, Is. xl. number carried away in, Jer. lii. 28—30. the length of it signified, Jer. xxix. 5. seventy years of, how computed, Jer. xxv. 11; xxix. 10. when the seventy years begin, Dan. i. 1. restoration from, predicted, Is. i. 26. See Babylonish captivity.
Captivities of Israel and Judah predicted, Lev. xxvi. 24. of the Israelites foretold by Moses, Deut. xxviii. 32. when the Assyrian captivity was to take place, ibid. foretold also by Jeremiah, ibid. minuteness of the prophecy respecting the Roman captivity, ibid.
Caravans made up of different nations, Gen. xxxvii. 25. time of loading, Ezek. xii. 4. how guided on their way by night, Job xxix. 3.
Caravansaries in the East described, Ecclus. xli. 19.
Carcases, what meant by the expression, Ezek. xliii. 7.
CARCHEMISH or CHARCHEMISH, account of it, 2 Chron. xxxv. 20. its situation, Is. x. 9.
Care of the churches, why mentioned among St. Paul's sufferings, 2 Cor. xi. 28.
Careful, 'not careful to answer thee' explained, Dan. iii. 16.
CARMEL, mount, its vicinity to the sea, 1 Kings xviii. 43. why called 'Carmel westward,' Josh. xix. 26. why sometimes used generally to express a fruitful field, 2 Kings xix. 23. probably called 'the forest of the vintage,' Zech. xi. 2.
—— a city so called in the south part of Judah, 1 Sam. xv. 12.
Carnal, what it signifies, 1 Cor. iii. 1. opposed to spiritual, ibid. 'I am carnal, sold unto sin,' by whom this is said, Rom. vii. 14.
—— men, in what sense said to 'allow not that which they do,' Rom. vii. 15.
Carpenter, the meaning of the word so translated, Jer. xxiv. 1; Matt. xiii. 55.
Cart, on which the ark was placed, what sort of carriage, 2 Sam. vi. 3.
Carved works, what meant by it, Prov. vii. 16.
CASIPHIA, conjectures respecting it, Ezra viii. 16.
CASSANDER, his division of the Macedonian empire, Dan. viii. 8.
'Casting all your care upon Him,' what meant by it, 1 Pet. v. 7. what not meant, ibid.
Catechism, why it describes all Christians as members of Christ, Col. ii. 19.
Caterpillers, what intended by them, 2 Chron. vi. 28; Jer. li. 27. why armies compared to them, Jer. li. 14, 27.
Cattle, worshipped by the Egyptians, Exod. ix. 3. appointed by God to be sacrificed, Lev. i. 2. labour of, prohibited on the sabbath, Deut. v. 14. regard shewn to them in Holy Scripture more than by heathen moralists, ibid. refreshment to be allowed them on the sabbath under the Christian dispensation, ibid.
Caught up, explanation of St. Paul's language as to the manner of his being so, 2 Cor. xii. 2. instances of different ways recorded in Scripture, ibid.
Cause for effect frequent in sacred writers, Hos. xiv. 2.
Caves in Judea extremely large, 1 Sam. xxiv. 3.
—— in rocks frequent in Judea, Josh. x. 16.
—— strong holds in, described, Ezek. xxxiii. 27.
'Cease from,' meaning of the phrase, Is. ii. 22.
Cedar, character of the tree, Numb. xxiv. 6.
—— cieled with, explained with reference to modern customs, Jer. xxii. 14.
—— used comprehensively, Ps. cxlviii. 9.
Cedars of Lebanon, description of them and their number, 1 Kings v. 6. few now to be seen there, ibid. the mode of conveying them to Jerusalem, ver. 9. why mentioned with eagles, Ezek. xvii. 3. remarks on the comparisons made of them, Is. ii. 13; xiv. 4; Ezek. xxxi. 3. Cyrus's grant of them to the Jews alluded to, Hag. i. 8.
CEDRON, brook, meaning of the name, John xviii. 1.
Celibacy, deemed a great calamity among the Israelites, Judg. xi. 26. by whom first promoted among Christians, 1 Tim. iv. 3. who succeeded to them in recommending it, ibid.
—— of the clergy, not required in the primitive Christian ministers, Acts xxi. 9. not enjoined in the New Testament, 1 Tim. iii. 2. plain intimations to the contrary, ibid. what the 'forbidding to marry,' a character of, ibid. Protestant doctrine on the subject agreeable to the law of God, ibid.

Cellars of oil, how used by modern Greeks, 1 Chron. xxvii. 28. probably the Jews did the same, ibid.
Celosyria, to what region properly applied, 1 Esdras ii. 17.
Cenchrea, its situation, Acts xviii. 18; Rom. xvi. 1.
Censures of men less to be regarded than the testimony of the conscience, 2 Cor. i. 12.
Centurion, meaning of the title, Matt. viii. 5. condition of him whose servant was healed by our Saviour, Matt. viii. 10. a pattern of humility and faith, ver. 8—10. reason of our Lord's encomium on him, ver. 10.
—— at the cross, reflections on his confession of Christ as the Son of God, Mark xv. 39.
Cerinthus, where he spread his heresy, 1 John ii. 19. and when, ibid.
Cerinthians, doctrine of their heresy, 1 John iv. how opposed by St. John, ibid.
—— and Ebionites alluded to, 1 John ii. 19. what their heresy was, ver. 23.
Cesar, the common name of the Roman emperours, Matt. xxii. 17; Acts xxv. 11. to which of them St. Paul appealed, ibid.
Cesarea, its situation and history, Acts viii. 40. ordinary residence of the governour of Judea, Acts xxiii. 23.
—— Philippi, its situation and modern name, Matt. xvi. 13. why Philippi a part of its name, ibid.
Chaff, meaning straw, how consumed by the Jews, Matt. iii. 12.
'—— of the mountains,' why so called, Is. xvii. 13.
—— used in a figurative sense, Jer. xxiii. 28.
Chain, gold, mark of dignity in Abyssinia, Dan. v. 7. worn on the neck, Ps. lxxiii. 6.
—— made by Ezekiel to foreshew captivity, Ezek. vii. 23.
Chaldees, land of, part of Mesopotamia, Gen. xi. 28.
Chaldeans, their curiosity about astronomy, 2 Kings x. 12. addicted to astrology, Jer. x. 2. used for magicians, Dan. ii. 2. made excursions through Arabian desert, Job i. 17. cruel in temper, vigorous in enterprise, Hab. i. 6.
Chaldee, why a verse in Jeremiah written in it, Jer. x. 11.
Chalybes, what people, Jer. xv. 12.
Chambers round about the temple, their use, 1 Kings vi. 5.
—— large, particular use of, Jer. xxii. 14.
—— of the Levites explained, Jer. xxxv. 4.
Chance, what men do by seeming chance God directs to His own ends, 1 Kings xxii. 34.
—— medley, exempted by the Levitical law from the guilt of murder, Numb. xxxv. 22.
Change of persons abounds in Hebrew poetry, Deut. xxxii. 5. should be carefully observed, ibid. its force and beauty illustrated by the song of Moses, ibid. frequent in Scripture, Deut. xxxiii. 3. much used by St. Paul in his Epistles, General Introd. par. 5. an occasion of obscurity, ibid. instance of, in St. Paul's style, Rom. vii. 7.
—— of number, instance of, 1 Tim. ii. 15. remarked on, ibid.
'—— my voice' explained, Gal. iv. 20.
'Changed the truth of God into a lie' explained, Rom. i. 25.
Chaplets worn at feasts among the Jews, Is. xxviii. 1.
Character of our Saviour, considerations on the different effects of reflecting on the majestick and the lowly parts of it, 1 Pet. ii. 21.
Chariot, two sorts of, in Scripture, Exod. xiv. 7.
—— cities explained, 2 Chron. i. 14.
—— of the cherubims, whence the expression derived, 1 Chron. xxviii. 18. what the word translated 'chariot' signifies generally, ibid.
—— of war, what it represents, Zech. vi. 1.
Chariots of iron, what they were, Deut. xx. 1.
—— for war not in use with the Israelites, Deut. xx. 1.
—— taken from Hadadezer, why destroyed by David, and a few reserved, 2 Sam. viii. 4. thirty and two thousand, what they probably mean, 1 Chron. xix. 7.
Charity, what properly so called, 1 Cor. xiii. 1. distinguished from mere natural affection, ibid. in what it consists, ibid. its comprehensiveness, Rom. xiii. 8—10. does not denote any one kind of duty, 1 Pet. iv. 8. what recommended by it, ibid. characters of it, why enumerated, 1 Cor. xiii. 4, 7. explanation of them, ver. 5—7.
Charity, what it commonly signifies at present, 1 Cor. xiii. 1. different signification of it in the New Testament, ibid.
—— Christ's pathetical recommendation of it, Matt. xxv. 40. its great value in his sight, ibid. an universal and perpetual duty, Rom. xiii. 8. its use and necessity, 1 Cor. xiii. 1, 8. absolutely requisite to the character of a good man, 1 Cor. xiii. 3. striking and expressive manner in which St. Paul conveys the sentiment, ibid. the perfection of a Christian, 1 Pet. iv. 8. an indispensable condition of salvation, 1 Cor. xiii. 13. does not alone constitute the Christian character, Matt. xxv. 35.
—— superiority of it to spiritual gifts, 1 Cor. xiii. 1. proof of its superiority, ver. 8. why greater than faith and hope, ver. 13. why called 'the bond of perfectness,' Col. iii. 14. why called 'the grace of God,' 2 Cor. viii. 1.
—— in what the seeds of it are sown, 1 Cor. xiii. 1. what it tends to make us in God's sight, 1 Thess. iii. 13. considerations on its being said to 'cover the multitude of sins,' 1 Pet. iv. 8.
—— of what it is an evidence, 1 John iii. 14. how the encomium here passed on it is to be understood, ibid. what he who really possesses it will be, ibid. duty of praying for it, 1 Cor. xiii. 13. nothing more to be admired in the primitive Christians, ver. 1. not to be exercised from the hope of a temporal recompence, Luke vi. 35. will receive its return of blessing, ver. 38.
—— duty of it illustrated, Eccles. xi. 3.
—— acts of charity, when acceptable to God, Jam. i. 27. must be united with purity, ibid. suited to the name of Christians, Acts xi. 29. remarks on the strong and affecting exhortation, by which St. Paul recommends them, 2 Cor. ix. 15.
—— alms of, how measured by God, Mark xii. 44.
—— Joseph a pattern of, Matt. i. 19.
—— or almsgiving, the practice of it necessary to a sincere Christian, Luke xix. 8. See Almsgiving.
Charmer of serpents alluded to, Ecclus. xii. 13.
Charming of serpents alluded to, Ps. lviii. 4, 5; Jer. viii. 17.
Chastisements, difference between those of earthly fathers and the Father of spirits, Heb. xii. 10.
Chastity, argument for cultivating it, 1 Cor. vi. 19.
Chatter, to chatter, in birds the same as to peep, Is. xxxviii. 14.
Chebar, a river of Mesopotamia, particulars of it, Ezek. i. 1.
Chemarims, what meant by, Zeph. i. 4.
Chemosh, what idol, Numb. xxi. 29; Judg. xi. 24; Is. xvi. 12. remarks on the ascription of victories to him, Judg. xi. 24.
Cherethims, or Cherethites, who they were, Ezek. xxv. 16; Zeph. ii. 5.
Cherethites and Pelethites, who they probably were, 2 Sam. viii. 18.
Cherith, brook, conjectures on its course, 1 Kings xvii. 3.
Cherub, what it stands for, Ezek. ix. 3. what the word signifies, Ezek. x. 14. why the king of Tyre compared to one, Ezek. xxviii. 14, 16.
Cherubim, remark on their faces, Ezek. xli. 18. why God said to sit between them, Ezek. xliii. 7. winged figures, Exod. xxv. 18. of what shape uncertain, ibid. the glory of the Lord resided between them, ibid. scriptural phrases derived from hence, ibid. those made by Solomon different from those constructed by Moses, 1 Kings vi. 23. what they represented, ibid.
—— of glory, why so called, Heb. ix. 5.
Child, signification of the term, Jer. i. 6.
—— male, ceremonies at announcing its birth, Job iii. 3; Jer. xx. 15.
—— weaned, humble soul why compared to, Ps. cxxxi. 2.
—— of God, what it imports in Scripture phrase, Rom. viii. 17.
—— of hell, what it means, Matt. xxiii. 15.
Childless, why Jeconiah so called, Jer. xxii. 30.
Children carefully instructed by the Israelites, Exod. xiii. 14. particularly in the meaning of the passover, Exod. xii. 26. duty of instructing them much insisted on in Scripture, Deut. vi. 7. instanced in Abraham, ibid. under the Law, ibid. and the Gospel, ibid. how enjoined on the Israelites, ibid. equally applicable to Christians, ibid. education of, diligently practised by the Jews, Deut. xi. 19. a shame to many Christians, ibid. why brought to Christ, Matt. xix. 13. their title to be admitted into covenant with God, 1 Cor. vii. 14. why they should be early made acquainted with the Scriptures, 2 Tim. iii. 15. how not to be provoked to wrath, Eph. vi. 4. how to be brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, ibid.

Children, little, how the Christian is to resemble them, Mark x. 14. why Christ's disciples rebuked those that brought them to him, ver. 13.
—— the policy of princes in endeavouring to strengthen their interests with many children, 2 Sam. v. 13.
—— promise to their fathers fulfilled to them, Jer. xxix. 10.
—— word how used in Scripture, Dan. i. 4. Hymn of the three, not written by Daniel, Dan. iii. 24.
—— your children, what it means, Matt. xii. 27.
—— in what sense used, Gal. iv. 19.
—— for what purpose believers called so by Christ, Heb. ii. 13.
—— why St. John uses the term 'my little children,' 1 John ii. 1.
—— strange, what meant by them, Ps. cxliv. 7.
—— of the bridechamber, what meant, Mark ii. 19.
—— of disobedience, why the heathen world so called, Eph. ii. 2.
—— of the East, what people probably intended, Judg. vi. 3.
—— of grace, how and when we are made so, Tit. iii. 5.
—— of the kingdom, who so called, Matt. viii. 12.
—— of men, how opposed to children of God, Gen. xi. 5.
—— of promise, Christians why so called, Gal. iv. 28.
—— of the Prophets, the phrase explained, Acts iii. 25.
—— of the resurrection, what it means, Luke xx. 36.
—— of wrath, why men so called, Eph. ii. 3. a Hebrew phrase, ibid.
Chilmad, what country intended, Ezek. xxvii. 23.
Chimham, his habitation where, Jer. xli. 17.
Chinese proverb, Ps. cxxvii. 5.
Chinnereth, sea of, its other names, Numb. xxxiv. 2; Josh. xi. 2.
Chisleu, month, what it answers to, Neh. i. 1; Zech. vii. 1.
Chittim, what countries peopled by his descendants, Numb. xxiv. 24. Balaam's prophecy concerning him when fulfilled, ibid.
—— land or isles of, what countries intended by it, Numb. xxiv. 24; Jer. ii. 10; Ezek. xxvii. 6. which of those countries meant in Balaam's prophecy, Numb. xxiv. 24.
—— ships of, explained, Dan. xi. 29.
Chiun, what supposed to be, Amos v. 26.
Choice of a way of life often imprudent, exemplified, Gen. xiii. 13.
'Choose' explained, Deut. xii. 5. the power of choosing life or death given to men, Deut. xxx. 19.
Chorazin, its supposed situation, Matt. xi. 21. the judgments denounced against it, ver. 22.
Chosen, what the verb so rendered signifies, Eph. i. 4. applied to the ancient Israelites, ibid. and to Christians, ibid.
—— generation, &c. titles given to the Jews applied to the Christians, 1 Pet. ii. 9.
—— people of God, to what extent the Jews were so, Deut. viii. 20. consequent admonition to Christians, ibid.
'—— in the Lord,' what it signifies, Rom. xvi. 13.
—— to salvation, in what sense the Thessalonians said to be so, 1 Thess. i. 4. their salvation not certain and infallible, ibid. nor preventive of disorderly behaviour, ibid.
Christ, signification of the name, Matt. i. 1. See Messiah.
—— proved to be more than man, Gal. i. 12. His miraculous conception distinguishes Him above all other Prophets, Matt. i. 18, 25. wherein greater than Abraham and Moses, John viii. 35. compared to Moses, Heb. iii. 1. His superiority to him, why insisted on, ver. 3. instances of His superiority to Moses, ver. 6. marked difference between them why pointed out, ibid. His superiority to the ancient Prophets shewn, John iii. 34. the excellency of His nature shewn by the Baptist's inferiority to Him, Matt. iii. 11. by His having such a distinguished forerunner as John, Matt. iii. 16. His essential superiority over the angels, Heb. i. 4. His exaltation above them in His human nature, ibid. grounds of His superiority alleged, ver. 5.
—— His Divine generation, Mic. v. 2. arguments of His preexistence, 1 Pet. iii. 19; Gal. iv. 4; Col. i. 15. His subsistence before the creation, and eternal existence most clearly proved, John i. 1. proof of His being essentially the Son of God, Gal. iv. 4. one with God the Father, Matt. xi. 10. His unity of essence with the Father, John x. 30. His words understood by the Jews to express this, ver. 31. proof of His divinity, and essential unity with the Father, 1 Cor. ii. 8. proof that He is truly God, one with the Father, Rom. viii. 9. His divinity proved from the Old Testament, Exod. iii. 4. from David's words, Matt. xxii. 45. from His own declaration, 'I am before Abraham,' John viii. 58. from what He declares of Himself, ver. 14. by a double argument, Rom. x. 13. by many clear, illustrious, and most incontestible arguments, Jer. xxiii. 6; John i. 1; Luke i. 76; John xii. 41; Rom. ix. 5. His divinity proved, Acts xx. 28. no sufficient ground of doubt as to the genuineness of this text, ibid. collective proofs of His divinity, Heb. i. 14. that Messiah was the Son of God allowed by the Jews, Matt. iii. 17.
Christ, spoken of by the name of Jehovah, Is. vi. 1, 5; xl. 3; xlv. 23; Jer. xxiii. 6; Hos. xi. 10; Joel ii. 32; Mal. iii. 1; Rom. x. 13. the Lord, Hos. i. 7; Dan. ix. 17. the Lord, equal with the Father, Zech. xiii. 7. the Lord of hosts, Is. viii. 14; 1 Pet. ii. 8. the most high God, Ps. lxxviii. 56. the Lord God, Is. xl. 10, 11; Eph. iv. 8. the First and Last, or True God, Is. xli. 4; xliv. 6. the Mighty God, Is. ix 6. Prince of princes, Dan. viii. 25. King of kings and Lord of lords, 1 Tim. vi. 15; Rev. xix. 16. permits Himself to be called God by St. Thomas, John xx. 28. styled 'the great God and our Saviour,' Tit. ii. 13. arguments from the text, ibid. interpretation of the Ante-Nicene Fathers, ibid. spoken of by the name and with the properties of God, Rom. xiv. 12. an argument for His divinity with the early Christians, ibid. truly God, and the Creator of all things, 1 Cor. viii. 6. two assertions of the primitive Fathers concerning it, ibid. the name of God attributed to Him, 2 Pet. i. 1. remarks on the rendering of the passage, ibid. called the true God, 1 John v. 20. remarks on the passage, ibid. an unanswerable argument for His deity, ibid. if not the true God, He must be an idol, ver. 21. declared to be the Supreme, Almighty and Eternal God, Rev. i. 8. See Son of God.
—— the Creator of all things, both visible and invisible, John i. 3; Col. i. 15; Heb. i. 2. Sovereign and Conservator of all things, Col. i. 15. spake by His Spirit in the Prophets, 1 Pet. i. 11. raises from the dead whom He will, John v. 21. the Giver of eternal life, John i. 4. honour due to Him, John v. 23. speaks of a miraculous power inherent in Himself, Matt. ix. 6. His divinity shewn by His delegation of miraculous power to His Apostles, Matt. x. 1. by His giving man understanding, 1 John v. 21. by His power of forgiving sins, Matt. ix. 3. a power claimed by Himself as God, Mark ii. 10. and from the exercise of His kingly office, Heb. iii. 4. this supereminent dignity often attributed to Him, ibid.
—— His eternity asserted, 1 John ii. 13; Rev. i. 8; xxii. 13. His power to do all things, John xi. 25, 39. all power and wisdom attributed to Him, Rev. v. 12. His truth and faithfulness, Rev. xix. 11. proof of His omniscience, 1 Cor. iv. 5; Rom. ix. 1. not excluded from the attribute of wisdom, Rom. xvi. 27. the Searcher of hearts, John vi. 64. His foreknowledge in pointing out His betrayer, Matt. xxvi. 25. His acquaintance with the hearts of all men, Luke vii. 40; John ii. 24. His foreknowledge of their thoughts, Matt. ix. 4. eternal glory ascribed to Him, Heb. xiii. 21. why a proof of His divinity, ibid. in what sense He is invisible, 1 Tim. vi. 15. triumphant, declares His eternal power and glory, Rev. xxi. 6.
—— the proper object of worship, John xiv. 14; Acts xxii. 16; Joel ii. 32. the God that heareth prayer, 1 John v. 14. the propriety of praying to Him shewn by the example of St. Stephen, Acts vii. 59. an act of religious worship performed to Him by St. Paul, Rom. ix. 1. invocation of Him exemplified, Acts i. 24; 2 Cor. xii. 8; 2 Thess. ii. 16, 17. commonly invoked by St. Paul in conjunction with the Father, Rom. i. 7; 1 Thess. iii. 11. praying to, notoriously practised by the first Christians, 1 Cor. i. 2. the object of worship to angels, and consequently to men, Heb. i. 6. worship paid to Him by the angels an incontrovertible proof of His divinity, ibid. in what character to be confessed and worshipped, Phil. ii. 11. See Adoration.
—— appeared unto Adam, Jer. i. 4. unto Abraham, Gen. xv. 1; xviii. 2. and Jacob, Gen. xxxii. 24. the Angel which redeemed Jacob, Gen. xlviii. 16. appeared to Moses, Exod. iii. 2, 4. conducted the Israelites out of Egypt, Exod. xiii. 21. thought to have appeared to Joshua, as 'the Captain of the host of the Lord,' Josh. v. 14. the signal manner in which He fought for Israel, ibid. appeared to Samuel, 1 Sam. iii. 21. appeared to Jeremiah and Ezekiel, Jer. i. 4. and to Daniel, Dan. x. 5. known to the Patriarchs, Heb. xi. 26. interposed in the protection and conduct of the Israelites, ibid. according to the opinions of the primitive Church, ibid.

CHRIST, the Seed of the woman promised to Adam, Gen. iii. 15. the promise of, to whom it descended from Adam, 1 Chron. i. 24. foreshewn to Abraham, Gen. xii. 3. acknowledged by the Jews for the seed of Abraham, Gal. iii. 16. typified by Melchizedek, Gen. xiv. 18. by Isaac, Gen. xxii. 19. intended by Shiloh, Gen. xlix. 10. performs God's truth to Jacob by calling Jews and Gentiles unto His Church, Mic. vii. 20. our spiritual Moses, Exod. ii. 24. the Prophet like unto Moses, Deut. xviii. 18. why promised by Moses under the title of Prophet, rather than of priest or king, Deut. xviii. 15. the only Prophet foretold by an antecedent Prophet, ver. 18. promise of, accounts for several particulars in the narrative of Moses, Gen. xix. 36. the true Paschal Lamb, John xix. 36, 37. typified by Aaron, Numb. xvi. 47. and by the brasen serpent, Numb. xxi. 8. exactly prefigured by Joshua, Numb. xiii. 16. by David, Ps. xvi. 10; xxii. Introd. and ver. 18; lxix. Introd. and ver. 21; lxxxix. Introd. and by Solomon, Ps. cxxxii. 11. prophecy of Him as the seed of David, whose throne should be established for ever, 2 Sam. vii. 14, 16; Ps. cxxxii. 11. importance and comprehensiveness of Micah's prophecy concerning Him, Mic. v. 5. impossibility of applying Malachi's prophecy to any but Him, Mal. iii. 3. remarkable reservation made on His account, 1 Mac. xiv. 41.

—— His incarnation foretold, Ps. lxvii. Introd. the time of His appearance pointed out by the Scripture prophecies, Gal. iv. 4. His coming expected from the expiration of Daniel's weeks, Dan. ix. 26. His miraculous conception predicted, Jer. xxxi. 22. together with His birth, Is. vii. 14. to come out of Beth-lehem, Mic. v. 2. to preach His Gospel in Galilee, in the tribes of Zebulun and Naphtali, Is. ix. 2. miracles predicted of Him which no Prophet performed, Is. xxxv. 5, 6. was to restore the understanding of prophecy, Is. xxix. 11. to explain prophecy, Is. viii. 16. and to cause the sacrifice to cease, Dan. ix. 27. and to protect the poor, Is. xi. 4. the only visible Shechinah in second temple, Ezek. xliii. 7. His obscure condition signified, Is. xi. 1. His humiliation, poverty, and sorrows, Is. liii. 1, &c. the betraying of Him represented, Zech. xi. 13. His sufferings pathetically described, Ps. xxii. suffered all which, according to the Prophets, Messiah was to suffer, Mark xv. 34. His consolations during His agony foretold, Ps. cx. 7. His resurrection alluded to, Hos. vi. 2. that and His royal state foretold according to the judgment of the Jewish Church, Ps. ii. His victory over Satan predicted, Ps. viii. Introd. that He should destroy death confessed by Jewish writers, Is. xxv. 8. His ascension foretold, Ps. lxviii. 18. and mystically represented, Ps. xlvii. 5. His exaltation prophesied of, Ezek. xxi. 26. His coming, by what distinguished, Zech. ix. 9. His conquests not to be of a secular nature, ver. 10. His kingdom pointed at, Ps. xviii. Introd. prophesied of, Ezek. xvii. 22—24; Dan. ii. 34, 35. received from His Father, Dan. vii. 13. prosperity of it, Is. viii. 9. peaceableness of it, Zech. ix. 10. to be universal, Is. xi. 10. to last for ever, Dan. vii. 14. to have no end, Ps. xlv. 6. glories of it, Ps. lxxii. Introd. to begin at Jerusalem, Ps. cx. 2. progressive establishment of it, Ezek. xlvii. 1. His eternal priesthood foretold, Jer. xxxiii. 17. His times, how described throughout the Prophets, Ezek. xi. 19. in them was to be the completion of prophecy, Is. xiv. 1.

—— what the name properly alludes to, 1 John iv. what meant by denying that Jesus is the Christ, ibid. why called 'the Angel of the Lord,' Exod. iii. 2. why called 'the Word,' 1 Sam. iii. 21; John i. 1. meant by Israel, Is. xlix. 3. why called our Passover, 1 Cor. v. 7. the Holy One of God, Ps. xvi. 10. 'the good Shepherd,' Ezek. xxxiv. 16. called David by the Prophets, Jer. xxx. 9; Ezek. xxxiv. 23, 24. called David the King, Hos. iii. 5. called Prince of the host, Dan. viii. 11. called the Branch, Jer. xxiii. 5; Zech. iii. 8. why called the Head, Hos. i. 11. in what way spoken of as 'the Lion of the tribe of Judah,' Hos. xi. 10. why called the Breaker, Lord and King, Mic. ii. 13. why said to be Peace, or our Peace, Mic. v. 5; Hag. ii. 7; Eph. ii. 14. and the Prince of Peace, Is. ix. 6. described as the great Shepherd, that shall be smitten, Zech. xiii. 7. the desire of all nations, Hag. ii. 7. the glory of second temple, ver. 9. Messenger of the covenant, Mal. iii. 1. why signified under the similitude of a refiner, ver. 2, 3. why called the Sun of Righteousness, Mal. iv. 2. why styled the Son of David and Abraham by St. Matthew, Matt. i. 1. why styled 'the Son of man,' Matt. viii. 20. how 'declared to be the Son of God by the resurrection,' Rom. i. 4. why called 'God's own Son,' Rom. viii. 32. why called by St. Paul the Son of God, Heb. i. 2. fulness and expressiveness of His language, ibid. whence called 'a propitiation,' Rom. iii. 25. in what sense 'made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption, 1 Cor. i. 30. 'the image of God' in two senses, 2 Cor. iv. 4. how He is 'Lord of the dead,' Rom. xiv. 9. how said to be 'the Spirit,' 2 Cor. iii. 17. why called 'the Apostle and High Priest of our profession,' Heb. iii. 1. to whom severally compared, ibid. why called 'the faithful witness,' Rev. i. 5. in what sense He 'hath made us kings and priests,' ibid. why called Alpha and Omega, ver. 8. in what sense 'the root and offspring of David,' Rev. xxii. 16. the bright and morning Star, ibid.

CHRIST, spoken of as very God and very man, Phil. ii. 6, 7. His dignity antecedent both to His humiliation and to His exaltation, ibid. His assumption of the human nature, John i. 14. why necessary, ibid. His divine and human natures, John xiv. 28; xv. 26. union of the two natures in Him, Luke v. 24; John iii. 13; Gal. iv. 4; Jer. xxiii. 6; Hos. i. 7. proved both God and man, Zech. xii. 10. remarks on His being represented by St. John as God and man in one person, 1 John i. 1. remarks on His being called 'the man Christ Jesus,' 1 Tim. ii. 5. the notion of His being a mere man incompatible with His office of Mediator, ibid. and with the assertions of the Scriptures concerning His divine nature, ibid. His human nature glorified and exalted in heaven, Acts xvii. 31. how His exaltation in the human nature implied, Eph. i. 20. when will be the full manifestation of the dominion which as man He acquired, 1 Cor. xv. 24. what will follow thereupon, ibid. in what sense He will 'be subject unto Him who put all things under Him,' ver. 28. three different states of, pointed out by St. Paul, Phil. ii. 11. these three states essential to the Apostle's argument, ibid. their mutual dependence explained at length, ibid. why more particularly necessary to be insisted on, ibid.

—— offices indicated by the name, John i. 41. Himself a Prophet, as well as the subject of prophecy, Matt. xxiv. 1. to us what the high priest was to the Israelites, Heb. iv. 14. effects of His ministry, ibid. wherein compared to an Aaronical priest, Heb. v. 1. testimonies to His discharge of the priestly functions, Heb. ix. 12. anointed to be our great High Priest, Matt. iii. 15. our High Priest, fulfilled all righteousness through the whole of His sacred function, John xvii. 26. His appearance in St. John's vision resembling the Jewish high priest, Rev. i. 13. His body glorified, ver. 14. King over the whole Church, Ezek. xxxvii. 22. that He was to be King owned by the Jews, ibid. proved to be a King, Jer. xxiii. 5. anointed to the office of King, John xviii. 37. when instated in the kingly office of the Messiah, Acts ii. 36. His kingdom received from the Father, Rev. vi. 2. not of this world, ibid. but moral and spiritual, Luke xvii. 20. described as a feast, Rev. iii. 20. His right of dominion over the Church, Col. i. 18. care of His Church, Mic. v. 4. all power given unto Him after His resurrection in His human nature, Matt. xxviii. 18. governs the Church by His providence and Spirit, ibid. promises His presence and protection to the Church, ver. 20. His speedy advent to deliver His Church, Rev. iii. 11. His willingness to receive those who come to Him, ver. 20. His last and richest reward promised to 'him that overcometh,' ver. 21. His coming to take vengeance on His enemies, Rev. xix. 19. what denoted by His 'many crowns,' ver. 12. His kingly office subsequent to the priestly and prophetick, Is. lii. 13. both King and Priest, Zech. vi. 11; Jer. xxx. 21. represented under the kingly and priestly characters combined, Heb. x. 12. distinction between His mediatorial kingdom and His natural kingdom, 1 Cor. xv. 24. the former

to be delivered up at the end of the world, 1 Cor. xv. 24. the latter never to be delivered up, ibid. the only true Mediator and King of His Church, Ps. cx. 1. through Him alone we come unto the Father, John xiv. 6. prayers and thanksgivings to be offered through Him, Rom. i. 8. will hereafter assume the character of a Judge, Mal. iii. 3. will appear as Judge of all men, both quick and dead, John v. 22; Acts x. 42; xvii. 31. the equity of God in so appointing Him, John v. 22. description of His coming to judgment, Josh. vi. 26; Rev. i. 7. and of His sitting on His throne, Rev. xx. 11. the happiness of having Him for our Judge, Acts x. 42. lamentation of all obstinate idolaters and opposers, Rev. i. 7.

CHRIST to be regarded both as our Redeemer and our example, 1 Pet. ii. 21. necessity of regarding Him in both characters, ibid. sort of life which He chose, its usefulness as an example, Heb. ii. 18; Matt. viii. 20. as great in suffering as in acting, Mark xv. 37. His fixed, deep, and constant piety, Luke v. 16. His resignation to the Divine will, Matt. xxvi. 39. His frequent recurrence to prayer, Luke v. 16; vi. 12. in this a pattern to all His disciples, ibid. His forgiveness and charity a lesson to all His disciples, Luke xxiii. 34. an example of holiness and obedience, Is. l. 7. of humility and submission to parents, Luke ii. 51. His example of weeping for the dead, John xi. 35. His zeal for the honour of His heavenly Father, Matt. iv. 10. His zeal in executing His office, and His obedience and perfect conformity to His Father's will, John iv. 34; Matt. xx. 23. His great business on earth was doing good, Acts x. 38. the benevolence of His character, Luke ix. 56. displayed in all his actions and discourses, Matt. ix. 35. His mild conciliating spirit, Matt. xii. 15. an amiable picture of His character, ver. 19, 20. His consummate prudence, Matt. viii. 4. His humility and obedience, ibid. John xiii. 3, 4, 7, 14. His adherence to strict impartial justice, Matt. xx. 23. His prudent caution, John vii. 1, 10. dignity of His conduct before Pilate, Matt. xxvii. 14; John xviii. 37. and before Herod, Luke xxiii. 9. His love for 'His own,' John xiii. 1. His anxiety for His Apostles' safety, John xviii. 8. His kindness to His Apostles, and His humility of spirit, Luke xxii. 24, 27. gentleness of His rebuke to the two ambitious disciples, Mark x. 39. His condescension in removing St. Thomas's doubts, John xx. 27. His dignity and mildness towards him, ver. 29. the gentleness of His expostulation with St. Paul, Acts ix. 4. His affectionate recommendation of His mother to St. John, John xix. 27. His mildness in refuting the evil imputations of the Jews, John viii. 49. His affection for the world, when He says, 'I pray not for the world,' John xvii. 9, 10. His character remote from all austerity, Matt. xi. 19. and His conduct most foreign from that of an impostor or enthusiast, ver. 4. as He was man, was subject to human infirmities, Matt. xxvi. 39. His prayer to be excused from suffering was no disparagement of His obedience to God, or love to man, ibid. advance of His human soul in perfection, Heb. v. 8. shews that He had the same natural feelings as other men, John xii. 27. free from sin, Lev. xvi. 11. His freedom from sin attested, 1 Pet. ii. 22. how verified, ibid. remarkable testimony of Judas Iscariot to His innocence, Matt. xxvii. 4.

—— His admirable wisdom as a moral teacher, Matt. xxii. 40. the peculiar manner of His teaching described, Matt. v. 2. marks at the outset of His ministry the peculiar character of His religion, ver. 3. the superiour matter and manner of His teaching, Matt. vii. 28. the singular authority with which He taught, ver. 29. effect of the Divine power which accompanied His words, John xviii. 6. St. Peter's acknowledgment of the excellency of His doctrine, and His Divine commission, John vi. 68. summary of His teaching, and force and dignity of the language in which conveyed, John xi. 25. designed to instruct men in their duty, John i. 4. communicated to an ignorant and wicked world, ver. 5. the real discoverer of all Divine knowledge, ver. 9. His religion not morose and unsocial, John ii. 2. does not substitute fervour for regular morality, Matt. vii. 21. does not improperly court the attachment of His followers, ibid. refreshment administered by His doctrine and instructions, John vii. 37. agreement of His doctrine with the moral law of Moses, Deut. vi. 13. a stumblingblock to many, Matt. xi. 6. the happiness of those to whom it is not so, ibid.

CHRIST unfitted by His education and condition to convert the world by natural means, Matt. xiii. 54. could be nothing else but the Son of God, ibid. performs miracles by His own Divine power, Luke vii. 14. by a Divine power residing in Him, Mark v. 30. His success to what to be ascribed, John vii. 5. See Miracles.

CHRIST'S first prophecy recorded concerning His approaching death, Matt. xvi. 21. why He reserved the disclosure of it till this time, ibid. prophesies His death and resurrection a second time, Matt. xvii. 23. prophesies a third time respecting His death and resurrection, Matt. xx. 19. prophesies of His resurrection under the figure of a grain of wheat, John xii. 24. foretells His departure from His disciples, John xvi. 16. His promise of seeing them again, ver. 22. the inconceivable blessing of the faithful seeing Him at the last day, ibid.

—— why baptized in Jordan, Lev. viii. 6; Matt. iii. 15. why circumcised, Luke ii. 21. why He directed His disciples to conceal who He was, Matt. xvi. 20. why He enjoined secrecy after performing His miracles, Mark i. 44; v. 43; vii. 36. why in one instance He adopted a different course, Mark v. 19. in what sense accused of being 'beside Himself,' Mark iii. 21. in what sense He could do no mighty work in His own country, Mark vi. 5. why He concealed Himself from the multitude Mark ix. 30. why He disclaims authority as a temporal magistrate, Luke xii. 14; John viii. 11. remarks on His availing Himself of human prudence to avoid danger, Luke xiv. 2; John vii. 10. how He shews that He had power to release Himself, Luke xxii. 51. His condescension in visiting His people, John i. 11. His rejection by the Jews, His more peculiar people, ibid. His receiving into adoption all that believe in Him, ver. 12. what meant by His having 'dwelt among us, full of grace and truth,' ver. 14. remark on His answer to His mother at the marriage in Cana, John ii. 4. how said to have come down from heaven, and to be in heaven, John iii. 13. why He declared Himself so plainly to the Sycharite woman, John iv. 26. reason of the design of the people to make Him a temporal king, John vi. 15. His difficulty in checking the excesses of the multitude, ibid. reflections on His refusing none who come to Him as their Saviour, ver. 37. remark on His brethren's disbelief of Him, John vii. 5. in what sense He overcame the world, John xvi. 33. reflections on His prayer, not for His Apostles only, but for all who should believe in Him, John xvii. 20, 21, 24. the force of His last words, 'It is finished,' John xix. 30. remarks on His declaration of the blessedness of those who have not seen and yet have believed, John xx. 29. the meaning of His holding the seven stars, Rev. i. 1. allusion of His walking amidst the candlesticks, ibid. is said to 'come' on any notable and illustrious manifestation of His providence, Rev. xxii. 7. His promise to come speedily to accomplish His prophecies, ver. 20.

—— His design in coming into the world, Luke xix. 10. His coming, how no hardship to those who lived before it, 1 Cor. xv. 22. for what purpose He came into the world, Tit. ii. 14. practical application of the doctrine, ibid.

—— a common benefit to all the sons of Adam, Gen. iii. 15. His sufferings appointed from the beginning, ibid. benefits of them commenced at that time, ibid. 'made a curse for us,' import of the expression illustrated by a reference to the law, Deut. xxi. 23. the superiority of His death to the sacrifices of the law, Ps. xl. 6. the blessings of His ministry and of the redemption made by Him, Luke iv. 18. His death effected by His own permission, John x. 18. rose from the grave, no more to return to corruption, Acts xiii. 34. the extent of the pardon purchased by His blood, ver. 39. the Lamb slain in Divine purpose from the foundation of the world, Rev. xiii. 8. a Saviour to those who have never known Him, Acts x. 35. the merits of His death not withheld from those who have not had the opportunity of calling on His name, ibid. His death the only price of man's salvation, Rom. ii. 14. question concerning the ways in which the merits of it are applied, ibid. benefit which it obtains for us, Rom. viii. 4. to what end His death and resurrection were designed, Rom. iv. 25. how we are to be benefited by it, ibid. effect of His obedience coextensive with the consequence of Adam's disobedience, Rom. v. 14. grace in Him how it exceeded the condemnation in Adam, ver. 16. His merits coex-tensive with the sin of Adam, Rom. v. 19. language of St. Paul incapable of any other interpretation, ibid. extent of the satisfaction provided by His death, ibid. stated under six different heads with numerous references to Scripture, ibid. what assistances His sufferings have purchased for us, Rom. viii. 38. extent of His death in intention, 1 Cor. viii. 11. texts and arguments to prove that He died for every man, 2 Cor. v. 14. a sin offering, ver. 21. purposes for which He became so, ibid. comment on the declaration, that 'He gave Himself for us,' Tit. ii. 14. His sacrifice voluntary, ibid. how accepted, ibid. His dying in our stead impossible to have been revealed more clearly by any words than it actually is, 1 Tim. ii. 6. reflections on the conduct of those who wrest such passages to any other sense, ibid. See Sacrifice of Christ, Atonement, Passover, Universal Redemption, &c.

Christ crucified, cause of the destruction of the Jewish Church, Deut. xviii. 19. whence a stumblingblock to the Jews, 1 Cor. i. 22. whence foolishness to the Greeks, ibid. in what respects the power of God, and the wisdom of God, ver. 24. mistaken notions of the Jews respecting Him, John vii. 27. His coming as a temporal king once expected by St. Paul, 2 Cor. v. 16. not expected after His conversion, ibid.

—— His resurrection, what it proved, 1 Cor. xv. 20. why called the firstfruits of them that slept, ibid. wherein different from that of others who were raised before, ibid. See Resurrection of Christ.

—— what His ascension into heaven is, Eph. i. 20. what His session at the right hand of God, ibid. when the exercise of His government over the Church militant will cease, ibid. See Ascension.

—— His second coming, by whom predicted, 1 Thess. i. 9, 10. a principal article of the faith of the first Christians, ibid. reflection on it, ibid. its different effect on the righteous and on the wicked, 1 Thess. v. 4. erroneous opinion of the Thessalonians concerning it, 2 Thess. ii. 1. corrected by St. Paul, ibid. why necessary to be corrected, ibid. topick of consolation to the widowed Churches, 2 Pet. i. 16. reason of St. Peter's confidence in it, ibid. mistake of the primitive Christians concerning it, ibid. arguments used to prove it, ver. 19. especially that of God's word by His Prophets, ibid. what effects will be produced by it on unbelievers and impenitent sinners, 2 Pet. iii. 10. majesty of it contrasted with His state of humiliation, ibid. matter of comfort to His friends and followers, ver. 12. reflections on the proper manner of considering it, ibid. and of preparing ourselves for it, ibid.

—— proper belief in Him necessary to a thankful acknowledgment of God's love, 1 John iv. 9. effect of derogating from it, ibid. what to be believed of Him, ibid. doctrines which derogate from His character, how denominated, ver. 3. due acknowledgment of Him criterion of the spirits which are of God, ver. 2. the gratitude we owe to Him for His victory over our spiritual enemy, Josh. xxiii. 9. desertion of Him is desertion of the Father, Heb. iii. 12. same honour due to Him as to the Father, John v. 23. practical reflections on His relation to the Church, Eph. i. 23. and on the sentiments to be entertained of Him, Col. i. 15.

—— the miraculous nature of His history, the excellence of His exalted character, the perfection of His example for our imitation, the nature of His miracles and actions, the general tenour of His conduct, the peculiarity of His method of teaching, testimonies of infidels to His Divine character. See General Reflections at the end of St. John's Gospel.

—— 'to be in Christ,' what it signifies, 2 Cor. v. 17.

—— His body and blood, duty of Christians to commemorate, Gen. iv. 4. See Lord's Supper, Sacrament.

Christs, false, appeared before the destruction of Jerusalem, Matt. xxiv. 24. the very circumstances of their appearance foretold by Christ, ver. 26.

Christian, in St. Paul's time had become the common name of a disciple of Christ, Acts xxvi. 28. accounted a name of reproach, Luke vi. 22. what the name bespoke in early times, 2 Tim. ii. 19. duty which results from it, ibid. See Christians.

—— who is a true one, Rom. ii. 28. the privileges, hopes, &c. of a true one described, Rom. viii. 38. how inestimable St. Paul thought the advantages of being one, Phil. iii. 8. must renounce the world, Ps. xlv. 10. should hate no man, Ps. cix. 23. state of, progressive, Heb. v. 14. dignity of his character as a member of the Church, Heb. xii. 24. his life frequently compared to warfare, Rev. ii. 7. promises to 'him that overcometh,' ibid.

Christian era, errour made when dates first computed from it, Matt. i. 18.

—— covenant, argument for its immutability, Heb. vii. 20. See Covenant.

—— Church, why described by the old names, Heb. xii. 22. as a spiritual building, by what metaphors described, 1 Pet. ii. 4. duties resulting from it, ibid. the grand corruption of it specified, 2 Thess. ii. 3.

—— dispensation, general view of it, 1 John ii. 8. its adaptation to the existing state of man, ibid.

—— faith, its great value, Rom. x. 10. how affected by practice, 1 Tim. i. 19.

—— graces, the necessity of adorning the soul with them, Matt. xxii. 13. their mutual connexion and dependence, 2 Pet. i. 7. the connexion of all virtue with piety, ibid. the want of them implies forgetfulness of the first principles and privileges of Christianity, ver. 9. a powerful motive to abound in them, ver. 11. not a complete list of, made out, Gal. v. 22. and why, ibid. what in particular specified, ibid.

—— liberty when to be abridged, 1 Cor. viii. 13.

—— morality, its great superiority, Matt. v. 28. extends to the inward thoughts, ibid. and ver. 29. its general character, that of meekness and forgiveness, ver. 38. originality of it, ibid. directed to form the general disposition, ver. 39. its modest unobtrusive character, Matt. vi. 1.

—— performances will be required according to our means and opportunities, Luke xii. 47, 48.

—— professors, different degrees of, cautions given to them explained, 1 John ii. 12—14.

—— religion, honour and prerogative of it, 2 Tim. ii. 19. what its professors bind themselves to, ibid. belief of it in what one article summarily contained, 1 John v. 5. what implied by it, ibid. effect on those whose minds are possessed with this belief, ibid.

—— temper, its excellence and happy effects, James iii. 17.

—— virtue conducive to true self-enjoyment, 1 Tim. iv. 8. capable of going through difficulties, ibid.

—— worship represented by temple service, Ezek. xx. 40.

—— yoke, the lightness of it, Matt. xi. 29.

Christians, by what titles styled in the New Testament, particularly in St. Paul's Epistles, Rom. i. 7; 1 Cor. i. 2. how characterized in the New Testament, 1 Cor. i. 2. how distinguished from infidels, ibid.

—— when the disciples of Christ first so called, Acts xi. 26. why before called Nazarenes, ibid. importance of the name, ibid.

—— primitive, their community of goods no precedent for subsequent times, Acts ii. 44. probably necessary at that period, ibid. the purity of their lives and manners, ver. 47. exhorted to watch for the coming of Christ to vengeance, Luke xxi. 34, 35. the promise of deliverance to them only conditional, ibid. for what most to be admired, 1 Cor. xiii. 1. how calumniated by their enemies, 1 Pet. ii. 12. consequent advice to them, ibid. how persecuted by the Jews, Gal. iv. 29. their persecution by the Roman power foretold, Dan. xi. 32, 33. a promise of deliverance made good to them, Mal. iv. 2. none were known to perish in the destruction of Jerusalem, Matt. xxiv. 13. fled to Pella on the approach of the Roman armies, ver. 20. earliest period of any edict against them, Acts xxviii. 31.

—— without deliberate obstinacy cannot be ignorant of their duty, Mic. vi. 8.

—— true and sincere, their disposition, Matt. xiii. 23. topicks of support and consolation to them, Luke xxiii. 46. the hope and the reward of those who follow their Saviour's steps, John xiv. 2. must verify their profession by producing fruits answerable to it, John xv. 5, 6, 8. in what St. Paul represents their privilege to consist, Rom. viii. 11. why they will not be saved unless they cease to walk after the flesh, ver. 7. not exempted by the Gospel from subjection to their legal governours, Rom. xiii. 1. nor precluded by it from their legal rights, ibid. how they should act towards the Jews, Rom. xi. 36. utter disagreement between them and heathens, 2 Cor. vi. 14, 16. consequent admonition as to their forming connexions, ibid. encouraged to benevolence by the example of Christ, 2 Cor. viii. 9. how they make proof of their belonging to Christ, Gal. v. 24. influenced by two opposing principles, ver. 17. the truest, most entitled to our liberality, Gal. vi. 10. in what relation they stand to each other, Philem. ver. 16. how taught to regard their condition in this world, Heb. xi. 14. of what society to consider themselves as members, ibid. what should be their inclinations and conduct accordingly, ibid. importance of their common interest, Heb. xiii. 3. what effects it should produce, ibid. the best, what they stand in need of, 2 Pet. iii. 1. by what means they may derive comfort from the prospect of Christ's coming to judgment, 2 Pet. iii. 12. sincere, compared to Shadrach, &c. Dan. iii. 30. true, exhortations and promises to them, Rev. xiv. their song before the throne, ver. 1—3. why represented as virgins, ver. 4. without fault, ver. 5. those who are merely nominal, Matt. xiii. 22. professed but not real, called upon to consider their situation, Rev. iii. 15. disobedient, more criminal than ancient Jews, Ezek. xx. 49. sinful, the worst of sinners, Rom. ii. 9.

Christians of the Romish Church did not take warning from the judgments inflicted, Rev. ix. 20, 21.

Christianity, its sudden increase described, Is. lx. 22. its first establishment to be attended with opposition and persecution, Matt. x. 34, 35. its miraculous propagation with visible means wholly disproportionate and in opposition to the reigning prejudices and passions, a most convincing proof of its Divine origin, Reflections at the end of the Acts—its propagation under many peculiar circumstances a proof of its Divine origin, Acts v. 38. its rejection by the Jews no valid objection to its truth, Mark xv. 32. had been expressly foretold, ibid. one of the means by which it was propagated, 1 Cor. iv. 13. supported by the impartiality of its historians, Gal. ii. 11. proved to be not an imposture, ibid. peculiar presumption in favour of it, 1 Thess. v. 21. the fair treatment to which it is entitled, ibid.

—— genuine, its triumph over superstition and idolatry, and the powers of antichrist, Rev. xix. 19.

—— our duty greatly exalted by it, Matt. v. 21. allows the use, not the abuse, of good things, Matt. vi. 33. its spirit mild and peaceable, Luke ix. 55. benevolence its main characteristick, John xiii. 34. its opposition to all idolatrous customs, Acts xvi. 21. does not require us to root out natural affections, but to regulate them, Acts xxi. 13. what, according to St. Paul, it consists in, Rom. xiv. 17. what the end of it, 1 Cor. v. 7. exhortation founded upon it, ibid. profession of it incompatible with a state of sin, 1 Cor. vi. 11. faulty professors of it, wherein they resemble the Israelites of old, 1 Cor. x. 11. advantages of it briefly stated, Eph. i. 7. inability of the writers of the New Testament fully to express them, ibid. their proper effect on all good Christians, ibid. its precepts cannot be seriously thought on without reflecting honour on the religion, Phil. iv. 8. its general scope and aim, Tit. ii. 11, 12. no relaxation of the obligations of the law to godliness, ibid. what would be its effect if perfectly obeyed, Tit. ii. 12. its actual effect, ibid. blessings of it, in what two views they may be considered, Heb. ix. 16. its effects on civil society, 1 Pet. ii. 18. professors of it, what their great duty, 1 John ii. 6. what set forth by St. John as its cardinal doctrine, 1 John iv.

Chronicles, books of, attributed to Ezra as their author, Introd. to 1 Chron. their general contents, the view with which they appear to have been written, and their authority, ibid. they supply many things omitted in the other historical books, 1 Chron. xxi. 20; Introd. to 2 Chron. the author sometimes merely cites from the book of Kings, 2 Chron. v. 9.

—— first book of, why it begins from the creation, 1 Chron. i. 1. why Sheth only is mentioned of the sons of Adam, ibid.

—— second book of, its contents, Introd. to 2 Chron. it furnishes many particulars omitted in the other historical books, ibid. why its two last verses the same as those which begin the book of Ezra, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 22. expressions in it compared with a passage of St. Paul, Gal. iv. 12.

—— author of the books of, collected many things from other writers, 2 Chron. ix. 29.

Chronicles of the kings of Israel, what intended, 1 Kings xiv. 19.

Chronology of the kings of Israel and Judah, how difficulties in it may be generally solved, 2 Kings xv. 30.

Chub, where situated, Ezek. xxx. 5.

Church, what the Scripture word originally signifies, Heb. xii. 23. its signification in the Bible, ibid. what the Christian is to learn from the description of it, ver. 24. spiritual unity of it represented, Ps. cxxxiii. 3. ever under God's superintendence, Esth. viii. 16. a concern for the welfare of, our duty, Ps. cxxii. 6. fidelity to, its connexion with fidelity to the king, Numb. xvi. 12.

—— of Christ prefigured, Ps. xlv. 9, 14. how to be considered, ver. 17. God's love to it, Ps. xlviii. 13. suffers first from treachery of pretended friends, Ps. lv. 12. exposed to persecution, Ps. lxxiv. 20. will be punished if she sin, Ps. lxxx. 17. our duty to pray for, Ps. lxxxvii. 7. prophecy of, Is. i. 26; ii. 4. protected, Is. iv. 5. called a vineyard, Is. v. 1. application to, ver. 30. its prosperity foretold, Is. xi. 10. sudden increase of it foretold, Is. lxvi. 7. meant by Jerusalem, Jer. iii. 16. no distinction in it of Jew and Gentile foreshewn, Ezek. xlvii. 14. its state under the heathen Roman empire, described under the six first seals, Rev. vi. 1. to be tyrannized over for 42 months, Rev. xi. 2. this the same period as 1260 days, ibid. represented as bearing children to Christ, Rev. xii. 1, 2. the meaning of the symbols mentioned variously conjectured, ibid. her man child explained, ver. 5. consolations and promises to it, Rev. xiii. 10. styled the bride of Christ, Rev. xix. 7. her pure and simple attire, ver. 8. represented as a bride, Rev. xxi. 9. its pure and primitive worship represented, Rev. v. 13. scattered abroad, Acts viii. 1. the effect of this dispersion, ibid. first divisions in it, Acts xv. 1. strong collateral evidence of the truth of the Gospel from the relation of them, ver. 2.

—— God's care of it and dispensations towards it, John xv. 1, 2. Christ's union with the members of it, ver. 4. God to be obeyed in it, and not man, Matt. xxiii. 8—10. St. Paul's comparison of it to the natural body illustrated, 1 Cor. xii. 14, &c. practical reflections on it, ver. 25. all the members of it make one body, 1 Cor. xii. 12. in what particulars the body of Christ, Eph. i. 23. mixture of good and bad persons in it illustrated, 2 Tim. ii. 20. practical conclusion from it, ibid. a refuge for the penitent, Gen. xix. 22. promise of stability to it, Matt. xvi. 18. made to the Church universal, not to particular Churches, ibid. in what sense keys of it given to St. Peter, ver. 19. no supremacy in it given to him, ver. 18, 19. why said to be 'the fulness of Him that filleth all in all,' Eph. i. 23.

—— established, we are bound to join it when we lawfully can, Rom. xvi. 17.

—— primitive, to what kinds of afflictions subject, Jam. i. 2.

—— redeemed, the blessings obtained for it by Christ's blood, Rev. vii. 14. its future happiness figuratively described, ver. 15.

—— of Jerusalem, had the three orders of ministers, Acts xxi. 18. deference paid to it in Apostles' times, Ezek. xvi. 61.

—— of Rome, assumes unjustly the title of mother of all churches, Ezek. xvi. 61. remark on her false estimate of St. Peter's rank, 1 Pet. v. 1. instance of superstition with respect to places of worship, Numb. xxiii. 27. her departure from the true Christian worship, 2 Thess. ii. 3. condemned for worshipping angels, saints, images, bones, &c. Col. ii. 18. her unscriptural conduct in worshipping false mediators, and departing from Jesus Christ our only Advocate, 1 Tim. ii. 5. her idolatry why to be accounted an apostasy, 1 Tim. iv. 1. remarks on the form of it, ibid. by what means and persons propagated, ver. 2. her impious and absurd law with respect to the language of publick worship, 1 Cor. xiv. 13. censure on her requiring a blind and implicit faith of her members, Acts xvii. 11. censured for saying many things which cannot be proved from Scripture, Col. ii. 18. remark on her preference of tradition before the written word, Phil. iii. 1. her traditions of no value, 2 Thess. ii. 15. her errour with respect to marriage remarked, 1 Cor. vii. 2. her opinions with respect to the celibacy of the clergy, 1 Tim. iv. 3. stricture on her doctrine about the celibacy of the clergy, 1 Tim. iii. 2. remarks on her commanding to abstain from meats, 1 Tim. iv. 3. her masses unscriptural, absurd, and impious, Heb. ix. 27. unscriptural and absurd in her doctrine of the mass, Heb. x. 18. her idle ceremony in anointing the sick and the dead, Jam. v. 14. no foundation for her sacrament of extreme unction, ver. 15. no foundation for her pretended sacrament of penance, ver. 16. nor authority for auricular confession, ibid. her corruptions how supported, 2 Thess. ii. 9. impropriety of her dividing the tenth Commandment into two, Deut. v. 21. her unscriptural practice of denying the cup to the laity, Matt. xxvi. 27. her unnatural support of the doctrine of transubstantiation, ver. 26. unscriptural character and instability of her doctrine of supererogation, Luke xvii. 10.

'Church that is in their house,' what the phrase signifies, Rom. xvi. 5; 1 Cor. xvi. 19.
—— in thy house' explained, Philem. ver. 2. See ROME, CORINTH, GALATIA, &c.
Churches, their rest from persecution in the time of Caligula, Acts ix. 31.
—— seven, of Asia, epistles to them, why they are particularly addressed, Rev. ii. 1. their present state a warning to all Christian Churches, Rev. iii. 22.
—— Christian, all inherit the exhortations given to the seven churches, Rev. i. 4.
Circumcision, a sign of God's covenant with His people, Gen. xvii. 10. its advantages, ibid. why fitly chosen, ibid. one great end of it, ibid. borrowed by the Egyptians, ibid. why practised by the Ishmaelites at a later age than by the Jews, ver. 12. a type of baptism, ibid. what instrument used for it, Exod. iv. 25. what it betokens, Lev. xxvi. 41. phraseology founded upon it, ibid. what it was intended to teach, Deut. x. 16. why the rite was omitted by the Israelites in their wandering state, Josh. v. 2. its moral import, Jer. iv. 4. what uses it had to Abraham, Rom. iv. 11. sacrament of initiation into the true Church and faith in former times, Rom. ii. 28. spiritual grace figured by it, ibid. to what the Jews obliged themselves by it, Gal. v. 3. why the Jews then named their children, Luke i. 59. why our Lord was circumcised, Luke ii. 21. necessity of limiting an assertion concerning it, Gal. v. 2.
—— why put for being a Jew, Rom. ii. 25.
—— of the heart, what intended by it, Deut. xxx. 6. what necessary to effect it, ibid.
'—— made without hands,' what it signifies, Col. ii. 11.
'—— of Christ,' what it signifies, Col. ii. 11.
—— 'they that were of the circumcision' explained, Acts xi. 2.
Circumstances to be diligently observed, Eccles. v. 15.
'City which hath foundations,' meaning of the phrase, Heb. xi. 10. what opposed to, ibid.
—— set on a hill, conjecture respecting a particular city alluded to, Matt. v. 14.
Cities, why used in the plural for Jerusalem, Is. lxiv. 10. what sort of, intended, Mic. v. 14. kingdoms influenced by the spirit of their principal cities, Mic. i. 5.
—— of the Amorites, in what sense said to be built by the Gadites, Numb. xxxii. 34. probable reason of the change of some of their names, ver. 38.
—— near Arabia, remark on the height of their walls, Deut. i. 28.
—— which are called virgins, Jer. xiv. 17.
—— of refuge, whom they protected, Numb. xxxv. 12. no protection against justice, ibid. what protection they afforded to the manslayer, Deut. iv. 42. his residence therein a sort of punishment, ibid. law concerning the roads leading to them, Deut. xix. 2. wisdom of Moses in establishing them attested by Montesquieu, Deut. xix. 4. an allusion to them, Heb. vi. 18.
Civil authority, submission to it admirably enforced by Christ, Matt. xxii. 21. its perfect consistency with pious homage to God, ibid. His doctrine in this particular widely different from that of enthusiasts, ibid. See Governours.
—— conditions of men, alterations in them not intended by Christianity, Introd. to Philem.
—— obligations, not relaxed by Christianity, 1 Cor. vii. 20, 23.
Clap the hands, sign of malignant joy, Job xxvii. 23.
CLAUDA island, its name differently given, Acts xxvii. 16.
CLAUDIUS, (Roman emperour,) his treatment of the Jews, how noticed by Suetonius and Dio, Acts xviii. 2.
Clay used for sealing in the East, Job xxxviii. 14. for gold and silver, Hab. ii. 6.
Cleanness of hands used figuratively, 1 Tim. ii. 8.
CLEMENT, account of him in the ancient Christian writers, Phil. iv. 3.
Climate, Eastern, excessive degrees of heat and cold, Gen. xxxi. 40.
'Cloke of covetousness,' what the phrase denotes, 1 Thess. ii. 5. why St. Paul appeals to God for his being free from covetousness, ibid.
'—— of maliciousness' explained, 1 Pet. ii. 16. example of the Jews using their liberty for one, ibid.
Clothes, rending of, a sign of grief, Gen. xxxvii. 29. when first mentioned in Scripture, ibid.
—— Israelites slept in their, Exod. xxii. 27. as the Arabs at present, ibid.
Clothing, metaphor of, much used in Scripture, Job xxix. 14.
Cloud of glory filling the temple, what it testified, 1 Kings viii. 10.
—— pillar of, alluded to, Is. iv. 5.
—— thick, sign of God's presence, Is. vi. 4.
Clouds of dust and sand, description of their overwhelming power in the East, Deut. xxviii. 24.
—— observations on them, Job xxxvii. 16; xxxviii. 37. mark season of misery, persecution, and trouble, Ezek. xxxiv. 12. carried with a tempest, forcibly used as a comparison, 2 Pet. ii. 17. to come in the clouds, of what a known symbol, Rev. x. 1.
Clouted, what the word means, Josh. ix. 5.
—— shoes as old as the days of Moses, Deut. xxxiii. 25. anciently part of a soldier's dress in this country, ibid. what now so called, ibid.
CNIDUS, its situation, Acts xxvii. 7.
Coal, live, explained, Is. vi. 6.
Coals of fire, meaning explained, Ps. xviii. 12; Prov. xxv. 22; Ezek. x. 2.
Coasts, meaning borders or boundaries, Matt. ii. 16. for 'parts,' or 'inland countries,' Matt. xv. 21.
Coat, how distinguished from cloke, Matt. v. 40.
—— of many colours, what it signifies, Gen. xxxvii. 3.
Cockatrice' eggs explained, Is. lix. 5.
Cockcrowing, two periods of it how reckoned by the Jews, Matt. xxvi. 34.
Coffins in Egypt of different materials, Gen. l. 26. of long duration, ibid. not used universally, ibid. why Joseph's body said to have been put in one, ibid.
Coin, the inscribing the prince's name on it, what it denoted, Matt. xxii. 21.
Coincidence, of sacred and profane history, Is. xiii. 17. between the teaching of Christ on earth and the revelation made to St. Paul, its importance, Gal. i. 20.
Cold in Judea, degree of, at the time of the passover, John xviii. 18.
Collect for Quinquagesima Sunday, its excellence, 1 Cor. xiii. 13.
—— for the second Sunday after Easter, an expression in it commended, 1 Pet. ii. 21.
—— for the fifth Sunday after Trinity, true frame of mind for offering up the prayer in it, 1 Pet. iii. 15.
College, doubts about the word so translated, 2 Kings xxii. 14.
COLOSSE, where situated, Introd. to Coloss. question whether St. Paul was ever there, ibid. church of, probably founded by him, ibid.
COLOSSIANS, Epistle to, occasion of it, Introd. when and where written, ibid. by whom sent, ibid. its contents, ibid.
—— in what sense commended for their faith, Col. i. 4.
Combat, single, images borrowed from, Job xv. 26.
—— Jews sung God's praises on advancing to, Ps. cxlix. 6.
'Come short of the glory of God' explained, Rom. iii. 23. questions on the latter part of the phrase, ibid.
Comforts proportioned by God to our afflictions, 2 Cor. iv. 16.
Comforted, how God said to be so when He executes justice, Ezek. v. 13.
Coming of Christ, to what it refers, Mark xiii. 4.
'—— of the Lord,' how it may be understood, Jam. v. 8.
—— of the Son of man, the meaning of the expression, Matt. x. 23.
Command of God used for permission, Is. vi. 10.
—— put for any part of God's covenant, Lam. ii. 17.

Commands of God to Ezekiel, the nature of them considered, Ezek. iv. 1.
Commandment, habitual breach of any one, its sinfulness and danger, Jam. ii. 11.
—— remark on its being put for Jeroboam's command, Hos. v. 11.
Commandments, part of them mentioned generally for the whole, Matt. xix. 18. all to be kept, Ps. cxix. 6.
—— Ten, regularly expounded, Exod. xx. miscellaneous observations thereon, Deut. iv. of universal obligation, Exod. xx. 1. distinguished from the rest of God's ordinances by Moses, ibid. confirmed by our Saviour, ibid. enjoined on Christians by Christ and His Apostles, Exod. xx. 1. delivered in few words, ibid. rules for comprehending their full extent, ibid. reasons for these rules, ibid. general preface to them, ver. 2. motives on which God required the obedience of the Jews, ibid. applicable to Christians, ibid. why repeated in Deuteronomy with some change of expression, Deut. v. 5.
—— four first explained, the four principles of religion, Deut. v. 7.
—— first, unity of God proved by reason and Scripture, Exod. xx. 3. what sins this commandment forbids, ibid. what duties it enjoins, ibid. why it forbids the worship of other gods, ibid.
—— second, justification of the punishment denounced in it, Deut. v. 9. reconciled with a passage in Ezekiel, ibid. single subject to which it relates, ibid. what forbidden, Exod. xx. 4. what enjoined, ibid. framed with what particular view, ibid. meaning of the denunciation contained in it, ver. 5.
—— third, what sins forbidden in it, Exod. xx. 7. what duties enjoined, ibid. remarks on the declaration contained in it, ibid.
—— fourth, what duties enjoined in it, Exod. xx. 8. what undertakings forbidden, ibid. obligatory on Christians as upon the Jews, ver. 11. though not exactly after the same manner, ibid. See Sabbath.
—— six last, remarks on the order observed in the delivery of them, Deut. v. 21. how they appear to be fulfilled by the love of our neighbour, ibid.
—— fifth, enjoins the mutual duties of superiours and inferiours, Exod. xx. 12. what it requires, ibid. what it forbids, ibid. enjoins also conjugal duties, ibid. the promise contained in it explained, ibid.
—— remarks on the reward promised to obedience, Deut. v. 16. connexion between the duty and the reward, ibid. whether fulfilment of the promise to be expected under the Gospel, ibid. why called the first commandment with promise, Eph. vi. 2. the promise apparently not cancelled by the promises of the Gospel, ver. 3. a transgression of it noticed, 1 Tim. v. 3.
—— sixth, what sins forbidden, Exod. xx. 13. what practices enjoined, ibid. the particular expression of it explained, ibid.
—— seventh, what forbidden by it, Exod. xx. 14. what enjoined, ibid.
—— eighth, what sins forbidden in it, Exod. xx. 15. what duties enjoined, ibid.
—— ninth, connected with the four preceding, Exod. xx. 16. for what purposes intended, ibid. what sins forbidden by it, ibid. what duties enjoined, ibid.
—— tenth, what forbidden in it, Exod. xx. 17. what duties enjoined, ibid. great importance of this commandment, ibid. stamps the seal of Divinity on the Mosaical code, ibid. not to be found in heathen ordinances, ibid. commented on by Christ, ibid.
—— divided into two by the church of Rome, Deut. v. 21. why defended by them, ibid. impropriety of so dividing it, ibid.
—— of God, familiar to the Jews, Deut. xxx. 11. a ground of their condemnation, ibid. application to Christians, ibid.
—— of the second table, short summaries of moral duties, Exod. xx. 13.
—— of Christ, keeping of, necessary to our profiting by His passion, Gal. vi. 16.
'Commend the righteousness of God' explained, Rom. iii. 5.
Commination Service vindicated from objection, Deut. xxvii. 26. mistake about it corrected, ibid. intention of the Church in prescribing the use of it, ibid. benefit of the service, ibid.
Comings in and goings out' explained, Ezek. xliv. 5.
Common food, what it means, Acts x. 14.
'—— death of all men' explained, Numb. xvi. 29.
—— when fruit of young trees becomes, Jer. xxxi. 5.
'Commune with our hearts' explained, Ps. iv. 7.
'Communication of thy faith may become acceptable' explained, Philem. ver. 6.
Communion of the Church, how we partake of it, 1 Cor. xii. 13.
—— of the Holy Ghost, what it means, 2 Cor. xiii. 14.
—— with Christ, in what manner testified, Heb. xiii. 10.
—— Service, prayers in it quoted; 1 Pet. ii. 24. doctrine of universal redemption asserted in it, 1 John ii. 2.
Community of goods, no advantage taken of it by the Apostles for their private gain, Acts iv. 35. did not exist amongst the early Christians in general, 1 Tim. vi. 18.
Companion, how used, Prov. xxviii. 24.
Companions, the choice of good ones, and the avoiding of bad ones, a Christian duty, 1 Cor. v. 11.
Company, ill, to be avoided, Prov. i. 10.
—— of persons going to the Jewish festivals, their number, Luke ii. 44. and manner of travelling, ibid.
'Comparing spiritual things with spiritual' explained, 1 Cor. ii. 13.
Comparisons, some dignified by reference to temple service, Jer. i. 13. expressed among the Jews by negatives, Hos. vi. 6.
Compel, who said in Scripture to do so, Gal. ii. 14.
—— to go a mile, illustrated by Eastern custom, Matt. v. 41.
Compelling to come in to the Gospel, in what sense to be understood, Luke xiv. 23.
Compendium of morality, what the best, 1 John ii. 6.
Conceit reprobated, Ecclus. x. 26.
Conception, miraculous, of Christ, has a necessary connexion with the other articles of our faith, Luke i. 35. remarks on the testimony afforded us to the truth of this important doctrine, ver. 80. distinguishes Christ above all other Prophets, Matt. i. 18. implies a high purpose of His coming, ver. 25. such as might be expected when the Son of God appeared in the flesh, ver. 25.
—— the miraculous, foretold, Jer. xxxi. 22.
Concision, who so called, Phil. iii. 2. how distinguished from the circumcision, ver. 3.
Concord a Christian duty, Rom. xii. 16. how to be attained, Jam. iv. 1.
Concubine, meaning a concubine wife, explained, Judg. xix. 1.
Concubines accounted lawful wives, Gen. xvi. 3.
Condemnation, reflections on that of Christ, Matt. xxvii. 26.
Condition, sincere endeavours after holiness a necessary condition of happiness, Rom. v. 21.
—— of the covenant, all Christians enabled to perform it, 1 Cor. x. 13. See Covenant.
—— the goodness of, what its only sure evidence, Gal. vi. 15.
—— uncertainty of our present, enforced, Is. xxxviii. 20.
Conduit of the upper pool explained, 2 Kings xviii. 17.
Coney, probable meaning of the word, Lev. xi. 5.
Confess Christ, meaning of the phrase, Luke xii. 8.
—— the Lord Jesus, what meant by it, Rom. x. 9.
Confession of faith in the Gospel necessary to happiness, Rom. x. 10. what the duty requires, ibid.
—— of sins, difference between that prescribed by the Romish church, and that which the Church of England encourages her members to use, Jam. v. 16.
Confidence of St. Paul with respect to the Philippians, what the ground of it, Phil. i. 6.
Confirm, in what sense Christ would confirm the Corinthians unto the end, 1 Cor. i. 8.
Confirmation, the rite of, after baptism, the propriety and usefulness of it, Acts viii. 17. derived from the practice of the Apostles, ibid. administered only by the Apostles, ibid. why performed by the bishop, ibid.
Conformity with the world, what is not and what is meant by it, Rom. xii. 2. St. Paul's exhortation about it never unnecessary, ibid.
Confusion, what it imports, 1 Cor. xiv. 33. why opposed to peace, ibid. what it is produced by, ibid.
Congregation, why assembled at the consecration of Aaron, Lev. viii. 3.
—— mount of, explained, Is. xiv. 13.

Congregations that have withdrawn from a Church lawfully established not to be joined with, Rom. xvi. 17.
Coniah, another name for Jeconiah, Jer. xxii. 24.
Conies, the Ashkoko described, Prov. xxx. 26. See Coney.
Conjugal infidelity reproved, Mal. ii. 14.
Conquerors in the East, practice with respect to their enemies, Ps. cx. 1.
Conscience, the force of, Jer. xx. 9. the force of an evil one displayed in Ahab, 1 Kings xxi. 20. exemplified in Herod, Matt. xiv. 2. in Felix, Acts xxiv. 25. nothing more weak than a guilty one, Dan. v. 6. a good one the only true principle of loyalty, Dan. vi. 22. the testimony of, more to be regarded than the censures of men, 2 Cor. i. 12. inferiour to the judgment of God, ibid. its value, 1 John iii. 19. its knowledge inferiour to that of God, ver. 20. not the only criterion of guiltlessness, 1 Tim. i. 13.
Consecrated things, sin of taking them back, Prov. xx. 25.
Consecration of Aaron, ceremony of, what it signified, Lev. viii. 23.
Consequences even of good actions to be looked forward to, Rom. xiv. 16.
Consideration the proper act of reasonable creatures, Is. xlvi. 8.
Constancy in religious duties necessary, Deut. vi. 9.
Constantine, the first Roman emperour who openly professed Christianity, Dan. xi. 34, 35. the establishment of Christianity begun by him, denoted by the sixth seal, Rev. vi. 12. how the mighty change represented, ibid. powers and subjects of pagan idolatry overcome by Christian religion, ver. 15. signified by the man-child, Rev. xii. 5. Christians in his time applied this prophecy to his advancement to the imperial throne, ver. 7.
Constellations, observation on names of, Job ix. 9.
Constrain, meaning of it, 2 Kings iv. 8.
Construction, alternate, instances of, Is. li. 19.
Consumption, what disease probably intended, Deut. xxviii. 22.
Contempt of God, how shewn, Hag. i. 4.
—— of our brethren contempt of God, Gen. ix. 6.
'Contentious and obey not the truth' explained, Rom. ii. 8.
Contentment exemplified in Abram, Gen. xiv. 23. exemplified in Jacob, Gen. xxviii. 20. in St. Paul, Phil. iv. 11. the duty of a Christian, ibid. considerations to enforce it, ibid. when the virtue is best tried, ibid. some particulars of it enumerated, 1 Tim. vi. 6. not separable from true piety, ibid. the great blessing of life, Eccles. vi. 12.
Contracts solemnly attested, Gen. xxix. 22.
'Contradiction of sinners' explained, Heb. xii. 3.
Contrary, every thing has its contrary, Ecclus. xlii. 24.
Contrition, true and perfect, necessary to deliver from punishment of sins, Job xxxiii. 24.
Convenient, 'things which are not convenient' explained, Rom. i. 28. what meant by 'not convenient' as applied to indecent discourse, Eph. v. 4.
Conversation, friendly, by it faculties improved, Prov. xxvii. 17.
—— what it signifies, 1 Tim. iv. 12.
—— an upright, more valued than outward performances, Zech. viii. 19.
Conversion, the season of, the day of Christ's power, Ps. cx. 3. to whom ascribed, Jer. xxxi. 18. true and false distinguished, Hos. vii. 16.
—— general, of the Jews foretold, Ezek. xxxiv. 23. will be noticed by the heathens, Ezek. xxxvii. 28. See Restoration of the Jews.
Converting of sinners, in what sense it 'shall hide a multitude of sins,' James v. 20. remarks on its acceptableness in the sight of God, ibid. and its advantage to him who does it, ibid.
Converts too apt to be puffed up, Rom. xii. 6. corrected by St. Paul, ibid. under what figure represented, 2 Cor. xi. 2.
—— Christian, a family of, how denoted, 1 Cor. xvi. 19. how, when they did not form the whole family, ibid.
—— to the Gospel, how distinguished from other Gentiles, Rom. vi. 13.
Conveyance of property, mode of Eastern, Jer. xxxii. 11.
Cooperation with God in order to our salvation commanded, Eph. ii. 8. its consistency with the doctrine of salvation by grace, ibid.
—— of men with God's grace, necessity of it implied, Jam. iv. 8.
Cooperation of man with the Spirit of God, attested by several passages of Scripture, 1 Pet. i. 22. illustrated by the union of the two natures in Christ, ibid. joint effect of Divine and human agency differently ascribed, ibid. mode of reconciling such texts, ibid.
Copper, mines of, worked in Caucasus, Ezek. xxvii. 13.
Coral highly esteemed among the ancients, Job xxviii. 18.
Corban, or 'gift,' the meaning of the word and of the precept where it is alluded to, Matt. xv. 5.
Cord, a measuring line, Mic. ii. 5.
Cords are broken, meaning of the expression, Jer. x. 20.
—— of a man explained, Hos. xi. 4.
Corinth, where situated, Acts xviii. 1. Introd. to 1 Cor. character of the place and its inhabitants, ibid.
—— Church of, planted by St. Paul, Introd. to 1 Cor. abuses introduced into it by false teachers, ibid. divisions and other irregularities that arose in consequence, ibid.
Corinthian offenders, why St. Paul deferred their punishment, 2 Cor. x. 6, Corinthians, first Epistle to, when and where written, Introd. occasion of it, ibid. its contents, ibid. of great importance to all Christians, ibid. by whom sent to Corinth, ibid.
—— second Epistle to, occasion of it, Introd. where and when written, ibid. by whom sent, ibid. contents of it, ibid.
—— Epistles to, question whether St. Paul wrote a former one, 1 Cor. v. 9.
—— reason of their preference of different teachers, 1 Cor. i. 12. their fault in ranking themselves under different masters, ibid. commendation of their faith, utterance, and knowledge how to be restrained, 1 Cor. iii. 1; xi. 2. abuses among them nearly allied to the crimes of the Israelites in the wilderness, 1 Cor. x. 11. why not to act contrary to St. Paul's injunctions, 1 Cor. xiv. 36. whereby more abundantly assured of St. Paul's sincerity, 2 Cor. i. 12. why St. Paul deferred his journey to them, 2 Cor. xii. 19. how Christ shewed His power among them, 2 Cor. xiii. 3. why St. Paul prayed that they might do no evil, ver. 7.
Corn, how it is reaped in the East, Jer. ix. 22. not stacked in the straw, Job v. 26. threshed in the open field, Job xxi. 18. threshed by a wheel or a sledge drawn over it by oxen, Prov. xx. 26; 1 Chron. xxi. 23. or by the feet of oxen, Deut. xxv. 4; Mic. iv. 13. laid in heaps when threshed, Song of Sol. vii. 2. how winnowed, Ps. i. 4. at what time ground in the East, Jer. xxv. 10. plucking ears of it permitted by the Jewish law, Matt. xii. 1.
—— and fruit, the law of Moses permitted to be gathered by persons passing, Matt. xxi. 19.
—— put for open country, Job xxxix. 4.
—— mixed, use of, what it denotes, Ezek. iv. 9.
—— measure of, mentioned in marriage contracts, Hos. iii. 2.
—— threshing of, great calamities compared to, Mic. iv. 12.
Cornelius, by race a Gentile, but not an idolater, Acts x. 1. his piety and charity, ver. 2, 4. he pleased God through faith in the promise of Christ, ver. 4. his qualification for the reception of the Gospel, ibid. his piety alone not sufficient without faith in Christ, ibid. design of the vision presented to him, ver. 15.
Corner, in the East, the place of honour, Amos iii. 12. why used for the chief personage in a community, Zech. x. 4.
—— stone, its typical meaning, Matt. xxi. 42. Christ so designated, Rom. ix. 32. how he became a stone of stumbling to the Jews, ibid. See Stone.
Corners of Moab smitten by David, Numb. xxiv. 17. figuratively explained, ver. 19.
—— four, of the earth, what it means, Rev. vii. 1.
Cornets, name for trumpets, Numb. x. 2.
Corporeal greatness, people of the East fond of, Deut. iii. 11. instances of their fondness, ibid. applied to the case of Og, ibid.
Corrections, God's, their great value to us, Ps. cvi. 47.
Corrupt inclinations, what the mortifying of them proves, Gal. v. 24. what the expression imports, ibid.
—— communication, what discourse chiefly intended by it, Eph. iv. 29. to what else it is applicable, ibid.
'—— the word of God,' who said to do so, 2 Cor. ii. 17.
Corruption of human nature exemplified in the Israelites, Exod. xvi. 2.

Corruption, original, derived from parents, Ps. li. 5.
Cottage in a garden, what meant by it, Is. i. 8; Lam. ii. 6.
Council, the Roman governours of provinces usually had one, Acts xxv. 12.
—— of the Jews, providence of God in bringing Jesus before them, John ix. 13. See Sanhedrim.
—— of Jerusalem, the first general council of the Christian Church, Acts xv. 6. its distinction above every subsequent council, ibid. its decree addressed to all Gentiles living with Jews, ver. 23. why Paul and Barnabas were not sent alone as the bearers of the decree, ver. 27. its decree dictated by the circumstances of the Church at the time, ver. 29. and by prudent attention to the welfare of the Church, ibid. the humility and moderation of it, ibid. a model for all councils to maintain harmony in the Church, ibid.
—— of Trent, remarks on declarations of it, 2 Mac. xii. 44; Heb. x. 18.
—— chamber, in what part of the city anciently situated, Deut. xvi. 18. application to a common scriptural phrase, ibid.
Counsel, good, hateful to sinners, Numb. xiv. 10.
Country ruined, figuratively described, Jer. iv. 23.
—— what country the Patriarchs sought, Heb. xi. 14. what the proper country of good men, ibid.
—— affection for our country a natural duty, Ps. cxxxvii. 9. a religious virtue, Ps. cxxii. 6. a pious affection, Neh. ii. 3. a striking instance of it in Nehemiah, ibid.
Countries compared to women, Jer. xlvi. 19.
Courage. See Virtue.
—— compatible with mildness, Numb. xii. 3.
Court supreme, where it sat, Deut. xix. 17. phrase founded thereupon, ibid.
—— the great, of the Lord's house, use of it, Jer. xxvi. 2.
—— the higher, which it was, Jer. xxxvi. 10.
—— inner, of the temple, meaning of it, 1 Kings vi. 36.
—— the utter, meaning of it, Ezek. xlii. 1.
Covenant, with what persons alone God enters into covenant, Heb. ix. 14. God's first with man, Gen. ii. 17. consequences of man's breach of it, Gen. iii.
—— of God with Noah, the covenant of grace, Gen. vi. 18.
—— of God with Abraham renewed with Isaac, Gen. xvii. 21. distinguished from the promise to Ishmael, ibid. concerning the promised land, when realized, Numb. xxxiv. 2.
—— between two parties, in what manner alone it can be cancelled, Gal. iii. 17. application of the principle to God's covenant with Abraham, ibid.
—— Jewish, how said to be everlasting, Is. xxiv. 5; Jer. xxxii. 40.
—— everlasting, Jews' interpretation of, Bar. ii. 35.
—— new, foretold, Jer. xxxi. 31; Hos. ii. 19.
—— of the Gospel, what strength it communicates, Rom. vi. 14. wherein a better covenant than that of the law, Heb. viii. 6. confirmed to the Patriarchs, ibid. antiquity of both of them, ibid. purport of each, ibid. its obligations exemplified in the conduct of Abram, Gen. xii. 4.
—— perpetual, the Gospel meant by it, Jer. l. 5.
—— of redemption, spoken of as antecedent to the creation, Tit. i. 2.
—— with God, a man who is in it may yet fall into sin, 1 Cor. x. 1.
—— with day and night, explained, Jer. xxxiii. 25.
—— with death, what it denotes, Is. xxviii. 15.
—— of peace given by God to Phinehas, explained, Numb. xxv. 12.
—— of salt, explained, Numb. xviii. 19.
—— used for sign of a covenant, Gen. xvii. 10.
Covenants, two distinct ones made with Abram, Gen. xii. 3.
—— made by means of blood, Gen. xvii. 10.
—— of the Law and the Gospel, difference between them, to what we should be led by it, Gal. iv. 31. caution with respect to it, ibid.
—— of promise, why spoken of in the plural number, Eph. ii. 12. why promise in the singular, ibid.
'Covered with waves,' meaning of the expression, Matt. viii. 24.
Covereth, overlooketh, Prov. x. 12.
Covering, cover with a covering, explained, Is. xxx. 1.
—— the head, a mark of distress, 2 Sam. xv. 30. illustrated, Esth. vi. 12.
—— the face of criminals, customary among the ancients, Esth. vii. 8. and recently in the East, ibid.
Covert for the sabbath, conjectures respecting the meaning, 2 Kings xvi. 18.
Covetous man, why called an idolater, Eph. v. 5.
Covetousness, its nature and effect exemplified in Gehazi, 2 Kings v. 27. the fruits of it exemplified in Judas, Acts i. 18. the effects of it in Ananias, Acts v. 2. forbidden by Christ, Luke xii. 15. why the Corinthians armed against it, 2 Cor. ix. 5. almsgiving under some circumstances a symptom of it, ibid. why called idolatry, Phil. iii. 19. dangers of it, 1 Tim. vi. 9.
Cracknels, what thought to mean, 1 Kings xiv. 3. probably now used in the East, ibid.
Craftiness, unjustly imputed to St. Paul, 2 Cor. xii. 16.
Creation, illustrative of the Divine attributes, Gen. i. 31.
—— the wonders of, the true subject of praise, Ps. civ. introd. 32.
—— the works of, insisted on to shew God's supremacy, Is. xl. 12. instruments of making known God's attributes, Rom. i. 20.
—— of the worlds, a material one intended, Heb. i. 2. attributed to the Son of God, ibid. what the primitive Fathers concluded from it, ibid.
Creator of the world, most complete description of, applied to Christ, Col. i. 15.
'Creature,' 'whole creation,' meaning of the phrases, Rom. viii. 19, 20, 22.
Creatures of God, their original goodness, Gen. i. 31. continue to perform their offices by the decree of the Creator, Deut. viii. 3. how sanctified by the word of God, 1 Tim. iv. 5. may be used indifferently if with thankfulness, ibid.
Creed, what it signifies, 2 Tim. i. 13. several in the ancient churches, ibid. reason of the name of the Apostles' Creed, ibid.
Creeds, what they contain, Jude ver. 3. for what purpose made and transmitted, ibid.
'Creeping things that creep upon the earth' explained, Lev. xi. 29.
Crete, when a Christian Church supposed to be first planted there, Introd. to Tit. character of its inhabitants, ibid.
Criminals punished before the congregation, Ecclus. i. 30.
Crocodile, the leviathan of Scripture, described, Job xli. 1. mischief done by, Job iii. 8. watched by the neighbouring people, Job vii. 12.
Crosiers of bishops, remark on, Numb. xvii. 2.
Cross of Christ foretold as an ensign, Is. xviii. 2.
—— doctrine of, how received by the learned Greeks, 1 Cor. i. 21. what they called it, ibid. how St. Paul retorts upon them, ibid. importance of the doctrine, Gal. vi. 14. how represented by St. Paul, ibid. the article of our faith most to be triumphed in, ibid. pattern of the first preachers of the Gospel in that respect, ibid. suitable provision of the Church of England respecting it, ibid. See Christ crucified.
—— to 'take up the cross,' the phrase explained, Matt. x. 38.
—— the custom of criminals bearing their cross, Matt. xxvii. 32.
Crown never promised without the cross, Ps. cxix. 75.
—— of glory, by what means to be obtained, 2 Tim. ii. 5. allusion to the Grecian games, ibid.
—— of righteousness, why St. Paul represents his reward under this idea, 2 Tim. iv. 8.
Crowns put on the head of the newly married, Ezek. xvi. 12.
—— those bestowed in the Grecian games compared with that promised to Christians, 1 Cor. ix. 25. argument founded upon it by St. Paul, ibid.
Crowns of gold, what may be signified by them, Rev. ix. 7.
Crucified, 'the world crucified unto me, and I unto the world,' explained, Gal. vi. 14.
'—— with Christ,' in what sense Christians said to be so, Gal. ii. 20.
Crucifixion, a mode of death which it was improbable Christ should suffer, Matt. xx. 19. His foretelling it a strong proof of His spirit of prophecy, ibid. not usual with the Jews, Matt.

xxvii. 1. providence of God in accomplishing the prophecies that the Messiah should be crucified, ibid. reflections on our Lord's crucifixion, ver. 28, 35, 50. and on His expression of seeming despair, ver. 46. the custom of breaking the legs at it, John xix. 32. the probable reason of St. John's recording that blood and water came from our Saviour's side, ver. 34. no real discrepancy among the Evangelists as to the hour at which it took place, ver. 14. custom of placing superscriptions in different languages, ver. 20. how the Roman soldiers had a right to the garments, ver. 23.

Cruelty to animals displeasing to God, Luke xii. 6. an offence against Him, Numb. xxii. 32. condemned in the Mosaick law, Lev. xxii. 28. inference with respect to men, ibid.

—— towards an enemy in war, not approved by God, 2 Chron. xxviii. 11.

—— of despotick countries in the East, Tob. i. 17.

Cruse, three different Hebrew words so translated, 1 Kings xvii. 12.

Cry, 'he shall not cry' explained, Is. xlii. 2, 3.

Cubit, three sorts of, described, Gen. vi. 15.

—— of a man, probable length of, Deut. iii. 11. how computed, ibid. measure of unpolished nations, ibid.

—— and great cubit explained, Ezek. xl. 5.

—— smaller used in measuring the temple, Ezek. xlii. 16.

Cucumbers much esteemed in Egypt, Numb. xi. 5.

Cunning, skill, Ps. cxxxvii. 5.

Cup of blessing, why the wine at the Lord's supper so called, 1 Cor. x. 16. why consecrated by the clergy, ibid.

—— of devils, allusion to the heathen sacrifices, explained, 1 Cor. x. 21.

—— to drink of, a figurative expression, Matt. xx. 22. illustrated by custom at Eastern feasts, ibid.

—— golden, in the woman's hand, what it denotes, Rev. xvii. 3.

—— ingredients of, why they represent good and evil, Jer. xxv. 15.

—— portion of, different allotments to good and bad, why so represented, Ps. xi. 6.

—— sacramental, in what sense called by Christ the New Testament in My blood, Luke xxii. 20. why to be given to the laity as well as clergy, Matt. xxvi. 27. to what our Saviour alludes in the institution of it, Ps. cxvi. 13.

—— of salvation, what meant by it, Ps. cxvi. 13.

—— of trembling, explained, Zech. xii. 2.

—— of water, give to drink, the expression illustrated from a modern Eastern custom, Mark ix. 41.

Curiosity about the state of others, repressed, John xxi. 22.

Curse, in what manner Christ made a curse for us, Gal. iii. 13.

—— of God, compared to leprosy, Zech. v. 4.

—— of the law, for what it was intended, Rom. x. 4.

—— 'to curse,' meaning to adjure with a curse annexed, Judg. xvii. 2.

'—— your blessings' explained, Mal. ii. 2.

Curses of God, how to be understood, Gen. iii. 19. declaratory of God's justice, why detailed in Deuteronomy, Deut. xxvii. 26. why placed by the Church before her members in the Commination Service, Deut. xxvii. 26.

—— and blessings, on what condition proposed by Moses to the Israelites, Deut. xxviii. 2. why the former more enlarged upon, ibid.

'Cursed be the day' explained, Jer. xx. 14.

Cursing enemies, a superstitious ceremony among the heathens, Numb. xxii. 6.

Curtains, covering of tents, Hab. iii. 7.

Cush, usually rendered Ethiopia, Numb. xii. 1. its extent, ibid. Is. xviii. 1. the Arabians, Jer. xlvi. 9.

Cushion, sitting on one an expression of honour, Job xxix. 7.

Custom, houses for the receipt of, where situated, Mark ii. 14.

Cut yourselves, why the Israelites forbidden to do so, Deut. xiv. 1. an ancient Gentile custom, ibid. still retained among the Jews, ibid. and in Abyssinia, ibid.

Cut off by a judicial sentence, spoken of the Messiah, Dan. ix. 26.

Cuthah, its probable situation, 2 Kings xvii. 24.

Cutting asunder, a mode of punishment practised in the East, what it denotes, Matt. xxiv. 51.

Cutting off hands and feet of offenders, a custom still common in Turkey, 2 Sam. iv. 12.

—— in the flesh a Gentile custom, Lev. xix. 27, 28. modern instances of it, ibid. a mark of affection, ibid. why forbidden by God, ibid.

Cyprus, its situation, Acts iv. 36. contained a great number of Jews, Acts xiii. 5. why the Apostles preached there, ibid.

Cyrenius governour of Syria, solution of an historical difficulty respecting him, Luke ii. 2.

Cyrus, his full persuasion of the providence of God, which dictated the prophecies concerning the Jews, Introd. to Ezra—prophesied of 200 years before, as the restorer of the Jews, Ezra i. 1, erected the Persian empire on the destruction of the Assyrian, ibid. disposed by God's overruling providence to restore the Jews, ibid. probably moved by the counsel of Daniel, ibid. probably inspired with the knowledge of the one true God, ver. 2. why represented as from the north, and from the east, Is. xli. 25. what was first fulfilled in him, afterwards in Christ, Is. xlv. 13. named 200 years before the event, Is. xliv. 28. why called the Lord's anointed, Is. xlv. 1. probably addressed by God as His instrument, Jer. li. 20. whether meant by 'righteous man from the East,' Is. xli. 2.

D.

Dagon described, Deut. iv. 18. meaning of the name, Judg. xvi. 23.

Daily, its sense in the Lord's Prayer, Matt. vi. 11.

—— morning prayers, what proper subject of, Ps. xlix. 20.

Damascus, kingdom of, described, 2 Sam. viii. 5.

—— city of, prophecies concerning it, Jer. xlix. 23; character of the place, Amos iii. 12. number of Jews residing there, Acts ix. 2.

—— Syrians of, who they were, 2 Sam. viii. 5.

Damnation, what meant by it in St. Paul's remarks on the Lord's supper, 1 Cor. xi. 29. might be better translated as translated elsewhere, ibid. what it meant when the Bible was translated, ibid. proof that it does not signify eternal damnation, ver. 32.

'—— whose damnation is just,' question concerning the persons of whom St. Paul speaks, Rom. iii. 8.

Dan, why described by Jacob as a judge of his people, Gen. xlix. 16. why compared to a serpent, ver. 17.

—— tribe of, its numerousness, Numb. ii. 31. why stationed in the rear of the army, ibid. its blessing by Moses explained, Deut. xxxiii. 22. eminently verified in Samson, ibid. consequence of 'their coast' being too small, Josh. xix. 47. why they could not acquire the whole of their allotment, Judg. xviii. 1. their errour in consulting at Micah's tabernacle, ver. 5. their false worship, ver. 30.

—— camp of, where situate, Judg. xiii. 25.

—— one of the springs of Jordan, Gen. xiv. 14.

—— city, the most northern part of the land of Israel, Judg. xx. 1. 'from Dan to Beer-sheba,' what it expresses, ibid. afterwards called Cesarea Philippi, Ezek. xxvii. 19. why voice declareth from, Jer. iv. 15; viii. 16.

—— mentioned by Moses, different from the place so named in Judges, Deut. xxxiv. 1. probably a river, ibid.

Dancing, how conducted in the East, Exod. xv. 20. practised by the ancients on serious and sacred occasions, 2 Sam. vi. 16. customary at Eastern festivals, Matt. xiv. 6.

Danger not to be avoided on fit occasions, Esth. iv. 16. Psalm adapted to those who have escaped great, Ps. xxx. 9.

Dangers to which man is exposed, enumerated, Ps. xci. 14.

Daniel of tribe of Judah, family of Zedekiah, carried captive to Babylon, renowned for wisdom, thought to resemble Joseph, how long he lived, his style not poetick, a Prophet, to reject his prophecies is to reject Christianity, to read them with attention would convert an unbeliever, Introd. to Daniel—witnessed the accomplishment of Jeremiah's prophecy, Dan. i. 21. remark on his prophecies, Dan. ii. 1. why he follows Chaldean computation of time, ibid. his modesty, ver. 28. what meant by his being chief of the governours over all the wise men, ver. 48. meaning of his counsel to Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. iv. 27. his constancy in prayer, Dan. vi. 10, 28. his concern for his people, Dan. viii. 27. his conduct a model for our devotions,

Dan. ix. 4. a passage in him referred to by Christ, ver. 23. cause of his mourning, Dan. x. 2. fame of his early piety, Ezek. xiv. 14. of his wisdom, Ezek. xxviii. 3. probably shewed Cyrus the prophecies of Isaiah, Ezra i. 2. disposed Cyrus to restore the Jews, ver. 1.

DANIEL, book of, six first chapters historical, six last prophetical, foretell destruction of Antichrist, and general resurrection, great evidence to its authenticity, Introd. to Daniel.

—— of Ithamar's family, not the celebrated Prophet, Ezra viii. 2.

DARIUS the Median, who he was, Dan. v. 31. his decree in favour of the Jews, Ezra vi. 12. why called king of Assyria, ver. 22. his general character, ibid. by his cruelty fulfils a prophecy, Jer. l. 42.

—— question who is meant, Neh. xii. 22.

'Dark speeches' explained, Numb. xii. 8. and exemplified, ibid.

Darkness, emblem of calamity, Jer. xiii. 16. what put for, Tob. iv. 10.

—— at our Lord's crucifixion, remarks on, Exod. x. 23. why preternatural, Matt. xxvii. 45.

—— outer, the allusion explained, Matt. viii. 12.

—— moral, of the Jews, John xii. 35.

—— plague of, which may be felt, phrase explained, Exod. x. 21. analogous with the sentiments of the people, ver. 22. exceeded all others recorded in history, ver. 23. why caused by God, ibid.

'—— he eateth in,' phrase explained, Eccles. v. 17.

'—— ways of,' phrase explained, Prov. ii. 13.

DATHAN and ABIRAM, remarks on their pedigree, Numb. xvi. 1. causes of their discontent, ibid. character of their discontent, ver. 12. remarks on their punishment as distinguished from that of Korah, ver. 32, 35.

Daughter, latitude of signification in Hebrew, Is. xxiii. 10. means grandaughter, 1 Kings xv. 2. why used for worshipper, Mal. ii. 11.

Daughters of Judah, for the lesser cities of Judea, Ps. xlviii. 11; Is. xxxii. 9; Jer. xlix. 2.

'—— of the Philistines,' for people of, Ezek. xvi. 27. similar phrases instanced, ibid.

DAVID, in what sense 'a man after God's own heart,' 1 Sam. xiii. 14. why so called, ibid. what signified when he was anointed by Samuel, 1 Sam. xvi. 13. his anointing private, ibid. how endowed by the Spirit of the Lord, ibid. providence of God respecting him, 1 Sam. xvii. 17. his modesty and valour, ver. 26. his meekness and piety, ver. 29. artless simplicity of his narrative, ver. 34. his confidence of success, on what founded, ver. 36. his noble confidence in the Divine protection, and in victory, ver. 37, 46. the strain of piety that animates him, ver. 47. the clearest proof that God was peculiarly with him, ver. 58.

—— his excess of grief at parting from Jonathan, 1 Sam. xx. 41. why he came to Ahimelech, 1 Sam. xxi. 1. his telling an untruth considered, ver. 2. his miserable condition, ver. 10. why called 'king of the land,' ver. 11. his counterfeiting madness considered, ver. 13. acted entirely for self-defence, 1 Sam. xxii. 2. never disturbed Saul's government, ibid. why he applied to the king of Moab, ver. 3. why called 'the son of Jesse,' ver. 9. never conspired against Saul, ver. 8. his love for his country, 1 Sam. xxiii. 5. why he represents himself to Saul as contemptible, 1 Sam. xxiv. 14. his inward trouble at his indignity to Saul, ver. 5. his moderation and greatness of mind, ver. 6; xxvi. 9. his satisfaction in sparing Saul, ibid. xxiv. 21. from what his design of destroying Nabal arose, 1 Sam. xxv. 33. blesses God for preserving him from sin, ver. 34. his oath to destroy Nabal not to be vindicated, ver. 39. cause of his bold attempt with Abishai, 1 Sam. xxvi. 7. why he abstained from injuring Saul, ver. 9. driven by his enemies into idolatrous lands, ver. 19. appears to fail in his assurance of the Divine protection, 1 Sam. xxvii. 1. his ambiguous answer to Achish, ver. 10. his conduct in this considered, ibid. the prudence of his answer to Achish, 1 Sam. xxix. 8. reduced to a distressful alternative, ver. 11. his piety in consulting the Lord, 1 Sam. xxx. 8. improbability of his success against the Amalekites, ibid. his humanity and justice in distributing the booty, ver. 23. his determination became a law to the Israelites, ibid. his piety in mourning for Saul's death, 2 Sam. i. 12. his ode on the death of Saul and Jonathan considered, ver. 17, 27.

DAVID, why he ordered the use of the bow to be taught, 2 Sam. i. 18. his pious conduct in asking instruction from the Lord, 2 Sam. ii. 1. why anointed publickly by the men of Judah, ver. 4. predicts Joab's punishment, 2 Sam. iii. 29. his abhorrence of treachery and cruelty, 2 Sam. iv. 12. reminded why he was made a king, 2 Sam. v. 2. the happy conclusion of his troubles considered, ver. 10. why he took many concubines and wives, ver. 13. why he assembled the principal officers to bring the ark, 2 Sam. vi. 2. the honour of settling the ark reserved for him, ibid. why girded with a linen ephod, ver. 14. his joy at bringing back the ark, ver. 15. his leaping and dancing explained and considered, ver. 16. his dignified answer to Michal's reproach, ver. 22. his pious design of building a temple, 2 Sam. vii. 2. why reproved for vowing it, ver. 5. promise of long duration to his race, ver. 13. this promise pointing in a more enlarged sense to Christ, ibid. his excellent prayer and thanksgiving, ver. 18. his humility and gratitude, ver. 18, 29. his generosity to Saul's family, 2 Sam. ix. 1. his kind behaviour to Mephibosheth, and reflections upon it, ver. 13. reflections on the glory and happiness of first part of his reign, 2 Sam. x. 19.

—— hurried by degrees into the most enormous wickedness, 2 Sam. xi. 2. deliberately takes another man's wife, ver. 4. his miscarriages why recorded, ibid. his example a warning to all, ibid. his sinful contrivances to keep his crime concealed, disappointed, ver. 9—13. his contrivance of the death of Uriah, ver. 15. why afterwards inspired, ibid. God's abhorrence of his crimes shewn, ver. 27. blind to his own guilt, 2 Sam. xii. 5. his sudden conviction by Nathan, ver. 7. judgments denounced upon his family, ver. 10. unhappiness of the remainder of his life, ver. 10, 11. his sincere repentance for his sin, ver. 13. when forgiven by God, ibid. instruction from his fall, ibid. his case proves that God may punish and forgive at the same time, ver. 13, 14. his answer on the loss of his child considered, ver. 22.

—— evil raised to him out of his own house, 2 Sam. xiii. 37. example afforded by his tenderness to Absalom, 2 Sam. xiv. 33. reflections on his flight from Absalom, 2 Sam. xv. 14; xvi. 5. why he ordered the ark to be carried back, 2 Sam. xv. 25. his profound humility, ver. 26. his prayer against Ahithophel explained, ver. 31. his advice to Hushai considered, ver. 34. his resignation, meekness, and reverence exemplified, 2 Sam. xvi. 10, 12. his moderation shewn, 2 Sam. xviii. 5. his excessive grief for Absalom considered, ver. 33; xix. 1. the force and eloquence of his lamentation, 2 Sam. xviii. 33. his grief how aggravated, 2 Sam. xix. 1. why he submits to Joab's insolent behaviour, ver. 8. his mildness towards his rebellious subjects, ver. 10. his forgiveness of Shimei considered, ver. 22. different chastisements for his sins considered, 2 Sam. xx. 2. why he confined the concubines, ver. 3.

—— considerations on his slackness in consulting the Lord, 2 Sam. xxi. 1. hymn composed by him, on his deliverance from Saul's persecutions, 2 Sam. xxii. 1. his conduct at the approach of death, 2 Sam. xxiii. 1. eminently styled the sweet psalmist of Israel, ibid. affirms that he composed his psalms by Divine inspiration, ver. 2. God's everlasting covenant with him was with reference to Christ's kingdom, ver. 3, 5. restrains his inordinate appetite, ver. 16. in what sense moved by God to number the people, 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. why he did it, ver. 2. became sensible of his fault, ver. 10. his fall an alarming warning to us, ver. 10, 24. the only instance in Scripture of any man being left to the choice of his own punishment, ver. 13. his humble and pious choice, ibid. a noble example of tender compassion for his subjects, ver. 17. in what his crime on this occasion consisted, ver. 24.

—— his weak indulgence of Adonijah, 1 Kings i. 6. his oath that Solomon should succeed him, ver. 13. what his disease was, ver. 47. his good counsels to Solomon his son, 1 Kings ii: 1 Chron. xxii. 13; xxviii. 9. his charge to maintain piety to God, 1 Kings ii. 3. his advice to Solomon respecting Joab explained, ver. 5. his gratitude to Barzillai, ver. 7. his advice to Solomon respecting Shimei explained, ver. 9. his death and burial, ver. 10. reflections on his history and general character, ibid. in what sense he turned not aside from God's command, except in the affair of Uriah, 1 Kings xv. 5.

DAVID, why he erected an armoury in the temple, 2 Kings xi. 10. why called Jesse's seventh son, 1 Chron. ii. 15. why he consulted with his elders about bringing back the ark, 1 Chron. xiii. 3. the names of his children, 1 Chron. xiv. 4. his care respecting the ark, 1 Chron. xv. 2. his taking his share of blame for the former errour respecting it, ver. 13. his hymn on bringing up the ark, from what made up, 1 Chron. xvi. 8. why he made the altar at the threshingfloor of Araunah the place of his future worship, 1 Chron. xxi. 28; xxii. 1. why he made early preparations for the building of the temple by Solomon, 1 Chron. xxii. 5. why not permitted to build it himself, ver. 8. how he provided for the more solemn performance of publick worship, 1 Chron. xxiii. 2. his muster-roll of the people able to bear arms, why very imperfect, 1 Chron. xxvii. 23. his declaration that Solomon was selected for the throne by God, 1 Chron. xxviii. 5. his reason for declaring this to the people, ibid. declares that the pattern and plan of the temple were suggested to him by God, ver. 12, 19. repeats his advice to Solomon respecting the temple, ver. 20. his great zeal for the service of God and the interests of religion, ibid. his example to be imitated, ibid. encourages the people to assist Solomon by various considerations, 1 Chron. xxix. 1. the comfort of his old age in seeing the people well disposed, ver. 9. his noble declaration of the Divine excellencies and perfections, ver. 10. his great piety herein displayed, ibid. his abasement before God, ver. 14. why called the man of God, 2 Chron. viii. 14. superiour to Solomon in piety and the gift of prophecy, ibid.

—— perfected psalmody, character of him derived from book of Psalms, sought in piety that peace he could not find in empire, Introd. to Psalms—his true repentance, Ps. li. introd. his true glory, Ps. liv. 6. his vows heard, Ps. lxi. 5. covenant with him, Ps. lxxxix. 3. when destitute did not despond, Ps. cxlii. 7. his holy example abused, Amos vi. 5.

—— his prophecy of Christ's resurrection, Acts ii. 29. why a passage from him quoted by St. Paul, Rom. iv. 6. inference as to the conformity between the Gospel and the Law, ibid.

—— the type and figure of the Messiah, 1 Chron. xvii. 14; Ps. lxxxix. 27; Acts xiii. 34. the establishment of his throne for ever referred to the Messiah, ibid. 1 Chron. xxii. 10. promises to him relate to Christ, Is. ix. 7.

—— 'he that hath the key of David' explained, Rev. iii. 7.

'—— sure mercies of,' explained, Is. lv. 3.

——'s house and kingdom, ruin of, what it was to precede, Amos ix. 15.

—— city of, fortified, 1 Mac. i. 33.

Day, among the Jews, when it began, and how divided, Matt. xx. 3.

—— good, a festival, Ecclus. xiv. 14.

—— dawn of, attended by refreshing breeze, Song of Sol. ii. 17.

Day's journey, its extent, Numb. xi. 31.

—— of judgment, why called the day of wrath, Rom. ii. 5. why called the day of revelation of the righteous judgment of God, ibid. St. Paul did not expect to be alive at it, 1 Thess. iv. 15. of what persons he says 'we which are alive, &c.' ibid. his caution to the Thessalonians against misunderstanding him, ibid. uncertainty of its approach a motive to prepare for it, Heb. x. 25. why joined with our death, ibid.

'—— of the Lord,' means day of His vengeance, instanced, Jer. xlvi. 10.

Days, three sorts of, observed among the Jews, Col. ii. 16. what St. Paul's remarks upon the observance of them have respect to, Rom. xiv. 5. do not extend to the Christian sabbath, ibid.

—— &c. observation of, what St. Paul meant to condemn, Gal. iv. 10. what not included within his censure, ibid.

—— last, what the phrase imports, Is. ii. 2; Jer. xxx. 24; Joel iii. 1; Mic. iv. 1.

'—— latter,' to what they relate, Jer. xii. 15.

'Day, as it is this,' explained, Jer. xxv. 17.

—— in that,' what the phrase denotes, Is. iv. 2.

—— 'on the day that,' Hebrew expression explained, Numb. vii. 1.

—— question concerning the import of 'the day approaching,' Heb. x. 25.

Day and night, what it means in Jewish reckoning, Jon. i. 17; Matt. xii. 40.

Days, after three, namely, on the third day, explained, Jer. xxxiv. 14.

'—— in those,' peculiar use of the expression, Matt. iii. 1.

—— of heaven upon earth, explained, Deut. xi. 21.

—— the twelve hundred and sixty, this period how deduced, Dan. vii. 25.

Daysman, umpire, Job ix. 33.

Dayspring, means break of day until sunrising, Job xxxviii. 12.

Deacons, their appointment, Acts vi. 3. office transferred from the Jewish to the Christian Church, ibid. care of the poor not the sole purpose of their appointment, ibid. had not the privilege of conferring the Holy Spirit, Acts viii. 15. why their qualifications mostly the same as those of their superiours, 1 Tim. iii. 8. how to be proved, ver. 10. step to a higher degree, ver. 13.

Deaconesses, in the primitive Church, what they were, Rom. xvi. 1. what was their business, ibid. who to be admitted amongst them, 1 Tim. v. 9. what their office was, ibid.

Dead, tumultuous manner of mourning for them in the East, Mark v. 38. why happier than the living, Eccles. iv. 2. those under great calamity so called, Baruch iii. 4. used for spiritually dead, Matt. viii. 22; Luke xv. 32. put for idols, Ps. cvi. 28.

'—— prayers for the,' not authorized by practice of Judas Maccabeus, 2 Mac. xii. 44.

'—— in trespasses and sins,' how the Ephesians were so, Eph. ii. 1.

—— bodies, inquisition about them effectually provided for by Moses, Deut. xxi. 1. provisions in other laws inferiour to his, ibid. exposure of to the birds, &c. accounted a great calamity among the Jews, Deut. xxviii. 26. placed near the doors of the house, Ezek. viii. 14.

—— sea. See Salt sea.

—— works, what meant by them, Heb. ix. 14.

Deaf not to be cursed, meaning of the prohibition, Lev. xix. 14.

—— adder, meaning explained, Ps. lviii. 4.

Dealings of God with men, manner of them, Deut. xxx. 19. according to man's dealings with God, Gal. vi. 7.

Death, threatened to Adam in what sense, Gen. ii. 17.

—— what it signifies in the Hebrew idiom, Exod. x. 17. dissolution of body politick, Is. xxvi. 19. put for the pestilence, Jer. xv. 2. used for death eternal, Wisd. ii. 24.

—— the suddenness of its approach, Luke xii. 20. temporal, not abolished but conquered by Christ, John xi. 26. His power over it, ver. 44. a calm sleep to a good man, Acts vii. 60. the end of sin, what death intended, Rom. vi. 21. the desert of sinners, Rom. vi. 23. and the effect of God's justice, ibid. how to be universally destroyed, 1 Cor. xv. 26. reasons of its blessedness to those that die in and for the faith of Christ, Rev. xiv. 13.

—— of Christ, why not prevented by the power of God, Matt. xxvi. 54. for our sins, spoken of in the Old Testament, 1 Cor. xv. 3. effects of it coextensive with human nature, 2 Cor. v. 14. a propitiatory offering, Gal. vi. 14. distinguished thereby from the martyrdom of His Apostles, ibid. universal redemption by it proved, 1 Tim. ii. 6. wherein it is like that of all men, Heb. ix. 27. to whom the propitiation made by it reaches, 1 John ii. 2. universality of it, ibid. intended for the salvation of every particular person, ibid. he for whom Christ died may perish, Rom. xiv. 15. See Sufferings of Christ.

—— of the righteous, Balaam's wish to die it, explained, Numb. xxiii. 10. why recorded by Moses, ibid. probably uttered by Balaam, with some foreboding of his end, ibid. may be regarded as a prophecy, ibid.

—— messengers of, explained, Prov. xvi. 14.

—— persons condemned to, had their faces covered, Ezek. xii. 6.

—— 'to see death,' what it means, John viii. 51.

'—— passed upon all men, for that all have sinned,' explained, Rom. v. 12.

—— 'second death,' what it is, Rev. ii. 11.

—— 'kill with death,' a Hebrew phrase, explained, Rev. ii. 23.

—— and hell cast into the lake, what implied by, Rev. xx. 14.

'—— and judgment,' by what means alone we can be supported under the thought of, Heb. x. 19.

DEBORAH, Rebekah's nurse, remarks on her death, Gen. xxxv. 8.

Deborah the Prophetess, why so called, Judg. iv. 4. strength of her faith, ver. 14. beauty and elegance of her hymn, Judg. v. 1. what it shews, ibid. twofold object of the composition, ibid. commemorates God's former mercies to His people, ver. 4. her piety and sole reliance on God, ver. 31.
Debtor both to the Greeks, &c. in what sense St. Paul so described himself, Rom. i. 14.
Debtors, when obliged to sell their children, 2 Kings iv. 1; Neh. v. 5.
'—— not to the flesh,' why Christians are such, Rom. viii. 12.
Decapolis, its situation, Matt. iv. 25. why so called, ibid.
Deceit, bread of, what it is, Prov. xx. 17.
Deceitfulness of the human heart, instanced in the history of Balaam, Numb. xxiv. 25. in Hazael, 2 Kings viii. 13. See Heart.
Deceived, 'O Lord, thou hast deceived me,' explained, Jer. xx. 7.
Deceiveth, what it means, Prov. xxvi. 19.
Decency and regularity in publick worship specially recommended by St. Paul, 1 Cor. xiv. 39.
Decision, valley of, why so called, Joel iii. 14.
Decree for establishing Grecian idolatry, 1 Mac. i. 42.
—— absolute, none such against the Israelites, Rom. x. 1.
Decrees of God do not control man's freedom, Acts ii. 23. what sort of, not contained in Scripture, Jam. i. 17. what sort of, are, ibid. See Absolute power.
—— absolute of God in His dealings with mankind as to their eternal state, nothing said about them in St. Paul's 9th chapter to the Romans, Rom. ix. 31.
Dedan, city, where situate, Jer. xxv. 23. another, Ezek. xxvii. 15.
Dedanim, travelling companies of, explained, Is. xxi. 13; Jer. xlix. 8.
Dedicated, things dedicated to God not to be applied to any common use, Numb. xvi. 37.
Dedicating, in what sense used, Numb. vii. 10.
Dedication of the altar, offerings of all the princes the same, Numb. vii. 12. their offerings enumerated, ibid. their value, ibid. both altars dedicated at the same time, ver. 84. reflections on the liberality of the tribes, ibid.
Dedication of a house, what meant by it, Deut. xx. 5. feast on the occasion, ibid.
—— of the temple, the number of days on which the feast continued, 1 Kings viii. 66.
—— feast of, first observed, 1 Mac. iv. 56. explained, John x. 22.
Deeds of the body, used comprehensively, Rom. viii. 13.
—— of the law, what St. Paul means by them in his discourse on justification, Rom. iii. 20.
Deep, how St. Paul had been in it a night and a day, 2 Cor. xi. 25.
—— the, put for a lake, Job xxxviii. 30.
—— the great, explained, Gen. vii. 11.
'—— that coucheth beneath,' explained, Deut. xxxiii. 13.
—— put for calamity, Ps. xlii. 7.
Defection from Christianity, possible in those who have suffered much for it, Gal. iii. 4.
Defensive warfare authorized on the sabbath, 1 Mac. ii. 41.
Defilement, legal, how contracted by the Jews, John xviii. 28.
Definite number used for indefinite, Is. xix. 18.
Defraud, in the sense of withholding another's due, Mark x. 19.
Degrees, what the word means, Ps. cxx. introd.
—— necessary in the attainment of Divine knowledge, 1 Cor. iii. 1.
—— of glory, difference in, to what it should be a motive, Heb. ii. 3.
Deities of different sexes, idolatrous notion of, its evil effects, Deut. xxii. 5. custom derived from it, ibid.
Delay, the great danger of it in spiritual concerns, Matt. xxv. 10; Acts xxiv. 25.
Delight in God why necessary to perseverance in duty, Job xxvii. 10.
Delilah, of what country uncertain, Judg. xvi. 4. whether married to Samson, ibid. the unreasonableness of her request, ver. 6.
Deliverance temporal used to signify spiritual, Is. xi. introd.
—— spiritual of the Jews by Christ, foretold, Mic. ii. 12.
—— in every, to whom we should ascribe our salvation, Ps. cxxiv.
Delivered from the law, how far the Jewish converts were so, Rom. vii. 6.
Delivery of the law, terrours that accompanied it not a matter of indifference to any man, Heb. xii. 29. importance of the argument founded by St. Paul upon it, ibid. reflections thereon, ibid.
Deluge, how spoken of, 2 Pet. iii. 5. See Flood.
Demas, remarks on his forsaking St. Paul, 2 Tim. iv. 10.
Demetrius, son of Seleucus, account of, 1 Mac. vii. 1.
Demoniacks, the difference in their number, according to St. Matthew and St. Mark, reconciled, Mark v. 2. See Devils, Possessions.
Demonstration of the Spirit and of power, how best to be understood, 1 Cor. ii. 4.
Denial of the Father, what it is according to St. John, 1 John ii. 22.
Denial of the Son, how it involves denial of the Father, 1 John ii. 22. in what it consists, ver. 23.
Denying or disowning any one, what it often signifies in Scripture, Deut. xxxiii. 9.
'—— ungodliness,' phrase explained and remarked on, Tit. ii. 12.
Dependence upon God should be continually acknowledged, Exod. xvi. 4.
Depravity, ours from ourselves, Eccles. vii. 29.
—— heathen, pictures of in Scripture not just representations of the natural state of all men, Rom. vii. 22.
Deputy, signifying proconsul, properly applied, Acts xiii. 7.
Derision, severe, a figure much used by the Prophets, Hos. iv. 16.
Dervises in the East, their dress like that of Elijah, 2 Kings i. 8.
Desired with desire, a Hebrew phrase, explained, Luke xxii. 15.
Desolation, meaning of term so translated, Prov. i. 27. how signified in Scripture, Is. vii. 25. entire, described, Is. xiii. 20.
Destroyer, meaning the destroying angel, 1 Cor. x. 10.
Destruction of the Canaanitish nation, particular reason for it, Deut. vii. 2. reflections thereon, ibid.
—— city of, why so called, Is. xix. 18.
Determinate counsel of God, in what sense Christ was delivered by it, Acts ii. 23.
Detractors, ill effect of listening to them exemplified, Esther iii. 11.
Deuteronomy, book of, why so called, Introd. to Deut. its contents, ibid. when delivered by Moses, ibid. period of time that it occupies, ibid. proofs of its authenticity, ibid. foretells the Messiah more explicitly than the preceding books, ibid. clearness and number of the prophecies in it, ibid. to what date it brings down the sacred history, ibid. how it differs from the three preceding books of Moses, Deut. i. 1. where delivered, ibid. motives of Moses in delivering it, ver. 5. a circumstance noticed in it not mentioned in Numbers, ver. 29. not delivered in one continued speech, Deut. iv. 44. four first chapters a sort of preface, ibid. opinion concerning its original termination, Deut. xxxiv. 5. quoted by St. Paul, with some difference of sense, Rom. x. 6. quoted by St. Paul according to the Jerusalem Targum, ver. 7.
Devices, human, vanity of, in opposition to God's judgments, Amos ii. 14.
Devil, why called 'the father of lies,' Gen. iii. 4. a false accuser, ver. 5. how he beguiles men, ver. 13. the curse pronounced on him at the fall, ver. 15. what meant by 'enmity between his seed and the seed of the woman,' ibid. how a murderer and a liar, John viii. 44. what meant by not giving place to him, Eph. iv. 27. his dominion over the heathen world stated by St. Paul and St. John, Eph. vi. 12. his opposition to the Gospel, ibid. combat of the first Christians with him properly ascribed to the Ephesians, ibid. why called the god of this world, Phil. iii. 19. use of the information given by the Scriptures concerning him, 1 Pet. v. 8. stricture on the conduct of some persons on the subject, ibid. remarks on the formidable character ascribed to him, ibid. strong manner in which his insatiable enmity to us is expressed, ibid. account of his malice, why given with propriety by St. Peter, 1 Pet. v. 8. why the wilful sinner said to be of the devil, 1 John iii. 8.
—— 'works of,' what sins are peculiarly such, 2 Cor. iv. 4.
—— name used figuratively, John vi. 70. See Satan.
—— and wicked spirits, what we are taught concerning them, Jam. iv. 7. what doubts and what imaginations concerning them foolish to be entertained, ibid. limitation of their power, ibid. how their enticements may be withstood, ibid. great mercy in God to make us acquainted with this circumstance of our condition, Jam. iv. 7.

Devils, what the original name signifies, Lev. xvii. 7. character of their worship, ibid. called in the original destroyers, Deut. xxxii. 17. and why, ibid. meaning of the original word, 1 Tim. iv. 1. why they may have been allowed peculiar power in the days of Christ, Matt. iv. 24. the word probably used for 'idols,' 2 Chron. xi. 15. persons possessed with, not merely madmen, or persons afflicted with strange diseases, Matt. iv. 24.
Devoted thing, meaning of the Hebrew word, Lev. xxvii. 28. reason of the law concerning it, ibid. distinction between things devoted for different purposes, ver. 29.
Devotion without righteousness of no avail, Prov. xxviii. 9.
—— publick offices of, to be observed, 1 Tim. ii. 1. four sorts of specified, ibid.
Devotions of the Church, by whom to be led, 1 Tim. ii. 8.
Devout men, who meant by, Acts ii. 5; x. 2.
Dew, value of in the East, Gen. xxvii. 28; Job xxix. 19; Prov. xix. 12. falls fast and sudden in Palestine, 2 Sam. xvii. 12. an active soldiery aptly compared to it, ibid.
Diabolical agency, Christ's miracles ascribed to it, Matt. xii. 24. absurdity of such an opinion, ver. 25, 27, 28.
Diadem explained, Job xxix. 14,
Diana of Ephesus, the antiquity of her worship and the magnificence of her temple, Acts xix. 27. her statue why supposed to have fallen from heaven, ver. 35.
Diblath, part of the desert, where, Ezek. vi. 14.
Die the death of the righteous, reflections on Balaam's wish, Numb. xxxi. 8.
'—— unto sin,' when we do so, Rom. vi. 2, 3.
'—— daily' explained, 1 Cor. xv. 31.
Died in his own sin, explained, Numb. xxvii. 3.
Diet, special peculiarity in, why prescribed to the Jews, Lev. xi. 44, 45.
Difference between ministers in miraculous gifts, the sole effect of God's grace, 1 Cor. iv. 7. between men in virtue and piety, effect of their faculties cooperating with grace, ibid.
—— of opinion, not to create divisions among Christians, Phil. iii. 15.
Differences in religion, the melancholy effect of them, John iv. 9.
Difficulties represented as impossibilities, Jer. xiii. 23.
Diffidence the proof of wisdom, Prov. xii. 15.
Dignity of the Son of God, an argument of the importance of His doctrine, Heb. ii. 3. motive to us to study and receive it, ibid.
Diligence commended, Eccles. ix. 10.
—— in our calling, a Christian duty, Rom. xii. 11.
—— in the pursuit of happiness recommended, Phil. iii. 14.
—— in our particular callings necessary to inoffensiveness, 1 Thess. iv. 11. remark on an exhortation of St. Paul connected with it, ibid.
Dimon, same with Dibon, Is. xv. 9.
Dinah, why so called, Gen. xxx. 21. why her history recorded, Gen. xxxiv. occasion of the calamity, ver. 1. evils resulting from her idle curiosity, ver. 31.
Dinner, expressed the first meal in the day, Luke xi. 37; John xxi. 12.
Diocletian's persecution of the Christians denoted by the sixth seal, Rev. vi. 9. the extreme cruelty of it expressed, ver. 10.
Diotrephes, opinions concerning him, 3 John ver. 9.
'Dip his foot in oil,' what the expression denotes, Deut. xxxiii. 24. compared with another in Genesis, ibid.
Dipping hands in the dish, a custom in the East, described, Matt. xxvi. 23.
Disappointment, the pain which attends it, 1 Kings xxi. 4. the danger of brooding over it, ibid. how it is sometimes suffered to poison all enjoyments, ver. 6.
Disbelief of the Jews, the effect of their own wilful perverseness, John xii. 39.
'Discerning the Lord's body' explained, 1 Cor. xi. 29.
Disciples, their consternation at Christ's apprehension, Mark xiv. 51. the seventy appointed superiour to the rest, Luke x. 1. why sent out two and two, ibid.
—— true, will be known by their obedience, Matt. vii. 22, 23. happiness of those who shall be owned as true, Matt. x. 32.
Discontent, its blindness and folly, Numb. xiv. 4.
Discourse more to be attended to than is often imagined, Eph. iv. 29. a mark of the character of the heart, ibid.
Discus, the quoit, described, 2 Mac. iv. 14.
Diseases, the effect and temporal punishment of sin, Matt. ix. 2; John v. 14.
—— character of those with which Moses threatened the Israelites, Deut. xxviii. 22.
—— of Egypt, remarks on, Deut. vii. 15.
—— psalm proper for the consolation of those afflicted with them, Ps. xxxviii. 13.
Dishes, spoons, &c. for the table of shewbread, explained, Exod. xxv. 29.
'Dishonoureth her head,' explanations of the phrase, 1 Cor. xi. 5.
'—— his head,' explanations of the phrase, 1 Cor. xi. 4.
Disorderly, why those who are idle are said to behave themselves so, 2 Thess. iii. 7.
Dispensation, old, prefigurative of the new, Exod. xvii. 6.
Dispensations of God, why they should humbly be submitted to, Job xxxiii. 12; Rom. xi. 35. in what light to be considered, Heb. xii. 5.
—— Jewish and Christian, their great principle of action, Deut. vi. 5. their superiority therein to all heathen systems, ibid. difference between them how represented, Gal. iv. 1.
'Dispersed among the Gentiles,' the meaning of the expression, John vii. 35.
Displeased, in what sense Uzzah was so, 2 Sam. vi. 8.
Disposition, inward, the life of our actions, Numb. xxii. 22,
Disputes among Christians, from what grand mistake many have arisen, General Introd. to St. Paul's Epist. par. 3.
—— between Christians not to be referred to Gentile courts of justice, 1 Cor. vi. 4. recommendation about the mode of settling them, ibid. reflections on it, ver. 8.
—— what sort of are unprofitable, Tit. iii. 9.
Dissenters from the Church, remark on their singing hymns in their assemblies, 1 Cor. xiv. 15.
Dissolute conversation, shaking off of, why compared to a waking out of sleep, Rom. xiii. 11.
Distinctions, how and why made between the Israelites and other people, Lev. xx. 25.
—— human, reflection on their small importance, 1 Cor. vii. 21.
'Distributing to the necessity of saints' explained, Rom. xii. 13.
Divers manners of God's speaking by the Prophets explained, Heb. i. 1.
Dividing of a beast in the midst, a very ancient rite, Gen. xv. 10. its import, ibid.
Divination not practised by Joseph, Gen. xliv. 5.
—— rewards of, an ancient custom, Numb. xxii. 7. what were those offered to Balaam, ibid.
—— spirit of, explanation of the original word, Acts xvi. 16.
Divine honours claimed by many Assyrian princes, Judith iii. 8.
—— revelation, necessity and benefits of, proved by the miserable state of the heathens, Eph. iv. 18.
—— service, why performed in houses by the primitive Christians, Philem. ver. 2.
Division of land under Joshua, distinct knowledge of, how kept up, Lev. xxv. 13.
—— of land to the tribes, provisions respecting it, Numb. xxxvi. 6. remarks on its tendency to promote virtue and happiness, ibid.
Divisions, meaning of the original word, 1 Cor. i. 10. earnestness with which St. Paul exhorts the Corinthians against them, ibid. literal meaning of it, 1 Cor. xi. 18. what here to be understood by it, ibid. who are guilty of it, ibid. why God permits them to take place in the Church, 1 Cor. xi. 19. those who cause them to be avoided, Rom. xvi. 17.
—— and separations, proofs of the Holy Spirit's enmity to them, 1 Cor. xii. 25. See Schism.
Divorce, not from the beginning, Gen. i. 27. for what causes permitted to the Israelites, Deut. xxiv. 1. why restricted by deliberate rules rather than entirely abolished, ibid. permission of it under Moses, Matt. v. 31. pernicious frequency of it among Jews and heathens, ibid. different doctrines of the rabbies respecting it, Matt. xix. 3. permitted, not commanded, by the law of Moses, ver. 8. only justifiable on the ground of adultery,

Matt. xix. 8. the exception 'for fornication' not expressed, but implied, in St. Mark and St. Luke, Mark x. 11. the practice of divorcing the husband introduced among the Jews, Mark x. 12. See Repudiation.
Divorced women, why not permitted to be taken again by their former husbands, Deut. xxiv. 4. prudence of the restraint, ibid.
Divorcement, bill of, customs respecting, Is. l. i.
'Do all in the name of the Lord Jesus,' reason of the precept, Col. iii. 17. particular respects in which it should be performed, ibid.
Docetæ, sect of, their doctrine, 1 John iv. how opposed by St. John, ibid.
Doctors, custom of asking them questions on doubtful matters, Luke ii. 46.
Doctrine, description of that prescribed by St. Paul, Tit. ii. 7. truth or falsehood of any how to be judged, 1 John iv. 6.
—— of baptisms, what meant by it, Heb. vi. 2.
—— of Christ, its truth not variable, Heb. xiii. 9.
'—— of the Gospel,' why called the word of Christ, Col. iii. 16.
Doctrines of human invention not to be mixed with the Gospel, 1 Cor. iii. 12. how they will be made manifest, ver. 13.
—— of devils, what it means, 1 Tim. iv. 1. what corrupt doctrines foretold, ibid.
—— of the Gospel, the ground of the Gospel morality, 1 John iv. 21. their effect on the temper of a Christian, ibid.
Doeg, why his presence mentioned at David's eating the shew-bread, 1 Sam. xxi. 7. his cruelty in falling on the priests after falsely accusing them, 1 Sam. xxii. 18. supposed to be Saul's armourbearer, 1 Sam. xxxi. 4. vanity of his boast, Ps. lii. 1. subject of 109th Psalm, Ps. cix. introd.
Doers of the law, who meant by them, Rom. ii. 13. why St. Paul says they shall be justified, ibid.
—— of the word, what we are to understand by it, Jam. i. 22. necessity of being so, ibid. Christians too generally need to be warned of it, ibid.
Doeth righteousness, two scriptural senses of it, 1 John iii. 7. in one sense an infallible mark of our spiritual condition, ibid.
Dog, why spoken of with contempt in the Jewish law, Deut. xxiii. 18. moral intention of the expression, ibid.
—— a peculiarity of the dog, Prov. xxvi. 11.
—— Tobit's, mention of, considered, Tob. v. 16; xi. 6.
Dogs, found in great numbers in cities of the East, Ps. lix. 14.
—— for malicious people, Ps. xxii. 16. who so called by the Jews, Matt. xv. 26; Phil. iii. 2. why the unbelieving Jews so called, ibid. put for wicked men, Rev. xxii. 15.
Dog's head, 'am I a dog's head' explained, 2 Sam. iii. 8.
Dominion, first, what to be understood by, Mic. iv. 8.
—— universal, ascribed to Christ, Heb. i. 2. when as God He possessed it, ibid. when as man invested with it, ibid. inference from His exercise of it, ibid.
Door, opening of, what it signifies, 1 Cor. xvi. 9; Rev. iii. 8.
'—— of the court' explained, Ezek. viii. 7.
'—— posts of the houses,' certain texts fixed on them by the Jews, Deut. vi. 9. their contrivance for the purpose, ibid. their reasons for it, ibid.
Doors of the sea, what put for, Job xxxviii. 8.
Doorkeepers, who they were generally among the Jews, John xviii. 16.
Dora, city near mount Carmel, 1 Mac. xv. 11.
Dothan, its situation, 2 Kings vi. 13.
Doubtful mind, the phrase explained, Luke xii. 29.
Doubts of the disciples about Christ's resurrection, circumstances under which 'some doubted,' Matt. xxviii. 17.
Dove, why sent forth from the ark, Gen. viii. 8. connexion between it and the olive leaf, ver. 11.
—— Ephraim why compared to, Hos. vii. 11.
—— descending like a dove, explained, Matt. iii. 16.
Dove's dung, conjectures respecting the term so translated, 2 Kings vi. 25.
—— eyes, large and beautiful, alluded to, Song of Sol. i. 15.
Doves build in clefts of the rocks, Song of Sol. ii. 14; Jer. xlviii. 28. why found in the vallies, Ezek. vii. 16. remarkable for their melancholy note, Nah. ii. 7. why sold in the temple, Matt. xxi. 12.
'Doves to their windows' explained, Is. lx. 8.
Dowry given by the husband to the wife, Gen. xxix. 18; xxxiv. 12.
—— of Jewish brides, Tob. x. 10.
Doxology in the Lord's Prayer, Matt. vi. 13.
—— at the end of every Psalm, for what reason appointed, 2 Cor. xiii. 14.
—— in the Epistle to the Ephesians, how to be considered, Eph. iii. 21.
—— remark on that addressed to the Lord Jesus, 2 Tim. iv. 18. what St. Paul declared by introducing it, ibid.
Doxologies directed to Christ, 2 Pet. iii. 18.
Drachm, value of it considered, Tob. v. 14.
Drag, in husbandry, explained, Is. xxviii. 27.
Dragon, a serpent, Bel and the Dragon, ver. 23.
—— great, a crocodile, Ezek. xxix. 3.
—— red, figuring the heathen Roman empire, Rev. xii. 3, 7. its seven heads and ten horns explained, ibid. its tail drawing a third part of the stars explained, ver. 4. the dragon deposed, and its wrath, explained, ver. 13, 17. the flood out of its mouth, ver. 15.
Dragons of Africa and Arabia highly poisonous, Deut. xxxii. 33. conjecture concerning the animal there intended, ibid.
—— whales and sea monsters, Ps. cxlviii. 7. word explained, Jer. ix. 11. justness of comparison to, Jer. xiv. 6. great serpents, Mal. i. 3. inhabitants of Arabia, why called, 2 Esd. xv. 29.
—— the place of, for the wilderness, Ps. xliv. 19.
Drams of gold, explanation of the dram, Ezra ii. 69.
Draught of fishes, undoubtedly miraculous, Luke v. 6. what this miracle portended, ver. 10.
Draw, 'except the Father draw him,' its true sense, John vi. 44. frequent mistakes as to this text, ibid.
—— 'I will draw unto thee Sisera,' meaning of, Judg. iv. 7.
—— nigh to God, in what way we are to do so, Jam. iv. 8. inference from the exhortation, ibid.
'Drawing near to God,' meaning explained, Jer. xxx. 21.
Dreams, means whereby God frequently revealed His will in old times, Gen. xx. 3. furnish no direction in modern times, ibid. the intention of God how manifested by them, Gen. xxxvii. 5.
—— information by, when communicated, Numb. xii. 6. frequently obscure, ibid.
—— revelation by, considered, Job iv. 12.
—— heathen custom to obtain them, Is. lxv. 4.
Dress, to present one, what it signified, Dan. v. 29.
Drink, to give to drink among the Arabs, what it denotes, Judg. iv. 19.
'Drink offerings,' custom of, explained, Jer. xliv. 17.
Drinking, custom of among the Persians, Esth. i. 8.
Drinks, liquor of, explained, Numb. vi. 3.
Dromedary, justness of comparison to, Jer. ii. 23.
Dromedaries, doubts about the meaning of the original word, 1 Kings iv. 28.
—— used to carry despatches, very swift, Job ix. 25.
Dropping, continual, explained, Prov. xix. 13.
Dross, to become dross, what it signifies, Ezek. xxii. 19.
Drought, what it signifies, Deut. viii. 15. conjecture concerning it, ibid. calamity incident to land of Israel, Jer. xiv. 1.
—— in Elijah's time, the period of its continuance, 1 Kings xviii. 1. prevailed chiefly in Ahab's territories, ver. 2.
'Drunken with the blood of the saints,' an expression appropriately applied to Christian Rome, Rev. xvii. 6.
Drunkenness reproved, Joel i. 5. to be avoided, Tob. iv. 15. under some circumstances how esteemed by heathens, 1 Thess. v. 7.
Drusilla, account of her, Acts xxiv. 24.
Dry places, what meant, Matt. xii. 43.
Dukes, heads of families, Gen. xxxvi. 15.
Dumah, what country intended, Is. xxi. 11.
Dung used for fuel in the East, Ezek. iv. 12.
Dunghils, what they were, explained, Lam. iv. 5.
Dust, Adam formed of it, Gen. ii. 7. reflections on his formation, ibid.
—— thrown in the East at a criminal, what it means, 2 Sam. xvi. 13. shaking off, the meaning of this action, Matt. x. 14. thrown in the air, what it expresses, Acts xxii. 23.
'—— of the earth,' silver and gold so called, Amos ii. 7.
'—— of Jacob,' meaning of the expression, Numb. xxiii. 10.

Duty, whole, of man, what it is, Eccles. xii. 13; Mic. vi. 8.
—— to man founded on duty to God, Gen. xxxix. 9. towards our neighbour, comprehended in one Christian precept, Matt. vi. 12.
Duties, why the institution of many known ones not noticed by Moses in his account of what passed before the flood, Gen. iv. 26: see also Gen. vii. 2. the neglect of some not to be compounded for by the performance of others, Matt. v. 10.
—— of life easily understood by well disposed persons, Deut. xxx. 14.
—— moral and natural, of more value than ritual, Matt. ix. 13.
—— moral, necessary for salvation, Matt. xxiii. 23.
—— natural or civil, not annulled by Christianity, 1 Cor. vii. 17.
—— relative, our obligation to them on what it depends, 1 Pet. ii. 18.
Dwell, what meant by 'the Spirit of God dwelling in us,' Rom. viii. 9.
—— deep, Arab custom, explained, Jer. xlix. 8.
'Dwelt among us,' the proper import of the word, John i. 14.
Dying of the Lord Jesus, what meant by the Apostles bearing it about in the body, 2 Cor. iv. 10.

E.

Eagerness in the Christian race recommended from the pattern of the Grecian racers, 1 Cor. ix. 24.
Eagle, why the Jews forbidden to eat it, Lev. xi. 13. highly reverenced and worshipped by the Egyptians and others, ibid. its choice of situations for its nest, Numb. xxiv. 21; Job xxxix. 28. similitude of, probably painted by Moses from the life, Deut. xxxii. 11. its youth how said to be renewed, Ps. ciii. 5. flies swiftest and highest of birds, Prov. xxiii. 5. remarks on its flight, Jer. xlviii. 40. when said to be bald, Mic. i. 16.
—— a proper emblem of Cyrus, Is. xlvi. 11. great, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon signified, Ezek. xvii. 3.
Eagles, Chaldean horsemen compared to them, Lament. iv. 19. why representing the Roman armies, Matt. xxiv. 28.
—— wings, comparison to, explained, Exod. xix. 4; Rev. xii. 14; what they denote, Dan. vii. 4.
Ear, bored with an awl, mark of servitude, Exod. xxi. 6.
—— 'to hide the ear' explained, Lament. iii. 56.
—— 'in the ear' explained, Matt. x. 27.
—— 'whoso hath ears to hear, &c.' frequent use and force of the expression, Matt. xi. 15; xiii. 9; Rev. ii. 7.
—— 'to ear the ground,' old English for 'to plough,' or to till, Gen. xlv. 6; Is. xxx. 24.
Earrings used as charms, Gen. xxxv. 4. worn generally by the Arabians, Judg. viii. 24. the vast weight of them taken by the Israelites from their enemies, Judg. viii. 26.
Early rising up, what it denotes, Jer. vii. 13.
Earnest, what an earnest is, 2 Cor. i. 22; Eph. i. 14. how the Spirit of God is given by way of earnest, 2 Cor. i. 22. how spoken figuratively, Ephes. i. 14.
Earnest of the Spirit, what intended by it, 2 Cor. v. 5.
Ears of corn, their number on one stock, Gen. xli. 5.
Earth, why cursed by God, Gen. iii. 18. how peopled and colonized, Gen. ix. 19; xi. 8. the only correct account of its being peopled, Gen. x. 1. divided by Divine appointment, ver. 5. some traditions of this among the Grecians, ibid.
—— its form known to Job, Job xxvi. 7. not stationary or eternal, Ps. civ. 5. considered immovable, Bar. iii. 32.
—— as brass, explained, Lev. xxvi. 19. shall be filled with the glory of the Lord, explained, Numb. xiv. 21. and fulness thereof, what implied by it, Deut. xxxiii. 16. end of, explained, Is. v. 26. 'the earth,' used to signify 'the ungodly,' Is. xi. 4. what it is to be 'written in earth,' Jer. xvii. 13.
—— thrown upon the head, what signified by it, 2 Sam. i. 2.
—— and water, the demand of them explained, Judith ii. 7.
—— used in a confined sense, Gen. iv. 14. signifying either Judea or the world, Mic. i. 2. the great continent of all Asia and Africa, Zeph. ii. 11. land of Judea, Mal. iv. 6.
Earthen vessels, their figurative meaning explained, 2 Cor. iv. 7. ancient custom alluded to, ibid.
Earthly things, desire of, its effect on society, Jam. iv. 1.
Earthquake described, Job ix. 5; Ezek. xxxviii. 19. conjecture concerning a remarkable one, Amos i. 1.
—— signifying a great tumult, 1 Sam. xiv. 15. great, denoting the downfal of idolatry, Rev. vi. 12.
Earthquakes, preceding the destruction of Jerusalem, specified, Matt. xxiv. 7.
East, Jews in description of places suppose the speaker to face the east, Ezek. xvi. 46; Tob. i. 2. omens from it deemed prosperous, Rev. vii. 2.
—— country, the children of, who are meant, 1 Kings iv. 30. men of, who intended, Ezek. xxv. 4. what country meant by it, Matt. ii. 1.
—— and west, meaning of the phrase, Matt. viii. 11.
—— wind, mischief ascribed to it in Scripture, Gen. xli. 6. why pernicious in Egypt, ibid. dry and blasting, Jer. xviii. 17. Nebuchadnezzar compared to, Ezek. xvii. 10.
Easter, the word Passover in Greek why so rendered, Acts xii. 4. derivation of the word, ibid.
—— day, remark on the fitness of a principal part of its service, Col. iii. 1.
Eat, in prophecy, why it means to commit to memory, to digest, Ezek. ii. 8; Rev. x. 9. eating the roll, why visionary, Ezek. iii. 2.
—— meat, mourners among the Hebrews were pressed to do so, 2 Sam. iii. 35.
—— the sons, meaning of the expression considered, Ezek. v. 10.
Eateth up, 'a land that eateth up the inhabitants,' explained, Numb. xiii. 32.
Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, who he was, Jer. xxxviii. 7. reflections on his conduct, Jer. xxxix. 14.
Eber, different significations attributed to the word, Gen. x. 21. what people meant by the term, Numb. xxiv. 24. fulfilment of Balaam's prophecy concerning them, ibid.
Ebionites, what this sect was distinguished for, Matt. i. 23. remark on their mutilating or rejecting all the Gospels, ibid. See Cerinthians.
Ecbatane described, Tob. iii. 7.
Ecclesiastes the Preacher, written by Solomon, upon his repentance, Introd. to Eccles. scope and style of the book, ibid. difficulties in it explained, ibid. it teaches future retribution, ibid. diligent study of it recommended, ibid.
Ecclesiasticus not written by Solomon, Introd. to Ecclus. who the author, ibid. not canonical, ibid. its morality much approved, ibid.
Economy of God in the Gospel dispensation, how briefly expressed, Eph. ii. 18. remarks in order to a distinct conception of it, ibid.
Eden, garden of, used proverbially for place of pleasure, Joel ii. 3. expressing the happy state under the Gospel, Is. li. 3.
—— trees of, put for 'kings of the East,' Ezek. xxxi. 9, 16.
—— a port in Arabia Felix, Ezek. xxvii. 23.
—— a place in Syria, Amos i. 5.
Edification, St. Paul had a great respect to it, 1 Cor. x. 23. meaning of the word, ibid. how used by the Apostle, ibid. erroneous notion of the word in modern times, ibid. and Eph. iv. 16. what that edification is which St. Paul so much urges, 1 Cor. x. 23. it should be our daily study to promote it, ibid. what it consists in, Eph. iv. 16. what is contrary to it, ibid. how to be produced, ibid. and how prevented, ibid.
Edify, a metaphorical expression, Rom. xiv. 19. what it signifies, Acts ix. 31; Rom. xiv. 19.
Edom, what it signifies, Gen. xxv. 30. why the country so called, ibid. bordering on what countries, ibid. signifies the same country with Seir, Judg. v. 4. conquered by David, in fulfilment of Balaam's prophecy, Numb. xxiv. 18. figurative accomplishment of the prophecy, ver. 19.
—— Christ coming from, explained, Is. lxiii. 1.
—— wilderness of, why the kings of Israel and Judah pass through it in their way against Moab, 2 Kings iii. 8.
Edomites, character of the nation, Gen. xxvii. 40. why not to be meddled with by the Israelites on their passage to Canaan, Deut. ii. 4. their conquests why mentioned, ver. 12. how they treated the Israelites on their passage to Canaan, ver. 29. when a deputy appointed over them by the king of Judah, 1 Kings xxii. 47. how prophecies fulfilled in them, Jer. xlix. 19. their hatred of the Jews, Ezek. xxxv. 5. never recovered their country, ver. 14. when the name extinguished, Mal. i. 4.

'Effectual fervent prayer,' what it denotes, Jam. v. 16. to whom properly applicable, ibid. general observation on it, ibid.
Eglon, his devout reverence for the name of God, Judg. iii. 20. a reproach to those Christians who behave with irreverence towards Him, ibid.
Egypt, the situation of, in the time of Joseph, Gen. xlii. 9. its position in point of security, ibid. Joseph's policy with respect to the people, Gen. xlvii. 21. and to the priests, ver. 22. kings of it why not mentioned from the time of Moses till Solomon, 1 Kings iii. 1. celebrated for wisdom, 1 Kings iv. 30. in Solomon's time a place of refuge for discontented persons of Israel, 1 Kings xi. 40. allusion of Rabshakeh in comparing it to a broken reed, 2 Kings xviii. 21. why profane writers do not mention horses there, Is. xxxi. 1. God's directions respecting it, Jer. xlii. 19. Jeremiah's prophecies against it, when delivered, Jer. xlvi. 2. in what time it recovered from Nebuchadnezzar's invasion, ver. 26. abounded with horses, Ezek. xvii. 15. became the basest of kingdoms, Ezek. xxix. 15. depended for fertility on the overflowing of the Nile, Ezek. xxx. 12. Israelites to be carried there captive, Hos. vii. 16; ix. 3, 6. it rains there seldom, Exod. ix. 18; Zech. xiv. 18.
—— 'after the manner of Egypt' explained, Is. x. 24, 26.
—— 'to return to it' explained, Hos. viii. 13.
—— river of, most probably the Nile, Gen. xv. 18.
Egyptians, great idolaters, Exod. iii. 13. visited by peculiar plagues, ver. 20. why they ought to have respected the God of the Hebrews, Exod. v. 3. what inference they should have drawn from Aaron's rod, Exod. vii. 12. worshipped the Nile, ver. 20. delicate in their outward habits, ibid. looked upon fish as sacred and worshipped them, ibid. affected great external purity, Exod. viii. 16. shewed an idolatrous regard to flies, ver. 21. esteemed it a profanation to sacrifice cattle, ver. 26. held the ox, cow, and other animals in idolatrous estimation, Exod. ix. 3; Deut. iv. 18. had many gods supposed to preside over medicine, Exod. ix. 8. sacrificed human victims, ver. 10. were superstitious above all people, ver. 18. worshipped the elements, ver. 18, 23. and the sun, Exod. x. 22. their consternation at the plague of darkness strongly represented, ver. 23. drew on themselves their plagues by their sins, Exod. xi. 5. most frantick in their grief, ver. 6. grievousness of their punishment, Exod. xii. 29. how disordered in the Red sea, Exod. xiv. 25, 27. reflections thereon, ver. 27. in what their idolatry consisted, Deut. iv. 16. scriptural allusions to their idolatry, ibid. grossness of it, Ezek. xvi. 26. their power described, Ps. lxviii. 30. their custom of holding a publick trial over deceased persons, 2 Chron. xxviii. 27.
—— a pretended Egyptian prophet, described, Acts xxi. 38.
Ehud, why he wore his sword on the right side, Judg. iii. 16. his message from God to Eglon, ver. 20. in what light his killing of Eglon is to be considered, ver. 21.
Ekron, its situation, 2 Kings i. 2.
Elah, valley of, described from a modern traveller, 1 Sam. xvii. 2.
Elam, kingdom of, described, Is. xxi. 2; Jer. xlix. 34. celebrated for archers, Jer. xlix. 35. what country it comprehends, Dan. viii. 2.
Elath, or Eloth, the great trade carried on from thence by the Jews, 1 Kings ix. 26. rebuilt by Azariah, 2 Kings xiv. 22. the importance of this naval station on the Red sea shewn, ibid. the loss of it very serious to the Jews, 2 Kings xvi. 6. the great trade they carried on from thence, ibid.
Eldad and Medad, remarks on their prophesying, Numb. xi. 26.
Elder, a name of dignity at all times, Gen. l. 7.
—— or Presbyter, uses of the word in the New Testament, Acts xiv. 23; xxi. 18; Phil. i. 1; 1 Tim. v. 1, 17; 1 Pet. v. 1. reasons for a particular interpretation, 1 Tim. v. 1. remark on St. Peter's calling himself also an elder, 1 Pet. v. 1. why a title suitable to the Apostles, 2 John 1.
Elders, in the Old Testament, why so called, Deut. xix. 12. early origin of their authority, ibid. and its continuance, ibid.
—— in History of Susannah referred to, Jer. xxix. 23.
—— of the people, who are meant, Matt. xxi. 23.
—— meaning pastors of the several churches, Acts xiv. 23; James v. 14; Tit. i. 5. they received regular ordination, Acts xiv. 23.
Elders of the church at Ephesus, uncertain who are meant, Acts xx. 17.
—— four and twenty, signifying the ministers and pastors of the New Testament, Rev. iv. 4. why clad in white with crowns of gold, ibid. why they cast their crowns, ver. 11.
Eleazar, why commanded to take the censers of Korah and his company, Numb. xvi. 37. why invested with Aaron's garments, Numb. xx. 26. why joined in commission with Moses, Numb. xxvi. 1. why mention made of his ministering in Aaron's stead, Deut. x. 6. his character considered, 2 Mac. vi. 31.
Elect, meaning Christians in general, Matt. xxiv. 22; Luke xviii. 7.
—— for what persons used, Rom. viii. 33; 1 Pet. i. 2. who styled so by the Apostolical Fathers, 1 Pet. i. 2. what the Apostle refers to by the term, ibid. proofs of his meaning from the whole tenour of his Epistles, ibid. how they may fail of an entrance into heaven, 2 Pet. i. 10.
—— of God, how spoken, Matt. xxii. 14; Col. iii. 12. has no regard to absolute election, ibid. why Christians called 'God's elect,' Tit. i. 1. Christians not absolutely chosen to eternal life, John vi. 37.
'Elected together with you' explained, 1 Pet. v. 13.
Election, 'the election,' who so called, Rom. xi. 7.
—— not of individuals to eternal life, but national election spoken of, Rom. xi. 28. twofold of the Jews mentioned by St. Paul, ibid. opinion of the Jews concerning their own, Eph. i. 4. reason of St. Paul's declaration concerning that of the Gentiles, ibid. the latter not a security against failing of salvation, ver. 5. of the Philippians to eternal life, no opinion concerning it expressed by St. Paul, Phil. i. 6. controversy concerning it, when unknown, 1 Thess. i. 4.
—— of God, what it means, 1 Thess. i. 4. no absolute election intended, ibid. similar to that described by Moses, ibid. why stated to the Thessalonians, ibid.
Elements, ceremonies of the law why called 'weak and beggarly elements,' Gal. iv. 9.
—— of the world, why the Jewish rites were so called, Gal. iv. 3.
Elephants, their nature described, 1 Mac. i. 17. irritated by colour of blood, 1 Mac. vi. 34. covered with armour, ver. 43.
Elephantiasis, probably the disease intended by Moses, Deut. xxviii. 35. description of it, ibid.
—— Job's complaint, Job ii. 7. its effects, Job iii. 1; vii. 5; xxx. 17. attended by distressing dreams, Job vii. 4. death caused in it by suffocation, Job xvii. 1. a symptom of it, Job xix. 20. the skin turns black, Job xxx. 30.
Eleutherus, river, its modern name, 1 Mac. xi. 7.
Eli, described as sitting on an elevated seat, and for what purpose, 1 Sam. i. 9. his too great indulgence to his children, 1 Sam. ii. 12, 23. his principal excuse for this fault, ibid. the coldness of his reproof to them, ibid. God's decree in favour of his family revoked, ver. 30. his humble submission to the Divine will, 1 Sam. iii. 18. his commendable grief for the loss of the ark, 1 Sam. iv. 18. extenuation of his offence, ibid. his general character, and reflections on his history, ibid.
Eliab, his reproof of David, explained, 1 Sam. xvii. 28.
Eliakim, why the king of Egypt called him Jehoiakim, 2 Kings xxiii. 34.
Elias, Jewish tradition that he was to come in person before the Messiah, Mal. iv. 5; Matt. xi. 14; xvii. 10. who that Elias was that was to precede the Messiah, Mal. iv. 5. no future Elias is to be expected by Christians, ver. 6. See Elijah.
Eliashib, doubts whether he was high priest, Neh. xiii. 4. the scandal he brought on religion, ver. 5.
Eliezer, Abraham's steward, who he was, Gen. xv. 2.
—— son of Moses, state of his posterity in Solomon's time, Deut. xxxiv. 10.
Elijah, why called the Tishbite, 1 Kings xvii. 1. his general character, ibid. declares God's judgments in bringing a famine on the land, ibid. in what sense this calamity was brought on by Elijah's prayers, ibid. why fed by the ravens, ver. 6. the widow woman how disposed by God's providence to entertain him, ver. 9. the miracle of the barrel of meal, ver. 16. his courage in going to Ahab, 1 Kings xviii. 2. why ordered so to do by God, ver. 1. his boldness in delivering his message as an ambassadour of God, ver. 18. his call to the people not to halt between two opinions, ver. 21. his assurance from God that He would answer him by fire, ver. 24. his mocking the prophets of Baal not to be blamed, ver. 27. for whom he performed his sacrifice, ver. 31. how he prevents all suspicion of fraud, ver. 33. the design of the miracle of fire falling from heaven, ver. 38. why he puts the false prophets to death, ver. 40. his humility in his attitude of prayer, ver. 42. for what purpose 'he ran before Ahab,' ver. 46. in what sense 'the hand of the Lord was with him,' ibid. his weakness of faith in flying from Jezebel's threats, 1 Kings xix. 3. and want of confidence in the Divine protection, ver. 4. comforted and strengthened by an angel, ver. 5. reproved by God for his fears, ver. 9. his profession of zeal for God's service, ver. 10. the several harbingers of the Divine appearance to him, ver. 11. the Divine appearance on Horeb, ibid. different speculations respecting it, ibid. his mistake corrected in saying that he was the only worshipper of the true God left in Israel, ver. 18. why he brought down fire from heaven on those whom Ahaziah sent to apprehend him, 2 Kings i. 10. a striking instance of his faith and obedience to God, ver. 15. the design of his words to Elisha, 2 Kings ii. 2. for what purpose he was translated, ver. 12. his ascension a type of that of Christ, ibid. of what it was intended to assure the faithful, ibid. explanations respecting the writing that came from him to Jehoram, 2 Chron. xxi. 12. peculiarity in his sacrifice accounted for, Lev. xvii. 3. cause of his wearing sackcloth, Is. xx. 2. remarks on his praying for drought and for rain, Jam. v. 17.

Elim, why particularly noticed, Exod. xv. 27. its present condition, ibid.

Elisha, how appointed to fulfil the Divine purposes if not fulfilled by Hazael and Jehu, 1 Kings xix. 17. what to be inferred from his plowing with twelve yoke of oxen, ver. 19. how consecrated to the prophetical office, ibid. his request for a double portion of Elijah's spirit, 2 Kings ii. 9. his abrupt speech when Elijah was taken from him, ver. 12. why he rent his clothes, ibid. his prayer to God to assist him with His power, ver. 14. his consent to the offer of 'the sons of the Prophets' to go and search for Elijah, ver. 16, 17. his miracle of sweetening the waters, ver. 21. he is mocked by the children of Beth-el, ver. 23. the design of their prompt punishment, ibid. why he called for a minstrel, 2 Kings iii. 15. the effect probably produced upon him, ibid. his miracle of filling the valley with water without rain, ver. 17. his multiplying the widow's oil, and her behaviour thereupon, 2 Kings iv. 7. had probably cured others of leprosy before Naaman, 2 Kings v. 3. maintains the dignity of a Prophet of God, ver. 10. why he orders Naaman to wash seven times, ibid. his object in curing Naaman, ver. 16. the purport of his answer to Naaman about the worship of Rimmon, ver. 19. the purpose intended by the several miracles recorded of him, 2 Kings vi. 1. his fame in Syria spread from the cure of Naaman, ver. 12. his courage derived from trust in God, ver. 16. obtains for his servant a sight of the heavenly powers placed in their defence, ver. 17. the blindness with which he smote the Syrians, ver. 18. his humanity and his policy in kindly treating the Syrians, ver. 22. why called by Jehoram 'the son of Shaphat,' ver. 31. what meant by 'the house' in which he sat, and who the elders that were with him, ver. 32. the purpose of God in enabling him to foretell the deliverance of Samaria, 2 Kings vii. 1. why he sent to anoint Jehu, 2 Kings ix. 1. reflections on his sickness, 2 Kings xiii. 14. the meaning of his symbolical action, ver. 15. the cause of his wrath at Joash's staying his hand, ver. 19. the miracle performed at his tomb, ver. 21. this miracle prophetical of the resurrection of Christ, ibid. how the memory of this Prophet should be esteemed in the church, ibid.

Elishah, isles of, explained, Ezek. xxvii. 7.

Elkanah, his two wives, 1 Sam. i. 2. his love to Hannah not impaired by her barrenness, ver. 5.

Ellipsis, peculiar beauty in the use of this form of speech, Dan. iii. 15.

Eloi, difference between this and 'Eli,' Mark xv. 34.

Eloquence, the value of it, Prov. xvi. 21.

Elymais, temple of, its wealth, 1 Mac. vi. 1. situation of the place, Acts ii. 9.

—— probably kingdom of Elam, Jer. xlix. 34.

Elymas, signification of the word, Acts xiii. 8.

Elymeans, their probable situation, Judith i. 6.

Embalming, manner of, in Egypt, Gen. l. 2., excellence of the Egyptians in this art, ibid. specimens of it in these countries, ibid. antiquity of the custom, 2 Chron. xvi. 14. the quantity of spices employed in it by the Jews, John xix. 39.

Emerods, character of the disease, 1 Sam. v. 6. the shape of the golden emerods variously conjectured, 1 Sam. vi. 4. a heathen and Romish practice illustrating it, ibid.

Eminence, duties of persons in those stations, Job xxix. 14.

Emmaus, its situation, 1 Mac. iii. 40; Luke xxiv. 13.

Empires, reflections on the four great, Dan. ii. 49.

Employment the duty of all men, 2 Thess. iii. 10. what required from different classes, ibid. a religious duty, ibid. reflections on the proper acceptation of a precept relating to it, ibid.

Encampment, where usually made in the East, Job xi. 18.

Enchantment explained, Lev. xix. 26.

—— against Jacob explained, Numb. xxiii. 23.

Enchantments, what the original term imports, Exod. vii. 12 what implied by Balaam's seeking for them, Numb. xxiv. 1.

'End of the sabbath' explained, Matt. xxviii. 1.

—— of the commandment, why charity so called, 1 Tim. i. 5.

—— of the world, in what sense used, Heb. ix. 26.

'—— of their conversation' explained, Heb. xiii. 7.

'—— of all things is at hand,' what it signifies, 1 Pet. iv. 7.

Endeavours, the exercise of them supposed by God's promises, 1 Thess. v. 24

En-dor, its situation, 1 Sam. xxviii. 7.

—— witch of, the general presumption and the belief of Saul respecting her, 1 Sam. xxviii. 7. different opinions respecting her raising the ghost of Samuel, ver. 12.

Ends of the earth, probable meaning of it, Is. xli. 9.

En-eglaim, where situate, Ezek. xlvii. 10.

Enemies of the Jews had no claim to Divine assistance from their own merits, Deut. xxxii. 32.

—— of Israel, name for those who oppose Messiah, Is. xxv. 10.

—— hatred of, inculcated by the scribes, Matt. v. 43.

—— love of, commanded by our Lord, ver. 44. how to be understood, ibid. not in a sense that is extravagant or impracticable, ibid.

En-gedi, its situation and meaning of the name, 1 Sam. xxiii. 29.

Engines to shoot arrows and stones, the earliest mention of them, their great power and effect, 2 Chron. xxvi. 15.

Enjoyment, sober, from what it results, Eccles. ii. 24.

Enlightened state, an obligation to virtuous living, 1 Thess. v. 7.

Enmity between Jew and Gentile, how removed, Eph. ii. 15. between them both and God, ver. 16.

Enoch, reflections on his history, Gen. v. 22, 24. 'was not,' explained, ver. 24. alluded to, Wisd. iv. 10. remark on St. Jude's account of him, Jude ver. 14. why called the seventh from Adam, ibid.

Enos, meaning of his name, Gen. iv. 26.

En-rogel, its situation, 1 Kings i. 9.

Ensign, why 'the being for an ensign' is equivalent to ruling, Rom. xv. 12.

Ensigns of Jerusalem, what, Is. xlix. 16.

Enthusiasts, a distinguishing character of, Phil. iii. 13. very opposite to the morality of the Gospel, ibid. the latter exemplified in St. Paul, ibid. See Fanaticism.

Entrance of Christ into Jerusalem, when it took place, Matt. xxi. 1. reflections upon it, ver. 9.

—— into heaven by the blood of Jesus, why called 'a new and living way,' Heb. x. 20.

Entry, the third, in the house of the Lord, where it was, Jer. xxxviii. 14.

Envy, the strength of this passion and difficulty of subduing it, 1 Sam. xix. 20.

Epaphras, why sent to Rome, and his treatment there, Introd. to Coloss. who he was, ibid.

EPAPHRODITUS, remarks on his quality, Phil. ii. 25.
EPENETUS, why called the firstfruits of Achaia unto Christ, Rom. xvi. 5. perhaps one of Stephanus' family, ibid.
EPHAH, son of Midian, why his dromedaries noticed, Is. lx. 7.
Ephah, a Jewish measure, Is. v. 10; Ezek. xlv. 11. by which they sold, Amos viii. 5.
EPHESIAN disciples, in what sense they had not heard of the Holy Ghost, Acts xix. 2. the existence of the Holy Ghost how pointed out to them, ver. 3. persuaded to embrace Christ's baptism, ver. 4.
EPHESIANS, why St. Paul particularly gives thanks for their steadfastness, Eph. i. 15.
—— Epistle to, question concerning the person to whom addressed, Introd. to Eph. authorities for considering it as written to the Ephesians, ibid. object of it, ibid. when and where written, ibid. by whom sent, ibid. its character, ibid. and contents, ibid.
—— how St. Paul's sufferings were an honour to them, Eph. iii. 13. why particularly cautioned against idolatry and its mischievous consequences, Eph. iv. 17. why exhorted to shun several particular sins, Eph. v. 3. in what sense not to let them be named amongst them, ibid. why cautioned to let no man deceive them, ver. 6. why represented with great propriety as combating the devil and his angels, Eph. vi. 12.
EPHESUS, its situation and description, Acts xviii. 19; Introd. to Eph.; Rev. ii. 1. in what sense styled 'worshipper of the goddess Diana,' Acts xix. 35. St. Paul's long abode at it mentioned and accounted for, Introd. to Eph.; 1 Cor. xvi. 9. consequence of his success there, 1 Cor. xvi. 9. for what famous, Introd. to Eph. character of its inhabitants, ibid. Christian converts in it, ibid. for what distinguished, ibid.
—— church of, why first addressed, Rev. ii. 1. description of Ephesus and present state, ibid. its works approved, ver. 2. the meaning of its having left its first love, ver. 4. threat against it accomplished, ver. 5.
Ephod, whence derived, Exod. xxviii. 6. described, ibid.
EPHRAIM, made the head of a tribe, Gen. xlviii. 6. preferred by Jacob to Manasseh, ver. 14. in what respect superiour to him, ver. 19. his tribe called the tribe of Joseph, ibid. its rapid increase, ibid. what was the portion given to him by Jacob, ver. 22.
—— tribe of, for what reasons the ark remained so long in this tribe, Josh. xviii. 1. their haughty and quarrelsome temper, Judg. xii. 1. why the test of saying Shibboleth imposed upon them, ver. 6. the terrible slaughter of them for their pride and insolence, ibid. their envy of the tribe of Judah, 1 Kings xii. 15.
—— why called David's helmet, Ps. lx. 7. why particularly mentioned with Benjamin and Manasseh, Ps. lxxx. 2.
—— whole seed of, meaning the ten tribes, Jer. vii. 15. put for ten tribes, Is. vii. 2. the prediction that Ephraim shall be broken, ver. 8, 9. why reckoned head of ten tribes, and why it signifies whole kingdom of Israel, Ezek. xxxvii. 16.
—— an image of, an inconsistent character, Hos. vii. 8.
—— city of, its situation, John xi. 54.
—— wood of, why so named, 2 Sam. xviii. 6. in what sense the wood devoured more people than the sword, ver. 8.
EPHRATAH, why Jerusalem comprehended in it, Ps. cxxxii. 6.
EPHRATH, the same as Beth-lehem Ephrata, Gen. xxxv. 16.
EPHRATHITES, why called of Beth-lehem-judah, Ruth i. 2.
Epicureans, their general tenets, Acts xvii. 18. to what they attributed the formation of the world, ver. 24. from what they derived the origin of mankind, ver. 26. what may be called their manual or creed, 1 Cor. xv. 32.
EPIMENIDES probably alluded to, Tit. i. 12.
Episcopal power, example of the complete exercise of it in the primitive Church, Introd. to 1 Tim. par. 5.
Epistles of commendation, what custom in the primitive Church they allude to, 2 Cor. iii. 1. how applied by St. Paul to the Corinthians, ver. 2, 3.
—— seven Catholick, by whom and why so called, Introd. to Cath. Epist.
—— to the seven Churches, their general contents, Rev. ii. introd. similarity of the form of all of them, ibid.
Epistolary writings, unavoidable obscurity of some passages in them, Gal. iv. 13.
Equality, not an ordinance of Divine Providence, 2 Cor. viii. 14. how far Christianity seems to require it, ibid.
—— of Christ with God, Phil. ii. 6, 7. His subsistence in the Divine nature, ibid.
Errour, why used for idolatry, Rom. i. 27. what meant by that recompense of it that was meet, ibid.
Errours of inferiour consequence, distinguished from fundamental ones, 1 Cor. iii. 15.
—— of the people, what sort of sins intended, Heb. ix. 7.
ESAU, meaning of his name, Gen. xxv. 25. in his descendants the Edomites the prophecy to Rebekah fulfilled, ver. 23. his profaneness in slighting his birthright, ibid. and in marrying with the Hittites, Gen. xxvi. 34. promise to him by Isaac how and when fulfilled, Gen. xxvii. 39, 40. difference between his and Jacob's benediction, ibid. considerations in his favour, Gen. xxxiii. 16. why said to be a profane person, Heb. xii. 16. what meant by his having found no place of repentance, &c. ver. 17. application of his case in each particular to Christians, ibid. in what sense God hated him, Mal. i. 2. the government kept up by his posterity in Edom, 1 Chron. i. 43.
—— the mount of, mount Seir, Obad. ver. 9.
ESDRAS, first book of, not written by Ezra, never extant in Hebrew, Introd. to 1 Esdras—publickly read in Greek Church, but not as canonical, ibid. contains improbable circumstances, ibid. 1st and 2d books of Esdras why called 3d and 4th, ibid.
—— second book of, not found in Hebrew or Greek, Introd. to 2 Esdras—never admitted into Hebrew canon, ibid. represented by St. Jerome as Apocryphal, ibid. written after the promulgation of the Gospel, not written by one author, ibid. times and facts confounded in it, 2 Esdras i. 22.
ESDRELOM, where situated, Judith i. 8.
ESHCOL, meaning and reason of the name, Numb. xiii. 24.
Espousing, used to denote the entering into covenant with God, 2 Cor. xi. 2.
Established Church, separating from on pretence of edifying, its absurdity, Eph. iv. 16. See Church.
Estate, the title of one among the Jews how conveyed, Ruth iv. 7.
Estates, why soon wasted, Prov. xxviii. 8.
Esteem, in what particular we are to esteem others better than ourselves, Phil. ii. 3.
ESTHER, book of, why much esteemed by the Jews, Introd. why so called, ibid. opinions concerning the author of it, ibid. proofs of its genuineness, ibid. its contents, ibid. probable date of the history, ibid. on what occasion read by the Jews, Esth. ix. 28. sort of copy then used, ibid.
—— remark on her two names, Esth. ii. 7. reflection on the interposition of Providence in her favour, ver. 17. how distinguished from the other wives of Ahasuerus, ibid. reflection on her regard for Mordecai, ver. 20. reflections on her piety and the greatness of her character, Esth. iv. 16. supposed by some to have procured favours from Artaxerxes to Ezra, Ezra vii. 6.
—— history of, instances of God's providence interposing in it, Esth. iii. 7. v. 8; vi. 1, 2, 10. reflections on the justice, Esth. vii. 9. and manner of such interposition, ver. 10.
—— rest of chapters of, doubtful whether in Hebrew, not canonical, Introd. to rest of Esth.
Eternity, the blessings of, Ps. cl. 6.
Eternal Spirit, how to be understood, Heb. ix. 14.
ETHAM, its situation, Exod. xiii. 20; xv. 22.
ETHIOPIA, two different countries meant by the name, Gen. ii. 13; Numb. xii. 1; Is. xx; Acts viii. 27. See CUSH.
ETHIOPIAN, sometimes signifying Arabian, Numb. xii. 1; 2 Chron. xiv. 9; Jer. xlvi. 9.
Eunuch, (of Ethiopia,) his extraordinary piety, Acts viii. 27. his diligence in studying the Scriptures a pattern for Christians, ver. 28. his belief in Jesus as the Messiah, including faith in His passion, ver. 37. his joy, ver. 39.
Eunuchs, meaning officers in the court of the king of Babylon, 2 Kings xx. 18; Jer. xxix. 2.
EUPHRATES, its Hebrew name, Gen. ii. 14. how called in Scripture and why, 1 Kings iv. 21. a false conceit of the Jews concerning it, 2 Esd. xiii. 44.
—— sixth vial poured upon it, Rev. xvi. 12. what may be signified by the drying it up, Rev. xvi. 12. doubtful whether real Euphrates be meant, or a mystical river, ibid.

Euroclydon, what wind designated by this name, Acts xxvii. 14.
Evangelist, why Philip so styled, Acts xxi. 8.
—— who called by this name, Rom. xii. 7. proper notion of the term in the New Testament, 2 Tim. iv. 5.
Evangelists, their veracity and candour in recording their own faults, Matt. xxvi. 56, 75. in recording facts unfavourable to their cause, John vii. 5; Matt. xxviii. 17; Mark vi. 3. in recording the human weaknesses of Christ, John xi. 35. in recording the faults of the Apostles, John xx. 25. never throw in remarks to anticipate objections, Matt. xxviii. 17. write without art or caution, ibid. their strict impartiality, Mark iii. 21. air of reality in their narratives, Mark ix. 24. their calmness in relating our Lord's sufferings, Mark xv. 34. no appearance of fanaticism about them, ibid. slight variations in them, such as occur in all writers, Luke v. 2. genuine marks of truth and simplicity in them, John xix. 27. general agreement in their narratives, John xx. 1.
—— instances of slight variation in their narratives explained, Mark i. 7; Luke vii. 3. an undesigned agreement in the narratives of St. Matthew and St. John, Matt. xxvi. 61. St. Matthew and St. Mark observe less regular order than the others, Mark ix. 38. probable reason of the three first omitting the history of raising Lazarus, John xi. 1.
—— have recorded every thing necessary for our faith and practice, John xxi. 25. have not recorded all that Christ said and did, Acts xx. 35. See Apostles, Scriptures.
Eve, meaning of the name, Gen. iii. 20. the giving of it an act of faith in Adam, ibid. her aggravated sin in eating the forbidden fruit, Gen. iii. 6. her fall a warning to others, ver. 13. her faith testified at the birth of Cain, Gen. iv. 1. her excuse alluded to, Rom. vii. 11. extent of her transgression, 1 Tim. ii. 14.
Events, two, though distant in time spoken of together, Zech. xiv. 3.
Evening, when it began among the Jews, and why, Gen. i. 5; Matt. viii. 16.
Evenings, a former and a latter among the Jews, Exod. xii. 6.
Ever, the phrase 'for ever,' meaning 'till the end of the world,' Gen. xiii. 15. 'for many successive generations,' 1 Sam. iii. 13; 2 Kings v. 27. 'for a long time,' 1 Sam. xiii. 13.
Everlasting, how to be understood, Gen. xvii. 8.
—— hills, unto the utmost bound of, what the phrase may imply, Gen. xlix. 26.
—— priesthood promised by God to Phinehas, remarks on the meaning of it, Numb. xxv. 13.
—— life, the promise of it the greatest incitement to obedience, Matt. xxv. 46. none but God could promise it, ibid.
'Evidence of things not seen,' how faith is said to be so, Heb. xi. 1.
Eves of festivals, observation of them from Jewish Church, Judith viii. 6.
Evil, no motive justifies the commission of it, Gen. xix. 8. infection of it, Numb. xvi. 2. not to be done that good may come, Rom. iii. 8. no pretensions can excuse it, ibid. the continuance of it permitted by Providence, Rev. xxii. 11.
—— and good, vicissitude of, why ordained by God, Exod. xvii. 1.
—— sense of, what effects it should produce, Numb. xxii. 27.
—— the day of, expression explained, Prov. xvi. 4.
—— we are not to wish it to those who do it to us, Ps. xxxv. 24. 'cease to do evil' explained, Is. i. 16, 17. 'to call evil good &c.' explained, Is. v. 20.
—— our only, what it is, Ezek. vii. 5.
—— put for affliction and trouble, Amos iii. 6. in the sense of 'unkind,' 'grudging,' Matt. xx. 15.
'—— beasts' explained, Tit. i. 12.
Evil-merodach, whence his name, 2 Kings xxv. 27. his intolerable government, ver. 30. St. Jerome's account of him, Jer. lii. 31.
Evil spirit, ancient opinion concerning him, Eph. ii. 2. what ascribed to him by St. Paul, ibid. See Satan, Devil.
Exalted, how God hath highly exalted Christ, Phil. ii. 9.
Exaltation of Christ, in what it consists, Heb. xii. 2. how long He will remain in that state, Heb. xii. 2. what meant to be intimated by it, 1 Pet. iii. 22.
Examination, frequent, of our own heart necessary, Prov. iv. 23.
Example, bad, evil effects of, Exod. xxxii. 4.
—— of Christ, a daily pattern to all men, Heb. ii. 18. one of innocence and patience, 1 Pet. ii. 21. and universal holiness, ibid. peculiar propriety of that set by Him, ibid. derived from the union of the two natures in His person, ibid. motives to different virtues supplied by that consideration, ibid. See Christ.
Examples, remarks on the Scriptures proposing to us those of God, of Christ, and of men like ourselves, Jam. v. 10. reflections on the use to be made of the last, ibid.
Excess in things indifferent condemned, Amos vi. 6.
—— what it means, Eph. v. 18. what it probably alludes to, ibid.
Excommunication, the three sorts of it among the Jews, John ix. 22.
Executed persons, to bury them without permission highly criminal in the East, Tob. i. 19.
Executioner in the East, carries and executes death warrant immediately, what it illustrates, Prov. xvi. 14.
Executions in the East, custom of producing the head of the person executed, Matt. xiv. 8. performed without the city, Acts vii. 58.
Exhortation, how distinguished from teaching, Rom. xii. 8.
Exhortations to exertion and improvement, what they are a proof of, Jam. iv. 8.
Exodus, book of, meaning of the name, Introd. to Exod. contents of the book, ibid. proofs of its authenticity, ibid. remarks on the order observed in it, ibid. an incident in it mentioned in the New Testament, Exod. xix. 19.
Exorcists, who were so called, Acts xix. 13. Jewish caution against them, 1 Cor. xii. 3.
Experience, proper meaning of the word so rendered, Rom. v. 4. its figurative meaning, ibid.
Expiation, day of, reason of the particular day chosen for it, Lev. xvi. 29. with what solemnity observed, ibid. the only fast appointed by Moses, ibid. by what the expiation was effected, ibid. from what sins, ver. 30. See Atonement.
Expressions used for Gospel times, taken from Prophets' times, Is. lvi. 7.
—— too high for immediate subject, denote a remote one, Is. xlv. 8.
Expressly, what meant by the Spirit so speaking, 1 Tim. iv. 1.
Extemporary prayers, misapprehension of a text quoted in favour of them, 1 Cor. xiv. 15. not encouraged by any thing in Scripture, ibid. no reason for supposing them derived from the peculiar inspiration of the Holy Ghost, ibid. or more directed by Him than established forms, ibid. or more acceptable to God, ibid.
—— praises, required as much as extemporary prayers, 1 Cor. xiv. 15.
External rites, designed to inculcate inward holiness, Deut. x. 16.
—— privileges without obedience not available to salvation, Rom. ii. 27.
Extreme unction, how called and administered by the Romish church, Jam. v. 15. no scriptural foundation for it, ibid.
Eye, bountiful, explained, Prov. xxii. 9.
—— evil, for malicious person, Prov. xxiii. 6.
—— the apple of, explained, Ps. xvii. 8. See Apple.
—— 'apple of God's eye,' who are so called, Zech. ii. 8.
—— the emblem of Providence, Zech. iii. 9.
—— 'the light of the body,' metaphorical sense of the expression, Matt. vi. 22.
—— hath not seen, &c. of what state immediately spoken, 1 Cor. ii. 9.
Eyes opened, a figurative phrase, explained, Gen. iii. 5.
—— closing of, by whom performed among the ancients, Gen. xlvi. 4. meaning of God's assurance to Jacob on this subject, ibid.
—— 'his eyes were enlightened' explained, 1 Sam. xiv. 27.
—— 'whose eyes are open' explained, Numb. xxiv. 3.
—— to shut, the phrase explained, Prov. xvi. 30.
—— to open, the phrase explained, Prov. xx. 13.
—— wanton, explained, Is. iii. 16.

Eyes upon the truth explained, Jer. v. 3.
—— putting out of the, capital punishment in the East, Jer. xxxix. 7.
—— of the cherubim, what they denote, Ezek. i. 18.
—— 'hid their eyes from' explained, Ezek. xxii. 26.
—— 'full of eyes,' denoting wisdom and foresight, Rev. iv. 6.
Ezekiel, third of the great Prophets, contemporary with Jeremiah, of the sacerdotal race, Introd. to Ezek. carried captive to Babylon, ibid. when he began to prophesy, ibid. put to death for his boldness, ibid. executed his trust with fidelity, ibid. his visions hard to be understood, ibid. his style, ibid.
—— whether he literally performed what is said, Ezek. xii. 3. how he was a sign, Ezek. xxiv. 27. lived to see the event of his prophecy concerning Egypt, Ezek. xxix. 21. the people struck with his eloquence, Ezek. xxxiii. 32.
Ezion-gaber or geber, its situation, Deut. ii. 1; 1 Kings ix. 26. the trade carried on from thence to Persia, India, &c. ibid.
Ezra, book of, its contents, Introd. to Ezra—partly written in Chaldee, ibid. composed with spirit and fidelity, ibid.
—— his general history, Introd. to Ezra—in what sense called son of Seraiah, Ezra vii. 1. why called a ready scribe, ver. 6. the great favours granted to him by king Artaxerxes, ibid. his thanksgiving to God for this, ver. 27. why he waited in the country of Ahava, Ezra viii. 15. this illustrated by a modern practice of Eastern caravans, ibid. his sending for some Levites, ver. 15, 16. proclamation of a fast, ver. 22. his trust in the Divine protection, ver. 23. his charge to the priests, ver. 28. his grief and alarm at hearing of the Jews' transgression with the people of the land, Ezra ix. 3. his bewailing of their sins, ver. 6. his confession before God, ver. 13. his thanks to Him, ibid. his acknowledgment of His wonderful compassion, ver. 15. the instructive nature of his prayer on this occasion, ibid. the effect of it in the solemn repentance of the people, Ezra x. 1, 3. the time of his continuance in the government of Judea, ver. 44. his perseverance in doing service to the Church of God, ibid. his setting forth a correct edition of the Scriptures, ibid. the principal services which he performed in this work, ibid. his return to Jerusalem, Neh. viii. 1. why the reading of the law took place on the first day of the seventh month, ver. 2. he begins with offering praises to God, ver. 6. the long continuance of his reading the law, ver. 10. his name particularly reverenced by the Jews, Introd. to 1 Esdras.
Ezrahite, who intended, Ps. lxxxviii. title.

F.

Fables, in which serious truths are represented under fictions, of ancient use among the Jews and other Eastern people, Judg. ix. 8; 2 Kings xiv. 9. their reasons for employing them, Judg. ix. 8. the fable of the trees choosing a king, its antiquity and beauty, ver. 15. why the Eastern people said to be the authors of fables, Baruch iii. 23.
—— 'Jewish fables,' what they were, 1 Tim. i. 4. what called by this name, 2 Tim. iv. 4.
Face, what was betokened by covering it, Ezek. xii. 6.
—— to face, how the Lord spake to Moses, Exod. xxxiii. 11.
—— 'which saw the king's face' explained, Esth. i. 14.
—— 'to bind the face' explained, Job xl. 13.
—— to face, what meant by seeing so, 1 Cor. xiii. 12.
Faces, 'grind the faces' explained, Is. iii. 15. 'faces as flames' explained, Is. xiii. 8.
Fair Havens, where situate, Acts xxvii. 8.
Faith of Adam in God's promise of a Redeemer, Gen. iii. 20.
—— of Eve in the same, Gen. iv. 1.
—— of Abel in the same, Gen. iv. 4.
—— of Abram, in what it consisted, Gen. xv. 6.
—— of Moses commended, Exod. ii. 11.
—— illustrated in the poor widow who entertained Elijah, 1 Kings xvii. 15. that of the centurion, Matt. viii. 10. reasons of our Lord's encomiums on his faith, ibid. the motive of His prompt interference in granting his request, ver. 13. that of the persons who brought the paralytick to Christ, Matt. ix. 1. that of the woman of Canaan, Matt. xv. 28; Mark vii. 28. the reward of it, ibid.
—— true, produces good works, Matt. xix. 17. its necessary connexion with repentance, Mark i. 15. includes obedience to the Gospel, Mark xvi. 16. why its necessity so much pressed in Scripture, ibid. effectual to salvation, includes right practice, Acts xvi. 31. grounded on the Word of God, ver. 32. how it appears to include obedience, 1 Tim. v. 8. 'add to your faith virtue, &c.' what is the sum of St. Peter's discourse, 2 Pet. i. 5. why he does not exhort his disciples to acquire faith, ibid. why he exhorts them to the practice of Christian duties, ibid.
Faith and works, their cooperation instanced in the case of Abraham, Jam. ii. 26. the same necessary to make a Christian, ibid.
—— without righteousness, how the doctrine is described, 1 John iii. 7. caution concerning it, ibid.
—— fruitless, vanity of, insisted on, Jam. ii. 14.
—— the great power and efficacy of it, Matt. xvii. 20; Mark ix. 23; Luke vii. 50. why a high degree of it required in the Apostles, Mark xi. 22, 23. its efficacy, ver. 23. the undaunted courage which it gives, 2 Kings vi. 16.
—— exerted in prayer, the support derived from it, Ps. cxvi. 10.
—— right and steadfast, power of, Ps. cxviii. 6.
—— no enthusiastick notions of its power encouraged, Matt. xxi. 21. virtue of, remarks on its being indiscreetly exalted, Tit. iii. 8. examples of its efficacy specified, Heb. xi. 33—39. character of that to which St. Paul attributes justification, Rom. iii. 31.
—— which justifies and saves, what to be understood by it, Rom. iii. 26. what sort of, shall be imputed to our justification, Rom. iv. 25. 'counted for righteousness' explained, ver. 5. why said to be the condition of our justification, Rom. x. 5. what sort of, available to justification, Gal. v. 6. in what it does not consist, ibid. in what it does, ibid. the great principle whereby salvation is to be obtained, Heb. xi. 40. the saints of old examples of it, ibid. character of the faith by which they conquered, ibid.
—— not a gift appropriated to a select few, Eph. ii. 8. why all men have it not, 2 Thess. iii. 2. how represented in some places of Scripture, 2 Pet. i. 25. state of some professed Christians with respect to it, ibid.
—— of Jesus Christ explained, Rom. iii. 22.
—— in His blood, expression occurs but once in Scripture, Rom. iii. 25. the Apostle's meaning in using it, ibid.
—— in Christ used for religion under the New Testament, Rom. iii. 26. comprehensiveness of the term, ibid.
—— 'had faith to be healed' explained, Acts xiv. 9. 'once delivered to the saints,' what it is, Jude ver. 3. in what light proposed to us, ibid. on what authority received, ibid. different articles of it, where collected, ibid. the just shall live by, explained, Hab. ii. 4. 'from faith to faith,' considerations on the meaning of the phrase, Rom. i. 17. 'by faith,' 'through faith,' equivalent phrases, Rom. iii. 30. the term used in particular senses, Gal. v. 22; Col. i. 4.
—— in Christ to be preferred to all natural affections, Matt. x. 37.
—— of Christ's followers founded on rational conviction, John ii. 23.
—— implicit, the folly and absurdity of it, Acts xvii. 11.
Faithful, who intended by the term, Eph. i. 1. the influence of their lives and doctrine on unbelievers, Phil. ii. 15. their persecution designed to purify their faith, Dan. xii. 10.
—— subjects of Christ, what shews us to be so, Rom. viii. 4. how we may become so, ibid.
Fall away, who may do so, Col. i. 23. who may do so totally and finally, 2 Pet. ii. 22.
—— asleep, why departed saints are said so to do, 1 Cor. xv. 6.
—— of man, Job aware of its evil consequences, Job xiv. 3, 4.
Fallen man not destitute of every principle of what is right, Rom. vii. 22. his state, though bad, not totally depraved, ibid. relief provided for it, ibid.
—— asleep in Christ, explained, 1 Cor. xv. 18.
Falling away from a state of grace not impossible, Heb. iii. 14.
—— into a trance, &c. explained, Numb. xxiv. 4.
Fallow deer, uncertainty about these and other animals mentioned, Deut. xiv. 5.
False matter, keep far from, what it signifies, Exod. xxiii. 7.
—— witness, how punished by the law of Moses, Deut. xix. 19. equity of the punishment, ibid. evil effects of the offence, ver. 21. God's denunciation of it, ibid.
—— teachers in the Corinthian church, sketch of their characters,

1 Cor. ii. 13. frequently referred to by St. Paul, ibid. strange conclusions drawn from his words, ibid. real purport of them, ibid. their conduct contrasted with St. Paul's, 2 Cor. iv. 2. wherein inferiour to St. Paul, 2 Cor. x. 16. their pretences to disinterestedness, 2 Cor. xi. 12. how put to shame, ibid.
False teachers of the Galatians, to what St. Paul attributes their zeal for the law, Gal. vi. 12.
—— what sects of intended, 2 Pet. ii. 1. how their vicious lives affected Christians in general, ver. 2. their ostentation, hypocrisy, &c. set forth by forcible comparisons, ver. 17. under what name St. Paul describes them, 1 John ii. 18. what meant by the phrase 'they went out from us, but they were not of us,' 1 John ii. 19. particular names under which they were known, ibid.
Falsehood put for false gods, Jer. xiii. 25.
—— its perniciousness to society, Eph. iv. 25.
Fame, pursuit of, to be excluded from the motive of action, Matt. vi. 1.
Familiar spirits, the sense uncertain, Lev. xix. 31. persons pretending to them, why punished with death, Lev. xx. 27. why women mentioned in the law relating to them, ibid. those that dealt with them why not tolerated, 1 Sam. xxviii. 3.
Familiarity with sinners under all circumstances to be avoided, Jude ver. 23. illustrated by an allusion to the Jewish law, ibid.
Family, equivalent to people, Jer. i. 15; iii. 14; Mic. ii. 3; Amos iii. 1.
—— 'of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named,' explained, Eph. iii. 15.
—— prayer, why to be observed, Col. iv. 2.
Families, equivalent to kingdom, Nahum iii. 4.
Famine, excessive, foretold, Lev. xxvi. 29. when fulfilled, ibid. the years of, mentioned at 2 Sam. xxiv. reconciled with the account at 1 Chron. xxi.—2 Sam. xxiv. 13. account of one preceding the destruction of Jerusalem, Matt. xxiv. 7.
—— why put for dearth of instruction, Amos viii. 11.
Famous men, commemorated in the temple and synagogues, Eccles. xliv. 1.
Fan, an instrument for winnowing corn, Matt. iii. 12.
Fanaticism not a proof of our loving God, 1 John iv. 19.
—— and enthusiasm, how they have been brought into the Church, 1 John ii. 27. considerations exposing their want of foundation in Scripture, ibid. See Enthusiasts.
Far above all heavens, what meant by Christ's ascending thither, Eph. iv. 10.
Farthing, the value of the coin so called, Matt. x. 29.
Fast, the design of Nehemiah and Ezra in proclaiming one, Neh. ix. 1. in what way usually observed by the Jews, Esth. iv. 16.
—— of the seventh month, on what occasion observed, Jer. xli. 1.
—— what is meant by sanctifying one, Joel i. 14.
—— of the fourth month explained, Zech. viii. 19.
—— the, meaning the great day of expiation, Acts xxvii. 9.
Fasting not forbidden by Christ, but the manner of it regulated, Matt. vi. 16. why not enjoined by Christ on His disciples, Matt. ix. 16.
—— what it signifies, and why extended to cattle, Jon. iii. 7. the usual days of fasting among the Jews, Luke xviii. 12. observed on solemn days till noon by the Jews, Acts ii. 15.
—— meaning of it in the account of St. Paul's shipwreck, Acts xxvii. 33.
Fasts, used to be proclaimed in perilous times, 2 Chron. xx. 3. different instances of it, ibid. how kept in Eastern countries, Is. lviii. 3, 4.
Fat, what not to be eaten, Lev. iii. 17. reasons for the prohibition, ibid. in what sense the term used by the Hebrews, Deut. xxxii. 14.
Father, how the term is sometimes used by the Hebrews, Gen. iv. 20. in what senses God is our Father, Matt. vi. 9. why we say, 'our,' not 'my,' ibid. in what sense none upon earth is to be called our father, Matt. xxiii. 9, 10. blessedness of having God for our father, Luke xii. 32. name of, applied to God, in what senses taken, 1 Cor. viii. 6. how used in a passage of St. Paul, ibid.
—— put for grandfather, Jer. xxvii. 7; Dan. v. 2.
Father to Pharaoh, in what sense Joseph was so, Gen. xlv. 8.
—— name given by kings to chief men, 1 Mac. xi. 32.
—— and Son, their unity of nature established, Heb. i. 3. and distinctions of Persons, ibid.
—— everlasting, the title explained, Is. ix. 6.
—— of lights, why God so represented, Jam. i. 17. meaning of the expression, 'that with Him is no variableness, neither shadow of turning,' ibid. practical inference from the doctrine, ibid.
Fatherless, God's peculiar care of, Prov. xxiii. 10; Hos. xiv. 3.
Fathers of the Israelites, what Moses meant by saying, God made not His covenant with them, Deut. v. 3.
—— why Israelites called so with respect to Christians, 1 Cor. x. 1. who meant by them, 2 Pet. iii. 4.
Fatherly affection of God, how demonstrated, Heb. xii. 7, 8.
Fatness of the earth explained, Gen. xxvii. 28.
—— of the heart, what it implies, Ps. cxix. 70.
—— juice of the olive tree, why so called, Rom. xi. 17.
Fault, 'without fault,' meaning and allusion of the phrase, Rev. xiv. 5.
Faults, the least to be avoided, Eccles. xix. 1. recollection of our own, how it should affect us as to those of others, Tit. iii. 3.
Favour, in what sense used, Prov. xxxi. 30.
Fear, God the only proper object of it, Job xxxvii. 24. 'there is no fear in love' explained, 1 John iv. 18. reflections on the passage, ibid.
—— and diligence in our spiritual warfare enforced from the example of St. Paul, 1 Cor. ix. 26.
—— put for reverence, Job iv. 6. put for danger, Jer. xlvi. 5. peculiar sense of it, Is. xxiv. 17.
—— of God, motives to it suggested by the Divine perfections, Deut. vi. 13. reflections on, Job xxviii. 22.
—— of the Lord put for whole duty of man, Prov. i. 7.
—— of God, used to signify religion under the Old Testament, Rom. iii. 26. what it signifies, ibid.
—— of death, who subject to it, Heb. ii. 15. how Christians delivered from it, ibid.
Fearful and unbelieving, explained, Rev. xxi. 8.
Feast, mode of distributing in the East, Gen. xliii. 34. what expressed by allegory of, Prov. ix. 1. master of, among the ancients, Eccles. xxxii. 1.
—— of tabernacles, when kept, Numb. xxix. 12. why observed with numerous sacrifices, ibid. number of animals then offered, ver. 13. how observed, Deut. xvi. 16. occasion of its institution, ibid. corresponding festival in the Christian Church, ibid.
—— of unleavened bread, how observed, Deut. xvi. 16. occasion of it, ibid. what substituted for it in the Christian Church, ibid.
—— of weeks, why so called, Deut. xvi. 16. how observed, ibid. occasion of it, ibid. festival corresponding to it in the Christian Church, ibid. See Dedication, Passover, Tabernacles, &c.
Feasts, rather solemn assemblies, Lev. xxiii. 2. what three feasts observed solemnly by the Jews, Deut. xvi. 16. occasions of them, ibid. have their counterparts in the Christian Church, ibid. inference from them with respect to religious festivals, ibid. why males only were obliged to be present, ibid. intentions of them, ibid. See Festivals.
—— the three feasts, remarkable providence of God respecting them, Deut. xvi. 16. their effect in keeping up unity in Church and State, ibid. stated seasons for the exercise of benevolence, ibid. inference with respect to the Gospels, ibid.
—— Jewish, different opinions of the believing Jews about them, Rom. xiv. 5.
—— separation of women from men at them in the East, Jer. vii. 34. distinction of seats at, Matt. xxiii. 6.
Feelings, an uncertain criterion of our condition, 1 John ii. 3; iii. 8. See Condition, the goodness of.
Feet, why always washed in the East after travelling, Gen. xviii. 7; Judg. xix. 21; 2 Sam. xi. 8. sitting down at, explained, Deut. xxxiii. 3. with reference to an Eastern custom, ibid. what the Hebrews included under the word, Is. vi. 2.
'—— shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace' explained, Eph. vi. 15.
Feigned lips, explained, Ps. xvii. 1.
Felix, his history and character, Acts xxiii. 24. how long he had been governour, Acts xxiv. 10. his injustice and incontinence,

Acts xxiv. 24. how he had opportunities of becoming acquainted with Christianity, ver. 22. reflections on his trembling at the preaching of St. Paul, ver. 25. effect of the love of unjust gain upon him, ver. 26. his happiness, had he been moved to repentance by St. Paul's preaching, ibid. too many, like him, have only transient fits of religion, ibid. complaints preferred against him by the Jews, ver. 27.
Fellowlabourer, what the appellation signifies, Philem. ver. 1.
Fellowlabourers of God, ministers of the Gospel so represented, 1 Cor. iii. 9.
Fellowship of His Son, what meant by God calling men to it, 1 Cor. i. 9.
—— with the Father and with the Son, how it takes place, 1 John i. 3. what it means, ibid. how mentioned by St. Paul, ibid. what duty results from it, ver. 6. in what it consists, ver. 7. on what condition it stands, ibid.
—— in the Gospel, what it signifies, Phil. i. 5. what the phrase includes, ibid.
—— what meant by having no fellowship with the works of darkness, Eph. v. 11.
Female, why not sacrificed in burnt offerings, Lev. iii. 1. why allowed in peace offerings, ibid.
—— captives, provision for the humane treatment of them, Deut. xxi. 10. why ordered to be liberated under particular circumstances, ver. 14
Festivals, Jewish, their religious and moral uses, Introd. to Lev. seasons of rejoicing, Lev. xxiii. 40. agreeable to the precepts of Scripture, ibid. and to the spirit of Christianity, ibid. when females attended them, 1 Sam. i. 4. kept from even to even, Is. xxx. 29. the Jews kept them with better fare, Tob. ii. 2. no opportunity of observing them to be permitted during the captivity, Hos. ii. 11; ix. 5. See Feasts.
—— may be instituted without Divine command, 1 Mac. iv. 56.
Festus, Porcius, by whom made procurator of Judea, Acts xxiv. 27.
Few words, in what sense the Epistle to the Hebrews said to be so written, Heb. xiii. 22.
Fidelity to the Church and the King, an example for the encouragement of, Esth. x. 3.
Field to dwell in, what it expresses, Mic. iv. 10.
Fields of offerings, what meant, 2 Sam. i. 21.
'Fiery darts of the wicked,' its figurative meaning, Eph. vi. 16. what it alludes to, ibid.
—— trial, what it signifies, 1 Pet. iv. 12. with what allusion, ibid.
Fig, early, very desirable in the East, Hos. ix. 10. comparison to, Mic. vii. 1.
Figs and raisins, still carried about them by the Moors as articles of common food, 1 Sam. xxx. 12.
—— baskets of, what sort of, represented in Jeremiah's vision, Jer. xxiv. 1.
Fig leaves, how used by our first parents, Gen. iii. 7. their size in Eastern countries, ibid.
Fig tree, different sorts of it in Judea, Mark xi. 13.
—— the miracle of, what was typically intended by it, Matt. xxi. 19; Mark xi. 14.
Filial duty most conspicuously exemplified in Joseph, Gen. l. 10.
—— undutifulness never prospers, Gen. ix. 27.
'Filth of the earth and offscouring of all things' explained, 1 Cor. iv. 13.
'Filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness' explained, Jam. i. 21.
Filthy, what included under the term, Rev. xxii. 11.
Finger of God, meaning of the phrase, Exod. viii. 19. 'written with' explained, Exod. xxxi. 18.
Finger, putting forth of, explained, Is. lviii. 9.
Fir trees, allusion to spears and lances made of them, Nahum ii. 3.
Fire, damage occasioned by, why punished by Moses, Exod. xxii. 6. referred to an Eastern custom, ibid.
—— and water adored by the Egyptians, Exod. ix. 18.
—— of the Lord, opinions concerning it, Numb. xi. 1.
—— from the Lord, question concerning it, Numb. xvi. 31.
—— purifying by, usual in Homer's time, Numb. xxxi. 23.
—— and brimstone, what it signifies, and alludes to, Ps. xi. 6.
—— used for lightning, Ps. cxlviii. 8.
—— to kindle a, what it signifies, Is. l. 11.
Fire, its crackling noise in parched grass, Joel ii. 5. procured by striking two stones together, 1 Mac. iv. 50.
—— baptizing with, explained, Matt. iii. 11. in what sense Christ came 'to send fire,' Luke xii. 49. what it signifies in prophetick language, Rev. xviii. 8.
Fire, God's acceptance of sacrifices testified by fire from heaven, Gen. iv. 4; 1 Kings xviii. 24; 1 Chron. xxi. 26. also His acceptance of the temple by the same, 2 Chron. vii. 1. this token of acceptance was of the most satisfactory kind, ibid.
—— great calamities compared to it, Deut. xxxii. 22. word of God compared to it, Jer. xxiii. 29. utter destruction denoted by its effects, Ezek. xv. 7. God's judgments compared to, Ezek. xxx. 8; Zeph. i. 18.
—— in the bones, severe judgment compared to it, Lam. i. 13.
—— signals useful in mountainous countries, Judith vii. 5; Jer. vi. 1.
Fires of hospitality of the Arabians alluded to, Job xviii. 6.
—— perpetual, amongst heathen nations copied from the Jews, Lev. vi. 13.
Firkin, Syrian, its quantity compared with our measures, John ii. 6.
Firmament explained, Gen. i. 6.
First day of the week observed by the primitive Christians, 1 Cor. xvi. 2. See Sabbath, Lord's day, Sunday.
—— person, both singular and plural, used by St. Paul in his Epistles with great latitude, General Introd. par. 5. occasion of much difficulty, ibid.
Firstborn, why sanctified to God, Exod. xiii. 2.
—— in the wilderness, comparison between their numbers and those of the Levites, Numb. iii. 39. how the difference between them was accounted for, ver. 47.
—— of the poor explained, Is. xiv. 30.
—— in Egypt, their destruction referred to, Hab. iii. 13.
—— among many brethren, in what sense spoken of Christ, Rom. viii. 29.
—— son, what implied by the expression, Matt. i. 25.
—— of every creature, explanation of the phrase, Col. i. 15. proof of Christ's essential divinity, ibid.
—— from the dead, why Christ so called, Col. i. 18.
Firstfruits of trees, idolatrous practice concerning them, Lev. xix. 23. precept in the law, ibid.
—— suitableness of the profession with which they were offered, Deut. xxvi. 3.
—— of the Spirit explained, Rom. viii. 23.
—— of them that slept, what St. Paul's allusion to them imports, 1 Cor. xv. 20.
—— of Achaia, why the house of Stephanas so called, 1 Cor. xvi. 15.
'—— of his creatures,' who so called, Jam. i. 18.
Firstlings, laws concerning the sanctifying of them, reconciled, Lev. xxvii. 26. opinions concerning them, Deut. xii. 17. distinguished from firstborn, ibid.
Fish, looked upon as sacred and worshipped by the Egyptians, Exod. vii. 20. and by several heathen nations, Deut. iv. 18. why mentioned in the account of the river turned to blood, Exod. vii. 20. clean and unclean, how distinguished, Lev. xi. 9. law of the Romans concerning them, ver. 10. very plentiful in Egypt, Numb. xi. 5. very abundant in the coasts of Judea, Ezek. xlvii. 10.
Fishers, why their mourning an emblem of general distress, Is. xix. 8. who are signified by them, Jer. xvi. 16. mentioned in reference to the Gospel, Ezek. xlvii. 10. invaders or spoilers compared to them, Amos iv. 2.
—— of men, the expression explained, Matt. iv. 19.
Fishgate, explained, Zeph. i. 10.
Fitches, explained, Is. xxviii. 25.
Five hundred brethren mentioned as witnesses of Christ's appearance, who they probably were, 1 Cor. xv. 6.
Flail, its use in husbandry, Is. xxviii. 27.
Flattery, arts of, not used by the Apostles, 2 Cor. xiii. 2. inference from it, ibid.
—— and covetousness, who addicted to them, 1 Thess. ii. 5.
Flax, of great value to the Egyptians, Exod. ix. 31. why noticed particularly in the plague of hail, ibid. what meant by its being 'bolled,' ibid. employed by the Jews for lamps, Matt. xii. 20.

Fleece, of Gideon, for what purpose the miracle probably designed, Judg. vi. 39.
Flesh, what frequently opposed to in the New Testament, Rom. iv. 1.
—— and spirit used in different senses, Gal. v. 16. what they commonly express, ibid. foundation of the significations of the two phrases, ibid.
—— contest between it and the spirit explained, Gal. v. 17. what it proves, ibid.
—— works of, why said to be manifest, Gal. v. 19.
—— of the peace offerings, why eaten the same day, Lev. vii. 15.
—— holy, of sacrifices, when unacceptable to God, Jer. xi. 15.
—— to eat the, to calumniate, Job xix. 22. waste of it by extremity of sorrow, Ps. cii. 5.
—— of his own arm explained, Is. ix. 20. to feed with their own, explained, Is. xlix. 26. our nearest relations called our flesh, Jer. li. 35.
—— 'in the flesh,' how applied to the Jews, Rom. vii. 5.
—— 'as concerning the flesh' explained, Rom. ix. 5.
—— opinions and practices of some of the Jews about eating it, Rom. xiv. 2.
'—— and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God' explained, 1 Cor. xv. 50. See According to.
Flies, worshipped in Egypt, Palestine, &c. Exod. viii. 21. plague of, remarks on, ibid. what sort sent for this purpose, ibid. proved to be miraculous, ver. 24. an intolerable plague, ibid. their troublesome and destructive nature in hot countries, 2 Kings i. 2.
Floats, what probably meant by the term, 1 Kings v. 9.
Flock of the slaughter, why so called, Zech. xi. 6.
Flocks, by whom tended, Gen. xxix. 9.
Flood, what occasioned it, Gen. vi. 11. why universal, ver. 13. records of it throughout the world, ver. 17. water enough for it, Gen. vii. 11. proofs of it in every quarter of the world, ver. 20. practical reflections on it, ver. 21. See Deluge.
—— the, meaning the river Euphrates, Josh. xxiv. 3.
Floods in Judea, extremely violent and sudden, Matt. vii. 27; Luke vi. 48.
—— put for calamities, Ps. xxxii. 6. for enemies, Ps. xciii. 3.
Flowers, how used at feasts, Wisd. ii. 8.
Follow a multitude, explained, Exod. xxiii. 2.
—— after, what the term expresses, Phil. iii. 12.
Folly, put for wickedness, Ps. lxxxv. 8. meaning all impiety, Prov. i. 20.
—— why St. Paul seems to impute it to himself, 2 Cor. xi. 1.
Food, what allowed to man at his creation, Gen. i. 29. what after the flood, Gen. ix. 3. rendered nutritious by God's blessing, Deut. viii. 3.
—— of the Israelites, difference relating to it in the wilderness and in Canaan, Deut. xii. 15. why many sorts of forbidden to them, Deut. xiv. 21. distinction between them and other nations respecting it, ibid.
—— meaning all provision for use of life, Prov. xxx. 8.
Fool, what the word signifies, 2 Sam. iii. 33.
—— 'thou fool,' force of the original word explained, Matt. v. 22.
Foolish, meaning wicked, Ps. v. 5; Zech. xi. 15.
—— talking and jesting, what to be understood by them, Eph. v. 4. agreeably to Scripture language, ibid. what meant by their being not convenient, ibid.
—— and unlearned questions, what meant by them, 2 Tim. ii. 23.
Foolishness of preaching explained, 1 Cor. i. 21. remarks on St. Paul's use of the term, ibid.
Foot, keep thy, explained, Eccles. v. 1. to turn away, explained, Is. lviii. 13.
—— 'on foot,' meaning 'by land,' Matt. xiv. 13. See Gardens.
Footstool of God, what it means, Ps. xcix. 5; cxxxii. 7.
For, instances of the Hebrew particle so rendered, signifying 'although,' Gen. xlviii. 14; Exod. x. 1.
Forbearance of God, danger of abusing it, Numb. xi. 33. one of His most striking attributes, Deut. ix. 27. reflections on it, ibid. ill inference drawn from it, Jer. xii. 4. how displayed, Jer. xviii. 7.
—— in Jewish and Gentile converts towards each other recommended by St. Paul, Rom. xiv. 23. reflections on his admirable conduct, ibid.
Forbidden fruit, why made the test of man's obedience, Gen. ii. 17.
Foreheads, the precepts of the law worn on them, and why, Exod. xiii. 19; Prov. iii. 3. of lewd women, how used to be marked, Rev. xvii. 5. and of servants and soldiers, Rev. xiii. 16.
Foreigners, what denoted by their purchasing among the Jews, Ezek. xlvii. 22.
Foreknow, 'whom he foreknew' explained, Rom. xi. 2. what to be understood by God's foreknowing, Rom. viii. 28.
Foreknowledge of God explained, Jer. xxxvi. 3. its consistency with the freedom of man, Jer. xxxviii. 17; John xii. 39; Acts iv. 28. not the cause of wickedness which He foresees, Luke xxii. 22.
—— of contingent events, the peculiar property of God, Acts iii. 18.
—— Divine, displayed by Christ, Matt. xxi. 2.
Forest used for a city, Jer. xxi. 14. and why, Ezek. xx. 46. people of Egypt compared to, Jer. xlvi. 22.
Forget, in the sense of 'to be a stranger to,' Lam. iii. 17.
Forgetfulness of benefits shewn by individuals, Deut. viii. 11. and communities, ibid.
—— of God, source of greatest disorders, Ezek. xxii. 12.
—— land of, the grave, Ps. lxxxviii. 12.
Forgiveness of injuries, importance of this duty, Matt. v. 24. its noble and beneficial character, ver. 44. the strength of the motive to it, ver. 45. our practice of it towards others, the condition of our receiving it from God, Matt. vi. 12, 14, 15. no limitation to the measure of it, Matt. xviii. 22. perfection of this duty propounded by Christ, ibid. enforced by the parable of the unforgiving servant, ver. 35. to be especially cultivated by the Christian when he prays, Mark xi. 25. enforced by the example of God the Father, in forgiving us, Eph. v. 1. and of God the Son in purchasing it for us, ver. 2. not to be so exercised as to avoid bringing offenders to justice, 1 Kings ii. 5.
—— recommended by the example of Joseph, Gen. xlv. 15. by that of Moses, Numb. xii. 13. by David's behaviour to Saul, when in his power, 1 Sam. xxiv. 6. and towards Shimei, 2 Sam. xix. 22. by the ready intercession of the man of God for Jeroboam, 1 Kings xiii. 6. nobly exemplified by Christ in His last moments, Luke xxiii. 34.
—— of sins, why more expressly promised to the people than to the priest, Lev. iv. 20. what necessary in order to it, Rom. iv. 7, 8. how and when received, 1 John i. 8. continually to be prayed for, ibid. comfort of the Gospel with respect to it, ibid.
—— abundance of, exerted by God towards us, Luke vii. 43.
'Form of God,' 'form of a servant,' remark on the correspondence of the phrases, Phil. ii. 6, 7.
'—— of knowledge, &c.' explained, Rom. ii. 19.
'—— of doctrine,' what it signifies, Rom. vi. 17.
'—— of sound words,' what to be understood by it, 2 Tim. i. 13. what intended by holding it fast, ibid.
'—— of godliness,' in what it consists, 2 Tim. iii. 5.
Formed, 'until Christ be formed in you,' explained, Gal. iv. 19.
Forms of prayer in use from earliest ages, Hos. xiv. 2; Joel ii. 17. objection to them founded on the misapplication of a text, 1 Cor. xiv. 15. probability of their being drawn up with the help of the Holy Ghost, ibid. not unacceptable to God, ibid. prescribed and used under the law, ibid. sanctioned by our Saviour, ibid. apparently used by the Apostles, 1 Cor. xiv. 15. probably practised in the next age, ibid. almost universally used since for 1400 years, ibid. used at this time in part by almost all Christians, ibid. prescribed by St. Paul, 1 Tim. ii. 1. used in all Christian churches, ibid. on what rule framed, ibid.
Fornication, practised by heathens as part of idolatrous worship, Acts xv. 20. what the original word denotes, 1 Cor. v. 1. how used in the above passage, ibid. sinfulness of, why particularly urged upon the Corinthians, 1 Cor. vi. 13. how distinguished from other sins, ver. 18. motives against it, ver. 13, 14, 19, 20.
—— and all uncleanness, in what sense forbidden to be named amongst Christians, Eph. v. 3. their fatal effects, ibid. all ranks and both sexes equally bound to avoid them, ibid. how they may be avoided, ibid.
Fornication, why used for idolatry, Exod. xxxiv. 16; Rev. xvii. 1.
Fortitude, Christian, its character, Numb. xiv. 9. recommended by the example of St. Paul, Acts xxi. 13.

Fortunatus, account of him, 1 Cor. xvi. 17.
Fortune, a plentiful, the misuse of it described, Amos vi. 4.
Forty stripes save one, whence the practice of giving that number originated, Deut. xxv. 3. why specified, 2 Cor. xi. 24.
Forty years of the Israelites' wandering reckoned, Numb. xiv. 33.
—— a difficulty respecting this period, 2 Sam. xv. 7.
'Found him in a desert land' explained, Deut. xxxii. 10.
Foundation of the world, limited use of the phrase, Heb. ix. 26.
Foundations, meaning fundamental laws, Ps. xi. 3.
Fountain of Jacob, explained, Deut. xxxiii. 28. of Israel, explained, Ps. lxviii. 26.
Fountains, the custom in the East of encamping near them, 1 Sam. xxix. 1; Job xi. 18, 19.
—— of water, the places where only green herbage is to be found in summer in the East, 1 Kings xviii. 5. Ahab's direction to Obadiah explained from this, ibid. sealed for security in the East, Song of Sol. iv. 12. See Wells.
Fourth part of the earth, explained, Rev. vi. 8.
'Fowls that creep, going upon all four,' what meant by them, Lev. xi. 20.
Foxes, what animals meant by them, Judg. xv. 4; Song of Sol. ii. 15. description of these animals, Judg. xv. 4. Samson's stratagem by means of 'foxes' not an uncommon one, ibid.
—— in the deserts, false prophets why compared to, Ezek. xiii. 4.
Frailty of our nature, remedy provided for by God, Lev. v. 4.
Free agency of man allowed by God, Deut. xxx. 19. consistent with His overruling Providence, Matt. xvi. 21.
—— grace of God, doctrine of, how abused, Rom. iii. 7, 8. the abuse censured by St. Paul, ibid.
Freedom from sin, in what it consists, 1 John i. 7. not absolutely attainable in this world, 1 John iii. 3.
Freewill of man, used to accomplish God's designs, Is. x. 7. not overruled by Divine decrees, John xii. 39. not overruled by the Spirit of God, Rom. viii. 4. not invalidated by the grace of God, 1 Tim. i. 12.
—— offerings explained, Lev. iii. 1. wherein different from vows, Lev. xxii. 23.
Friend, instances of its being used for husband, Hos. iii. 1. a false, described, Ecclus. xxxiii. 6.
Friends, sorrow for the death of, not forbidden, 1 Thess. iv. 13. to be moderated, ibid. and how, ibid. loss of, best consolation under it, ver. 18.
Friendship, nobly exemplified in Jonathan's conduct towards David, 1 Sam. xix. 4. perfectly consistent with the spirit of the Gospel, John xiii. 23. faithless, compared to a brook, Job vi. 15. expressions used to denote it, Gal. iv. 12.
—— of Christ to be obtained by obedience to Him, John xiii. 23. the high value of it, ibid.
—— of the world, when it is enmity with God, Jam. iv. 4. in what things such friendship consists, ibid.
Friendships not to be contracted with infidels, 2 Cor. vi. 14.
Frocks, linen, worn by common people in Egypt, Ecclus. xl. 4.
Frogs, reflections on the plague of, Exod. viii. 2. in what the miracle consisted, ver. 3.
—— in ancient authors, what they are symbols of, Rev. xvi. 13.
Frontlets, what the term means, Exod. xiii. 16.
Frost, severe, at Aleppo, Job xxxvii. 10. considerations on, Job xxxviii. 30.
Froward, explained, Ps. ci. 4.
Frugality, inculcated by Christ in the miracle of multiplying the loaves, John vi. 12.
Fruit, explanation of the word as applied to sacrifices, Mal. i. 12.
'—— unto holiness' explained, Rom. vi. 22.
Fruits of the earth, remarks on the profession of gratitude with which they were offered, Deut. xxvi. 13.
—— meet for repentance, explained, Matt. iii. 8.
—— of the Spirit, the sure criterion of our spiritual condition, 1 John iii. 8.
Fruitfulness, much esteemed in early times, Gen. xvi. 4.
Fuel, contrivance for saving, in the East, Lev. xi. 35. the slow burning of that used in the East, Eccles. vii. 6. scarcity of it, Is. xxvii. 11. much not required, Ezek. xxxix. 10.
'Fulfil the word of God' explained, Col. i. 25.
Fulfilled, that it might be, meaning of this expression in the Gospels, Matt. i. 22; ii. 15; iv. 14.
—— 'then was fulfilled,' Matt. ii. 17.
—— 'in them was,' Matt. xiii. 14.
'Fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind' explained, Eph. ii. 3.
'Full assurance of faith' explained, Heb. x. 22.
'Fulness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ' explained, Rom. xv. 29. 'that in Him should all fulness dwell' explained, Col. i. 19.
—— of the Godhead, in what it consists, Col. ii. 9. how said to dwell in Christ bodily, ibid. reflections on the union of the Divine essence with his earthly body, ibid. difference between this phrase and one elsewhere applied to the Church, ibid.
—— of the time, explained, Gal. iv. 4. determined by the Scripture prophecies, ibid.
Funeral of Jacob, magnificence of it, Gen. l. 9. compared with the funeral of Marcellus, ibid. by whom attended, ibid. ver. 7.
—— lamentation, in what it consisted, Gen. l. 10. very violent and terrible in the East in modern times, ibid. how long it continued, ibid. its excess, Job xxx. 31.
Funerals of the Jews, musick customary at them, Matt. ix. 23.
Furnace, smoking, its symbolical import, Gen. xv. 17.
—— form of Babylonian, described, Dan. iii. 25.
Future judgment, belief of, why particularly insisted on by St. Paul, 2 Cor. v. 10.
—— life, argument of it in the history of Enoch, Gen. v. 24.
—— belief of, among the Patriarchs, Gen. xlix. 33. a circumstance belonging to it, 1 Cor. vi. 13. argument founded on it with respect to the present, ibid. believed and looked forward to by the Patriarchs and Prophets, Heb. xi. 16. falsehood and injustice of denying their belief in it, ibid. judgment of the Church of England on that point, ibid.
—— rest, by what typified, Heb. iv. 2. who shall enter into it, ver. 3. nature of it, ver. 9. by what word the Apostle describes it, ibid.
—— state, prefigured in the history of the Patriarchs and their descendants, Exod. vi. 4. spoken of by David, ibid. respected by the Jews, Deut. iv. 40. doctrine of it defended, Job xlii. 7, 8. taught by Solomon, Prov. xiv. 32. will be unchangeable and most blessed, Luke xx. 34, 36. rewards of, how represented by St. Paul, Rom. viii. 18. opinions of mankind in general, ver. 19. and of the ancient heathens concerning it, ver. 22. wisdom as well as happiness to be enjoyed in it, 1 Cor. xiii. 12. denial of it an atheistical and sensual doctrine, 1 Cor. xv. 33. popular doctrine among the heathens concerning it, Eph. ii. 12. not well founded, ibid. and denied by most philosophers, ibid. reflection on the short time in which we must qualify ourselves for it, Phil. iv. 5. doctrine of it much obscured before our Saviour's days, 2 Tim. i. 10. intimations in the Old Testament about it, ibid. perfect light thrown on it by the Christian revelation, ibid. how discovered to the Jews, Heb. iv. 9. felicity of it for whom provided, 1 John ii. 15. not compatible with an inordinate love of the world, ibid. happiness of it not that of a Mahometan paradise, 1 John iii. 3. in what it will consist, ibid. result in this world of the hope of it, ibid.
—— things in Scripture sometimes represented as past, Rom. viii. 30.
—— tense, in Hebrew used for the present, Numb. xxiv. 17; Is. i. 7. used for the past, Is. v. 25.

G.

Gaal, who he probably was, Judg. ix. 26.
Gabbatha, a Syro-chaldaick word, John xix. 13.
Gabriel, the angel, how he appeared to Daniel, Dan. ix. 21. remark on his being sent from God to Mary, Luke i. 26.
Gad, tribe of, its situation and its character corresponding to Jacob's prophecy, Gen. xlix. 19. its blessing by Moses explained, Deut. xxxiii. 20. largeness of its inheritance, ibid. and its valour, ibid.
Gad, what it signifies in Isaiah, Isa. lxv. 11.
Gadara, its modern name and condition, Mark v. 1.
Gain, evil, its effects, Prov. i. 19.
Galatia, its name and situation, Acts xvi. 6; Introd. to Gal. when St. Paul preached there, ibid. by whom churches in it planted, ibid. par. 7.

GALATIANS, Epistle to, difference of opinion concerning the date of it, Introd. when probably written, ibid. occasion and object of it, ibid. par. 2. its contents, ibid. par. 3. written by St. Paul's own hand, ibid. par. 4. remarks on the doctrine of it, ibid. par. 5. how it differs from the Epistle to the Romans, ibid. par. 6, 7. remark on its being written with St. Paul's own hand, Gal. vi. 11. why St. Paul alters his style when he addresses them, Gal. i. 6. their respect for St. Paul intimated by a very remarkable phrase, Gal. iv. 14. remarks on the manner in which St. Paul addresses them, ver. 15. why called by St. Paul his little children, ver. 19. emphatical manner in which St. Paul speaks of himself to them, Gal. v. 2. why their attention called to the character of justifying faith, ver. 6. remarks on the dissensions between the Jewish and Gentile converts among them, ver. 13.
—— European, who they were, 1 Mac. viii. 2.
GALILEANS, who those were, slaughtered by Pilate, Luke xiii. 1. remarks on the Apostles being known to be such, Acts ii. 7.
GALILEE, its situation, Matt. ii. 22. the reproach it lay under among the Jews, John vii. 52. remarks on the Messiah not being expected to come from it, ibid. ver. 41.
—— of the nations, explained, Gen. xiv. 1.
—— of the Gentiles, why so called, 1 Mac. v. 15. where situate, Matt. iv. 15.
—— sea of, described, Matt. iv. 18. See CHINNERETH.
Gall, how used, Deut. xxix. 18. proper signification of the Hebrew word, ibid.
—— of a beast, why poured on the ground, Job xvi. 13.
—— of fish, removing blindness, conjectures respecting it, Tob. vi. 2.
—— of bitterness, the expression illustrated, Acts viii. 23.
GALLIO, who he was, Acts xviii. 12. his office of deputy of Achaia, ibid. in what sense he 'cared for none of these things,' ver. 17.
Gallows, what punishment probably intended by it, Esth. vii. 9.
GAMALIEL, account of him, Acts v. 34. the advantage derived from his support to Christianity, ver. 40.
GAMMADIMS, what people they probably were, Ezek. xxvii. 11.
Garb of the sexes in the Church, how regulated, 1 Cor. xi. 3.
Garden of Eden, its situation, Gen. ii. 8, 10. a seat of delight, ver. 8. an emblem of the Church on earth, Gen. iii. 24. See EDEN.
—— without water, energy of the comparison to it explained, Is. i. 30.
Gardens, how watered in Egypt, Deut. xi. 10.
Garlands, where placed at sacrifices, Acts xiv. 13.
Garment, how distinguished from robe; Mic. ii. 8. the fulfilment of prophecy in the dividing of Christ's, Ps. xxii. 18.
Garment, upper, usually left at home by persons in the fields, Matt. xxiv. 18. cast away for the purpose of making haste, Mark x. 50. described and distinguished from the inner, Job xxii. 6.
Garments, worn by the Hebrews long and flowing, 2 Sam. x. 4. the cutting them off a great indignity, ibid. were girded about them for activity, 1 Kings xviii. 46. rent in sorrow, Eccles. iii. 7. new made in rejoicing, ibid. great stores of them among the wealthy in the East, Matt. vi. 19. See Gird.
—— of the different sexes interchanged by heathen idolaters, Deut. xxii. 5. why prohibited by the Jewish law, ibid.
—— filthy, what it signifies, Zech. iii. 3.
Gate of the city, place of judicature, of publick business, and resort in old times, Gen. xxiii. 10; Deut. xvi. 18; Ruth iv. 1; 2 Sam. iii. 27; Ps. cxxvii. 5; Prov. xxii. 22.
—— sitting in, an Eastern custom, Gen. xix. 1.
—— why noticed that Christ suffered without the gate, Heb. xiii. 11.
—— of the fountain, conjecture concerning the site so called, Neh. ii. 14.
—— of the king, for what purposes used, Esth. ii. 19. what meant by 'sitting in the king's gate,' ibid. illustrated, ibid.
—— of the children of the people, explained, Jer. xvii. 19.
—— new, of the temple, by whom built, Jer. xxvi. 10.
—— of Benjamin, explained, Jer. xxxvii. 13.
—— middle, of Jerusalem, where situate, Jer. xxxix. 3.
Gate of the altar, why so called, Ezek. viii. 5.
—— higher, of the temple, why so called, Ezek. ix. 2.
—— east, of the temple, entrance from city to court of the people, Ezek. x. 19.
—— the lower, where situate, Ezek. xl. 19.
—— of his enemies, phrase explained, Gen. xxii. 17.
—— they that sit in the, idle persons, why so called, Ps. lxix. 12.
—— of newly married decked with flowers, Song of Sol. vii. 13.
—— 'exalteth his gate' explained, Prov. xvii. 19.
—— strait, metaphorical use of the expression, Matt. vii. 13.
Gates, 'between the two gates,' explained, 2 Sam. xviii. 24. 'the high places of the gates,' for what purpose erected, 2 Kings xxiii. 8.
—— meaning solemn assemblies, Ps. ix. 14.
—— of the nobles explained, Is. xiii. 2.
—— put for those who assemble there, Jer. xiv. 2.
—— of the people, a name for Jerusalem, Ezek. xxvi. 2.
Gathered to his fathers, force of the expression, Job xxvii. 19.
GATH, its situation, Josh. xi. 22; Amos vi. 2.
GATH-HEPHER, its situation, 2 Kings xiv. 25.
Gave gifts unto men, remark on the rendering of the phrase, Eph. iv. 8. an allusion to ancient customs, ibid.
Gavest, 'which thou gavest me,' explained, John xvii. 12.
GAZA, its situation, Judg. xvi. 1; Jer. xlvii. 5; Amos i. 6. by what enemies it was captured, Amos i. 6. totally ruined by Alexander Janneus, Zech. ix. 5. why called 'desert,' Acts viii. 26. two places of the name, ibid.
GEBA in Benjamin, its situation, Zech. xiv. 10.
GEBAL, where situate, Ps. lxxxiii. 7; Ezek. xxvii. 9.
GEDALIAH, to what his murder gave occasion, Jer. xli. 1.
GEDOR, conjectures about its situation, 1 Chron. iv. 39.
GEHAZI, conjectures as to the cause of his failure in raising the Shunammite's son, 2 Kings iv. 31. his crafty tale to Naaman, 2 Kings v. 22. his falsehood to Elisha, ver. 25. his reproof from Elisha, and his punishment, ver. 26, 27.
Gehenna, difference between literal and figurative, Is. lxvi. 24.
Gekko, the serpent probably intended by dragons, Deut. xxxii. 33. where found, ibid. extreme noxiousness of its poison, ibid.
Genealogy of Christ, why St. Matthew begins his Gospel with it, Matt. i. 2. why three kings omitted in it, ver. 8. why St. Matthew traces it to Joseph, ver. 16. why he reduces it to three classes, ver. 17. the difference between that of St. Matthew and that of St. Luke explained, Luke iii. 23. why St. Luke traces it to Adam, ver. 38.
—— of the Messiah, mode of ascertaining provided for, Numb. i. 2.
—— at the end of Ruth, appearance of some omission in it, Ruth iv. 21, 22.
Genealogies of tribes and families, how preserved, Lev. xxv. 13. 'endless genealogies' explained, 1 Tim. i. 4.
General expressions must be limited by their subject, 1 Cor. iv. 5.
'—— assembly and Church of the firstborn' explained, Heb. xii. 23. reason of the several expressions, ibid.
Generation, the term explained, Gen. ii. 4; v. 1; vi. 9; Numb. i. 20.
—— fourth, how understood, Gen. xv. 16.
—— used for ten years, Baruch vi. 3.
—— book of the, what meant by the term, Matt. i. 1.
GENESIS, why so called, Introd. to Gen. its sacred character, ibid. and contents, ibid. the oldest book in the world, ibid. the facts related in it confirmed by the books nearest to it in age, ibid. a satisfactory proof of its authenticity, Gen. x. 1.
GENNESARET, the land of, where situated, Matt. xiv. 34.
—— lake or sea of, its different names, Numb. xxxiv. 2; Josh. xi. 2. frequent storms upon it, Matt. viii. 24. called 'East sea,' Ezek. xxxix. 11. See GALILEE, sea of.
Gentile converts, disturbance occasioned to them by the Jews, Introd. to Rom. par. 6. reproved by St. Paul for treating the Jews with disesteem, Rom. xi. 18. why St. Paul speaks of himself as one of them, Eph. i. 4.
Gentiles, signification of the word, Gen. x. 5. astonishment of the Jews at their being admitted to God's grace inconsistent with the law of Moses, Deut. x. 17. called upon to exult with the Jews on their conversion to Christianity, Deut. xxxii. 43.

numberless passages in the Old Testament in which they are invited to glorify God, Deut. xxxii. 43. accession of their kings to the Church, Ps. xlvii. 9. never took Jewish rites into their worship, Ezek. xvi. 34. from ignorance not equally guilty with Israelites, Hos. ix. 1.

Gentiles, gathering of them foretold by Jacob, Gen. xlix. 10.

—— adoption of, foretold by Moses, Deut. xxxii. 19, 21. their conversion predicted or prefigured, Ps. lxxxvii. 4; Is. xxix. 17; xlv. 14; Ezek. xvi. 53; Zech. vi. 15. under Jewish images, Mal. i. 11. their acceptance intimated, Jer. xii. 16. the calling of them foretold by Christ, Matt. xxii. 10., also their reception into His fold, John x. 16.

—— expressed by 'them that are without,' Mark iv. 11. by 'all that are afar off,' Acts ii. 39. expectations prevailing among them of the birth of an extraordinary Person, Matt. ii. 2. their admission to the favour of God, Acts xv. 9. why required for a time to comply with some particulars of the Mosaick law, ver. 29. how distributed by St. Paul, Rom. i. 14. by what rule they will be judged, Rom. ii. 14. considerations on their being saved, ibid. partakers by faith of the same blessedness as the Jews, Rom. iv. 9. their restoration by Christ to a state of life, the result of St. Paul's argument, Rom. v. 19. admission of them into the Church on their belief, vindicated, Rom. ix. notes generally. in what their fault consisted, Rom. xi. 30. calling of, styled the mystery, Rom. xvi. 25. other examples of it, ibid. when revealed, ver. 26. arguments against their observing the Jewish law, Gal. ii. 15, 17. what particular in the calling of them not known in former times, Eph. iii. 5. opinion of the Jews concerning them, ibid. how distinguished from the Jews, 1 Tim. iii. 16. par. 10. notion of the Jews in consequence, ibid. par. 11. effect of this on the mode of preaching the Gospel, ibid. their admission into the Christian Church when determined, 1 Pet. i. 2. representation of their admission into the Gospel, Rev. vii. 9. 'times of the Gentiles fulfilled,' meaning of the expression, Luke xxi. 24.

Gentleness in the servant of the Lord, how to be shewn, 2 Tim. ii. 24. not to cause the betraying of any part of God's word, ibid.

Gerar, city and country of that name, where situated, Gen. xx. 1.

Gergesa, its present condition, Matt. viii. 28.

Gergesenes, country of, why the same as 'of the Gadarenes,' Matt. viii. 28. the people unworthy of our Lord's presence, ver. 34.

Gershon, name explained, Exod. ii. 22.

Gesem, meaning land of Goshen, Judith i. 9.

Geshur, its situation, 2 Sam. xiii. 37.

Geshurites and Gezrites, who they were, 1 Sam. xxvii. 8.

Gethsemane, meaning of the name, and its situation, Matt. xxvi. 36.

Giants, what were those before the deluge, Gen. vi. 4. question concerning their size, Numb. xiii. 33.

Gibeah, its situation, 1 Sam. x. 26. reflection on there being only one man in it at his work, Judg. xix. 16. his humanity, ibid.

—— in the field, distinguished from Gibeah on the hill, Judg. xx. 31.

—— how situated with respect to Ramah, Hos. v. 8. sins of the men of, Hos. ix. 9; x. 9.

Gibeon, its situation, Josh. ix. 3. the artful contrivance of the people of it, ver. 9. the Israelites brought into a strait by making peace with them, ver. 15. the fault of the Israelites in so doing, ver. 14. people of, made hewers of wood for the service of the tabernacle, ver. 21. the nature of the curse entailed upon them, ver. 23. in what sense the city made as a royal city, Josh. x. 2. the tabernacle kept there, 1 Kings iii. 4. the immense number of beasts sacrificed there, ibid.

Gideon, his family, Judg. vi. 11. his weakness in faith, ver. 13. his humility recommends him to God, ver. 15. commanded to throw down Baal's altar, ver. 25. required to offer sacrifice by an extraordinary command, ver. 26. the meaning of 'the Spirit of the Lord' coming upon him, ver. 34. the weakness of his faith, and his desire of having it confirmed, ver. 36. the method by which God reduced the number of his army, Judg. vii. 5. the reason of His so reducing them, ver. 4, 5. notwithstanding God's promise of victory, neglects not the best human means, ver. 16. his watchword, whence taken, ver. 18. the avenger of his brethren's blood against Zebah and Zalmunna, Judg. viii. 19. their desire to die by his hand, ver. 21. the offer of the Israelites to make him their king, ver. 22. his refusal, ver. 23. a great example of modesty, ibid. his view in making an ephod, ver. 27. the superstitious use the Israelites afterwards made of it, ibid.

Gift of God, how distinguished from the wages of sin, Rom. vi. 23. what that is of which St. Paul speaks to the Ephesians, Eph. ii. 8.

Gifts to the priests enumerated, Numb. xviii. 32. how distinguished from each other, ibid.

—— meaning bribes, Prov. xv. 27.

—— not acceptable to God without justice and charity, Matt. v. 23.

—— of God, temporal and spiritual, value of them depends upon ourselves, Rom. viii. 4.

'—— and calling of God are without repentance,' explained, Rom. xi. 29. reason assigned, ibid.

—— administrations, operations, how distinguished from each other, 1 Cor. xii. 4—6. why sometimes represented as the joint operation of the Trinity, ibid. why sometimes severally appropriated to the different Persons, ibid.

—— spiritual and miraculous, proved to have been actually possessed by the Corinthians, 1 Cor. xii. 28.

—— and sacrifices for sins, how distinguished from each other, Heb. v. 1.

—— of the Spirit, texts concerning, how misinterpreted and misapplied, 1 John ii. 27. how made an occasion of fanaticism and enthusiasm, ibid. proper signification of such texts, ibid. impropriety of applying them to modern times, ibid.

Gihon, river, its course, Gen. ii. 13.

—— a hill or fountain, 1 Kings i. 33. conjectures respecting it, 2 Chron. xxxii. 30.

Gilboa, mountain, where situate, 1 Sam. xxviii. 4.

Gilead, mount, why so called, Gen. xxxi. 21. neighbouring country denominated from it, ibid. its situation, ibid. its produce, Numb. xxxii. 1. two of the name, Judg. vii. 3.

—— land of, why so called, Numb. xxxii. 1. its boundaries, ibid.

—— put for the country of the Israelites east of Jordan, Josh. xxii. 9. put for the tribe of Gad, Ps. lx. 7. why called by Jeremiah the head of Lebanon, Deut. iii. 8.

—— balm of, what supposed to be, 1 Sam. xxiii. 29. See Balm of Gilead.

Gilgal, its distance from Jericho, Josh. v. 2. noted for worship of false gods, Hos. iv. 15; ix. 15. from Shittim to, explained, Mic. vi. 5.

—— another Gilgal mentioned, Josh. xii. 23.

'Gird the loins' explained from Jewish mode of dress, 1 Kings xviii. 46; Luke xii. 35. 'gird himself,' Luke xii. 37; John xiii. 4. See Harness.

Girding up the loins, an Eastern custom figuratively applied, 1 Pet. i. 13.

Girdle, part of military dress, Job xii. 21. chain to confine captives, ver. 18. use of, Ps. cix. 19. what it denotes, Is. v. 27; xi. 5. applied to river, explained, Is. xxiii. 10. symbol of, explained, Jer. xiii. 1. curiously wrought in the East, Prov. xxxi. 24.

Gittites, who they were, 2 Sam. xv. 18.

Gittith, meaning of the term, Ps. viii. title.

Give, used for permission, Ezek. xx. 25; Rom. xi. 8. why 'it is more blessed to give than to receive,' Acts xx. 35. this saying of Christ handed down by tradition, ibid.

'—— place unto wrath,' what meant by it, Rom. xii. 19.

—— what meant by God giving men to Christ, 1 Thess. iii. 5.

Given, in the sense of 'disposed' or 'inclined,' John xvii. 2, 6.

Giveth, 'all that the Father giveth Me,' explained, John vi. 37. Christ Himself precludes any mistake of its sense, ibid.

Giving, what it means in speaking of offices in the Church, Rom. xii. 8.

Glass, made from the sand of the river Belus, near the tribe of Zebulon, Deut. xxxiii. 19. anciently very precious, Job xxviii. 17. signification of the original word, 1 Cor. xiii. 12. how it may be used, ibid.

Glass (mirror) precepts of the Gospel, why compared to one, Jam. i. 23. justness of the comparison, ibid. folly of those persons who are included in it, ibid.
Gleaning, why allowed to the poor and to strangers in Israel, Lev. xix. 9. remark on Ruth's conduct about it, Ruth ii. 2.
—— of the grapes of Ephraim, a Jewish proverb explained, Judg. viii. 2.
Gloominess, neither reasonable nor religious, Deut. xxxii. 43.
Glorified, how God expects to be, Lev. x. 3.
Glorifying the name of God by Christ's miracles, &c. exemplified, John xii. 28.
'Glorious Gospel,' reason of the epithet, 1 Tim. i. 11.
Glory to be given to God only, Is. xlii. 8. Christ to bear it in His Church, Zech. vi. 13. which the wise shall inherit described, Prov. iii. 35. different degrees of, in a future state, 1 Cor. xv. 41. an argument for increased exertions in this state, ibid. 'from glory to glory,' an Hebraism, what it denotes, 2 Cor. iii. 18. distinct states of, which belong to Christ, not to be confounded, Phil. ii. 11.
—— why used to express the tongue, Ps. xvi. 9.
—— of God, the proper scope of human actions, Exod. xxxii. 12. promoted by our humiliation for sin, Josh. vii. 19. what Moses begs in desiring it to be shewn him, Exod. xxxiii. 18. what taught by the precept that we should do all to it, 1 Cor. x. 31. how inculcated in the Lord's Prayer, ibid. when we may be said to do so, ibid. ver. 33. why man is so called, 1 Cor. xi. 7. in what it most shines forth, 2 Cor. i. 20. when we advance it, Phil. i. 11. how illustrated, 1 Pet. ii. 12.
—— of the Lord, a visible sign of God's favour, Lev. ix. 6. namely Christ, what meant by Christians beholding it, 2 Cor. iii. 18.
—— of Christ, faithful and zealous Christians why so called, 2 Cor. viii. 23.
—— of the man, why woman is so called, 1 Cor. xi. 7.
Glorying, in some things allowable, 1 Cor. ix. 18. what sort of condemned, ibid.
Go, 'to go out and come in,' meaning of this Hebrew phrase, 1 Kings ii. 7.
'—— beyond and defraud his brother in any matter,' what it means, 1 Thess. iv. 6.
'—— to now' explained, Jam. v. 1.
Goad, the great size of the ox goads still used in Palestine, Judg. iii. 31. why used as an offensive weapon by Shamgar, ibid.
Goat, wild, the ibex, its character, Job xxxix. 1.
—— properly made type of Macedonian empire, Dan. viii. 5.
Goats, the two, what they signified, Lev. xvi. 8, 22.
—— hair, its resemblance to human in the East, Gen. xxvii. 16. very beautiful in parts of the East, Exod. xxv. 4. how prepared for use, ibid. its delicate silky softness, Song of Sol. iv. 1.
Gob and Gezer, perhaps the same place, 2 Sam. xxi. 18.
God, His existence taken for granted by Moses, Gen. i. 1. efficacy of His will in creation, ver. 3. His clemency to fallen man, Gen. iii. 13. properties of, all included in His name, Exod. xxxiv. 7. faithful to His promises, and almighty in fulfilling them, Josh. x. 43. His decree unalterable, 1 Sam. xv. 29. His absolute right over His creatures, 2 Sam. xxiv. 15. can make ample amends for seeming harshness, ibid. a striking description of His immensity and omnipresence, 1 Kings viii. 27. in what sense we speak of Him as being in heaven, ibid. His power to confound the strong and the wise, 2 Kings vii. 6. His power to bestow all good gifts on His creatures, 2 Chron. xxv. 9. incomprehensible, Job xi. 7; xxxvii. 23. His infinite superiority, Job xxxv. 5. our only faithful Helper, Ps. lv. 22. able to hear us in our deepest calamities, Ps. lxi. 7. His justice displayed, Ps. cxi. 7. His holy nature described, Hab. i. 13. His wisdom and justice vindicated, Hab. ii. 20. His name called incommunicable, Wisd. xiv. 21. His everlasting kingdom, power, and glory, Matt. vi. 13. the Fountain of goodness, &c. Matt. xix. 17. expressly declared to be a Spirit, John iv. 24. is to be worshipped agreeably to His spiritual nature, ibid. vain the power of man against Him, Acts v. 23. His eternity, Rev. i. 4. His ineffable Majesty represented by sensible images, Rev. iv. 2, 3. how usually styled before the captivity, and after it, Ezra i. 2.
God said to do what He commands to be done, Gen. iii. 21; Exod. vii. 17. what He only suffers, Ezek. xiv. 9. the praise of our actions should be ascribed to Him, Gen. xli. 16. pernicious effects of erroneous notions concerning Him, Deut. i. 27. His several attributes displayed in the capture of the ark, and the judgments on the Philistines, 1 Sam. v. 12. His dealings with men according to their desires of what He does not approve, 1 Sam. viii. 22. permits evil, never causes it, 2 Sam. xii. 11. His visiting the offences of fathers upon children, 2 Sam. xxi. 6, 9. the only proper object of our fear, Ps. lxxvi. 12. uses the fittest means to make His creatures happy, Ezek. xviii. 32. willeth not the death of the sinner, ibid. His promises or threatenings conditional, Ezek. xxxiii. 14. requires from us undivided service, Matt. vi. 24. acts by different rules as Creator and as Judge, Rom. ii. 11. no respecter of persons, in what capacity this perfection ascribed to Him in Scripture, Rom. ii. 11. His judging the world, what it implies, Rom. iii. 6. of patience and consolation, why the Apostle so calls Him, Rom. xv. 5. in what words He ought to be spoken of, Heb. i. 3. why represented as a terrible avenger of disobedience, Heb. xii. 29. with what allusion so represented, ibid.
—— why represented with human parts and passions, Gen. vi. 6; viii. 21; Deut. i. 34. His actions described in terms accommodated to our conceptions, Gen. xi. 5. spoken of after the manner of men, Gen. xviii. 21; Exod. xiv. 24; xix. 11; xxiv. 10; xxxi. 18; xxxii. 32; Lev. i. 9; Deut. xxxii. 27, 40; xxxiii. 26; Ezek v. 13. in what sense God is said to be grieved, Judg. x. 16.
—— called 'the only true God' in opposition to false gods, John xvii. 3. the expression does not exclude the Son from the Godhead, ibid.
—— name of, common to the three Persons of the Trinity, 1 Cor. viii. 6. how attributed peculiarly to the Father, ibid.
'—— manifest in the flesh,' what union it imports, 1 Tim. iii. 16. par. 3. uses of this union in the person of Christ, ibid.
'—— blessed for ever,' remarks on the title as applied to Christ, Rom. ix. 5. an incontestible proof of His divinity and identity of nature with the Father's, ibid.
—— of Abraham, &c. why God so called, Exod. iii. 6. force of the term as used to Moses, ibid.
—— of gods, what the term implies, Ps. cxxxvi. 2.
—— of the Hebrews, why the Lord so styled to Pharaoh, Exod. v. 3.
—— of Israel, the God of nature, Exod. ix. 23; xii. 23. His superiority acknowledged over the heathen gods, Deut. xxxii. 31, instances of the acknowledgment, ibid.
—— peculiarly King of the Israelites, Exod. iii. 10.
—— of Shadrach, &c. in what sense used, Dan. iii. 29.
—— and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, in what different respects the first Person of the Trinity is so called, Rom. xv. 6. distinction of the two appellations, Eph. i. 3.
'—— forbid,' original and purport of the phrase, Rom. iii. 4.
—— of this world, who so called, 2 Cor. iv. 4.
Gods, sometimes used for the angels of God, Gen. iii. 5. used for judges, Exod. xxii. 28. for powers of heaven and earth, Ps. xcv. 3. name applied in inferiour sense to princes, &c. Ps. lxxxii. 6; cxxxviii. 1; John x. 35.
—— strange, the phrase explained, Gen. xxxv. 2.
—— of Egypt, phrase explained, Exod. xii. 12.
—— 'like unto thee among the gods,' explained, Exod. xv. 11.
—— plurality of, believed by the generality of the world, Exod. xx. 3. how corrected, ibid.
—— what the Israelites meant by 'make us gods,' Exod. xxxii. 1. their motive, ibid.
—— of the heathens, impurity and cruelty of their characters adopted into the worship of them, Deut. xii. 31.
—— that came newly up, what meant by them, Deut. xxxii. 17.
—— 'these mighty gods,' what the translation should be, 1 Sam. iv. 8. 'I saw gods ascending &c.' explained, 1 Sam. xxviii. 13.
—— of the hills, imagination of the Syrians concerning the Israelites serving 'gods of the hills,' 1 Kings xx, 23. the folly of such belief, ver. 28.

Gods, meaning those worshipped in the world as such, Ps. lxxxvi. 8.
—— false, of Judah, great number of them, Jer. ii. 28.
—— of conquered countries carried away, Hos. x. 6.
—— the term applied in an inferiour sense, John x. 35.
Godfathers and godmothers, reason of the name, Eph. iv. 5.
Godliness, outward form of, unavailing, Matt. vii. 27. its natural tendency, 1 Tim. iv. 8. delight afforded by it in the absence of prosperity, ibid. how we are bound to it by the Gospel, Tit. ii. 11, 12. in what it consists, 2 Pet. i. 6. importance of it as a general principle, ibid. the distinction of a Christian, ibid.
Gog—Magog, conjectures respecting the persons or nations designed by these names, Ezek. xxxviii. 2; Rev. xx. 8.
Gold, procured by David from Ophir, why probably by land, 1 Chron. xxix. 2.
—— more precious than, explained, Is. xiii. 12.
—— put for glory of the temple, Lam. iv. 1.
Golden age, descriptions of it by profane writers resembling the Prophet's description of the Messiah's reign, Is. xi. 6, 8. of the Church described, Is. lx. 17.
Golgotha, account of, Matt. xxvii. 33.
Goliath, why his head was cut off, 1 Sam. xvii. 54. how his armour was disposed of, ibid.
Gomer, meaning the most ancient Celts, where situated, Ezek. xxxviii. 6.
'Gone from me' explained, Dan. ii. 5.
Good, spoken of God absolutely, Hos. viii. 3. brought out of evil, Gen. xlv. 5; l. 20; Philem. ver. 15.
—— to do, best use of prosperous fortune, Eccles. iii. 12.
—— and bad persons, admit of future change, Matt. vii. 18.
—— direction in the practice of that which is really so, Rom. xiv. 16.
—— Christians obliged to do all they can, Col. i. 10.
—— life, new obligations to, furnished by Christianity, Rom. xiii. 12.
—— man, used for a merciful, benevolent man, Rom. v. 7.
—— men, their frailties recorded for our admonition, Gen. ix. 21. use to be made of the history of their failings, Gen. xii. 19. the faults of, not to be imitated, Gen. xxvii. 16. their first object God's service, Gen. xxxiii. 20. active in doing good, Exod. ii. 17. not exempt from frailties, Exod. v. 22. their example in having recourse to God recommended, ibid. what their state in the other world will carry with it, 1 John iii. 2. how their improvement will be produced, ibid.
—— things to come, interpretations of the phrase, Heb. ix. 11; x. 1.
—— works, earnestly recommended by St. Paul, Rom. ii. 13. a caution against misconceiving his subsequent doctrine, ibid. necessity of, not relaxed by the efficacy of the death of Christ, Rom. vi. 1. absolutely necessary to be done by those who are created in Christ Jesus, Eph. ii. 10. happiness of such as do them specified, ibid. the rashness of speaking lightly of them, Tit. ii. 14. their necessity enlarged on, ibid. their necessity inculcated, Tit. iii. 8. peculiarly binding on Christians, ibid. what they signify, ibid. what meant by maintaining them, ibid. not meritorious, but the qualification or condition of happiness, Jam. ii. 26.
Goodly mountain, considerations on the meaning of it, Deut. iii. 25.
Goodman, its meaning in early English writers, Prov. vii. 19.
Goodness of God in rewarding obedience, Gen. ix. 27. an aggravation of the guilt of sinners, Deut. vi. 13. transcends His severity, Deut. vii. 9. reflections on it, Ps. cxlv. 5. His motive of action towards us, Lam. iii. 33. shewn in supplying us with food bodily and spiritual, Mark viii. 8. in visiting and redeeming His people, Luke i. 68. towards sinners, design of it, Rom. ii. 4. how abused by them, ibid. most valuable proof of it, Jam. i. 18.
—— a way to true glory and God's favour, Numb. xii. 7.
—— some remaining in our nature notwithstanding the fall, 1 Cor. xiii. 1. See Fallen man.
Gopher wood, what it was, Gen. vi. 14.
Goshen, land of, its situation and description, Gen. xlv. 10; Exod. viii. 22. what caused it to be open for the Israelites, Gen. xlvi. 34. miraculously preserved from the plague of flies, Exod. viii. 22. singularity which attended this plague with respect to Goshen, ibid.
Goshen in the tribe of Judah, why so called, Josh. x. 41.
Gospel, meaning of the word, Introd. to New Test. each of the four Gospels contain the history of Christ's life and ministry, ibid. general account of the momentous and interesting truths which the Gospels proclaim, ibid. peculiar privilege of it, Exod. xxxiv. 1. its mysteries imparted to 'babes,' Matt. xi. 25. the greatest of blessings, Matt. xiii. 44. the dispensation of it committed not to angels, but to men, Acts x. 5. greatly prejudiced by the Jewish converts, Introd. to Rom. par. 6. doctrines of, contained in the Old Testament, Rom. i. 2.
—— revelation, argument for the great necessity of it, Rom. i. 27.
—— what the constitution of it requires, Rom. iii. 27. its tendency to produce humility, ibid. the only means of delivering men from sin and death, Rom. vii. 25. what the design of it is, Rom. xii. an honourable distinction of it, Rom. xiv. 21. why and with respect to what time called a mystery, Rom. xvi. 26. when no longer so looked upon, ibid. the revelation of it subject of great joy and praise, ibid. by what means effectually preached, 1 Cor. iv. 13. first preachers of, why most miserable if they had no prospect of future happiness, 1 Cor. xv. 19. how made void, Gal. ii. 21. its morality very opposite to enthusiasm, Phil. iii. 13. its temperate and prudent character, ibid. how far it had been received when the Epistle to the Colossians was written, Col. i. 6. importance of the considerations by which it is pressed upon us, Heb. ii. 3. danger of neglecting it, ibid. what it signifies, Heb. iv. 2. that it does not profit some, no argument against its sufficiency, ibid. for what purpose preached, 1 Pet. iv. 6. declares God's desire that men should repent and be saved, Ezek. xviii. 23. Obadiah's prophecy verified in first preaching of, Obad. ver. 17.
—— its wonderful increase foretold by Christ, Matt. xiii. 31—33. propagated through 'the whole world' before the destruction of Jerusalem, Matt. xxiv. 14. parable representing its increase by means secret and undiscerned, Mark iv. 26. its rapid increase proportionable to the greatness of the cause, Acts ii. 41; iv. 4; xix. 20. wholly disproportioned to the visible means and instruments of it, ibid. owing to the extraordinary providence of God, and therefore an illustrious proof of its Divine origin, ibid. miraculous propagation of, illustrated, Rom. x. 18. publication of it described, Ps. xix. introd.; xxii. 29. greatest progress among posterity of Japhet, Is. xi. 11.
—— final rejection of, will be severely punished, Matt. xxi. 44. the reward of receiving it, and the danger of rejecting it, John iii. 18, 36. the wickedness of men's lives frequently the ground of their rejection of it, ver. 19. its light too prying for sinners, ibid. danger of wilfully rejecting it, John xii. 48. the abuse of it will be punished, 1 Pet. iv. 6.
—— how called an everlasting covenant, Jer. xxxii. 40; Ezek. xvi. 60. why called the Gospel of God, Rom. i. 1. and of Christ, ibid. and by St. Paul, his Gospel, ibid. why called the power of God unto salvation, ver. 16. why styled the testimony of God, 1 Cor. ii. 1. why called the wisdom of God in a mystery, 1 Cor. ii. 7.
—— faith, Job's conduct an instance of, Job xxxi. 21.
—— times of, how figuratively expressed, Hos. ii. 18.
Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Luke, proof of their early publication and Divine authority, 1 Tim. v. 18.
Goths, their invasion under Alaric foretold, Rev. viii. 7.
'Governour of the feast' explained, John ii. 8.
—— in Judah, meaning of it, Zech. ix. 7.
Governours, why to be submitted to, Rom. xiii. 1. in what way to be honoured, ibid. why taxes ought to be paid them by the people, ver. 6. sinfulness of withholding them, ver. 7. why called by St. Paul 'ordained of God,' and by St. Peter a human ordinance, 1 Pet. ii. 13.
—— heathen, prejudices of the Jews against them, Rom. xiii. representation given of them by St. Paul, ibid. his warnings to Christians concerning them, ibid.
Government, the evil of the want of it, Judg. xvii. 6. it gives us order, peace, and religion, ibid.

Government lawfully settled, obedience due to it, 1 Pet. ii. 15. civil rights not thereby extinguished, ibid. instances of St. Paul's maintenance of his privileges, ibid.
—— why called the ordinance of man, Rom. xiii. 1. right which governments convey is God's, ibid.
—— of the world, utility of tracing God's wisdom in it, Deut. xiii. 11.
Governments, how far to be considered an ordinance of man, 1 Pet. ii. 13. on what principle to be submitted to, ibid.
—— foreign, opinion of the Jews respecting them, 1 Pet. ii. 13. how applied by the enemies of the Gospel to Christians, ibid. anxiety of Christian writers to secure the Gospel and its professors from misrepresentation, ibid.
Gourd, uncertainty concerning it, Jonah iv. 6. its growth over Jonah miraculous, ibid.
—— wild, what herb is thought to be intended, 2 Kings iv. 39. its properties, ibid. the Prophet's curing its poisonous quality miraculous, ibid.
Gozan, river, what thought to be, 2 Kings xvii. 6.
Grace, Christians may fall from a state of grace, Matt. xviii. 6; John x. 28. the necessity of cooperating and preventing grace, John vi. 44. why added to peace in the Evangelical salutations, Rom. i. 7. what meant by the grace given to St. Paul, Rom. xii. 3. applied to the members of the Church, what it means, Rom. xii. 6. possibility of its being received in vain, Gal. v. 17. the rejection of those who do not profit by it, figuratively described, Heb. vi. 8. what it alludes to, ibid. meaning of the exhortation 'let us have grace,' Heb. xii. 28. the day of, this life its utmost period, Is. xlix. 8. 'I will pour the spirit of grace' explained, Zech. xii. 10.
—— of God to be gratefully acknowledged in restraining men from sin, Gen. xx. 6. imparted in proportion to the improvement derived from it, Matt. xiii. 12; Mark iv. 24; Luke xix. 26. alone can strengthen them that fall into sin, Mark xiv. 72. must concur with our endeavours to make us true believers, Acts xvi. 14. reflections on its abundance, Rom. v. 21. not incompatible with the necessity of sincere endeavours after obedience, ibid. illustrated, ibid. doctrine of, erroneous consequence liable to be drawn from it, Rom. vi. 1. anticipated and protested against by St. Paul, ibid. how restricted, 1 Cor. i. 4. what it signifies in a general sense, 2 Cor. vi. 1. what in a more restrained sense, ibid. when received in vain generally, ibid. when specially, ibid. how glorified by our election and adoption through Christ, Eph. i. 6. 'that bringeth salvation, &c.' remark on the comprehensiveness of the text, Tit. ii. 11, 12. See State of Grace.
—— and apostleship, a Hebraism, what it signifies, Rom. i. 5.
Graces, abundance of God's spiritual, foretold, Amos ix. 13.
Gracious, signifying courteous, Jer. xxii. 23.
Grandfather, called father in Scripture, Exod. ii. 18.
Grapegatherer, comparison to, explained, Jer. vi. 9.
Grapes, their great size in some parts of the East, Numb. xiii. 23. their smallness in Egypt, ibid. the practice of treading them still prevailing in the East, Judg. ix. 27; Job xxiv. 11.
—— sour, 'the fathers have eaten,' proverb explained, Jer. xxxi. 29; Ezek. xviii. 2.
—— wild, explained, Is. v. 2.
Grass, not mown in the East, Amos vii. 1. what included under the term, Matt. vi. 30.
Grasshoppers, armies why compared to, Jer. xlvi. 23.
Gratitude, God the great object of, Exod. xv. 21. to God, when to be testified, Lev. iii. 5. how it manifests itself, 1 Thess. v. 18.
Grave, used to signify the state of departed souls, Gen. xxxvii. 35. compared to a bed, Is. lvii. 2.
Graven image, signification of the Hebrew word, Exod. xx. 4.
Graving tool, probable signification of the original word, Exod. xxxii. 4.
Gravitation, law of, called God's decree, Job xxxviii. 10.
Great and good man, who truly deserves the name of, 1 Cor. iv. 13.
Great sea, Mediterranean, why so called, Numb. xxxiv. 2.
Greatness of God, reflections on, Ps. cxxxvi. 4.
Greatness and goodness associated in the titles of God, Deut. xxiii. 9.
—— of mind, what a mark of it, Esther ii. 20.
Greaves, why used for defending the legs, 1 Sam. xvii. 6.
Grecia, the prince of, who to be understood, Dan. x. 20.
Grecian games alluded to, 1 Cor. ix. 24—26; Phil. iii. 12; Col. i. 29; Jude ver. 3. where celebrated, 1 Cor. ix. 24—26. character of the solemnity, ibid. how St. Paul fitly compared himself to the combatants at them, Col. i. 29. seeming allusion to, 2 Cor. iv. 8, 9.
Grecians, what Jews so called in the apostolical age, Acts vi. 1; ix. 29; xi. 20; Introd. to Heb. par. 4.
—— were to be amongst the first converted by Jewish preaching of the Gospel, Zech. ix. 13.
Greece, Syria and Egypt called so by the Jews, 1 Mac. i. 1. divided by the Romans into Macedonia and Achaia, Acts xvi. 9. the country comprehended under the word in the New Testament, Acts xx. 2.
Greek, a name to whom given by the Jews, Mark vii. 26.
—— names of persons, remark on their being retained in our translation, Heb. iv. 8.
Greeks, meaning foreigners who spoke the Greek language, John xii. 20. put for Gentiles, Acts xxi. 28. meaning of, as opposed to barbarians, Rom. i. 14. more than other Gentiles probably condemned by St. Paul, ver. 22. national manners of, a confutation of infidels, and an argument for revelation, ver. 32. their objection to the Gospel, 1 Cor. i. 22. what they delighted in, ibid. such persons too common in the world, ibid.
Green tree, what it figuratively expresses, Luke xxiii. 31.
Greet, what it means, Rom. xvi. 3.
Greyhound in Judea, description of them, Prov. xxx. 31.
Grief, moderate, allowable, Gen. xxxvii. 35. excessive, to be condemned, ibid. violent symptoms of in Egypt, Exod. xi. 6.
Grieving the Holy Spirit, spoken after the manner of men, Eph. iv. 30. what it intimates, ibid.
Grievous, meaning troublesome and injurious, Ps. x. 5. to whom the commandments of God are not grievous, 1 John v. 3. reason of it, ibid.
Grove, meaning the image or idol of the grove, 2 Kings xvii. 10. xxiii. 6.
Groves, whence the Gentiles derived the custom of worshipping in them, Gen. xxi. 33. why prohibited by the law, ibid. why commanded not to be planted near the altar of God, Deut. xvi. 21. improper use of them, ibid. used for purposes of idolatry, Judg. iii. 7. sacrificing in, a rite of idolatry, Ezek. vi. 13.
Ground, to sit upon, denoting deep lamentation, Job ii. 13; Is. iii. 26. to swallow, expressing great swiftness, Job xxxix. 24.
Guests, equal portions given to, Ecclus. xiv. 9.
Guides, necessary for travellers in the Arabian deserts, Numb. x. 31. their condition and information, ibid.
Guilt, its proneness to fear, Exod. xxxiv. 35.
Guilty of all, why he is said to be so who offends in one point of the law, Jam. ii. 10. chief things to be remembered concerning the passage, ibid. an express condemnation of a corrupt Jewish doctrine, ibid.
'—— before God' explained, Rom. iii. 19.
Gymnasium, built at Jerusalem, why offensive to the Jews, 1 Mac. i. 14.

H.

Habakkuk, of the tribe of Simeon, when he prophesied, his style, Introd. to Hab. passage from him, in what way used, Heb. x. 37.
Habits, particular, should be appropriated to the ministers of God, Exod. xxix. 44.
Hadadezer, probably a powerful prince, 2 Sam. viii. 3. what meant by his recovering his border at the Euphrates, ibid. why called Hadarezer, 2 Sam. x. 16.
Hadadrimmon, meaning of, explained, Zech. xii. 11.
Hagar, how accounted in Abram's family, Gen. xvi. 3. her children how accounted, ibid.
—— and Sarah, as figuratively denoting the Law and the Gospel, explained, Gal. iv. 24—26, 30, 31.

Hagarites, who they were, 1 Chron. v. 10.
Haggai, born in captivity, returned with Zerubbabel when he prophesied, probably of sacerdotal race, his style, Introd. to Haggai.
Hail, plague of, remarks on, Exod. ix. 18. contrary to experience in Egypt, ibid. significancy and propriety of it, ibid. in what particulars the interference of Providence evinced by it, ibid. warning of it given to the Egyptians, ver. 19. and respected by many of them, ibid. duration of this miracle, ver. 27.
—— denotes God's judgments, Rev. xvi. 21. what its weight signifies, ibid.
—— and fire, metaphorical expression for the calamities of war, Rev. viii. 7. what signifying principally, ibid.
Hair, esteemed a great ornament, 2 Sam. xiv. 26; Neh. xiii. 25. the plucking it off a mode of punishment in the East, ibid. cutting it off a sign of sorrow, Jer. vii. 29. neglect of it a symptom of mourning, Gen. xli. 14.
Hairs, gray, token of decay of strength, Hos. vii. 9.
Hairy man, what is meant by the term, 2 Kings i. 8.
Halah and Habor, their probable situations, 2 Kings xvii. 6.
Hallelujah, when sung, Ps. cv. 45.
—— the great, what Psalms so called, Ps. cxv. 1. sung by the Jews after eating the passover, ibid.
Hallow the name of God, in what sense used, Matt. vi. 9.
Ham, why called the father of Canaan, Gen. ix. 18. plagued in his children for his sin against his father, ver. 27.
—— the father of the Egyptians, Ps. lxxviii. 51.
—— land of, Egypt, Ps. cv. 23.
Haman, why called the Agagite, Esth. iii. 1. reflections on his proud and malicious spirit, ver. 6. on his accusation of the Jews, ibid. on his vexation and resentment notwithstanding his prosperity, Esth. v. 13. his humiliation caused by his thirst of revenge, Esth. vi. 10. receives from Esther his true title, Esth. vii. 6. what punishment inflicted on him, ver. 9. reflections on his reverse of fortune by the interposition of Providence, ibid. and on the destruction of his family, Esth. ix. 14.
Hamath, where situated, Numb. xiii. 21.
—— city and kingdom of, its situation, 2 Sam. viii. 9; Is. x. 9; Amos vi. 2.
—— the entering in of, its situation, Numb. xxxiv. 2; Amos vi. 14.
Hamath-zobah, its probable situation, 2 Chron. viii. 3.
Hammelech, son of, explained, Jer. xxxvi. 26.
Hammer, oppressive empire so called, Jer. l. 23.
Hamonah, conjecture about a city to be so called, Ezek. xxxix. 16.
Hanani the Prophet, instruction he gives, 2 Chron. xvi. 9.
Hananiah, in what sense a prophet, Jer. xxviii. 5.
—— grandfather of Irijah, who he was, Jer. xxxvii. 13.
Hand, when unemployed how disposed of, Ps. lxxiv. 11. how used by Arabs, &c. at meals, Prov. xix. 24.
—— to give or strike,' explained and illustrated, 2 Kings x. 15; 1 Chron. xxix. 24; Ezra x. 19; Job xvii. 3; Prov. vi. 1; xi. 21; Jer. l. 15; Lam. v. 6.
—— to lift up, to swear, Ps. cvi. 26; cxliv. 8; Ezek. xx. 5; Dan. xii. 7; Rev. x. 5.
—— kissing the hand, method of adoration, Job xxxi. 27.
—— right, put for exertion of strength, Lam. ii. 3.
—— 'sold them into the hand' explained, Judg. iii. 8.
—— because of thy, expression explained, Jer. xv. 17.
—— to put a thing of value in one's hand, what it signifies, Job xiii. 14.
—— of the Lord, phrase explained, 2 Kings iii. 15; Is. viii. 11.
Hands, laying hands on, a solemn rite in appointing to an office, Numb. xxvii. 18. See Imposition.
—— 'his hands were feeble' explained, 2 Sam. iv. 1.
Handkerchiefs, how worn on the head in the East, Ezek. xiii. 18.
Handling the body of Christ alluded to, 1 John i. 1.
Handmaid, attendant on Eastern women, Gen. xvi. 1.
Hanes, city of Egypt, Is. xxx. 4.
Hanging, when used among the Jews, Deut. xxi. 22. a mark of special ignominy, ver. 23. what the criminals, who were so punished, were said to be, ibid. how alluded to by St. Paul, ibid.
Hangings, woven by the women, the probable purpose of them, 2 Kings xxiii. 7. remark on the use of them at Aleppo, Esth. i. 6. what probably here meant, ibid.
Hannah, her vow and prayer, 1 Sam. i. 11. the inward anguish of her soul, ver. 12. the general excellence of her character, her piety and meekness, ver. 28.
—— prophetick hymn of, its excellence, and its subjects, 1 Sam. ii. 1. its near resemblance to the hymn of the blessed Virgin, ver. 5. its expressions too magnificent to be confined to her immediate circumstances, ver. 10.
Happiness does not depend on outward prosperity, Esth. v. 13. what the foundation of it, ibid.
—— of the wicked is only external, Prov. ii. 22.
—— everlasting, to be preferred to every thing else, Matt. v. 29.
—— of the righteous in heaven, uncommon force of the language in which St. Paul speaks of it, 2 Cor. iv. 17. respect to be had to it, ibid. effect of such meditation, ibid.
—— in another world, in what proportion it will be increased, 2 Cor. ix. 6.
—— of those who love God even in this world unspeakable, 1 Pet. i. 8. inference with respect to another world, ibid.
—— of the blessed, considerations on, Rev. xxii. 3.
Harams of the East, extreme vigilance with which they are guarded, Esth. ii. 11.
Harden, whom God hardens, Rom. ix. 17. how He hardens them, ibid. in what manner the word is used, ver. 18. 'it was of the Lord to harden their hearts' explained, Josh. xi. 20.
Hardened, God hardened the spirit of Sihon, explained, Deut. ii. 30.
—— heart, description of, Exod. ix. 34. its punishment, ibid. warning against, ibid. 'divers were hardened,' explained, Acts xix. 9.
Hardening of Pharaoh's heart, interpretation of the phrase, Exod. iv. 21; vii. 13, 23; ix. 12. an admonition to sinners, ver. 34.
Harlot, a concubine-wife of a different nation, Judg. xi. 1. name for persons keeping houses of publick entertainment, 1 Kings iii. 16. different significations of the word, Josh. ii. 1.
Harlots, mother of, polluting herself and others with the grossest idolatry, Rev. xvii. 5. the name must apply to Christian Rome, ibid.
Harness, how formerly used, 1 Kings xxii. 34. 'let not him that girdeth on &c.' explained, 1 Kings xx. 11.
Harnessed, explained, Exod. xiii. 18.
Harosheth of the Gentiles, why so called, Judg. iv. 2.
Harp, among the Jews how played upon, Ps. xxxiii. 2.
Hart, the feet of, adapted to standing on rocks, Ps. xviii. 33.
Harvest, the season of it in Judea, 1 Sam. xii. 17. the joy of it alluded to, Hos. ix. 1. image of the last judgment, Is. xviii. 5.
—— to set an, what meant by, Hos. vi. 11.
—— and vintage, usual figures to represent the judgments of God, Rev. xiv. 15.
'Hasting unto the coming' explained, 2 Pet. iii. 12.
Hated, in what sense God hated Esau, Rom. ix. 7, 13.
'Hateth his life,' in what sense used, John xii. 25.
Hath, for 'hath much,' Matt. xiii. 12.
Hating, how used in Scripture, Gen. xxix. 31; Luke xiv. 26.
Hatred, what it is in spirit, 1 John iii. 15. reason of the sentence pronounced on it, ibid.
Hauran, where situate, Ezek. xlvii. 16.
Havilah, where situated, Gen. ii. 11; 1 Sam. xv. 7.
Havoth-jair explained, Numb. xxxii. 41.
Hawk, much venerated by the Egyptians, Lev. xi. 16. a bird of passage, Job xxxix. 26.
Hay for herbage, Prov. xxvii. 25; Is. xv. 6.
Hazael, doubtful whether he was actually anointed, 1 Kings xix. 15. reflections on his disclaiming the barbarity imputed to him by Elisha, 2 Kings viii. 13. on his manner of murdering his master, ver. 15. on the deceitfulness of his heart, and his treason, ibid. his cruelties alluded to, Amos i. 3.
Hazar-enan, its situation, Ezek. xlvii. 17.
Hazor, what supposed to be, Judg. iv. 2.
—— the kingdoms of, where situate, and why so called, Jer. xlix. 28.

Head, laying hands on, used in giving blessings, Gen. xlviii. 14. when first mentioned, ibid. instances of it in after-times, ibid.
—— cutting off the head of a slain enemy a common practice in the East, 1 Sam. xvii. 51.
—— writings bound upon it in the East, Job xxxi. 36.
—— of a victim, why the priests put their hands upon, Exod. xxix. 10. only place in Scripture where the ceremony is directly explained, Lev. xvi. 21. why the hand of the offerer put upon it, Lev. i. 4; iii. 2. type of Christ's death, ibid.
—— to cover, a mark of great affliction, Jer. ii. 37.
—— shaving of, customary in great calamities, Jer. xlvii. 5; Job i. 20.
—— of the Church, why Christ is so called, Col. ii. 19. analogy between Him and the natural body, ibid. frequent manner of speaking in Scripture, ibid. admirably fitted to represent our relations and our duties, ibid.
Heads covered, sign of disgrace, Is. xxii. 17.
—— of the people, judges of Israel, Numb. xxv. 4.
Healer, an healer, the expression explained, Is. iii. 7.
'Health of my countenance' explained, Ps. xlii. 11.
Heap coals of fire on his head, how it may be understood, Prov. xxv. 22. whence the metaphor is taken, Rom. xii. 20. how to be understood as a Christian duty, ibid.
'Heard in that he feared' explained, Heb. v. 7. remark on the ambiguity of the expression, ibid.
Hearing, for obeying, Prov. xxviii. 9; Eccles. v. 1.
Heart, what meant by 'speaking to it,' Gen. viii. 21. ill managed, the occasion of all sin, Exod. x. 27. in what sense God gave not a heart to perceive to the Israelites, Deut. xxix. 4. in order to it, man's consideration necessary, ibid. in what sense God 'gave Saul another heart,' 1 Sam. x. 9. largeness of it, God's gift to Solomon, Ps. cxix. 32. the seat of the affections, Prov. iv. 23. how said to be deceitful above all things, Jer. xvii. 9. what meant by a man's heart, Dan. vii. 4. an honest and good one necessary to understand Divine truths, Dan. xii. 10. the service of it required by God, Joel ii. 12. 'make you a new heart' explained, Ezek. xviii. 31. why the Jews here required to make what God promises to give, ibid. the root whence all sinful actions spring, Jam. i. 15. truth of the position exemplified, ibid. necessity of reforming it in order to a reformation of life, ibid.
Hearth, the term explained, Jer. xxxvi. 22.
Heat, extreme, producing stillness in the air, what it signifies, Is. xviii. 4. excessive at Nineveh, Jonah iv. 5.
—— on the head in hot countries, its effect, Judith viii. 3.
Heathen, the Canaanites, Ps. xliv. 2.
—— deities, in what form imagined often to appear, Acts xiv. 11. how supposed to be present, ver. 13. in what manner destroyed by Christ, Col. ii. 15.
—— world, sad account of its religion, Rom. i. 21. and sins, ibid.
—— worship set up in cities of Judea, Dan. viii. 23. objects of it, Rom. i. 21. inconsistent with their notions of the Supreme Being, ibid.
Heathens, learned, acquainted to a certain extent with God's perfections, and the duties of men, Rom. i. 21. their authorized depravity an argument for the necessity of the Gospel, ver. 27.
—— desertion of by God, the just punishment of their enormities, Rom. i. 28. how they might have known the displeasure of God against their sins, ver. 32. their deliverance from their natural state, and their admission to the Gospel, an act of God's free will, Eph. ii. 8. their miserable condition described, Eph. iv. 18. a sufficient evidence of the necessity and benefits of the Gospel, ibid.
Heaven, the body of, explained, Exod. xxiv. 10.
—— as iron, explained, Lev. xxvi. 19.
—— shall be brass, &c. explained, Deut. xxviii. 23.
—— put for the sanctuary, Is. xiv. 13. that said to be done there which was there decreed, Is. xxxiv. 5.
—— queen of, the moon, Jer. vii. 18.
—— the host of, how used figuratively, Dan. viii. 10. See Host.
—— candidates for, what qualifications they must endeavour to acquire, 1 John iii. 8. exalted unto, a metaphorical expression, Matt. xi. 23.
'—— and earth,' meaning of the Jewish phrase, Gen. i. 1; ii. 1; Eph. i. 10. what it seems to signify here, and to the Colossians, Eph. i. 10.
Heavens, why they signify dignities, Is. xiii. 13.
—— new, what the phrase signifies in prophetick language, Is. lxv. 17.
—— and earth, in what sense called on to give ear, Deut. xxxii. 1.
Heber, why called 'the Kenite,' Judg. iv. 11.
Hebrew, probably the original language, Gen. xi. 1. why not used in part of Ezra, Introd. to Ezra. what so called in the New Testament, Dan. ii. 4.
—— alphabet, letters of, how used at beginning of each portion of 119th Psalm, Ps. cxix. 1.
Hebrew of the Hebrews, what the phrase imports, Phil. iii. 5.
Hebrews, origin of the name, Gen. x. 21. what persons so called in the apostolical age, Acts vi. 1; Introd. to Heb. par. 4. upbraided with their unskilfulness in the word of God, Heb. v. 14. application to modern Christians, ibid.
—— land of, part of the land of Canaan so called, Gen. xl. 15. and why, ibid.
—— Epistle to, by whom written, Introd. why the name of the writer omitted, ibid. par. 2. where and when written, ibid. par. 3. to whom addressed, ibid. par. 4. general design of it, ibid. par. 5. and its contents, ibid. substance of it reduced to four principal arguments, ibid. par. 6. character of it, ibid. par. 7. peculiarity of its arguments, ibid. remark on the proof which the first chapter contains of Christ's divinity, Heb. i. 14. the whole design of it, Heb. xi. 16.
Hebron, its antiquity, Gen. xiii. 18. and situation, ibid. Numb. xiii. 22. why made the capital of Judah, 2 Sam. ii. 1. when it became capital of Idumea, 1 Mac. v. 65.
—— mount, always covered with snow, Prov. xxv. 13.
Hedges of thorns, now used in Holy Land, Mic. vii. 4.
Heel, observation on Jacob's taking Esau by it, Hos. xii. 3.
Heels, wickedness of my heels, explained, Ps. xlix. 5.
Heifer without spot, explained, Numb. xix. 2. upon which never came yoke, explained, ibid.
Height in the breadth, Hebrew phrase explained, Exod. xxxviii. 18.
Heir of the world, in what sense Abraham was so, Rom. iv. 13.
—— of all things, what it means, Heb. i. 2. what meant by Christ being so appointed, ibid. what to be understood of Christ as so described, ibid.
Heiresses, general law concerning them, Numb. xxxvi. 8.
Helam, probable opinion respecting it, 2 Sam. x. 16.
Helbon, supposed Aleppo, its wine remarked on, Ezek. xxvii. 18.
Helem, who he was, Zech. vi. 14.
Hell, proper meaning of the English word, Job xxvi. 5, 6. to what Hebrew and Greek words it answers, ibid. two different significations which it bears in our English Bibles, Hos. xiii. 14. places, where it occurs in those significations, enumerated, ibid. in what sense Christ descended into hell, ibid. for other notes on the word see Deut. xxxii. 22; Job xi. 8; Ps. ix. 17; cxxxix. 8; Prov. v. 5; xv. 11; xxvii. 20; Ezek. xxxii. 21; Amos ix. 2; Jonah ii. 2; Acts ii. 27; Rev. i. 18.
—— personified in a very forcible manner, Is. v. 14; xiv. 9.
—— used figuratively, Hab. ii. 5.
—— the lowest hell, meaning of the phrase, Deut. xxxii. 22; Ps. lxxxvi. 13.
—— pains of, what they denote, Ps. cxvi. 3.
—— fire, the allusion of the term in the original, explained, Matt. v. 22.
—— torments, acuteness of them how expressed, Luke xvi. 24.
Helmet of salvation, how St. Paul explains himself, Eph. vi. 17. use of an helmet, ibid. what he who possesses it can do, ibid.
Hem of a garment, what it was, Matt. ix. 20.
Hemlock, God's judgments why compared to, Hos. x. 4.
Hen, who he was, Zech. vi. 14.
Herbs, bitter, why eaten with the passover, Exod. xii. 8. what the herbs were, ibid.
—— dinner of, why opposed to a stalled ox, Prov. xv. 17.
Hercules, (Tyrian,) same as Baal, 2 Mac. iv. 19.
Here I am, meaning of the phrase, Gen. xxii. 1.
Heretick, to whom the name belongs, Tit. iii. 10. in what sense said to be 'subverted and condemned of himself,' ver. 11.

Hereticks, names of some early ones censured by the Apostles, 1 John ii. 19.
Hermon, mount, where situated, Deut. iii. 8; Song of Sol. iv. 8. why mentioned together with both Lebanon and Gilead, ibid. remark on the great dew that falls there, Ps. cxxxiii. 3.
Herod, account of the family of the Herods, Matt. ii. 1.
—— the Great, his character and conduct in murdering the innocents, Matt. ii. 16. excess of precaution in it, ibid.
—— (Antipas,) a Sadducee, Matt. xiv. 2. effects of conscience in him, ibid. his incestuous connexion with Herodias, ver. 3. the folly of his rash oath, ver. 7. his wickedness in not retracting it, ver. 9. his fear of John the Baptist, Mark vi. 20. his unwillingness to part with his favourite sin, ibid. his jurisdiction extended over Galilee, Luke xiii. 31. could have no power to impede the purposes of Christ's ministry, ver. 32, 33.
—— (Agrippa,) account of him, Acts xii. 1. properly styled 'the king,' ibid. why he went to Cesarea, ver. 19. propriety of the expression of his going 'from Judea to Cesarea,' ibid. his vanity and impiety, ver. 22. his wretched end, ver. 23. St. Luke's account of it confirmed by Josephus, ibid.
Herod's judgment hall, why so called, Acts xxiii. 35.
Herodians, conjectures respecting them, Matt. xxii. 16. how it appears that they were Sadducees, Mark viii. 15.
Heroes of antiquity, their inferiority to St. Paul in doing and suffering, 2 Cor. xi. 23.
Heshbon, where situate, Jer. xlviii. 2.
Heth, sons of, who they were, Gen. xxiii. 3.
Hethlon, where situate, Ezek. xlvii. 15.
Hewers in the mountains, those that Solomon had, 1 Kings v. 15.
Hezekiah, a good king seasonably raised up by the providence of God, 2 Kings xviii. 1. the reasons of his breaking the brasen serpent, ver 4. the discouragements he had to encounter, ibid. none resembled him for trust in the Lord, ver. 5. why said to have rebelled against the king of Assyria, ver. 7. how excused for giving away the treasure of the temple, ver. 15. why his officers desire Rabshakeh to speak in the Syrian tongue, ver. 26. why they came to him with clothes rent, ver. 37. how he represents the distressed state of the people, 2 Kings xix. 3. his example in his application to God in prayer under his alarm of danger, ver. 14. does not presume on the favour of God, ibid. when his sickness happened, 2 Kings xx. 1. reflections on his sore weeping at the prospect of death, ver. 3. special Divine interposition in his cure, ver. 7. reasons of the message of Berodach-baladan to him, ver. 12. his pride and vanity, and God's rebuke to him for it, ver. 15, 17. his humility and composure on receiving the Divine message, ver. 19. observations on his religious address to the priests and Levites, 2 Chron. xxix. 5. reasons for the number of animals he sacrificed, ver. 21. why he appointed the Levites to perform offices properly belonging to the priests, ver. 34. why he appointed a solemn passover to be kept in the second month, 2 Chron. xxx. 2. why he proclaimed it through the kingdom of Israel as well as Judah, ver. 5. why he commanded the people to pay punctually the dues to the priests, 2 Chron. xxxi. 4. how he provided for the proper portioning of them among the priests, ver. 15. reflections on his behaviour on his recovery from sickness, 2 Chron. xxxii. 25. why left by God to the inclinations of his own heart, ver. 31. the most remarkable instance of his miscarriage, ibid. prophesied of, Is. xiv. 29. his good government predicted as a type of Messiah, Is. xvi. 4. his riches at the end of his reign accounted for, Is. xxxiii. 24. his conduct towards Babylon alluded to, Jer. xiii. 21. that his attempts to restore the true worship would fail, foretold, Hos. v. 6.
Hid, thy word have I hid in my heart, explained, Ps. cxix. 11.
—— sin hid, what it means, Hos. xiii. 12.
—— what meant by the Gospel being hid, 2 Cor. iv. 3.
Hiddekel, or Tigris, its course, Gen. ii. 14.
'Hidden ones' explained, Ps. lxxxiii. 3.
'—— man of the heart' explained, 1 Pet. iii. 4.
Hiel, his calamity a remarkable instance of the certainty of the Divine threatenings, 1 Kings xvi. 34.
Hierapolis, where situated, Col. iv. 12.
Higgaion, the term explained, Ps. ix. 16.
High, to return on, explained, Ps. vii. 7.
High day, the sabbath in the passover week why so called, John xix. 31.
—— mountains, why the heathens worshipped their gods there, Deut. xii. 2.
—— place, first instance of one used by people of God, 1 Sam. ix. 12. probably gave rise to synagogues, ibid.
—— places of Baal described, Numb. xxii. 41.
—— places explained, Numb. xxxiii. 52.
—— sacrificing in, remarks on the conduct of the Israelites in that particular, Deut. xii. 4. why they were not taken away in the time of Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xx. 33.
—— priest, why a more solemn sacrifice offered for his sins, Lev. iv. 3. how called by Daniel, Dan. xi. 22.
—— priest under the law, his inferiority to the Christian High Priest, Lev. ix. 2.
—— denunciations addressed to him as representative of whole order, Hos. iv. 6. might mourn in publick calamities, Judith iv. 14.
—— the term used uncertainly in the Gospels, Luke iii. 2.
—— a type of Christ, Exod. xxviii. 38. his entrance into the Holy of Holies typical of the Messiah's entrance into heaven, Lev. xvi. 15. See Priest.
—— office of, made annual by the Romans, John xi. 49.
—— priesthood, how an honour to Christ, Heb. v. 5. how conferred on Him, ibid. inference therefrom, ibid.
—— treason, how punished by human laws, Deut. v. 9. applica- to the second Commandment, ibid.
Higher powers, what they are to which obedience is enjoined, Rom. xiii. 1.
Highway, what it means in prophecy, Is. xix. 23.
Highways, prepared for the progress of princes, Is. xl. 3. guests at Eastern feasts taken promiscuously from them, Matt. xxii. 9.
Hilkiah, what meant by his finding the book of the law, 2 Kings xxii. 8.
—— father of Jeremiah, whether the high priest, Introd. to Jer.
Hill near Nazareth, from which the Jews were about to cast Jesus, traditions concerning it, Luke iv. 29.
—— of God, why so called, 1 Sam. x. 5. what it means, Ezek. xxxiv. 26.
Hills, what particular ones intended, Ps. cxxi. 1.
Hill country, what tract in Judea so called, Luke i. 39.
Hin, measure, its contents, Ezek. xlv. 24.
Hind, an example of conjugal affection, Prov. v. 19. remark on her bringing forth her young, Job xxxix. 3.
Hinnom, the valley of the children of, account of it, 2 Kings xxiii. 10. gehenna called from it, ibid. alluded to Jer. ii. 23. its situation, Jer. xix. 2.
Hip and thigh, conjectures respecting the meaning of the expression, Judg. xv. 8.
Hippopotamus, behemoth of Scripture, described, Job xl. 15—24.
Hiram king of Tyre, hymn composed on his sending workmen to David, Ps. xxx. introd.
—— in Solomon's time, probably son of Hiram in David's time, 1 Kings v. 1. supposed by some to have been a proselyte to the true religion, 2 Chron. ii. 12. See Cabul.
—— his father, conjectures respecting the expression rendered 'his father,' 2 Chron. iv. 16.
Hire, how used, Zech. viii. 10.
—— of labourers, keeping it back, how described, Jam. v. 4.
Hires, what meant by the term, Mic. i. 7.
Hiss to, the metaphor explained, Is. v. 26; vii. 18.
Hissing, an hissing, what it means, Jer. xix. 8.
Historical books of the Old Testament, general account of them, Introd. to Josh. the object of the sacred writers in them, ibid.
Hittites, &c. in what parts of the land of Canaan they were distributed, Deut. vii. 1. why particularly mentioned, Josh. i. 4. some of them remained on the borders of the land of Canaan, 2 Kings vii. 6.
Hobab, remarks on his continuing with Moses in the wilderness, Numb. x. 29, 31. how useful to the Israelites, ibid. his case illustrated by modern Arabian customs, ibid. settled among the Israelites in Canaan, ver. 32.
'Hold the truth in unrighteousness,' in what sense the Gentiles were said to do so, Rom. i. 18.
—— to take hold, explained, Zech. i. 5.

'Holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience,' explained, 1 Tim. iii. 9.
Holiness, when most requisite, Exod. xix. 10.
—— and good works the design of the Gospel, Rom. xii. should be produced by the doctrine of our redemption, ibid.
—— here necessary to happiness hereafter, Gal. vi. 8. powerful argument for Christians to perfect it founded on the relations between God and them, 2 Cor. vi. 18. necessary to happiness, Tit. iii. 7. its absolute necessity uniformly inculcated in the Gospel, Heb. xii. 14. distinction in that respect between peace and holiness, ibid.
—— of God, considerations on, Job iv. 18. in what sense we may be partakers of it, Heb. xii. 10.
—— of Christ, peculiar character of it, 1 Pet. i. 15. difference between the precepts to follow Him and His Apostles, ibid. import of the exhortation that we be holy as He is holy, ibid.
Holm tree, what tree intended, Hist. of Sus. ver. 58.
Holofernes, who he was, Judith ii. 4.
Holy, what meant by the Israelites being required to be so, Lev. xix. 2. reason of the requisition, ibid. what the word means, Ps. lxxxvi. 2. that which touched a holy thing became so, Ezek. xliv. 19. what St. Paul means by saying your children are holy, 1 Cor. vii. 14.
—— 'He that is holy,' appropriate title of the Deity, Rev. iii. 7. applied to Christ, ibid.
—— of Holies, service performed in it represented the service that was to be performed in heaven, Lev. xvi. 27. how the Greek phrase is sometimes rendered, Heb. viii. 2
—— garments, by whom worn, Exod. xxviii. 2. why so called, ibid.
Holy Ghost, why so called, Rom. i. 4. His personality proved, Is. vi. 9; John xiv. 16; xvi. 13. His distinction from the other Persons of the Trinity clearly marked, John xv. 26. how shewn to be a distinct Person from the Father and the Son, Rom. viii. 9. an acknowledgment of His personality, Rom. ix. 1. the same intimated, 1 Cor. xii. 4—6. proof of it, ver. 11. personally distinguished from the Father and the Son, 2 Cor. xiii. 14; Gal. iv. 6.
—— the true God, Job xxxiii. 4. proved to be God, Luke i. 35. the Lord God of Israel, Mark xii. 36. His divinity proved by a great variety of texts, John xiv. 16. a clear proof that He is God, Acts v. 3, 4. an act of religious worship performed to Him by St. Paul, Rom. ix. 1. an acknowledgment of His divinity and omniscience, ibid. proof of the same attributes belonging to Him, 1 Cor. ii. 11. spoken of as God and Lord, 1 Cor. xii. 4. intimation of His divinity, ver. 4—6. His true and proper divinity asserted, Gal. iv. 6. styled Jehovah, Heb. ix. 8. the Eternal Spirit, and the power and glory of the Father, ver. 14.
—— proceedeth from the Father and the Son, John xv. 26; xiv. 26; Gal. iv. 6. why called the Spirit of the Father and of the Son, John xv. 26. why termed the Comforter or Paraclete, John xiv. 16.
—— how He operated in the creation, Gen. i. 2. what particular operations ascribed to Him throughout Scripture, Nehem. ix. 30. in what character He is to be honoured, ibid. well known to the Jews in David's time, Ps. cxxxix. 7. effusion of Him frequently promised by the Prophets, Gal. iii. 14. what other expression used by St. Paul to express the same thing, ibid. promise of His assisting influence by our Saviour, Luke xi. 13. consolations derived from the promise, John xiv. 16. the permanency of His abode among Christians, ibid. His office in reproving the world, John xvi. 8—11. why shed upon the Gentiles before baptism, Acts x. 44. did not supersede the necessity of baptism, ver. 47. His assistance effectual to our sanctification, Rom. viii. 4. what He enables us to do, ibid. communication of His grace, the manner in which the Father and the Son dwell in men's hearts, Eph. iii. 17. when this takes place, ibid. His operations enumerated in relation to our Lord's humanity, Heb. ix. 14.
—— proof that His influence on men's minds may be withstood, Gal. v. 17. His operations on the minds of Christians, secret, Luke xi. 13. what His testimony with our spirits is, Rom. viii. 16. how discoverable to be from Him, ibid. in what ways He doth not bear witness with the spirits of the faithful, ibid. dangerous and unscriptural imaginations on this subject, Rom. viii. 16. how He bears His testimony, ibid. He witnesseth not without but with our spirits, ibid. His motions not discernible from the natural operations of our minds, ibid. reality of them known, because asserted in God's Word, ibid. their imperceptibleness signified by our Saviour, ibid. His working imperceptible, 1 John iii. 23. infallible rule whereby we may know it, ibid. See Spirit of God, Baptism, Grace, Trinity, &c.
Holy Ghost, term how used for the gifts and influences of the Spirit, Acts xi. 24.
—— effusion of, fulfilment of Christ's promise, Acts ii. 4. the striking character of this miracle, ver. 4, 13. no room for delusion in it, ver. 7, 13. the event celebrated by a festival in the Christian Church, ver. 13.
—— grace of, produces in us newness of life, Rom. vi. 4.
—— ordinary gifts of, imparted to Christians, Acts ii. 38. their inestimable value, ibid.
Holy ground, how made so, Exod. iii. 5. how to be approached, ibid.
—— One of God, who intended, Mark i. 24.
—— ones, what signified by the term, Dan. iv. 17.
—— people, Israelites so called, moral effect of it, Deut. xiv. 21.
—— place, distinguished from the most holy, Exod. xxvi. 33.
—— place, (of the temple,) called 'the inner part of the house,' 2 Chron. xxix. 16.
—— places, Christ's presence in, Ps. xlv. 17.
—— priesthood, why Christians so called, 1 Pet. ii. 5.
—— Scriptures, the great end for which they were written, Rom. xv. 4. See Scriptures.
—— things, reverence for, particularly inculcated, Lev. vi. 27.
—— things, and most holy, distinction between, Ezek. xlii. 13.
Holydays, not contrary to the design of the fourth Commandment, Deut. xvi. 16.
—— Christian observation of, not reprehended by St. Paul, Gal. iv. 10. nor forbidden in Scripture, ibid. arguments to prove it, ibid. institution of such days, why commendable, ibid.
Home, naturally thought of, Exod. ii. 22. we should think of our future home, ibid.
Homer, different measure from Omer, Ezek. xlv. 11.
Honesty and innocency of life, why especially pressed on the first Christians, Rom. xii. 17.
—— and justice, necessity of them to a Christian, Phil. iv. 8.
Honey, its value, Gen. xliii. 11. why prohibited in the burnt offerings of the Israelites, Lev. ii. 11. what comprehended under it, ibid. abundance of it in Canaan, Deut. xxxii. 13. in the rocks of Judea, 1 Sam. xiv. 25. favourite food in the East, Song of Sol. v. 1. much esteemed in the East, nourishment of little children, given to the baptized as regenerate, Prov. xxiv. 13. its effects when taken in excess alluded to, Rev. x. 9.
Honeycomb, the dropping of, examples of its being esteemed the choicest part of honey, Ps. xix. 10.
Honour, the high honours reserved for those who pay it to God, 1 Sam. ii. 30.
—— what meant by giving thine honour unto others, Prov. v. 9.
—— the king, in what the duty consists, 1 Pet. ii. 17. on what principle to be established, ibid.
'—— widows that are widows indeed' explained, 1 Tim. v. 3. what included under the word Honour, ibid.
—— and dishonour, remarkable example in St. Paul of proper behaviour under each, 2 Cor. vi. 8.
Hoof put for the whole beast, Exod. x. 26.
—— of horses, why compared to flints, Is. v. 28.
Hook in thy nose, explained, Is. xxxvii. 29.
Hooks, why put up in the temple, Ezek. xl. 43.
Hooker, his remark, Ecclus. v. 15.
Hope, how grounded in experience, Rom. v. 4. its effects on the sufferings of life, Rom. viii. 24. what meant by rejoicing in, Rom. xii. 12. proper ground of, ibid. value of to its possessor, Eph. vi. 17. wretchedness of the loss of it, ibid. why called an anchor of the soul, Heb. vi. 19.
—— 'against hope believed in hope' explained, Rom. iv. 18.
'—— of his calling' explained, Eph. i. 18.
Hophni and Phinehas, their headstrong sins drawing down upon them the judgments of God, 1 Sam. ii. 25. in what sense it is said that 'the Lord would slay them,' 1 Sam. ii. 25. their death fulfilled the threatenings of God, 1 Sam. iv. 11.

Hor, mount, where situated, Exod. xv. 22; Numb. xx. 22. another mount improperly so rendered, Numb. xxxiv. 2.
Horeb, or Sinai, Exod. iii. 1. two tops of the same mountain, ibid. why Horeb called the mountain of God, ibid. called also Sinai, Exod. xvii. 6. how to be distinguished, ibid. not far from Midian, Exod. xviii. 5. its distance from Beer-sheba, 1 Kings xix. 8. reflections on its being the place where Elijah saw God, as Moses had done, ibid.
Horn, frequently mentioned in Scripture as the symbol of strength, 1 Sam. ii. 1. illustration of this from a custom in Abyssinia, ibid. put for power and dignity, Job xvi. 15.
—— of David, explained, Ps. cxxxii. 17. its mystical meaning, ibid.
—— of salvation, explained, Luke i. 69.
—— 'lift up the horn' explained, 1 Chron. xxv. 5; Ps. lxxv. 5.
Horns in prophecy signify kingdoms, Dan. vii. 8. put for dominion, Amos vi. 13. put for rays of light, Hab. iii. 4. an emblem of strength, Zech. i. 18.
—— ten, signifying ten kingdoms, into which the Roman empire was broken, Rev. xvii. 12. names of these as enumerated by Sir Isaac Newton, ibid. their subjection to the power of Rome, ver. 13, 14. will at length withdraw their support from her, and assist in destroying her power, ver. 16, 17.
—— of the altar, described from ruins of Herculaneum, Ezek. xliii. 15.
Hornets, promise of, fulfilled, Exod. xxiii. 28. drove the Phasaelites from their country, ibid. their venomous sting in Eastern climates, Josh. xxiv. 12. drove out the inhabitants of Canaan, ibid. other instances of a similar effect, ibid.
Horonaim, where situate, Jer. xlviii. 5.
Horse, excellent description of, Job xxxix. 19, 20, 24. to ride on one a sign of honour in the East, Eccles. x. 7. a red one an emblem of war, Zech. i. 8.
Horses, why not to be multiplied in Israel, Deut. xvii. 16. considerations on the law, ibid. the number of those possessed by Solomon, 1 Kings iv. 26. the reason why the Jewish kings were forbidden to multiply horses, ibid. Is. ii. 6. not used in Israel in David's time, 1 Kings x. 26, 28. introduced by Solomon from Egypt, and continued by his successors, ibid. caused the ruin of Israel, ibid.
—— of the sun, conjectures respecting them, 2 Kings xxiii. 11.
—— Eastern ones beautiful and delicate, Song of Sol. i. 9. practice of shoeing them not known to the ancients, Is. v. 28. signify state of peace and security, Jer. xvii. 25.
—— to cut off thy, a promise of peace and security, Mic. v. 10, 11.
Horseleach, why oppressors compared to it, Prov. xxx. 15.
Horsemen, description of them illustrated by the modern Tartars, Hab. i. 8.
Hosanna, signification of the word, Matt. xxi. 9. why hosannas were sung to Jesus, ibid.
Hosea, most ancient of minor Prophets, when he prophesied, of what tribe, whom contemporary with, his principal subject predicts the ingrafting of the Gentiles, his style, cited in the New Testament, Introd. to Hos. remarks on the manner in which St. Paul cites him, Rom. ix. 25.
Hoshea, why he has the best character as to religion of any of the kings of Israel, 2 Kings xvii. 2. probably consented to keep Hezekiah's passover, ibid. 2 Chron. xxx. 5, prophesied of, Hos. x. 7, 15; xiii. 11.
Hospitality, why so largely commended in ancient authors, Gen. xix. 2. notions of the sacredness of it in the East, John xiii. 18. what St. Paul means by it, Rom. xii. 13. in what respect peculiarly seasonable in early times, 1 Tim. iii. 2.
—— Arabian, described, Job xxxi. 17.
Host, what it means, and why, Gen. ii. 1.
—— of the Lord, the meaning of the expression, Josh. v. 14.
Hosts of the Lord, why Israelites so called, Exod. xii. 41.
—— Lord of hosts, why often repeated, Hag. ii. 6.
Hour, for time, generally, Matt. viii. 13.
Hours, when first mention of them occurs, Dan. iii. 6. Jewish division of, Acts iii. 1.
House, law concerning the man who had built a new one, remarks on it, Deut. xx. 5. for the grave, Is. xiv. 18.
—— of the forest of Lebanon, where, and why so named, 1 Kings vii. 1; Is. xxii. 8.
—— of God, its situation predicted by Moses, Deut. xxxiii. 19.
—— universe so called, Baruch iii. 24.
—— of the Lord, outer court of the temple so called, Jer. xxvi. 7.
—— of prayer, why the place of God's worship so called, 1 Tim. ii. 1.
—— within, meaning the most holy place of the temple, 1 Kings vi. 15.
—— in cities might be alienated for ever, Lev. xxv. 30. why excepted from the general law, ibid.
—— Eastern, described, Deut. xxii. 8. have flat roofs, Josh. ii. 6; 1 Sam. ix. 25; 2 Sam. xi. 2; Matt. x. 27; xxiv. 17.
—— flat roofs of, still used for drying flowers, stalks, &c. Josh. ii. 6. frequented for coolness, 1 Sam. ix. 25. have a terrace for walking, 2 Sam. xi. 2. communicate with each other, Matt. xxiv. 17.
—— in Egypt, never without lighted candles, Jer. xxv. 10.
—— fashion of great ones in the East, Jer. xxxvi. 20.
—— in Palestine, description of them, Mark ii. 4. explanation therefrom of the miracle of healing the paralytick, ibid.
—— in the East have usually a small house attached for meditation, &c. 2 Kings iv. 10.
—— digging through, propriety of expression, Job xxiv. 16.
'—— of clay,' proper term for human bodies, Job iv. 19.
'Household of faith' explained, Gal. vi. 10. reason of the appellation, ibid. persons composing it why principal objects of benevolence in the primitive times of Christianity, ibid. by what rule the precept relating to them may be now interpreted, ibid.
Housetop, slept on in the East, Prov. xxi. 9. altars placed upon, Zeph. i. 5. why Cornelius went there to pray, Acts x. 9.
Housewife, signification of the word, Tit. ii. 5.
Huckster, what it signifies, Ecclus. xxvi. 29.
Huldah the Prophetess, remark on her being consulted, 2 Kings xxii. 14.
Human endeavours must concur with Divine assistance, Luke xxi. 34, 35.
Human nature, caution not to charge its degeneracy on God, Gen. i. 26. how affected by the fall, Gen. iii. 7. its uniformity, Gen. xlii. 24. its weakness illustrated in the case of Pharaoh, Exod. ix. 27. its strange inconsistency, Matt. xxvii. 6. not to be vilified in the gross as incapable of any good, Luke viii. 15. See Fallen man, Goodness, &c.
Humble Christians, the peculiar objects of God's care and providence, Matt. xviii. 10.
Humbly, 'to walk humbly with God,' what it is, Mic. vi. 8.
Humiliation of a nation must begin with the repentance of individuals, 1 Kings viii. 37.
Humility, its value in the sight of God exemplified in Gideon, Judg. vi. 15. the want of true, Job's great fault, Job xxxiii. 17. why we fail in it, Ps. xcv. 11. taught, Eccles. v. 2. the blessings of it, Is. lvii. 15. exemplified in the centurion, Matt. viii. 8. recommended by reference to little children, Matt. xviii. 3. blessings of it, ver. 4. should extend to the most ordinary occasions, Luke xiv. 7. recommended in the example of the Publican, Luke xviii. 13, 14. exemplified in Christ's washing his disciples' feet, John xiii. 3, 4, 7. a lesson of it to all Christians, ver. 14. the best security, Rom. xi. 20. motive to it, Phil. ii. 11. in all degrees of life recommended, 1 Pet. v. 5. what meant by Christians being clothed with it, ibid. See Abasement.
'—— of character,' our Lord's preference of it shewn, Matt. xxiii. 6. the frequent repetition of His precept inculcating it, ver. 12.
Hundredfold, examples of such produce in Syria and Africa, Gen. xxvi. 12.
Hunger and thirst, expressing earnest desire, Matt. v. 6.
Huns, their invasion under Attila foretold, Rev. viii. 8.
Hunters, who are signified by the term, Jer. xvi. 16.
Hunting, its importance in early times, Gen. x. 9.
Huntsmen, their practice alluded to, Ps. xvii. 9; xviii. 5.
Hur, who he was, Exod. xvii. 10.
'Husband,' God why called first husband of Israel, Hos. ii. 7.

Husband, one betrothed so called by the Jews, Matt. i. 16.
—— rights of, compared to the dominion of the Mosaical law, Rom. vii. 1. why St. Paul uses the comparison, ver. 2.
'—— of one wife' explained, 1 Tim. iii. 2.
Husbandman, God compared to one, Is. xxviii. 23; Hos. x. 11.
Husbandry, arts of, formed chief occupation of the Jews, Is. xli. 15. See Agriculture.
Husks, meaning of the word so rendered, Luke xv. 16.
Huz, Nahor's firstborn, gave name to Job's country, Gen. xxii. 20.
Huzzab, what signified by the word, Nah. ii. 7.
Hyena, enmity of, with a dog, Ecclus. xiii. 18.
Hymeneus and Alexander, by what means they made shipwreck of the faith, 1 Tim. i. 20. conjecture concerning Alexander, ibid.
Hymn, used on return from Jewish captivity, Jer. xxxiii. 11. usually sung by the Jews after their repasts, Matt. xxvi. 30.
Hymns, much in use with the Pagan poets, Exod. xv. 21. superiority of the Hebrews, ibid. their antiquity, 1 Sam. ii. 1. the mode of chanting them among the Hebrews, Neh. xii. 24. used by all nations in religious worship, Introd. to Ps.
Hypocrisy, its odious nature, 1 Kings xxi. 11. of no avail in the sight of God, Luke xvi. 15.
Hypocrites, why our Lord so calls the Pharisees, Matt. xvi. 3.
—— and doubleminded persons, the necessity of their purifying their hearts, Jam. iv. 8.
Hyssop, description of the herb, Exod. xii. 22. what plant meant, 1 Kings iv. 33. used by priest in sprinkling, Ps. li. 7. the character of this plant, John xix. 29.

I.

'I am that I am,' meaning of the name, Exod. iii. 14. given to Jesus Christ, ibid.
'—— the Lord your God' explained, Lev. xviii. 2.
Ibzan, God's blessing on his family, Judg. xii. 9.
Ice, put for hail, Ps. cxlvii. 17.
I-chabod, meaning of the name, 1 Sam. iv. 21. reflections on his mother's conduct at his birth, ibid.
Iconium, its situation, Acts xiii. 51.
Idle word, the import of the term, Matt. xii. 36.
Idleness, the occasion of the worst sins, Ezek. xvi. 49. leads to decay, Tob. iv. 13.
Idol, esteemed for its antiquity, Wisd. xiii. 10. painted red, ver. 14. absurdity of worship of, exposed, ver. 18. what St. Paul means by saying that 'an idol is nothing in the world,' 1 Cor. viii. 4.
Idols, literal meaning of the original word, Lev. xxvi. 1. the several provinces allotted to them of warding off natural evils, 2 Kings i. 2. their destruction foretold, Is. i. 31. of any people said to be punished when the nation is meant, Is. xix. 1. their powerless state described, Is. xlvi. 3. called carcases, Jer. xvi. 18. their worshippers marked in the hand, Zech. xiii. 6. adorned with costly raiment, Baruch vi. 12. the Jews forbidden the use of things offered to them, Acts xv. 20. their temples used for banqueting houses, 1 Cor. viii. 10. inference from the practice with respect to the Christian converts, ibid. explanation of St. Paul's declaration that they are 'not any thing,' 1 Cor. x. 19, 20. contrasted with the true God, 1 Cor. xii. 2.
Idolaters, their custom of kissing their idols, 1 Kings xix. 18. extremely curious in external ceremonies, 2 Kings x. 22. who are so in the figurative sense, Col. iii. 5.
Idolatrous cities, why commanded to be utterly destroyed, Deut. xiii. 15. mercy as well as justice of the sentence, ibid.
—— worship, things employed in, detestable to God, Deut. vii. 25. devoted to destruction, ibid.
Idolatry, the most early, guarded against by Moses, Gen. i. 17. what constitutes it, Exod. xxxii. 5. the sin of the Israelites in the wilderness, ibid. and of the kings of Israel at Dan and Beth-el, ibid. the Papists chargeable with it, ibid. why spoken of as uncleanness in the Scriptures, Exod. xxxiv. 16. in what it consisted, Deut. iv. 16. earliest instance of, ver. 19. specially forbidden by the second Commandment, Deut. v. 9. nature of the offence nationally considered, ibid. punishment of it illustrated by a reference to human laws, ibid. its great prevalence in the time of Moses, Deut. vii. 25. evils resulting from it, ibid. its bearing on the scheme of the Jewish polity, ibid. importance of guarding that nation against it, ibid. pretences by which justified no excuse before God, Deut xi. 17. cause of the most abominable vices, Deut. xii. 31. hence the detestation expressed against it in the Old Testament, ibid. foul and odious nature of it, ibid. derived from the odious characters of the heathen gods, ibid. first capital crime under the Jewish law, Deut. xiii. 6. guarded against with the utmost rigour, ibid. capital punishment of, justified from misrepresentation, Deut. xvii. 5. in what cases inflicted, ibid. its pretensions considered and rejected, Josh. xxiv. 14. the extreme proneness of the Israelites to it, ver. 19, 23. not to be tolerated with the worship of the true God, Judg. vi. 25. still lurked in the outskirts of the land of Israel, during the judges, Judg. xviii. 30. particularly in the tribe of Dan, ibid. the dearest relatives sacrificed to it, 2 Kings iii. 27. rooted out by Christianity, Is. ii. 18. to destroy it Christ came, ibid. reflections on it, Is. xliv. 20. why the Jews practised it, Ezek. xx. 32. the foundation of the polity of kingdom of Israel, as distinct from Judah, Hos. i. 7. to be utterly destroyed in the end, Zech. xiii. 2.
Idolatry, Zabian, its early existence in Palestine, Gen. xiii. 18. how counteracted, ibid. only species noticed in Job, Job xxxi. 26, 28. in what it consisted, ibid.
—— and irreligion, constant source of immorality, Rom. i. 24 exemplified in the Gentile world, ibid.
Idumea, character of it by St. Jerome, Jer. xlix. 16. See Edom.
—— in later times, how distinguished from that in the Old Testament, 1 Mac. iv. 15.
Idumeans, their conduct towards the Jews, Ezek. xxv. 12. subdued by Judas Maccabeus, ver. 14.
'If,' the English as well as the original particle, how used, Eph. iii. 2.
Ignorance, example of guilt contracted through it, 1 Tim. i. 13.
—— sins of, punishable, where the errour is not invincible, 2 Sam. vi. 3.
—— not the cause of our ruin under the Gospel, Is. xxxv. 8.
'—— war of,' what it is, explained, Wisd. xiv. 22.
Illyricum, the confines of, the external boundary of St. Paul's travels, Rom. xv. 19. why he mentions that part to the Romans, ibid. when he approached Illyricum, ibid.
Image, molten, explained, Is. xl. 19.
—— Nebuchadnezzar's, considered, Dan. iii. 1.
—— and likeness of God, what it signifies, Gen. i. 26. why man as distinguished from woman is so called, 1 Cor. xi. 7.
'—— of the invisible God,' Christ why so called, Col. i. 15.
—— 'express image of His person,' meaning and import of the phrase, Heb. i. 3.
Images of Laban, what they were, Gen. xxxi. 19. why stolen by Rachel, ibid.
—— of idols, why carried before the Philistine armies into the field, 2 Sam. v. 21.
—— of men, what they signify, Ezek. xvi. 17.
—— sensible, necessary to describe God's presence, Is. vi. 1.
Image worship, why ill suited to Christian service, Dan. vii. 9.
Imaginations, or reasonings against Christianity, what sort of, intended, 2 Cor. x. 5. to what compared, ibid. how overturned by St. Paul, ibid.
'—— of man's heart only evil continually,' proper application of the passage, Gen. vi. 5.
Immer, family of, who, Jer. xx. 1.
Immortality, a privilege owing to Christ, Rom. viii. 19. indistinct presages of, very general among mankind, ibid.
—— of the soul, known to the Jews, Heb. iv. 9.
Impartiality of God, illustrated by His treatment of the Israelites and Canaanites, Deut. viii. 20.
Impatience, its sinfulness, Exod. xv. 24. sinful effects of it, Numb. xxi. 5. remedy against, Ps. cxli. 7. not a Christian temper, Jam. i. 20.
Impenitence, the danger of, Amos iv. 13.
Imperative, used promiscuously with future tense, Ps. xxviii. 4. used for the future, 1 Cor. xvi. 22. imperative form sometimes implies only permission, 1 Kings xxii. 22. See Command of God.
Importunity cannot excuse a fault, Exod. xxxii. 4.

'Imposition of hands' on St. Paul in the 13th of the Acts, what it was, Gal. i. 1.
—— in ordination, an apostolical practice, 1 Tim. iv. 14. from whom derived, ibid. its necessity, Acts xiii. 3. See Hands.
Impossible, nothing is, with God, Ezek. xxxvii. 3. what the word signifies, Heb. vi. 4. remarks on the alleged impossibility of renewing certain persons unto repentance, ibid.
—— suppositions sometimes made in order to strengthen an argument, 1 Cor. xiii. 3.
Impossibility, supposed, for the confirmation of an assertion, Gal. i. 8.
Impossibilities, Omnipotence itself does not extend to them, Heb. vi. 18.
Impostors, general rule given by St. Paul against them, 1 Cor. xii. 3.
Imprecations explained, Ps. v. 10; xxviii. 4; xxxv. 4; cix. introd. used for predictions, Is. ii. 9; Jer xi. 3; xlviii. 10.
Imprisonment, Eastern, described, Jer. xxxvii. 20.
Improvement, to aim at greater degrees of, the common duty of all men, Phil. iii. 14.
Impulse, irresistible, not employed towards Christians by God, John vi. 44; Gal. v. 17.
Impurity, all kinds of, severely punished by the Jewish law, Lev. xviii. 29. generally allowed by Eastern manners, ibid. reflections on the excellence of the Jewish law, ibid.
—— moral, guarded against by laws relating to outward cleanliness, Deut. xxiii. 14. manifold evils of it, Phil. iv. 8. See Uncleanness.
Inattention to religion, the danger of it, Matt. xiii. 19.
Incarnation of Christ, how signified in Ezekiel's vision, Ezek. i. 26. why Timothy called upon to assert it, 2 Tim. ii. 8. what we become in virtue of it, Heb. ii. 6. doctrine of, subject of the two last chapters of St. John's first Epistle, 1 John iv. what the doctrine is in its whole amount, ibid. how it includes the doctrine of atonement, ibid. set forth as the cardinal doctrine of Christianity, ibid. the denial of it a character of antichrist, ibid. by what two sects denied in the Apostles' days, ibid. St. John's answer to the lies of both, ibid.
Incestuous Corinthian, what his offence was, 1 Cor. v. 1. why St. Paul interfered about him, 2 Cor. vii. 12.
Inconsistency of human nature, exemplified in Herod, Mark vi. 20.
'Increaseth with the increase of God' explained, Col. ii. 19.
Indeed, its peculiar meaning at John vi. 55.
Indefinitely, that is put so which is true of greater part, Jer. xxi. 7.
INDIAN, name for ruler of the elephant, 1 Mac. vi. 37.
Indifference in religion, reflections on, Luke xiv. 18. great danger of, to our salvation, Luke xix. 23.
Indifferent things, when they may be used, 1 Cor. vi. 12.
Industry in our respective callings, recommended by St. Paul's example, Acts xx. 35. why particularly recommended to the first Christians, 2 Thess. iii. 9. enforced both by precept and example, ibid. great importance ascribed to it, ibid.
Inequality amongst men allowed by the Christian religion, 1 Tim. vi. 1.
Infant, Jerusalem represented under the image of an exposed one, Ezek. xvi. 3, 5.
Infatuation in religion, striking example of, Gal. vi. 8.
Infidels, modern, a favourite pretence of, false and contemptible, Rom. i. 32.
Infidelity, greatness of its sin and punishment, Gen. xxi. 2. true source of, laid open, 2 Pet. iii. 3.
Infirmity of human nature, exemplified in St. Peter's fall, Matt. xxvi. 75.
Infirmities, to be indulgent to each other's taught, Ps. lxvii. 7.
—— how used, 2 Cor. xi. 30.
'—— Himself took our,' the prophecy twice fulfilled, Matt. viii. 17.
Ingratitude to God, its evil consequences, Numb. xiv. 4. how shewn, Hos. ii. 8. its frequency and its guilt, Luke xvii. 18.
Inherit, what the Hebrew word properly signifies, Jer. viii. 10.
Inheritance of estates, Jewish custom in, alluded to, Gal. iii. 28.
Iniquity, when full, Gen. xv. 16.
—— word so rendered sometimes signifies an idol, Numb. xxiii. 21. what it means in the second Commandment, Deut. v. 9. what it signifies as opposed to the truth, 1 Cor. xiii. 6. what meant by charity rejoicing not in it, ibid.
'Iniquity in Jacob,' God hath not beheld, meaning of the phrase, Numb. xxiii. 21. an untruth weakly inferred from these words, ibid.
—— to draw, phrase explained, Is. v. 18.
—— workers of, cannot be concealed from God, Job xxxiv. 22. they that trust in idols so called, Ps. vi. 8.
Ink, how used by Easterns in sealing, Ezek. ix. 4.
Inkhorn, badge of secretaries' office among the Turks, Ezek. ix. 2.
Inn, what the Hebrew word signifies, Exod. iv. 24.
Inns, none anciently in the East, Gen. xix. 2. consequences of their being none, ibid.
Innocence a recommendation of us to God, Numb. xvi. 15. the Christian, confident in God, will retain it, Ps. xxv. 22. consciousness of, best hope of deliverance from God, Ps. lix. 15. the pleasure of, Prov. xiv. 14.
Innocent, the, deliver a guilty land, Job xxii. 30.
Innocents, murder of, reflections on, Matt. ii. 16.
Inscriptions on seals alluded to, 2 Tim. ii. 19. purport of the two supposed by St. Paul, ibid.
Inspiration, particular signification of the word, Job xxxii. 8, 18.
—— what it is, 2 Tim. iii. 16. various degrees of it variously granted, ibid.
—— gift of, wherein a security from errour, Gal. ii. 11.
Inspired persons, difficulty respecting them solved, 2 Sam. xi. 15.
Instruction, religious, true end of appointing it, Ezek. xxxiii. 32.
Instrument, sort of, to be considered in a charge of murder, Numb. xxxv. 16.
Instruments, weak, why employed by God, Exod. viii. 1.
Insufficiency acknowledged by St. Paul, what it relates to, 2 Cor. iii. 5.
Insult not to be offered to those afflicted by God, Ezek. xi. 15.
Intercession made for us by the Spirit distinguished from that made by Christ our Mediator in heaven, Rom. viii. 26.
—— of Christ, typified and illustrated, Numb. xvi. 50. in what it consists, Rom. viii. 34. ground of our access to God in this life, Heb. vii. 26. and of our hope and confidence in Him, ibid.
—— of God's ministers, the appointed means of procuring His blessing, Gen. xx. 7.
Intercourse betwixt God and man, how maintained, Eph. iii. 21.
Interest, the taking of it may be agreeable to justice, Ezek. xviii. 8.
Intermarriages between the Israelites and their neighbours, why forbidden, Deut. vii. 3.
—— with Gentiles, censured, Mal. ii. 10.
Intermediate state of the righteous, what it appears to be, 2 Cor. v. 8.
Interpositions, miraculous, for the punishment of sin, why not common, 2 Pet. iii. 5. some instances recorded, ibid. what effect they should produce, ibid.
Interrogation, the proper style of Majesty incensed, Job xxxviii. introd. used to express wonder, Jer. xxii. 28. how used in the Eastern style, 1 Cor. ix. 4.
Instructor, in what figurative language described, Mal. ii. 12.
'Intruding into those things which he hath not seen,' to whom applicable in St. Paul's time, Col. ii. 18. and to whom in subsequent times, ibid.
Inundation, instances of an army overrunning a country compared to, Nah. i. 8.
Invisible world, Christ avoids all description of it, Matt. xxii. 30. His conduct in this widely differing from that of enthusiasts, ibid.
IRENEUS, cited to show certain articles of primitive belief, Col. ii. 2. cited to show what adoration was paid to Christ, Phil. ii. 10.
'Iron from the north,' phrase explained, Jer. xv. 12.
—— furnace explained, Deut. iv. 20.
Irony, character and utility of it, 1 Kings xviii. 27. by whom used, ibid. an instance of, Job xxxviii. 20; Is. xxix. 1; Jer. li. 12; Lam. iv. 21. instance of St. Paul's use of it, 1 Cor. vii. 40. its import, ibid. example of a high strain of it, 2 Cor. xi. 19. See Derision.

Isaac, what his name signifies, Gen. xvii. 19. material difference between him and Ishmael, ver. 21. why uneasy at the barrenness of Rebekah, Gen. xxv. 21. his excellence as a son and a husband, ibid. reward of his piety, ibid. a fact relating to him discovered by St. Paul, Heb. xi. 20.
—— type of Christ, Gen. xxi. 2. illustrated in many particulars, ibid. willingly submitted to be sacrificed, Gen. xxii. 9. therein more exactly a figure of Christ, ibid. his age, ibid. his piety manifested, ver. 12. his sacrifice should be viewed with reference to that of Christ, ver. 19. many circumstances of agreement between them, ibid.
—— the high places of, why used for altar at Beer-sheba, Amos vii. 9.
—— and Jacob, their faith praised together with that of Abraham, Heb. xi. 9. they looked forward to a future state, ibid.
Isaiah, who he was, Introd. to Isaiah—signification of name, ibid. styled Evangelical Prophet, ibid. division of his prophecy, ibid. his style, ibid. his vision not confined to the Jewish Church, Is. i. 1. which the first prophecy, Is. vi. 1. his wife a Prophetess, Is. viii. 3. beauty of his ode, Is. xiv. 27. his encouraging address to Hezekiah, 2 Kings xix. 6. how his prophecy to him was to be fulfilled, ver. 29. his prophecy of our Saviour's miraculous birth applied by St. Matthew, Matt. i. 22. how the passages quoted from him by St. Paul are to be understood, Rom. ix. 27, 29. cited to prove God's intention of calling the Gentiles, Rom. x. 19, 20. and the rejection of the Gospel by the Jews, ibid. in what manner St. Paul applies a passage from him, 1 Cor. xiv. 21, 22. alluded to by St. Paul, 2 Cor. ii. 17. a caution in him to the Jews applied to Christians, 2 Cor. vi. 17. a passage from, cited by St. Paul, Gal. iv. 27. how interpreted by the Jews, ibid. passages of, applied as figuratively descriptive of the kingdom of Christ, Eph. v. 14. alluded to as speaking of a particular circumstance under the Gospel, 1 Thess. iv. 9. alluded to by St. Paul, 1 Pet. ii. 22.
—— 53d chapter of, its effect on some infidels, Is. liii. introd. notice of the fulfilment of it, 1 Pet. ii. 24.
Iscariot, conjectures as to the meaning of the word, Matt. x. 4.
Ishi, my husband, how distinguished from Baali, Hos. ii. 16.
Ishmael, fulfilment of the promise concerning him to Abraham, Gen. xvii. 20. multiplication of his family, promise to Hagar how fulfilled, Gen. xvi. 10. his character corresponded with the prophecy, ver. 12. See Arabians.
—— his age when cast out with Hagar, Gen. xxi. 14. remark on his persecution of Isaac, Gal. iv. 29.
—— and Isaac, different manners of their being born, Gal. iv. 23.
—— son of Nethaniah, his conspiracy against Gedaliah alluded to, Ezek. v. 4.
Ishmaelites, why called also Midianites, Gen. xxxvii. 25.
Isis, mysteries of, described, Ezek. viii. 8.
Islands, countries on seacoast, Is. xi. 11; Ezek. xxxix. 6.
Isle, put for country, Is. xx. 6. maritime place, Is. xxiii. 1.
Isles, how used by the Hebrews, Gen. x. 5. parts travelled to by sea from Judea, Is. xlii. 4. mean heathen nations, Is. lx. 9.
Israel, meaning of the name, Gen. xxxii. 28. Jacob's posterity called by it, ibid.
—— twelve tribes of, how reckoned in Jacob's prophecy, Gen. xlix. 28. two modes of reckoning them, Josh. xiv. 4.
—— rejection of, foretold by Moses, Deut. xxxii. 19.
—— how long the two tribes and a half had continued with their brethren, Josh. xxii. 3. substance of Joshua's address to them, ver. 5. observations on the altar they erected, ver. 10. why the other tribes go up to war against them on this account, ver. 12. what shewn by the altar resembling the true altar of God, ver. 28. the wonderful zeal of the tribes west of Jordan for their common religion, ver. 19. proof of the zeal of the whole nation for the Divine law, ver. 29. why put for the army of Absalom, 2 Sam. xviii. 6. why God's anger was kindled against them, 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. revolted tribes of, how they renounce all subjection to the posterity of David, 1 Kings xii. 16. their separation perfectly consistent with the reality of Divine superintendence, ver. 19. its origin a Divine judgment on the house of David, ibid. a probable mean of preventing the total apostasy of the Jewish people, ibid. brought about by human passions and human agency, ibid.
Israel, Messiah meant by this name, Is. xlix. 3.
—— name applied to the two tribes after captivity, Jer. v. 15; Mal. i. 1. Judah so called after Israel's captivity, Ezek. vi. 2. why comprised the whole of Judea, Ezek vii. 2. name comprehends spiritual as well as natural Israel, Hos. i. 10.
—— an eminent figure of the Messiah, Hos. xi. 1.
—— distinction between 'children of' and 'house of,' Hos. iii. 1.
—— 'they are not all Israel which are of Israel' explained, Rom. ix. 6.
—— of God, what it means, Gal. vi. 16.
—— spiritual, good and faithful Christians so styled, Rev. vii. 4. the 144,000 sealed intended to shew their general number, ibid.
—— praises of, for the tabernacle, Ps. xxii. 3.
—— princes of, the great Sanhedrim, Ezek. xxii. 6.
—— 'king of,' put for 'king of Judah,' 2 Chron. xxi. 2. Israel again put for Judah, 2 Chron. xxiv. 16. put six times in Scripture for 'king of Judah,' 2 Chron. xxviii. 19.
—— kingdom of, prophecy that it shall be rooted up, by whom accomplished, 1 Kings xiv. 15. in what manner God began to cut it short, 2 Kings x. 32. its entire destruction by the just providence of God, 2 Kings xvii. 7. its incorrigible wickedness particularly mentioned as the cause of its downfal, ibid. the main bulk of the ten tribes never returned from captivity, ibid. their offence how aggravated, ver. 13. why at last abandoned by God, ver. 18. its inhabitants why better disposed to keep Hezekiah's passover, 2 Chron. xxx. 5. why not properly purified, ver. 17.
—— and Judah, kingdoms of, infatuated by their perverse inclinations, Introd. to 2 Kings—their duration and captivity, ibid. their history eminent demonstrations of the wisdom and justice of Providence, ibid. reflections on their end, and the wickedness which produced it, 2 Kings xxv. 30.
Israelites, their going into Egypt an evidence of the wisdom of Providence, Gen. xlvi. 34. why enumerated at the beginning of Exodus, Exod. i. 1. order in which they are enumerated, ver. 2. their great increase, ver. 7. their different works in Egypt, ver. 11. why chastised by God in Egypt, Exod. ii. 24. their history matter of consolation for the oppressed, ibid. and an example of God's faithfulness, ibid. their deliverance, a type of Christian redemption, ibid. under the peculiar jurisdiction of God, Exod. iii. 10. why appointed to spoil the Egyptians, ver. 22. why preferred by God to other people, Exod. vi. 7. why called God's son and firstborn, Exod. iv. 22. debarred from the exercise of their religion, Exod. viii. 26. preserved by the peculiar providence of God, Exod. xii. 23.
—— their departure from Egypt known to distant nations, Exod. xii. 41. under the direction of God in their passage, Exod. xiii. 21. why ordered to change their route, Exod. xiv. 2. their reproachful language to Moses, ver. 11. their anxiety at the Red sea, how affected by their deliverance, ver. 31. their deliverance a type of our baptism and resurrection, ibid. practical reflections on their deliverance, ibid. on their ingratitude, Exod. xv. 24. on their murmuring for bread, Exod. xvi. 2, 3. and for water, Exod. xvii. 1, 3. their wickedness in causing Aaron to make a calf, Exod. xxxii. 1. guilty of idolatry, ver. 5. and of wantonness, ver. 6. disclaimed by God as His people, ver. 7. journeying of, history confirmed by local and traditionary evidence, Conclusion on Exod.
—— their sin in lusting for flesh, how aggravated, Numb. xi. 4. why they longed for vegetables, &c. ver. 5. reflections on their ingratitude, ver. 6. punishment of their cowardly unbelief, Numb. xiii. 31. reflections on it, ibid. their accusations of God, Numb. xiv. 3. their folly in speaking of returning into Egypt, ver. 4. reflections on it, ibid. reflections on their obstinacy and desperate wickedness against Caleb and Joshua, ver. 10. their destruction no dishonour to God, ver. 22. their sins aggravated by repetition, ver. 23. their rebellious conduct an example to us, ver. 24. in what their great crime consisted, ver. 29. punished for their idolatries as well as their actual rebellion, ver. 33. their rebellious spirit in the matter of Korah, Numb. xvi. 41. their rebellion, punishment, and preservation, an image of the state of man, ver. 50. convinced of the danger of invading the priest's office, Numb. xvii. 12. their peaceable conduct during their journeys, Numb. xx. 2. their return to their former discontent, ver. 3. why they vowed to destroy the cities of the Canaanites, Numb. xxi. 2. reflections on their joining God with Moses in their murmurings, Numb. xxi. 5. why punished by fiery serpents, ver. 6.

ISRAELITES, God's blessing of, to Balaam referred to Abraham's and Jacob's, Numb. xxii. 12. singular character of as foretold by Balaam, Numb. xxiii. 9. verified in the event, ibid.

—— that died of the plague, their number as related by Moses and alluded to by St. Paul reconciled, Numb. xxv. 9. evidence of God's interposition in their favour against the Midianites, Numb. xxxi. 49. why they offered an atonement for their souls, ver. 50. of what this was a memorial, ver. 54. punished for their slothfulness and cowardice, Numb. xxxiii. 55.

—— why they did not enter Canaan from their encampment at Kadesh-barnea, Deut. i. 6. their guilt aggravated by the displeasure it brought upon Moses, ver. 37. in destroying the Canaanites were instruments of a righteous Providence, Deut. ii. 34. those who were faithful in the matter of Peor watched over by a singular Providence, Deut. iv. 4. punishment of the others justified, ibid. proofs which they enjoyed of God's protection, ver. 7. in what they surpassed the rest of mankind, ver. 8. to what to be ascribed, ibid. calling of, and separation from the Gentiles, at what time it took place, ver. 14. why forbidden to make likeness of any reptile, &c. ver. 18. remarks on their disobedience of the prohibition, ibid. arguments whereby they were persuaded to obedience, ver. 20. design of the blessings they enjoyed, ibid. miraculously protected by the power of God, ver. 32. in destroying the Canaanites, executors of God's vengeance, Deut. vii. 24. why specially warned and deterred from idolatrous practices, ver. 25. supplied with what they wanted in the wilderness by God's providence, Deut. viii. 4. afflictions sent upon them for their benefit, ver. 5. astonishing instances of their forgetfulness of God, ver. 11. end of the severe providences of God in afflicting them, ver. 16. true causes why God gave Canaan to them, Deut. ix. 5. not chosen for their moral goodness, ibid. particulars of God's conduct towards them, ibid. remarks on their character as given by Moses, ver. 7. how required to shew their gratitude to God, Deut. x. 12. arguments to induce them to it, ibid. God moved to shew love to them by His own mere good will, ver. 15. an instrument peculiarly fit to be employed for the destruction of the Canaanites, Deut. xx. 17.

—— judgments upon their enemies predicted, Deut. xxx. 7. in whom fulfilled, ibid. their timidity foretold as a punishment for their sins, Deut. xxxii. 30. God's favours to them figuratively described, Deut. xxxiii. 2. more plainly enumerated, ibid. why said by Moses to dwell in safety alone, ver. 28.

—— their faith in the Divine protection shewn in their submitting to circumcision under Joshua, Josh. v. 2. taught to trust not to the prowess of man but to God, Josh. vii. 6. unequal to the conquest of the promised land without Divine assistance, ibid. their fault in not consulting their heavenly Director respecting the Gibeonites, Josh. ix. 14. the effect of this fault, ver. 15. why commanded to destroy the captive horses, Josh. xi. 6. the promise to them of expelling the Canaanites conditional, Josh. xiii. 1; xxiii. 13. why they could not drive out all the Canaanites, Josh. xvii. 12. their not doing this the fountain of all the evils that afterwards befell them, ibid. grievously offended in putting the Canaanites to tribute, ver. 13. their right to the whole of Canaan, and actual possession of the greater part, Josh. xxi. 43. their undisturbed possession of it during Joshua's lifetime, ver. 44. the Canaanites made the instruments of their chastisement for disobedience, Josh. xxiii. 13. every where successful, while Moses and Joshua governed, Josh. xxiv. 32. afterwards becoming indolent and divided, their enemies recruited their strength, ibid. in Joshua's time they were not purged from the idolatries of their ancestors, ibid.

—— why they could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, &c. Judg. i. 19. acted contrary to God's will in putting the Canaanites to tribute, ver. 28. how they may be said to have served the Lord all the days of Joshua, Judg. ii. 7. at the time of the judges were mere children in moral and religious conduct, Judg. ii. 10. how tempted to contract alliance with idolaters, ver. 7. arguments from their idolatry refuted, ver. 12. a clear proof that their defection from God was not founded on any doubt of the Divine authority of their law, Judg. iii. 12. what their frequent relapses into sin arose from, Judg. iv. 1. their vanity in ascribing victory to their own means, Judg. vii. 2. their ungrateful behaviour to God, and to Gideon their deliverer, Judg. viii. 34; ix. 5. proof of their perverse and incorrigible temper, Judg. x. 14. their remarkable repentance and reformation, ver. 16. forbidden to intermarry with Philistines, Judg. xiv. 3. their early disposition to worship the true God by an image, Judg. xvii. 3. their defeat by the Benjamites, why permitted, Judg. xx. 21. in what their errour on that occasion consisted, ibid. brought to humility, and a sense of their dependence on God by discomfiture, ver. 27, 29. when their war with the Benjamites took place, ver. 28. lament their too great severity to the Benjamites, Judg. xxi. 3, 6. erect a new altar for the increased number of their sacrifices, ver. 4. desperate civil war among them, why sent, ver. 25.

ISRAELITES, their folly in carrying the ark into the field, 1 Sam. iv. 3. their presumption punished by the loss of the ark, 1 Sam. v. 1. their real motive in asking a king, 1 Sam. viii. 5. the happiness of their condition under the immediate government of God, ibid. their request how blameable, ibid. were insensible of their peculiar happiness in having God for their Governour, 1 Sam. viii. 20. their general character displayed in asking a king, and the nature of the discipline exercised by God over them, 1 Sam. xii. 19. punished for their own offences when numbered by David, 2 Sam. xxiv. 15, 17.

—— how excited to engage in extensive commerce, 1 Kings x. 11. their punishments increased with their iniquities, 2 Kings viii. 1. were not to make war without a warrant from God, ver. 44. till the end of David's reign never suffered from want of strength in war, 1 Kings x. 28. from what their ruin may be dated, ibid. in what case permitted to marry strangers, 1 Kings xi. 1. why expressly forbidden to intermarry with Canaanites, ibid. their punishment how appointed by God, 1 Kings xix. 17. in captivity were not amended by their calamities, 2 Kings xvii. 34.

—— the promise to them to give them rest for ever was conditional on their obedience, 1 Chron. xxiii. 25. by whom their distribution as a militia for the defence of the country was first made, 1 Chron. xxvii. 1. in what manner God's mercies or judgments were to be dispensed to them, 2 Chron. vii. 13. the only way of regaining His favour, ver. 14. God's dealings with them a warning to all nations in all times, 2 Chron. xv. 4. the numbers of the people diminished by their iniquities, 2 Chron. xxv. 5. God's merciful compassion towards them in sending them frequent admonitions, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15. their contempt of His messengers, ver. 16.

—— as many as come to Christ shall be received, Hos. xiv. 4. why called 'lost sheep' by Christ, Matt. x. 6. evil entreated four hundred years, this account reconciled with the history, Acts vii. 6. their deliverances a proper exercise for our devotion, Ps. lxxviii. 69. what spiritual privileges they had in the wilderness, 1 Cor. x. 3, 4. to what intent they are examples to us, ver. 6. their offences paralleled with similar ones among the Corinthians, ver. 11. afford a seasonable admonition to Christians at all times, ibid. doctrine to be learned from their history, 1 Cor. x. 13. relating to man's danger, ibid. and God's protection, ibid. See JEWS.

ISRAELITISH children, why ordered to be circumcised the eighth day, Rom. iv. 11. See Children.

ISSACHAR, description of by Jacob, why remarkable, Gen. xlix. 14. why compared to an ass, ibid.

—— tribe of, why joined by Moses with that of Zebulon, Deut. xxxiii. 18. an agricultural people, ibid.

Italian band explained, Acts x. 1.

ITHOBAL, prince of Tyre, remarked on, Ezek. xxviii. 2.

ITHRA, father of Amasa, what his country probably was, 2 Sam. xvii. 25.

Ivory, why first mentioned in the time of Solomon, 1 Kings x. 18. much used for ornamental buildings in the East, Amos iii. 15.

Ivory, throne, of Solomon, in what manner overlaid with gold, 1 Kings x. 18.
—— houses and beds of, what meant by them, Amos iii. 15; vi. 4.

J.

Jabbok, river, its course, Gen. xxxii. 22.
Jabesh-gilead, the massacre of the people of, an act of cruelty and injustice, Judg. xxi. 11.
Jabin, a common name of the kings of Hazor, Judg. iv. 2.
Jacob, meaning of his name, Gen. xxv. 26. his character, ver. 27. his conduct in purchasing Esau's birthright condemned, ver. 33. also his interception of his father's blessing, ibid. and for deceiving his father, Gen. xxvii. 16. deceived in his turn, ibid. Isaac's blessing of him when and how fulfilled, ver. 29. his life, a life of action, Gen. xxviii. 10. his ladder interpreted, ver. 12. why he offered Laban seven years' service, Gen. xxix. 18. how imposed on by Laban, ver. 23. why he married Rachel and Leah, ver. 30. his example no rule for Christians, ibid. meaning of the contract between him and Laban, Gen. xxx. 32. reflections on his conduct in proposing it, ver. 33. how protected from Laban and Esau, Gen. xxxi. 55. why he addressed Esau as his lord, Gen. xxxii. 4. his wrestling explained, ver. 25. why his thigh was put out of joint, ibid. why his name altered to Israel, ver. 28. at what particular relating to Joseph he rejoiced, Gen. xlv. 28. why he might fear to go down into Egypt, Gen. xlvi. 3. in what sense he was brought up again into Canaan, ver. 4. many disasters in his life, Gen. xlvii. 9. shortness of it compared to his ancestors, ibid. why he desired to be buried with his fathers, ver. 30. why he required an oath of Joseph, ibid. what meant by his bowing himself upon the bed's head, ver. 31. character of his blessing to his sons, Gen. xlix. 1. loftiness of its style, ver. 2. free from the guilt of Simeon and Levi, ver. 6. reflections on his death, Gen. l. 10. what was the greatest blessing of his life, ibid. his prophecy soon began to be fulfilled, Numb. i. 27. why called a Syrian, Deut. xxvi. 5.
—— the excellency of, the land of Israel, Ps. xlvii. 4. God Himself, Amos viii. 7.
'Jacob's well,' still shewn, and much visited by pilgrims, John iv. 6.
—— I loved, explained, Mal. i. 2.
—— sons of, their bodies probably carried into Canaan, Gen. l. 25.
—— his sons and grandsons, difference in the number that went into Egypt reconciled, Gen. xlvi. 27. enumerated, ibid. why exactly registered, ibid.
—— and Esau, their struggling together an omen of their future disagreement, Gen. xxv. 23. their different characters, ibid. the like diversity distinguished their posterity, ibid. the prediction concerning them verified in their descendants, ibid. remark on their burying Isaac, Gen. xxxv. 29. their posterity spoken of by St. Paul, Rom. ix. 7, 13. in what sense the one was loved and the other hated, ibid.
Jaddua, high priest, whether the same as Jaddus in Alexander's time, Neh. xii. 11.
Jael, her hospitable reception of Sisera, Judg. iv. 19. probably acted under a Divine impulse in killing him, ver. 21. on this ground alone her action justifiable, ibid. her action for what purpose recorded, Judg. v. 24.
Jah, for Jehovah, Ps. lxviii. 4.
Jahaziel, why specially inspired by God, 2 Chron. xx. 14.
Jailor at Philippi, the infinite importance of his question, Acts xvi. 30. the belief which is made the condition of his salvation, ver. 31. grounded on the word of God, ver. 32.
Jair, sons of, circumstance concerning them why mentioned, Judg. x. 4.
Jambri, a tribe of Arabs, 1 Mac. ix. 36.
James, St. the elder, his death, Acts xii. 2.
—— the Less, his parentage, Introd. to Jam. degree of his relation to Christ, ibid. author of the Epistle which bears his name, ibid. bishop of Jerusalem, ibid. circumstances of his life and death, ibid. why called the Less, Matt. x. 3. his opinion decides the controversy about circumcision, Acts xv. 19. the reasons of his opinion, ver. 21.
James the Less, why called the Lord's brother, Gal. i. 19. why he wrote his Epistle, Rom. iii. 31.
James, which of the two mentioned as having seen Christ after His resurrection, 1 Cor. xv. 7.
—— St. Epistle of, by which James written, Introd. date of it, ibid. immediate design of it, ibid. its contents, ibid. and character, ibid.
Jannes and Jambres, whence the names are taken, 2 Tim. iii. 8. whose names they are, ibid. why the heretical teachers in the Church compared to them, ibid.
Japheth, meaning of his name, Gen. ix. 27. alluded to in Noah's prophecy, ibid. which was fulfilled in the enlargement of his territory and children, ibid. how said to dwell in the tents of Shem, ibid. rewarded for his piety, ibid. who supposed by the Greeks to be, Gen. x. 2.
Japho, what city so called, Josh. xix. 46. its modern name, ibid.
Jareb, king, who meant by, Hos. v. 13.
Jasher, the book of, probable explanation of the term, Josh. x. 13.
Jashobeam, his lifting up his spear against three hundred, explained, 1 Chron. xi. 11.
Jasper, doubts respecting the precious stone meant, Rev. iv. 3.
Javan, Greece why so called, Ezek. xxvii. 13. probably part of Arabia, ver. 19.
Jazer, land of, where situated, Numb. xxxii. 1. Is. xvi. 8. weeping of Jazer, explained, ver. 9.
Jealous God, phrase explained, Exod. xx. 5.
Jealousy, meaning of God's provoking the Israelites to jealousy, Deut. xxxii. 21. how fulfilled, ibid.
—— the fury of it described, Prov. vi. 34.
—— image of, opinions upon it, Ezek. viii. 3.
—— water of, the probable explanation of it, Numb. v. 21. how distinguished from the ordeals in the dark ages, ver. 29. a proof of the virtue and wisdom of Moses, ver. 31.
Jebusites, how long they possessed Jerusalem, Josh. xv. 63. their scornful answer to David, 2 Sam. v. 6. why they were hated by David, ver. 8. not all expelled from Jerusalem in David's time, 2 Sam. xxiv. 16.
Jechonias, why both Jehoiakim and Jehoiachin so called, Matt. i. 11.
Jeduthun, name of the chief musician, Ps. xxxix. title.
Jehoahaz, how brought to pray to God, 2 Kings xiii. 4. why God hearkened to him, ibid.
Jehoiachin, passages respecting his age when he began to reign, how reconciled, 2 Kings xxiv. 8. how treated by Evil-merodach, 2 Kings xxv. 27.
Jehoiada, his contrivance for getting a strong force into the temple, to proclaim Joash king, 2 Kings xi. 5. causes the people to renew their engagement of observing their religion and laws, ver. 17. reflection on his preserving Joash in righteous courses as long as he lived, 2 Kings xii. 2. the honours paid to his memory a proof of good disposition in the people, 2 Chron. xxiv. 16.
—— the priest, who he was, Jer. xxix. 26.
Jehoiakim, prophecy ascribed to his reign, Jer. xiii. introd. a prophecy fulfilled in him, Jer. xxii. 19.
Jehonadab, son of Rechab, his piety and prudence, 2 Kings x. 15. the respect with which he is treated by Jehu, ibid. character of his institutions, Jer. xxxv. 2. what became of his family, ver. 19.
Jehoram, the same name with Joram, two kings of this name, 2 Chron. xxii. 5.
—— son of Ahab, why he put down the publick worship of Baal, 2 Kings iii. 2. advantage to him from his misery, ver. 10. meaning of his request to Elisha, ver. 13. why alarmed at being asked to cure Naaman of his leprosy, 2 Kings v. 7. cause of his fury against Elisha, 2 Kings vi. 31. his despair and distrust of God, ver. 33. the sneer of one of his officers at God's power, and his punishment for it, 2 Kings vii. 2. why upbraided by Jehu for his mother's sins, 2 Kings ix. 22. reflections on his being cast in the field of Naboth, ver. 25.
—— son of Jehoshaphat, the difficulties respecting the time of his beginning to reign, explained, 2 Kings viii. 16; 2 Chron. xxi. 3. constrains his subjects to follow his idolatry, ver. 11. calamities sent upon him by the special direction of God,

2 Chron. xxi. 14. opinions on the disease he died of, ver. 19. unlamented by his people, ver. 20.

JEHOSHAPHAT, his affinity with Ahab, 1 Kings xxii. 2. his care to maintain religion, 2 Chron. xvii. 7. received voluntary tribute from the Philistines and Arabians, ver. 11. great prosperity of the kingdom under his religious administration, ver. 14. visits personally his kingdom for the purpose of effecting reformations, 2 Chron. xix. 4. appoints officers to try causes of all sorts, ver. 8. enjoins them to admonish trespassers, as well as to pronounce judgments, ver. 10. and to administer justice impartially ver. 11. proclaims a fast through the kingdom when attacked by his enemies, 2 Chron. xx. 3. observations on his prayer on this occasion, ver. 6. his publick gratitude to God after obtaining the victory, ver. 27.

—— valley of, explained, Joel iii. 2.

JEHOVAH, meaning of the name, Exod. iii. 14; Is. xlii. 8; Jon. i. 9. how rendered in our translation, Exod. iii. 15. for what purpose God frequently brings in this name in Scripture, Exod. vi. 3. in what sense God was not known to the Patriarchs by this name, ibid.

—— name of, meaning of the phrase, Zech. xiv. 9.

JEHOVAH-JIREH, reason of the name, Gen. xxii. 14.

JEHU, king of Israel, why he was anointed by order of Elisha, 2 Kings ix. 1. acted under an express Divine commission, ibid. the questions of his officer respecting the message sent from Elisha considered, ver. 11. how proclaimed king, ver. 13. his words to Bidkar his captain respecting the burden laid upon Ahab explained, ver. 25. reason of his letter to the rulers of Jezreel at Samaria, 2 Kings x. 1. their consent to his application and desertion of Ahab's family, considered, ver. 5. what his design was in writing ver. 6. why he ordered the heads of Ahab's sons to be publickly exposed, ver. 8. disclaims private revenge or ambition in putting them to death, ver. 9. his slaughter of 'the brethren' of Ahaziah considered, ver. 14. his subtilty in destroying the worshippers of Baal condemned, ver. 19. his zeal may be commended, not his fraud, ibid. his motives in continuing the schism which Jeroboam had begun, ver. 29. God's bounty to him in bestowing temporal blessings for his partial obedience, ver. 30. the promise of God to him faithfully kept, 2 Kings xv. 12; Hos. i. 4.

—— son of Hanani the Prophet, why said to execute God's judgments against Baasha, 1 Kings xvi. 7.

JEHUCAL, son of Shelemiah, whom he succeeded, Jer. xxxvii. 3.

JEPHTHAH, his sending to the Ammonites before he fought a mark of true valour, Judg. xi. 12. his argument founded on the principles of his adversaries, ver. 24. commits his cause to God, ver. 27. endowed by God with extraordinary courage, and other qualities, ver. 29. his vow intended to ensure the Divine favour, ver. 30. his heart cleaved to God, ibid. the sense in which his vow is to be understood, ver. 31. an example to us of piety, and strict sense of honour, ver. 36. a warning against making rash vows, ibid.

JEPHTHAH'S daughter, her dutifulness in suing for the performance of her father's vow, Judg. xi. 36. considerations respecting the manner in which the vow was performed, ibid. ver. 40.

JEREMIAH, of the sacerdotal race, a Prophet very young; prophesied during forty-two years, carried into Egypt, stoned to death at Tahpanhes, illustrious character of his prophecies, his style, under whom he prophesied, Introd. to Jer. his lamentations for Josiah, now lost, 2 Chron. xxxv. 25. introduces Isaiah's prophecy against Moab into his own, Is. xv. introd.; Jer. xlviii. 1. why presumed to be a false prophet, Jer. xviii. 18. prophesied nineteen years under Josiah, Jer. xxv. 3. his contemporaries, ver. 4. addition to his prophecy, Jer. lii. introd. quotation from Zechariah attributed to him, a probable way of accounting for it, Matt. xxvii. 9. remark on the translation of a passage in Heb. viii. 9.

JERICHO, why called the city of palm trees, Deut. xxxiv. 3; Judg. i. 16. its distance from Gilgal, Josh. v. 2. why the Israelites were not commanded to besiege it formally, Josh. vi. 3. the manner of its walls falling down, ver. 5. the nature and effect of this miracle, ver. 20. prophecy respecting the rebuilding of it remarkably fulfilled 600 years afterwards, ver. 26; 1 Kings xvi. 34. curse on the rebuilder of it, not on those who might inhabit it, Josh. vi. 26. a place famous in after-times, ibid. its distance from Ai, Josh. vii. 2. a considerable place in Christ's time, Luke x. 30. the road from it to Jerusalem infested with robbers, ibid.

JERICHO, plains of, where situate, Jer. xxxix. 5.

JEROBOAM, effect of his receiving a publick appointment from Solomon, 1 Kings xi. 28. how Solomon knew what had passed between him and Ahijah, ver. 40. why he enlarged and beautified Shechem and Penuel, 1 Kings xii. 25. what two things he was infamous for, ver. 26. his wicked policy to prevent the reunion of the ten tribes, ver. 26—28. his two calves probably in imitation of Egyptian idolatry, ver. 28. his wilful breach of God's commands in setting them up, ibid. the changes made by him in the national worship prescribed by the Mosaick law, ibid. his false policy proved his ruin, ibid. his conduct in setting up the calves not looked upon as an absolute heathen idolatry, ibid. he seems to have intended the calves as symbols of the Divine presence, ibid. his conduct implied no deliberate rejection of the Mosaick law, ibid. his making priests from the lowest of the people explained, ver. 31. his impenitence, ibid. a Prophet sent to warn him, an instance of God's mercy, 1 Kings xiii. 1. his presumptuous assumption of the ministerial office, ibid. his impiety in attempting violence against the Prophet of God, ver. 4. compelled by the withering of his hand to own the power of God, ver. 6. his petition to the Prophet, and the Prophet's ready intercession for him, ibid. his mind remains hard and impenitent towards God, ver. 7. observations on his impenitance and continuance in sin, ver. 33. his infatuation in sending his wife in disguise to the Prophet Ahijah, 1 Kings xiv. 2. his probable reasons for making her go in disguise, ibid. his carnal heart and thoughtlessness of God, ver. 3. God's just judgments on him for his idolatrous worship and other sins, 1 Kings xv. 29. how his wicked changes in religious matters furnished strength to Rehoboam, 2 Chron. xi. 13. his fear of the effect which Abijah's address might produce on the people, 2 Chron. xiii. 13. his army struck with a panick by God, ver. 15.

JERUBBESHETH, why another name for Gideon, 2 Sam. xi. 21.

JERUSALEM, its several names, Josh. x. 1. signification of the word Jerusalem, ibid.

—— why occupied by the old inhabitants in the times of the judges, Judg. xix. 12. how its three walls were disposed, 1 Kings ix. 15. centre of union to all the tribes, Ps. cxxii. 3. its beauty, Song of Sol. vi. 4. why persons are said to go down from it, and up to it, 2 Chron. xx. 16; Hos. i. 11. how far distant from Euphrates, Jer. xiii. 4. its destruction threatened, Jer. vi. 8. its ingratitude greater than that of Samaria, Ezek. xvi. 51. why called the bloody city, Ezek. xxiv. 6. its destruction foretold, Joel ii. 30, 31.

—— siege of, by the Babylonians, circumstance in it predicted, Lev. xxvi. 29. the escape of the people 'by the way of the gate between two walls' explained, 2 Kings xxv. 4. how long it lasted, Ezek. iv. 5. reflections on its downfal by the Babylonians, 2 Kings xxv. 30; Lam. i. 21. complaints to Nehemiah of its ruinous state, Neh. i. 3. the reason of mentioning in detail those who assisted in building the wall, Neh. iii. 1. what the shortness of the time in which the wall was finished shews, Neh. vi. 15. after the building of the wall, thinly inhabited, Neh. xi. 1. expedient for peopling it, and enumeration of those who dwelt there, ver. 1, 3. about seven miles in circuit, Ezek. xlviii. 15. called the holy city, Matt. iv. 5.

—— siege of, by the Romans, foretold by Moses, Deut. xxviii. 53. horrours of it described, ibid. dreadful occurrence in, related, ver. 56. Christ's prophecy of its destruction, one of the clearest and most important in the Scriptures, Matt. xxiv. introd. exact accomplishment of the several parts of the prophecy, ver. 2. the horrible calamities suffered at its destruction, ver. 21; Deut. xxviii. 58, 62. providential shortening of 'those days,' Matt. xxiv. 22. its destruction an earnest of the future punishment of the wicked, ver. 33. preceded by fearful signs, Luke xxi. 11. the extreme severity of this judgment, Acts iii. 23. its several destructions the severest of God's judgments, Ezek. v. 9.

—— which is above, what it means, and why, Gal. iv. 26.

JERUSALEM, New, meaning the heavenly Jerusalem, Rev. iii. 12. described, Ezek. xlviii. 35. what it represents, Rev. xxi. 1. its brightness, what, ver. 11. gorgeous description of it whence taken, ibid. meaning of its wall having twelve foundations, ver. 14. what meant by its having no need of the sun, ver. 23. and no night, ver. 25; xxii. 5. it shall be the residence of none but true Christians, Rev. xxi. 24, 27. described by images taken from paradise, Rev. xxii. 1, 2. no such curse there as in the first paradise, ver. 3, 4.
—— a type of Christian Church, Hos. i. 11. put for heaven, Joel iii. 16. for Church of God, ver. 20.
—— to go up to, what it means, Zech. xiv. 17.
—— decree of first council at, remark on it, Job xxiii. 11. See Council.
JESHIMON, explained, Numb. xxiii. 28.
JESHUA, the high priest, how it appears that he held the office by regular descent, Ezra ii. 2.
JESHURUN, meaning of the word, Deut. xxxii. 15. why put for Israel, ibid.
JESUS, meaning of the name, Matt. i. 1, 21. illustrated by His actions, Matt. ix, 25. the Saviour of all men, 1 Cor. viii. 11. all limitation of the general terms of Scripture, how excluded, ibid. true doctrine concerning Him of what a criterion, 1 Cor. xii. 3. how testified in Scripture to be the Saviour of all men, 1 Tim. iv. 18. point of doctrine of the ancient catholick Church, ibid. and of the Church of England, ibid. See CHRIST.
—— His humiliation and exaltation, for what purpose set forth, Phil. ii. 11. His nature signified by the phrase, 'the same yesterday and to day and for ever,' Heb. xiii. 8. similar phrase referred to, ibid. See CHRIST.
'—— Christ is in you,' what the words allude to, 2 Cor. xiii. 5. explanation of them, ibid. to whom applied, ibid.
—— for Joshua, Heb. iv. 8.
—— the son of Sirach, wrote Ecclesiasticus, probably two of the name, when they flourished, one grandfather of the other, Introd. to Ecclus.
JETHRO, his speech to Moses explained, Exod. xviii. 11. why he took a burnt offering, ver. 12. what fulfilled thereby, ibid. why mentioned in that place, ibid. his counsel to Moses explained, ver. 19. supposed to have been adopted in the old Saxon constitution, ver. 21.
Jewels, given to the bride in Abraham's time, illustrated by modern customs, Gen. xxiv. 53.
JEWISH CHRISTIANS, their testimony in St. Paul's favour why noticed by him, Gal. i. 24.
—— Church, economy of, adopted in the Christian, Numb. xxxv. 7. its corruption how shewn, Is. i. 5, 6.
—— Church and nation, destruction of, ascribed to their rejection of the Messiah, Deut. xviii. 19.
—— courts of justice, custom in them illustrating Scripture, Matt. xxv. 33.
—— dispensation, how shewn to cease when that of the Gospel commenced, Matt. xvii. 8. See Dispensations.
—— doctors, how they expressed their contempt for the Gentiles, Rom. ii. 19. mentioned by St. Paul as an aggravation of their sins, ibid. notoriously guilty of the sins enumerated by St. Paul, ver. 22. testimony of Josephus to that effect, ibid. and to the wickedness of the nation generally, ibid. a corrupt doctrine of theirs condemned, Jam. ii. 10. application to many professors of the Gospel, ver. 11.
—— elders, their blindness foretold, Is. xxix. 14.
—— history, compendious view from Nehemiah to the Maccabees, End of Apocr. from Maccabees to Gospel history, ibid.
—— law, utility of its directions, Introd. to Lev. its unequalled mildness and equity, Lev. xxiv. 19. its severity might in extreme cases be relaxed, Matt. xii. 3, 5, 7. Christ could dispense with its obligation, ver. 8. See Law of Moses.
—— nation, rejection of them from being God's Church upon their infidelity, vindicated, Rom. ix. notes generally.
—— people, naturally attached to Jesus, Matt. xxvii. 20; Luke xxiii. 1. set against Him by the priests, Matt. xxvii. 20. fulfilment of their fatal imprecation on themselves, ver. 25.
—— polity, principal scheme and end of it, Deut. vii. 25.
JEWISH privileges, St. Paul might have valued himself upon them, Phil. iii. 4. particulars of, enumerated and explained, ver. 5.
—— religion, intended to typify the Gospel, Exod. xxxix. 43. one great purpose of, Esth. iii. 8. how it caused them to be regarded by heathens, ibid.
—— sacrifices, alluded to by St. Paul, Rom. xv. 16.
—— Scriptures, how commended by St. Paul, 2 Tim. iii. 17. testimony borne to them by our Lord, ibid. their connexion with the Gospel, ibid.
—— state, its destruction intimated, Matt. iii. 12.
—— women, famous for curious needleworks, Song of Sol. iii. 10.
—— zealots, accustomed to commit assassinations, Acts xxiii. 12. probably aimed at, Jam. i. 19.
JEWS, the name whence derived, 2 Kings xvi. 6. when Hebrews first so called, ibid. why given to all who returned from the captivity, Ezra vi. 17. three periods of their history denoted, Hos. vi. 2. favoured in Egypt, Is. xix. 18. their prayers not offered with faith, Is. xliii. 22. God's dealings with them not according to their deserts but His honour, Ezek. xx. 9. those in captivity called 'dead Israelites,' Ezek. xxxvii. 12.
—— first captivity of, its duration, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21. how made instrumental to God's glory, Introd. to Ezra, par. last. remark on the promotion of many of them during it, Esth. x. 3. during it worshipped towards the place where the temple stood, 1 Kings viii. 48. supported true religion, Dan. ii. 47. remarks on their prayers, Ecclus. xxxvi. 1. their dispersion over the Babylonian and Persian empires, how made subservient to the designs of Providence, Esth. viii. 17.
—— proclamation for their return, when issued by Cyrus, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21. four decrees respecting them issued by the kings of Persia, Ezra i. 1. their return from Babylon noticed by the heathen as an instance of God's providence, Ezek. xxxvi. 23. why called 'the children of the province,' Ezra ii. 1. difference in the numbers that returned, as given by Ezra and Nehemiah, accounted for, ver. 3. smallness of their number at this time in comparison with those who came from Egypt, ver. 64. probably more stayed in Babylon than returned, ibid. i. 5. how shewn not to have been in a state of slavery, Ezra ii. 69. their piety in making it their first care after their return to rebuild their altars and temple, Ezra iii. 2. their improvement in the school of captivity, ibid. their observance of the several festivals of their religion, ver. 4. causes of the joy of the younger Jews, and the lamentation of the older ones, at the foundation of the second temple, ver. 12. reproved by the Prophets for their delay in resuming the building of the temple, Ezra v. 1. their expression to distinguish their God from idols, ver. 8. some of all the tribes returned, Ezra vi. 17. why called 'the holy seed,' Ezra ix. 2. their sense of guilt and repentance for their promiscuous marriages, Ezra x. 1, 3, 9. the readiness with which they obeyed Ezra and put away the cause of their sin, ver. 12. the poor ones complain to Nehemiah of the oppression of the rich, Neh. v. 1, 5. their lamentation at the ignorance of the law in which they had lived, Neh. viii. 9. their devout attention at hearing it, and its effect upon them, ibid. their renunciation of their strange wives, Neh. ix. 1, 2. their heavy publick burdens after their restoration, though permitted to live by their own laws, ver. 37. solemn renewal of their covenant with God, ver. 38. their solemn oath and the particular observances to which they obliged themselves, Neh. x. 29. their submission to Nehemiah an example of proper submission to rulers, ibid. their intermarriage with the Ammonites and Moabites how prohibited, Neh. xiii. 1. their separation from the mixed multitude, ver. 3. residence of many of them after their captivity and in the Apostles' time, Esth. iii. 8. on their return from captivity did not relapse into idolatry, Ezek. xi. 18. remarks on their history in times subsequent to the captivity, App. to Esth. on the revolutions in their government, ibid. and on the circumstances of their affairs, and of the nations connected with them preparatory to the coming of the Messiah, ibid. their revolt from Ptolemy, and fulfilment of prophecy, Dan. xi. 14. their submission to Antiochus, ver. 15. their inflexible spirit under persecution, 1 Mac. iii. 1. whence they date their independence, 1 Mac. xiii. 34.

JEWS, their high privileges strongly set forth by Christ, Mark vii. 27. their jealousy of their liberties, John viii. 33. preserved appearances of freedom, when in actual bondage, ibid. the power of life and death when taken from them, John xviii. 31. their former glorious privileges why enumerated by St. Paul, Rom. ix. 5. their descent from Abraham unavailing without obedience, Matt. iii. 9. their happiness, had they believed in Christ, Luke xix. 42.

—— the Messiah first sent to them, and their unworthiness of Him, Acts iii. 26. their preference of the praise of men to the praise of God, John v. 44. their pretences for not believing in Christ, ver. 46. their prejudices obstructed their belief in Christ, Luke iv. 23, 24. their false accusation of Christ covered by specious pretences, Luke xxiii. 2. their plans respecting the apprehension of Jesus, Matt. xxvi. 5. their rejection of the Gospel, Matt. xxii. 6. why they condemned Him for blasphemy, John xix. 7. how they understood the title of 'Son of God,' ibid. to what law they alluded when they said Christ ought to die, ibid. why called by Christ 'of their father the devil,' John viii. 44. what meant by their doing the lusts of their father, ibid. their perverseness, Matt. xii. 14; Mark viii. 12. hardened and hypocritical from the first to the last, Matt. xii. 14. their not improving was owing to themselves, ibid. their perverseness, and fear of the Romans, John xi. 48. the consequences of their worldly policy, ibid. their notions of a suffering Messiah, John xii. 34. their blindness wilful, Luke xix. 42. observations on their manner of resisting the force of a miracle, John ix. 41. their character in the apostolical age, 1 Pet. iv. 15. their contentious state in the same age alluded to, Jam. iv. 1. testimony of Josephus to their wickedness in his time, Rom. ii. 1.

—— judgments denounced against them, unless they repented, Luke xiii. 3, 5. what they expected Christ's first appearance to be, 1 Cor. i. 22. consequence of their disappointment, ibid. their rejection justified by a parable, Matt. xxi. 28. their punishment and the justice of it, ver. 41. God's dealings with them, and their behaviour, illustrated by a parable, ver. 35, 37, 38. a clear prophecy of their rejection, ver. 43. in what God's goodness to them consisted, Rom. ii. 4. their wrong judgment of it, ibid. why God withdrew His grace from them, Mark iv. 12. their last trial intimated as at hand, Matt. iii. 10. their punishment by the Roman armies foretold, Matt. xxii. 7. severity of punishment denounced against them, Matt. xxiii. 35. Christ's tender affection towards them, and endeavours to reclaim them, ver. 37. dreadful destruction denounced against them, Luke xxiii. 29, 31. their destruction foretold, Luke xix. 12, 27; xx. 16. their approaching miseries spoken of, Jam. v. 1. extent of them, ibid. who noticed as suffering in them, ibid.

—— their hatred against mankind in general, 1 Thess. ii. 15. and perverse opposition to the Gospel, ibid. how said 'to fill up their sins alway,' ver. 16. destruction of their religious and civil state foretold, ibid. their rejection for infidelity no reason of complaint against God, Rom. iii. 4. argued by St. Paul from a confession of David, ibid. refused to salute a Gentile, Matt. v. 47. their unjust anger against the Gentiles finely reproved, Luke xv. 28. their exalted ideas of themselves, and low ideas of the Gentiles, Acts xi. 18. first called to the Gospel, but Gentiles first admitted, Matt. xx. 16. Gentiles to be received into the Gospel covenant before them, Luke xiii. 29, 30. why the Gospel first preached to them, Rom. i. 16. the restriction as to meats taken off from them, Acts x. 15. the partition between them and the Gentiles broken down, ver. 35.

—— unbelieving, danger apprehended from them by St. Paul, Rom. xv. 31.

—— how some of them remained the Church of God, Rom. xi. 2. their authority among the convert Gentiles, Introd. to Rom. par. 6. causes of it, ibid. advantage they made of it, ibid. an occasion of trouble to the Gentile converts and a prejudice to the Gospel, ibid. much complained of by St. Paul, ibid.

—— their opinion that souls migrated from one body to another after death, John ix. 2. their custom of bringing up even those who were best educated to some useful calling, Acts xviii. 3. their custom of reclining at their meals, Luke vii. 38.

JEWS, (at Smyrna,) in name, but really emissaries of Satan, Rev. ii. 9.

—— the time of their being God's peculiar people expired, Dan. ix. 24. promises to them made good to Church of Christ, Mic. vii. 14. judgment on them denounced, Mal. iv. 1. those who rejected Christ referred to, Ezek. xx. 38. their wretched condition after rejecting Messiah, Ps. lxix. 22. their rejection prefigured, Is. xxix. 17.

—— foretold by Moses that they should be not quite destroyed, but scattered over the world, Deut. xxviii. 33. that their king should be carried captive, ver. 36. how they were to serve other gods, ibid. in what sense they were to become an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword, ver. 37. when fulfilled, ibid. threatened with famine, ver. 38. when fulfilled, ibid. threatened with the loss of their children, ver. 41.

—— devastation of their country by the Romans foretold by Moses and recorded by Josephus, Deut. xxviii. 50. multitudes of them that perished at the siege of Jerusalem, &c. ver. 62. treatment of the captives, ver. 63. subjection and depopulation of their country, ibid. excessive famine to which they were driven according to the prophecy of Moses, Deut. xxviii. 53, 56. the immense number of them made captive at the destruction of Jerusalem, Luke xxi. 24; Zech. xiv. 2. desolation of their land in the time of Adrian, Deut. xxix. 23. miraculous dispersion of them, Deut. xxviii. 64.

—— present condition of, a strong argument for the Christian faith, Deut. xxviii. 32. peculiarity of the case, ibid. general reflections on their present condition, ver. 65. contrasted with their former privileges, ibid. an example of Divine justice, ver. 67. and an admonition to Christians and infidels, ibid. their present state a fulfilment of prophecy, Is. vi. 11; x. 23. their present state typified, Hos. iii. 2, 3. their continuance as a distinct and separate people unexampled and miraculous, Deut. xxx. 1. their continuing a distinct people considered, Jer. xxx. 11. one purpose of their preservation, Zech. xii. 10. their sin in killing Messiah not to be removed without a general repentance, ver. 10. bear witness to true religion by being a distinct people, ver. 13. their compliance with the idolatrous worship of the church of Rome, Deut. xxviii. 64. their trust in their own righteousness, Ezek. xxxiii. 13. their rejection neither total nor final, Rom. xi. 25. their restoration to their own country predicted, Deut. xxx. 1. their conversion to Christ the preliminary condition, ibid. ver. 5. See Conversion.

—— a signal conversion of them near Christ's second coming foretold, Hos. xi. 10. the remnant of them shall believe, Zech. xiii. 8. what their general conversion will prove, Rom. xi. 12. not to be thought improbable, ver. 16. more probable than was that of the Gentiles, ver. 24. why termed a mystery, ver. 25. a subject of ancient prophecy, ver. 26. how it appears that such prophecies are not yet accomplished, ibid. founded in Scripture, ver. 32. taken by St. Paul for granted, 2 Cor. iii. 16. received doctrine of the Church of Christ, Rom. xi. 32. reflections on their preservation, ver. 36. and predicted conversion, ibid. and on the proper conduct of Christians towards them, ibid.

'—— of the dispersion,' remarks on the inscription of St. James's Epistle to them, Jam. i. 1.

—— religion, what it signifies, Gal. i. 14.

—— and Gentiles, why called 'one new man,' Eph. ii. 15.

JEZANIAH, account of him, Jer. xl. 8.

JEZEBEL, her extreme wickedness and hardness of heart, 1 Kings xix. 2. why she directs a fast to be proclaimed, 1 Kings xxi. 9. her haughty spirit, 2 Kings ix. 30. her painting her face, ibid. her body eaten by dogs, ver. 35. reflections on her fall, ibid.

JEZREEL, name of Hosea's son, what it signifies, Hos. i. 4. Christian Church fitly styled, Hos. ii. 21. word alluded to, ver. 23.

—— its situation, and frequent mention of it in Jewish history, Judg. vi. 33. remarks on Ahab's palace there, 1 Kings xviii. 45; xxi. 1.

—— valley of, its situation, Gen. xlix. 15; Judg. vi. 33.

—— day of, what it signifies, Hos. i. 11.

JOAB, his treachery in murdering Abner, 2 Sam. iii. 27. his motives for so doing, ibid. his cunning device, 2 Sam. xiv. 2. his motives for killing Absalom, 2 Sam. xviii. 14. not justified in doing so, contrary to the king's order, 2 Sam. xviii. 14. his imperious remonstrance with the king, 2 Sam. xix. 5. his treacherous wickedness in killing Amasa, 2 Sam. xx. 10. why David did not remove him, ver. 23. his insolence to David, and his crimes, 1 Kings ii. 5. why he took refuge in the tabernacle, ver. 28. remarks on his death and burial, ver. 34.

JOARIB, the course of, its order, 1 Mac. ii. 1.

JOASH, king of Israel, his lamentation at the loss of Elisha, 2 Kings xiii. 14. his acknowledgment of the useful authority the Prophet had maintained, ibid. why he smote the ground thrice only, ver. 19. his device for humbling Amaziah, 2 Kings xiv. 9.

—— king of Judah, how preserved in righteous courses, 2 Kings xii. 2. his repairing the temple, and the measures he took for that purpose, ver. 4, 5. his bribing Hazael to withdraw his army at the expense of the treasures of the temple, ver. 18. sad example afforded in the close of his life, ver. 20. the great change wrought in him after the death of Jehoiada, 2 Chron. xxiv. 17. an instance of the vast advantage of wise and prudent ministers of religion, ibid. his great degeneracy in becoming an idolater and a persecutor, ver. 21. his fate like that of other bad kings, ver. 25.

JOB, a real person, when he lived, wrote his own history, Introd. to Job. a magistrate, Job i. 3. his complaint described, Job ii. 7. his gratitude, ver. 10. want of true humility his great fault, Job xxxiii. 17. his submission, Job xlii. 2. his example a pattern of patience, Jam. v. 11. his reward an encouragement for consolation, ibid. particular design of introducing him, ibid.

'—— book of,' prior to age of Moses, the moral of it, the style, Introd. to Job. written in opposition to two independent principles, Job ii. 10. Job's death recorded in it no argument against his being the author, Job xlii. 17. its remote antiquity supports the narratives of Moses, ibid. moral of it, ibid.

JOCHEBED, reflections on her maternal affection, Exod. ii. 4.

JOEL, when he lived, of tribe of Reuben, his book entirely prophetick, cited by evangelical writers, his style, Introd. to Joel.

JOHN, St. the Baptist, signification of the name John, Luke i. 13. his self-denial, ver. 15. his appearance 'in the spirit and power of Elias,' ver. 17. his the only nativity celebrated in the Church, that of Christ excepted, ver. 57. foretold, Mal. iii. 1. harbinger of the Messiah, ibid. reflections on his office and mission, Luke i. 78. illustration of his preparing the way for the Lord, Matt. iii. 3. his abstemious mode of life suited to his doctrine, ver. 4. paid no court to the great, or the multitude, ver. 7. recommends real virtues instead of ceremonial observances, Luke iii. 11. his humility in publishing his own inferiority to Christ, John i. 15. declares that he bore the office of Elias, ver. 23. and that he baptized to make disciples for the Messiah, ver. 26. an excellent example of true humility, ibid. in what he knew not Christ, John i. 31. constantly asserts the superiority of Jesus, John iii. 27. instruction afforded by his example to the ministers of Christ, ibid. his testimony of Jesus, John x. 41. his message to Jesus, and the object of it, Matt. xi. 3. why 'more than a Prophet,' ver. 9. why less than the meanest preacher of Christianity, Matt. xi. 11. his honesty and courage in reproving Herod, Matt. xiv. 4. nature of Herod's fear of him, ver. 5. design of Providence in the early termination of his ministry, ver. 9.

—— remark on one of his disciples casting out devils, Mark ix. 38. why Christ forbids his being discouraged, ver. 39.

—— St. the Apostle, his history, time and place of publishing his Gospel, his immediate design in writing it, and his style, Introd. to St. John's Gospel, and Introd. to Rev. proof that he wrote to supply the omissions of the other Gospels, John iii. 24. remarks on his manner of opening his Gospel and Epistle, 1 John i. 1. omits many things recorded by the other Evangelists, John vi. 1. observation on his not recording the appointment of the twelve Apostles, ver. 8. has five times mentioned himself, as the disciple whom Jesus loved, John xiii. 23. high value of this distinction, ibid. has recorded three appearances of Christ after His resurrection, John xxi. 14. prophecy of his surviving the destruction of Jerusalem, Matt. xvi. 28; Mark ix. 1. false notion that he was not to die, John xxi. 23. words on which the errour was founded, how verified, ibid. brother to every Christian believer, Rev. i. 9. banished for his adherence to the faith, Rev. i. 9. commanded to record the things revealed to him, ver. 11. professes himself an eye and ear witness of the matters delivered in the Revelations, Rev. xxii. 8.

JOHN, First Epistle of, by whom written, Introd. question as to persons to whom it was addressed, and the date of it, ibid. its design and contents, ibid. composition of it not according to the epistolary form, ibid. in what way it may properly be considered, ibid. remarks on its great excellence and value, ibid. remarks on the opening of the first chapter, 1 John i. 1. and on the contents prefixed to it, ibid.

—— Second Epistle of, title by which he calls himself, why adopted, Introd. to whom addressed, ibid. its correspondence with the first Epistle, ibid. design and contents of it, ibid.

—— Third Epistle of, to whom addressed, Introd. design of it, ibid. whence probably written, ibid. remark on this and the preceding being called Catholick, ibid.

JONADAB, son of Rechab. See JEHONADAB.

—— son of Shimeah, wickedness of his advice, 2 Sam. xiii. 5.

JONAH, the most ancient of the Prophets, of Gath-hepher in Zabulon, when he flourished, spoken of by our Lord, his style, Introd to Jonah. his flight considered, Jonah i. 3. tendency of his preservation, ver. 16. how long in the fish's belly, and reflections on, ver. 17. his prayer considered, Jonah ii. 1. his preaching why attended to, Jonah iii. 4, 5. why he wished to die, Jonah iv. 3, 4. his ingenuous avowal, ver. 9. mentioned on only one other occasion, 2 Kings xiv. 25.

—— passage from, alleged by our Lord and St. Paul as a typical prophecy of Christ's resurrection, 1 Cor. xv. 4.

JONAS the Prophet, sign of, what meant by it, Matt. xvi. 4; Luke xi. 30.

Jonath-elem-rechokim, words explained, Ps. lvi. title.

JONATHAN son of Gershon, supposed to be grandson of Moses, Deut. xxxiv. 10.

—— son of Saul, stirred to his attack upon the Philistines by a Divine impulse, 1 Sam. xiv. 1, 10. how rescued from the effect of Saul's oath by the people, ver. 45. his extraordinary attachment to David, 1 Sam. xviii. 1. the noble principle from which it flowed, ibid. why he gives his robe, &c. to David, ver. 4. his anxiety to prevent his father's sinning against David, 1 Sam. xix. 4. shews himself an excellent son and friend, ibid. his address in interceding for David, ver. 5. his submission to the will of God in the designation of David to the throne, 1 Sam. xx. 15. his greatness of soul and piety shewn therein, ibid. encourages David to place his trust in God and to fear not, 1 Sam. xxiii. 16, 17. his disinterested and generous conduct towards him, ibid. his death, 1 Sam. xxxi. 2. providence of God in ordaining it at that time, ibid. reflections on his character, and his friendship for David, ibid.

—— the Asmonean, on what grounds high priest, 1 Mac. x. 20.

JOPPA, why made an haven for Jerusalem, 1 Mac. xiv. 5. its distance from Jerusalem, ibid; Acts ix. 36. See JAPHO.

JORDAN, river, origin of its name, Gen. xiii. 10. its course, ibid. miracles performed in it, ibid. its overflowing by the melting of the snows, Josh. iii. 15. remarks on its width and its two banks, ibid. passage through it by the Israelites undoubtedly miraculous, ver. 16. the place of the passage how called in our Saviour's time, ibid. its overflowing why particularly noticed, Josh. iv. 18. the purpose designed by God in the miracle of passing this river, ver. 24. swelling of, how applied, Jer. xii. 5. the effects of its inundations described, Jer. xlix. 19.

—— plain of, described, Gen. xiii. 10.

'—— the pride of,' explained, Zech. xi. 3.

—— on this side of, meaning the eastern side, Deut. i. 1.

JOSEPH, his history a proof of the interposition of Providence, Gen. xxxvii. in what sense the son of Jacob's old age, ver. 3. in what sense the Lord was with him, Gen. xxxix. 2. his promotion an instance of the care of Providence, ver. 4. his motives for fidelity to his master, ver. 9. why entrusted with the charge of the prison, Gen. xl. 4. his piety in ascribing his skill in divination to God, Gen. xli. 16. his prediction recorded by heathen writers, ver. 29. reflections on his advancement, ver. 44. why he received a new name from Pharaoh, ver. 45. reflections on his conduct after his advancement, ver. 45. on his history as exemplifying the providence of God, ver. 57. why he accused his brethren of being spies, Gen. xlii. 9. his natural feelings on seeing his brethren's distress, ver. 24. why he ordered his cup to be put in Benjamin's sack, Gen. xliv. 2. his filial piety illustrated by the discovery of himself, Gen. xlv. 1. his affectionate treatment of his brethren, ver. 15. why he cautioned his brethren on sending them away, ver. 24. instance of his great modesty and love of truth, Gen. xlvi. 34. remarks on his removing the Egyptians into cities, Gen. xlvii. 21. the wisdom of his regulations on that subject, ibid. reasons of his indulgence to the priests, ver. 22. his last visit to his dying parent, Gen. xlviii. 1. receives from Jacob the right of primogeniture, ver. 5. his two sons adopted by Jacob, ibid. and made heads of tribes, ver. 6. for what reason, ver. 7. fulfilment of Jacob's blessing on them witnessed by him, Gen. l. 23. why compared by Jacob to a fruitful bough, Gen. xlix. 22. particulars in his blessing explained, ver. 23—25. more blessed than his progenitors, ver. 26. superiour to his brethren, ibid. why he did not speak to Pharaoh about his father's funeral, Gen. l. 4. ascribes his prosperity to God, ver. 20. why he did not desire his body to be carried into Canaan immediately, ver. 25. buried near Shechem, ibid. his character one of the most faultless patterns for our imitation, ver. 26.

Joseph, fertility of country allotted to his tribe foretold by Moses, Deut. xxxiii. 13. Moses' blessing of him copied after Jacob's, ibid. victories of his descendants, ver. 17. See Ephraim, Manasseh.

—— the statements of the number of his kindred who came to Egypt reconciled, Acts vii. 14. burial of his bones, why mentioned at the end of the book of Joshua, Josh. xxiv. 32. his case alluded to, Eccles. iv. 14.

—— a type of Christ, Gen. xxxvii.

—— name used for Israelites, Ps. lxxxi. 5. for kingdom of Israel, Amos vi. 6.

—— the children of, why so called, Josh. xvi. 1. complain of the smallness of their allotment, Josh. xvii. 14. their request complied with, ver. 18.

—— house of, explained, 1 Kings xi. 28.

Joseph's brethren, instruction to be drawn from their story, Gen. xxxvii. progress of their guilt, ver. 18. how conviction of their sin was wrought in them, Gen. xlii. 21.

Joseph, why called the husband of Mary, Matt. i. 16. his conduct to her a pattern of charity, ver. 19.

—— of Arimathea, why particularly mentioned as a rich man, Matt. xxvii. 57. why he begged the body of Jesus, ver. 58.

—— called Barsabas, why probably the same as Joses, Acts i. 23.

Josephus, two remarkable omissions by him, Exod. xxxii. 10. a remarkable fact omitted by him, Numb. xx. 13. his Jewish war the best commentary on the prophecy of Moses, Deut. xxviii. 50. information derived from him in accomplishment of prophecy, Ezek. xxv. 2. his testimony to the wickedness of the Jews in his time, Rom. ii. 1, 22.

Joshua, his name and history, Numb. iii. 16; Josh. i. 1. when first noticed, Exod. xvii. 9. why instructed in God's curse on Amalek, ver. 14. called also in the New Testament, Jesus, Numb. xiii. 16. why so called, ibid. and on what occasion, ibid. name given by God's providence, ibid. mention of him by Moses natural and useful, Deut. i. 38. commanded boldly to persevere in obedience to the Divine commands, Josh. i. 6. picked out the ablest warriours to pass over Jordan, ver. 14. his confidence in the Divine protection, how shewn, Josh. v. 3. by what he removed 'the reproach of Egypt,' ver. 9. his destruction of the Canaanites, of what an emblem, Josh. vi. 26. his humiliation for the defeat before Ai, Josh. vii. 6. his wish that the people had not passed the Jordan, ver. 7. his fear for the honour of God, ver. 9. a true captain and faithful judge, ver. 25. goes apart to pray for God's blessing, Josh. viii. 13. stretches out his spear with a flag as a signal, ver. 18. his altar on mount Ebal, ver. 30. in what sense a copy of the law written upon it, ver. 32. his prayer to God, Josh. x. 12. his command to the sun and moon to stand still, explained, ibid. the completeness of his victory over the Amorites, ver. 21. why he caused the kings to be trampled on, ver. 24. his success a proof of the truth of God's promises, ver. 43. the duration of his wars with the Canaanites, Josh. xi. 18. his age at the time of dividing the land of Canaan, Josh. xiii. 1. why he repeats the division of the land east of Jordan, ver. 9. the time that elapsed between the division of the land, and his death, Josh. xiv. 10. a peculiar privilege granted to him by the Lord, Josh. xix. 50. his last exhortation to the Israelites, Josh. xxiii. 2. a worthy pattern herein for all parents, ibid. a noble instance of happy composure of mind on the approach of death, ibid. his strong solicitude for true religion, Josh. xxiv. 14. in what way he leaves to the people the choice of religion, ver. 15. his noble resolution of serving the Lord with his whole house, ibid. the useful instruction to be derived from it, ibid. why his last words peculiarly deserving of attention, ibid. he intimates to the people that they must serve the true God alone, ver. 19. renews the covenant with the Israelites, ver. 25. the pious conclusion of his useful life, ver. 29. his character, ibid. did not appoint a successor, Judg. i. 1. reasons for this conjectured, ibid.

Joshua an exact type of Christ, Numb. xiii. 16; Josh. i. 1.

—— book of, its contents, Introd. to Josh. proved to be written by Joshua, or some one alive at the passage of Jordan, Josh. v. 1. incidental proof of its having been written not long after the events, Josh. xvi. 10. the five last verses not written by Joshua, Josh. xxiv. 29. by whom probably written, ibid.

—— the high priest, a type of Christ, Zech. vi. 12.

Josiah, a prophecy of him by name 340 years before the event, 1 Kings xiii. 2. could proceed from God alone, ibid. his alarm at hearing the threatenings contained in the law, 2 Kings xxii. 11. conjectures concerning the motives of his behaviour, ibid. the effect the reading the law had upon him an example to us, ibid. in what sense to be 'gathered to the grave in peace,' ver. 20. God's mercy to him in not suffering him to behold the desolation of Judah, ibid. reflections on his causing the law to be read, and his renewing the covenant with God, 2 Kings xxiii. 3. his conduct to the priests explained, ver. 8, 9. why he took the bones out of the sepulchres at Beth-el, ver. 16. how he fulfilled the prophecy concerning him, ibid. extends his reformation to the kingdom of Israel, as well as Judah, ver. 19. how the right to that kingdom had devolved upon him, ibid. his piety in holding a great passover, ver. 22. for what his celebration of it was distinguished, ibid. 2 Chron. xxxv. 18. his high character above other kings for effecting a reformation in his kingdom, ver. 25. probably directed Habakkuk's hymn to be set to musick, Hab. iii. 19. his attempt to restore true worship foretold to fail, Hos. v. 6. the reformation of the people under him insincere, 2 Kings xxiii. 26. his engaging in war against Pharaoh-necho considered, ver. 29. his death, and reflections upon it, ibid.

Jot or tittle, the allusion explained, Matt. v. 18.

Jotham, son of Jerubbaal, his pointed reproof of Abimelech's upstart ambition, Judg. ix. 15. his curse upon him, and those who assisted him, ver. 20.

—— son of Uzziah, solution of a difficulty respecting the duration of his reign, 2 Kings xv. 30. what meant by his not entering into the temple of the Lord, 2 Chron. xxvii. 2. in what sense the people did corruptly in his time, ibid. his excellent and unblemished character, ver. 6. the only king of Judah that has not some evil laid to his charge, ibid.

Journey, a day's, its length, Jonah iii. 3.

Journeyings of the Israelites, only the first and last years recorded, Numb. xx. 1. why they occupied so much time, Deut. i. 2. attended by marks of Divine power and wisdom, ver. 3.

Journeys, solemn, commenced with musick in the East, Gen. xxxi. 27.

—— of the Israelites, why recapitulated by Moses, and set in one view, Numb. xxxiii. 1. best comment on them is the map of the journeyings, and the table of stations, ibid.

Joy, publick manifestation of it for benefits received enforced by David's example, Ps. xcviii. 7.

—— increased, explained, Is. ix. 3.

—— particulars of that set before Jesus on the cross, Heb. xii. 2.

—— a name of, explained, Jer. xxxiii. 9.

—— upon their heads, to what garland it alludes, Is. xxxv. 10.

—— of heaven above earthly, Ps. cxix. 14.

Jubilee, what the word signifies, Lev. xxv. 10. why proclaimed on the day of atonement, ibid. extent of its effects, ibid. design of the law respecting it, ibid. its typical use, ibid.

Jubilee, year of, typical design of, explained, Is. lxi. 1.
JUDAH, reflection on his sense of the moral turpitude of his conduct, Gen. xxxviii. 23. why he escaped his father's curse, ver. 26. part of his speech to Joseph explained, Gen. xliv. 16. affecting character of it, ver. 34. why sent before him into Egypt by Jacob, Gen. xlvi. 28.
—— tribe of, gave name to the whole nation, Gen. xlix. 8. famous also for other things, ibid. meaning of the name, ibid. valour of the tribe, ver. 9. how set forth in Jacob's prophecy, ibid. how fulfilled, ibid. meaning of the blessing, The sceptre shall not depart from him, &c. ver. 10. when and how fulfilled, ibid. promise to him of a fertile land, ver. 11. its strength, Numb. i. 27. why stationed in the van of the army, Numb. ii. 9. blessing of it by Moses explained, Deut. xxxiii. 7. to be referred to Jacob's prophecy, ibid. at what period took effect, ibid. their allotment of the promised land, why afterwards contracted, Josh. xv. 12; xix. 9. closely united with that of Simeon, Judg. i. 3. why mentioned separate from the rest, 1 Sam. xi. 8. why called David's lawgiver, Ps. lx. 7. why his genealogy first set down, 1 Chron. v. 2.
—— addressed as a person, Jer. xiii. 20.
—— kingdom of, remarkable proof of its poverty in Rehoboam's time, 1 Kings xiv. 27. called Israel, Is. xiv. 1. why placed by the Prophets among heathen nations, Jer. ix. 26. why treated with longer forbearance than Israel, Hos. i. 7.
—— land of, defrauded of its sabbatical years by the avarice of the Jews, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21. left in desolation by Nebuchadnezzar, ibid.
—— the Prophet of, why forbidden to eat or drink in Beth-el, or return by the same way, 1 Kings xiii. 9. his crime in disobeying God's command, ver. 24. several aggravations of his offence, ibid. inference with respect to habitual sinners, ibid. the lion that slew him acted by supernatural direction, ver. 28. reflections on God shewing a miracle for him when he was dead, ibid. and on his having probably sincerely repented for his transgression, ibid.
—— a town so called on the river Jordan, Josh. xix. 34.
Judaizing teachers, how it appears that St. Paul's arguments were levelled at them, 2 Cor. iii. 3. why their doctrine styled 'another Gospel, which is not another,' Gal. i. 6, 7. why called enemies of the cross of Christ, Phil. iii. 18. their immoral practices, ver. 19.
JUDAS and his brethren, why the brethren particularly mentioned, Matt. i. 2.
JUDAS ISCARIOT, the wise purpose of Jesus in admitting him among the Apostles, Matt. x. 4. his guilt in betraying Jesus, Matt. xxvi. 24. his repentance, Matt. xxvii. 3. his dreadful end, ver. 5. Christ's prophecy of his perfidy, John xiii. 10. and His foreknowledge of it, ver. 18; Luke xxii. 48. meaning of Satan's entering into him, John xiii. 27. his apostasy foretold by the Holy Spirit, Acts i. 16. the fruit of his wretched covetousness, ver. 18. his wretched end, ibid. no discrepancy in the accounts of it, ibid. the meaning of his going 'to his own place,' Acts i. 25.
JUDAS of Galilee, his insurrection, Acts v. 37.
JUDE, by what other names called, Introd. to Jude—few particulars recorded of him, ibid.
—— Epistle of, to whom addressed, Introd. when written, ibid. contents of it, ibid.
JUDEA, called 'the province,' Neh. i. 3. storms come to it from the south, Is. xxi. 1. condition of, in times subsequent to the destruction of Jerusalem, Deut. xxviii. 63.
—— great strait of, what meant by, Judith iii. 9.
Judge 'judged Israel,' meaning of the phrase, Judg. iv. 4. what the word denotes, Amos ii. 3.
—— the unjust judge, moral of the parable, Luke xviii. 5.
Judges, the situation of the Jews under their government well adapted to the Divine purposes respecting them, Judg. i. 36. temporal rewards and punishments the consequences of their conduct, ibid. their general description as governours raised up by God, Judg. ii. 16. they often fell into errours and crimes, ibid. not on that account unfit instruments for promoting God's purposes, ibid. the general condition of the Israelites under them, Judg. xxi. 25. long intervals during this period of public tranquillity and general obedience to God's laws, Judg. xxi. 25. the usual computation of them less than that stated by St. Paul, Acts xiii. 20. the Apostle adopts the received computation of his time, ibid.
Judges, the book of, by whom written, Introd. to Judg. the time when it was written, ibid. its general contents, ibid. the second part of it begins at chap. xvii, Judg. xvii. 1. affords a striking description of a fluctuating and unsettled people, Judg. xxi. 25.
—— signifies any princes or rulers, Dan. ix. 12.
'—— of evil thoughts,' an Hebraism, explained, Jam. ii. 4.
Judgment, spirit of, explained, Is. iv. 4.
—— to the Gentiles, means the Gospel, Is. xlii. 1. for moderation, explained, Jer. x. 24. threatened to Jews for disobedience, fulfilled, Lam. i. 5. strictness and severity of private, forbidden, Matt. vii. 1, 2. the great unreasonableness and impropriety of it, ver. 4. of others, caution against, how to be understood, 1 Cor. iv. 5. question concerning that intended, Gal. v. 10.
—— general, Job had respect to, Job xxxi. 2—4, 40. predicted, Is. ii. 10. God's judgments on particular nations, earnests of, Ezek. xxxii. 7. described, Dan. vii. 9. description taken from Jewish courts, ver. 10. how it will be performed by Christ, Acts i. 11.
—— day of, typified in the destruction of Sodom, Gen. xix. 28. signs which shall precede it, Joel iii. 15, 16. solemn warning to Christians respecting it, Matt. xxiv. 42. Christ's description of it set forth with simplicity and pathos, Matt. xxv. 31, 46. its awful solemnity, ibid. the efficacy of its contemplation in making men good, ver. 32. sentence of wrath against the wicked, ver. 41. See CHRIST, His second coming.
—— of God, the highest tribunal to be appealed to, 2 Cor. i. 12.
—— of the world by the saints, uncertainty concerning the meaning of it, 1 Cor. vi. 2, 3.
—— to rise in, import of the phrase, Matt. xii. 41.
'—— now of a long time lingereth not' explained, 2 Pet. ii. 3.
Judgments, political laws, Exod. xxi. 1. wrought by second causes proceed from God, Exod. xvi. 3. uncharitable, not to be formed respecting worldly evil being sent to punish sin, Luke xiii. 1—3. how distinguished from the ways of God, Rom. xi. 33. terrible, threatened upon those who wilfully embrace the worship of the idolatrous church, Rev. xiv. 9, 11.
—— of God intended to lead to repentance, Gen. iv. 6. why sometimes inflicted, and sometimes withheld, Gen. xxxviii. 7. why not presently removed, Numb. xii. 15. merciful intention of them, Deut. viii. 16. not to be turned away when wickedness has come to its height, 2 Kings xxii. 20. their certainty shewn in the destruction of Ahab's family, 2 Kings ix. 25, 26, 35. terrible yet forbearing, 2 Kings x. 1. the just infliction of them on Ahab's family, ver. 7. they destroyed three whole families of idolatrous kings of Israel, ver. 14. when represented to Prophets, how they affected them, Jer. xv. 17. particular, come suddenly, Dan. iv. 4. the suddenness of them, and blessedness of watching for them, Rev. xvi. 15.
Judicature, courts of, what time of the day they sat, Jer. xxi. 12.
JUDITH, book of, author and period of, unknown, Jews reckoned it apocryphal, not cited by our Lord or His Apostles, reflections on, Introd. to Judith.
Juniper, what plant intended, Job xxx. 4. manner in which it burns, Ps. cxx. 4.
JUPITER, the tutelary god of Lystra, why said to be before the city, Acts xiv. 13.
Jurisdiction, not exercised by the Apostles over heathens, 1 Cor. v. 12.
Just, meaning of the term, Matt. i. 19.
—— shall live by faith, what St. Paul means by it, Rom. i. 17.
—— man, his liability to draw back unto perdition, Heb. x. 38.
Justice of man's actions imperfect, Job ix. 3, 20; x. 7.
—— not to be exercised with too much rigour, Eccles. vii. 16. administered when, Zeph. iii. 5. perversion of it in the heathen world, Matt. xxvii. 26.

Justification, not from legal offerings, or merit in works, Ps. l. 9. ascribed to belief in Christ, Is. liii. 11. one of the benefits of Christ's death, Rom. viii. 4. what it is, ibid. a benefit of baptism, 1 Cor. vi. 11.
—— method of, revealed in the Gospel, established from the beginning of the world, Rom. iii. 21. proved from the Law and the Prophets, ibid.
—— requisites of, not difficult to be attained, Rom. x. 8.
—— by the works of the law, how St. Paul argues with the Galatians against it, Gal. iv. 21, 31. caution against perverting his arguments, ibid.
—— explanation of St. Paul's and St. James's doctrine concerning it, Jam. ii. 24. pernicious opinion which some had fallen into, ibid. how guarded against by the Apostles, ibid. general doctrine of the New Testament, ibid. what St. Paul meant by it in his argument concerning faith and works, Rom. iii. 20.
—— meritorious, not procured by works, Rom. iv. 2. nor by faith, ibid.
—— by faith without works, misconception of the doctrine guarded against by St. Paul, Rom. ii. 13. St. Paul's doctrine of, abused in his own time, Rom. iii. 31. antidote furnished both by himself and St. James, ibid. two causes assigned for it by St. Paul, Rom. iv. 16. arguments from Scripture, by which St. Paul proves it to the Galatians, Gal. iii. 6, 8, 10, 11, 13. what it implies, Gal. iv. 31. how it may be perverted in opposition to the whole Gospel, ibid.
—— by works, why insisted on by St. James, Jam. ii. 26. in what sense denied by St. Paul, Jam. ii. 26. in what sense not denied by him and maintained by St. James, ibid. how the sense of the words may be determined, ibid. statement of the Gospel doctrine, ibid.
Justified herself, explained, Jer. iii. 11.
—— in the sense of 'pardoned and approved by God,' Luke xviii. 14.
—— what meant by it, Rom. ii. 13. what God's justifying us imports, Rom. iii. 20. signification of the original verb, ibid. what Hebrew word it answers to, ibid. how applied in the New Testament, ibid. meaning of the term in St. Paul's argument, ibid.
'—— in the Spirit,' explanation of Christ's being so, 1 Tim. iii. 16. par. 5.
'—— freely' explained, Rom. iii. 24.
'—— by grace,' caution against misinterpreting it, Tit. iii. 7. care taken by St. Paul to prevent it from being abused, ver. 8.
'Justifieth the ungodly,' phrase defended, Rom. iv. 5. when God does so, ibid.
Justify, 'justified God' explained, Luke vii. 29.
—— himself, explained, Luke x. 29.
Justly to do, what it is, Mic. vi. 8.

K.

Kadesh, city of, where situated, Gen. xx. 1.
—— the wilderness of, where situate, Numb. xx. 1; Ps. xxix. 8. why called Barnea, ibid.
Kedar, son of Ishmael, his descendants a clan of Arabs, Is. xlii. 11. their mode of living, ibid. in what their substance consisted, Is. lx. 7. their character, Ps. cxx. 5.
Kedemoth, wilderness of, why so called, Deut. ii. 26.
'Keep the heart with all diligence,' why the necessity of doing so indispensable, Jam. i. 15.
Keeper of mine head, explained, 1 Sam. xxviii. 2.
Keepers of a field, explained, Jer. iv. 17.
—— of the door of the temple, who the three were, Jer. lii. 24.
—— at home, what meant by it, Tit. ii. 5. what English word answers to the original Greek, ibid.
Keeping of Christ's commandments, the only criterion of our condition, 1 John ii. 3. caution against other grounds of judgment, ibid.
—— of God's commandments, sure criterion of our spiritual condition, 1 John iii. 8. and an infallible rule of His Spirit dwelling in us, ver. 23.
Keilah, in the tribe of Judah, 1 Sam. xxiii. 1. David's saving this city from the Philistines a noble proof of his generosity, 1 Sam. xxiii. 5.
Kenites, tribe of the Midianites, Numb. xxiv. 21. their situation compared to that of the eagle, ibid. prophecy of Balaam concerning them, how fulfilled, ver. 22. described, Judg. iv. 11.
'Kept by the power of God,' in what case men will be so, 1 Pet. i. 5.
Keturah, in what relation she stood to Abraham, Gen. xxv. 6.
Key, an emblem of trust, Is. xxii. 22.
Keys, meaning the power of opening and shutting, Rev. i. 18. 'to bear the keys,' to bear power and authority, Rev. iii. 7.
Kick, 'wherefore kick ye at My sacrifices,' signifying great contempt for God's authority, 1 Sam. ii. 29. the allusion of the expression, ibid.
—— against the pricks, a proverbial expression, Acts ix. 5.
Kid, why not to be boiled in his mother's milk, Exod. xxiii. 19. remains of the custom in Arabia, Deut. xiv. 21. its flesh esteemed delicious food in Judea, Judg. xv. 1.
Kidneys of wheat, what it signifies, Deut. xxxii. 14. and why, ibid. expression still used in India, ibid.
Kill, 'thou shalt surely kill him' explained, Deut. xiii. 9.
Killing of a person voluntarily, its punishment in Egypt, Exod. ii. 15.
—— in some cases not unlawful, Exod. xx. 13.
—— unadvisedly, how expressed, Exod. xxi. 13. reason of the expression, ibid.
—— a servant unintentionally, why not punished, Exod. xxi. 21.
Kind, 'after his kind' explained, Lev. xi. 22.
Kindly affectioned, what it denotes, Rom. xii. 10.
Kindness to the distressed, on what ground enjoined upon the Israelites, Deut. x. 17. from what principle it flows, ibid.
—— of God, explained, 2 Sam. ix. 3. 'kindness covenanted between us before the Lord' explained, 1 Sam. xx. 14.
King, extensive signification of the word, Jer. xvii. 20.
—— God's anointed, Ps. lxxxiv. 9.
—— the supreme Judge, Jer. xxi. 12.
—— to swear by the life of, customary in the East, Judith xi. 7.
—— put for kingdom, Is. xxiii. 15; Dan. viii. 23.
—— for a succession of kings, Jer. xxv. 11.
—— of Israel, what prophesied of by Moses, Deut. xxviii. 36. in whom fulfilled, ibid.
—— reflections on the request of the Israelites to have one, 1 Sam. viii. 5, 7. the treatment they were to expect from their kings, ver. 11. the king which God consented to give, why chosen by God Himself, ver. 22.
—— of Israel, meaning the expected Messiah, John i. 49.
—— over Israel, how to be appointed, Deut. xvii. 14. in what case the law to be applied, ibid.
—— of the Jews, the title offensive to the Jews, John xix. 21. Pilate's possible intention in affixing the title, ibid.
—— of kings, Nebuchadnezzar why so called, Dan. ii. 37.
—— and Lord of lords, who assumed the title, 1 Tim. vi. 15. to whom the Apostle says it belongs, ibid.
—— of nations, phrase explained, Gen. xiv. 1.
—— the assumption of the title forbidden, without the permission of the Roman emperour, Acts xvii. 7.
Kings, persons of, how shewn to be sacred and inviolable, 1 Sam. xxiv. 5. instructed that they ought to be the shepherds of their people, 2 Sam. v. 2. good ones called in Scripture the light of the people, 2 Sam. xxi. 17. God's vicegerents, Jer. xxii. 3. submission to them enforced, Jer. xxix. 7. See Governours.
—— and persons in authority, why prayers to be made for them, 1 Tim. ii. 2. practice of the Jews at different periods, ibid. and of Christians in the earliest ages, ibid. character of the princes so prayed for, ibid. inference with respect to Christian kings, ibid. See Civil Authority.
—— description of those in Abram's time, Gen. xiv. 1. what persons so called in Scripture, Deut. xxxiii. 5. remark explanatory of the condition of Moses, ibid. and used for reconciling a passage in Genesis, ibid.
—— in Edom, what Moses meant by speaking of them, Gen. xxxvi. 31.
—— of Midian, their rank, Numb. xxxi. 8.

Kings, six last of Israel, their fall predicted, Hos. vii. 7.
—— in prophetick style meaning kingdoms, or forms of government, Rev. xvii. 10, 11. the seven 'kings,' or forms of Roman government explained, ibid.
—— the two books of, their author, general contents, and Divine authority, Introd. to the 1st and 2nd books of Kings.
—— books of, slight discrepances between them and the books of Chronicles explained, 1 Kings ix. 23, 28.
—— mother, a title of dignity in itself, 1 Kings ii. 19.
Kingdom, a nobleman's going to receive one, the parable illustrated and explained, Luke xix. 12.
—— of God, its sense in the Lord's Prayer, Matt. vi. 10.
—— of God and His righteousness, what it comprehends, Matt. vi. 33.
—— 'of My Father,' what it means, Matt. xxvi. 29.
—— of heaven, or of God, different senses of the expression explained, Matt. v. 3. used for the Christian dispensation, or state of the Gospel, Matt. iii. 2; xxii. 2; xxv. 1.
—— of priests, why the Israelites so called, Exod. xix. 6.
Kingdoms, in Scripture signify not only those mentioned, but others like them, Is. xi. 14.
—— of the world, how shewn to our Lord in His temptation, Matt. iv. 8.
—— the ten, into which the Roman empire divided, Dan. vii. 7.
Kingly form of government, its establishment in Judea a distinguished era, 1 Sam. viii. 20. had been prophetically declared by Moses, ibid. its late introduction greatly confirms the Divine authority of the Mosaick law, ibid.
Kinsmen, whom St. Paul styles so, Rom. xvi. 7.
Kir, its situation and condition, 2 Kings xvi. 9; Is. xxii. 6; Amos i. 5.
Kir-heres, where situated, Jer. xlviii. 31.
Kiriathaim, where situated, Jer. xlviii. 1.
Kirioth, where situated, Amos ii. 1.
Kirjath-arbah, meaning of the name, Gen. xxiii. 2; Numb. xiii. 22.
Kirjath-jearim, its situation, 1 Sam. vii. 2. how long the ark continued there, ibid.
Kishon, rise and course of this river, Judg. iv. 7.
Kiss of charity, why so called, Rom. xvi. 16. when and where used, ibid. why laid aside very early, ibid.
Kissing, a mark of high respect in the East, Gen. xli. 40. of reverence and subjection, 1 Sam. x. 1. an act of homage and worship, Ps. ii. 12; Hos. xiii. 2.
—— an usual mode of salutation among the Jews, Matt. xxvi. 48; Luke vii. 45.
Kneadingtroughs, what vessels intended by the expression, Exod. xii. 34. why carried by the Israelites, ibid.
Kneeling, proper posture of prayer, Ps. xcv. 6. a proof of our Lord's great earnestness in prayer, Luke xxii. 41.
Knife, 'put a knife to thy throat,' a bold Eastern phrase, explained, Prov. xxiii. 2.
Knives, for circumcision, made of flints in the East, Josh. v. 2. knives of the same description formerly used in Britain, ibid.
Knots, dissolving of, phrase how used in Persia, Dan. v. 12.
Know, meaning of God knowing Abraham, Gen. xxii. 12.
—— by name, a mark of familiarity, Exod. xxxiii. 12. reason of its being so, ibid.
—— God's knowing any one, explained, Jer. i. 5. significations of the word, Deut. ii. 7; Job xxxix. 1; Hos. ii. 8; Ps. ci. 4.
—— 'knew not the Lord' explained, Judg. ii. 10.
—— 'I had not known sin, &c.' 'I had not known lust, &c.' explained, Rom. vii. 7.
—— 'not to know any thing save Jesus Christ,' explained, 1 Cor. ii. 2.
—— 'to know Jesus Christ and Him crucified,' numerous particulars contained in it, 1 Cor. ii. 2. mistake concerning the best method of attaining it, ibid.
—— 'them which labour among you, &c.' explained, 1 Thess. v. 12.
Knowing good and evil, explained, Gen. iii. 5.
Knowledge, what it often signifies in Scripture, and why, Deut. xxxiii. 9.
—— in our present state, difference between it and that in a future state, 1 Cor. xiii. 11. illustrated by the state of childhood, ibid.
Knowledge, what the proper objects of in religious matters, Deut. xxix. 29. what the contrary, ibid.
—— of Christ, quality of that which St. Paul desired, Phil. iii. 10.
—— Christian, what the end of it, Col. i. 10.
—— Divine, perfection of, how signified, Jer. xvii. 10.
—— of God, what it comprehends, and how testified, Hos. ii. 20; vi. 6.
—— practical, of our duty, is the truest and most excellent, Deut. xxix. 29. so represented by Moses, ibid. and by our Saviour, ibid. may be obtained by all who seek it, ibid. the end of God's commandment, Hos. iv. 6.
—— religious, acquisition of, why especially necessary to the first converts, 2 Pet. i. 5. why still necessary to Christians, ibid. a security against erroneous opinions and improper conduct, ibid.
—— saving, on what founded, Prov. i. 7.
—— of sin is by the promulgation of the law which forbids it, remark on, Rom. vii. 7.
—— sinning against, a great aggravation of sin, Jam. iv. 17.
—— man of, why said to 'increase strength,' Prov. xxiv. 5.
—— words of, explained, Prov. xix. 27.
—— 'know the love of Christ which passes knowledge' explained, Eph. iii. 19.
Koa, its situation, Ezek. xxiii. 23.
Korah, how related to Moses and Aaron, Numb. xvi. 1. occasion of his discontent, ibid. probable date of it, ibid. falsehood of his charge against Moses, ver. 3. character of his offence, ver. 12. his punishment a striking instance of the Divine power, ver. 31. remarks on the difference between his destruction and that of Dathan and Abiram, ver. 32. why the censers of his company taken out of the fire, ver. 37. why his children not involved in his destruction, ver. 32. his gainsaying explained, Jude ver. 11.
—— sons of, probably an eminent order of singers, Ps. xlii. introd.

L.

Laban, his imposition on Jacob unjustifiable, Gen. xxix. 25, 26. See Bethuel.
Labour, the lot of all Adam's children, Gen. iii. 19. must be accompanied with prayer, Ps. cxxvii. 5. precept of, why joined with the prohibition of stealth, Eph. iv. 28.
Labourers in the vineyard, inference from this parable, Matt. xx. 3. right instruction to be derived from it, ver. 16.
Lacedemonians, how brethren of the Jews, 1 Mac. xii. 7, 21.
Lachish, where situated, Mic. i. 13.
Lacking nothing, riches of him who does so, 1 Thess. iv. 12. what necessary for the purpose, ibid.
Ladder, interpretation of Jacob's ladder, Gen. xxviii. 12.
Lagidæ, by what designated, Dan. ii. 32.
'Laid up in store, and sealed up, &c.' explained, Deut. xxxii. 34.
Lamb, Hebrew word signifies a kid also, Exod. xii. 3. our Saviour represented under this symbol, Rev. v. 6. his seven horns and seven eyes explained, ibid.
—— of God, Christ pointed out by this name as the expiatory sacrifice for the sins of the world, John i. 29. what is implied under the title, ver. 29, 36.
Lambs, their fat in sacrifice consumed on the altar, Ps. xxxvii. 20. a great delicacy in the East, Amos vi. 4. remark on their being sent to David and his heir, Is. xvi. 1. an usual present in the East, ibid.
Lamech, difficulty of understanding his speech, Gen. iv. 23.
Lamentation, a mournful ditty, how applied, Ezek. xxvii. 2.
Lamentations at funerals alluded to, Amos v. 1.
—— of Jeremiah, five chapters of, contain five elegies, when composed, the most perfect elegiack composition, each elegy contains twenty-two periods according to number of letters in Hebrew, Introd. to Lament.
Lamp, 'give him a lamp,' figuratively used, 1 Kings xv. 4.
Lamps, burnt in the tabernacle continually, 1 Sam. iii. 3. applied in explanation of a passage, ibid. a familiar mode of expression with the Jews, what denoting, John v. 35.

Land, of Judea, God proprietor of it, Lev. xxv. 23. prohibition founded thereon, ibid. prophetical division of it, what it denotes, Ezek. xlviii. 29.
—— the Lord's, Judea why so called, Hos. ix. 3.
—— salt, what it signifies, Jer. xvii. 6.
—— thirsty, propriety of comparison, Ps. cxliii. 6.
—— of promise, how styled in general, Deut. viii. 7. remarks on its fertility, ibid. why enlarged upon by Moses in Deuteronomy, ibid. not promised to persons but to the people, Numb. xiv. 30. See CANAAN, land of.
—— put for those who inhabit it, Ezek. xxxviii. 8.
Landmarks, removing of, heinousness of the offence, Deut. xix. 14. necessity of prohibiting it in all countries, ibid. great want of them in open countries, Job xxiv. 2.
Language, how an argument in favour of Moses's history, Gen. x. 5.
—— original, uncertain, Gen. xi. 1.
—— how confounded at Babel, Gen. xi. 7.
—— unity of, productive of agreement, Gen. xi. 8.
—— difference of pronunciation in those who speak the same, Judg. xii. 6.
—— allowance to be made for, addressed to Eastern people, Ezek. xxiii. 2.
—— to speak that of Canaan, what it signifies, Is. xix. 18.
—— what prescribed by St. Paul for the offices of religion, 1 Cor. xiv. 13. inference with respect to the church of Rome, ibid.
LAODICEA, its situation and quality, Col. ii. 1; Rev. iii. 14. the Epistle from, what probably meant by it, Col. iv. 16.
LAODICEANS, church of, its present state, Rev. iii. 14. its indifference and unconcern about religion, ver. 15. its presumed wealth, but real poverty, ver. 17. how exhorted to buy real wealth, ver. 18.
Lap, shaking the lap, what expressed by it, Neh. v. 13.
LAPIDOTH, conjecture concerning the name, Judg. iv. 4.
Lasciviousness, what meant by turning the grace of God into, Jude ver. 4.
Last days, what the words denote, Gen. xlix. 1; Acts ii. 17; 2 Tim. iii. 1; Heb. i. 2.
—— time, what meant by it, 1 John ii. 18.
Latter days, explained, Numb. xxiv. 14.
—— times, explained, 1 Tim. iv. 1.
Lattice in the upper chamber, what meant by it, 2 Kings i. 2.
Law used for the Pentateuch, Deut. xxxi. 9. instances of its application to each of the five books, ibid. used to denote all the Jewish Scriptures, Rom. iii. 19; Gal. iv. 22; John x. 34; xii. 34. used in opposition to the Gospel, Rom. iii. 20. remarks on the meaning of the term, ibid.
—— book of, probably one continued book, Deut. xxxi. 26. when divided into five books, ibid. how polluted, 1 Mac. iii. 48.
—— of Moses, peculiar circumstances under which it was delivered, Deut. iv. 5. why delivered to the Israelites with a terrifick appearance, Exod. xix. 16. its delivery emblematical of the last judgment, ver. 22. reflections thereon, ibid. renewal of, proof of God's reconciliation, Exod. xxxiv. 1. solemn promulgation of it at the first settling of the Jews in Canaan, Josh. viii. 35. impossibility of any change in it, ibid. remarks on a correct copy of it found by Hilkiah, 2 Kings xxii. 8. copies of it then extremely scarce, ibid. the ignorance of it then prevailing how to be accounted for, ibid. how treated by idolatrous Jews, Ezek. xiv. 3.
—— various arguments of its Divine origin, Exod. xx. 17; Lev. xviii. 29; xxv. 4; Deut. xvi. 16; xvii. 16; xxviii. 2. consistent with the promise to Abraham, Gal. iii. 21. why called 'fiery law,' Deut. xxxiii. 2. why said to come from God's right hand, ibid. unrivalled in point of humanity, Exod. xxi. 1. guards against every species of oppression, ibid. a criterion of the excellence of the Jewish religion, ibid. how established by St. Paul's doctrine, Rom. iii. 31. wherein it differs from the Gospel, ibid. how it became a means of multiplying sin, Rom. v. 20. what it is styled in consequence, ibid. for what purposes given, Gal. iii. 19. not intended as necessary to salvation, ibid. how long it was to continue, ibid. by whose ministration delivered, Gal. iii. 19. why called 'the covenant of death,' 2 Cor. iii. 7. its inferiority to the Gospel, Lev. ix. 2. why said to be 'weak through the flesh,' Rom. viii. 3. bears testimony to its own invalidity, Gal. ii. 19. in what respect weak and unprofitable, Heb. vii. 18. glory and excellence of, wherein inferiour to that of the Gospel, 2 Cor. iii. 10.
Law of Moses, distributed under three heads, Exod. xxi. introd. moral, of universal obligation, ibid. ceremonial, relating to the priests, &c. ibid. civil, relating to the civil government, ibid. ceremonial and civil laws intermixed, ibid. of limited operation, ibid.
—— moral, its excellence in establishing a proper principle of action, Deut. vi. 5. in what its characteristick excellence consists, ibid. the foundation of every moral virtue, Lev. xx. 9. wisdom of it, Deut. iv. 6. several of its provisions adopted by the wiser heathens, ibid. proof of its excellence, Lev. xix. 32. in shewing respect to old age, ibid. instance of its tenderness to the feelings of the poor, Deut. xxiv. 10. not abolished, Rom. viii. 4.
—— ceremonial, referred to neighbouring idolatries, Exod. xii. 3. its institutions, on what notions alone they can be explained, Lev. xvii. 11. proof of its wisdom, Lev. xx. 25. how shewn to be abolished, Zech. xiv. 21.
—— municipal, proofs of its excellence in point of humanity, Exod. xxi. 1. its unexampled mildness and equity, Lev. xxiv. 19. instance of its good effect on domestick virtue and happiness, Numb. xxxvi. 6. instance of its judicious severity with respect to idolatry, Deut. xiii. 6. remark on its excellence with respect to the sabbatical year, Deut. xv. 7. examples of its humanity and equity with respect to servants, ver. 12. instance of its wisdom with respect to manslayers, Deut. xix. 4. of its equity with respect to false witness, ver. 19. proof of its considerate benevolence in granting indulgence from military service, Deut. xx. 5. instance of its wisdom with respect to the finding of dead bodies, Deut. xxi. 1. softened the horrours of war, ver. 10. its wisdom in the regulation of paternal power, ver. 18.
—— of faith, how the Gospel is so called, Rom. iii. 27. why used to denote the Christian religion, ibid.
—— of liberty, in what respect the Gospel is so, Jam. ii. 12. why the Gospel so called, Jam. i. 25. commendation of those who practise its moral precepts, ibid.
—— of nature, the law of God, Gen. i. 14.
—— of the spirit of life, why the Gospel so called, Rom. viii. 2.
—— in what sense 'all the law is fulfilled' by the love of our neighbour, Gal. v. 14.
—— 'against such there is no law,' meaning of St. Paul explained in detail, Gal. v. 23. subjection of Christians to the law of Christ, a privilege, ibid.
—— 'we know that the law is good, if a man use it lawfully,' why the Apostle made this declaration, 1 Tim. i. 8. purport of it, ibid. of what law he speaks chiefly, ver. 9.
'—— worketh wrath' explained, Rom. iv. 15.
—— and Gospel, in what the difference between them consists, Rom. x. 5.
Laws of God, regard to them superiour to all other considerations, Esther iv. 16.
—— of the Jews, given by the Lawgiver of the whole world, Gen. i. 1.
'Lawful to utter,' what it signifies, 2 Cor. xii. 4.
Lawgivers of the Greeks, especially aimed at by St. Paul, Rom. i. 27. See Legislators.
Lawsuits not forbidden by the Gospel, 1 Cor. vi. 8. nor by the example of St. Paul, ibid. under what circumstances forbidden to the early Christians, ibid. application of the prohibition to ourselves, ibid.
Lawyer, what the title means, Matt. xxii. 35; Luke xi. 45. in what the office consisted, ibid.
LAZARUS, God's design in permitting his sickness, John xi. 4. Christ's sorrow for him, John xi. 35. reflections on the illustrious miracle of raising him, ver. 44.
'Laying down our lives for the brethren,' what generally supposed to be intended by it, 1 John iii. 16. meaning of the passage and its context, ibid.
Lead why used by refiners, Jer. vi. 29.
Leader, how applied to Messiah, Is. lv. 4.
Leannoth, meaning of the term, Ps. lxxxviii. title.

Learned, should observe caution with regard to prophecies yet future, Dan. xii. 9.
Learning, proficiency in, requisite and necessary for a preacher and teacher of the Gospel, 1 Cor. ii. 2; xii. 8—10. St. Paul's seeming disparagement of it explained, 1 Cor. ii. 13. mistakes of ignorance and enthusiasm about it, ibid. when justly to be censured, ibid.
—— Christ, more than one manner of, intimated, Eph. iv. 20.
Leaven, why prohibited to the Israelites, Lev. ii. 11. prohibition adopted among the ancient Romans, ibid. putting away of it not very inconvenient in the East, Exod. xii. 15.
—— what compared to it, 1 Cor. v. 6. what alluded to in the comparison, ver. 7. figuratively used, Gal. v. 9. proverbial, ibid.
—— of the Pharisees, &c. what meant by it, Matt. xvi. 6.
Leaves, green, men compared to, Ecclus. xiv. 18.
—— of a book, what meant by, Jer. xxxvi. 23.
Lebanon, whence its name, Jer. xviii. 14. the greater part of it within Solomon's dominions, 1 Kings v. 6. its cedars, ibid. few now remaining there, ibid. highest mountain in Israel, Jer. xxii. 6. celebrated for its fragrance, Hos. xiv. 6. its wine excellent, ver. 7.
—— why used for masculine dignity, Song of Sol. v. 15.
—— put for Jerusalem, or the royal family, Jer. xxii. 20.
—— Judea signified by, Hab. ii. 17.
—— put probably for the temple, Zech. xi. 1.
—— glory of, the spiritual sense, Is. lx. 13.
Lebbeus, how otherwise called, Matt. x. 3.
'Led of the Spirit' explained, Gal. v. 18.
Leeks, probably the lotus, Numb. xi. 5. much used in Egypt, ibid.
Lees, settled on his, expression explained, Jer. xlviii. 11.
Left handed, what the original word means, Judg. iii. 15; xx. 16.
Legion, what number it properly denotes, Mark v. 9. how used by the Jews, ibid.
Legislators, Greek, modern in comparison of Moses, Deut. xxxiii. 4. See Lawgivers.
Lehi, why so called, Judg. xv. 9. water produced from a hollow place there, ver. 19. the fountain still preserved by tradition, ibid.
Length taken for height, Ezek. xl. 30.
Lent, 'I have lent him,' what it means, 1 Sam. i. 28.
Lentiles, a kind of pulse, Gen. xxv. 34. how used in Barbary, ibid. very poor food, ibid.
Leopard, why said to be watchful, Jer. v. 6. kingdom of Macedonians, why compared to, Dan. vii. 6. distance to which he leaps, Hab. i. 8.
Leper, how distinguished from other persons, Lev. xiii. 45. secluded from general society, ver. 46. such seclusion beneficial to himself, ibid.
Lepers, cleansing of, typical of the purification for sin, Lev. xiv. 2. ceremony explained, ver. 4, 7, 10. moral application of it, ver. 19. regard had therein to the poor, ver. 21. allusion to the law for their being sprinkled seven times, 2 Kings v. 10. why they sat at the gate of the city, 2 Kings vii. 3. separated from society as if dead, Ps. lxxxviii. 5; Luke xvii. 12. reflections on the conduct of the nine ungrateful lepers, Luke xvii. 18.
Leprosy, origin of, doubtful, Lev. xiii. 2. why persons infected by it unclean, ibid. a very calamitous disease, attended with the loss of hair, ver. 29.
—— in garments, difficulty of explaining, Lev. xiii. 47. different opinions concerning, ibid.
—— in houses, supernatural, Lev. xiv. 34. unparalleled, ibid. the plague of London most near to it, ibid. how exterminated, ibid. conjecture concerning it, ibid.
—— law of, general remarks on, Lev. xiv. 57. its moral use, ibid. and wisdom, ibid.
Letted, impeded, Wisd. vii. 22.
Letter, what implied by Sanballat sending 'an open letter' to Nehemiah, Neh. vi. 5. illustrated by modern customs in the East, ibid.
—— of the law, when it gives place, Lev. x. 20.
—— and spirit, in what sense opposed to each other, 2 Cor. iii. 6.
Letters, question concerning those of which St. Paul speaks, 1 Cor. xvi. 3.
Levi, put for Aaron and his successors, Mal. ii. 5. See Simeon.
—— tribe of, Jacob's curse upon it taken off, Gen. xlix. 7. and why, ibid. why consecrated to the service of God, Numb. iii. 6. its blessing by Moses, explained, Deut. xxxiii. 8. not reckoned as one of the twelve in the division of the land, Josh. xiv. 4. what compensation made to them, Josh. xxi. 1. what their office was, ibid.
Leviathan, the crocodile, described, Job xli. 1. for a whale, Ps. civ. 26. what animal, a type of persecutors, Is. xxvii. 1. put for Pharaoh, Ps. lxxiv. 14.
Levite, God's just retribution on his concubine for her sins, Judg. xix. 25. the design of his dividing her bones, ver. 29. illustration of this action, ibid.
Levites, their genealogy given by Moses, Exod. vi. 14. for what reason, ibid. fields of their suburbs, why they might not be alienated, Lev. xxv. 34. why not numbered with the other tribes, Numb. i. 48. their office, ver. 50. particulars of their office enumerated, Numb. iii. 6. not to intrude on the priest's office, ver. 10. taken instead of the firstborn, ver. 12. their officers under the command of the high priest's son, ver. 32; iv. 16. their number less than that of the other tribes, Numb. iii. 39. a difficulty about their number, ibid. why on entering on their service said to enter into the host, Numb. iv. 3. solemnity of offering them to God, Numb. viii. 10. why so offered, ibid. provision of habitations and grounds made for them, Numb. xxxv. 1. what space appropriated to them, ver. 3. why cities allotted to them in different parts of the land, ver. 7. which of them properly sacerdotal, ibid. judges and interpreters of the law, Deut. xxxiii. 10. had a considerable share of this power in the times of the New Testament, ibid. their dues probably not well paid to them in times of confusion, Judg. xvii. 8. period of their service, 1 Sam. i. 11. extended by David, 2 Chron. xxxi. 17. the three principal classes of them appointed by David for the service of the tabernacle, 1 Chron. vi. 31. in what sense God helped them in bearing the ark, 1 Chron. xv. 26. twice numbered and registered in the time of David, 1 Chron. xxiii. 24. had the custody of the standards of the weights and measures, ver. 29. similar custom in Pagan temples and in Christian churches, ibid. had their places by lot, not by seniority of houses, 1 Chron. xxiv. 31. those of the greatest authority were to reside in the country, as a sort of magistrates, 1 Chron. xxvi. 29. others appointed for 'the business of the Lord,' and 'the service of the king,' ver. 30. why a large proportion appointed for eastern Canaan, ver. 32. their prayer at the solemn fast one of the finest in all the Scriptures, Neh. ix. 6. the principal topicks on which they dwell in it, ibid. its useful application to ourselves, ibid. the proper apportionment of the tithes between them and the priests, Neh. x. 38. enumeration of those that returned with Zerubbabel, Neh. xii. 1. their due portion of the tithes not given to them, Neh. xiii. 10. the psalm they sung on opening temple gates, Ps. cxxxv. introd. included in word Priests, Ezek. xl. 45. might hold lands in Judea, Acts iv. 37.
Levitical service, what the spiritual use and signification of it, Heb. ix. 8.
Leviticus, book of, meaning and reason of the name, Introd. to Lev. how its authenticity proved, ibid. three sorts of religious service prescribed in it, ibid. also civil and judicial laws, ibid. when the transactions related in it took place, Numb. i. 1.
Liar, why soon detected, Prov. xii. 19. what meant by, Prov. xix. 22.
Liars, what meant by 'thine enemies shall be found liars unto thee,' Deut. xxxiii. 29. and by 'all men are liars,' Ps. cxvi. 10.
Libation, wine tasted at, Dan. v. 2.
Libertines, who they were, Acts vi. 9.
Liberty, freedom from sin, Ps. cxix. 45.
—— not to be used for an occasion to the flesh, what St. Paul insinuated by the prohibition, Gal. v. 13.
—— of the Gospel, no exemption from the offices of love, Gal. v. 13.
Libnah, the probable cause of its revolt against Joram, 2 Kings viii. 22.

Libya, by whom Jews were planted there, Acts ii. 10.
Lice, plague of, remarks on, Exod. viii. 16. referred by the magicians to the power of God, ibid. why they could not imitate it, ver. 18.
Licentiousness, vices of that kind particularly infectious, Deut. vii. 2. example of their being severely punished, ibid.
—— distinguished from liberty, 2 Pet. ii. 19. its connexion with infidelity and scoffing at religion, 2 Pet. iii. 3.
Lie used for idol, Rom. i. 25. for false doctrine, 1 John ii. 21.
—— what used to signify, Rom. iii. 7. the original word used no where else in the New Testament, ibid.
Lies, for false predictions, Is. xvi. 6. idols so called, Ezek. xxiv. 12. perfidy in being idolatrous, Hos. vii. 3, 13.
Life of man, shortened after the flood, Gen. xi. 10. practically applied, ver. 32.
—— man's, term of, not fixed by God's absolute decree, Job vii. 1.
—— valuable as opportunity for repentance, Eccles. ix. 4. advantages of, to be wisely used, ver. 7. under what metaphors described, 2 Tim. iv. 7. from what they are taken, ibid.
—— a virtuous one, a source of pleasure, Ps. lxvi. 18..
—— what meant by it in the Old Testament, Ezek. xviii. 9
—— eternal, not deserved by the very best men, Rom. vi. 23. the effect of God's bounty, ibid.
—— spiritual and natural, agreement between, Rom. vi. 9.
—— tree of, in paradise, alluded to, Prov. iii. 18.
—— of Christ, different from enthusiastical pretensions, 1 John ii. 6. admirably calculated as a pattern for imitation, ibid. the most perfect rule for His followers, ibid.
—— of righteousness, when it begins, Rom. vi. 9. begins but once, ibid.
—— of thine hand, explained, Is. lvii. 10.
'—— and godliness' explained, 2 Pet. i. 3.
—— and immortality, an Hebraism, what put for, 2 Tim. i. 10. what signified by their being brought to light, ibid. meaning of the passage, ibid.
'—— from the dead' used figuratively, Rom. xi. 15.
—— 'the life was manifested,' spoken personally of Christ, 1 John i. 2.
—— 'your life is hid with Christ in God' explained, Col. iii. 3.
Lifting up of the hand, a mode of swearing, Gen. xiv. 22; Deut. xxxii. 40. alluded to by the Psalmist, ibid.
—— of the countenance, what it denotes, Numb. vi. 26.
—— of the heart, commonly used for a proud disposition, Deut. viii. 14. instances of it, ibid. prayed against in the Litany, ibid.
Light, signifying sometimes a posterity, sometimes reputation, glory, 1 Kings xi. 36. used to denote prosperity, Ps. xxxvi. 9. the usual emblem of happiness, Is. lx. 1. the emblem of joy, Jer. xiii. 16. the Christian dispensation frequently and appropriately described under this figure, John iii. 19. frequently emblematick of spiritual knowledge, Rev. i. 12. darkness called the light of the wicked, Job xxxviii. 15. why said 'that God is light, and in Him is no darkness at all,' 1 John i. 5. consequence with respect to ourselves, ver. 6.
Lights in the world, what compared to them, Phil. ii. 15. what alluded to, ibid.
Lightened, received comfort, Ps. xxxiv. 5.
Lightning, considerations on, Job xxxviii. 24.
Lightnings, sign of rain, Ps. cxxxv. 7.
Lign aloes, character of the tree, Numb. xxiv. 6. where it grows, ibid. what meant by the expression 'which the Lord hath planted,' ibid.
Likeminded, remark on St. Paul's saying, that he had with him no man likeminded, Phil. ii. 20.
Likeness, meaning of the Hebrew word, Exod. xx. 4. of any thing that is in heaven above, &c. what intimated by it, and the reason, ibid.
—— of Adam opposed to likeness of God, Gen. v. 3.
—— of Christians to God in a future state, in what it consists, 1 John iii. 2. what the being 'like God' implies, ibid. how it will be produced, ibid.
—— of a man, in what it consisted, Ezek. i. 5.
Lily, species of, abundant in fields about Aleppo, Hos. xiv. 5.
Lilies, of deep red in Syria, Song of Sol. v. 13.
—— of the field, conjecture respecting them, Matt. vi. 28.
Line of Samaria to be stretched over Jerusalem, metaphorical expression, explained, 2 Kings xxi. 13. 'a line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem,' a different metaphor, explained, Zech. i. 16.
'Lines fallen upon me in pleasant places,' meaning and allusion of the phrase, Ps. xvi. 6.
Linen, fine, what meant by it, Gen. xli. 42. by what persons used, ibid.
Linen, how procured by the Israelites, Exod. xxv. 4. peculiar kind of among the Egyptians, ibid. its excellence considered, Ezek. xxvii. 7.
—— priests' garments made of, Ezek. xliv. 17.
—— vestments, why worn by the priests in the holy place, Lev. xvi. 4.
—— yarn, 'the king's merchants received it at a price,' explanation of this difficult passage, 1 Kings x. 28.
Lintel of the door, how used figuratively for persons, Amos ix. 1.
Lion, variety of names for, Job iv. 11. how hunted, Job x. 16. his roaring terrible, Prov. xix. 12. roars when he sees his prey, Amos iii. 4.
—— signifies men of brutish appetites, Is. xxxv. 9.
—— Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, Jer. iv. 7.
—— teeth of, things of great power to hurt compared to, Joel i. 6. See Mouth of the Lion.
—— winged, figure of in ruins of Persepolis, Dan. vii. 3.
—— of the tribe of Judah, who designed by it, Rev. v. 5.
Lions, in what respect Judah compared to them, Gen. xlix. 9. their security in sleep, Numb. xxiv. 9. what meant by Balaam's comparison of the Israelites to them, ibid.
—— denote powerful princes, Jer. ii. 15. their custom, ver. 16. used for cruel enemies, Ps. lvii. 4. merchants why so called, Ezek. xxxviii. 13. additional calamities represented by them, Is. xv. 9.
—— beside Solomon's throne, a similar instance in the Mogul's throne, 1 Kings x. 20.
Lioness, Judea compared to, Ezek. xix. 1.
Lip, a deep, what the Hebrews mean by it, Is. xxxiii. 19.
Lips, to kiss, to applaud, Prov. xxiv. 26.
—— burning, that make eager professions, Prov. xxvi. 23.
—— fruit of, explained, Is. lvii. 19.
—— covered, sign of mourning, Ezek. xxiv. 17.
Litany, remark on a passage in it, Deut. v. 9. a passage in it commented upon, Deut. xxxii. 15. examples of the form used in it, Dan. ix. 16, 19. reason of the several invocations at the opening of it, 1 Cor. xii. 4—6. obsecrations in it quoted, 1 Pet. ii. 24.
Little, put for little time, Hos. viii. 10.
Little ones, the meaning of the term, Matt. x. 42.
Liturgy of the Church, example of its excellence, Gen. iv. 8; Deut. x. 12. propriety of a prayer in it remarked on, 1 Sam. xv. 23. valuable as a guide for private devotion, Ps. cii. 28. description of different sorts of devotion contained in it, 1 Tim. ii. 1. See Collect, Communion Service, Commination Service, Litany, &c.
Live, what frequently meant by it, Gal. ii. 20; 1 Thess. iii. 8.
'—— in the Spirit' explained, Gal. v. 25.
Liver, inspected in divination, Ezek. xxi. 21.
Living God, to what opposed, Matt. xvi. 16.
—— stone applied to Christ, what it denotes, 1 Pet. ii. 4.
—— water, used figuratively, what it denotes, John iv. 10.
—— in sin, what it is, Rom. vi. 2. inconsistent with our baptismal profession, ibid.
Lo-ammi, what the child typifies, Hos. i. 8, 9.
Lo-ruhamah, what the daughter typifies, Hos. i. 6.
Loaves, miracle of multiplying, the scene of it still shewn by tradition, Matt. xiv. 15. lesson of giving thanks at meals supplied by it, ver. 19. an astonishing proof of our Lord's power over nature, ver. 21. reflections on it, ibid. the only miracle which St. John relates in common with the other Evangelists, John vi. 4. the lesson of frugality to be derived from it, ver. 12.
Local gods, how worshipped by the heathens, Deut. xii. 30. guarded against by Moses, ibid.

Locusts, plague of, remarks on, Exod. x. 4. special purpose of it, ibid. whence brought into Egypt, ibid. how disposed of, ibid. carried away by the power of God, ver. 19.
—— devastation committed by them, Exod. x. 4. different species mentioned in Scripture, ibid. not common in Egypt, ibid. ver. 6. immense swarms of them in Cyprus, ver. 15. only remedies against them, ver. 19. how formed, Lev. xi. 21. various sorts of, ibid. not accurately distinguished, ibid. named in Hebrew from their prodigious number and increase, Judg. vi. 5. justness of comparison to, Ps. cix. 23. their ravage described, Joel ii. 2, 3. noise they make, ver. 5. their order, ver. 8, 9. their smell, ver. 20. lie inactive in cold days, Nah. iii. 17. called devourers, Mal. iii. 11. at this day eaten in Asia, Matt. iii. 4.
—— allusion to their habits, Rev. ix. 3. signifying the Saracens under Mahomet and his successors, ibid. were to injure corrupt and idolatrous Christians, ver. 4. this confirmed by the history, ibid. representing Saracens, were not to kill, but to torment, ver. 5. this confirmed by the history, ibid. were to hurt for five months, explained from history, ibid. natural locusts commit devastations for the summer five months, ibid. their resemblance in shape to the horse, ver. 7. their hard shell, ver. 9. the noise of their wings, ibid. figurative locusts have a king, and whom, ver. 11.
Lod, its probable signification, 1 Chron. viii. 12.
Lodgingplace for wayfaring men, explained, Jer. ix. 2.
Loft used by Elijah, what it probably signifies, 1 Kings xvii. 19.
Loins girded, usual with Eastern travellers, Exod. xii. 11. and why, ibid. See Gird.
'—— girt about with truth,' what it means, Eph. vi. 14.
—— what meant by 'breaking' them, Ezek. xxi. 6.
Longsuffering, signification explained, Jer. xv. 15.
—— of God, the reasons of it, Matt. xiii. 30. represented in a parable, Luke xiii. 6, 8. will not be extended beyond a certain point, 1 Sam. xxviii. 6.
Looked on, beheld with satisfaction, Obad. ver. 12; Mic. iv. 11.
'—— upon,' how distinguished from 'seen,' 1 John i. 1.
Looking unto Jesus, signification of the word looking, Heb. xii. 2. in what characters He is to be looked unto, ibid.
'Loose his shoe from off his feet,' supposed meaning of the usage uncertain, Deut. xxv. 9. probably a mark of infamy, ibid.
Lord, the Lord the Son of God distinguished from the Lord that is God the Father, Gen. xix. 24.
—— in capitals, what it signifies, Exod. iii. 15. the incommunicable name of God, Hos. xii. 5.
—— the Lord God, meaning God the Father speaking by the Word or Son of God, Gen. iii. 9.
—— God, what the combined name denotes, Gen. ii. 4; Exod. xxxiv. 7.
—— from heaven, why Christ so called, 1 Cor. xv. 47, 49. what He was thus qualified to do, ibid.
—— name of, common to the three Persons of the Trinity, 1 Cor. viii. 6. peculiarly ascribed to God the Son, ibid.
—— of lords, Lord of kings of the earth, Ps. cxxxvi. 3.
—— and servant, modes of civility, Gen. xxxii. 4.
—— liveth, oath among the Jews, Jer. v. 2.
Lord's day, distinguished from the Jewish sabbath, Col. ii. 16. observation of it by the primitive Christians, ibid. See First day of the week, Sabbath, &c.
—— Prayer, its unrivalled excellence and perfection, Matt. vi. 9. why so called, ibid. parts that it consists of, ibid. explained, ver. 9—13. and paraphrased, ver. 13. why an authority for praying in a set form, Luke xi. 2. contains the sum of all things to be desired, ibid. why the doxology is omitted in St. Luke, ver. 4.
—— Supper, sacrament of, why Christians are required to observe it, Exod. xii. 14. obligation on Christians to partake in it, Numb. ix. 13. danger of neglecting it, ibid. See Sacrament, Supper of the Lord.
'Lose those things which they had wrought,' what persons liable to do so, 2 John ver. 8.
Lot, his extraction, Gen. xi. 29. his imprudence in the choice of a residence, Gen. xiii. 13. his deliverance an encouragement to the righteous, Gen. xix. reflections on his fault, ver. 8. reflections on his intemperance, ver. 33. instance of God's regard for him, Deut. ii. 9.
Lot's wife, a memorial of God's judgment, Gen. xix. 26. a warning to persons of faint virtue, ibid. and to those who are devoted to temporal things, Luke xvii. 32. in what sense said to have become a pillar of salt, Gen. xix. 26.
Lot, used in a good sense, what it means, Dan. xii. 13.
—— division of the land by, remarks on it, Numb. xxvi. 55. a very ancient custom, ibid. its prudence, Numb. xxxiv. 17. uncertain how conducted, ibid. not the occasion of any broils, ibid.
—— captives divided by, Joel iii. 3. used to determine what share should be saved, Ezek. xxiv. 6.
Lots, probably resorted to in discovering the offending tribe, Josh. vii. 14. instances of their use in Scripture, ibid. the decision by them instituted by God, Acts i. 26. a solemn way of referring to Him, ibid.
—— casting of, a superstitious custom of the East, Esth. iii. 7. how practised by Haman, ibid. directed in that case by the providence of God, ibid.
Love of God, characteristick excellence of the Mosaick law, Deut. vi. 5. accompanied by the fear of God, ibid. united, the foundation of obedience, ibid. the ruling principle of benevolence to mankind, ibid. and to animals, ibid. in what it consists, Matt. xxii. 37. the value and importance of this duty, ibid. why styled the great Commandment, ver. 38. includes other sentiments towards Him, Deut. x. 12. source of every thing good, Deut. vi. 5. peculiar to the Jewish and Christian dispensations, ibid. why we are required to love Him with all the heart, &c. ibid. the heart, the soul, &c. explained, ibid. why so often repeated by Moses to the Israelites, Deut. xi. 13. the first and great Commandment, why liable to be misunderstood, 1 John iv. 19. best explained by its effects, ibid. how it differs from the love of sensible objects, ibid. how we may conclude that we possess it, ibid. what persons may be sure that they possess it not, ibid. character which the Scriptures give of it, ibid. what the best argument of it, Exod. xx. 6. what the true test of it, John xiv. 21. how it may be expressed, 1 John iv. 12. how we may bring ourselves to it, and what it effects, Ps. xlii. 11. consequence of not cultivating it in the generality of men, 1 John iv. 18. and in humbler and righter minds, ibid. what the consequence of cultivating it, ibid.
—— and fear of God, joint principles of Christian obedience, Deut. x. 12. how represented in Scripture, ibid. with strict propriety united in our Liturgy, ibid.
—— of God and love of our neighbour, why the two great Commandments, Mark xii. 31.
—— of God for man, how manifested in the redemption, 1 John iv. 9. injured by the supposition of the Redeemer being mere man, ibid. enhanced by the consideration of His sending His only begotten Son, ibid. to derogate from the dignity of the Redeemer is to undervalue the love of God, ibid. what belief necessary to be entertained of Christ, ibid.
—— of Christ to us a model for our imitation, John xv. 12.
—— of our neighbour, ruling principle of in the Mosaick law, Lev. xix. 18. like to the love of God in excellence, Matt. xxii. 39. why Christ mentioned this in addition to 'the great Commandment,' ibid. how limited by the Jewish doctors, Luke x. 29. confined to their own nation and kindred, ver. 31. its enlarged Christian sense, ver. 37. why called by Christ 'a new Commandment,' John xiii. 34. Christ's love to us the model of our love to others, ibid. the excellence of this duty, ibid.
—— to his neighbour, not content with negatives, Rom. xiii. 10. what would be the consequence of it if practised, ibid. effects which it would produce in the different relations of life, ibid. and upon mankind at large, ibid. honourable to the religion which teaches it, ibid.
—— for our brethren, when it proceeds from the proper principle, 1 John v. 2.
—— conjugal, motive to, Gen. ii. 21, 24.
—— mutual among men, obligation to, Gen. i. 27. See Charity.
—— of the world, what meant by it, 1 John ii. 15. felicity of a future state inconsistent with it, ibid.

'Love in deed and in truth,' what it signifies, 1 John iii. 18.
'—— joy,' what they signify in the list of Christian graces, Gal. v. 22.
—— feasts, an early custom in the Church, 1 Cor. xi. 21. disorderly conduct of the Corinthians in them, ibid.
Loved, in what sense God loved Jacob, Rom. ix. 7, 13.
Lovely, what things are comprehended under the character of it, Phil. iv. 8. a valuable part of Christian practice, ibid.
Loving and hating, what they often signify in Hebrew, Rom. ix. 13. used in the same manner by our Saviour, ibid.
—— one another, how it may be called an old commandment, 1 John ii. 7. and how a new one, ver. 7, 8. remarks on the enigmatical manner in which the precept is conveyed, ibid.
'Lower parts of the earth,' what meant by Christ's descending thither, Eph. iv. 9.
Loyalty exemplified in Mordecai, Esth. ii. 22. inseparable from true religion, ibid.
Lubims, who they were, 2 Chron. xii. 3.
Lucifer, the morning star, Is. xiv. 12. what the expression likewise alludes to, ibid.
Lud, who intended, Jer. xlvi. 9.
Ludim, a plural form, Gen. x. 13. what nations it denotes, ibid.
Luhith, city of Moab, by what distinguished, Jer. xlviii. 5.
Luke, St. particulars of his history, Introd. to St. Luke's Gospel, date and character of his Gospel, ibid. many accounts of Jesus had been published before he wrote, Luke i. 1. extends a quotation from Isaiah for the use of the Gentiles, Luke iii. 5. his account of the malefactors on the cross reconciled with that of St. Matthew and St. Mark, Luke xxiii. 39. his account of it is the most particular, ibid. author of the Acts of the Apostles, Introd. to Acts. his general objects in writing the book, ibid. his accuracy as an historian confirmed by Josephus, Acts xii. 21. accompanies St. Paul in part of his travels, Acts xvi. 10. was on board the ship with St. Paul, Acts xxvii. 1. supposed to be alluded to, 2 Cor. viii. 18. the excellence of his character, Col. iv. 14. See Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Luke.
Lukewarmness in religion, described and condemned, Matt. xiii. 20. will not procure exemption from punishment, Matt. xxv. 32. a worse disposition than absolute coldness, Rev. iii. 15.
Lunatick, what the word probably means, Matt. xvii. 15.
Lust, the cause of sin, Jam. i. 15. reflections on it, ibid.
'—— of the eyes,' what called so, and why, 1 John ii. 16.
'—— of the flesh,' what meant by it, 1 John ii. 16.
Lusts of the flesh, why particularly to be guarded against by Christians, 1 Thess. iv. 3.
Lycaonians, why St. Paul confirms his preaching to them by a signal miracle, Acts xiv. 10.
Lydda, its situation, Acts ix. 32.
Lydia, reflections on her character, Acts xvi. 14. what her history shews, ibid.
Lying, the sin of, 1 Kings xiii. 18. its fatal consequences, ibid.
Lysimachus, his division of Macedonian empire, Dan. viii. 8.

M.

Maccabees, first book of, not cited by our Saviour or His Apostles, considered Apocryphal, copied by Josephus, Introd. to 1 Mac.
—— second book of, a compilation, author not inspired, of no authority in point of doctrine, Introd. to 2 Mac.
Maccabeus, name whence derived, 1 Mac. ii. 4.
—— Judas, by defeating Ammonites fulfilled a prophecy, Jer. xlix. 2. his religious conduct, 1 Mac. iii. 53; ix. 10, 18.
Macedonia, churches of, some of them specified, 2 Cor. viii. 1. why St. Paul mentions their poverty, ver. 2. causes of their poverty, ibid.
Macedonian kingdom foretold, Dan. ii. 32.
Machpelah, cave of, probably an arched vault or crypt, Gen. xxiii. 9. why particularly described by Jacob, Gen. xlix. 30.
'Made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death,' what the latter words signify, Heb. ii. 9.
'—— free,' what the original word signifies, Rom. vi. 18.
'—— of a woman,' why Christ was said to be so, Gal. iv. 4.
'—— under the law,' why Christ said to be so, Gal. iv. 4.
Madmena, where situated, Jer. xlviii. 2.
Magazines of military stores, the earliest mention of them, 2 Chron. xxvi. 14.
Magdala, 'the coasts of,' where, Matt. xv. 39.
Magdalene, Mary, why so called, Matt. xxvii. 56.
Magi, their extraction, Lev. xviii. 7.
—— Eastern, account of, Matt. ii. 1. their country, ibid. grounds of their expectation of the birth of some great King, ver. 2. See Wise Men.
Magians, a Persian sect, alluded to, Is. xlv. 7; Ezek. viii. 17.
Magicians of Egypt, what skill they professed, Gen. xli. 8. what meant by their rods becoming serpents, Exod. vii. 12. reasons for God suffering them to act as they did, ibid. their inferiority to Moses manifested, Exod. viii. 7. how they imitated his three first miracles, ver. 18. could not imitate the others, ibid. their inability to relieve themselves or their country, Exod. ix. 11.
—— Chaldean, who they were, Dan. i. 20. observations on, Dan. iv. 9.
Magick, different kinds of, forbidden by Moses, Deut. xviii. 10. reasons for the prohibition, ibid. illustrated by modern Arabian manners, ibid.
Magistrates, their duty described, Ps. lxxxii. 8. should promote God's worship, Ps. cxxxii. 17. a useful example afforded them by Nehemiah, Neh. xiii. 29. See Governours, Civil Authority.
Magnificat, Hymn of the blessed Virgin, why so called, Luke i. 46. reason and fitness of its use in the Church, ibid.
Magog, land of Gog, Ezek. xxxix. 6.
Magor-missabib, Pashur why called, Jer. xx. 3.
Mahalath, what it probably denotes, Ps. liii. title.
Mahanaim, meaning of the name, Gen. xxxii. 2.
Mahomet, his conquests over the Christian powers foretold, Rev. ix. 3—5, 11.
Mahometans, trust in their own righteousness, Ezek. xxxiii. 13. subdued about the third part of the then Christian world, Rev. ix. 15.
Mahuzzim, what it signifies, Dan. xi. 38, 39.
Maidservant behind the mill, Eastern custom referred to, Exod. xi. 5. why the same as the captive in the dungeon, Exod. xii. 29.
Majesty of God, how described, Exod. xxxiii. 23. does not consist of bodily parts, ibid.
'Make intercession against,' what it signifies, Rom. xi. 2.
Maker put for doer, Jer. xxxiii. 2.
Maktesh, interpreted, Zeph. i. 11.
Malachi, last of the Prophets before the Gospel, of tribe of Zebulun, of Sapha, completed the canon 400 years before Christ, cited as a Prophet in New Testament, Introd. to Mal.
—— called angel of the Lord, 2 Esd. i. 40.
Malcham, same with Moloch, Zeph. i. 5.
Malefactors, publick execution of, alluded to, Job xxxiv. 26.
—— crucified with Christ, the different effect of God's judgments upon them, Luke xxiii. 39. the faith and repentance of one of them, ver. 42. his notion of Christ's kingdom, ibid. Christ's promise to him a monument of mercy, and of encouragement to penitent sinners, ver. 43. his case different from that of other late penitents, ibid.
Malevolent passions of all kinds, how guarded against by St. Paul, Eph. iv. 31.
Males only obliged to be present at the three great feasts, Deut. xvi. 16. and why, ibid.
Malice, how to be understood, 1 Cor. xiv. 20. what it is a sure mark of, 1 John iii. 14.
Mallows, what herb intended by, Job xxx. 4.
Mammon, derivation and meaning of the word, Matt. vi. 24. why cannot be served together with God, ibid.
—— of unrighteousness, what it means, Luke xvi. 9.
Mamre, plain of, why so called, Gen. xiii. 18.
Man, his dignity intimated at his creation, Gen. i. 26. wherein he resembled God, ibid. inspired with a more excellent spirit than other animals, Gen. ii. 7. his happiness in the garden of Eden, ver. 8. sentence upon him at the fall, explained, Gen. iii. 17, 18.
—— formed to be a religious being, Acts xvii. 27.

Man, the best, would not be acquitted in the sight of God, Ps. cxliii. 2.
—— appearance of, incarnation signified by it, Ezek. i. 26.
—— peculiar energy in the use of the word, Matt. vii. 9.
—— his depraved nature, how set forth, Eccles. ix. 15.
—— of God, to whom the title was given in the Old Testament, Jer. xxxv. 4; 1 Tim. vi. 11. why given to Timothy, ibid.
'—— of sin, the son of perdition,' prophesied of by Daniel, 2 Thess. ii. 3. his representation adopted by St. Paul, ibid. who meant by it, ibid. why called, 'that man of sin,' ibid. his connexion with the grand apostasy, ibid. how 'the son of perdition,' ibid. his arrogance and exaltation of himself, ver. 4. his assumption of divine authority, and of divine titles and attributes, ibid. what hindered his appearance in the apostolical age, ver. 6. how his power increased, ibid. by what methods he should rise to credit and authority, ver. 9. remarks on the manner of his being destroyed, ver. 8. remarks on the interpretation of the prophecy by the Fathers and the reformers, ibid.
Manasseh, half tribe of, conjecture concerning the reason of their not passing over Jordan, Numb. xxxii. 33. See Ephraim.
—— tribe of, in what sense ten portions fell to this tribe, Josh. xvii. 5.
—— king of Judah, his youth when he came to the throne, 2 Kings xxi. 1. his outrages in putting down the worship of God, ver. 3. the great wickedness of the people under him, ver. 9. the Prophets sent to denounce the judgments of God, ver. 10, 12, 13. the unhappy change he wrought in Judah, 2 Chron. xxxiii. 9. effect of his captivity by the Assyrians, ver. 11. what meant by his being taken 'among the thorns,' ibid. his prayers and repentance during his affliction, ver. 11, 12. the mercy of God extended towards him, ver. 13. reflections on his being brought to the knowledge of God, ibid. puts down the worship of idols, ver. 15. endeavours to recall the people to the service of God, ver. 16. his prayer, expressing the greatness of his guilt, misery, and repentance, ver. 19. probable extent of his dominion as a tributary, Ezek. vii. 2. his prayer not in the Hebrew, Introd. to Prayer of Manasseh.
Mandrakes, a Syrian fruit, described, Gen. xxx. 14. various conjectures as to its meaning, Song of Sol. vii. 13.
Manhood, remarks on the reason of Christ's taking it, Heb. ii. 16.
Manifestation of the sons of God, what it denotes, Rom. viii. 19.
Mankind, all brethren, an obligation to mutual benevolence, Gen. ix. 19. proved to be descended from the same stock, ibid. Gen. x. 32; xi. 8.
—— state of, represented under the image of rebellious Israel, Numb. xvi. 50.
—— resurrection of, coextensive with the death, 1 Cor. xv. 21.
Manger, what the original word properly means, Luke ii. 7. reflections on the infant Saviour being laid in it, ibid.
Manna, how called in Scripture, and why, Exod. xvi. 4. in what places found, ibid. in what the miracle of, consisted, ver. 35. why given day by day, ibid. meaning of the word uncertain, ver. 15. how long continued to fall, ver. 35. reason of its ceasing, Josh. v. 12. proof that God vouchsafes not miracles when ordinary means suffice, ibid. why called angels' food, Ps. lxxviii. 25. what an emblem of, Wisd. xvi. 21, 28. sacramental, and a type of Christ, 1 Cor. x. 3, 4.
—— to give to eat of the hidden manna, meaning of this promise, Rev. ii. 17.
Manner of men, speaking after, what meant by it, Gal. iii. 15.
Manners, simplicity of, described by Moses and other ancient writers, Gen. xxiv. 15; xxvii. 4.
Manoah, the strength of his faith, Judg. xiii. 8. mistakes the angel that appeared to him for a Prophet, ver. 17.
Manslaughter not exempted by the Levitical law from the guilt of murder, Numb. xxxv. 22. wisdom of the provisions respecting it, Deut. xix. 4.
Manslayer, merciful provision relating to him, Numb. xxxv. 12. why his retirement to the city of refuge enjoined, ver. 25. why released at the death of the high priest, ibid. nature of the protection he found in a city of refuge, Deut. iv. 42. why obliged to dwell there, ibid.
Mantle, a royal as well as a prophetical robe, 2 Kings ii. 8. its shape, ibid.
Many, put for all, Dan. xii. 2; Matt. xx. 28. import of the original term, Rom. v. 15. to what equivalent, ibid.
Maonites, who they were, Judg. x. 12.
Marah, why so called, Exod. xv. 23. where situated, ibid. how its waters were sweetened, ver. 25. reflections on it, ibid. sweetening of the waters there alluded to, Ecclus. xxxviii. 5.
Marcus my son, explained, 1 Pet. v. 13.
Mareshah, what it signifies, Mic. i. 15.
Mark, St. his history, Introd. to St. Mark's Gospel. was a credible witness of the life of Christ, ibid. general style and character of his Gospel, ibid. a natural circumstance incidentally occurring in his narrative, Mark vii. 3. fact recorded by him declared by St. Paul by inspiration, Eph. i. 20. short duration of St. Paul's displeasure against him, Col. iv. 10.
Market, why the Jews washed on coming from it, Mark vii. 4. why St. Paul disputed in it, Acts xvii. 17. uses of it in the East, ibid.
Marks of the Lord Jesus, what meant by them, Gal. vi. 17. allusion to an ancient practice, ibid.
Maroth, where situate, Mic. i. 12.
Marriage, recommended as founded in nature, Gen. ii. 24. ordained to complete man's felicity, Ps. cxxviii. introd. the sanctity of the tie, Matt. xix. 6. deemed creditable among the Jews, Ecclus. xxxvi. 26. not forbidden to any order of persons, 1 Cor. vii. 2. why called a great mystery, Eph. v. 32. See Celibacy.
—— prohibited degrees of, not laid down in the early ages, Gen. xii. 13.
—— of a brother's widow first mentioned, Gen. xxxviii. 8. See Brother.
—— with captives, how discouraged by the Jewish law, Deut. xxi. 12.
—— of Christians with infidels, why prohibited, 2 Cor. vi. 14. allusion to passages in the law, ibid.
—— the custom of bestowing a solemn benediction on persons about to be married still prevalent, Ruth iv. 11.
—— among the Jews, a period intervened between espousals and nuptials, Matt. i. 18.
—— feast, the custom of all countries, Judg. xiv. 10.
—— put for marriage feast, Matt. xxii. 2.
—— contract, God's covenant so represented, Jer. ii. 2.
—— of the Lamb with His Church, what it denotes, Rev. xix. 7.
Marriages, Jewish, celebrated by night, Matt. xxv. 1. other customs at them illustrating Scripture, ver. 6. simple mode of contracting them, Tob. vii. 13. rejoicings at them, Tob. viii. 19.
—— of the Jews with heathens, a flagrant breach of God's law, Judg. iii. 6.
—— unlawful, among what people they prevailed, Lev. xviii. 3, 7, 9. why forbidden, ver. 6.
—— second, whether lawful, 1 Cor. vii. 39.
Married persons should exhort each other to holiness, Job ii. 10.
Martha, the nature of her faith, John xi. 22. not reproved by Christ for respectful care of Him, Luke x. 42. directed to care of spiritual concerns, ibid. reflections upon it, ibid.
Martyrdom, how expressed by St. Paul, 1 Cor. xiii. 3.
Mary, the Virgin, no religious worship paid to her in the form of salutation, Luke i. 28. her admirable hymn, ver. 46. most properly used in our Liturgy, ibid. impiety in offering prayers and worship to her, ver. 48. the blessing of being mother of our Lord, Luke xi. 28. her speechless sorrow before the cross, John xix. 25. Christ's recommendation of her to St. John, ver. 27. this incident, among others, a genuine mark of the truth of the Gospels, ibid. the last mention of her in Scripture, Acts i. 14.
—— the adoration of her sinful, Acts iv. 12. a false worship hardly distinguishable from idolatry, 1 Tim. ii. 5.
—— and Joseph, an example to Christians to bring up their children in religious habits, Luke ii. 42.
Maschil, what it means, Ps. xxxii. title. character of the Psalms so entitled, ibid.

Mashal, translated Parable, meaning of, Job xxvii. 1.
Mass, sacrifice of, how described by the council of Trent, Heb. x. 18. evident impiety of it, ibid. its hostility to Scripture, ibid. and absurdity, ibid.
Massah, transaction at, alluded to, Ps. xcv. 8.
Master, 'take away thy master from thy head,' what it signifies, 2 Kings ii. 3.
—— and scholars, how they sit in the East, Deut. xxxiii. 3.
Masters, in what sense used, Jam. iii. 1.
—— and mistresses, what duties they owe to their servants, Col. iii. 25.
Mastick tree, what tree intended, Hist. of Sus. ver. 54.
Matrimonial love not to be broken by slight occasions, Judg. xiv. 20. See Love, Conjugal.
Matters of the Lord, how distinguished from the king's matters, 2 Chron. xix. 11.
Matthew, St. account of him, Introd. to Gospel of St. Matth. the period when his Gospel was written, ibid. the language in which it was written, ibid. its principal contents, ibid. modesty and simplicity in his narrative, Matt. i. 1. wrote for the Jews, ver. 1, 2. why opens his Gospel with the genealogy, ibid. the dispassionate manner of his relating Herod's murder of John, Matt. xiv. 9. his discreetness in not mentioning the person who smote the high priest's servant, Matt. xxvi. 51. makes no mention of our Lord's ascension, Matt. xxviii. 20. notices only one of His appearances after His resurrection, ibid. probable reason of this, ibid. See Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Luke.
Matthias, St. his history, Acts i. 26.
Mattock, where used, and why, Is. vii. 25.
Maul, a hammer, force of the comparison made of it, Prov. xxv. 18.
Mazzaroth, what it probably signifies, Job xxxviii. 32.
Meal, what meant by it, 1 Kings iv. 22.
Meals, a general rule of the Jews to bless God at, Deut. viii. 10. on what passage founded, ibid. custom of blessing God at them recommended, 1 Tim. iv. 4. reflection on those who reject it, ibid. custom of the Jews to lie along at them, Amos ii. 8. the posture described, John xiii. 23. See Reclining.
Means, God works by, Exod. xv. 25. their improbability, ibid. must be used to effect our desires, Exod. xvii. 9.
—— formal use of, in religion insufficient without regard to the end, Phil. iv. 8. par. 7.
Measure, how used, 2 Cor. x. 13.
—— of meal, its content, 1 Kings iv. 22.
—— of wheat, what particular measure denoted, Rev. vi. 6.
—— of faith, explained, Rom. xii. 3.
—— of the gift of Christ, explained, Eph. iv. 7.
Meat, practice of drying it in Eastern countries, Lev. vii. 18. explanatory of one of the Levitical laws, ibid.
—— eating or abstaining from, in its nature indifferent, Zech. vii. 5.
—— publickly sold, a part of the heathen sacrifices, 1 Cor. viii. 13. effect of this on the early Christians, ibid.
—— offerings, meaning bread offerings, Lev. ii. 1; Ezek. xlv. 15. how made, and why, ibid. meaning of the original word, Lev. ii. 1.
Meats, none unclean in their own nature, Rom. xiv. 14. how they become so, ibid.
—— abstinence from, by whom introduced among Christians, 1 Tim. iv. 3. by whom adopted, ibid.
—— how opposed to grace, Heb. xiii. 9.
Medes, where situate, Jer. l. 3. kings of, who they were, Jer. li. 11.
—— and Persians, mischievous effects of the unchangeableness of their laws, Esth. ix. 16.
Mediator, what the office of one implies, Gal. iii. 20. explanation of the text, 'a mediator is not a mediator of one, &c.' ibid.
—— how Moses was such, Gal. iii. 19.
—— 'one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus,' what may be learnt from the declaration, 1 Tim. ii. 5.
Mediators, worship through false mediators a species of idolatry, 1 Tim. ii. 5. who the mediators between God and the Jews, ibid. punishment of the people on this behalf, ibid. who the Mediator between God and Christians, ibid. departure from Him, how committed, 1 Tim. ii. 5. a defiance of the whole tenour of Scripture, ibid.
Medicines in the East applied externally, Prov. iii. 8.
Mediterranean, sailing dangerous in it after the autumnal equinox, Acts xxvii. 9. See Great Sea.
Medo-Persian kingdom prophesied of, Dan. ii. 32.
Meek, the blessings of, Ps. xxxvii. 38; Matt. v. 5. mysteries revealed to them, Ecclus. iii. 19. the same as poor, Is. lxi. 1.
Meekness, finds a champion in God, Numb. xii. 4. necessary to the success of God's word in us, Jam. i. 21. blessings that accompany it, 1 Pet. iii. 10.
—— and gentleness of Christ, why St. Paul so conjures the Corinthians, 2 Cor. x. 1.
Megasthenes, his testimony to the conquests of Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. xlvi. 13.
Meiosis, figure employed in Scripture, Jer. vii. 31.
Melchizedek, meaning of his name, Gen. ix. 25; xiv. 18. probably a Canaanite, ibid. his religion the same as Abram's, Gen. xiii. 18. a king and a priest, Gen. xiv. 18. his entertainment of Abram, ibid. why called by a name importing king of righteousness, Heb. vii. 2. a fit type of the Son of God, ibid. Gen. xiv. 18. why described as without father, without mother, without descent, Heb. vii. 3. what meant by his having neither beginning of days, nor end of life, ibid. what by his abiding a priest continually, ibid. his superiority to Abraham, ver. 7. his resemblance to Jesus noticed, ver. 8; Ps. cx. 4. argument for his superiority to Levi not applicable to Christ, Heb. vii. 10.
—— after the order of, explained, Heb. v. 6.
Melcom, chief deity of the Ammonites, Jer. xlix. 1, 3. how rendered in the text, ibid.
Melons, great use of them in Egypt, Numb. xi. 5.
Melita, its situation discussed, Acts xxviii. 1. its inhabitants, ver. 2. their humanity to strangers, ibid. they had some knowledge of a God, ver. 4.
Melt away, 'the multitude melted away' explained, 1 Sam. xiv. 16.
Members, used with a double sense, Rom. vi. 13. used in an enlarged sense, Rom. vii. 5.
—— of one body, Christians represented as such, Rom. xii. 5. duties resulting from it, ver. 5, 8.
Memphis, its situation, Hos. ix. 6. what supposed to be, ibid. its natural strength, Ezek. xxix. 3.
Memorial of the offering, what part intended, Lev. ii. 2.
—— stones of, meaning of the phrase, Exod. xxviii. 12.
Memorials of God's name, what places and tokens so called, Exod. xx. 24. God's blessing promised to them, ibid.
—— of Christ's body, what we testify by partaking of them, Heb. xiii. 10. how partaken of, ibid.
Men, in what most sure to be punished, Exod. vii. 17.
—— the best, have greatest sense of their guilt, Dan. ix. 4. remark on those who have been endued with gifts of the Spirit, Jonah i. 3.
—— Israelites why likened to, Hos. vi. 7.
—— who so described, Acts i. 10.
'—— shall be lovers of their own selves,' of whom particularly true, 2 Tim. iii. 2.
Menahem, his attempt to terrify the kingdom by extreme barbarity, 2 Kings xv. 16.
Mene, to number, why doubled, Dan. v. 26.
Meni, what it signifies in Isaiah, Is. lxv. 11.
Mephibosheth, his neglect of his person at the time of publick sorrow, 2 Sam. xix. 24. his generosity and affection for the king, ver. 30.
Merchants, dealers in divination, Is. xlvii. 15.
Mercury, why St. Paul so called, Acts xiv. 12.
Mercy of God, abuse of it how visited, Gen. xiv. 21. exercised in His judgments, Gen. xv. 15. testified before the destruction of Sodom, Gen. xviii. 32. promised on obedience to His laws, Deut. vi. 25. powerful motive to mercy in us, Deut. xv. 15. an example to men, Matt. v. 48. towards penitent sinners pathetically set forth, Luke xv. 20. that which delivers us from our natural state, Eph. ii. 8.
—— time of God's mercy to offending nations limited, Ezek. xiv. 13. God's, displayed, Jonah iv 10, 11.

Mercy of Christ, strikingly shewn in his conduct towards the penitent thief, Luke xxiii. 43. sinners must not presume upon it from this instance, ibid.
—— the degree and description of it required by Christianity, Luke vi. 36. reflections on those who have not shewn it, Gen. xliii. 18.
—— use of the term, Matt. ix. 13.
—— to 'love mercy' explained, Mic. vi. 8.
'—— rejoiceth against judgment' explained, Jam. ii. 13.
—— 'their own mercy' explained, Jonah ii. 8.
Mercy seat, covering of the ark, Exod. xxv. 17. why so called, ibid.
Mercies of God, why St. Paul dwells on this motive in his exhortation to the Romans, Rom. xii. its efficacy, ver. 1.
MERIBAH, meaning of the name, Numb. xx. 13. why called Meribah-Kadesh, ibid.
MERIBAH-KADESH, rock of, Arab tradition concerning it, Numb. xx. 11.
Merit, man's want of it in the sight of God, Luke xvii. 10.
MEROM, waters of, their situation, Josh. xi. 5.
MEROZ, its probable situation, Judg. v. 23.
MESECH, character of his descendants, Ps. cxx. 5.
MESHECH, who intended, Ezek. xxvii. 13.
MESOPOTAMIA, same as land of the Chaldees, Gen. xi. 28. had the same name as Syria, Deut. xxiii. 4. sometimes distinguished more plainly from it, ibid. why so called, Judg. iii. 8.
MESSIAH, or ANOINTED, the first time of the word's occurring in Scripture, 1 Sam. ii. 10. Hannah's prophecy of His kingdom, ibid. name whence taken, Dan. ix. 26. meaning of the word, John i. 41. what it denotes, ibid. See CHRIST.
METHEG-AMMAH, a name variously understood, 2 Sam. viii. 1.
Mezuzoph, certain pieces of parchment, how used by the Jews, Deut. vi. 9.
MICAH, his making 'an house of gods' explained, Judg. xvii. 5. his intention of setting up a sanctuary in imitation of that of Moses, ibid. not to be excused from the crime of idolatry, ibid. he did not intend to forsake the worship of God, ver. 13. the period of his idolatrous proceedings 'when there was no king in Israel,' ver. 6.
—— of Morasthi in the south of Judea, when he prophesied, our Saviour uses his language, his style, Introd. to Mic. repeats Isaiah's prophecy, Mic. iv. 4. remarks on his prophecy of Christ, Mic. v. 5.
MICAIAH, his ironical answer to Ahab, 1 Kings xxii. 15. his honesty and faithfulness, ver. 19. the meaning of his parabolical speech, ibid. his representation figurative and not to be understood literally, ibid. his answer to the false prophet's question, ver. 25.
Mice, used by the ancients for lustration and cleansing, 1 Sam. vi. 4.
MICHAEL, name for Christ as champion of His faithful people, Dan. x. 13.
—— and his angels, representing the champions of the Gospel, Rev. xii. 7.
MICHAL, reflections on her contemptuous speech to David, 2 Sam. vi. 20. on her remaining childless, ver. 23.
Michtam, meaning of the term, Ps. xvi. 1.
Middle wall of partition, what it alludes to, Eph. ii. 14. why Christ said to have broken it down, ibid.
MIDIAN, its situation, Exod. ii. 15. two regions so called, Numb. xxii. 4. their respective situations, ibid. and extraction of their inhabitants, ibid.
—— women and boys of, why put to death by the Israelites, Numb. xxxi. 17. the young women why reserved, ibid.
MIDIANITES, why the Israelites were commanded to be avenged of them, Numb. xxxi. 2.
Midwives, Hebrew, in Egypt, remarks on them, Exod. i. 15. and on their answer to Pharaoh, ver. 19.
MIGDOL, meaning of it, Exod. xiv. 2. what city, Jer. xliv. 1.
Mighty, sons of, what intended, Ps. lxxxix. 6.
Mildness and beneficence, Christian duties, Jam. i. 19.
Milk and honey, land flowing with, why Canaan so called, Exod. iii. 8.
Millennium, or reign of Christ on earth for a thousand years, much written on the subject, but nothing satisfactory, Rev. xx. 4. unsafe to conjecture about the fulfilment of the prophecy, ibid. what expectation may be reasonably indulged, ibid.
MILLO, house of, conjectures respecting its meaning, Judg. ix. 6; 2 Sam. v. 9.
Mills, in the East, how turned in ancient times, Exod. xi. 5; xii. 29; Judg. xvi. 21. illustrated by modern practices, Exod. xi. 5; Matt. xxiv. 41.
Milstone, the force of the original term shewn, Matt. xviii. 6.
Mincha, a Hebrew word, its meaning, Lev. ii. 1.
Mind, ambitious to discover the laws of nature, Eccles. iii. 11. errours and evil dispositions of, why reckoned among the works of the flesh, Gal. v. 19.
'—— the things of the flesh,' what the original verb signifies, Rom. viii. 5.
Mining alluded to, Job xxviii. 4, 5.
Minister, the faithful, described, Ezek. xiii. 22.
—— to God, who should do so, Ecclus. iv. 14.
—— 'if any man minister' explained, 1 Pet. iv. 11.
Ministers of religion, necessity of their regular ordination, Acts vi. 6. three orders of them distinct from each other in the Christian Church, ibid. in all nations some have been regularly set apart, ibid. their publick and private characters to be distinguished, Matt. xxiii. 3. religious ordinances administered by them valid, independently of their private character, ibid. should teach by their lives as well as by their actions, Acts xi. 24. impiety more odious in them than in others, 2 Kings xvi. 16. why entitled to the regard of the people, Numb. vi. 27. exempted by all nations from military and other services, Numb. i. 48.
—— of the primitive Church, what made them differ from each other in miraculous gifts, 1 Cor. iv. 7. exhortation founded upon it, ibid. in what way the Apostle's statement may be misapplied, ibid.
—— of the Gospel, their commission derived from God, John xx. 21. the high nature of their office requires a Divine commission, ver. 23. a regular order of them established and continued from the days of the Apostles, Acts xiv. 23. the evil of self-ordained ministers presuming to officiate in the Church of Christ, ibid. why Christ hath instituted a regular subordination and succession of them, Eph. iv. 12. necessity of their being externally ordained as well as internally called, Acts xiii. 3. candidates to become such should seriously examine themselves, Acts i. 24. prayer to be used for a proper selection of them, ibid. what their proper character, 2 Cor. v. 20. who first bore the office, ibid. to whom afterwards transmitted, ibid.
—— under what figure described, 1 Tim. i. 18. a rule to guide them, 1 Tim. iv. 13. motive to observe it, ibid. law established concerning them, 2 Tim. ii. 4. laid down with allusion to a Roman custom, ibid. what the duties of them are declared to be, 2 Tim. iii. 17. what they should declare to their hearers, Acts xx. 26. example which they should set those who live under their ministry, Phil. iii. 17. in what sense the servants of men, 2 Cor. iv. 5. when said to preach themselves, ibid. nature of their employment, 2 Cor. v. 20. duty of the people with respect to them, ibid. distinction between their official and their personal characters, ibid. why apprized of the dignity of their office, 1 Pet. v. 1. care taken of their reputation, 1 Tim. v. 19. how represented with respect to God, 1 Cor. iii. 9. and to each other, ibid.
—— of God, God smitten through them, Exod. xvii. 2. their duty to praise Him, Ps. cxxxiv. 1; cxxxv. 18.
'Ministration of condemnation,' 'ministration of righteousness,' what they signify, 2 Cor. iii. 9.
'—— of death,' an elliptical expression how to be supplied, 2 Cor. iii. 7. in what the ministration consisted, ibid.
'—— of the Spirit,' what it signifies, 2 Cor. iii. 8. in what it consisted, ibid.
Ministering grace, in what it consists, Heb. v. 5. how transmitted, ibid.
Ministry, in what sense used, Rom. xii. 7.
—— the office of, the necessity of a regular appointment to it, and presumption of undertaking it without authority, 2 Chron. xxvi. 19. instanced in the punishment of Uzziah, ibid.

Ministry of the Gospel, respect due to it, Numb. xvi. 46. intrusion into it, its character, Heb. v. 5. why more honourable than the Mosaical, 2 Cor. iii. 8.

—— admission of unworthy men to it forbidden, 1 Tim. v. 22. similitude explanatory of the caution, ver. 24, 25.

Minni, kingdom of, its situation, Jer. li. 27.

Minnith, where situated, Ezek. xxvii. 17.

Miracles, wrought only by some Prophets, Exod. iv. 8. and why, ibid. by whom first wrought, ver. 17. means inefficacious used in working them, ver. 20. not vouchsafed by God when ordinary means are sufficient, Josh. v. 12. in working them God usually employs natural causes, Josh. x. 11. proofs of God's almighty power, ibid. no distinction with Him between greater and lesser miracles, ver. 12. idle if not impious to undertake to explain how they are performed, ibid. their end the confirmation of the truth, 1 Kings xvii. 24.

—— difference of character between those under the Law and under the Gospel, Numb. xvi. 31.

—— nature of those predicted of Messiah, Is. xxxv. 5, 6.

—— of Christ, their number, variety, publicity, and general character, Matt. ix. 30, 33. frequency and amazing nature, Matt. xx. 34. satisfactory proofs of Christianity built upon them, Mark xvi. 20. the seal of His authority, John vi. 27. God's testimony of Jesus by them, John viii. 18. His appeal to their evidence of His unity with the Father, John x. 37. His assertion of the necessity of His working them, John ix. 4, 5. proofs of His goodness and mercy, as well as of His power, John ii. 11. confirmation or foundation of the faith of His disciples, ver. 11, 23. His Divine manner of performing them, Matt. viii. 3, 27. instances of His employing outward actions in performing them, Mark vii. 33. His reasons for so doing, ibid. John ix. 7. why He sometimes enjoined that they should not be published, Matt. viii. 4. reasoning of different persons respecting them, John vii. 31. astonishment and admiration of the people at them, Matt. ix. 8, 33; Mark vii. 37. manner in which they extolled them, ver. 36. the Jews prevented by their prejudices from discerning their evidence, John xii. 37. their reality acknowledged by the Jews, Matt. xx. 34; xii. 24. calumny and absurdity of attributing them to diabolical agency, ver. 24, 25. consequence of their being submitted to the strictest scrutiny, Matt. ix. 34.

—— that of the effusion of the Holy Ghost the most striking of any recorded, Acts ii. 4, 13. always celebrated in the Christian Church, ver. 13.

—— those performed by the disciples were done in Christ's name, Luke x. 17; Acts ix. 34. not resorted to without sufficient cause, ver. 25. proof that they were actually wrought by St. Paul, 1 Cor. xii. 28.

—— power of, in the primitive Church, how limited, Phil. ii. 27.

Miriam, her age, Exod. ii. 1. why called the Prophetess, Exod. xv. 20. remarks on her dancing and singing, ver. 20, 21. joined with Aaron in the sedition against Moses, Numb. xii. 1. probably the principal offender, ver. 2. occasion of her offence, ibid. reflections on it, ibid. why she continued for some time leprous, ver. 15. reflections on her punishment, ibid. date of her death compared with those of Moses and Aaron, Numb. xx. 1. her supposed age, ibid. her burial and sepulchre, ibid. why her case alluded to, Deut. xxiv. 9.

Mirrors of the ancients, their materials and form, Exod. xxxviii. 8; Job xxxvii. 18; Ecclus. xii. 11. necessary consequence of their formation, 2 Cor. iii. 18. how referred to by St. Paul, ibid. See Glass.

Mischief, casual, different from constant, Exod. xxi. 36. rule applied to the Jewish law, ibid.

Misfortunes, not always to be interpreted as punishments for sin, Acts xxviii. 4.

Misgab, the word explained, Jer. xlviii. 1.

Mite, the lowest denomination of Hebrew money, Mark xii. 42.

Mitre of the high priest, form of it uncertain, Exod. xxviii. 39. how it differed from the bonnets of the other priests, ibid.

Mitylene, its situation, Acts xx. 14.

Mixed multitude that went with the Israelites from Egypt, who they were, Exod. xii. 38.

Mixtures, not morally evil, why prohibited, Lev. xix. 19.

Mizar, what it signifies, Ps. xlii. 6.

Mizpah, account of, Jer. xl. 6.

—— nets spread on mount, explained, Hos. v. 1.

Mizpeh, valley of, conjecture concerning it, Josh. xi. 8. its situation, Judg. xx. 1. several places of this name, Judg. x. 17; 1 Sam. vii. 5.

Moab, frontier towns of, names mentioned by Moses, Deut. i. 1.

—— daughters of, why they exposed themselves to the passions of the Israelites, Numb. xxv. 1.

—— king of, his motive for the sacrifice of his son, 2 Kings iii. 27. the effect of this on the kings of Israel and Judah, ibid. meaning of the passage according to some opinions, ibid.

—— in what sense 'measured with a line' by David, 2 Sam. viii. 2.

Moabites, why they durst not oppose the Hebrews, Numb. xxii. 3. why not to be dispossessed by the Israelites on their passage to Canaan, Deut. ii. 9. their conquests why noted by Moses, ver. 12. mark set upon them in the Jewish law, Deut. xxiii. 3. their acknowledgment of the dominion of Israel, 2 Kings i. 1.

Mock, 'make a mock at sin' explained, Prov. xiv. 9.

Moderation enjoined, Jonah iv. 6.

—— to be followed in punishing offenders, Matt. xviii. 15.

—— what the original word signifies, Phil. iv. 5. what St. Paul probably means by it, ibid. what comprehended in our letting it be known unto all men, ibid.

Modesty, passing the bounds of, leads to shamelessness in sin, Numb. xxv. 6.

—— in judging of the scheme of revelation, why it becomes us, Eph. i. 10.

Modin, where situate, 1 Mac. ii. 1.

Mohammed, his doctrine first forged at Mecca, Dan. xii. 7. See Mahomet.

Molech or Moloch, meaning of the word, Lev. xviii. 21. by whom this idol was worshipped, ibid. how children were offered to him, ibid. Jer. xxxii. 35. denunciation of punishment on those who offered sacrifices to him, Lev. xx. 2. nature of the punishment, ibid. threatened in some cases with immediate punishment from God, ver. 3.

—— the tabernacle of, explained, Amos v. 25; Acts vii. 43.

Moles. See Bats.

Money, in use in Abraham's time, Gen. xxiii. 15. not told, but weighed, ver. 16.

—— pieces of, called lambs, and why, Gen. xxxiii. 19. sealed up in certain equal sums in bags, Job xiv. 17; Tob. ix. 5. taken by weight in Syria, Egypt, and Turkey, Job xxviii. 15.

—— sum of, reckoned by specifying parts of which composed, Ezek. xlv. 12. buried with the dead, Baruch ii. 24.

—— love of, root of all evil, Prov. i. 19.

Moneychangers, what is meant by them, Matt. xxi. 12.

Month, one, proverb for short time, Zech. xi. 8.

Months, Hebrew, how distinguished, Exod. xiii. 4.

Moon, why called 'a great light,' Gen. i. 16. why said to rule the night, ibid.

—— 'fruits put forth by,' explained, Deut. xxxiii. 14.

—— new moon, a solemn sacrifice and festival at this period, 1 Sam. xx. 5. Jewish months began at the first appearance of the new moon, ibid. principal Jewish feasts regulated by it, Ps. civ. 19. the light of it increased, what it expresses, Is. xxx. 26.

Moral duties, why slighted by the Jewish converts, Introd. to Jam. par. 5. maintained by the Apostles, especially St. James, ibid.

—— government of God, principles of it discernible in the Jewish dispensation, Deut. v. 33.

—— law of the Jews, of universal and eternal obligation, Exod. xxi. distinct from the ceremonial and civil law, ibid.

—— laws of the Jews, delivered in a different manner from the other, Deut. v. 22.

—— state and character of man, how expressed commonly in the New Testament, Gal. v. 16. remarks on the ground of the expressions, ibid.

Moral virtue, sense of its fitness inferiour to the religious principle, Rom. x. 10.
Moralist, the Christian, how distinguished from the Pagan, 2 Pet. i. 6.
Morality, in what said by a wise heathen to consist, 2 Pet. i. 6.
—— of the Gospel, its sum and substance the love of God and man, Matt. xxii. 40. beauty of, Phil. iv. 8. par. 8. firm basis on which it rests, 1 John iv. 21. the end of the Gospel doctrines, ibid.
Mordecai, his descent, Esth. ii. 6. his extreme anxiety for Esther, ver. 11. an example of a faithful subject, ver. 22. considerations on the reason of his refusing to do reverence to Haman, Esth. iii. 2. reflection on his courage and patriotism, Esth. iv. 1. statement of his behaviour from the Targum, ibid. constancy of his religious faith, ver. 14. honour paid to him illustrated by ancient and modern customs, Esth. vi. 9. reflections on the success of his exertions, Esth. x. 3.
More, Sir Thomas, his saying, Prov. xix. 17.
Moreh, oak of, occurrences which took place under it, Gen. xii. 6.
Moresheth-gath, where situate, Mic. i. 14.
Moriah, mount, meaning of the name, Gen. xxii. 2. other names of it, and their reason, ibid. the site of Solomon's temple, 2 Chron. iii. 1. whether referred to, Ezek. xl. 2. called mountain of the house, Mic. iii. 12.
Morning, time of the administration of justice, alluded to, Ezek. vii. 7. custom proverbially noticed, Eccles. x. 16. metaphorical significations of the phrase, Ps. xlix. 14; cxliii. 8; Is. xvii. 11; Joel ii. 2.
—— and night, used metaphorically, Gen. xlix. 27.
—— watch, meaning of the phrase, Exod. xiv. 24.
—— star, meaning of the phrase 'I will give the morning star,' Rev. ii. 28.
Morrow, Eastern import of the word, Matt. vi. 34.
Morter, untempered, propriety of expression explained, Ezek. xiii. 11.
Mortification and rigid abstinence discountenanced by the example of Christ, John ii. 2.
Mortify your members, what it means, Col. iii. 5. a figurative representation, ibid.
Mosera, where situated, Deut. x. 6.
Moses, his parentage and family, Exod. ii. 1. brevity and simplicity of the accounts of his early life, ver. 2. preserved by Providence, ver. 8. how educated, ver. 10. had faith in the promised Redeemer, ibid. meaning of his name, ibid. why said to be 'mighty in words and deeds,' Acts vii. 22. nobleness of his conduct in despising popular opinion, Exod. ii. 11. remarks on his killing the Egyptian, ver. 12. not an example to us in that particular, Numb. xxv. 13. why he fled from the face of Pharaoh, Exod. ii. 15. reflections on his helping the daughters of Jethro, ver. 17. why they took him for an Egyptian, ver. 19. remarks on his marriage with Zipporah, ver. 21. reflections on his calling his son Gershon, ver. 22. trained in the school of adversity, ibid.
—— how occupied in Midian, Exod. iii. 1. on what ground sent by God to Pharaoh, ver. 10. why he received a token of assurance from God, ver. 12. why he desired to know the name of God, ver. 13. why he asked a sign of God, Exod. iv. 1. why furnished with miraculous powers, ver. 8. his eloquence supernatural, ver. 12. his backwardness accounted for, ver. 13. how far God was displeased with him, ver. 14. styled among the Egyptians the oracle of God, ver. 16. why he concealed his commission from Jethro, ver. 18. why the Lord sought to kill him, ver. 24. remarks on the supernatural assistance afforded him, ver. 28. in what light acknowledged by Pharaoh, Exod. v. 1. apparent reason of his application, ibid. why he applied for no more, ver. 3. submissiveness of his first application, ibid. had occasional communication with the Lord, ver. 22. effects of Israelites' complaints on his mind, ibid. reflections thereon, ibid. in what sense said to be made a God to Pharaoh, Exod. vii. 1. why his age noticed, ver. 7. why the contest between him and the magicians permitted, ver. 12. why directed to meet Pharaoh by the river, ver. 15. highly esteemed by the Egyptians, Exod. xi. 3. two different periods in his history contrasted, Exod. xii. 31. his admirable spirit, Exod. xiv. 13. remarks on his conduct at the Red sea, Exod. xiv. 13.
Moses, reflections on his crying unto the Lord, Exod. xv. 25. how God proved him, ibid. propriety of his expostulations at Rephidim, Exod. xvii. 2. why he sent Joshua against the Amalekites, ver. 9. why he held up his hand during the battle, ver. 11. his love for his people and his disinterestedness exemplified, Exod. xxxii. 10. on what grounds he beseeches God to pardon the Israelites, ver. 11. remarks on his breaking the tables, ver. 19. his noble resolution, ver. 20. his great zeal for the glory of God, ver. 32. what meant by the skin of his face shining, Exod. xxxiv. 29. how represented by painters, ibid. reflection on his appearance, ibid. shining of his face, how alluded to, 2 Cor. iv. 6. what the vail over his face was a sign of, 2 Cor. iii. 12. peculiar honours vouchsafed to him, Exod. xxxiv. 35. the Lord called unto, why frequently repeated, Lev. i. 1. argument in favour of his wisdom and virtue, Numb. v. 31. difficulty proposed by him about the feeding of the Israelites explained, Numb. xi. 21. miracle wrought by him parallel with one of our Lord's, ibid. example of his disinterestedness, ver. 29. why stated to be very meek, Numb. xii. 3. his vindication of himself paralleled, ibid. to be looked on as the testimony of the Holy Ghost concerning him, ibid. reflections on the union of mildness and fortitude in his character, ibid. why God interposed in his behalf, ver. 4. his forgiving disposition, ver. 13. pattern for us to follow, ibid. his denunciation on the rebellious Israelites dictated and supported by Divine authority, Numb. xiv. 35. does not assume the priestly office, Numb. xvi. 46. wherein consisted his sin at Meribah, Numb. xx. 12. exemplary lesson afforded by his punishment, ibid. how severely he felt the deprivation, ver. 13. his tenderness for the welfare of Israel not slackened at the approach of death, Numb. xxvii. 16. wherein his superiority to Joshua consisted, ver. 21. not ambitious to advance his own family, ver. 22. his humility and selfdenial therein, ibid. his successors had no temptation unduly to exalt his credit, ibid. why commanded to remind the Israelites of the ordinances they were to observe in Canaan, Numb. xxviii. 2. remarks on his order with respect to the boys and women of the Midianites, Numb. xxxi. 17.
—— his wisdom and benevolence in repeating and explaining the law, Deut. i. 5. reflections on the natural beauty and affection of his address to the people, ver. 11. on a remarkable omission in that address, ver. 26. on the arguments used by him to encourage the Israelites, ver. 29. why he mentions his own rejection and the substitution of Joshua, ver. 38. why he alludes to some particulars in the histories of the Moabites, &c. Deut. ii. 12. reasons of the course which he took with Sihon, ver. 26. probable reasons of his anxiety to go over Jordan, Deut. iii. 25. reasons of his earnest appeal to the Israelites, Deut. iv. 1. why he repeatedly mentions God's anger towards him, ver. 21. his conduct towards the Canaanites irreprehensible, Deut. vii. 24. natural circumstance in his address to the Israelites, Deut. viii. 7. proofs of the Divine power by which he was upholden, Deut. ix. 7. propriety of his introducing God's menace to destroy the Jews, ver. 14. methods which he used to engage the people to obey the law, Deut. xxvii. 1. why no longer able to lead Israel, Deut. xxxi. 2. favoured by God in being forewarned of his end, Deut. xxxii. 50. his death regarded as a chastisement, ver. 51. reflections on it, ibid. account of his death and burial, by whom probably written, Deut. xxiv. 5. reflections upon his being buried by God, ver. 6. brief sketch of his character, ver. 10. excellence of his laws, ibid. state of his faculties when he died, ibid. probably buried by the ministry of angels, ibid. why the spot was concealed, ibid. no human witness of his decease, ibid. preeminence of his character described by Samuel or Ezra, ibid. his patriotick disinterestedness, ibid. 1 Chron. xxiii. 14. observations on his family, Deut. xxxiv. 10.
—— his posterity, their condition, Numb. iii. 1. where reckoned, ibid. the only instance of an honour conferred on one of his descendants, 1 Chron. xxvi. 24.
Moses, books of, how preserved from alteration, Deut. iv. 2. instance of it in the Samaritans, ibid. why the prohibition against altering them given at the beginning of his exhortation to obedience, Deut. iv. 2. excellence of his account of the creation, Gen. i. 31. his simplicity a proof of his inspiration, Gen. vi. 15. various proofs of his veracity and fidelity as an historian, Gen. ix. 21; Exod. vi. 20; xxxii. 10; Numb. vii. 5; x. 17; Deut. xxxi. 2. instance of his simplicity and fidelity as an historian, Numb. xx. 13. instances of his impartiality, Deut. xxxi. 2. in what person he speaks of himself in the Pentateuch, Deut. v. 5. instance of his speaking according to the language of the times, Deut. iii. 24. why he gives only the first and last years of the journeyings of the Israelites, Numb. xx. 1. his historical records supported by book of Job, Job xlii. 17. circumstance in his history alluded to in Exodus enlarged upon, Heb. xii. 21.

Moses, first composer of sacred hymns, Introd. to Ps. his song at the Exodus a thanksgiving, Exod. xv. 1. a prophecy, ibid. its antiquity, ibid. its excellence, ibid. his song before his death why written, Deut. xxxi. 30. still rehearsed by the Israelites, ibid. structure and topicks of it, Deut. xxxii. 1. its singular excellence as a composition, ibid. summary of the several parts of it, ver. 1, 6, 15, 19, 26, 36, 43. extensive range of vision which it embraces, ver. 43. Psalm supposed to be composed by him, Ps. xc. title. meaning of the phrase 'Song of Moses,' Rev. xv. 3.

—— his antiquity as a lawgiver, Deut. xxxiii. 4. peculiar circumstances under which his laws were delivered, a proof of his Divine mission, Deut. iv. 5. why his laws styled 'the lively oracles,' Acts vii. 38. humanity and equity of his regulations with respect to slaves and servants, Deut. xv. 12. superiority of them to those of the heathens, ibid. See Law of Moses.

—— in what sense he was a king, Deut. xxxiii. 5.

—— a priest by an extraordinary commission, Lev. viii. 15. a prevailing intercessor, Jer. xv. 1.

—— distinguished by the clearness of his revelations, Numb. xii. 7. and his fidelity, ibid. particulars in which he differed from the other Prophets, ver. 8. why mentioned separately from the other Prophets, Acts xxvi. 22.

—— prophecies of, their number and clearness towards the end of his life, Introd. to Deut. enumeration of them, ibid. his prophecies supplementary to Jacob's and Balaam's, Deut. xxviii. 1. distinguished for their plainness and precision, ibid. abound most in the latter part of his writings, ibid. truth of his prophecies attested by the whole Jewish history, ver. 2. his farewell blessing compared to Jacob's, Deut. xxxiii. 1. in part prophetical, ibid. his object in it, ibid.

—— why the Jews did not call themselves by his name, 1 Cor. x. 2. by whose name they were known, ibid.

—— his character a testimony to the ministry of Christ, Heb. iii. 5.

—— veil of, why said to be on the heart of the Jews, 2 Cor. iii. 15. in what sense it shall be taken away, ver. 16.

—— cited to prove God's intention of calling the Gentiles, Rom. x. 19.

Mote, the meaning of the word, Matt. vii. 3.

Moth, a worm that breeds in clothes, Hos. v. 12.

Mother in Israel, why Deborah so called, Judg. v. 7.

Mothers, why required by the fourth Commandment to be honoured, Deut. v. 16. neglect of them among the Egyptians, ibid. their duty to instruct their children exemplified, 1 Tim. ii. 15. encouragement to it, ibid.

Mount, used for the attack of a city, described, Jer. xxxii. 24; Ezek. iv. 2.

—— that might be touched,' what meant by it, Heb. xii. 18.

—— Ephraim, where situated, Gen. xii. 8.

—— Gerizim, mount Ebal, their relative situations, Deut. xxvii. 12.

—— Hor, or mount Seir, its situation, Exod. xv. 22. origin of its names, ibid.

—— Hor, mount Lebanon incorrectly so rendered, Numb. xxxiv. 2.

—— Lebanon, its situation, Numb. xxxiv. 2. why so called, ibid. its divisions, ibid.

—— Seir, where situated, Deut. ii. 1. how used, ibid.

—— Sion, how called by Moses, Exod. xv. 17. and why, ibid. used spiritually, Heb. xii. 22.

—— probably used for Sirion, Deut. iv. 48. See Ararat, Carmel, Lebanon, &c.

Mountain burning with fire, cast into the sea, what it signifies, Rev. viii. 8.

Mountain cast into the sea, what it signifies, Rev. viii. 8.

—— comparison to, explained, Is. ii. 2.

—— Babylon why so called, Jer. li. 25.

—— holy, what it denotes, Ezek. xvii. 23; xx. 40.

—— kingdom of the, foretold and explained, Dan. ii. 34.

—— on which Christ delivered his sermon, its situation, Matt. v. 1.

—— and island, places of greatest security in times of danger, how alluded to, Rev. vi. 14.

Mountains anciently used for worship, Gen. xxii. 2. why generally prohibited by God, ibid. why mentioned together with groves, ibid.

—— for great princes, Ps. lxxvi. 4. for nations, Jer. xvii. 3.

—— removing of, what it means, Zech. iv. 7.

—— bottoms of, what meant by it, Jonah ii. 6.

Mourn, 'they that mourn' explained, Matt. v. 4.

Mourners covering their faces alluded to, Is. liii. 3.

—— hired, described, Jer. ix. 17.

Mourning for the dead, customs of it in the East, 2 Sam. xii. 20.

—— house of, profit of going to, Eccles. vii. 2.

—— head shaved in, Ezek. xxiv. 17.

—— of the Jews, duration of it, John xi. 19.

Mouse, flesh of, forbidden meat, Is. lxvi. 17.

Mouth, freewill offerings of, explained, Ps. cxix. 108.

—— of the lion, question concerning its signification, 2 Tim. iv. 17.

Mule, to ride on the king's mule, how esteemed, 1 Kings i. 33.

Mules, when they began to be used in Judea, 2 Sam. xiii. 29. uses of them, ibid.

Murder, a cause of present suffering to the murderer, Gen. iv. 14. more heinous on account of our relation to each other, Gen. ix. 5. and to God, ver. 6. the law against it universal and perpetual, ibid. why no satisfaction to be taken for it, Numb. xxxv. 31. punished almost universally by death, ibid. Mosaical law very emphatical upon it, ibid. correspondence of the British law, ibid. arrogance of a Polish monarch upon the subject, ibid.

—— of parents too execrable to be mentioned in the laws of Moses, Deut. xxvii. 16. as in some other ancient laws, ibid. no uncommon crime as iniquity abounded in the world, ibid.

Murders, secret, provision for the discovery of them, Deut. xxi. 1.

Murderers, wilful, protected by no place, Exod. xxi. 14.

—— or 'short swordsmen,' a description of them from Josephus, Acts xxi. 38.

Murrain, plague of, remarks on, Exod. ix. 3. its particular scope with regard to the Egyptians, ibid. its probable influence on the minds of the Israelites, ibid. its extent, ver. 6. why a set time appointed for it, ibid.

Musick, its early use in God's service, Exod. xv. 20. its effect in composing the spirits, 1 Sam. xvi. 23. the advantages of, Ps. cl. 3. always used at feasts in Eastern countries, Is. v. 12; Jer. vii. 34.

—— and dancing on occasions of rejoicing in the East, Luke xv. 25.

Musical instruments of ancient Hebrews, difficulty of determining them, Dan. iii. 5.

Musician, the chief, director of the sacred musick of the temple, Ps. iv. title.

Mustard seed, how used proverbially, Matt. xvii. 20.

—— tree, its size in the East, Matt. xiii. 32.

Muster of the people, why taken before the erection of the tabernacle, Numb. i. 2. why taken again afterwards, ibid. why commanded a third time, Numb. xxvi. 2.

Muth-labben, meaning of the term, Ps. ix. title.

Mutual relation of persons in the Church not hindered by difference of office, Rom. xii. 5.

Myrrh and frankincense, most valued perfumes, Song of Sol. iv. 6. why offered by the Magi to our Lord, Matt. ii. 11.

Mystery, sometimes used for the whole of the Gospel, Eph. i. 9. sometimes for particular discoveries in it, ibid. sometimes for the calling of the Gentiles, ibid.

—— the name of the woman, implying that she deals in mystery, Rev. xvii. 5. is mystically and spiritually Babylon the Great, ibid.

—— of godliness unfolded in six propositions, 1 Tim. iii. 16. all of them infallibly true of Christ, ibid. particularly explained, ibid.

Mysteries, heavenly, not to be drawn down to human reason, Wisd. ix. 16.
—— of the kingdom of heaven, explained, Matt. xiii. 11.

N.

Naamah, its situation, Job ii. 11.
Naaman, probably not excluded from society by his leprosy, 2 Kings v. 1. his wrath at the means of cure enjoined upon him by Elisha, ver. 11. his ignorance that miraculous means were to be employed, ver. 12. application of his example to ourselves, ibid. the advice of his servants to him, ver. 13. his happiness in being cured of his leprosy, and his want of faith, ver. 15. his gratitude, ibid. his wish to raise an altar from the sacred earth of the land of Israel, ver. 17. his plea to attend his master to the house of Rimmon, ver. 18.
Nabal, David's message to him affords a fine picture of ancient and true politeness, 1 Sam. xxv. 5. his rude and sullen answer to David, ver. 10. how his nature corresponded to his name, ver. 25. his death, and the instruction to be drawn from his example, ver. 38.
Nabathites, Nabathean Arabs, 1 Mac. ix. 35. called Zabadeans, 1 Mac. xii. 31.
Nabopolassar, prophecy respecting him, Ezek. xxxi. 11.
Naboth, his value for the possessions of his ancestors, 1 Kings xxi. 3. what is meant by his being set on high, ver. 9. why accused of blaspheming the king as well as God, ver. 10. the corruptness of the publick officers in condemning him, ver. 11. the detestable nature of the contrivance by which his death was accomplished, ibid. why the death of his sons not mentioned in the history, 2 Kings ix. 26.
Nabuchodonosor, supposed Saoschudinus, Judith i. 1.
Nadab and Abihu, in what their crime consisted, Lev. x. 1. their punishment, ver. 2. its necessity, ibid. their special obligation to obedience, ibid. their crime inexcusable, ibid. probable aggravations of it, ibid. application of their fate to us, ibid. why carried in their coats out of the camp, ver. 5. why the priests forbidden to mourn for them, ver. 6. reflections on their offence, Numb. xvi. 35.
Nahash, why he desired to thrust out the right eyes of the men of Jabesh, 1 Sam. xi. 2.
Nahor, the elder brother of Abraham, Gen. xi. 26. his relation to Milcah, ver. 29. why the account of his family introduced, Gen. xxii. 20.
Nahshon, an ancestor of Christ, Numb. vii. 12.
Nahum, of Elkosh, when he prophesied, Introd. to Nahum. his book a perfect poem, ibid. his style, ibid.
Nail, comparison to, illustrated, Is. xxii. 23. for what used in Eastern buildings, ibid. Zech. x. 4.
—— 'to give us a nail,' peculiar meaning of the phrase, Ezra ix. 8.
—— of the tent, description of those used by the Arabs, Judg. iv. 21.
'Nailing it to His cross,' allusion to an ancient custom, Col. ii. 14.
Nain, its situation, Luke vii. 11.
Naked, its meaning explained by particular customs, 1 Sam. xix. 23; Job xxii. 6; Is. xx. 2; John xxi. 7; Acts xix. 16. in what sense the people of Israel were so, Exod. xxxii. 25.
Nakedness, a sense of, why universally accompanied with a sense of shame, Gen. iii. 10.
Name, new, given to favourites by Eastern princes, Gen. xli. 45; Dan. i. 7. to be called by one's, what it signifies, Gen. xlviii. 16. not given by the ancients without reason, Exod. iii. 13. that of God expressive of His attributes, ibid. and of the Messiah, ibid. servants known by that of their master, Numb. xxi. 29. usually given to a child by the father or mother, Ruth iv. 17. of the vanquished, often changed by conquerors, 2 Kings xxiii. 34. still frequently changed by the Eastern people on particular occurrences of their lives, 2 Kings xxiv. 17. 'His name shall be called,' explained, Is. ix. 6. what meant in Scripture by a person or thing being called by a certain name, Ezek. xlviii. 35. peculiar force of the word, Heb. i. 4.
—— of God, what it signifies, Exod. xxiii. 21; Matt. vi. 9.
—— of the Lord, used for His attributes, Exod. xxxiv. 5.
—— of God, good effect of an habitual reverence for, Deut. v. 11. example of it in Mr. Boyle, Deut. v. 11. how observed by the Jews, ibid. unnatural and irreligious conduct of those who profane it, ibid. put for God Himself, Deut. xii. 5. instances of it, ibid. to walk in His name, explained, Mic. iv. 5. blasphemed among the Gentiles, explained, Rom. ii. 24.
Name of Jesus, what it means, Phil. ii. 10.
—— of Christ, how glorified, 2 Thess. i. 12.
—— of other gods, in what sense not to be mentioned, Exod. xxiii. 13.
Names of objects of worship, their importance in Egypt, Exod. iii. 13. whence it arose, ibid. corrected by God, ibid.
—— of places, some of those in the Pentateuch when supposed to have been inserted, Deut. xxxiv. 1. Greek used for Hebrew, 1 Mac. iii. 46. See Greek names.
Nanea, doubts respecting the idol so called, 2 Mac. i. 13.
Naomi, her miserable state and fortitude under it, Ruth i. 7. her name no longer suited to her condition, ver. 20. her virtue and piety, ibid. her heart set on providing for her daughters, Ruth iii. 1. the joyful change of circumstances in her favour, Ruth iv. 14. doubtful whether her sons did evil in taking wives of the daughters of Moab, Ruth i. 4.
Naphtali, Jacob's prophecy of, explained, Gen. xlix. 21.
—— tribe of, its blessing by Moses explained, Deut. xxxiii. 23. why said to possess the west and the south, ibid.
Nathan, his parable artfully framed to excite compassion, 2 Sam. xii. 1. his remonstrance with David worthy the dignity of a Prophet's character, ver. 9. an unfounded insinuation against him, 1 Kings i. 11. his activity against Adonijah, ibid.
Nation, exalted by religion and virtue, Prov. xiv. 34.
—— locusts so called, Joel i. 6.
National greatness, in what it truly consists, Deut. iv. 8.
—— sins, cause of national judgments, Deut. v. 29. exemplified in the history of the Jews, ibid.
—— happiness and misery correspondent to the good and bad behaviour of a nation, Deut. xi. 27, 28. exemplified in the history of the Israelites, ibid. applied to other nations, ibid.
—— repentance conducive to publick success, Deut. xxiii. 9.
—— punishments and rewards proposed as sanctions of the Jewish law, Deut. vii. 9.
Nations, how spoken of in their national capacity, Numb. xiv. 30. punished for their sins and destroyed, Is. xxiv. 23. senses in which the word is used, Amos vi. 1.
—— of the earth, their condition according to St. Paul's description of them remarked on, Eph. iv. 17.
Nativity of Christ, how to be esteemed, Luke ii. 10. reflections on its exciting the thanksgiving of angels, ver. 13, 14.
Natural affections and temporal interests not to be preferred to the Gospel, Luke xiv. 26.
—— man, character of, 1 Cor. ii. 14. what persons it belonged to in St. Paul's time, ibid. how opposed to the spiritual man, ibid.
—— reason, its insufficiency for a guide for mankind, Rom. i. 32. proved in the case of the Greeks, ibid. an argument for the necessity of the Gospel revelation, ibid.
—— state, not totally depraved, Rom. vii. 22. what it actually is, ibid.
Nature, opinions concerning the sense in which the word is used, 1 Cor. xi. 14.
—— works of, man's duty to study them, Job xxxvi. 24. prepared as instruments of God's providence, Job xxxvii. 13; Wisd. v. 20. their perfection, Ecclus. xxxix. 34.
Natures, divine and human, their union in the person of Christ, Gal. iv. 4.
Nave, son of, why Joshua so called, Ecclus. xlvi. 1.
Nazarene, 'He shall be called a,' whence the words probably taken, Matt. ii. 23.
Nazarenes, Christians so called in only one passage of Scripture, Acts xxiv. 5. early hereticks so called, who they were, 1 John ii. 19.
Nazareth, its situation and modern state, Matt. ii. 23. belonged to Zebulun, Is. ix. 2. why Nathanael expected nothing good to come from it, John i. 46.
—— 'Jesus of Nazareth,' spoken contemptuously by the Jews, Acts xxvi. 9.

NAZARITE, nature of his vow explained, Numb. vi. 2; Judg. xiii. 4. why he abstained from strong liquors, Numb. vi. 3. how long his separation might continue, ver. 4. perpetual Nazarites never shaven, ver. 9. if his vow interrupted, with what ceremonies renewed, ibid. offerings made on its fulfilment, ver. 14. purification of those under this vow, Acts xxi. 24. an act of piety to defray the expenses of their purification, ibid. the person might choose the number of days for purification, ver. 26.

NAZARITES, persons of rank and distinction, Lam. iv. 7.

NEBAIOTH, son of Ishmael, Is. lx. 7.

NEBO, where situated, Numb. xxvii. 12; Deut. xxxiv. 1.

—— the idol, what it means, Is. xlvi. 1.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR, account of him, 2 Kings xxiv. 1. in what sense God sent his forces against Judah, ver. 2. when he carried away the vessels of the temple, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 7. his counsels overruled to fulfil the Divine purposes over the Jews, ver. 21. carried captives from Egypt to Babylon, Ezek. xxix. 12. found nothing worth his labour at taking of Tyre, ver. 18. punished with madness, Dan. iv. 16. why basest of men, ver. 17. why restored, ver. 26. how said to have built Babylon, ver. 30. a useful example, ver. 37. prophetically described, Jer. xv. 8.

NEBUCHADREZZAR, name how often differently spelt, Jer. xxi. 2. Jewish and Babylonish modes of computing his reign, Jer. xxv. 1. computations of it different, Dan. i. 1. why called the sword of God, Zeph. ii. 12.

'Necessary doctrine and erudition for any Christian man,' book so entitled, cited to explain a text, 1 Thess. iv. 6.

Necessity of being sinful not laid upon men, Rom. i. 28; ii. 8.

NECHOH, PHARAOH, his expedition against the Medes and Babylonians, 2 Kings xxiii. 29. his success against them, ver. 33. the meaning of his assertion that 'God commanded him to make haste,' 2 Chron. xxxv. 21.

Neck, falling on and kissing, an Eastern custom, Gen. xlv. 14.

—— for back part of neck, Ps. xviii. 40.

—— stiff, propriety of expression, explained, Ps. lxxv. 5.

—— to harden, explained, Prov. xxix. 1.

Necks of criminals whose heads are to be cut off placed on blocks, proverbial expression derived from it, Rom. xvi. 4.

Negative, what expressed by, in Scripture phrase, Exod. xvi. 8.

—— particle, how used in Hebrew, Is. x. 15.

—— merit in religious matters not sufficient to procure the favour of God, Luke xix. 23.

Neginoth, explained, Ps. iv. title.

—— precepts of the law, what intended by them, Rom. xiii. 10.

—— upon Sheminith, explained, Ps. vi. title.

Neglecting of the body not wisdom but folly, Col. ii. 23.

NEHEMIAH, no certain accounts of his tribe or family, Neh. i. 1. a signal instance of publick spirit, and love of our country, Introd. to Neh. signification of the name, Neh. i. 1. his grief for the ruinous state of Jerusalem, ver. 4; ii. 2, 3. his earnest prayer to God in its behalf, Neh. i. 4. a proof of his ardent piety, ibid. ver. 8. nature of his office of cupbearer, ver. 11. the generosity of his concern for his countrymen, ibid. assisted in his request by the queen, Neh. ii. 6. his prudence and courage joined with piety, ver. 20. his prayer against Sanballat to be considered as prophetical, Neh. iv. 5. his rebuke of the rich Jews for their oppression of their poor brethren, Neh. v. 7—9. his true patriotism and piety, ver. 9. his disinterestedness and equity, ver. 14. his frequent prayer to God not to wipe off the memory of his good deeds, ver. 19. from what motives he did this, ibid. his courage and firmness of mind, Neh. vi. 11. what his example shews, ver. 17. probably left Jerusalem on a short absence after the wall was completed, Neh. vii. 2. his advice of precaution to those left in the care of Jerusalem, ver. 3. his care to settle the genealogy of the several tribes, ver. 6. his example of liberality in contributing to the expenses, ver. 70. his ceremony of dedicating the city when the wall was rebuilt, Neh. xii. 27. what was implied by this ceremony, ibid. his great piety shewn thereby, ver. 43. continued the publick reading of the law at stated times, Neh. xiii. 1. doubts about the period of his absence from Jerusalem, ver. 6. effects various reformations, ver. 15, 22. denounces the curses of the law against obstinate offenders, and publickly punishes them, ver. 25. prays to be remembered and spared by God, Neh. xiii. 22. his prayer for the punishment of those who defiled the order of the priests, if they remained impenitent, ver. 29. his general character, and useful example, ibid. probably the last governour sent by the Persian kings to Judea, ibid.

—— book of, written by Nehemiah, Introd. to Neh. its general contents, ibid.

Nehiloth, explained, Ps. v. title.

Nehushtan, meaning of the word, 2 Kings xviii. 4.

Neighbour, wrong to, a sin against God, Lev. vi. 2; Numb. v. 6.

—— love to, how it appears to be the fulfilling of the law, Deut. v. 21. See Love.

—— the true and enlarged import of the word given by Christ, Luke x. 37. its contracted sense imposed by the Jewish doctors, ver. 29. who is the Christian's neighbour, Rom. xiii. 8. what the word commonly signifies, ver. 10. practical application of its meaning, ibid.

Neighbours, evil, who so called, Jer. xii. 14.

Nephew, meaning 'son's son,' Is. xiv. 22. what it signified when our translation was made, 1 Tim. v. 4.

NERO, persecution under, perhaps foretold by St. Paul, 1 Cor. vii. 29. effect of his cruelty on the Christians, 2 Tim. iv. 16.

Net, image from use of it, familiar to Ezekiel, Ezek. xii. 13.

NETHINIMS, description and account of them, 1 Chron. ix. 2. the number of them that came with Ezra and Zerubbabel, ibid.

Networks, what they were, explained, Is. xix. 9.

New birth, privileges of, to whom they belong, Rom. vi. 9. how made effectual to future happiness, ibid. to what appropriated in Scripture, ibid. what never expressed by it, ibid. not possible to be repeated, Eph. iv. 5. requisite to constitute us Christians, Tit. iii. 5. when we are new born, ibid.

New born, how we may be in a worse state for having been so, Gal. vi. 15.

—— babes, Christian converts, how compared to them, 1 Pet. ii. 2. in what way the resemblance shewn in the early ages of the Church, ibid.

New creature, how used in the New Testament, Rom. vi. 9. on what supposition said to avail to salvation, Gal. vi. 15.

'—— heavens and a new earth' explained, 2 Pet. iii. 13; Rev. xxi. 1.

—— moon, sacrifice on, why ordained, Numb. xxviii. 11. why expressly appointed to be offered unto the Lord, ver. 15.

—— name, why received in baptism, Eph. iv. 5. persons raised to dignity often invested with a new name, Rev. ii. 17. what it implies, ibid. See Name.

—— 'make you a new heart, &c.' explained, Ezek. xviii. 31.

Newness of life, what it means, Rom. vi. 4. and why, ibid. how effected, ibid.

'—— of spirit, and not the oldness of the letter' explained, Rom. vii. 6.

NICANOR, why he proclaimed sale of Jewish captives, 1 Mac. iii. 41.

Nicene Creed, doctrine of a passage in it set forth, Eph. iv. 5. eternity of Christ's kingdom why asserted in it, 1 Cor. xv. 24. meaning of an article in it stated, 1 Tim. iv. 10. explanation and proof of some of its doctrines, Heb. i. 3.

NICODEMUS, why he came to Jesus by night, John iii. 2. his acknowledgment that miracles were a proof of Christ's Divine mission, ibid. Christ opens to him the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith, ver. 3. his argument in defence of Christ, John vii. 51.

NICOLAITANES, conjectures respecting them, Rev. ii. 6. probably spoken of, 2 Pet. ii. 1.

NICOPOLIS, situation of different cities of the name, Tit. iii. 12.

Nigh, what things said by the Hebrews to be so, Rom. x. 8.

Night, housebreaking by, why more severely punished than by day, Exod. xxii. 3.

—— the time when Arabs meet for conversation, Job iii. 7. in Arabia Petrea, intensely cold, Job xxiv. 7.

—— in the, for 'suddenly,' Job xxxiv. 25.

—— and day, how opposed to each other, Rom. xiii. 12.

NILE, bathing in it a religious ceremony, Exod. ii. 5. worshipped by the Egyptians, Exod. vii. 17. and why, ibid. propriety of the judgment by which its waters were turned to blood, ver. 20. abounded with fish, ver. 21. its water highly esteemed, ibid. its change to blood proved to be supernatural, Exod. viii.

24. called a sea, Job vii. 12. called Sihor, Is. xxiii. 3. navigated as far as cataracts of Syene, Ezek. xxx. 9. corruption of its waters alluded to, Wisd. xi. 6.
NIMRIM, waters of, observation on, Is. xv. 6.
NIMROD, the first great conqueror and monarch, Gen. x. 8, 9. how he established himself, ibid. and in what countries, ibid. how his memory was preserved by the Assyrians, ibid. his capitals, ver. 10, 11. probably the same as Bel, ver. 9. meaning of his name, ibid.
—— land of, Assyria, why called, Mic. v. 6.
NINEVEH, why so called, Gen. x. 11. made great by traffick on the Tigris, Ezek. xxxi. 4. description of, Jon. iii. 3. population of, Jonah iv. 11. prophecy cited by Diodorus respecting it, Nah. ii. 6, 9. much gold and silver taken there, ver. 9. particulars respecting it, Nah. iii. 19.
NINEVITES, their repentance of no long continuance, Nah. i. 1.
NISAN, to which of our months it answered, Joel ii. 23.
Nitre of the ancients, Prov. xxv. 20.
—— found in abundance in Egypt, Jer. ii. 22.
No, or No AMON, what city of Egypt, Jer. xlvi. 25; Ezek. xxx. 14; Nah. iii. 8. taken by Sennacherib, ver. 10.
NOAH, meaning of his name, Gen. v. 29. emblematical of his actions, ibid. why he obtained favour with God, Gen. vi. 8. in what sense he was perfect, ver. 9. God's covenant with him, ver. 18. his faith and obedience, ver. 22. how long he stayed in the ark, Gen. viii. 14. his sacrifice of thanksgiving, ver. 20. God's blessing on him, Gen. ix. 1. his frailty a caution against security, ver. 21. how said to have 'condemned the world,' Heb. xi. 7. how to have 'become heir of the righteousness which is by faith,' ibid. remark on his being called, 'the eighth person,' 2 Pet. ii. 5.
—— sons of, how the earth was divided among them, Gen. x. 1. which of his posterity journeyed from the East, Gen. xi. 2. precepts of the sons of, referred to, Job xxiii. 11.
NOB, its situation, 1 Sam. xxi. 1.
Nobleman of Capernaum, an example in employing his authority to pious purposes, John iv. 53. why his conversion remarkable, ibid.
NOD, land of, its situation, Gen. iv. 16.
NOMADES of Arabia, why so called, 2 Mac. xii. 11.
Noon, the time when shepherds lead their flocks to shelter, Song of Sol. i. 7.
Noonday in Arabia, described, Job xxxvii. 17.
NOPH, meaning Memphis, Is. xix. 13; Jer. ii. 16; Ezek. xxx. 13.
North, in what manner the Babylonians entered Judea from, Jer. iv. 6.
—— kings of the, far and near, who, Jer. xxv. 26; Ezek. xxxii. 30.
Nose rings, worn by all the Eastern women, Gen. xxiv. 22; Prov. xi. 22.
Not, 'is not,' 'are not,' what the phrases signify, Gen. xlii. 13; Jer. xxxi. 15.
Novelty in all ages urged against the true religion, Josh. xxiv. 14.
Novice, what it means, 1 Tim. iii. 6. reason of the injunction concerning such persons, ibid.
Number, a certain put for an uncertain, Zech. viii. 23. See Definite.
—— ancient method of propounding secrets by numbers expressing them, Rev. xiii. 18. number of a man, what it means, ibid.
Numbering of the people, different accounts of reconciled, 2 Sam. xxiv. 9. the course which the officers took in ascertaining the number, ver. 5. David's crime in numbering the people, ver. 2, 10, 24. See Muster.
NUMBERS, book of, reason of its name, Introd. to Numb. its contents, ibid. length of time that it comprises, ibid. its authenticity, ibid. prophecies contained in it, ibid. a remarkable fact recorded in it, why omitted in Deuteronomy, Deut. i. 26.
Nunc dimittis, why the song of Simeon so called, Luke ii. 29. propriety and universality of the use of it in the Church, ibid. explained, ibid. ver. 30, 31.
Nuptial banquets, Eastern customs at them, Matt. viii. 11, 12.
Nurse, 'even as a nurse cherisheth her children,' remark on, 1 Thess. ii. 7.
Nurses, much honoured in the East, Gen. xxxv. 8.
Nuts, pistachioes of Syria, their excellence, Gen. xliii. 11.

O.

Oak, that where Joshua renewed the covenant, fitness of the place, Josh. xxiv. 26.
Oaks of Bashan, explained, Is. ii. 13. comparison of holy seed to them, explained, Is. vi. 13.
Oath, its sacredness and solemnity, Numb. xxx. 2. well expressed by Moses, ibid. lawful for Christians on just occasions, Rom. ix. 1; 1 Thess. ii. 5; Heb. vi. 16. under certain circumstances not held unlawful by St. Paul, Gal. i. 20. not forbidden by the Christian religion, 1 Thess. v. 27. forms of, made use of by St. Paul, instanced, ibid. taken by himself and proposed to others, ibid. his practice a commentary on our Saviour's doctrine, ibid. used by St. Paul, on what account necessary, 1 Tim. ii. 7. improperly condemned as unlawful, Jam. v. 12. lawfulness proved from the practice of Christ, ibid. from the example of St. Paul, ibid. from injunctions in the Old Testament, ibid. and from the example of God, ibid. inference with respect to our Saviour's prohibition, ibid. that St. James did not intend to prohibit oaths appears from his context, ibid. caution to be used about taking one, Eccles. ix. 2.
—— rash and profane, on light occasions forbidden, Matt. v. 34. all oaths not forbidden, ibid. corrupt ideas respecting them prevailing among the Jews, ibid. common discourse to be free from them, ver. 37. tendency of false oaths to undermine society, ibid. a rash and unlawful one exemplified in Herod, Matt. xiv. 7. his wickedness in fulfilling it, Mark vi. 26. on common occasions, most emphatically forbidden, Jam. v. 12.
—— a remarkable one among the Arabs, illustrative of Abraham's to Abimelech, Gen. xxi. 23.
—— of the Lord, explained, Exod. xxii. 11. how administered under the Levitical law, Lev. v. 1. 'took an oath of,' explained, 1 Kings xviii. 10.
—— among the Jews, tendered to one suspected of theft, Zech. v. 4. three descriptions of, enumerated, Ecclus. xxiii. 11. a form of imposing, among the Jews, by adjuring a person, Matt. xxvi. 63. Christ's example justifies the imposing of one by lawful authority, ibid. why God confirmed His promise by one, Heb. vi. 18. on what occasions interposed by God, Heb. vii. 20. application of it to the priesthood of Christ, ibid.
OBADIAH, when he flourished, Introd. to Obad. prophesied against the Edomites, ibid. his style, ibid.
—— chief steward of Ahab's houshold, whether the same as the Prophet, 1 Kings xviii. 3. his virtue in the midst of corruptions, ibid. his piety and courage in rescuing the Prophets from Jezebel, ver. 4.
Obedience, the purpose for which the truths of the Gospel are revealed, Gen. xxii. 18. jointly with faith necessary to salvation, ibid. necessary to our procuring God's blessing, Deut. vii. 12. illustrated by the relative duties which we owe to one another, ibid.
—— to God's law, its high value above all ritual observances, 1 Sam. xv. 22. the foundation of happiness to kings and people, 1 Kings ix. 4. completes repentance, Prov. xvi. 6. necessary to qualify for God's favour, Amos v. 14.
—— uniform, required by our Maker, Jer. ii. 19. the great honours and advantages promised to it, Matt. xii. 50.
—— to the Gospel, the great blessing that attends it, Luke xi. 28.
—— constant, preferred by God to the most sincere repentance after sin, Luke xv. 31. necessity of sincere endeavours after, not diminished by the grace of God and the death of Christ, Rom. v. 21. to the will of God, steady purpose of, expressed by St. Paul in several ways, Rom. vi. 6. its value, 1 Cor. vii. 19.
—— Christian, only sure evidence of the goodness of our condition, Gal. vi. 15. all other marks may deceive, ibid. to Christ, its necessity, Heb. v. 9. a constant proof of our loving God, 1 John iv. 19. used for the Gospel, Rom. vi. 16.
—— to governours, recommended by the conduct of the Jews to Nehemiah, Neh. x. 29.
Objections and their answers, how introduced by St. Paul in his Epistles, General Introd. par. 6. an occasion of much perplexity, ibid.
Oblation, remarks on the sufficiency and perfection of Christ's one oblation of Himself, 1 John ii. 2.
—— morning, offered at daybreak, Ps. cxxx. 6. evening, at what time made, Dan. ix. 21.

Observe times, explained, Lev. xix. 26.
Occasion to fall, how the original word is sometimes rendered, Rom. xiv. 13. what it denotes, ibid.
Occasions of evil, to be avoided, Gen. xxxiv. 31. not to be given to others, 1 Cor. viii. 13. how to be avoided, ibid.
Ode, sacred, one of singular beauty and excellence, Is. xiv. 27. instance of a sublime one, Hab. iii. 1.
—— triumphant, on destruction of Sennacherib's army, Isa. xxxiii. introd. See Hymns, Moses, &c.
Oded, Prophet, his warning to the Israelites, 2 Chron. xxviii. 9. his exhortation to them, ver. 10. proof of his great influence over them, ver. 14.
'Odour of a sweet smell, a sacrifice,' to what the passage alludes, Phil. iv. 18. what represented by it, ibid.
Offence of the cross, what it means, Gal. v. 11.
—— wilful, against God, danger of one, Jam. ii. 10.
Offences, private and publick, distinction between, 3 John ver. 10.
Offend, in the sense of 'ensnare,' 'cause to fall away,' Matt. v. 29; xiii. 41; xviii. 6; Ps. cxix. 165.
——, how long we are subject to do so, 1 John i. 8. iniquity of the contrary pretence, ibid. our comfort under a sense of offending, ibid.
Offended, meaning 'to be discouraged and fall away,' Matt. xiii. 21; xxvi. 31. 'were offended in Him' explained, Matt. xiii. 57. 'were offended' in the sense of 'were induced to deny,' Matt. xv. 12.
'Offered upon the sacrifice and service of your faith' explained, Phil. ii. 17. allusion to the Jewish sacrifices, ibid.
Offering up of the Gentiles, an allusion to the Jewish sacrifices, Rom. xv. 16, 17.
Offerings, what should be dedicated to the Lord, Gen. iv. 4.
—— for vows, explained, Lev. iii. 1.
—— to cleanse temple, when made, Ezek. xlv. 18.
—— freewill, partaken of by those who sacrificed, Amos iv. 5.
'—— of God' explained, Luke xxi. 4.
Office, persons in, design of Providence concerning them, Gen. xli. 45.
Officers in the Church enumerated and explained, 1 Cor. xii. 28.
Offices, sacred, caution against intruding into them, Numb. i. 51; viii. 19. danger of usurping them, Numb. xvi. 31.
—— in the Church, such as improperly aspired to them reproved, Rom. xii. 3. See Ministers, Ministry.
Og, situation of his country, Deut. iii. 4. why he had a bedstead of iron, ver. 11. why his bedstead said to have been in Rabbath, ibid. his probable height, ibid. remarks on the dimensions of his bedstead, ibid.
Oil, why things were anointed with it, Lev. ii. 1. examples, ibid. persons anointed with it, ibid. buried in jars in the East, Jer. xli. 8.
—— anointing with, an essential part of festival dress, Ezek. xvi. 9.
—— vessels of, still carried with lamps in the East, Matt. xxv. 4.
—— olive, what meant by its being beaten, Exod. xxvii. 20.
Ointment poured on Christ's head, conformable to Eastern customs, Matt. xxvi. 7. intended as a mark of respect, ibid. use made of the occurrence by Christ, ver. 12. the memory of this act to be always preserved, ver. 13.
Ointments, commonly used by the ancients to anoint the body, 2 Sam. xiv. 2. formed part of presents to kings, Is. lvii. 9. fragrant, used at nuptials, Song of Sol. i. 3.
Old corn, the term explained, Josh. v. 11.
—— man, new man, explained, Eph. iv. 22. reflections on the change intimated by the phrases, ibid.
—— Testament, not contrary to the New, Rom. i. 2.
—— world, what it means, Rom. i. 8.
—— wives' fables, what meant by them, 1 Tim. iv. 7.
Olive, a garland of, why used, Judith xv. 13.
Olive leaf, why the emblem of peace, Gen. viii. 11. connexion between it and the dove of Noah, ibid.
Olive tree, Jewish nation why compared to it, Jer. xi. 16.
Olive trees, method of gathering their fruit, Deut. xxiv. 20. their numbers and fruitfulness in Syria, &c. Deut. xxxii. 13. best situation for them, Deut. xxxii. 13. planted around tables in the East, Ps. cxxviii.
Olive trees, what sacred persons signified by them, Zech. iv. 3—14. what represented by them, Rev. xi. 4.
Olives, where the best grow, Job xxix. 6.
—— mount of, its situation, 2 Sam. xv. 30; Matt. xxi. 1. shortness of its distance from Jerusalem, 1 Kings xi. 7. probably meant by the mount of corruption, 2 Kings xxiii. 13. its highest summit set apart for the worship of Ashtaroth, ibid. a spot still shewn, from which Christ is said to have ascended, Luke xxiv. 51. remark respecting it, Ezek. xi. 23.
Omer, its capacity, Exod. xvi. 16.
Omission, sins of, an article in our account, as well as those of commission, Eph. iv. 24.
Omnipotence, how it vindicates the ways of God, Job xli. 34.
—— of God set forth, Jer. xxiii. 23.
Omnipresence of God set forth, Ps. cxxxix. 19; Jer. xxiii. 23.
Omniscience of God set forth, Jer. xxiii. 23.
Omri, the statutes of, what meant by them, Mic. vi. 16.
On, its meaning among the Egyptians, Gen. xli. 45. city of, ibid.
Once, 'this once' explained, Jer. xvi. 21.
'—— delivered' explained, Jude ver. 3.
'—— every year,' in what sense spoken of the priest's entrance into the Holy of Holies, Heb. ix. 7.
Onesimus, who he was, Introd. to Philem. change in him, what insinuated by the mention of it, Philem. ver. 11. why called by St. Paul, 'mine own bowels,' ver. 12. why sent back to Philemon, ver. 14. remark on St. Paul's apology for him, ibid.
Onesiphorus, remark on St. Paul's prayer for his family, 2 Tim. i. 18.
Onions and garlick, much esteemed and cultivated in Egypt, Numb. xi. 5. and among the ancients, ibid. much sweeter in the East than with us, ibid.
Ono, its situation, Neh. vi. 2.
Onyx stones, conjectures respecting them, and the use to which they were applied, 1 Chron. xxix. 2; Job xxviii. 16; Gen. ii. 12.
Ophel, the wall of, conjectures respecting it, 2 Chron. xxvii. 3.
Ophir, doubts among the learned respecting its situation, 1 Kings ix. 28.
Opportunities, best known by God, Exod. xvii. 8.
'Oppositions of science falsely so called' explained, 1 Tim. vi. 20.
Oppressed, consolation for, in the history of the Israelites, Exod. ii. 24. when neglected by God, are so through their own fault, Job xxxv. 9, 10.
Oppression, whence it originates, Lev. xxv. 17. curse attends estate got by it, Job xx. 10.
Oppressors admonished, Ps. lxii. 10.
Oracle, the, what meant by it, 1 Kings vi. 19.
Oracles, signification of the word in the Greek writers, Rom. iii. 2.
—— of God, what meant by them, Rom. iii. 2.
—— heathen, instances of their being delivered from dark places, Is. xlv. 19. proceeded from evil spirits, ibid. their ambiguity, ibid.
Oral tradition, St. Paul's judgment against, Phil. iii. 1. opinion of St. Peter about it, 2 Pet. i. 15. and of certain ancient Fathers, ibid.
Ordained, 'ordained to eternal life' explained, Acts xiii. 48.
—— 'before of old ordained to this condemnation' explained, Jude ver. 4.
Ordinances, how distinguished from laws, Exod. xviii. 20.
—— of heaven and earth, explained, Jer. xxxiii. 25.
—— what they were, 1 Cor. xi. 2.
Ordination of priests, why in the presence of the people, Lev. viii. 3.
—— of ministers of religion, the necessity of it, Acts vi. 6.
Organ, instrument of musick, conjectures respecting it, Job xxi. 12.
Origin of nations, explained no where but in Genesis, Gen. x. 1. traced by Sir William Jones to Noah's three sons, ibid.
—— of the world, disputes of the heathens about it, Heb. xi. 3. clearly understood by revelation, ibid.

Original sin, universal infection of, Rom. v. 12.
Ornament, wisdom compared to, Prov. i. 9.
Ornaments, meaning of the word so translated, Judg. viii. 21. similar ornaments still used among the Arabs, ibid.
Orthosias, its situation, 1 Mac. xv. 37.
Osiris, mysteries of, described, Ezek. viii. 8.
Ossifrage, a species of eagle, Lev. xi. 13. why so called, ibid.
Ostriches, described, Job xxxix. 13, 14, 16—18. their doleful noise, Mic. i. 8. their mourning and lamentation, Job xxx. 29.
Othmans, or Turks, their victories foretold, Rev. ix. 14. the limit of them, ver. 15. the vast number of their armies signified, and chiefly horsemen, ver. 16. the general appearance of their soldiers, ver. 17. allusion to their use of gunpowder, ibid. and to their propagation of false religion, ver. 19.
Othniel, his extraordinary impulse from God, Judg. iii. 10.
Oven, with what heated in the East, Matt. vi. 30. workers of wickedness, why compared to it, Hos. vii. 6.
Ovens, of a size for one family only usual in the East, Lev. xxvi. 26. hence a phrase intimating scarcity, ibid.
Overseer, nature of the office, Gen. xxxix. 4.
Overseers, meaning bishops, Acts xx. 28.
Outward man, inward man, what they signify, 2 Cor. iv. 16. by what means though the former decays, the latter is renewed and strengthened, ibid.
Owl, what the Hebrew word signifies, Lev. xi. 16. perhaps the ostrich, ibid.
—— the great, uncertain what bird meant, Lev. xi. 17.
Ox, stealing of, why more severely punished than the stealing of a sheep, Exod. xxii. 1. not to be muzzled, a symbolical law, Deut. xxv. 4. application of it to ministers of the Gospel and others, ibid.
—— a stalled, why opposed to a dinner of herbs, Prov. xv. 17.
Oxen, mentioned as beasts of burden, 1 Chron. xii. 40. still used as such in the East, ibid. were employed in husbandry, Prov. xiv. 4. precept concerning in the law, why introduced, 1 Cor. ix. 10. general inference from it, ibid.

P.

Padan-aram, where situated, Gen. xxv. 20. and what the name denotes, ibid.
Painting the face, practised by Eastern women, 2 Kings ix. 30; Jer. iv. 30.
Pale horse, denoting a period distinguished by a concurrence of evils, Rev. vi. 8. history of this period, ibid. colour of the horse suited to the mortality of it, ibid.
Palestina, promised land why so called, Exod. xv. 14.
Palm tree, dwelt under the, explained, Judg. iv. 5.
Palm trees love moisture, Exod. xv. 27. manner and peculiar circumstance of their growth, Song of Sol. vii. 7, 8. pilasters how representing them, Ezek. xl. 16.
Palm wine, its use in the East, Is. xxiv. 9.
Palmerworm, force of the word so rendered, Joel i. 4.
Palmyra, its trade with India and Syria, Ezek. xxvii. 16. See Tadmor.
Paphos, its situation, Acts xiii. 6.
Papists, chargeable with idolatry for their image worship, Exod. xxxii. 5.
Papyrus, where it grows, Job viii. 11. wood of it used for ships, Job ix. 26. the use of it, Is. xix. 7. See Bulrushes.
Parable, different significations of, Numb. xxiii. 7. in what its chief excellence consists, Ezek. xv. 2.
Parables, their scriptural meaning and use, Matt. xiii. 3. advantages of this mode of instruction, ibid. propriety of Christ's parables, their beauty and excellence, ibid. some of them taken from the Jews, ibid. why our Lord delivered His doctrines in them, Mark iv. 21. made a vehicle for gentle reproof, Luke x. 33.
Paradise, the sense in which our Saviour used the word, Luke xxiii. 43. sense of it in the New Testament, 2 Cor. xii. 4.
Paran, wilderness of, its situation, Numb. xx. 1; Hab. iii. 3.
Parbar, opinions respecting the name, 1 Chron. xxvi. 18.
Parched corn, a kind of food still retained in the East, 2 Sam. xvii. 28.
Parchments, what generally supposed to have been, 2 Tim. iv. 13. See Mezuzoph.
Pardon, not to be presumed upon, Ecclus. v. 5.
Parental affection, its strength and force, 2 Sam. xix. 1.
Parenthesis, numerous in St. Paul's Epistles, General Introd. par. 4. accounted for, ibid.
Parents, reverence enjoined to both alike, Lev. xix. 3. the power given them over their children stated, Deut. xxi. 18. both must concur in their proceedings, ibid. their duty to their children, Prov. xxii. 6. exemplified in Abraham, Gen. xviii. 19. the evil of their excessive indulgence to their children, 1 Sam. ii. 23; iv. 18; 1 Kings i. 6. their duty to give instruction to their children, Eph. vi. 4. at least to provide it for them, ibid. and to enforce the instructions of others, ibid.
—— happiness to be born of good, Deut. v. 10. obedience to, ill observed among the ancient heathens, ver. 16. erroneous notions concerning it among the Egyptians, ibid. obedience to, recommended, Jer. xxxv. 19. duty to, the manner in which the Pharisees made it void, Matt. xv. 5. the indispensable nature of it, ver. 6.
—— disobedience to, severely punished by the Jewish law, Lev. xx. 9. nature of the offence, ibid. harshness of the Roman and Grecian laws relating to it, ibid. moderation of the Jewish law, ibid. how to be ministered unto by children, 1 Tim. v. 4. neglect of, how represented by the Gospel, ver. 8. how by the ancient heathens, ibid.
—— who so called figuratively, Ezek. xvi. 3.
'Partaker of the glory which shall be revealed,' how spoken of a person in this life, 1 Pet. v. 1.
'Partakers of the Divine nature,' when Christians are made so, 2 Pet. i. 5.
Parteth the hoof, meaning of the Hebrew text, Lev. xi. 3. illustrated in the camel and the hare, ibid.
Partial obedience will not be accepted from the wilfully disobedient, Jam. ii. 10.
'—— in the law,' phrase explained, Mal. ii. 9.
Partiality, marks of, in a lawsuit, how avoided by a Jewish canon, Jam. ii. 3. how alluded to, ibid.
—— true religion, why mentioned as being without it, Jam. iii. 17.
Particle, the connective often used at beginning of Hebrew historical books, Baruch i. 1.
Partridge, similitude why drawn from, Jer. xvii. 11.
—— tame, its cunning in enticing others, Ecclus. xi. 30.
Partridges, manner of hunting these and other birds in the East, 1 Sam. xxvi. 20.
Parvaim, why thought by some to be Ceylon, 2 Chron. iii. 6.
Paschal lamb, whence the expression, Exod. xii. 13.
Passages, from the, explained, Jer. xxii. 20.
Passion, the strength of it no excuse for immorality, Jam. i. 14. indulgence of it imputed as sin, ibid. justifying our iniquities by accusing our constitutions condemned, ibid. scriptural testimonies on the subject, ibid.
—— of Christ, reflections on it, Matt. xxvii. 50. convulsions of nature at it, ver. 51. not requisite that we should fully discern its necessity, Gal. vi. 16. what our concern with it is, ibid. practical reflections on it, ibid.
Passions, more dangerous than our enemies, Numb. xxv. 1.
—— expressions borrowed from them applied to God, Ezek. v. 13. in what sense ascribed to God, Ezek. xxxviii. 18. See God.
—— how best explained to common capacities, 1 John iv. 19. rule applied to the love of God, ibid.
Passover, opposed in many circumstances to Egyptian superstitions, Exod. xii. 3. at what hour slain, ver. 6. at the same hour Christ sacrificed, ibid. resemblance between the passover and the death of Christ exemplified, ibid. reasons given for the manner in which it was to be eaten, ver. 8, 11. some particulars not to be observed in aftertimes, ver. 11. reason of the name, ver. 13. how long to be observed, ver. 14. and why, ibid. only once kept by the Israelites in the wilderness, Numb. ix. 2. obligation on the Israelites to keep it, ver. 13. practical inference with respect to Christians, ibid. observance of it why omitted by the Israelites in the wilderness, Josh. v. 10. renewed after their circumcision under Joshua, Josh. v. 10. never kept in Israel according to the law from the separation to the time of Hezekiah, 2 Chron. xxx. 2. its period and duration, Matt. xxvi. 2. why St. John calls it 'the Jews' passover,' John ii. 13. spiritual meaning of the command concerning the manner of keeping it, 1 Cor. v. 7. application of it to Christians, ibid.

Past tense, why used for the future by the Prophets, Deut. xxxii. 15.

Pastors of Christ's flock must have a regular commission, John x. 1. false ones reproved, ibid. ver. 10, 12. what their office is, Ezek. iii. 21. See Ministers, Officers.

—— put for generals of Chaldean army, Jer. xii. 10.

Patara, its situation, Acts xxi. 1.

Paternal government, by whom first put down, Gen. x. 8.

—— power, its antiquity and extent, Deut. xxi. 18. how limited by Moses, ibid. its probable operation under the law, ibid.

Pathros, the Thebais in Egypt, Is. xi. 11; Jer. xliv. 15; Ezek. xxix. 14.

Patience, forcible motive to, Exod. xvii. 1. under affliction a great proof of grace, Lev. x. 3. enjoined on the first Christians, Luke xxi. 19. special occasion for it in seasons of persecution, Jam. i. 4. at all times a necessary duty, ibid. different graces which go toward making it up, ibid. advantage always attending it, Jam. v. 11. See Adversity, Afflictions, Temperance.

—— Christian, towards enemies commendable and reasonable, Rom. xii. 21. what it does not require of us, ibid. what it does require, ibid. necessary to the well being of society, ibid.

—— of God towards Sodom, Gen. xviii. 21.

Patmos, its situation and description, Rev. i. 9.

Patriarchs, compared to modern Arab princes, Gen. xiii. 2. some of them divinely inspired in their last moments, Gen. xlix. 1. opinion built on it, ibid. died with complacency, ver. 33. expected a future life, ibid. why considered priests and prophets, Ps. cv. 15.

Patriotism, its connexion with religion, Exod. xxxii. 11. See Country.

Pattern, what St. Paul means by calling himself 'a pattern to them which should after believe, &c.' 1 Tim. i. 16.

Paul, St. his prejudice and precipitate judgment against Christianity, Acts ix. 1. a lamentable instance of misguided zeal, ibid. the admirable temper afterwards shewn by him, ver. 6. the effect of his sudden blindness upon him, ver. 9. reflections on his conversion, ver. 18. it affords the strongest testimony to the truth of Christianity, ibid. a town built on the spot where it happened, ver. 3. the example of his acceptance, an encouragement to penitent sinners, ver. 18. part of his history why designedly omitted by St. Luke in the Acts, ver. 23. the series of his history given, ver. 26. his name changed from Saul, and the probable reason, Acts xiii. 9. his turning from the Jews was from those at Antioch only, ver. 46. excellence of his address to the people at Lystra, Acts xiv. 17. remarks on his contention with Barnabas, Acts xv. 39. his separating from him how turned to the benefit of the Church, ibid. his conduct towards Timotheus and Titus considered, Acts xvi. 3. why forbidden to continue to preach the Gospel in Asia, ver. 6, 7. remarks on his conduct at Philippi, ver. 40. proves himself by his conduct neither a deceiver nor an enthusiast, Acts xvii. 23. his observance of the decorums of language, ibid. his judgment in the selection of topicks in his discourse to the Athenians, ibid. what he means by the expression to the Jews, 'I am clean,' Acts xviii. 6. the nature of his vow at Cenchrea considered, ver. 18. observations on his last address to the disciples in Asia, Acts xx. 18—24. recommends by his own example industry in our several callings, ver. 35. his fortitude and patience, Acts xxi. 13. wrongly accused of teaching the Jews to forsake their law, ver. 21. an example of the expediency of conforming to established usages, though not essential, to avoid giving offence, ver. 26. his fortitude in boldly declaring to the Jews his mission to the Gentiles, Acts xxii. 21. in what manner he became a Roman citizen, ver. 28. the only instance in which an indignant reproof was drawn from him, Acts xxiii. 3. his wise expedient for escaping from the hands of his enemies, ver. 6. cause of his going to Rome considered, ver. 11. though assured of the Divine protection, still avails himself of human means, Acts xxiii. 17. the general topicks of his defence before Felix enumerated, Acts xxiv. 10. a great instance of true Christian magnanimity, ver. 14. in defending himself defends his religion, ibid. the general excellence and suitableness of his discourse before Felix, ver. 25. the sincere and disinterested spirit he displays on this occasion, ibid. remoteness of his conduct from imposture and enthusiasm, Acts xxv. 10. the character of wisdom, moderation, and courage, shewn in his speech to Agrippa, Acts xxvi. 2. the strength of his argument for the resurrection, ver. 7. his moderation and courage shewn in his answer to Festus, ver. 24. the spirit and delicacy of his answer to Agrippa, ver. 29. his experience in sea voyages, Acts xxvii. 9. his genuine piety in returning thanks for his sustenance, though at the hour of danger, ver. 35. effect of his piety on the ship's crew, ibid. the comfort and encouragement derived from St. Paul's presence in the vessel, ver. 36. in danger from the barbarity of the soldiers, ver. 42. instruction to be derived from his shipwreck, ibid. endowed with a miraculous power, Acts xxviii. 5. as signified beforehand by prophecy, ibid. the use and effect of the miracle of shaking off the viper, ibid. reasons of the particular kindness shewn to him during his imprisonment at Rome, ver. 16. his courtesy in speaking of the Jews, ver. 19. the remaining transactions of his life, after his release from imprisonment at Rome, ver. 31.

Paul, St. sketch of his character and conduct, General Introd. to St. Paul's Epist. par. 1. how hindered from visiting Rome, Rom. i. 13. his skilfulness in avoiding to offend those of his own nation, ver. 16. his readiness in confessing that he preached the Gospel in all plainness, 1 Cor. ii. 1. how he appeared at Corinth, ver. 3. not indifferent to the good esteem of the Corinthians, 1 Cor. iv. 3. regarded it little in comparison of the judgment of the Lord, ibid. active in the service of Christ, ver. 12. proof that he was neither an impostor nor an enthusiast, ibid. what he means by saying 'to the rest speak I, not the Lord,' 1 Cor. vii. 12. not assisted by only ordinary help, ver. 25. in what way he asserts his inspiration, ver. 40. why requisite that he should see Christ risen, 1 Cor. ix. 1. examples of his doing so, ibid. remark on his declining to accept any subsistence from the Corinthians, ver. 12. in what way he became all things to all men, ver. 20—22. remarks upon it, ver. 22. proposes his own example to Christians, ver. 26. explanation of the phrases derived from the Grecian games in which he describes himself, ibid. inference from his exertions with respect to ourselves, ibid. considerations on the truth of his statements to the Corinthians, 1 Cor. xii. 28. proof of his miraculous powers, ibid. why he speaks of himself as one born out of due time, 1 Cor. xv. 8. example of his humility, diligence, and other virtues, ver. 9, 10. how it appears that he laboured more abundantly than the other Apostles, ver. 10. remark on his manner of expressing his abundant labours, ibid. why he drops in a commendation of himself, ibid. how he desired to recommend himself to his converts, 2 Cor. iv. 2. in what lay his great difficulty how to deal with the Corinthians, 2 Cor. v. 12. how he regulated his conduct in consequence, ibid. his manner of speaking of himself how regarded by his enemies, ver. 12, 13. what the ancients relate of his person, 2 Cor. x. 10. course in which he preached the Gospel, ver. 14. his eloquence wherein differing from that of the Grecian orators, 2 Cor. xi. 6. why he refused maintenance from the Corinthians, ver. 7. objections founded thereupon by his enemies, ibid. how answered by him, ibid. received supplies from others, ver. 9. why he glories in his afflictions, ver. 30. why he mentions his visions and revelations of the Lord, 2 Cor. xii. 1. proof that he was not disposed to speak vauntingly of himself, ver. 2. his bodily weakness, a proof of his being supported by Divine power, ver. 9. in what sense the imposition of hands upon him in the Acts to be understood, Gal. i. 1. difference in his motives and conduct before and after his conversion, ver. 10. compared to Jeremiah, ver. 15. why he asserts the more than human authority of his Gospel, ver. 11, 20. why he communicated his doctrine to the leading men at Jerusalem, Gal. ii. 2. why called the prisoner of Jesus Christ for the Gentiles, Eph. iii. 1. his character illustrated in his Epistles, especially in that to the Philippians, Introd. to Phil. sketch of the variety of exalted and engaging virtues he shows in it, Introd. to Phil. his example in the Christian race recommended, Phil. iii. 14. honour due to his character, Phil. iv. 9. an example of contentment, ver. 11. a remarkable example of industry, 2 Thess. iii. 9. remarks on his ignorance and unbelief, 1 Tim. i. 13. his graces after conversion opposite to his former sins, ver. 14. proof of the excellence of his disposition, 2 Tim. iv. 16.

Paul, St. instances in his character—of the warmth and affection of his mind, Phil. i. 30. of his affectionate manner and his knowledge of human nature, Gal. iv. 12. of his calmness and humility of mind, Phil. iii. 13. of his anxiety to preserve a character for integrity, 2 Cor. viii. 21. of his deep concern at the unbelief and rejection of the Jews, Rom. ix. 1. of the delicacy of his manner, Rom. i. 12; 2 Cor. viii. 2. of his great caution in a point of delicacy, 2 Cor. xi. 17. of his disinterested joy at the success of the Gospel, 2 Tim. ii. 9. of his uniting gentleness with authority, 1 Thess. ii. 11. of his gratitude to Christ, 1 Tim. i. 12. of his gratitude for kindness in distress, 2 Tim. i. 18. of his humility, 2 Cor. xii. 6; 1 Tim. i. 12. of his avoiding to give offence to the Jews, Rom. ix. 6. of his inoffensive manner towards the Jews, Rom. xi. 35. of his affectionate manner in reasoning with the Jews, ver. 36. of his modesty and respect to the Corinthians, 2 Cor. vii. 11. of his great modesty and humility, 2 Cor. x. 18. of his avoiding ostentation, 1 Cor. ii. 12. of his indefatigable pains and great humility, Col. i. 29. of his pathetick and affectionate manner, 2 Cor. vi. 11. of a high degree of patriotism in him, Rom. ix. 3. of his extreme plainness of manner combined with the warmest tenderness, Gal. iv. 15. of great propriety of sentiment in him, 1 Thess. ii. 5. of his prudence and goodness of heart, 1 Cor. iv. 14. of several estimable qualities in him remote from enthusiasm and imposture, Philem. ver. 25. of his uniting love for religion with pity for offenders, 2 Thess. iii. 15. of his remoteness from imposture and fanaticism, ibid. of his combining good sense and liberality of opinion, with caution and prudence in conduct, Rom. xiv. 23. of his good sense and feeling, Philem. ver. 21. of his tenderness and goodness of heart, 2 Cor. ix. 15. of his tenderness towards an offender, 2 Cor. ii. 5, 6. of his calmness in condemning the offence, ibid. and of his consolatory conduct towards the Church, ibid.

—— instances in his style—of his expressing the action when he means only to express the design, 1 Cor. x. 33. of his animated language, 2 Cor. viii. 3. of his dexterity in arguing with the Jews, Rom. ii. 1. of his advantageous use of metaphor, Rom. vi. 19. of his use of a remarkable elliptical expression, Rom. xv. 18. of his use of irony, 2 Cor. xi. 19. of his joining himself with other persons, Jam. iii. 1. of the liveliness and energy of his style, 1 Cor. xiii. 3. of his mildness of expression, Heb. vi. 9. of his personating another character, Rom. vii. 7. of his asking a question and dropping an answer, 1 Cor. x. 20. of his strong manner of speaking, Col. ii. 2. of his speaking in the first person not designing to speak of himself, 1 Thess. iv. 15. of his speaking of himself in the third person, Gal. iii. 5. of his speaking in the first person plural, Heb. ii. 3. of his speaking of himself in the plural number, 1 Cor. ii. 12. of his speaking in an assumed person, Rom. iii. 5, 7. of his speaking of himself in the person of others, Tit. iii. 3. reason of his doing so, ibid. of his speaking of himself as a Gentile convert, Eph. i. 4; ii. 3; Col. i. 13. of his speaking to the thoughts of his readers, Rom. ii. 25. of a particular kind of teaching, 1 Cor. xi. 5. of his quickness and variety of thought, 2 Cor. xiii. 1.

Paul's, St. Epistles, character of them, General Introd. par. 2. their obscurities and difficulties accounted for, ibid. correctness of his reasoning, ibid. peculiarities of his style, ibid. evidence borne by them to the sensibility of his heart and the zeal of his temper, ibid. some causes of obscurity peculiarly his own, ibid. par. 4. enumerated, ibid.

—— thirteen first, testimonies to their genuineness, General Introd. par. 8. &c. in what order placed in our Bibles, ibid. par. 12. arrangement of them in the order of their dates, ibid. par. 13. how most of them are begun and ended, Rom. i. 7. designed for the use of all Christians, 1 Cor. i. 2. subscribed with his own hand, 1 Cor. xvi. 21. for what purpose, ibid. great design of them, Col. i. 10. consequence of not regarding it, ibid. remarks on their being alluded to by St. Peter, 2 Pet. iii. 15. their Divine inspiration acknowledged, ver. 16.

Pavement of various coloured marble at Aleppo, Esth. i. 6.

Pavilion, the term explained, Ps. xxvii. 5.

Peace sought after by the best men, Gen. xiii. 8.

—— the inward, of the righteous, described, Ps. xciv. 20; cxix. 165.

—— perfect, what it is, Is. xxvi. 3.

—— promised at Christ's coming, explained, Is. xxxii. 17.

—— in what sense Christ came not to send peace on earth, Matt. x. 34.

—— on earth, appropriate celebration of our Saviour's birth, Luke ii. 14. brought by Him, not only in a temporal, but in a spiritual sense, ibid.

—— in heaven, what meant by it, Luke xix. 38.

—— by Jesus Christ, meaning pardon and reconciliation, Acts x. 36.

—— evil consequences of the want of it, particularly in religious matters, 1 Cor. xiv. 33.

—— why Christ called our peace, Eph. ii. 14; Mic. v. 5.

—— with whom early Christians commanded to follow it, Heb. xii. 14. caution with respect to the methods of doing so, ibid. why the caution necessary, ibid. application of the remarks to Christians in this age, ibid.

—— a state of, through the earth, figuratively represented, Rev. vii. 1.

—— of God, what meant by it, Phil. iv. 7. how to be attained, ibid. why said to pass all understanding, ibid. what denoted by its keeping the heart and mind, ibid. wisdom of the Church in her use of the passage, ibid. propriety of her distinction between the heart and mind, ibid.

'—— be to you,' an Eastern salutation, Gen. xliii. 23.

'—— to enter into,' an allusion to a future state, Is. lvii. 2.

'—— return unto you,' the meaning of the expression, Matt. x. 13.

—— and righteousness, their mutual relation, Jam. iii. 18.

—— offerings, what they betokened, Exod. xxix. 28. why so called, Lev. iii. 1. three kinds of, ibid. by whom offered, ibid. portions of them belonged to the person offering, 1 Sam. i. 4. abuse of this law by Eli's sons, 1 Sam. ii. 13. part of them reserved for convivial purposes, Prov. vii. 14.

Peaceableness, why recommended if possible, Rom. xii. 18. by what means to be cultivated, ibid.

Peacocks, doubts about the meaning of the word so translated, 1 Kings x. 22; Job xxxix. 13.

Pearls, worn in the East round the head, Song of Sol. i. 10.

Peculiar people, how Christians are so, Tit. ii. 14. what alluded to by the expression, ibid. duties that result from it, ibid.

Peep, what meant by the word, Is. viii. 19.

Pekod, a province of the Babylonish monarchy, Ezek. xxiii. 23.

Peleg, why called by this name, Gen. x. 25.

Pella, a refuge to the Christians at the siege of Jerusalem, Gen. xix. 22; Matt. xxiv. 20.

Pen of the scribes, what it means, Jer. viii. 8.

Penance of the Romish church, different from the Gospel doctrine of repentance, Jam. v. 16.

Penitence, Psalm used in the publick one, mentioned in Ezra, Ps. cxxx. introd.

Penitent, true, what he dreads most, Ps. li. 11.

Penny, the Roman, value of it, Matt. xx. 2. usual price of a day's labour, ibid.

Pentateuch, what books so called, Introd. to Gen. probably one book, Deut. xxxi. 26. no titles to the divisions of it in the Hebrew text, ibid. its contents, Deut. xxxiv. 10. length of time that it comprises, ibid.

Pentecost, feast of, why so styled, Lev. xxiii. 16; Deut. xvi. 16; by what other names called, ibid. Lev. xxiii. 16. immediate design of it, ibid. typical reference, ibid. who were assembled on the day of this feast at Jerusalem, Acts ii. 1. why probably assembled in the temple, ibid.

People, mingled, who they were, Jer. xxv. 20, 24.

—— to resort to the priests for instruction, Mal. ii. 7.

People, put for different sorts of animals, 2 Esd. iii. 4.
—— of God, seed of Abraham called so first, Gen. xvii. 7. term afterwards copied by the Prophets, ibid. continually visited by Him, Gen. xviii. 2. in what their happiness consists, Ps. cxliv. 14.
'—— shall dwell alone, &c.' explained, Numb. xxiii. 9.
Peor, top of, its situation, Numb. xxiii. 28. called also Baal-peor, ibid.
—— iniquity of, remains of it among the Israelites, Josh. xxii. 17.
Perea, the country beyond Jordan, Matt. xix. 1.
Peres, what it signifies, Dan. v. 28.
Perfect, sense of the word as applied to good men, Gen. vi. 9. explained, Deut. xviii. 13. scriptural uses of the word, 1 Kings xv. 14. how Hezekiah might say his heart was, Is. xxxviii. 17. what persons intended by St. Paul, 1 Cor. ii. 6. to whom opposed, ibid. what the term denotes, Phil. iii. 12. has allusion to the Grecian games, ibid.
—— man, what it means, Eph. iv. 13; Jam. iii. 2. what opposed to it, Eph. iv. 13.
—— 'that the man of God may be perfect' explained, 2 Tim. iii. 17.
Perfecting holiness, what meant by it, 2 Cor. vii. 1.
Perfection, meaning of it, 2 Cor. xiii. 9. to what it particularly refers, ibid. what it signifies, Heb. vi. 1. absolute, inconsistent with the state of man, Jam. iii. 2. what meant by a perfect man, ibid.
Perfumes, much used in the East, Is. iii. 20, 24. burnt at marriages, Tob. vi. 16.
Perga in Pamphylia, its situation, Acts xiii. 13.
Pergamos, church of, description of Pergamos, and present state of the church, Rev. ii. 12. Satan's seat in it, ver. 13. crimes in it calling for severe reproof, ver. 14. promises to 'him that overcometh,' ver. 17.
Period, latter member of, in Hebrew poetry explanatory of the former, Numb. xxiv. 17.
Periods, three, of the Jewish people denoted, Hos. vi. 2.
Perish, 'which all are to perish with the using' explained, Col. ii. 22.
Perjury, baneful effects of, Prov. xxv. 18.
Permission, how God permits men to sin, Numb. xxii. 17, 20.
Permits, God said to do what he permits, Jer. iv. 10.
Perpetual, means a limited time, Jer. xxv. 9.
Persecution, the reward of suffering it, Ps. lxix. 33. the practice of it in the cause of religion unjustifiable, Luke xiv. 23. inconsistent with Christ's religion, John xvi. 3. by whom raised against the Church, Acts viii. 1. why Providence permitted it, ibid. the effect of it, ibid. of Christ's members represented as of Himself, Acts ix. 4. St. Paul's example shews that it is not to be courted by intemperate zeal, Acts xiv. 6.
Persecutions, no merit in the mere fact of being exposed to them, Matt. v. 10. the Divine favour not obtained by voluntarily courting them, ver. 11.
—— and tribulations, how a token of the righteous judgment of God, 2 Thess. i. 5.
—— of the Christians in Judea, instanced, Heb. x. 32.
Perseverance in religion, the reward of it, Matt. xvi. 25. necessary to final happiness, Gal. iii. 4. no opinion concerning the certainty of that of the Philippians expressed by St. Paul, Phil. i. 6.
—— in the Christian profession, necessity of, why inculcated, Heb. iii. 6. motives to it, ibid. necessary, ver. 14.
Persia, kings of, their magnificence, 1 Kings x. 21. indulgence to their favourites, Ezra vii. 6.
—— who to be understood by the prince of, Dan. x. 20.
Persian empire, its extent, Dan. viii. 4.
—— king, law relating to his presence when made, Esther iv. 11.
—— mode of punishing criminals, 2 Mac. xiii. 5.
—— superstition described, Ezek. viii. 15.
Persians much addicted to drinking, Esth. iii. 15. their shields cased with silver, Dan. ii. 32.
Person, change of person in the Scripture, Is. xxi. 10; xxxiii. 6; Hos. ii. 16. the same called by different names, Jer. xliii. 2.
—— of Christ, what alone sufficient to refute all heresies against, Phil. ii. 6, 7.
Persons, particular, should be dedicated to God's service, Exod. xxix. 44.
—— of the Father and the Son, distinction between them signified, Heb. i. 3.
—— in the Trinity, distinction of, Gen. xix. 24. what it denotes, Deut. vi. 4. spiritual gifts in general proceed from their joint operation, 1 Cor. xii. 4. according to the judgment of the Church, ibid. and to the testimony of Scripture, ibid. their difference and equality, 2 Cor. xiii. 14. how the word Person to be understood, Heb. i. 3. necessity of using it, ibid. reason of the term, ibid. See Plurality, Trinity.
—— meaning of the phrase 'no respect of persons,' Rom. ii. 11.
Personality of the Holy Ghost, how shewn to be distinct from that both of the Father and the Son, Rom. viii. 9.
Personification, illustrious examples of it in sacred writers, Jer. xlvii. 6. striking effect of it, ibid.
Persuade, meaning of the word, Gal. i. 10.
Persuasion, what means of, used by God with the Israelites, Deut. v. 29.
Pestilence, threatened, but not brought upon Pharaoh and his people, Exod. ix. 15. why said to be more peculiarly inflicted by the hand of God, 2 Sam. xxiv. 14. occasionally inflicted on Israelites for their guilt, Hab. iii. 5.
Peter, St. meaning of the name, Matt. xvi. 18. his readiness in following Christ a pattern to Christians, Matt. iv. 22. his perseverance and faith, Luke v. 5. his sense of his own unworthiness, ver. 8. his confession of Christ in His divine and human characters, Matt. xvi. 16. on what his faith was built, ver. 17. how he was the rock on which Christ's Church was to be built, ver. 18. in what sense to have the keys of the Church, ver. 19. reason of his expostulating with Jesus, ver. 22. how rebuked by Jesus, ver. 23. why present at the transfiguration, Matt. xvii. 1. observation on his presumption and self confidence, Matt. xxvi. 35. why known to be a Galilean by his speech, ver. 73. reflections on his denial of his Master, and his sudden repentance, ver. 75; Mark xiv. 72. a warning to Christians, ibid. the effect of Christ turning and looking on him, Luke xxii. 61. why particularly mentioned at Mark xvi. 7. Christ's extraordinary kindness in shewing Himself after His resurrection to him separately, Luke xxiv. 34. his consciousness of his former infirmity, John xxi. 15. gently rebuked by Christ for his threefold denial of Him, ver. 17. Christ's prediction of his suffering martyrdom on the cross, ver. 18, 19. his curiosity repressed, ver. 22. the impressive character of his address to the Jews, Acts iii. 26. the effect of his shadow in healing diseases considered, Acts v. 15. his reproof of Simon Magus a prophetical prediction, Acts viii. 20. his zeal, ibid. the foundations both of a Jewish and a Christian Church laid by him, Acts x. 5. his refusal to be worshipped, ver. 26. proves the unlawfulness of the worship of saints, ibid. purport of his speech to Cornelius, ver. 34. opened the door of faith to Jews and Gentiles, ver. 48. remark on his being married, 1 Cor. ix. 5. his fault when St. Paul withstood him, remarks on the nature and consequences of it, Gal. ii. 11. what St. Paul's reprehension of him shewed, ibid. sketch of his history from the Gospels, Introd. to 1 Pet. subsequent account of him, and his death, ibid. remarks on his character, ibid. instances of his great modesty, disinterestedness, and humility, 1 Pet. v. 1. question on the revelation made to him by Christ, 2 Pet. i. 14. remarks on the manner in which he speaks of St. Paul and his Epistles, 2 Pet. iii. 16. crucified, as foretold by Christ, under Nero, John xiii. 36; xxi. 18, 19.
—— no supremacy given to him over the other Apostles, Matt. xvi. 18, 19; John xxi. 16; Acts v. 15; xv. 19. sent by the other Apostles, a proof that he had no supremacy, Acts viii. 14. not a supreme head of the Church, or infallible judge of controversy, Acts xi. 2. remark on his rights being the same as those of the other Apostles, 1 Cor. ix. 5. his supremacy over the Church refuted, Gal. ii. 9. inference from St. Paul's withstanding him to the face, ver. 11. no ground for accounting him the prince or chief of the Apostles, 1 Pet. v. 1.
—— first Epistle of, to whom addressed, Introd. where written, ibid. its general design and contents, ibid. character of it as a composition, ibid. conformity of its sentiments with those of St. Paul's Epistles, ibid.

PETER, St. second Epistle of, to whom written, Introd. its design, ibid. and date, ibid. contents of it, ibid. remark on the different style of its different parts, ibid.
Petitions to God, on what grounds preferred, Ps. cxix. 49.
PETHOR, where situated, Numb. xxii. 5. its name changed, ibid.
PHARAOH, common name of the kings of Egypt, Gen. xii. 15. meaning of the name, ibid. what the word signifies in Arabia, Ezek. xxix. 3. why he entreated Abram well, Gen. xii. 16.
—— why he knew not Joseph, Exod. i. 8. meaning of the expression, ibid. his ill treatment of the Israelites, ver. 9. his contempt of God, Exod. v. 2. his censure of Moses and Aaron, ver. 4. acknowledges the power of the Lord, Exod. viii. 8. retracts his promise, ver. 15. his perverseness, ver. 32. his confession of sin, Exod. ix. 27. his pretences for oppressing the Israelites, Exod. i. 9. grounds of his fears of them, ibid. his injustice, ibid. date of his decree, ver. 22. why he slighted the Lord, Exod. v. 2. in what sense God raised him up, Exod. ix. 16. phrase enlarged upon and illustrated, ibid. God's dealing in this particular agreeable to His different attributes, ibid. meaning of his confession of sin, Exod. ix. 27. reflections on his security, ibid. his defiance of God, ver. 34. stifles the dictates of his conscience, ibid. his case an admonition to ourselves, ibid. led by his obstinacy to his ruin, Exod. x. 27. his heart subdued for a time, Exod. xii. 31. his motives for pursuing the Israelites, Exod. xiv. 5. his infatuation in pursuing them, ver. 8. his case, as stated by St. Paul, explained, Rom. ix. 17. See Hardening.
—— daughter of, why she washed herself at the river, Exod. ii. 5. an instrument in the hand of Providence, ver. 8. a married woman, ver. 10. her conduct to Moses, ibid.
—— king of Egypt, why he expelled the Canaanites from Gezer, 1 Kings ix. 16.
PHARAOH-HOPHRA, who, Jer. xliv. 30.
PHARAOH-NECHOH. See NECHOH.
PHARISEES, sect of, their general character, Matt. iii. 7. charge our Lord with blasphemy, Matt. ix. 6. constantly watched Jesus for the purpose of fastening guilt upon Him, Matt. xii. 2. their stubborn prejudice and deep-rooted malignity, ver. 14. unable to disprove our Lord's miracles, endeavour to harden people against their evidence, ver. 24. delivered many things as legal injunctions, not written in the law, Matt. xv. 2. offended at our Lord's doctrine, ver. 12. destruction denounced against them, ver. 13, 14. blind teachers, ver. 14. join with the Sadducees to ensnare Jesus, Matt. xvi. 1. disregarded the love of their neighbour, Matt. xxii. 39. dignity and severity of Christ's last address to them, Matt. xxiii. 1. blind guides to heaven, ver. 13. their rapine and extortion, ver. 14. their ostentatious prayers, ibid. length and nature of their prayers, ibid. their pretended zeal for religion, ver. 15. frustrated the obligation of oaths, ver. 16. exact in smaller matters, neglectful of greater, ver. 23, 24. suggested danger to Christ in order to intimidate Him, Luke xiii. 31. ready to sacrifice their scruples, when their interests were concerned, Luke xiv. 5. their designs to ensnare Jesus, John viii. 6. themselves breakers of the commandments while they accused others, ibid. the council of the Jews consisted chiefly of them, John ix. 13. rebuked as false and unauthorized teachers, John x. 1. restrained their notions of a resurrection to the just, Acts xxiv. 15. strictness of the sect, Acts xxvi. 5.
PHEBE, opinions about her occupation, Rom. xvi. 1. in what sense called a succourer of many, ver. 2.
PHENICE, its situation, Acts xi. 19.
PHICHOL, name of some dignity among the Philistines, Gen. xxvi. 26.
PHILADELPHIA, church of, situation of the place and present state of the church, Rev. iii. 7. promises to it probably fulfilled in early times of Christianity, ver. 9, 10. opportunities of improvement given to it, ver. 8. its hour of temptation, ver. 10.
PHILEMON, account of him, Introd. to Philem. his family commended, Philem. ver. 6. how St. Paul notices his obligation to him, ver. 19.
—— Epistle to, date of it, Introd. occasion of it, ibid. delicacy and address of it, ibid. why not quoted so early or so frequently as the others, General Introd. to St. Paul's Epist. par. 11. its great beauty and persuasiveness, Philem. ver. 21. conjecture as to the effect of it, ver. 25. remarks on its excellence as a composition, ibid. and its value as part of the canon of Scripture, ibid.
PHILIP, the deacon, his miraculous disappearance, Acts viii. 39. his daughters being Prophetesses a fulfilment of the prediction of Joel, Acts xxi. 9.
PHILIPPI, its situation, Acts xvi. 12. the chief city of Macedonia, ibid. an eminent church founded there, ver. 40. St. Paul's connexion with it, Introd. to Phil.
PHILIPPIANS, what state they were in when St. Paul wrote to them, Phil. i. 28. forcible manner in which St. Paul expresses his affection for them, Phil. iv. 1.
—— Epistle to, occasion of it, Introd. for what remarkable, ibid. when and where written, ibid. contents of it, ibid. a strong proof of the virtuous conduct of the Philippians, ibid. and an example of various virtues in St. Paul, ibid. remark on St. Paul being the author of it, Phil. i. 3. accuracy and beauty of the exhortation towards the end of it, Phil. iv. 8. remarks on the several parts of it, ibid.
PHILISTINES, under the same condemnation with the Canaanites, Judg. xiv. 3. incapable of being reformed from idolatry, 1 Sam. v. 1. their foolish perversion of the meaning of overthrowing their idol, ver. 5. why miserably afflicted with plagues, ver. 11. their opinion of the God of Israel, ibid. their method of ascertaining whether God had afflicted them, 1 Sam. vi. 7. their having thirty thousand chariots, considered, 1 Sam. xiii. 5. how their tyranny over the Israelites was shewn, ver. 19. similar policy of other nations, ibid. sold the Jewish captives to the Idumeans, Ezek. xxv. 15.
Philosophy, what kind of, condemned by St. Paul, Col. ii. 8. against what particular dogmas he cautions his converts, ibid.
PHINEHAS, reflections on the authority with which he acted, Numb. xxv. 7. the promise made to him by God, considered, ver. 12, 13. why God approved of his conduct, ver. 13. caution against improperly following his example, ibid. way in which he should be imitated, ibid. question concerning his office in the war against the Midianites, Numb. xxxi. 6.
—— 'stood before the ark' explained, Judg. xx. 28.
Phocæ, or sea calves, peculiarities belonging to them, Job xxx. 29; Lam. iv. 3.
PHRYGIA, what country designed by the name, Acts xvi. 6.
PHUT, the Libyans, Jer. xlvi. 9.
PHYGELLUS and HERMOGENES, conjecture concerning them, 2 Tim. i. 15.
Phylacteries, meaning of the word, Exod. xiii. 9. whence the Jewish practice of wearing them, ibid. how worn, ibid. on what the Pharisees founded the practice of using them, Prov. vii. 3. borders of, explained, Matt. xxiii. 5.
Physicians, who they were, Gen. l. 2. removed in the East when the king dies, Dan. v. 11.
Pictures, meaning of, Numb. xxxiii. 52. as much prohibited by the law as carved images, Ezek. viii. 10.
Pieces, to cut in pieces while alive, a Babylonian punishment, Dan. ii. 5.
Pierce, 'they that pierced Him,' phrase largely applied, Rev. i. 7. of whom literally spoken, Zech. xii. 10.
Piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, explained, Heb. iv. 12. to what it alludes, ibid. sentiment conveyed by it, ibid.
Piety, reward of, exemplified in Joseph, Gen. xli. 44.
—— of good men leads to confession of sin, Is. lxiv. 6. exemplified in the conduct of Christ, Luke v. 16. how it may degenerate, 2 Thess. iii. 9. caution on the subject to the first Christians, ibid.
Pigeons, young, why commanded to be offered, Lev. i. 14. of what colour in the East, Song of Sol. v. 12.
PI-HAHIROTH, meaning of the name, Exod. xiv. 2.
PILATE, PONTIUS, account of him and his office, Matt. xxvii. 2. his conviction of the innocence of Jesus, ver. 17; Luke xxiii. 4; John xviii. 38. reflections on his condemning Him contrary to his own conviction, Matt. xxvii. 24. his extreme reluctance in doing this remarkable, ibid. a weak, dishonest judge, ver. 26.

his reasons for sending Christ to Herod, Luke xxiii. 7. why he proposes to chastise Him, ver. 16. his fears about condemning Him, John xix. 8. his dread of being accused of disaffection to the Romans, ver. 12.
Pilgrimage, life so called by the Patriarchs, and why, Gen. xlvii. 9. Jacob's life literally such, ibid. life represented in the light of one, 2 Cor. v. 6.
—— land of, how spoken of the Patriarchs and their posterity, Exod. vi. 4.
Pilgrimages, common in the East, Exod. v. 1. probably very ancient, ibid.
Pilgrims, the Patriarchs were so literally, Heb. xi. 13. how they improved this, ibid. the same the condition in some degree of every man, ibid. reflections proper to be made by us, ibid.
Pillar set up by Jacob, a regular building, Gen. xxxi. 45. alluded to, Is. xix. 19.
—— set up over the dead with inscription, alluded to, Job xxi. 27.
—— Christ's promise to make 'him that overcometh a pillar in the temple' explained, Rev. iii. 12. used for bearing inscriptions to benefactors, ibid.
—— of a cloud, explained, Exod. xiii. 21.
'—— and ground of the truth,' in what respect the Church is so, 1 Tim. iii. 15. explanation of the phrase, ibid.
Pillars, objects of heathen worship, Deut. xii. 3. origin of the practice, ibid.
—— description of the two placed at the entrance of the temple porch, 1 Kings vii. 15.
'Pillows under armholes,' the expression illustrated, Ezek. xiii. 18.
Pin, to fasten a pin in the walls, what it denotes, Ecclus. xiv. 24. See Nail.
Pinnacle of the temple, what, Matt. iv. 5.
Pipes, musick of, used at funerals, Jer. xlviii. 36. used by the Jews for joy and for lamentation, Matt. xi. 17.
Pisgah, its character, Numb. xxiii. 14. where situated, Numb. xxvii. 12; Deut. xxxiv. 1.
Pison, course and modern name of this river, Gen. ii. 11.
Pit, used to catch wild beasts, Ps. vii. 15. what it was, Is. xxiv. 17. made by Asa, what it was, Jer. xli. 9. dry, used by Arabians to catch lions, Ezek. xix. 4.
—— the place of departed souls, Ezek. xxvi. 20.
—— bottomless, why permitted to be opened, Rev. ix. 2.
Pits, those of water excepted, in the law of uncleanness, Lev. xi. 36. put for cisterns, Jer. xiv. 3. dungeons in great houses, Zech. ix. 11.
Pitchers for carrying water, how used by the women of Greece and Palestine, Gen. xxiv. 15. remark illustrative of those used by Gideon, Judg. vii. 16.
Pithon, meaning of the name, Exod. i. 11. its situation, ibid.
Place, put for home, country, Prov. xxvii. 8.
'—— God's,' what meant by, Mic. i. 3. what meant by God returning to it, Hos. v. 15.
Places, particular, should be set aside for God's service, Exod. xxix. 44.
—— broad, for marketplaces, Jer. v. 1.
Plague of London, remarkable circumstance in it, Lev. xiv. 34. its resemblance to the leprosy in houses, ibid.
Plagues of Egypt have a peculiar reference to that people, Exod. iii. 20. why made more awful and tremendous in their progress, Exod. vii. 17. bore an analogy to the crimes of the people, ver. 20. why God employed contemptible animals for inflicting them, Exod. viii. 1. why some experienced by the Israelites, and others not, ver. 22. probably some interval between them, Exod. ix. 19. duration of the whole, ibid. at what season of the year they happened, ver. 31. purpose of Providence in sending them, Exod. xi. 5. their gradual increase, ver. 10. what we are taught by them, ibid.
Plainness of speech, why used by the Apostles, 2 Cor. iii. 12.
Plaister, why used on the stones set up by command of Moses, Deut. xxvii. 2.
'Plant the heavens,' what it signifies, Is. li. 16.
'—— of renown,' God's people, why so called, Ezek. xxxiv. 29.
Pleasure, love of, its effect on the mind, exemplified, Esth. iii. 11.
Pledge, 'take their pledge,' conjectures respecting the meaning, 1 Sam. xvii. 18.
Pliny, remarkable notice of a practice of the first Christians in his letter to Trajan, 1 Cor. i. 2. one of his Epistles compared with one of St. Paul's, Philem. ver. 25.
Ploughing with an ox and ass together, reasons for its prohibition, Deut. xxii. 10.
—— followed in the East all the winter, Prov. xx. 4.
Ploughs, rudeness of those used in ancient times, Luke ix. 62.
Plummet of Ahab to be stretched over Jerusalem, explained, 2 Kings xxi. 13. God's judgments represented by one, Amos vii. 7, 8. its use in building, Zech. iv. 10.
Plural, put for singular, Josh. vii. 1; Matt. ii. 20. used to denote eminency, Mic. v. 2.
Plurality of Persons in the Godhead denoted, by the plural substantive with the singular verb, Gen. i. 1. by the language of God at the creation, ver. 26. by a singular and plural noun, Deut. vi. 4. clearly shewn, Dan. ix. 17; Zech. ii. 8, 11; iii. 2.
Poets, Greek, quoted by St. Paul in three places, Acts xvii. 28. the passages introduced with propriety and judgment, ibid.
Poetical expression, man possessed it in his perfect state, Ps. cxlviii. introd.
—— spirit, early existence of among the Hebrews, Judg. v. 1.
Poetry, its early connexion with religion, Exod. xv. 1. cultivated in this connexion by the Israelites, ibid. their excellence in it, ver. 21.
Policy, worldly, its deserved effects, John xi. 48.
Political duties enforced by St. Paul, Rom. xiii. necessary in consequence of the opinions of the Jews, ibid.
Pollutions, legal, variety of, their tendency, Lev. xv. 31. their design, ibid.
Polycarp, St. John's disciple, the angel of the church of Smyrna, Rev. ii. 8.
Polygamy, not from the beginning, Gen. i. 27. not agreeable to the provisions of nature, Gen. ii. 24. a deviation from the first institution of marriage, Gen. iv. 19. by whom first practised, ibid. its effect on domestick happiness, Gen. xvi. 4. not forbidden to the Israelites, Lev. xviii. 18. its bad consequences, Deut. xxiv. 4. why permitted to the Israelites, ibid. 1 Tim. iii. 2. in the times of the Old Testament not disallowed by God, 1 Sam. i. 2; 2 Sam. xii. 8. Prophet's argument against it, Mal. ii. 15. forbidden by the Gospel, Gen. xxix. 30; 1 Cor. vii. 2. how to be corrected under the Gospel, 1 Tim. iii. 2. where the reformation must begin, ibid. how and when rooted out of the Church, ibid.
Pomegranate juice, wine made from, Song of Sol. viii. 2.
—— seed, white mixed with red, comparison to it, Song of Sol. iv. 3.
Pomegranates on the high priest's robe explained, Exod. xxviii. 33. comparisons to this fruit common in Scripture, ibid. in the temple alluded to, Prov. xxv. 11.
Pool. See Bethesda, Siloam.
Poor, when not to be countenanced, Exod. xxiii. 3. enabled to make oblations to God, Lev. i. 14. their services acceptable, ibid. easy offerings allowed them, Lev. v. 11. reflections on a law for entertaining them, Deut. xiv. 28. care taken by the law of Moses to preserve compassion towards them, Deut. xv. 7. remarkable instance of their feelings being consulted by the law, Deut. xxiv. 10. pity on, inferred, Prov. xix. 17. have access to the ordinances of the Church, Is. lv. i.
—— preaching to the, peculiarity of this practice explained, Is. lxi. 1. blessings of the Gospel how promised to them, Zeph. iii. 12. presents made by them to their governours in the East, Mal. i. 8. dear in the sight of their Maker, Ecclus. iv. 6. God how called their Father, Ecclus. xxxiv. 20. the Gospel preached to them, the expression explained, Matt. xi. 5. reflections on their having the Gospel preached to them, Luke iv. 18. should extend bounty to such as are poorer, Eph. iv. 28. their encouragement to do so, ibid. Christianity a motive of joy to them, Jam. i. 9. strong consolation afforded to them, Jam. ii. 5. not to relieve their necessities, what it shews, 1 John iii. 16.
—— put for the humble, afflicted and helpless, Ps. x. 2.
'—— in spirit' explained, Matt. v. 3.
Pope, the, described by the little horn, three kingdoms plucked up by him, Dan. vii. 8. his policy, boasting, and the unlimited superiority he claims, ver. 20, 21. his power, ecclesiastical and civil, ver. 24. his blasphemy, ver. 25. his supremacy, when first established, Dan. xii. 7. probably designed by the image of the beast, Rev. xiii. 14.

Popes, succession of, how described by Daniel and St. Paul, 2 Thess. ii. 3. their character for arrogance, ver. 4. impiety, ibid. and imposition, ver. 9. how spoken of by the reformers, ver. 11. See Church of Rome, Peter, &c.
Popery, main pillars of, how subverted, 1 Cor. ix. 5.
Popish ecclesiasticks, the reverence paid to them, Dan. xi. 39.
Popularity, undeserved, not secure of perpetuity, Esth. vii. 6.
Porters, of the temple, meaning guards, 1 Chron. ix. 17; xxvi. 1. the office not an ignoble one, 1 Chron. xxvi. 1.
Portion brought by a wife to her husband, Gen. xxix. 18.
'—— of the anointing of Aaron' explained, Lev. vii. 35.
—— 'of the lawgiver,' why the inheritance of Gad so called, Deut. xxxiii. 21.
'—— of Jacob,' for God of Jacob, Jer. x. 16.
Portions, the draught of the several, Ezek. xlv. 6.
Possessing all things, how St. Paul so spoken of, 2 Cor. vi. 10.
Possessions, why restored to their owners in the year of jubilee, Lev. xxv. 13. lent by God, not given, Job i. 21. the right use of all worldly ones, Luke xvi. 9.
—— demoniacal, proved to be distinct from madness, Matt. iv. 24. proofs of their reality, ibid. viii. 32. arguments against the contrary opinion, Matt. iv. 24. why permitted, ibid.
Posts, description of those anciently used in Persia, Esth. iii. 13. account of their establishment by Cyrus, ibid.
Postscripts to St. Paul's Epistles, remark on their authority, 1 Cor. xvi. Postsc.
Potiphar's wife, her aggravated sin, Gen. xxxix. 17.
Pots, management of, for boiling in the East, Lev. xi. 35.
Potter, comparison to, explained, Jer. xviii. 6. comparison of by St. Paul, unfolded and explained, Rom. ix. 20.
Potters' field, still shewn by tradition, Matt. xxvii. 7.
Powder for the hair, of what colour, Song of Sol. v. 11.
Power, use to be made of that entrusted to men by Providence, Esth. iv. 14.
—— supreme, observation on, Wisd. xii. 16.
—— what meant by the expression, that 'the woman ought to have power on her head,' 1 Cor. xi. 10.
—— of darkness, explained, Col. i. 13.
—— of our Lord Jesus Christ, what meant by it, 1 Cor. v. 4.
—— of death, why attributed to the devil, Heb. ii. 14.
—— of God, causes fear of Him, Jer. v. 22.
—— of life and death generally vested in supreme governours, Rom. xiii. 4. remarks on its compatibility with the Gospel, ibid.
'Powers of the world to come' explained, Heb. vi. 5.
Practical consequences, their obvious necessity in those who receive the word, Jam. i. 22.
Practice of religion the true end of the knowledge of it, John xiii. 17.
Praise, the duty of, enforced, Ps. l. 23. the effect of, Prov. xxvii. 21.
—— of man, infatuation of preferring it to the praise of God, John xii. 43.
Praising God, two ways of, in a congregation, both used in our Church, Eph. v. 19. remarks on descriptions in the Old Testament, ibid. and on the practice of the first Christians, ibid. and of the Church in subsequent times, and at present, ibid.
Pray with the Spirit, and with the understanding, explained, 1 Cor. xiv. 15.
—— without ceasing, not to be strictly adhered to, 1 Thess. v. 17. proper meaning of the precept, ibid.
Prayer, on what principle offered to God, Numb. xxii. 9. why necessary to be added to the several parts of the whole armour of God, Eph. vi. 18. proper remedy at the season of distress, 1 Sam. i. 11. necessity of it in sickness, Job xxxiii. 26. how shewn to be a means of comfort and refreshment, Ps. xiii. 4. our best refuge in danger, Ps. cxlii. 7. benefits of it, Dan. ii. 18. its efficacy, Matt. vii. 7; xxi. 22; Luke xviii. 6, 7. great encouragement to devotion thence derived, Matt. vii. 7. how shewn to be acceptable to God, Rev. v. 8. why often not answered by God, Matt. xv. 28. not to supersede our own best exertions, Neh. iv. 9.
Prayer, efficacy of it exemplified in Abraham, Gen. xviii. 32. recommended by the example of Jacob, Gen. xxxii. 9. remarks on it as practised by Daniel, Dan. vi. 10. what to be learned from the example of Christ, Matt. xiv. 23. His frequent recurrence to it, Luke v. 16; vi. 12; ix. 28. His example to be imitated, ibid.
—— what sort of consistent with piety and godliness, Ps. vi. 8. recollection necessary to it, Eccles. v. 2. without repentance of no avail, Jonah iii. 8. frequency and earnestness in it recommended, Luke xi. 8. and fervour and diligence, Luke xviii. 1, 5. to be offered with humility, ver. 11, 13, 14. ostentation in it forbidden, Matt. vi. 6. not publicity, ibid. vain repetitions not to be used, ver. 7. how they were practised by the heathens, ibid. and with what motive, ver. 8. different dispositions fit for it specified, Eph. vi. 18. a model for it, Ecclus. l. 22. earnestly poured forth by Christ without vehement ejaculations, Matt. xxvi. 39. but with perfect resignation to His Father's will, ibid. why to be made in Christ's name, John xvi. 23, 26. Christ the proper object of it, Joel ii. 32; Rom. x. 13. See Adoration, Christ the proper object of worship.
—— wisdom of Christ's disciples in asking to be taught how to pray, Luke xi. 1. decided authority of Christ for praying by a set form, ver. 2. instance of one commemorating the mercies of God, Ps. viii. 4. of one for uprightness and integrity, Ps. xv. 5. a good example of a prayer, Ecclus. l. 22. See Forms of Prayer.
—— attitudes of the Hebrews in prayer, Ps. xxxv. 13; Matt. vi. 5. retirement for the purpose, why customary, Judith xii. 6. stated hours of it among the Jews, Acts iii. 1. what they accompanied it with, Rev. v. 8. why the early Christians held assemblies for it at night, Acts xii. 12. what expressed by kneeling at it, Eph. iii. 14. See Kneeling.
——how distinguished from preaching, 1 Tim. ii. 1. why to be preferred before it, ibid. ground of St. Paul's charge to Timothy concerning the Liturgy of the Church, ibid.
—— the Lord's, why so called, Matt. vi. 9. its general character and excellence, ibid. a most perfect model of devotion, ibid. a paraphrase of it, Matt. vi. 13. See Lord's Prayer.
—— of St. Chrysostom, propriety of a clause in it remarked, 1 John v. 14.
—— for all Conditions of Men, remark on a comprehensive request contained in it, Jam. v. 16.
—— of faith, its power, Exod. xvii. 11. what meant by it, Jam. v. 15. what benefit was to accompany it, ibid.
—— gift or spirit of, erroneously supposed to be a special gift of the Holy Ghost, 1 Cor. xiv. 15. what the talent depends on, ibid. no harm in restraining it, ibid.
Prayer and fasting, efficacy of with God shewn in the instance of Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xx. 27. way of averting judgments, Joel ii. 12.
Prayers, what proper subject of our daily morning, Ps. xlix. 20.
—— efficacy of those by two or three assembled together, Matt. xviii. 19. how God truly answers them, 2 Cor. xii. 9. seeming disregard of them should not discourage or dismay us, ibid. by what considerations we may be comforted, ibid. those for all men, why approved of by God, 1 Tim. ii. 3. St. Paul's argument for the duty stated, ver. 5. what they should be, 1 Tim. ii. 8. why faith required in order to obtaining them, Jam. i. 6. what sort of faith required, ibid. necessity of using our own endeavours to acquire the desired object, ibid. general declaration concerning their efficacy how to be limited, 1 John iii. 22. how far we may rely on their being granted, 1 John v. 14.
—— of the Church, why intreated in most of St. Paul's Epistles, Philem. ver. 22.
—— of our fellow Christians to be joined with our own, Jam. v. 16. scriptural practice and precept relating to it, ibid. liturgical provisions for it, ibid. our duty and interest thereupon, ibid.
—— of the faithful, their efficacy, Exod. xxxii. 10.
—— of good men, their efficacy, 1 Sam. vii. 9; 2 Kings xx. 7; Acts xii. 5.
—— of pious persons, opinion concerning them entertained by the Jews, 1 Tim. ii. 1. confirmed by Christ, ibid. exhortations agreeable to it in the New Testament, 1 Tim. ii. 1. examples founded on it in the Old, ibid. reflection upon the character in which the righteous are represented, ibid.

Praying with the Spirit as belonging to the present age, what it and similar phrases signify, 1 Cor. xiv. 15.
Preached peace, in what sense Christ did so to the Gentiles, Eph. ii. 17. in what sense he preached unto the spirits in prison, 1 Pet. iii. 9.
Preachers of the Gospel, illiterate men not qualified to be so, 1 Cor. xii. 8—10.
—— of religion, peculiar to the religion delivered in Scripture, Eph. iv. 12.
Preaching the Gospel, exposition of St. Paul's argument about his having nothing to glory of in doing it, 1 Cor. ix. 16.
—— of St. Paul, subject, manner, and end of it, Col. i. 28.
Precept, Christian, necessary limitation of, Matt. vii. 12.
—— positive, used in a comparative sense, Matt. vi. 19.
Precepts of God, our rule, Is. viii. 20.
—— Christian, not always to be understood literally, Matt. v. 39. often to be interpreted by the reason of the hearer, ibid.
Predestinate, who may be said to be predestinated to life, Rom. viii. 28. opinion of the early Fathers of the Church on that subject, ibid.
Predestinated, what it signifies, Eph. i. 5. to whom applied, ibid. reasons for supposing that the persons so described might fail of salvation, ibid. why said to be predestinated according to the good pleasure of God's will, ibid.
Predestination, only sense in which reconcileable with the attributes of God and the free agency of man, Rom. viii. 28.
Preeminence, in what respects Christ said to have it, Col. i. 18.
Preference of one thing over another, how expressed, Jer. vii. 22; 1 Cor. i. 17.
Prejudice corrupts the moral judgment, Luke xi. 35.
Prejudices, vain, to be subjected to authority of holy writ, Dan. xii. 10.
Preparation, day of, what meant by it, Matt. xxvii. 62; John xix. 14.
'Prepare the way,' explained by allusion to Eastern customs, Matt. iii. 3.
Presbytery, what meant by 'the laying on of the hands of the,' 1 Tim. iv. 14.
Presence of God, on what conditions to be hoped for, 2 Cor. xiii. 11.
—— of the Lord, the place where He spoke to the Prophets, Jonah i. 3.
Present tense used for the future, 1 John iii. 22.
Presents in the East essential to civil intercourse, Gen. xxi. 27. the practice of giving and asking for them common, Exod. iii. 22. usually made to rulers, Deut. xvi. 16. the parade with which they are made, Judg. iii. 18. considered as essential to humane intercourse, 1 Sam. ix. 7. men of rank are never approached without them in modern times, ibid. frequency of the custom of making them, 1 Sam. x. 27. necessary to be brought on consulting the Prophet, 1 Kings xiv. 3. the formality with which they are made, 2 Kings viii. 9. always given when person of distinction visited, Job xlii. 11. disproportionate ones rejected, Mal. i. 8.
—— to inferiours seized by superiours, Ecclus. xli. 21.
Presentation of Christ in the temple, reflections on it, Luke ii. 22.
'Press toward the mark for the prize,' meaning of the passage, Phil. iii. 14.
Presumption of man corrected, Exod. iii. 5.
—— of the ungodly, its vanity declared by the providential punishment of it, Esth. vii. 9.
—— the great occasion of falling, 1 Cor. x. 12. as to our salvation discouraged, Phil. ii. 13. evil effect of it, 1 John v. 4.
Presumptuous sins, what they mean, Ps. xix. 13.
Prevent, means make way for, Ps. lix. 10. come before, Ps. lxxxviii. 13. anticipate, 1 Thess. iv. 15.
Prevented, means came unawares, Ps. xviii. 18. surprised, Wisd. iv. 7. anticipated, Wisd. vi. 13.
Prey, his life as a prey, explained, Jer. xxi. 9.
Pricks in your eyes, explained, Numb. xxxiii. 55.
Pride, especially offensive to God, Gen. xi. 4. inefficacy of its attempts, ibid. hardens the heart, Exod. x. 7. ground of all sedition, Numb. xii. 2. represented in Scripture as most odious, Deut. viii. 14. examples of it, ibid. by removing caution bringeth shame, Prov. xi. 2.
Pride, Pharisaical, a worse obstacle than profligacy to the reception of the Gospel, Matt. xxi. 31. its sinfulness in the sight of God, Luke xviii. 11. its punishment, ver. 14.
—— and ambition, example of their miserable influence, Esth. iii. 6.
—— and jealousy, their unhappy effects when interfering with publick or private duty, 2 Sam. xix. 43.
Priest, his office to bless, Gen. xiv. 18. his intercession necessary to atonement, Lev. v. 13. why not to be interrupted in the exercise of his office, Lev. xxi. 12. forbidden to contract foreign marriages, ver. 15. why required to be free from any bodily blemish, ver. 17. to strive with the priest a capital offence, Hos. iv. 4.
—— the second, his office, Jer. xxix. 26.
—— 'I will raise Me up a faithful priest,' to whom it alludes, 1 Sam. ii. 35.
Priests, who intended by them at the delivery of the law, Exod. xix. 22.
—— garments worn by, why called holy, Exod. xxviii. 2.
—— sins of, taken away only by the sacrifice of Christ, Lev. viii. 17.
—— by whom consecrated, Lev. viii. 36. private persons forbidden to act as such, Lev. xvii. 3. why not permitted to do any thing about a dead body, Lev. xxi. 1. extent to which the prohibition was carried, ibid. copied by the Greeks and Romans, ibid. exceptions to the rule, ibid. why not to shave their head or wear their hair long, ver. ; Ezek. xliv. 20. prohibitions with respect to their marrying, Lev. xxi. 7. why disqualified by legal impurities for their ministry, Lev. xxii. 3. their proper office, Numb. iii. 10. their office to make atonement for the people, Numb. xvi. 46. their duty to instruct, Mal. ii. 7.
—— in the time of Josiah, their apostasy and corruption, 2 Kings xxiii. 8. Josiah's mercy mixed with some severity towards them, ver. 9. the division of their courses, and the periods of their ministering, 1 Chron. xxiv. 1. their appointment why determined by lot, ver. 5. the national advantage of the weekly circulation of priests and Levites through the country, ibid. only four courses of them returned from the Babylonish captivity, Ezra ii. 36. from a tower watched the daybreak to offer oblation, Ps. cxxx. 6. when to be taken from all nations, Is. lxvi. 21. their chambers described, Ezek. xl. 45. how consecrated, Ezek. xliii. 26. reproved for feeding on the sin offering, Hos. iv. 8. seduced the people to idolatry, Hos. vi. 8. associated for murdering, ver. 9.
—— daughters of, regulation concerning, Lev. xxi. 9.
—— the cities of, all in the southern tribes and near Jerusalem, Josh. xxi. 13. this directed by a special Providence for wise purposes, ibid.
—— chief, who comprehended under the term, Matt. ii. 4. their contrivances to effect the death of Jesus, Matt. xxvii. 1. their inhumanity and indifference to justice, ver. 4. their attempts to ensnare Jesus, Luke xx. 20. their consent to the plan to assassinate St. Paul, Acts xxiii. 12. their wicked dispositions hereby shewn, ibid.
—— Jewish, when they began their ministry, Luke iii. 23. the great number of them, Acts vi. 7.
—— of the Lord, to whom under the Gospel the term applies, Is. lxi. 6.
'—— the Levites,' meaning those of the tribe of Levi who were priests, Josh. iii. 3.
—— and Levites, their weekly courses of attendance in the temple, 2 Kings xi. 5.
Priesthood, an office both honourable and burdensome, Numb. xviii. 1. dress of the Jewish, considered, Is. lxi. 10. change of it carried with it the abolition of the law, Heb. vii. 12. peculiar functions of, ascribed to Christ, Heb. ix. 12.
—— of Christ, Ps. cx. 4, 7. when consummated, Heb. v. 10. where and how continued, ibid. its unchangeableness an argument for its superiour excellence, Heb. vii. 24.
—— evangelical, excuse for its blemishes, Numb. xii. 1.
'—— everlasting' explained, Exod. xl. 15.

Priesthood, legal, its insufficiency, Numb. xii. 1. necessity of a sinless high priest, ibid.
—— regular, first appointed, Exod. xxviii. 1.
Prince, a nation should pray for their, Ps. xx. 9.
—— of the Jews, his seat in the temple, Ezek. xliv. 3. his portion, Ezek. xlviii. 21. the offerings he is to make, Ezek. xlv. 16; xlvi. 4. his power of alienating his inheritance, ver. 17.
—— of life, why Christ so called, Acts iii. 15.
Princes of the East, occupied in menial employments, Gen. xviii. 7; xxvii. 4.
—— of Judah, the Sanhedrim, Jer. xxvi. 10.
—— of the sea, princes of maritime cities, Ezek. xxvi. 16, 17.
Principles, their importance to good practice, Gen. vi. 5.
—— religious or irreligious, their influence on the actions, Tit. ii. 12.
—— of true religion, distinguished from its effects, Jam. i. 27. errour and unfairness of confounding them, ibid.
—— book of Job written in opposition to two independent ones, Job ii. 10.
Print marks, a Gentile practice explained, Lev. xix. 27, 28.
Prisca, who she was, 2 Tim. iv. 19.
Priscilla and Aquila, why St. Paul calls them his helpers in Christ Jesus, Rom. xvi. 3. why said to have laid down their own necks for his life, ver. 4. why the churches of the Gentiles gave thanks to them, ibid.
Prisons, Eastern, where they are situate, Jer. xxxvii. 15.
Prisoner, the custom of releasing one at the feast, Matt. xxvii. 15.
'Prisoners, His,' what the phrase means, Ps. lxix. 33.
Private persons, forbidden to act as priests, Lev. xvii. 3. not to usurp the magistrate's office, Numb. xxv. 13.
Procession of the Holy Ghost from the Father and the Son, proved, Gal. iv. 6. See Holy Ghost.
Proclamation in God's name to Moses, considerations respecting it, Numb. xiv. 18.
Proclamations, where made, Prov. i. 20.
Prodigal son, parable of, remarkable for its beauty and affecting nature, Luke xv. 11. explanation of it, ibid. and following verses. it sets before us a lively image of a sinner, ver. 18. application of it, ver. 32.
Profane person, why Esau so called, Heb. xii. 16. who deserves the appellation, ibid.
—— 'profaning the name of God,' in what it consists, Lev. xix. 12.
Profaneness prepares the way for superstition, Matt. xii. 2.
Profession of faith, must be accompanied with a life answerable to it, Rom. viii. 9. when and how to be made, 1 Pet. iii. 15.
Promise of God, not to fail or forsake His people, Deut. xxxi. 6. renewed to Joshua, ibid. how applied by the Apostle, ibid.
—— made to the fathers, what it means, Jer. xxxiii. 14.
—— what meant by 'the promise,' Heb. xi. 39.
Promises of God, are conditional, Jer. xviii. 10; Dan. ix. 3. to any of His servants, why recorded in Scripture, Heb. xiii. 5. if rightly understood will not fail us, ibid.
—— of the Gospel, what they are, 1 Tim. iv. 8. if not enjoyed, question where the fault lies, ibid. good men seldom fail of them, ibid.
—— and threatenings, intermixed in Prophets, Mic. ii. 12.
Promised land, its general boundaries, Josh. i. 4. See Canaan.
Prophecy, one of the clearest and strongest, Is. liii. 12. instance of one fulfilled in all its parts, Jer. xxxiv. 2. an apparently inconsistent one accomplished, Ezek. xii. 13. the value of the argument founded on it, Acts iii. 18.
—— a more sure word of, remarks on the design of St. Peter in adverting to it, 2 Pet. i. 19. no comparison intended between miracles and prophecy, ibid. what to be understood by it, ibid. character of the knowledge given by it, ibid. explanation of the passage 'no prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation,' ver. 20.
—— its language seems to command what it merely permits, Rev. xviii. 6.
—— of Christ respecting the sufferings of James and John accomplished, Matt. xx. 23. respecting the destruction of Jerusalem, its principal and subordinate senses, Matt. xxiv. introd. had a remoter reference to the destruction of the world, ver. 42.
Prophecy, gift of, explained, Rom. xii. 6.
—— spirit of, imparted by God to whom He pleased, 1 Sam. x. 12.
—— meaning of the word, Prov. xxx. 1.
Prophecies, ancient, to be understood of whole nations, Gen. ix. 25. and of them only conditionally, ibid. not of individuals, ibid. their harmony, Numb. xxiii. 24.
—— latter explain the former, Dan. xi. 1. nature of some not to be perfectly understood till fulfilled, Dan. vii. 25, 26. when improperly applied to those of whom spoken, fulfilled in Christ, Hos. xi. 1. application of those relating to the Messiah, Hag. ii. 23. difficulty in interpreting some, Zech. vi. 8. in those respecting Christ, the minutest circumstances described, Matt. xxi. 4.
—— completion of, not understood at the time by the Apostles, John xii. 16.
—— of Christ respecting his death and resurrection, infatuation of the Jews in thinking to prevent their completion, Matt. xxvii. 63.
—— of the Old Testament, their application in the New, Matt. ii. 23.
Prophesied, in what sense Saul and his messengers did so, 1 Sam. xix. 20, 23. extensive signification of the word, ibid.
Prophesy, a word of extensive signification, Numb. xi. 25. its senses enumerated, ibid.
—— with harps, &c. meaning of the phrase, 1 Chron. xxv. 1.
—— in the sense of 'teach,' Matt. xv. 7. what it signifies, 1 Cor. xiv. 1.
Prophesying, what it signifies, 1 Cor. xi. 4. the gift of it compared with speaking in a foreign language, 1 Cor. xiv. 1, 2. particulars in the comparison explained, ver. 2, &c. the power of it to whom indifferently ascribed, 1 Pet. i. 11. what it denotes, ibid.
Prophet, who signified by the name, Gen. xx. 7. a true Prophet called a watchman, Hos. ix. 8. why none could perish out of Jerusalem, Luke xiii. 33. used for teacher, Acts xv. 32. its double signification, 1 Cor. xiv. 1. the different senses in which the word is used in both Testaments, Judg. iv. 4.
'—— like unto Moses,' what convinced the multitude that Jesus was He, Numb. xi. 21. how this prediction was understood by the Jews, Deut. xviii. 18. fulfilled in our Saviour, ibid. marks of resemblance, ibid. applied to our Lord several times in the New Testament, ibid.
Prophets, who, General Introd. to Prophets. their writings, ibid. language, ibid. wrote in verse, ibid. collected their own prophecies, ibid. order in which they flourished, ibid. called seers, Numb. xxiv. 17. their threats mostly confined to one species of guilt, Deut. xxix. 25. meaning of the term, 1 Sam. x. 5. the respect even of the Philistines for these ministers of religion, ibid. Saul made to prophesy with them, ver. 6. probably schools of them in Israel till the time of Jezebel, 1 Kings xviii. 4. what persons meant by, ibid. who those consulted by Ahab were, 1 Kings xxii. 6. represented by outward signs the future events they foretold, ver. 11. gave publick instruction on certain days, 2 Kings iv. 23. compared to and called watchmen, Is. xxi. 11. said to do what they declare God will, Jer. i. 10. struck with dread at the judgments they denounced, Jer. xxiii. 9. particulars of those in Jeremiah's time, Jer. xxix. 1. had need of great presence of mind, Ezek. ii. 6. said to execute what they foretell, Ezek. xxiii. 45; Hos. vi. 5. a succession of them from Samuel to the captivity, Amos iii. 7. things which befell them types of what should befall Christ, Jonah i. 17. none to be expected after Malachi under the law, Mal. iv. 4. meaning teachers or interpreters of the law, Matt. xxiv. 11. meaning inspired teachers, Acts xi. 27. who called so in the primitive Church, Eph. iii. 5. in many respects types of Christ, Heb. ii. 12. what alluded to, 2 Pet. iii. 2.
—— minor, comprised in one book, by whom collected, why so called, their writings described, Introd. to Minor Prophets.
—— schools of, established among the Jews, 2 Kings ii. 3. God's continuance of them a proof of His kindness to an apostate people, ibid.

Prophets, for false prophets, Jer. v. 31; xxvi. 7.
—— false, their folly foretold, Hos. ix. 7. wore dress of old Prophets, Zech. xiii. 4. would try to seduce Christ's disciples, Matt. vii. 15.
—— and Apostles, inspired by the same Spirit, 1 Pet. i. 11. inference as to the sameness of their doctrine, ibid.
Prophetess, in what sense Deborah called one, Judg. iv. 4.
Prophetesses, false, among the Jews, Ezek. xiii. 17.
Prophetical style, in it is the same whether a thing be uttered in the past or the future or the imperative, Rev. xxii. 11.
Propitiation through Christ, the sole cause of our acceptance with God, John vi. 58.
—— signification of the original word, Rom. iii. 25. considerations on its application to Christ, ibid. what it means, 1 John ii. 2. how Christ was so, ibid. remark on the use and signification of the original word, ibid.
Proportion of faith, according to, explained, Rom. xii. 6. St. Paul's design in speaking of it, ibid.
Proprietors of land, how stirred to acts of generosity, Lev. xix. 9.
Proselytes, why excluded from certain privileges among the Israelites, Deut. xxiii. 1. accession of to Jewish church predicted, Zech. ii. 11. two sorts of, Matt. viii. 10.
Prosopopœia, instance of, Job xxxviii. 35. See Personification.
Prosperity, its ill effects, Gen. xl. 23. its danger, Deut. vi. 12. apt to promote wantonness, Deut. xxxii. 15. and forgetfulness of God, ibid. the parent of corruption, exemplified in the Jews, Judg. iii. 12; iv. 1. its dangerous temptation to virtue, 2 Sam. xi. 2.
—— earthly, happiness does not depend upon it, Esth. v. 13.
Prostitutes, one of their usages in the East, Prov. ix. 14.
Prostitution, horrible practice of, with some heathens, Lev. xix. 29.
Proud, for the contemptuous disregarders of God's law, Ps. cxix. 21.
Prove, instances of God's proving men, Exod. xv. 25. what meant by God's proving the Israelites, Exod. xvi. 4.
—— all things,' meaning of the precept, 1 Thess. v. 21.
Proverb, meaning of the word, Is. xiv. 4.
Proverbs, they that speak in, explained, Numb. xxi. 27.
—— or wise sentences, spoken by Solomon, 1 Kings iv. 32.
—— Jewish, alluded to by our Saviour, Matt. vii. 3.
—— the meaning of Christ's speaking in them, John xvi. 25.
—— a saying quoted from by St. Peter, 2 Pet. ii. 22.
—— book of, most part written by Solomon, contains maxims of long experience, consists of five divisions, some by men of Hezekiah, by Agur, by mother of Lemuel, quoted by the Apostles, Introd. to Proverbs. Solomon's, are moral sentences, ibid. their use, Prov. i. 2. study of, much used in time of Solomon, ver. 6.
Providence of God, brings good out of evil, Gen. xi. 4. often protects from publick calamity those who love Him, Gen. xix. 22. interposes to restrain men from evil, Gen. xxxi. 55. works by means of the wickedness of men, Gen. xxxvii. 27. protection of, exemplified in Joseph, Gen. xxxix. 4. mode of its operations exemplified in Joseph, Gen. xli. 57. true application of the doctrine, ibid. exercises a parental care, Exod. ii. 4. often interposes in private life, Exod. iii. 10. strangeness of the means used by it for the protection of God's people, Exod. xiv. 19. all events to be cast on it, Exod. xvii. 4. instances of its miraculous interposition in favour of the Israelites, enumerated, Deut. iv. 32. remarkable in defending the country of Judea at the three great feasts, Deut. xvi. 16. its wonderful wisdom in using the passions of men for its purposes, Judg. xx. 48. an instance of this, ibid. overruling all things, 1 Sam. ii. 6. this doctrine a consolation to the good, ibid. employed in defending persecuted virtue, 1 Sam. xix. 23. shewn in infatuating the judgment of Absalom's followers, 2 Sam. xvii. 14. its dealings involved in mystery to us, 2 Sam. xxi. 1. all things subject to its control, 1 Kings viii. 35. illustrated in taking care of God's distressed servants, 1 Kings xvii. 15. its remarkable interposition at all times in the government of the Israelites, 2 Kings xviii. 23. protecting religious princes and nations, 2 Chron. xiv. 12; xv. 2. for what purpose it entrusts men with power, &c. Esth. iv. 14. reflections on its interference in human affairs, Esth. vi. 1. interposition of, exemplified in the punishment of different wicked men, Esth. vii. 9. frequently works by ordinary means, ver. 10. exemplified in the deliverance of the Jews from Haman, ibid. reasons of it not to be questioned, Job xl. 2. orders the affairs of this world, Eccles. ix. 11. proved to extend to particulars, Ezek. xiv. 14. perpetually interposes in human affairs, Dan. iv. 17. magnificent idea of it, Matt. x. 30. importance and consolatory nature of this doctrine, ver. 31. our dependence upon it not to exclude our own exertions, Matt. vi. 11; John vi. 27; Acts xxvii. 31. dependence on it recommended, Matt. vi. 25. its justice vindicated in the punishment of sin, Matt. xxiii. 32. distinguished the righteous from the wicked at the destruction of Jerusalem, Matt. xxiv. 37, 41. promise of it to assist and preserve the first preachers of the Gospel, Luke xxi. 13, 15, 18. the laws of nature subservient to it, Acts xxvii. 25. a belief of it keeps alive in us a sense of piety, ibid. our dependence on, to be habitually acknowledged, Jam. iv. 15. a particular clause in which the Apostle conveys the sentiment, why needless to be always expressed, ibid.
Providence of God, methods of, why we should not sit in judgment on them, 1 Cor. i. 24.
—— scheme of, its amazing extent, Eph. i. 10. hints concerning it, why given to us, ibid.
Providences, God's special, to be diligently marked, Ps. lxiv. 9.
Province, men to keep themselves within their own, 2 Cor. x. 18.
Provision for a family, neglect of making it, strongly reprobated, 2 Thess. iii. 9.
Provoked to jealousy, what it means, Rom. xi. 11.
Provoking one another, what meant by it, Gal. v. 26. remark on the seasonableness of the exhortation, ibid.
Prudence with respect to our adversaries recommended, Col. iv. 5.
Psalm II. appellation in it, to whom acknowledged by the Jews to belong, Heb. i. 5. for what purposes cited by St. Paul, ibid. VIII. how interpreted by St. Paul, Heb. ii. 6. XIV. remark on the Greek version of it, Rom. iii. 10. to whom St. Paul's quotation of it may be applied, ibid. XVI. referred to by St. Paul and St. Peter as a prediction of Christ's resurrection, 1 Cor. xv. 4. XVIII. interpreted by the Jews of Christ, Rom. xv. 9. to what effect quoted, Heb. ii. 13. XIX. why applied by St. Paul to the light of the Gospel, Rom. x. 18. XXII. quoted as prophetical of the passion and resurrection of Jesus, Heb. ii. 12. XL. referred to by St. Paul, Heb. x. 5. why quoted in the Septuagint version, ibid. reconciled with the passage in the book of Psalms, ibid. XLV. remarks on the propriety of the application of it, Heb. i. 8. LXVIII. applied by the Jews to the Messiah, Eph. iv. 8. XCV. subject of it wherein properly chosen, Heb. iii. 7. fitly applied by St. Paul, ibid. CX. alluded to by St. Mark and St. Paul, Eph. i. 20, 22. CXVI. spiritually applied by St. Paul, 2 Cor. iv. 13.
Psalms of David, their character, spiritual comfort they afford, their order as sung in the temple, Introd. to Psalms. clearly proved to be written under the influence of the Holy Ghost, Mark xii. 36. testimony to their inspiration, Heb. iii. 7.
—— book of, great part composed by David, all by inspired writers, collected by Ezra, quoted by our Saviour and His Apostles, not in chronological order, divided into five books, Introd. to Psalms.
—— and hymns sung in temple with instrumental musick, Amos v. 23.
—— and hymns and spiritual songs, what they probably signified, Eph. v. 19.
Psalmody, received sanction of Christ and His Apostles, Introd. to Psalms.
Psaltery, played upon with the fingers, Ps. xxxiii. 2.
Ptolemais, account of it, 1 Mac. v. 15; Acts xxi. 7.
Ptolemy, his division of Macedonian empire, Dan. viii. 8. his power described, Dan. xi. 5.
—— Euergetes, a prophecy fulfilled by him, survived Seleucus Callinicus, Dan. xi. 7.
—— Philopator defeats Antiochus according to prophecy, Dan. xi. 11. persecutes the Jews, ver. 12.
—— Philometor, his fortunes described, Dan. xi. 25—27.

Publicans, their general description and character, Matt. v. 46. why deemed by the Pharisees unfit to be conversed with, Luke xv. 2.
Publick calamities instances of God's mercy and justice, Deut. xiii. 15.
Pul, the first king of Assyria that invaded Israel, 2 Kings xv. 19. conjectures respecting him, ibid. probably king of Nineveh in time of Jonah, Jon. iii. 6.
—— what place meant, Is. lxvi. 19.
Pulling down of strong holds, what the original denotes, 2 Cor. x. 4.
Pulse, what grain so called, Dan. i. 12.
Punishment, why inflicted by God, Deut. xiii. 11. God proportions it to the sin, Mic. iii. 4. due to our sins, how to be averted, Rom. viii. 1. how men should be affected by the delay of it, 2 Pet. iii. 5.
Punishments, temporal, inflicted by the Apostles on notorious sinners, 1 Cor. iv. 21; v. 4. instances of their being inflicted, ibid. how expressed by St. Paul, ibid. what opposed to this power, ibid. why inflicted, ver. 5. the Apostles' power of inflicting them referred to, 2 Cor. x. 8. why given to them, ibid. 2 Cor. xiii. 8.
—— future, believed before coming of Christ, 2 Mac. vi. 26.
—— of Jewish courts, alluded to in reference to future punishments, Matt. v. 22.
'Purchased possession' explained, Eph. i. 14.
'Pure in heart,' what expressed by the term, Matt. v. 8.
—— 'unto the pure all things are pure' explained, Tit. i. 15. question concerning the persons to whose errours St. Paul alluded, ibid.
Purgatory, pretence of the Romanists concerning it, unfounded, 1 Cor. iii. 15.
Purification, how practised by the Jews and others, Gen. xxxv. 2. an emblem of inward purity, ibid. why practised in Egypt, Exod. ii. 5; vii. 15.
—— Jewish, significant of inward purity, Introd. to Lev. customary among the Gentiles after killing a man, Numb. xxxi. 19. before prayer, an ancient ceremony, Judith xii. 7. by what means beside blood, Heb. ix. 22.
—— of women, less rigid with the Israelites than the idolatrous nations, Lev. xii. 4. why a burnt offering commanded for it, ver. 6. why a sin offering, ibid.
Purifications performed at the great feasts, John xi. 55.
Purified, in what sense heaven may be said to be so, Heb. ix. 23.
Purifying of the Jews, what custom it alluded to, John ii. 6.
Purim, feast of, why celebrated, Introd. to Esth. why so called, ibid. observed by the Jews in Josephus' time, Esth. ix. 28. and to this day, ibid. accounts of the ceremonies used at it, confirmed by a publick act, ver. 32.
—— Epistle of, means book of Esther, Esth. Apoc. xi. 1.
Purity, inward, inculcated by the Levitical laws concerning bodily defilements, Numb. xix. 22. several laws concerning, why in particular enacted, Deut. xxiii. 17. real, does not consist in outward cleanliness, Matt. xv. 11. proper effect of the hope of heavenly happiness, 1 John iii. 3. constant study of a good man to attain it, ibid. reflection on the conduct of many Christians, ibid.
Purple, shell fish producing it found near the tribe of Zebulon, Deut. xxxiii. 19. put for auburn, Song of Sol. vii. 5.
—— raiment, anciently appropriated to kings, Judg. viii. 26.
Purpose of God, true import of it, Rom. viii. 28. according to election, spoken nationally, Rom. ix. 11.
Pursuit of happiness, compared to the race in the Olympian games, Phil. iii. 14. practical inferences from it, ibid.
'Put on the Lord Jesus Christ,' meaning and force of the expression, Rom. xiii. 14.
Puteoli, its situation and commerce, Acts xxviii. 13, 14.
Putrefaction extremely rapid in hot countries, John xi. 39.
Pyramids in Egypt, some built perhaps by the Israelites, Exod. i. 11. of what materials made, Exod. v. 7.
Pythagoreans, a notion of theirs, Wisd. viii. 20.

Q.

Quails, twice given to the Israelites, Exod. xvi. 13. where commonly found, ibid. in what the miracle consisted, ibid. not locusts, ibid. description of, ibid. question concerning them, Numb. xi. 31. remarks on their quantity, ibid. mode of preserving them, ver. 32.
Qualities, excellent, all the gift of God, Prov. xx. 12.
Quarries, doubts respecting the meaning of the word, Judg. iii. 19.
Quaternion, explained, Acts xii. 4.
Queen, custom relating to, in Abyssinia, illustrative of the history of Esther, Esth. ii. 17.
'Quench not the Spirit,' by what means it may be done, 1 Thess. v. 19.
Quenching the Spirit, as applied to us what it signifies, 1 Cor. xiv. 15.
Questions addressed by God to man, their intention, Gen. iii. 9.
—— discussed in the apostolical Epistles, state of them necessary to be carefully attended to, General Introd. to St. Paul's Epist. par. 3.
'Quick and the dead,' who meant by them, 1 Pet. iv. 5.
Quickened, how God hath quickened us, Eph. ii. 5.
—— by the Spirit, spoken of Christ, what meant by it, 1 Pet. iii. 18.
Quickening Spirit, why Christ so called, 1 Cor. xv. 45.
Quicksands, where situated, Acts xxvii. 17.
Quiet, put for secure, Nah. i. 12.

R.

Raamah, city of Arabia, Ezek. xxvii. 22.
Raamses, same as Rameses, Exod. i. 11.
Rabbah, capital of the Ammonites, 2 Sam. xi. 1; Amos i. 14.
—— why called 'the city of waters,' 2 Sam. xii. 27. the 'weight' of the crown worn by the king of it, ver. 30. discussion respecting the punishments inflicted on the inhabitants, ver. 31.
Rabbi, meaning of the title, Matt. xxiii. 7.
Rabshakeh, the import of the name, 2 Kings xviii. 19. probably he was an apostate Jew, ibid. his insolent message to Hezekiah, ver. 22, 23. his pretence that he was come by the direction of God, ver. 25. his promises on the submission of the Israelites, ver. 32.
Raca, explained, Matt. v. 22.
Race, one of the Grecian games alluded to, 1 Cor. ix. 24. in what respects a pattern for the Christian race, ibid. excelled by the latter with respect to the number of successful competitors, ibid. and to the value of the reward, ver. 25.
Rachel, why she gave her maid to Jacob, Gen. xxx. 3. antiquity of her monument, Gen. xxxv. 20. a modern one now shewn for it, ibid. the place called Rachel's sepulchre, 1 Sam. x. 2. a prophecy to her fulfilled, Jer. xxxi. 16. weeping for her children, the expression how used, ver. 15; Matt. ii. 18.
Ragau, where situate, Judith i. 5.
Rage 'that reacheth up to heaven' explained, 2 Chron. xxviii. 9.
Rages, where situate, Tob. i. 14.
Raguel, supposed to be Jethro, Numb. x. 29.
Rahab, her occupation, Josh. ii. 1. why termed 'a harlot,' ibid. probably received an express revelation of God's design towards the Canaanites, ver. 4. her justification in telling an untruth, ibid. declares herself an instrument in the hands of God, ver. 11. her confession of the true God, the faith celebrated by St. Paul, ibid. what is meant by her house being 'on the wall,' ver. 15.
—— meaning Egypt, Ps. lxxxvii. 4; Is. li. 9.
Raillery, used sometimes by moralists as the vehicle of the gravest lessons, 1 Kings xviii. 27.
Raiment, changes of, given as presents in Asia, Gen. xlv. 22; 2 Chron. ix. 24; Ezra ii. 69. vast quantities collected in the East, Job xxvii. 16. the shaking of, what it denoted, Acts xviii. 6.
—— of the Israelites, remarks on its waxing not old, Deut. viii. 4.
'—— of her captivity' explained, Deut. xxi. 12.
Rain, very little in Egypt, Exod. ix. 18. its scarcity in some countries of the East, Lev. xxvi. 4. emphatically ascribed to God's providence, ibid. Job xxxviii. 26, 28.

Rain in his season, meaning of it, Deut. xxviii. 12. importance of its regular return, ibid. why doctrine compared to it, Deut. xxxii. 2. the seasons of the former and latter rains in Judea, Deut. xi. 14; 1 Sam. xii. 17; Prov. xvi. 15. after drought, accompanied with much wind in the East, 2 Kings iii. 17. attended with much cold in Judea in December, Ezra x. 9. its effect in hot climates, Job v. 10. autumnal, effects of, described, Job xxix. 23. periodical, blessings compared to it, Hos. vi. 3.
Rainbow, a memorial of God's justice and mercy, Gen. ix. 13. how regarded by Jews and heathens, ibid. not necessary to inquire whether or not it existed before the flood, ibid. reflections proper on the sight of it, ver. 16. why appearance of one in Ezekiel's vision, Ezek. i. 28. what used to signify, Rev. x. 1. token of God's mercy and faithfulness to Christians, Rev. iv. 3.
Raised up, in what sense God is said to have already raised us up, Eph. ii. 6.
Raising of the widow's son, reflections on this miracle, Luke vii. 15.
—— of the dead, ascribed to Christ, Phil. iii. 21. proof of His Divine power, ibid.
Ramah, also called Ramathaim-zophim, 1 Sam. i. 19. still bears the name of Rama, ibid. city of Benjamin, where Rachel was buried, Jer. xxxi. 15. boundary of kingdom of Israel, Hos. v. 8.
—— signifying 'a high place,' 1 Sam. xxii. 6.
Rameses, where situated, Gen. xlvii. 11.
Rams, incense of, explained, Ps. lxvi. 15. used figuratively, Ezek. xxxix. 18.
Rams' horns, trumpets formerly and still made from them, Josh. vi. 4.
—— head, of gold, worn for diadem, Dan. viii. 3.
Ramoth in Gilead, or Ramoth-gilead, its situation, 1 Kings xxii. 3.
Ranges, term explained, 2 Kings xi. 8.
Rank, persons of, employed in Gentile sacrifices, Lev. iv. 4.
Ransom for his soul, explained, Exod. xxx. 12. what is meant by it, 1 Tim. ii. 6. to whom paid, ibid. by whom, ibid. what it was, ibid. for whom paid, ibid. reflections on the emphatical signification of the original phrase, ibid.
Raphael, what the name means, Tob. iii. 17. why he concealed his quality, Tob. v. 12.
Rasor, hired, Assyrian why so called, Is. vii. 20.
Raven, why sent forth from the ark, Gen. viii. 7. why returned to it, ibid.
Ravens, said to be unnatural to their young, 1 Kings xvii. 6. why made the instruments of feeding Elijah, ibid. why mentioned as instances of God's care, Job xxxviii. 41.
Reading the Scriptures privately as well as publickly, recommended to Timothy, 1 Tim. iv. 13. inference with respect to other ministers of the Gospel, ibid.
Reaping corruption, the consequence of sowing to the flesh, explained, Gal. vi. 8.
Reason, God by it has qualified us for religion, Job xxxv. 11. its all-sufficiency confuted, Wisd. ix. 16.
—— and conscience, the superiour part of man's nature, Rom. vii. 17. an answer to the grand argument by which sinners justify themselves, ibid.
Reasonable service, what it signifies, Rom. xii. 1.
Rebekah, compared with the modern women of the East, Gen. xxiv. 11, 15. reflections on her conduct respecting Jacob and Esau, Gen. xxvii. 23. her prudence in sending Jacob away, ver. 46.
'Rebel against,' in what sense spoken of Hezekiah, 2 Kings xviii. 7.
Rebellion, judgments of God against it, 2 Sam. xviii. 9. its sin, 1 Sam. xv. 23. cannot take deep root while Scripture is listened to, 1 Kings xii. 27.
Rebels, how punished in the East, 1 Sam. xi. 2; Jer. xxxix. 7.
Rebuke, why necessary to be practised towards a neighbour, Lev. xix. 17. caution to be used in it, ibid.
'Received up into glory,' spoken of the ascension of Christ, 1 Tim. iii. 16. par. 14. propriety of the circumstance in closing up the scene of the mystery of godliness, ibid. reflections on it, ibid.
Rechab and Baanah, their vileness and ingratitude shewn, 2 Sam. iv. 2.
—— his piety and strictness of life, 2 Kings x. 15.
Rechabites, God's trial of them, Jer. xxxv. 2. who they were, ibid. compared with Israelites, ver. 15.
Reclining at meals, an ancient Jewish custom, Tob. ii. 1. See Meals.
Recompense, double, what it is, Jer. xvi. 18. a future one proved, Job xlii. 7, 8.
Reconciliation to God, consequence of the atonement made by Christ, Rom. v. 11. terms of our receiving it, 2 Cor. v. 20.
Record, what meant by St. Paul calling 'God for a record upon his soul,' 2 Cor. i. 23.
Recorder, his office described, 2 Sam. viii. 16.
Redeemed, what the verb so rendered signifies, 1 Pet. i. 18. how and from what we were redeemed, ibid.
Redeemer, Job's knowledge of, Job xix. 25, 26. observation on His coming to Zion, Is. lix. 20. necessary for both Jews and Gentiles, Rom. iii. 9. superiority of His nature to that of all created beings, 1 Tim. iii. 16. par. 4.
Redeeming the time, what it means, Eph. v. 16. a general rule of Christian prudence, ibid. more especially regarding the Gentile converts, ibid.
Red Sea, meaning of the name, Exod. xiii. 18. what its Hebrew name signifies, ibid. its situation, ibid. width of the part where the Israelites crossed, ibid. part where they passed, Exod. xiv. 21. passage effected by a miracle, ver. 22. the waters of, personified, Ps. lxxvii. 16.
Red horse, at the opening of the second seal, what period it denotes, Rev. vi. 4. description of this period, ibid.
Redemption of mankind, eternal, prefigured by the deliverance from Egypt, Exod. ii. 24. effected by Christ suffering in our stead, Matt. xx. 28. through Christ, wonderful proof and glorious effect of God's love to man, John iii. 16. not partial but universal, embracing 'the world,' ibid. how effected, Rom. iii. 24. what the original word denotes, ibid. description of that which was purchased by Christ's blood, Gal. iv. 4. propriety of Christ's coming for the purpose discernible on the principles of the Gospel, Col. i. 19. when the design of it was formed, 2 Tim. i. 9. who were the parties concerned in the covenant, ibid. remarks on it as a vindication of God's dealings towards his creatures, 1 Pet. i. 12.
—— out of Egypt, took place on the same day of the year as that on which our redemption was effected, Exod. xii. 2.
—— of land, law concerning, reason of it, Lev. xxvii. 20.
Reed, a bruised, explained, Is. xlii. 3.
'—— shaken with the wind,' figuratively spoken, Matt. xi. 7.
—— put into St. John's hand in a vision, what signified by it, Rev. xi. 1.
Reeds round Babylon described, Jer. li. 32.
—— probably cubits, Ezek. xlviii. 8.
Reformation necessary to reconciliation under the Levitical law, Numb. v. 7. without it sacrifice inefficacious, ibid. the present time the best for, Ps. cxix. 60. the time of, what meant by it, Heb. ix. 10. where it must begin, Jam. i. 15.
Reformers, general doctrine of them concerning Antichrist, 2 Thess. ii. 11. especially of Wickliffe and Bishop Jewel, ibid.
'Refreshing, times of the,' phrase explained, Acts iii. 19.
Refuge, cities of, remarks on their general situation, Josh. xx. 7.
'Refuse not Him that speaketh,' who intended by the phrase, Heb. xii. 25.
Regal power, how exercised by Christ, Eph. iv. 11. in what particulars He has exercised, and continues to exercise it, ibid.
Regenerate, the baptized so esteemed by ancient Christians, Prov. xxiv. 13. whom the Liturgy declares so to be, Rom. vi. 9. necessity of becoming so, not to be inculcated as wanting to those who call themselves disciples of Christ, ibid. such language conformable neither to Scripture nor the Liturgy, ibid.
Regeneration takes place at the administration of baptism, John

iii. 5. the effects of the Holy Spirit in it discernible, the manner of His operation not so, ver. 8.
Regeneration, laver of, explained, Rom. vi. 9.
—— sacramental, how it becomes ultimately a blessing, Gal. vi. 15. what so called, Tit. iii. 5. when perfected, ibid. when commenced, ibid. how distinguished from renovation, ibid. how the word so rendered was used by the early Christians, ibid. and in Scripture, ibid. washing of, what understood by it, ibid. when described as taking place, 2 Pet. i. 5.
—— variously interpreted at Matt. xix. 28.
Registers, Jewish, alluded to, Is. iv. 3; Ezek. xiii. 9.
Rehob, where situated, Numb. xiii. 21.
Rehoboam, the only child of Solomon mentioned in Scripture, 1 Kings xii. 1. why he went to Shechem when king, ibid. 'the young men that were grown up with him,' ver. 10. effects of his passionate and corrupt temper, ver. 15. his wars with Jeroboam, notwithstanding he was forbidden to make war on Israel, 1 Kings xiv. 30. his strength chiefly owing to the protection of God, 2 Chron. xi. 17. his method of preventing rebellion in his other children against Abijah his successor, ver. 23. probably educated in no strict principles of religion, 2 Chron. xii. 1. in what year of his reign the apostasy of the people took place, ver. 2. his inexperience when he began to reign, 2 Chron. xiii. 7. Solomon's character of him, Eccles. ii. 18.
'Reign in life' explained, Rom. v. 17.
Reins, what they denote, Ps. xvi. 7; Jer. xii. 2.
Rejection and reprobation of Israel not owing to an absolute decree, Rom. x. 1.
Rejoice, how used in the direction to the Israelites, Deut. xii. 7. 'I will rejoice over them' explained, Jer. xxxii. 41.
Rejoicing in the Lord, continually recommended by the inspired writings, Deut. xxxii. 43. a rational and Christian duty, ibid. opposed by superstition and enthusiasm, ibid.
Relation between God and us a rule of His dealings with us, Deut. vii. 12. a motive to make us imitate His goodness, Eph. v. 1.
Relations, to relieve them a religious duty, 1 Tim. v. 4. and an injunction of nature, ibid.
Relative duties, why St. Paul presses them on the Ephesians, Eph. v. 21. Christian privileges no excuse for neglecting them, ibid.
Release, law of, why renewed, Jer. xxxiv. 8.
Reliance on God, the homage which man naturally pays to Him, Ps. xxiii. 5.
Relief of the poor, caution with which it was bestowed among the first Christians, 1 Tim. v. 9. refutation of a calumny relating to it, ibid.
Religion, unity of, its effect on the mind, Gen. l. 17. four principles on which it is built, Deut. v. 7. these principles explained in the first four commandments, ibid. association in, its good effects both in church and state, Deut. xvi. 16. the consolation it supplies under danger and affliction, 2 Kings xix. 14. is a city of refuge to afflicted soul, Ps. xlvi. 10. must be frequently thought on to become means of our salvation, Ps. lxiii. 11. to those who are well grounded in it removes doubts and fears, Ps. lxxvii. 19. considerations on its terrours, Ps. lxxxviii. 16. a way of pleasantness, Prov. iii. 17. the only sure way to happiness, Prov. xii. 28. comprehends duties to God and ourselves as well as to our neighbour, Matt. vii. 12. all its necessary principles comprehended in the knowledge of the true God and Jesus Christ, John xvii. 3. what it is styled under the Old Testament, Rom. iii. 26. what under the New, ibid. how St. Paul instructed the Corinthians to advance it, 1 Cor. x. 33. how we may apply the precept, ibid. all professions and practices of it unavailable without charity, 1 Cor. xiii. 13. should not appear under a forbidding look, Phil. iv. 8. what the first principle of it is, Heb. xi. 6. pure and undefiled, in what it is said to consist, Jam. i. 27. what intimated in this passage by the use of the word Religion, ibid. not the whole of religion here set down, ibid. in what way St. James here describes it, ibid. caution against misapplying his description, ibid. general account of what religion is, ibid. vanity of those who do not reduce it into practice, ibid. the greatest ornament of human nature, Rev. iii. 15. truly wonderful that any should be careless and indifferent about it, ibid.
Religion, Jewish, excellence of, attested, Deut. iv. 8.
—— natural, what it taught the Ninevites, Jonah iii. 8.
Religions, false and erroneous, what the strongest arguments for them, 1 Pet. i. 18. exemplified in Jews and Gentiles, ibid.
Religious joy, why enforced and insisted upon to the Philippians, Phil. iv. 4. a duty to be performed at all times, ibid. what necessary in order to our having it, ver. 6. necessarily connected with praying and giving thanks, 1 Thess. v. 18.
—— assemblies, what they represent, Ps. lxxxiv. 11.
—— abuses, spring of all other wickedness, Mic. i. 5.
—— proficiency, erroneous rules of measuring it, Jam. i. 27. to be judged of by its practical effects, ibid.
Remember, in what sense spoken of God, Gen. viii. 1.
Remembrance of God's benefits necessary, Exod. xvii. 3. effects of it, ver. 5. best way of keeping the Israelites in their integrity, Deut. xi. 1. inference with respect to Christians, ibid.
—— word used in a peculiar sense, Is. lvii. 8.
Remission of sins, this doctrine the main glory of Christianity, Luke i. 77.
'—— of sins that are past,' question concerning the sins intended, Rom. iii. 25.
Remnant according to the election of grace, explained, Rom. xi. 5.
Remphan, Egyptian name of what god, Amos v. 25.
Renewal of the heart and life, its necessity, Gal. vi. 15.
Renewing, how it differs from regeneration, Rom. vi. 9.
Renounced, what meant by it, 2 Cor. iv. 2.
Renovation, means of working it, Col. iii. 10. what distinguished by the name, Tit. iii. 5.
Repasts, hospitable in the East, alluded to, Zech. iii. 10.
Repentance, the proper consequence of considering the original and happiness of mankind, Gen. ii. 25. its efficacy in averting God's judgment, Numb. xii. 11. its efficacy shewn from the effect of Ahab's imperfect repentance, 1 Kings xxi. 29. the several marks of it when true, 2 Kings xxii. 19. the proper fruit and effect of it, 2 Chron. vii. 14. true, exemplified in Manasseh, 2 Chron. xxxiii. 13. consists in confessing and forsaking sin, Prov. xxviii. 13. arrests God's judgments, Jer. iv. 28. what description of it is effectual, Ezek. xviii. 31. will turn away God's wrath, Jonah iii. 10. John the Baptist's call to it, explained, Matt. iii. 2. Christ's first address the same as the Baptist's, Matt. iv. 17. the necessity of it to all, Matt. v. 26. that of Judas not sincere, Matt. xxvii. 3. the necessity of timely, and the danger of deferring it, Luke xii. 58, 59. opportunity for it offered to all sinners, Luke xiii. 8. the value of it in the sight of God, and the encouragements to it held out to sinners, Luke xv. 7, 32. what is meant by those 'who need no repentance,' ver. 7. the sincerity of it shewn by making satisfaction to persons injured, Luke xix. 8. striking instance of it in the thief on the cross, Luke xxiii. 43. great encouragement hence to sinners to repent, ibid. nothing to be inferred from it in favour of the general efficacy of a death-bed repentance, ibid. encouragement to sinners to embrace it, Acts viii. 20. one of the leading doctrines of the Gospel, Acts xvii. 30. the motives to it feeble before, ibid. of the Corinthians, remarks on the particulars in St. Paul's description of it, 2 Cor. vii. 11. the necessity of inculcating it, Heb. xii. 14. in vain to preach without doing so, ibid.
—— in what senses attributed to God, Gen. vi. 6; Exod. xxxii. 14; Judg. ii. 18; 1 Sam. xv. 11; 2 Sam. xxiv. 16; Jer. xv. 6; xlii. 10.
Repetition of the same terms, with some variety usual in Hebrew, Deut. xxxiii. 6.
Rephaim, valley of, where situate, 2 Sam. v. 18. what it expresses, Is. xvii. 5.
Representations, sensible, of predicted judgments sometimes given, Jer. li. 63.
Reproach of Christ, what so called and why, Heb. xi. 26.
—— of Egypt, what meant by the expression, Josh. v. 9.
Reprobate, two senses of the word, Rom. i. 28; 2 Cor. xiii. 6, 7. examples of each, Rom. i. 28. what the word in the New Testament alludes to, Jer. vi. 30.

'Reprobate concerning the faith,' meaning of the phrase, 2 Tim. iii. 8. no intimation of an absolute decree of God, ibid.
—— 'unto every good work reprobate,' explained, Tit. i. 16.
—— mind, meaning of the phrase, Rom. i. 28. in what sense God gave the Gentiles over to, ibid. symptoms of, Ps. x. 3.
Reproof of life, explained, Prov. xv. 31.
Reptiles, images of, why forbidden to the Israelites, Deut. iv. 18.
Repudiation of a wife, why sometimes permitted, Deut. xxii. 13. causeless, hateful to God, Mal. ii. 16. See Divorce.
Reputation, how injured, Eccles. x. 1. providing for a good one a proper object of concern, 2 Cor. viii. 21.
—— remarks on Christ's making Himself of no reputation, Phil. ii. 7. what the expression signifies, ibid. in what it consisted, ibid. when it began, and how long it continued, ibid. arguments from it to prove His divinity, ibid.
Resentment, however just, should never be indulged too far, Judg. xxi. 6.
Resignation to the will of God, the first duty of the creature, Job xxxviii. 16; xli. 11. exemplified in Eli, 1 Sam. iii. 18. the duty recommended, 2 Sam. v. 10. characters of it, Ps. xxxix. 11. exemplified and enforced by the behaviour of Christ, Matt. xxvi. 39, 67; 1 Pet. ii. 21. pleasure and utility of reflecting on His sufferings and conduct under them, ibid. exhortations of His Apostles to imitate them, ibid.
'Resisted unto blood' explained, Heb. xii. 4.
Resolutions of serving God, more easily made than performed, Josh. xxiv. 21.
Respect, how shewn in the East, Josh. xv. 18.
—— of persons, none with God, explained, Rom. ii. 11. why this declaration made concerning Him, ibid.
—— and civility to others a Christian duty, Rom. xii. 10.
Responses in singing of great antiquity, Exod. xv. 20, 21. See Alternate.
Rest, future, God's resting an emblem of it, Gen. ii. 2. the only settled rest, Exod. vi. 4. three sorts of, spoken of in Scripture, Heb. iv. 6.
—— 'shall be the rest thereof' explained, Zech. ix. 1.
Restitution, an indispensable duty, Lev. v. 16.
—— times of, phrase explained, Acts iii. 21.
Restoration of the Jews after the captivity predicted, Lev. xxvi. 44. generally foretold or referred to, Ezek. xxviii. 25; xxxvii. 9; xxxviii. 22; Jer. l. 4; Hos. i. 10, 11; ii. 23; Joel iii. 1; Amos ix. 12; Zech. x. 10. calamities that will attend it, Dan. xii. 1.
Restorer of Israel mentioned, Is. lxii. 5.
Resurrection of Christ, its truth confirmed by the uncommon care taken in His burial, Matt. xxvii. 66. false assertions of the Jews about it confuted, ver. 60. their story carries collusion on the face of it, Matt. xxviii. 13. strength of the testimony to it from the circumstances and veracity of the witnesses, Mark xvi. 20. objection founded on Christ's having shewn Himself only to chosen witnesses, of no real weight, ibid. why Christ at first convinced His disciples of the reality of it rather by reason than by sense, Luke xxiv. 27. how 'their eyes were opened,' ver. 31. the certainty of the proofs of it, ver. 39, 43. the accounts of it in the different Gospels substantially the same, John xxi. 25. eight distinct appearances recorded, ibid. total impossibility of any delusion or imposition, ibid. the candour and veracity of the sacred writers in stating that Christ appeared to chosen witnesses, Acts x. 41. the confirmation of the truth of His doctrines and the hopes of His followers, John xx. 29. thanks due to God for the fulness of our proofs of it, ibid. proposed as a pattern of a newness of life, Rom. vi. 4. one of the most important articles in the Christian religion, Rom. x. 6, 7. why mentioned in that way by St. Paul, ver. 9. foretold by the Jewish Scriptures, 1 Cor. xv. 4. why those prophecies referred to by St. Paul, ibid. what its proper effect on us, Col. iii. 1. why Timothy called upon to insist on it, 2 Tim. ii. 8. consolation derived from considering the power of God visible in it, 1 Pet. iii. 18. it took place on the day prefigured of old, Matt. xxviii. 1. See Christ, His resurrection.
—— of the dead, meaning of the Pharisees' question respecting it, Mark ix. 10.
Resurrection, St. Paul marks the difference between that expected by the Pharisees and that taught by Christianity, Acts xxiv. 15. opinion of the Jews concerning the manner of its being effected, Rom. viii. 11. difference remarked between the raising of the good and the wicked, ibid. to eternal life obtained by the merit of Christ's blood, ver. 23. how the doctrine was probably construed by the philosophers at Corinth, 1 Cor. xv. 12. chief proof of it, ver. 20. of all mankind asserted, ver. 22. difference between that of the wicked and the righteous, ibid. illustrated by the reproduction of grain, ver. 36. objection of the philosophers to, how answered, ibid. no objection to the doctrine that some particulars exceed our comprehension, ver. 58. par. 2. reflections on such particulars, ibid. proper use to be made of the doctrine, ibid. par. 3. its effect on the first Christians, ibid. how qualified to counteract melancholy reflections, ibid. and to encourage us to a pious and charitable life, ibid. par. 4.
—— of mankind from the dead, an amazing instance of God's power, Eph. i. 19. why not to be doubted, ibid. false doctrine of the Judaizers concerning it, 2 Tim. ii. 18. probable ground of their errour, ibid.
—— Job's hope of, Job xiv. 13, 14. David's hope in it, Ps. xvi. 9, 10; xvii. 15. belief of it among the Jews, Dan. xii. 2; Ecclus. xlvi. 12. how they testified their belief of it, Is. lxvi. 14. a popular doctrine in Isaiah's time, Is. xxvi. 19.
—— of the dead foretold, Hos. xiii. 14.
—— of pious men, expected by the Jews at the coming of the Messiah, Matt. xxvii. 52.
—— of the body, a doctrine exclusively of revelation, Luke xxiv. 43. how denominated, 1 Cor. xv. 1. how St. Paul concludes his discourse on it, ver. 58. value put upon it, Phil. iii. 21. folly of those who deprive themselves of the hope of it, ibid.
—— used for 'resurrection to glory,' Luke xx. 35.
—— put for 'state after the resurrection,' Matt. xxii. 28. explanation of our Saviour's proof of it, ver. 32.
—— of martyrs to live and reign with Christ, different opinions respecting its literal or figurative meaning, Rev. xx. 4. first, figuratively expressing the flourishing condition of the Church, ver. 5.
Retain God in their knowledge, how to be understood, Rom. i. 28.
Retaliation practised by God towards sinners, Exod. xiv. 28.
—— law of, not meant literally, Exod. xxi. 24. misunderstood by the Jews, ibid. Lev. xxiv. 19. set in its true light by our Saviour, Exod. xxi. 24. proper application of it, Lev. xxiv. 19.
Retirement, religious, enforced on all ranks, Ps. xc. 17. occasional, from the world, recommended from Christ's example, Matt. xiv. 23.
Retribution of God, punishing in kind the transgressions of men, 1 Sam. ii. 36.
Returning to an evil course after judgments an aggravation of sin, Lev. xxvi. 18.
Reuel, whether the same as Jethro, Exod. ii. 18.
Revelation, book of, written by St. John, and when, Introd. to Rev. its genuineness, contents, and general purport, ibid. difference of interpreters in explaining it, ibid. contains what is eminently called 'the revelation of Jesus,' Rev. i. 1. the events revealed were shortly to begin to come to pass, ibid. blessing pronounced on those who read and attend to its exhortations, ver. 3. why 'those who hear' mentioned, as well as 'those who read,' ibid. written in an epistolary form, ver. 4. why all persons forbidden to add to it, or take from it, Rev. xxii. 18. necessity of this injunction in the early times of Christianity, ibid. many spurious revelations circulated in those times, ibid. its preservation free from material interpolation, ibid. why the prophecies contained in it were not sealed, ver. 10. its divine authority attested by Christ Himself, ver. 16.
—— Knowledge, Prophesying, Doctrine, remark on the relative significations of these words, 1 Cor. xiv. 6.
—— how the word used by St. Paul, Eph. i. 17.
—— of the salvation promised in the Gospel twofold, 1 Pet. i. 5. description of each, ibid.
—— Christian, mediatorial throughout, Rev. i. 1.

Revelations, supernatural, God imparted His will by them formerly, Gen. xx. 3. ceased since the establishment of the Gospel, ibid. of God's will sufficiently attested, Gen. xxii. 2. on what particular subject made to the Apostles, 1 Tim. i. 18. when discontinued, ibid.
—— and impulses special and immediate, erroneous and unscriptural pretences to, 1 John ii. 27. on what such pretences founded, ibid. these revelations not now to be expected, ibid. by what light we are to be guided, ibid.
Revellings, what they were among the Greeks, Gal. v. 21.
Revenge, purchased at a high rate by the malicious, Esth. iii. 9. not really permitted by Jewish law, Matt. v. 38. extolled by many wise moralists, ver. 44. the extreme barbarities to which it leads, Matt. xiv. 8. thirst of, its effect on Herodias, Mark vi. 24. contrary to Christianity, Rom. xii. 17.
Revenger of blood, what the Hebrew signifies, Numb. xxxv. 12. what the word imports, ibid under what circumstances he was to slay the murderer, ver. 21.
Revenues, to what the word refers, Jer. xii. 13.
Reviving, the restoration of the Jews so called, Ezra ix. 9.
Revolutions in the state of the world, how expressed in Scripture, Heb. xii. 26.
Reuben, why deprived of his natural rights, Gen. xxxv. 22. why he interfered in favour of Joseph, Gen. xxxvii. 21. deprived by Jacob of his prerogatives, Gen. xlix. 3. why called the beginning of his father's strength, ibid. prophecy concerning him, how fulfilled, ver. 4.
—— tribe of, prophecy of Moses concerning them, Deut. xxxiii. 6. a confirmation of Jacob's prophecy, ibid. first passed over Jordan, Josh. iv. 12.
Reubenites and Gadites, remark on the conditions imposed on them by Moses, Numb. xxxii. 20, 23. what number of them passed over Jordan, ver. 27.
Reward of the righteous, considerations on, Dan. xii. 3.
—— will be according to a man's deeds, the plain language of Scripture, Gal. vi. 8. this taught by St. Paul under a metaphor, ibid.
—— desire of, a motive with the most excellent saints of God, Phil. iii. 14. St. Paul's eagerness to obtain it, ibid. God's offer of it illustrated by an ancient custom in the race, ibid.
—— of a future state, our duty to desire and aim at it, Col. iii. 1, 2. to be had respect unto by Christians, 2 John ver. 8.
Rezon, how long an adversary to Solomon, 1 Kings xi. 25.
Rhegium, where situate, Acts xxviii. 13.
Rhinoceros, the unicorn of Scripture, described, Job xxxix. 9.
Riblah, conjectures respecting its situation, 2 Kings xxiii. 33; Jer. xxxix. 5.
Rich, a lesson to them, Gen. xxxii. 10. theirs a situation of difficulty and danger, Matt. xix. 24. forbidden to make entertainments, under what circumstances, Luke xiv. 12, 13.
—— the term used for 'them that trust in riches,' Mark x. 24. ministers of God required to admonish them of their duties, 1 Tim. vi. 17. why they should attend to publick instruction, ibid. should acknowledge God to be the giver of all they possess, ibid. indebted for all things to the same Divine Providence as the poor, ibid. in what manner they should do good, ver. 18. why exhorted to rejoice in their humiliation, Jam. i. 10. explanation of the argument addressed to them, ver. 11.
Rich man in the parable, on what account censured, Luke xvi. 19. aggravations of his uncharitableness towards Lazarus, ver. 20. his late consideration unavailing, ver. 23. invisible state described by images borrowed from the present life, ver. 26.
Riches, their insufficiency and uncertainty, Eccles. v. 11, 14. unlawfully gotten an offering not acceptable to God, Is. lxi. 8. afford no security against the casualties of human life, Luke xii. 16. in what true riches consist, Ps. xxxiv. 21; Luke xii. 33.
'—— of the glory of his inheritance in the saints' explained, Eph. i. 18.
—— 'all riches of the full assurance of understanding' explained, Col. ii. 2.
—— denunciation on the unjust amassing of them, &c. Jam. v. 3.
'—— corrupted,' what sort of riches intended, Jam. v. 2. spoken with what allusion, ibid.
Riddles, their antiquity among the ancients, Judg. xiv. 12. Samson's riddle, ibid. how used, Ezek. xvii. 2.
'Ride on the high places of the earth' explained, Deut. xxxii. 13.
Riding on the skies, why God so represented, Deut. xxxiii. 26.
—— in the East, custom of servants with respect to it, 2 Kings iv. 24.
Rie, what the Hebrew word signifies, Exod. ix. 32. what grain intended by it, ibid. how it escaped the hail, ibid.
Right hand of God, denotes His power, Exod. xv. 6.
Right hand, a seat at it the place of precedence in earthly courts, 1 Kings ii. 19; Matt. xx. 21. giving of, what it denoted, Gal. ii. 9.
Righteous, their blessedness at the day of judgment, Gen. v. 24. their happiness described, Ps. cxxi. 8. shall be delivered out of many dangers, Prov. xxiv. 16. miserable condition of, if they fall into a sinful course, Ezek. xviii. 24. sinning and not repenting, shall die in their sins, ver. 26. persons truly so, Matt. ix. 13.
—— the term includes generosity and charity, Ps. cxii. 4. in the sense of faithful, Ps. cxxix. 4.
—— man from the East, who so called, Is. xli. 2.
—— man, 'in the name of a,' meaning of the phrase, Matt. x. 41.
—— acts of God, explained, 1 Sam. xii. 7.
Righteousness, God of my, what meant by the phrase, Ps. iv. 1.
—— used for a just recompense, Ps. xxiv. 5.
—— the firstfruits of Christ's kingdom, Jer. xxiii. 6. to hunger and thirst after it explained, Matt. v. 6. that which is required of Christians, ver. 20.
—— in the way of, the meaning of the phrase, Matt. xxi. 32. used for liberality, 2 Cor. ix. 9. description of that which St. Paul desired, Phil. iii. 9, 10.
—— wrought through faith, its necessity to justification, Heb. xi. 40.
—— fruit of, yielded by affliction, why called peaceable, Heb. xii. 11.
—— every one that doeth it, whence said to be born of Christ, 1 John ii. 29.
—— of God, what it means, Matt. vi. 33. frequent use of the phrase, explained, Rom. i. 17.
'—— of faith' explained, Rom. iv. 13.
—— by faith, personified, Rom. x. 6.
—— of the law, what it means, Rom. ii. 26; viii. 4.
—— a teacher of, the Messiah foretold to be such, Joel ii. 23.
'Rightly dividing the word of truth' explained, 2 Tim. ii. 15.
Rimmon, its situation, Zech. xiv. 10.
—— conjectures respecting this Syrian idol, 2 Kings v. 18.
Rings, how used officially in the East, Gen. xli. 42. used for seals in the East, Esth. iii. 12. examples of it, ibid. how and of what made, ibid. used in great numbers by the rich and luxurious, Jam. ii. 2.
Rise, to rise up betimes, its signification, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15.
Risen with Christ, practical consequences of our being so, Col. iii. 1, 2.
Rising of the sun with its consequences spiritually applied, Eph. v. 14.
Rites of Jewish worship, why imposed, Lev. i. 1.
Ritual observances, of no value unless accompanied by obedience, Amos v. 21. should give way to moral duties, Luke xi. 41.
River, the, meaning the Euphrates, Gen. xxxi. 21; Is. vii. 20; Jer. ii. 18.
—— of Egypt, what, Numb. xxxiv. 2.
—— of God, meaning the clouds, Ps. lxv. 9.
River, emblem of a city taken by siege, Is. xxiii. 10.
Rivers, put for armies of conquerors, Is. xviii. 2. put in prophecy for graces of the Spirit, Is. xxx. 25.
Rizpah, a remarkable instance of maternal affection, 2 Sam. xxi. 10. her conduct pleasing to David, ver. 12.
Road, meaning an excursion, 1 Sam. xxvii. 10.
Robbers, how they ensnare travellers in the East, Eccles. vii. 26.
Robe, a loose garment, Mic. ii. 8.
Rock in Horeb, Arabian tradition concerning, Exod. xvii. 6.

Rock, that followed the Israelites, sacramental, and a type of Christ, 1 Cor. x. 3, 4. what meant by its following them, ver. 4.
—— why figuratively applied to God, Deut. xxxii. 4, 15.
Rocks, places of security in the East, Deut. xxxii. 15.
—— holes of, explained, Is. ii. 19.
Rod, a mark of dignity in persons of authority, Numb. xvii. 2. used for protection, Ps. xxiii. 4. for power, Ps. cxxv. 3.
—— of Christ's strength, explained, Ps. cx. 2.
—— of His mouth, the word of God, Is. xi. 4.
—— of His inheritance, meaning of the phrase, Jer. x. 16.
—— used for sceptre and shepherd's staff, Mic. vii. 14.
—— 'passeth under the rod' explained, Lev. xxvii. 32.
—— of Moses explained, Exod. iv. 2.
—— of Aaron, remarks on, Numb. xvii. 2. miracle of, how commemorated by the Jews, ibid. probable appearance of it, ver. 8. why preserved, ver. 10. effects of the miracle on the people, ver. 12.
Rods, being beaten with, a Roman punishment, 2 Cor. xi. 25.
Roe, the antelope, Song of Sol. ii. 7.
Roebuck and hart, why specified in the law, Deut. xii. 15.
Roll of a book, explained, Is. viii. 1; Jer. xxxvi. 2; Zech. v. 2.
Roman empire prophesied of, Dan. ii. 33; viii. 9, 10. how described, Dan. vii. 7. its extinction by the Heruli and Ostrogoths foretold, Rev. viii. 12. represented by the red dragon, Rev. xii. 3. its enmity to the primitive Christian church, ver. 4, 7. idolatrous under the heathen emperours, and again under the Roman pontiffs, Rev. xvii. 8.
—— citizens, their peculiar privileges, Acts xvi. 37. different modes of becoming such, Acts xxii. 28. their privilege of appealing to the Roman emperour, Acts xxv. 11. the effect of this appeal, ibid.
Romans, Epistle to, when and where written, Introd. par. 1. by whom transcribed and conveyed, ibid. to what descriptions of Christians it has regard, ibid. object of it, ibid. par. 3. subjects enlarged upon in it, and explained, ibid. sketch of its contents, ibid. par. 4. its great value, ibid. par. 5. three questions form the substance of it, ibid. par. 7. attention to them necessary to the understanding of it, ibid. chapters specified in which they are severally handled, ibid. specially referred to by St. Peter, as containing some things hard to be understood, Rom. iii. 31. how wrested by the ignorant and unlearned, ibid. has more difficult passages than any other Epistle, ibid. in what respects unrivalled by any human composition, Rom. xvi. 27. subject of its 9th chapter, the rejection of the Jewish nation on their infidelity, and the admission of the believing Gentiles into the Church, Rom. ix. argument founded on God's proceedings with respect to national privileges, ibid. ver. 7, 14, 15, 17, 20. determines nothing about God's absolute decrees, ver. 31.
—— (Christian,) their faith much celebrated when St. Paul wrote to them, Introd. to Rom. par. 3. their faith, what it was, Rom. i. 8. why likely to be spoken of through the empire, ibid. why St. Paul particularly thanked God for it, ibid. why St. Paul wished to visit them, ver. 11, 12. why St. Paul thought it fit to write to them, Rom. xv. 14. his testimony to their proficiency, ibid. why not visited by St. Paul at an earlier period, ver. 22.
—— characteristically described by Moses 800 years before their existence, Deut. xxviii. 49. particular points in the description enumerated, ver. 49, 50. their policy alluded to, Dan. viii. 23. power described, ver. 24, 25. they destroyed the temple at Jerusalem, ver. 11. took away the Jews' place and nation, ver. 12. their victories foretold, Dan. xi. 31; Zech. vi. 6, 7. from their power called 'all nations,' Zech. xiv. 2. their policy in granting liberty to those under foreign dominion, 1 Mac. viii. 31. their extortion and violence towards the Jews, Luke iii. 13. their soldiers stationed before the temple at the Passover to prevent tumults, John xviii. 3. their custom of binding prisoners with two chains, Acts xii. 6. their law forbade the introduction of new objects of worship, Acts xxiv. 14.
Rome, multitudes of Jews dwelling there, Acts ii. 10. abounded with Christians in St. Paul's time, Acts xxviii. 15. of what converts the church there consisted, Introd. to Rom. par. 1. its state how learned by St. Paul, ibid. par. 2. by whom the Gospel first preached there uncertain, ibid. conjecture concerning it, Introd. to Rom. par. 2. seems to have flourished, ibid. par. 3. at all times known by the name of the city on seven hills, Rev. xvii. 9.
Rome, papal, signified by the beast rising out of the sea, Rev. xiii. 1. its idolatry, ver. 1, 5. its persecution of true religion, ver. 2. its rise from the Roman empire signified, ver. 3. its assumption of a proud title, ver. 5. its blaspheming the tabernacle of God, ver. 6. its power to enforce compliance with its corruptions, ver. 7, 8. the praises and thanksgivings of the Church at its downfal, Rev. xix. 1. a signal monument of Divine vengeance, ver. 3.
Romish church, represented by the two-horned beast, Rev. xiii. 11. its speaking as a dragon, ibid. its persecuting power, ver. 12. its pretension to miracles, ver. 13. its excommunications, ver. 16. proved to be figured by the beast from 'the number of the beast,' ver. 18.
—— unfounded doctrine of, pointed out, 1 Cor. iii. 13. of what character its saints were, 1 Tim. iv. 1. the practices of its monks and friars supposed to be foretold, 2 Tim. iii. 6. commencement and progress of similar practices, ibid. absurdities and falsehood to which its members are driven in defence of their unscriptural doctrines, Heb. x. 18. See Church of Rome.
Roofs of Eastern houses, how constructed, Deut. xxii. 8; Dan. iv. 29. for what purposes used, ibid. See Houses.
Roofs, altars dedicated on them, Jer. xix. 13.
Room, the upper, used for devotion, Tob. iii. 17.
Root, that beareth gall and wormwood, a figurative expression, Deut. xxix. 18. what so called, Heb. xii. 15.
—— of Jesse, Christ why called, Is. xi. 10. root of David, ibid. Rev. v. 5.
Rooted and grounded in love, figurative expressions, explained, Eph. iii. 17.
Ropes, 'then shall all Israel bring ropes' explained, 2 Sam. xvii. 13.
—— placed on the head in token of submission, 1 Kings xx. 31. similar custom still prevails in the East, ibid.
Rottenness, put for a worm that breeds in wood, Hos. v. 12.
Round the corners of your heads, what heathen practice alluded to, Lev. xix. 27.
Royal law, why the law of charity so called, Jam. ii. 8.
Royalty, Eastern, ideas taken from, Is. vi. 1.
Rubies, meaning of term so translated, Prov. iii. 15.
Rudder bands, what meant by the term, Acts xxvii. 40.
Rude in speech, in what sense St. Paul was so, 2 Cor. xi. 6.
Rudeness and harshness of behaviour at variance with the Gospel, Rom. xii. 10.
Rudiments of the world, what so called, Col. ii. 8.
Rufus, why his mother called the mother of St. Paul, Rom. xvi. 13.
Ruhamah, the word explained, Hos. ii. 1.
Rule, 'he that ruleth' explained, Rom. xii. 8.
Ruler of thy people, civil magistrate, Exod. xxii. 28.
—— of the synagogue, who, Matt. ix. 18.
—— of the Jews, why Nicodemus so called, John iii. 1.
Rulers over cattle, principal officers in the East, Gen. xlvii. 4.
'—— of the darkness of this world' explained, Eph. vi. 12.
'Run in vain,' what it alludes to, Gal. ii. 2.
Ruth, her behaviour in lying at the feet of Boaz, not to be unfavourably judged of, Ruth iii. 7. her objects in so doing, ibid. the honourable testimony of Boaz to her character, ver. 10.
—— the book of, a supplement to Judges, Introd. to Ruth. general instruction to be derived from it, ibid. uncertain under which of the judges these transactions occurred, Ruth i. 1. its object shewn, Ruth iv. 17. its high value on this account, ibid. the interesting nature of the story contained in it, ver. 22.

S.

Sabaoth, Lord of, signification of the phrase, Rom. ix. 29. two other places where it occurs, ibid.
Sabbath, its foundation laid in the creation, Gen. i. 5. institution of it coeval with the world, Exod. xvi. 23; Deut. v. 14. a duty of natural religion, Deut. v. 14. why set apart at the creation, Gen.

ii. 3. observed in the earliest times, Gen. ii. 3. observed by Noah, Gen. viii. 10. instituted, Exod. xvi. 23. observation of it interrupted in Egypt, ibid. renewed to the Israelites in memory of their deliverance, ibid. why the keeping of it noticed, Exod. xxxi. 13. a proof of its importance, ibid. known to the Israelites before the delivery of the law, Deut. v. 14. particular ground on which the Israelites were commanded to observe it, ver. 15. why the keeping of it used to signify all duties to God, Is. lvi. 2.

Sabbath and day of expiation distinguished from other festivals, Lev. xxiii. 3.

—— under the Christian dispensation, what regard due to it, Deut. v. 14. not a Jewish festival, ibid. equally binding with other moral laws, ibid.

—— Christian, the first day of the week kept holy from the earliest times of the Church, Acts xx. 7. succeeded in the place of the Jewish sabbath, ibid. the great obligation of all to observe it, ibid. mode of observing it by the primitive Christians, ibid. called 'the Lord's day,' Rev. i. 10. reasons for solemnly observing it, Acts ii. 1. See First day of the week, Lord's day, Sunday.

—— neglect of, its consequences and punishment, Gen. ii. 3. cause of mischief to individuals, Deut. v. 12. progressive evils attending it, ibid. its effects on a country, ibid. profanations of it improperly defended by a particular text, Matt. xii. 7. exposition of it, ibid.

—— intended as a day of religious worship, Deut. v. 12. so considered by the Jews, ibid. peculiar services appointed for it, ibid. reflections on the sin of not making it a season of religious employment, ibid. part of it should be employed in giving religious instruction to those about us, Deut. vi. 7. refreshment of the lower orders a secondary object of its institution, Deut. v. 14. this refreshment provided for by the law, ibid. should be granted under the Gospel, ibid. useful both to the higher and lower orders, ibid. rest on it to be allowed to the cattle, ibid. when the law with respect to them is violated, ibid. observation of it not hurtful, Exod. xxxiv. 21. reason for maintaining it, ibid. what acts may be performed on it, Matt. xii. 7.

—— made for man,' the expression explained and commented on, Mark ii. 27.

—— day, why Christ frequently performed miracles on it, John ix. 14.

—— first day of the week, not so called in the apostolical age, Col. ii. 16. to what days appropriated, ibid. application of the remark to an unfounded interpretation of St. Paul's language, ibid.

—— day's journey, its extent, Acts i. 12.

—— of the seventh year, how to be observed, Lev. xxv. 2. when to take place, ibid. general reasons of it, ibid. proof of the Divine origin of the laws of Moses, ver. 4.

—— of rest, what it means, Lev. xvi. 31.

Sabbaths, weeks, Lev. xxiii. 15.

—— how the land of Judah kept them, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21. what the term 'sabbath' implies, ibid.

Sabbathbreaker, upon what principle to suffer death, Lev. xxiv. 16. why stoned to death, Numb. xv. 35.

Sabbatical years, Israelites reproached for not keeping them, Lev. xxvi. 34.

Sabeans, who they were, Job i. 15; Ezek. xxiii. 42.

Sabellian heresy, obviated, Heb. i. 3.

Sackcloth, common on mournful occasions, Gen. xxxvii. 29; 1 Kings xx. 31. when first noticed, Gen. xxxvii. 29. worn by the Prophets, and why, Is. xx. 2.

—— and ashes, the outward signs of penitence, Matt. xi. 21.

Sacks, two sorts of, in the history of Joseph, Gen. xliv. 1.

Sacrament, what intended to do, Rom. ii. 28.

—— of the Lord's supper, instituted by Christ, Matt. xxvi. 26. meaning of His words in connexion with the paschal institution, ibid. 'this is My body,' a figurative expression, not supporting the doctrine of transubstantiation, ibid. in what sense His body and blood are indeed taken, ibid. our Lord's design in the institution, ver. 27. none but a few mysticks disallow this sacrament, ibid. the necessity of frequent attendance at it from thankful remembrance of our Saviour, Luke xxii. 19. it is a sacrament of our redemption, ibid. its effect to worthy communicants, John vi. 54. See Lord's Supper, Supper of the Lord.

Sacraments, no privilege for sin nor exemption from punishment, 1 Cor. x. 12.

—— Christian, their efficacy illustrated by the brasen serpent, Numb. xxi. 9.

Sacramental cup, effect of Christians partaking of it, 1 Cor. xii. 13. how produced, ibid.

Sacred things, honour due to them, Exod. xxxv. 5. shewn by early Christians, ibid. and the reformed Church of England, ibid.

Sacrifice, probably instituted at the fall, and why, Gen. iii. 21. Christ's surrender of life so called, Heb. x. 1. how represented by some persons, ibid. how represented by the sacred writers, ibid.

—— animal, why peculiarly pleasing to God, Gen. iv. 4. its peculiar efficacy, Lev. xvii. 11.

—— of Christ, wherein distinguished from the Jewish sacrifice, Heb. vii. 27. perfection of it, Rom. vi. 9. once offered, Heb. ix. 27. not repeated in the service of the Holy Communion, ibid. pretence of doing so unscriptural, ibid. and accompanied with absurdity and impiety, ibid. its effect with respect to Himself, Heb. v. 9. and to Christians, ibid. its necessity to any man's pardon, Heb. ix. 26. extent of its influence, ibid. its acceptableness to God, how signified, 1 Pet. iii. 18.

—— of the death of Christ, doctrine of, in what way open to abuse, Rom. vi. 1. foreseen and provided against by the Apostles, ibid

—— for sin, Christ so represented, 2 Cor. v. 21. purposes of His being so, ibid. what necessary for us in order to them, ibid. no other than Christ's needed, Heb. x. 14.

—— divine acceptance of, how signified, Gen. iv. 4; Ps. xx. 3.

—— what sort of, acceptable to God, Ps. l. 14, 23.

—— what sort of, Christians should offer, Rom. xii. 1.

—— where those came who offered in the temple, Ezek. xlvi. 3.

—— the daily, taken away by the Romans, Dan. viii. 11. for how long, ver. 13.

—— of fools, what it signifies, Eccles. v. 1.

—— of praise, what it signifies, Jer. xxxiii. 11.

—— to eat of, what it signifies, Ezek. xviii. 6.

—— slaughter of the wicked so called, Zeph. i. 7.

Sacrifices, Jewish, significant services, Introd. to Lev. three sorts of, Exod. xviii. 12.

—— animal, institution of, and continuance, Lev. i. 2. connexion with atonement, ibid. offering of, taken by the law for granted, ibid. of no value in themselves, Lev. iv. 26. why accepted by God, ibid. great end of the Mosaical, Lev. i. 2; vii. 26. same of the patriarchal, ibid. emblematical of the blood of Christ, ibid. Matt. xxvi. 56.

—— Levitical, why to be offered only in prescribed places, Lev. xvii. 3. remark on their troublesomeness, Numb. xxix. 13. and invalidity, ver. 36. why called holy and most holy, Ezek. xxxvi. 38. unaccompanied with what they signified, displeasing, Hos. vi. 6.

—— daily, when offered, Lev. iii. 5. never intermitted, ibid. their purport, ibid.

—— of children, practised by several heathen nations, Deut. xii. 31.

—— human, whence corrupted, Lev. i. 2. not authorized by the law of Moses, Lev. xxvii. 29. expressly forbidden by it, ibid. marked with peculiar abhorrence in the Jewish law, Lev. xx. 2.

—— in groves, an heathen rite, remarked on, Is. i. 29.

—— Gentile, to devils, remarked on, Lev. i. 2.

—— heathen, eating of, an act of idolatry, Numb. xxv. 2.

—— Balak's opinion of their value, Mic. vi. 6.

—— what sort of we offer at the Holy Communion, Heb. ix. 27. what the ancient Church meant by the sacrifice of the altar, ibid.

—— house full of, what it means, Prov. xvii. 1.

Sacrilege, remarkably punished, Dan. v. 5.

Sadducees, sect of, their general character, Matt. iii. 7; Acts iv. 2. their attempt to shew the absurdity of a resurrection, Matt. xxii. 24. confutation of them by Christ, ver. 32; Luke xx. 37. Christ's mode of arguing against them explained, ibid. why after the resurrection they became the fiercest opposers of the Gospel, Acts iv. 1. why many of this sect concealed their opinions, ibid. instances of high priests of this sect, Acts v. 17. explanation of their denial of the existence of spirits, Acts xxiii. 8. their principles a striking characteristick of infidelity in every age, Acts iv. 2.

Sagan, what officer so called, 2 Kings xxv. 18.
Saints, holy angels, Deut. xxxiii. 2; Ecclus. xlv. 2. the holy nation, the Israelites, Deut. xxxiii. 3; Ps. l. 5. Christians so called, Acts ix. 13; Rom. i. 7; xvi. 2. and why, Rom. i. 7; 1 Cor. vi. 1. comprehensive import of the word, 1 Cor. i. 2. to what it stands opposed, ibid. poor Christians, Rom. xv. 25. servants, Ps. xxxiv. 9.
—— a conclusive argument against the practice of the Romish church of praying to them, 2 Kings ii. 9. the practice unscriptural and inexcusable, 1 Tim. ii. 5.
—— how they shall sit on thrones at the final judgment, Dan. vii. 22.
—— or true Christians, their patience and perseverance under persecution, Rev. xiv. 12.
—— of old, way in which they were saved, Heb. xi. 40. their examples a pattern for us, ibid.
'—— in light' explained, Col. i. 12.
Salamis, its situation, Acts xiii. 5.
Salem, situation of the place, Gen. xiv. 18. meaning of the word, ibid.
Salmon, hill of, comparison to its top covered with snow, explained, Ps. lxviii. 14.
Salmone, its situation, Acts xxvii. 7.
Salt, why used in sacrifices, Lev. ii. 13. question concerning the antiquity of the use of it, ibid. eating of, how esteemed in the East, Numb. xviii. 19. used for food and maintenance in general, Ezra iv. 14. instances in modern times, ibid. sowing with, why practised by a triumphant enemy, Judg. ix. 45. why rubbed on a newborn infant, Ezek. xvi. 4. peculiarly useful in hot climates, Matt. v. 13. 'ye are the salt of the earth' explained, ibid. salt having lost its savour illustrated, ibid. its typical meaning, Mark ix. 50. 'salted with fire' explained, ver. 49. what the emblem of, and why, Col. iv. 6.
'—— of the covenant,' meaning of the phrase, Lev. ii. 13.
—— sea, why so called, Gen. xix. 24. how formed in the plain of Siddim, ibid. its other names, ibid. description of it by the Prophets, by Josephus, by heathen writers, and by modern travellers, ibid.
Saltness, instances of it as equivalent to barrenness, Ezek. xlvii. 11.
Salutation, form of, among the Jews, Matt. x. 12.
—— in St. Paul's Epistles, exceptions to its uniformity, Eph. i. 2.
Salutations in the East, the formality of them, 2 Kings iv. 29.
—— in St. Paul's Epistles, what they contained, Rom. i. 7. very affectionate, Rom. xvi. 3. why they contain some signal epithet to almost every person, ibid.
Salvation, the care of it of infinite value, Luke x. 42. not limited by the decrees of God, Luke xiii. 24. unnecessary curiosity respecting the salvation of others should be repressed, ibid. the means of it mistaken by many, ibid.
—— of Christians, begun in this life, perfected in the next, Acts ii. 47. baptized persons spoken of as 'saved,' ibid. eternal life not to be obtained without acting up to the Christian profession, ibid.
—— by Jesus Christ alone, how to be understood, Acts iv. 12. in what manner effected, ibid. how far it extends in point of time, 1 Cor. xv. 22.
—— by grace, the gift of God, Eph. ii. 8. when men are able to obtain it, ibid. when it will actually take place, ibid. how to be obtained, ibid. how reconcileable with men's working out their own salvation, ibid.
'—— not of works' explained, Eph. ii. 9.
—— used for the means of salvation, the profession of the true religion, Rom. xi. 11, 26.
Samaria, city of, when it became the capital city of the kingdom of Israel, 1 Kings xvi. 24. its history and modern state, ibid. rebuilt by Herod the Great, and new named, Acts viii. 5. its situation described, Is. xxviii. 1. remarkable allusion to it, ibid.
Samaria, siege of, the price of an ass's head during it, &c. 2 Kings vi. 25. the judgments of God thereby fulfilled, ibid. ver. 29.
—— 'the cities of Samaria,' why spoken of by anticipation, 1 Kings xiii. 32.
—— country of, Babylonish colony planted there, why punished by lions, 2 Kings xvii. 25. reflections on an Israelite priest being sent to them, ver. 27. occasion of a corruption of the true worship of God, ibid. their mixture of the worship of God with that of idols, ver. 32, 41. their deep-rooted idolatrous propensities, 2 Kings xvii. 41.
—— mountains of, proofs of their producing good wines, Jer. xxxi. 5.
—— personified and put for the ten tribes of Israel, Ezek. xvi. 46. why said to dwell on the left hand of Jerusalem, ibid.
—— the son of, the calf in Beth-el why so called, Amos viii. 14.
—— 'through the midst of Samaria and Galilee' explained, Luke xvii. 11.
Samaritan, reproachfulness of the title among the Jews, John viii. 48. what it implied, ibid.
—— parable of the good Samaritan, Christ's designs in relating it, Luke x. 30. example of His wonderfully persuasive manner, ibid. thought by some to be a real narrative, ibid. reflections on its several parts, ver. 30—37. instructions to be learned from it, ver. 37.
Samaritans, who they were, Matt. x. 5. and why so called, Ezra iv. 1. origin and progress of the mutual hatred and animosity between them and the Jews, 2 Kings xvii. 27; John iv. 9. in what the difference between them consisted, Matt. x. 5. remarks on their opposition to the Jews in rebuilding the temple, Ezra iv. 5, 12. joined the service of God with the worship of idols, ver. 2. why their proffers of assistance steadily rejected by the Jews, ver. 3. how this rejection important to the Divine purposes, ibid. their favourable opportunity of working on the king's fears respecting the Jews, ver. 12. their imperfect notions of God and His service in our Saviour's time, John iv. 22. their notions of Messiah more correct than those entertained by the Jews, ver. 25. reasons of their refusing to receive Christ, Luke ix. 53. why the Apostles not to preach to them in their first mission, Matt. x. 5.
Samothracia, its situation, Acts xvi. 11.
Samuel, a Levite by descent, 1 Sam. i. 1. why distinguished by wearing a linen ephod, 1 Sam. ii. 18. his growth in wisdom and virtue, ver. 21. his ready obedience and humility of will an example to us, 1 Sam. iii. 4, 10. an example of modesty and of resolution, ver. 18. the will of God revealed by him, 1 Sam. iv. 1. remark on the Israelites going out to war without consulting him, ibid. reflection on the efficacy of his intercession and prayers, 1 Sam. vii. 9. in what sense he 'judged Israel all the days of his life,' ver. 15. why he built an altar at Ramah, ver. 17. first person called by the title 'seer,' 1 Sam. ix. 9. reason and manner of his anointing Saul, 1 Sam. x. 1. what meant by his 'writing in a book the manner of the kingdom,' ver. 25. exposition of his spirited justification of himself before all Israel, 1 Sam. xii. 1. a bright example of integrity and uprightness as a publick officer, ibid. the undaunted courage of his innocence, ver. 3. how he signifies the greatness of the miracle which God wrought by him, ver. 17. in what sense the people 'feared the Lord and Samuel,' ver. 18. his love for the people notwithstanding their ingratitude, 1 Sam. xii. 23. in what sense he 'hewed Agag in pieces,' 1 Sam. xv. 33. explanation of his saying that he came to Beth-lehem to sacrifice, 1 Sam. xvi. 2. remark on his anointing David, ver. 13. his death and character, 1 Sam. xxv. 1. a prevailing intercessor, Jer. xv. 1. mentioned as the first famous Prophet after Moses, Acts iii. 24.
—— first book of, how styled in the Vulgate, Introd. to 1 Sam. by whom written, ibid. its authority, ibid. and contents, ibid. remarkable prophecy contained in it, ibid.
—— the second book of, general description of it, Introd. to 2 Sam. prophecies contained in it, ibid. quoted by St. Paul with application to Christ, Heb. i. 5. referred to by St. Paul, 2 Cor. vi. 18. inference from the passage with respect to Christians, ibid. powerful motive to holiness contained in the passage, ibid.

SAMUEL the seer, the book of, probable account of it, 1 Chron. xxix. 29.
SAMSON, probable meaning of the name, Judg. xiii. 24. remarks on his Nazaritism for his whole life, ver. 4. how far he delivered Israel from the Philistines, ver. 5. how moved by 'the Spirit of the Lord,' ver. 25. reflection on his weakness, Judg. xiv. 3. God's intention of bringing good out of his evil, ver. 4. how endued with extraordinary strength, ver. 6. remark on his riddle, ver. 12. not more to be justified in leaving his wife than in choosing her, ver. 20. his designs of vengeance on the Philistines, Judg. xv. 3. how he burned the Philistines' corn with foxes and firebrands, ver. 4. remarks on his slaughter of them, ver. 8. reflections on his victory with the jawbone, ver. 15. and on his weakness in being inveigled by a Philistine harlot, Judg. xvi. 1. question whether he was married to Delilah, ver. 4. his infatuation by Delilah, ver. 6, 13. his answer to Delilah explained, ver. 13. his want of resolution and of wisdom, ibid. tormented by conflicting passions, ver. 16. why forsaken by God, ibid. his grinding in the prison house, explained, ver. 21. good effect of his repentance and sorrow, ver. 22. in what sense his strength resided in his hair, ibid. his pulling down the house on the Philistines, explained and illustrated, ver. 27. why his exploits against the Philistines all singly performed, ibid. instruction to be derived from his example, ibid.
SANBALLAT, his country and quality, Neh. ii. 10. what the mention of him shews with respect to the Moabites, ibid. cause of his opposition to Nehemiah and the Jews, ibid. meaning of his expressions of derision at Nehemiah's building the walls, Neh. iv. 2, 3. conjectures on the reason of his sending an open letter to Nehemiah, Neh. vi. 5.
Sanctification, one of the benefits of Christ's death, Rom. viii. 4. how effected, ibid. a benefit of baptism, 1 Cor. vi. 11.
Sanctified, what meant by the unbelieving husband being sanctified by the wife, 1 Cor. vii. 14.
Sanctifieth, how used in the Epistle to the Hebrews, Heb. ii. 11.
Sanctify, what it means, Exod. xix. 10. why commanded to the Israelites, ibid. use made of the injunction in after-times, ibid. practical reflections on it, ibid.
'—— the Lord God in your hearts' explained, 1 Pet. iii. 15. by what means this is done, ibid.
Sanctuary, what meant by, Ezek. xlii. 20. outward, Ezek. xliv. 1. strangers not to be admitted into, ver. 9. by whom profaned, ibid.
—— used for an idolatrous temple, Amos vii. 9.
—— remark on its being set up under an oak, Josh. xxiv. 26.
—— different ways in which the phrase is rendered, Heb. viii. 2. Jewish notion concerning it, Heb. ix. 1. what meant by a worldly sanctuary, ibid.
Sand-storm referred to, Job xxx. 22.
Sandals, Hebrew women nice in adorning, Song of Sol. vii. 1. ancient, made extremely rich, Judith xvi. 9.
Sanhedrim, or great council of the Jews, probable foundation of it, Numb. xi. 16. its functions how interrupted, Jer. xxvi. 10. its restoration, ibid. what the members of it were called, ibid. origin and meaning of the name, ibid. business of the council, ver. 14. place of sitting, Jer. xxxv. 4. of whom composed, Ezek. xliv. 24; Acts iv. 5. had the power of seizing offenders in other countries, Acts ix. 1. in what idolatrous rites seen by Ezekiel, Ezek. viii. 8.
SAPHIR, what it signifies, Mic. i. 11. what city intended by it, ibid.
Sapphire, colour sky blue, what stone alluded to, Job xxviii. 16.
SARACENS, improperly so called, Gen. xxi. 18. why they so denominated themselves, ibid. how they got their living, ver. 20. their manner of wearing their beards and hair signified, Rev. ix. 7, 8. distilled the venom of a false religion, ver. 10.
SARAH, meaning of her name Sarai, Gen. xvii. 15. and of her name Sarah, ibid. probably called Iscah, Gen. xi. 29. her relation to Abraham, ibid. in what respect her laughter differed from Abraham's, Gen. xviii. 12. her confusion and fault, ver. 15. reason of the Apostle's caution concerning her, ibid. her motion for casting out Hagar a Divine suggestion, Gen. xxi. 10. what meant by her calling Abraham, Lord, 1 Pet. iii. 6. explanation of what is said of her as an example, ibid.
Sarcasm, instance of, Ezek. xxviii. 9; Amos iv. 4.
Sardine stone, described, Rev. iv. 3.
SARDIS, church of, description of Sardis, and present state of the church, Rev. iii. 1. not living in purity of Christianity, ibid. its fault, negligence, and supineness, ver. 3. a few preserved from the common corruption, ver. 4. promises to them, ver. 4, 5.
SAREPTA, where situated, Deut. xxxiii. 24.
SARGON, why probably means Sennacherib, Is. xx. 1.
SARON, its situation, Acts ix. 35.
SATAN, meaning of his name, Job i. 6. character assigned to him in Scripture, ibid. how employed by God as His instrument, ver. 7. the author of all evil, Matt. xiii. 39. his artifice in the manner of tempting our Lord, Matt. iv. 2, 3. his misapplication of Scripture, ver. 6. renewed his attacks on our Lord shortly before His crucifixion, Luke iv. 13. will repeat his attacks on all Christians, ibid. why called 'the prince of this world,' John xii. 31. why said to 'have nothing in Christ,' John xiv. 30. in what sense said to be 'judged,' John xvi. 11. why Christ said He 'beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven,' Luke x. 18. why called the god of this world, 2 Cor. iv. 4. similar denominations given to him, ibid. how he gets power over us, ibid. what makes him the god of many heathen nations, ibid. what makes men his subjects even where faith in the true God is professed, ibid. how he blinds the minds of men, ibid. in what manner transformed into an angel of light, 2 Cor. xi. 14. enemies of the Gospel are his ministers, 1 Thess. ii. 18. See Devil, Evil Spirit.
—— bound for a thousand years, what it implies, Rev. xx. 2. loosed out of prison, what it denotes, ver. 7. fruitlessness of the attempt to disturb the Church, ibid.
—— an adversary, Ps. cix. 6. why the word has that signification, Job i. 6.
'Sat before the Lord,' meaning, remained in a suppliant posture, 2 Sam. vii. 18. illustrated by an Arabian custom, 1 Chron. xvii. 16.
Satisfaction, provided by Christ's death, extent of, Rom. v. 19. See Atonement, CHRIST, Sacrifice, &c.
Satraps, by whom instituted, Dan. vi. 1.
Satyrs, what they were, Is. xiii. 20.
SAUL, chosen for his stature in conformity to Eastern notions, 1 Sam. ix. 2. choice of him why not permitted to the Israelites, ibid. his success in war foretold, ver. 16. was to rule the people with severity, ver. 17. and why, ibid. his free agency not controlled by the Spirit of God, 1 Sam. x. 10. his manner of life after he was anointed, 1 Sam. xi. 5. proof of his resolution, and first exercise of his authority, ver. 7. his exemplary moderation, ver. 13. the mode in which he was made king peculiarly remarkable, ver. 15. the Divine government carefully preserved in it, ibid. and God's legislative authority, ibid. passage explained respecting his having reigned one year, 1 Sam. xiii. 1. reflections on his folly in offering sacrifice, ver. 13. his impatience and want of faith shewn thereby, ibid. the weakness of his excuse, ver. 12. remarks on his unadvised adjuration, 1 Sam. xiv. 24. rashness and impolicy of his whole conduct therein, ver. 45. why he ordered a great stone to be rolled to him, ver. 33. why he built an altar to the Lord, ver. 35. his disobedience in sparing Agag, 1 Sam. xv. 9, 11. his covetousness and vanity therein, ver. 9. his preference of his own honour to that of God, ver. 11. his blindness to his own fault, ver. 13. his mean excuse to throw the blame on the people, ver. 15. his adding one sin to another, ibid. his stubbornness and ingratitude, ver. 23. his pretence of acting from fear of the people, ver. 24. his rejection from being king, ver. 23, 28. his repentance not sincere, ibid. and therefore ineffectual, ibid. his culpable solicitude about the good opinion of the people, ver. 30. what meant by his being troubled by an evil spirit from the Lord, 1 Sam. xvi. 14. in what manner he was relieved by musick, ver. 23. his subsequent ignorance of David explained, 1 Sam. xvii. 58. his envy of David how intimated, 1 Sam. xviii. 9. effects of it, ver. 10. what meant by his prophesying, ibid. nature of his disease, ibid. his envy of David why mixed with fear of him, ver. 12. injustice and perfidy of his conduct towards him, ver. 17. why he promises him his daughter, ver. 21. insidious design in the condition imposed on David, ver.

25. why he required a hundred foreskins of the Philistines, ibid. reflections on his snares being defeated, ibid. and on his strange infatuation, ver. 29. reflections on his attempt to smite David, 1 Sam. xix. 10, 15. and on the inveteracy of his hatred, ver. 20. in what sense his messengers and he prophesied, ibid. ver. 23. of what this was designed to convince him, ver. 23. meaning of the proverb, Is Saul also among the prophets, ibid. what meant by his sitting 'upon a seat by the wall,' 1 Sam. xx. 25. his expectation of seeing David at the feast accounted for, ibid. his words of anger against Jonathan explained, ver. 30. how it came to pass that he had always a javelin in his hand, ver. 33. remark on his slanderous accusation of his servants, 1 Sam. xxii. 8. his great barbarity in destroying the city of the priests, ver. 19. his strange inconsistency of character and conduct, ibid. how his devices were turned to the purposes of God's providence, ibid. one consequence of his murder of the priests, 1 Sam. xxiii. 6. how called off from pursuing David, ver. 27. reflections on his being overcome by David's generosity, 1 Sam. xxiv. 16. on his conviction of David's integrity, ver. 19. and on his beseeching God to bless him, ibid. his remarkable acknowledgment of David's destination to be king, ver. 20. reflections on his address to David, ver. 22. his inconceivable inconstancy and falseness towards David, 1 Sam. xxvi. 2. remark on his acknowledgment of guilt and folly, ver. 21. his conduct and dispositions in these transactions, ver. 25. why his putting away those that had familiar spirits mentioned, 1 Sam. xxviii. 3. his habitual carelessness in religious matters, ver. 6. does not inquire of the Lord with feelings of true repentance, ver. 6, 7. his sin and madness in having recourse to the witch of En-dor, ver. 7. his miserable state when deserted by God, ver. 15. proper way of considering his death, 1 Sam. xxxi. 6. the account of it given by the Amalekite probably false, 2 Sam. i. 6. why said to have 'died for his transgression,' 1 Chron. x. 13. instructive reflections on his death, 1 Sam. xxxi. 13; 1 Chron. x. 13.

SAUL, when his slaughter of the Gibeonites took place, 2 Sam. xxi. 1. why the punishment of this crime sent so long after, ibid. why his sons publickly put to death before an altar, ver. 9. God's intention herein, ibid.

SAUL'S brethren or kindred, why some of them took part with David, 1 Chron. xii. 2.

Saved, how the word is used in Scripture, Mark xvi. 16; Acts ii. 47. who said in Scripture to be so, 1 Cor. xv. 2. what the phrase signifies, ibid. in what sense persons said to be saved, Eph. ii. 8. instances of the phrase remarked on, ibid.

—— 'such as should be saved,' the meaning of the phrase, Acts ii. 47.

—— 'according to His mercy He saved us' explained, Tit. iii. 5.

—— 'he saved,' who intended, Jer. xxxi. 36.

'—— yet so as by fire, a proverbial expression explained, 1 Cor. iii. 15. what it relates to, ibid. no authority for the Romanists' doctrine of purgatory, ibid. but an awful warning to them, ibid.

Saving faith, how it affects believers, Rom. x. 9.

SAVIOUR, necessity of one, Rom. iii. 19. who the objects of His mercy, ibid. the last Prophet closes prophecy with promise of Him, Mal. ii. 17.

—— instances of the word being applied to God the Father, 1 Tim. i. 1.

—— of all men, in what sense God is so both temporally and spiritually, 1 Tim. iv. 10.

—— who meant by the Saviour that God gave to Israel, 2 Kings xiii. 5.

Saviours, the application of the term explained, Obad. ver. 21.

'Savour of Christ,' what St. Paul means by saying he is so, 2 Cor. ii. 15.

'—— of death,' 'savour of life,' probably an allusion to the phraseology of the Jews, 2 Cor. ii. 14. why the Gospel so called, ver. 15.

'—— of knowledge,' probably an allusion to a Roman custom, 2 Cor. ii. 14.

Scapegoat, figure of the sacrifice of Christ, Lev. xvi. 21. why sent into the wilderness, ibid. what wilderness uncertain, ibid. ceremony attending it, ibid. not sent by the hand of an Israelite, Lev. xvi. 21. in what the atonement effected by it consisted, ver. 22.

Scarlet coloured beast, denoting cruelty, Rev. xvii. 3. to what the colour alludes, ibid.

—— robe, why put upon our Saviour, Matt. xxvii. 28.

Scattereth, in what sense used, Prov. xi. 24.

Sceptre, what it signifies, Gen. xlix. 10. See Star.

Schism, three places in which the word occurs, 1 Cor. i. 10. in what it consisted in each place, ibid. definition of the offence, ibid. how persons may fall under the imputation of it, though they do not separate from the communion of the Church, 1 Cor. xi. 18. we rightly pray to be delivered from it, 1 Sam. xv. 23. what necessary in order to our success, ibid. See Divisions.

Schools of the Prophets, their situation on high places probably alluded to, Prov. ix. 3.

Schoolmaster, why the law said to be so, Gal. iii. 24. comparison illustrative of the figure, ver. 25.

Scoffers, what manner of men are such, 2 Pet. iii. 3.

Scorner, worst sort of sinner, Prov. xxiv. 9.

Scorners, 'to stretch out the hand with,' explained, Hos. vii. 5.

Scorpion, described, Deut. viii. 15. its appearance and size in Judea, Luke xi. 12. severity and painfulness of its sting, Rev. ix. 5.

Scorpions, figuratively used, 1 Kings xii. 11.

Scotch Presbyterians, peculiarity in their publick worship, 1 Cor. xiv. 15.

Scourging, in the synagogues, for persons guilty of heresy, Matt. x. 17. usual before crucifixion, Matt. xxvii. 26. character of the punishment, Acts v. 41. why sometimes inflicted, Acts xxii. 24.

Scribe, meaning a publick secretary, 2 Sam. viii. 17. what the title means, Ecclus. x. 5.

—— of the host, what officer probably intended, Jer. lii. 25.

Scribes, mentioned in the New Testament, who they were, Matt. ii. 4. how they delivered their doctrines, Matt. vii. 29. contrasted in that particular with Christ, ibid. explanation of their frequent disputes respecting the great commandment, Matt. xxii. 36. in what sense they took away the key of knowledge, Luke xi. 52.

Scrip, its meaning, Matt. x. 10.

Scripture, remark on St. Paul's use of the term, 1 Tim. v. 18.

—— of truth, what it signifies, Dan. x. 21.

Scriptures, the sacred Scriptures, wonderful in matter, manner, and effect, Ps. cxix. 129. contain the only doctrines to be believed, 2 Thess. ii. 15. why called holy, 2 Tim. iii. 15. their admirable impartiality, Gen. xxv. 33. fairness, Acts xxv. 19. and candour, Matt. xi. 6; Acts xxviii. 24. sincerity and indifference of the writers to the possible appearance of what they record, Acts xv. 39; xxviii. 22. internal evidence of their inspiration, Gen. xliv. 34. contain examples of every human virtue, Gen. l. 10. relate only material circumstances, Exod. ii. 21. often refer to existing publick annals, 1 Kings xi. 41. attribute the revolutions of states to the supreme Governour, 1 Kings xii. 15. often represent God as doing what in His providence He permits, 2 Sam. xxiv. 1; 1 Kings xxii. 23. often speak of a person's doing a thing, of which he has been the occasion, Acts i. 18. support derived to Christianity from their impartiality, Gal. ii. 11. their effect on well-disposed minds, Neh. viii. 9. happiness of all, if they would read and consider them with devout attention, ibid. should be read with a meek and teachable disposition, Acts viii. 30. particular blessing with which they conclude, Rev. xxii. 14. See Holy Scriptures, Jewish Scriptures, Evangelists.

—— remarkable corruption of a particular text, Acts vi. 6.

—— of the Old and New Testament, general end of them is one, 2 Tim. iii. 15. wherein the difference between them consists, ibid.

Scum, what it denotes, Ezek. xxiv. 6.

SCYTHIANS, their expulsion from Media foretold, Ezek. xxxii. 26. their character, Col. iii. 11. what the term is used generally for, ibid.

Sea, keeping it within bounds a proof of God's overruling power, Jer. v. 22.

—— by which the Canaanites dwelt, meaning of it uncertain, Numb. xiii. 29.

Sea, how used by the Hebrews, Is. xxiv. 14.
—— put for the river Nile, Is. xix. 5. instances of corresponding phrases, ibid. probably for the Euphrates, Jer. li. 42. question concerning a metaphorical use of it, ibid.
—— peculiar phrase 'to go as it were to the sea' explained, Acts xvii. 14.
—— brasen, in the temple, its capacity and use, 1 Kings vii. 26. See Great Sea, Red Sea, Salt Sea, &c.
—— monsters. See Phocæ.
Seas, lakes so called, Nah. iii. 8.
—— the two, country bordering on, name for Egypt, Judith i. 12. modern use of the phrase, ibid.
Seal, why circumcision so called, Rom. iv. 11. why the Corinthians called the seal of St. Paul's apostleship, 1 Cor. ix. 2.
—— of the living God, His mark by which 'He knoweth which are His,' Rev. vii. 2. sealing the servants, &c. alluding to the ancient custom of marking servants on the forehead, ver. 3. baptism called the seal of the Christian covenant, ibid.
—— seventh, its duration, Rev. viii. 1.
—— 'to seal up,' expression whence taken, Ezek. xxviii. 12.
Seals, the bearing of, a token of high office, Esth. viii. 2. examples of it among the heathens, ibid. and in our own country, ibid. of some Eastern nations described, 2 Tim. ii. 19. how alluded to by St. Paul, ibid. See Signets.
—— the opening of the seven seals, what it denotes, Rev. vi. introd.
—— what they foretell, Rev. viii. 2.
Sealing a stone, a common precaution in ancient times, Matt. xxvii. 66.
Season, 'in season, out of season' explained, 2 Tim. iv. 2. a proverbial expression, ibid.
Seasons, vicissitudes of, proof of a Providence, Jer. v. 24. unfruitful, beginning of God's judgments on Israel, Hos. ii. 9.
Sebat, month, to what it corresponds, Zech. i. 7.
Second sabbath after the first, explanation of the term, Luke vi. 1.
'Secret things belong unto the Lord our God, &c.' explanation of the passage, Deut. xxix. 29.
—— 'secret of the tabernacle' explained, Ps. xxvii. 5.
Security, our security depends on God's protection, Ps. iii. 8; iv. 7.
Sedge, alluded to, Ecclus. xl. 16. where and how it grows, ibid.
Seducers, what the word properly denotes, 2 Tim. iii. 13.
Seducing from the path of virtue, heinous nature of the crime, Matt. xviii. 7.
—— spirits, explained, 1 Tim. iv. 1. what meant by them, ibid.
'See God,' how the Israelites were said to see Him, Exod. xxiv. 10, 11. how the pure in heart shall see Him, Matt. v. 8.
'—— Him as He is,' privilege of the good in a future state, explained, 1 John iii. 2.
'—— my wretchedness' explained and illustrated, Numb. xi. 15.
'Seed of the woman,' intimation of Christ being so, Gal. iv. 4.
Seeing, used in Scripture for hearing, Gen. xlii. 1.
Seek God, what it means, Is. lviii. 2.
Seem, used as an expletive, Heb. iv. 1.
'Seemed to be somewhat,' literal meaning of the phrase different from what it is intended to convey, Gal. ii. 6, 9. 'seemed to govern' explained, Hist. of Sus. ver. 5.
Seer, how distinguished from Prophet, 1 Sam. ix. 9. when the word 'seer' occurs principally, ibid. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 19. conjecture concerning 'the king's seer,' ibid.
Seers, the sayings of, explained by reference to an Abyssinian custom, 2 Chron. xxxiii. 19.
Seir, land of, conquered by Esau, Gen. xxxii. 3.
—— mount, its situation, Numb. xxiv. 18; Ezek. xxv. 8; xxxv. 2.
Sela, or Selah, its name and situation, 2 Kings xiv. 7; Is. xvi. 1. why the name of Jokteel given to it, 2 Kings xiv. 7.
Selah, conjectures concerning the meaning of the word, Ps. iii. 2.
Seleucia, its situation, 1 Mac. xi. 8; Acts xiii. 4.
Seleucidæ, prophesied of, Dan. ii. 32. why particularly pointed out, ibid.
Seleucidæ, era of, how designated, 1 Mac. ii. 70. its commencement, ibid.
Seleucus Nicator, his power described, Dan. xi. 5.
Seleucus Philopator, why called 'raiser of taxes,' Dan. xi. 20.
Self-commendation, what it usually proceeds from, 2 Cor. xi. 1. to be practised with the greatest caution, ver. 17.
—— defence by the sword not unlawful, Matt. xxvi. 52.
—— denial, enjoined by Christianity, what required by it, Matt. x. 38. proper interpretation of this and similar passages, ibid. precept how enforced by our Saviour's example, Matt. xvi. 24. for the sake of Christ, its great reward, Matt. xix. 29; Mark x. 30; Luke xviii. 30.
—— examination, use to be made of it, 2 Cor. xiii. 5.
—— indulgence, its fatal effects, 2 Tim. iii. 4. who chiefly in danger of it, ibid.
—— love, its injurious effect instanced in David, 2 Sam. xii. 5, 7.
—— murder, forbidden, Gen. ix. 6. the cowardice and iniquity of it, 1 Sam. xxxi. 6. two wretched examples of it, 2 Sam. xvii. 23; Matt. xxvii. 5. heathen notions of it, 2 Mac. xiv. 46. how regarded by the martyrs of old, ibid. its estimation in God's sight, ibid.
—— preservation, the first law of nature, Acts ix. 25. how acted on by St. Paul, ibid.
'Sell that thou hast,' proper meaning of the command, Matt. xix. 21. caution with respect to it, ibid.
Senate of the children of Israel, who intended, Acts v. 21.
Senir, where situated, Ezek. xxvii. 5.
Sennacherib, when he succeeded his father Shalmaneser, 2 Kings xviii. 13. his want of faith towards the king of Judah, ver. 17; 2 Chron. xxxii. 9. admirable description of his proud boastings, 2 Kings xix. 23. his designs observed and controlled by God, ver. 25, 27, 28. destruction of his army predicted, Is. xiv. 25; xviii. 5; xix. 1. speedy execution of God's judgments on his army, 2 Kings xix. 35. the manner in which this destruction was effected, ibid. his intolerable cruelty after his disappointment, ver. 37. reflections upon his tragical end, ibid.
Sensual and profane, their favourite maxim, 1 Cor. xv. 32. illustrated from Isaiah and the book of Wisdom, ibid.
Sensualist, why said to make a God of his belly, Phil. iii. 19.
Sensuality and sin, a life of, why compared to sleep, Rom. xiii. 11.
Sentence of death, what it signifies, 2 Cor. i. 9.
Separate, what the Hebrew word signifies, Gen. xlix. 26. with what allusion it is applied to Joseph, ibid.
'—— themselves' explained, Jude ver. 19.
—— cities, explained, Josh. xvi. 9.
Separated unto the Gospel, how St. Paul was so, Rom. i. 1. reflection on it, ibid.
Sepharad, meaning of the word, Obad. ver. 20.
Sepharvaim, probable account of it, 2 Kings xvii. 24.
Sephela, what country so called, 1 Mac. xii. 38.
Sepulchral chambers described, Job xvii. 1.
—— entertainments alluded to, Bar. vi. 27.
Sepulchres, dug by men in their lifetime, Gen. l. 5. ornamented with flowers, Job xxi. 33.
—— Jewish, were large vaults cut into chambers, Prov. vii. 27; Is. xiv. 9; Matt. xxvii. 60. description of some near Jerusalem, Ezek. xxxii. 23. distinction between those of the populace and the higher orders, Jer. xxvi. 23.
—— whited, the expression explained by allusion to Eastern customs, Matt. xxiii. 27. honour done to the deceased by beautifying their sepulchres, ver. 29.
Seraias, brother of Baruch, account of him, Bar. i. 8.
Seraph, or flying serpent, described, Numb. xxi. 6.
Sermon on the mount, its general nature, Matt. v. 2. not intended a complete system of ethicks, ibid. addressed to all Christians, as well as the first disciples, ver. 16.
Sermons, reflections on the indifference with which they are heard, Jam. i. 23. and on the little effect produced by them, ibid. inutility of hearing them only with curiosity, 2 Tim. iv. 3. the most useful sort of, ibid.
Serpent, old serpent, means the devil or Satan, Gen. iii. 1.
—— in what the curse upon him consisted, Gen. iii. 14.

Serpent, bruising the head of, what to be understood by it, 1 John iii. 8.
—— for what animals used, Amos ix. 3.
—— brasen, why made of brass, Numb. xxi. 8. a type of Christ, ver. 6, 8. virtue of it imputed to its right cause, ver. 9. figure of the Christian sacraments, ibid. called sign of salvation, Wisd. xvi. 6.
—— the crooked, a constellation, Job xxvi. 13.
Serpent's voice, character of it, Jer. xlvi. 22.
—— Egyptians famous for charming them, Exod. vii. 12. remarks on the magicians' rods becoming serpents, ibid. See Charmer, Charming.
—— reckoned remarkable for sagacity by the ancients, Matt. x. 16.
—— fiery, why so called, Numb. xxi. 6. how the Arabians secure themselves from them, ibid. why employed for the punishment of the Israelites, ibid.
—— flying, described, Is. xxx. 6.
—— venomous, abounded in the wilderness, Numb. xxi. 6. testified by heathen writers, ibid. their bite incurable, ibid. inferences with respect to the calamity and cure of the Israelites, ibid.
Servant, the submission of servants to their masters in the East, illustrated, Matt. xviii. 26. name for a slave, Ecclus. xxxiii. 24.
—— used in a special manner, with what meaning, Rom. i. 1. interchanged with Apostle, ibid.
—— of God, persons sometimes so called who do His will unintentionally, Jer. xxv. 9.
—— of the Lord, why Moses so called, Wisd. x. 16.
Servants, how treated under the Jewish law, Deut. xv. 12. their refreshment on the sabbath a secondary object of its institution, Deut. v. 14. expressly provided for by the law, ibid. should be conceded under the Christian dispensation, useful both to them and their superiours, ibid. their condition among the Hebrews, Eccles. ii. 7. in Eastern nations anciently marked on the forehead, Ezek. ix. 4. and for what cause, Rev. vii. 3. their respectful behaviour in the East, Ps. cxxiii. 2. their condition when the Gospel was first preached, 1 Pet. ii. 18. why the Apostles earnestly exhort them to obedience, ibid. effect produced on their condition by Christianity, ibid. duty of servants in the present age, ibid. what things are due from them to their masters, Col. iii. 22; Eph. vi. 6. what industry honest servants will use, ibid. effects of a faithful performance of their duties, Col. iii. 22. and of transgressing or slighting them, ibid. the performance of them a duty to God, ver. 23.
—— of God, for their sakes God restrains men from sin, Gen. xx. 18.
'Serve other gods,' what meant by this menace of Moses to the Jews, Deut. xxviii. 36. why a just punishment upon them, ibid.
Service, creatures employed for other services unfit for that of the Deity, Numb. xix. 2.
—— of God, remarks on the considerations upon which we should perform it, Gen. xxviii. 20. to be preferred before all things, Matt. iv. 10.
—— not to be divided between God and Satan, Rom. vi. 16.
'—— of gift' explained, Numb. xviii. 7.
Services, hypocritical, rejected, Is. i. 11, 15.
'Set the bounds of the people' interpreted, Deut. xxxii. 8.
Set forth, what meant by Christ being 'set forth crucified,' Gal. iii. 1. proper use of the word, ibid.
SETH, meaning of his name, Gen. iv. 25.
Settle, 'the lower settle' explained, Ezek. xliii. 14.
Settlements, detached in early times, Gen. xiii. 9.
Seven, used indefinitely, Lev. xxvi. 18; Jer. xv. 9; Ezek. xxxix. 9; Ps. cxix. 164. much observed among the Hebrews, Numb. xxiii. 1. and used by pious persons, ibid. denotes perfection, Zech. iii. 9. frequently employed in book of Revelation, Rev. i. 4. expressive of universality, fulness, and perfection, Rev. v. 6.
—— and eight, for an indefinite number, Mic. v. 5.
—— days, time of publick mourning, Gen. l. 10; Ezek. iii. 15; Judith xvi. 24. and of rejoicing at solemn weddings, Gen. l. 10.
Seven Spirits, why used to denote the Holy Spirit, Rev. i. 4; iv. 5.
Sevenfold, an indeterminate but great number, Gen. iv. 15.
Seventh month, tenth day, why chosen by God for the day of expiation, Lev. xvi. 29.
Seventy elders, for what purposes appointed, Numb. xi. 17. supposed to be the foundation of the Sanhedrim, ver. 16. why God gave them the gift of prophecy, ver. 25. members of the Sanhedrim, Ezek. viii. 11.
Several house, which Uzziah dwelt in, explained, 2 Kings xv. 5; 2 Chron. xxvi. 21.
'Shadow,' 'image,' how opposed to each other, Heb. x. 1.
—— of death, image whence borrowed, Jer. ii. 6. what it means in a spiritual sense, Luke i. 79.
—— of wings, usual image in the prophetical writers, what it denotes, Is. xviii. 1.
Shaking, 'battles of shaking' explained, Is. xxx. 32.
'—— of an olive tree,' how used metaphorically, Is. xvii. 6.
'—— the earth,' what denoted by it, Heb. xii. 26. what by shaking the heavens, ibid.
Shall, 'way that he shall choose' explained, Ps. xxv. 12.
SHALLECHETH, the gate, conjectures respecting the meaning of the name, 1 Chron. xxvi. 16.
SHALLUM, when his name changed to Jehoahaz, Jer. xxii. 11.
SHALMANESER, whose son and successor he was, 2 Kings xvii. 3. remark on his transporting the seven western tribes to Media, ver. 6. why he probably placed them in the mountainous parts of Media, ibid.
Shame, 'shame hath devoured the labour of our fathers,' conjectures on the meaning of the term, Jer. iii. 24.
—— false, to be avoided by the disciples of Christ, Matt. x. 32.
SHARON, town and valley of, where situated, Is. lxv. 10; Song of Sol. ii. 1. character of the country, ibid.
Shaven, to be so, disgraceful to women in different stations, 1 Cor. xi. 5.
Shawms, a name for trumpets, Numb. x. 2.
Sheaf of the firstfruits, uses of offering it, Lev. xxiii. 10. borrowed by the Gentiles, ibid.
SHEAR-JASHUB, observations on the name, Is. vii. 3.
Shearing house, explanation of what is meant, 2 Kings x. 12.
SHEBA, his rebellion a new chastisement for David, 2 Sam. xx. 2.
—— queen of, doubts respecting her country, 1 Kings x. 1. its most probable situation, ibid. her motives for coming to Solomon, ibid. the high degree of her astonishment at him, ver. 5. her asking for presents agreeable to modern Eastern customs, ver. 13. remarks on her admonition to the king and the people, ver. 9. and on her acknowledgment of his divine authority, and of the purpose for which he reigned, 2 Chron. ix. 8.
SHEBNA, the treasurer, different from the scribe, Is. xxii. 15. remarks on his history, ibid. xxx. 4.
SHECHEM, altars dedicated there, Gen. xxxiii. 20. its antiquity, ibid.
—— in the history of Joseph, different from the other Shechem, Gen. xxxvii. 12.
—— discussion respecting the ark being at Shechem, Josh. xxiv. 1.
—— probably on east side of Jordan, Ps. lx. 6.
Shechinah, or cloud of glory, explained, Gen. iii. 9. the probable archetype of it, ver. 24. opinion concerning it, Gen. iv. 16. symbol of God's presence with the Israelites, Exod. xiii. 21. was in the most holy place, Is. lx. 13. appeared to the shepherds, Luke ii. 9. appeared at the transfiguration, Matt. xvii. 5.
Shed abroad, how the original word is commonly used in the New Testament, Rom. v. 5.
Sheep, used in an enlarged sense, Gen. xii. 16. tails of in the East extremely large, Exod. xxix. 22. fat of them used instead of butter, ibid. riches of the greatest persons consisted much in sheep, 2 Kings iii. 4. their tractable nature in Judea, John x. 4.
Sheepfolds, hired to sell sheep for sacrifice, alluded to, John x. 1.
Sheepgate, its supposed situation, and the reason of the name, Neh. iii. 1.
Sheepmaster, what meant by the king of Moab being so, 2 Kings iii. 4.

Sheepshearing, a season of rejoicing, Gen. xxxviii. 13; 2 Sam. xiii. 23.
Shekel, occurs first, Gen. xxiii. 15. its supposed value, ibid. of the sanctuary, why so called, Exod. xxx. 13. what meant by 'making the shekel great,' Amos viii. 5.
Shem, why named before his elder brothers, Gen. v. 32. peculiarity of Noah's language in blessing him, Gen. ix. 26. why preferred to Japheth, ibid. the Church of God was long among his posterity, ibid. the link of communication between Adam and Abram, Gen. xi. 10.
Shemaiah, the man of God, account of him, 1 Kings xii. 22.
—— son of Delaiah, the secret design of his advice to Nehemiah, Neh. vi. 10.
Sheminith, a musical instrument, 1 Chron. xv. 21.
Shenir, part of mount Libanus, poetical allusion to it, Song of Sol. iv. 8.
Sheol, what the Hebrew word signifies, Job xxvi. 5; to what Greek and English words it answers, ibid. ancient belief concerning it, Job xxx. 23. place probably alluded to, Job xxxviii. 16.
Shepherd, delightful description of the Deity in character of, Ps. xxiii. introd.
—— the idol, explained, Zech. xi. 17.
—— the good, Christ so referred to by the Prophets, John x. 11. His character as such, ver. 2, 3, 7, 8.
Shepherd's tent, what it signifies, Is. xxxviii. 12.
Shepherds, why an abomination to the Egyptians, Gen. xlii. 9.
—— comprehend governours, civil and ecclesiastical, Ezek. xxxiv. 2. continuation of the allegory, ver. 4. put for generals, Jer. vi. 3; xxv. 34. rulers of the people, Zech. xi. 3.
Sheshach, Babylon why so called, Jer. xxv. 26.
Sheshbazzar, the Babylonish name of Zerubbabel, Ezra i. 8. remark on the custom of the Jews during the captivity, ibid.
Sheth, children of, explained, Numb. xxiv. 17.
Shewbread, its meaning in Hebrew, Exod. xxv. 30. why so called, ibid. its intention, Lev. xxiv. 5. described, ibid. how consumed, ibid. reason of its contents, ibid. to be eaten by none but the priests and their families, 1 Sam. xxi. 4. what meant by its being sanctified 'this day,' ver. 5. the eating of it by David and his followers why justifiable, ver. 6. use made of it by our Saviour, ibid.
Shibboleth, how used as a test for the Ephraimites, Judg. xii. 6. meaning of the word, ibid.
Shield, the throwing it away a matter of high reproach, 2 Sam. i. 21. practice of hanging it on the gate alluded to, Ezek. xxvii. 10.
—— of faith, what it means, Eph. vi. 16. what intended by the comparison, ibid.
Shiggaion, meaning of the term, Ps. vii. title.
Shigionoth, what the name denotes, Hab. iii. 1.
Shiloh, the word explained, Gen. xlix. 10. a name of the Messiah, ibid.
—— its situation, Josh. xviii. 1. the long period during which the ark remained there, ibid. reason of it, ibid. also the camp of the Israelites removed to this place, ibid. opinions concerning the festival observed there, Judg. xxi. 19. how dealt with for the people's wickedness, Jer. vii. 12. probably alluded to by the Prophet, ibid.
—— daughters of, meaning of the phrase, Judg. xxi. 21.
Shimei, reflections on his cursing David, 2 Sam. xvi. 5. his wickedness used as an instrument in the hand of Providence, ver. 10. remarkable expression in which David speaks of him, ver. 10, 11. no cause apparent for his hostility to David, ver. 13. his impiety visited with a sure but late vengeance, 1 Kings ii. 43.
—— house of, who meant by, Zech. xii. 13.
Shinar, how to be understood, Gen. xiv. 1. where situated, Gen. xi. 2; Dan. i. 2.
Ships, the sides of, explained, Jonah i. 5.
—— of Tharshish, why so called, 1 Kings xxii. 48. phrase figuratively used, explained, Is. ii. 13. See Tharshish.
Shipwrecks alluded to by St. Paul not mentioned in the Acts, 2 Cor. xi. 25. circumstance attending one of them probably referred to, ibid.
Shishak, king of Egypt, who supposed to be, 1 Kings xi. 40. the first king of Egypt not called Pharaoh, ibid.
Shittim, where situated, Numb. xxv. 1; Josh. ii. 1. its distance from Jordan, Josh. iii. 1.
—— valley of, what meant by it, Joel iii. 18.
—— wood, where it grew, Exod. xxv. 5. probably the black acacia, ibid. description of it, ibid.
Shoa, where situate, Ezek. xxiii. 23.
Shochoh, where situate, 1 Sam. xvii. 1.
Shoes, put off in token of reverence in the East, Exod. iii. 5; Acts vii. 33. on the feet, why commanded at the eating of the Passover, Exod. xii. 11. Eastern custom referred to, ibid. not worthy to bear, the expression illustrated by Eastern customs, Matt. iii. 11. worn in Palestine, described, Mark i. 7. See Clouted shoes.
Shortness of life, a motive to Christian duty, Rom. xiii. 11. an argument for moderation in outward enjoyments, 1 Cor. vii. 29.
Shoshannim, what instruments understood, Ps. xlv. title.
'Should drive out,' does not signify intention, but event, Jer. xxvii. 10.
Shoulder, why Samuel set the shoulder before Saul, illustrated, 1 Sam. ix. 24. comment on the context, ibid.
—— staff of, explained, Is. ix. 4.
Shoulders, 'thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders,' explained by Eastern customs, Is. xlix. 22.
Shout of a king, what it alludes to, Numb. xxiii. 21.
Shouting, what signified by it explained, Is. xvi. 9.
Showers, why meaning the former rain, Jer. iii. 3.
Shrines, 'silver shrines for Diana' explained, Acts xix. 24.
Shuah, where situated, Job ii. 11.
Shunammite woman, her strong faith, and excellent behaviour, 2 Kings iv. 22, 37.
Shunem, where situate, 1 Sam. xxviii. 4; 2 Kings iv. 8.
Shur, wilderness of, its situation, Gen. xvi. 7; xx. 1; Exod. xv. 22.
Shushan or Susan, the capital of Persia, account of it, Neh. i. 1. its situation, Dan. viii. 2.
Shut up, 'him that is shut up,' meaning of the expression, 2 Kings ix. 8. 'I am shut up' explained, Jer. xxxvi. 5.
'—— the vision' explained, Dan. viii. 26; xii. 4.
Sibraim, where situate, Ezek. xlvii. 16.
Sichem, where situated, Gen. xii. 6.
Sick, why directed to call for the elders of the Church, Jam. v. 16. utility of the direction in the present state of things, ibid. provision made by our Church for the purpose, ibid.
Siddim, vale of, afterwards the Salt sea, Gen. xiv. 3.
Sieve of vanity explained, Is. xxx. 28.
Sight, loss of. See Rebels.
Sign, a sign explained, Is. vii. 14.
—— from heaven, asked by the Pharisees, &c. what they intended, Matt. xii. 38; xvi. 1; John vi. 30, 31. why their request was not complied with, Matt. xii. 38; xvi. 4. what kind of one the Jews required, 1 Cor. i. 22.
—— of Jonas the Prophet, what intended by this, Matt. xii. 39.
—— of the cross in Baptism, why appointed by the Church to be used, Gal. vi. 14. significancy of the ceremony, ibid. its antiquity, Rev. vii. 3.
Signs, a common language in the East, Ezek. xii. 6.
—— of heaven, what meant by them, Jer. x. 2. propensity of men to be terrified by them, ibid. groundlessness of such terrours, ibid.
—— of things, called in Scripture by the names of things themselves, 1 Cor. xi. 10.
Signet, what it denotes, Ecclus. xvii. 22; Jer. xxii. 24.
Signets or seals, how worn in the East, Gen. xxxviii. 18. See Seals.
Sihon, reasons of the course taken with him by Moses, Deut. ii. 26. what meant by God hardening his spirit, ver. 30. injustice of his attack upon the Israelites, ver. 32. his men, &c. why utterly destroyed, ver. 34.
Sihor, name of the Nile, Is. xxiii. 3; Jer. ii. 18.
Silence enjoined as a token of reverence, Zech. ii. 13.
Silent, to be silent signifies not to act, as well as not to speak, Jer. viii. 14. explanation of the passage, ibid.

Siloah or Shiloah, waters of, where situated, Is. viii. 6. of what an emblem, ibid. how contrasted with the Euphrates, ibid. remark on the meaning of the name, John ix. 7.
Siloam, the tower in, where situated, Luke xiii. 4. pool of, how supplied, Is. viii. 6. See Siloah.
Silvanus, who he was, 1 Thess. i. 1.
—— uncertainty concerning the person so named by St. Peter, 1 Pet. v. 12.
Silver, pieces of, an Asiatick present, Gen. xlv. 22.
—— thirty pieces of, their value, Zech. xi. 13. why fixed on, ibid. remark on the sum with reference to our Saviour, Matt. xxvi. 15. fulfilment of the transaction connected with it, Zech. xi. 13.
—— become dross, explained, Is. i. 22. mixed with tin, explained, ver. 25.
Silverlings, what, Is. vii. 23.
Simeon, why taken from his brethren by Joseph, Gen. xlii. 24.
—— and Levi, why mentioned in the history of Dinah, Gen. xxxiv. 25. their cruelty condemned, ver. 26, 30. why united in Jacob's prophecy, Gen. xlix. 5. abhorrence of their conduct to the Shechemites expressed by Jacob, ver. 6. how divided and scattered, ver. 7.
—— tribe of, not noticed by Moses, Deut. xxxiii. 7. probably included in that of Judah, ibid.
—— in what sense he waited for the consolation of Israel, Luke ii. 25. his hymn of thanksgiving constantly used in Christian churches, ver. 29. remarks on it, ver. 29—31. foretells the ill usage of Christ and His Apostles, ver. 34, 35. his language a pattern for just and devout Christians, ver. 29.
Similitude of the Lord, what meant by Moses beholding it, Numb. xii. 8.
Similitudes, how used by ministry of the Prophets, Hos. xii. 10.
Simon, son of Onias, who meant by, Ecclus. l. 1.
—— the high priest, his coin preserved, 1 Mac. xv. 6, 7. his character, 1 Mac. xvi. 17.
—— Peter, why called the 'first,' Matt. x. 2. See Peter.
—— the Canaanite, conjectures why so called, Matt. x. 4.
—— Magus, his use of magick arts, Acts viii. 9. the amazement of the people at him, ver. 10. his belief in Jesus, ver. 13. his offer to purchase spiritual gifts, ver. 18. his mistake and guilt in so doing, ver. 19, 20.
Simony, why so called, Acts viii. 18. what offence meant by it, ibid.
Simoom, wind in deserts of Arabia, described, 2 Kings xix. 35; Job xv. 2.
Simple, imposing upon, curse in the law against it, Deut. xxvii. 18. significations of the term, Ps. cxvi. 6; cxix. 130.
Simplicity that is in Christ, explained, 2 Cor. xi. 3.
Sin, enticing others to, its heinousness, Gen. iii. 6, 14. man disposed to throw the blame of it on others, ver. 12. gradual progress of, Gen. iv. 8. abstinence from necessary to repentance, Gen. xxxviii. 26. one draws on another, Gen. xxxix. 17. greater as more universal, Exod. xvi. 2. when most dangerous, Exod. xix. 10. repetition of, its presumption and danger, Numb. xi. 33. fearful aggravation of it, Numb. xiv. 23. one sin not made amends for by many acts of obedience, Deut. xxxii. 51. its deceitfulness fatally exemplified in David, 2 Sam. xi. 2. aggravation of it, when committed after great mercies and deliverances, 1 Kings xi. 9. particulars as to the punishment of it explained, Jer. xxxi. 30. its guilt not diminished, because the devil tempts men to it, John viii. 44. approbation of it in others, mark of peculiar depravity, Rom. i. 32. aggravated by the light under which committed, Rom. ii. 9. punishment will be in proportion, ibid. pernicious influence of, figuratively described, Rom. v. 6. unprofitableness of, universally allowed by sinners, Rom. vi. 21. how it becomes exceeding sinful, Rom. vii. 13. pardoned, why it ought not to be forgotten, 1 Tim. i. 15. why God not the author of it, Jam. i. 13. how distinguished from lust, ver. 15. from what source it proceeds, ibid. exemplified in several cases, ibid. only possible way of correcting it, ibid. danger of wilfully indulging any one, Jam. ii. 11. reflections on the reasonableness of the case, ibid. wilful and habitual, what it proves a man to be, 1 John iii. 8. no evidence whatever admissible against it, ibid. See Original Sin.
Sin, used for either the punishment of sin, or a sin offering, Gen. iv. 7.
—— that men commit, meaning of the phrase, Numb. v. 6.
—— sometimes signifies not a moral but a ceremonial transgression, Numb. xix. 17.
—— represented as a person by Moses, Numb. xxxii. 23. spoken of as a person by St. Paul, Rom. vi. 11; vii. 8; viii. 3.
—— 'your sin will find you out' explained, Numb. xxxii. 23. reflections on it, ibid.
—— metaphorically used, with what allusion, Job v. 24.
—— covering of, used in several senses, Job xxxi. 33.
—— that dwelleth in carnal men, how distinguished from their better part, Rom. vii. 17. what the Apostle meant to teach by the distinction, ibid.
—— 'God sending His Son for sin' explained, Rom. viii. 3. remarks on the effects of it, ibid.
—— what meant by Christ appearing a second time 'without sin unto salvation,' Heb. ix. 28.
'—— wilfully,' what the Apostle speaks of, Heb. x. 26. what other sins may be meant, ibid. general purport of the two verses relating to it, ibid. mistake concerning the meaning of the passage, ibid.
'—— when it is finished,' a figurative expression explained, Jam. i. 15.
—— what sort of, meant by St. John's exhortation 'that ye sin not,' 1 John ii. 1. and by the expression, if any man sin, ibid.
—— 'committeth sin' explained, 1 John iii. 4, 8, 9.
'—— unto death,' 'sin not unto death,' explained, 1 John v. 16. and remarked on with application both to the apostolical and subsequent ages, ibid.
Sins, the most secret, known to God, Gen. iv. 10; xviii. 15. presumptuous, never forgotten, Gen. l. 15.
—— of ignorance, caution against them, Lev. iv. 2. ought to be thought more of, Ps. li. 19. pardon of, on what ground to be expected, Ps. cxxx. 8. the most heinous may be erroneously committed, Acts iii. 17.
—— put for punishment due to them, Is. xl. 2.
—— of the fathers, how God said to visit them on the children, Exod. xx. 5; Deut. v. 9; Lam. v. 7. magistrate not to visit them upon the children, Deut. xxiv. 16.
Sin offering, what the word denotes, Lev. iv. 2. for what sins offered, ibid. distinction between common and uncommon, ibid. why offered without oil or frankincense, Lev. v. 11. why first offered at the consecration of Aaron, Lev. viii. 14. why offered for Aaron, Lev. ix. 2.
—— Christ the true sin offering, Is. liii. 10.
Sinai described, Exod. xix. 3. See Horeb.
Since, the meaning of the particle, Is. xvi. 13.
Sinew which shrank, described, Gen. xxxii. 32. custom of the Jews respecting it, ibid.
Sinful appetites, giving ourselves up to the conduct of, expressed by St. Paul in several different phrases, Rom. vi. 6.
—— inclinations, why called a law by St. Paul, Rom. vii. 21.
—— passions, compared to a tyrannical master, Rom. vi. 19.
Sinfulness of human nature at large affirmed in Scripture, Rom. iii. 19. attested by Pagan writers, history, &c. ibid. and by universal experience, ibid. hence man's interest in a Saviour, ibid.
Singers, going before great chiefs, an Eastern custom, 1 Kings xviii. 46.
Singing, an universal part of publick worship, Jam. v. 13. instances of it in the Old Testament, ibid. foretold with relation to the Gospel times, ibid. practised by the Apostles and primitive Christians, ibid. remarks on the use of it at the reformation, ibid. how parochial congregations can join in it, ibid.
—— alternate, or by responses, practised in ancient times, Is. vi. 3. why continued in the Christian church, ibid. See Alternate, Responses.
Single life, under what circumstances recommended by St. Paul, 1 Cor. vii. 1, 7. reasons given by St. Paul for preferring it, ver. 35. their application to the first ages of Christianity, ibid. why the Corinthians consulted St. Paul on the subject, ver. 36. See Celibacy.
Singular number put for the plural, Dan. ix. 25.
Sinim, land of, what, Is. xlix. 12.

'Sinned without law,' 'sinned in the law,' explained, Rom. ii. 12.
Sinner, his miserable and melancholy state when abandoned by God, 1 Sam. xxviii. 15. called upon to examine himself, Is. v. 3, 4. heart of the habitual and depraved sinner described, Jer. xvii. 9. every particular one, what the reason if he be not pardoned, 1 John ii. 2.
—— instances of its being used in the sense of 'impostor,' John ix. 16.
Sinners, admonished of their danger by God, Gen. iv. 7. apt to murmur against God's providence, ver. 13. enemies to their country, Gen. xviii. 32. apt to put off repentance, Gen. xix. 16. sensible of the sins of others, Gen. xxxviii. 24. how they resist the force of religion, Exod. v. 2. hardened by the admonitions of God, ver. 4. their obligation to the mercy of God, Ezra ix. 13. their humiliation should be accompanied with a grateful sense of His goodness, ibid. must forsake their sins to regain His favour, ver. 15; x. 12. hypocritical, will not escape punishment, Jer. xxxiv. 18. to be avoided, Ecclus. xi. 9. not to be envied, ver. 21. why Christ conversed with them, Matt. ix. 12. what meant by the term, ver. 13. the earnest desire of God to recover them to Himself, Matt. xviii. 13. truly contrite, not unworthy to approach God, Luke vii. 47. their conversion highly acceptable to God, Luke xv. 3. encouragement to repentance held out to the greatest of them, ver. 6, 7. the nature of 'the joy in heaven' at their conversion, ver. 7. encouragement to them not to despair of forgiveness, John viii. 11. their happiness, if roused to repentance by some present judgment, Acts xvi. 30. their perversion of God's goodness and forbearance, Rom. ii. 4. fatal consequences of it, ver. 5. affectingly compared to slaves, Rom. vi. 19. what implied by the Scripture declaring all men to be so, Gal. iii. 22.
'Sinneth not,' used in a qualified sense, 1 John iii. 6. why necessary so to understand it, ibid. what meant by 'whosoever sinneth hath not seen Him, neither known Him,' ibid.
Sion. See Zion.
Sirah, well of, its probable situation, 2 Sam. iii. 26.
Sirion, same as Hermon, Deut. iii. 8.
Sisera, mother of, her impatience for his return after victory, admirably represented, Judg. v. 28.
Sister, used as name of friendship, Prov. vii. 4. term of endearment, Song of Sol. iv. 9. Jews so called their wives, Tob. v. 20. how the term used by St. Paul, 1 Cor. ix. 5.
Sisters, kingdoms of Israel and Judah, why so described, Jer. iii. 7.
Sit in judgment, God said to, after manner of men, Joel iii. 12.
Sitting on high, a mark of state in the East, Is. lii. 2.
—— on the ground, posture of mourning and humiliation, Ps. cxxxvii. 1; Job ii. 13; Jer. xiii. 18.
—— before the Lord, a posture of reverence, illustrated from modern Eastern custom, 1 Chron. xvii. 16.
—— the posture of Jewish doctors when they taught, Deut. xxxiii. 3; Ezek. viii. 1; Matt. v. 1; Acts xxii. 3.
—— at the feet of one, posture of scholars before their master, Deut. xxxiii. 3; Ezek. viii. 1.
Six and seven, used indefinitely, Job v. 19.
Size, ordinary, of mankind, probably always the same, Numb. xiii. 33.
Skin for skin, explained, Job ii. 4.
Skins, much used for clothing, Gen. iii. 21. laid on the ground to prevent the damp, Judith xii. 15.
Skirt, 'to spread thy skirt,' what it means, Ruth iii. 9.
—— to take hold of, a mode of supplication, Zech. viii. 23.
Skirts, what meant by, Ps. cxxxiii. 2.
Sky, colour of in Arabia, Job xxxvii. 18.
Slack, 'to deal with a slack hand' explained, Prov. x. 4.
Slackness, 'as some men count slackness' explained, 2 Pet. iii. 9.
Slander, forbidden, Prov. xxiv. 28, 29. its reward, Rom. iii. 8. its impiety, Jam. iv. 11.
Slanderers, their punishment, Ps. cxl. 9.
Slavery, remarks on its existence and character, 1 Pet. ii. 18.
Slaves, how Hebrews were sold for such, Exod. xxi. 2. custom of neighbouring merchants to traffick with them, Joel iii. 6. their deplorable condition among the nations of antiquity, Deut. xv. 12. humanity and equity of the Jewish law concerning them, ibid. in what manner different descriptions were to be treated, ibid. different effects of these regulations in heathen countries and in Judea, ibid. different from servants in modern times, Ecclus. xxxiii. 24. their condition according to the Roman laws, 1 Cor. vii. 21. illustrative of several passages in the New Testament, ibid. practical reflection on it, ibid. how a property acquired in them, ver. 23. application to Christians, ibid. power of their masters over them, 1 Cor. ix. 19. their case, how alluded to by St. Paul, ibid.
Slaves and masters, their relation dwelt on by St. Paul in the way of illustration, Rom. vi. 19.
—— Christian, treatment of in Mequinez, Job iii. 18.
Sleep, a word for death, Deut. xxxi. 16; John xi. 11. why so used, Deut. xxxi. 16.
—— and awaking out of sleep, what compared to them, Rom. xiii. 11.
—— 'we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,' explained, 1 Cor. xv. 51.
—— 'the maid is not dead, but sleepeth,' explained, Matt. ix. 24.
Sleeping in the heat of the day, custom of the East, Judg. iii. 24; 2 Sam. iv. 5; xi. 2.
Slept with his fathers, what the phrase implies, 2 Kings xxiv. 6.
Sleight of men, a metaphor explained, Eph. iv. 14. account of the men alluded to, ibid.
Slime, probably bitumen, Gen. xi. 3. how found in Assyria, ibid.
Slings, why the Israelites were diligent in the use of them, Judg. xx. 16. practised by many ancient nations, ibid.
Slip, 'lest we should let them slip,' what the original word alludes to, Heb. ii. 1.
Slips, strange, what they signify, Is. xvii. 10, 11.
'Slow bellies' explained, Tit. i. 12.
Slumbering, the danger of it in spiritual concerns, Matt. xxv. 5.
Smite with the tongue, what it means, Jer. xviii. 18.
Smiths, what the word properly means, Jer. xxiv. 1.
Smiting with the hand, an action, what denoting, Ezek. vi. 11.
—— upon the thigh, a correspondent phrase, Jer. xxxi. 19; Ezek. xxi. 12.
—— the breast, the same, Luke xxiii. 48.
Smoke, pillars of, allusion to an Eastern marriage ceremony, Song of Sol. iii. 6.
—— in the nose, just comparison to it, Is. lxv. 5.
—— out of the pit, what it signifies, Rev. ix. 2.
Smyrna, church of, description of Smyrna, and present state of the church, Rev. ii. 8. encouraged to meet fiery trials, ibid. its seeming poverty but real riches, ver. 9. its tribulation of ten days explained, ver. 10.
Snare in hunting, what it was, Is. xxiv. 17.
'—— of the devil' explained, 1 Tim. iii. 7.
Snares, what it means, Ps. xi. 6.
Snow water, its property, Job ix. 30.
So, king of Egypt, account of him, 2 Kings xvii. 4.
Sober, what comprised in the advice to be so, 1 Pet. v. 8.
Sobriety, righteousness, and godliness, how represented by St. Paul, Tit. ii. 12. specification of the duties comprised under each, ibid. consequence of practising them, ibid.
Society, productive of much comfort, Eccles. iv. 9. total separation from, not wisdom, Prov. xviii. 1.
—— spiritual, why Christ hath formed his followers into one, Eph. iv. 12.
Socinians, an acknowledgment made by them, Heb. i. 2. remark upon it, ibid.
Sodom, its abuse of the mercy of Providence, Gen. xiv. 21. destruction of it an alarming example of God's vengeance, Gen. xix. emblematical of the day of judgment, ver. 28. why called sister to Jerusalem, Ezek. xvi. 46. how Jerusalem's punishment greater than her's, Lam. iv. 6.
—— and Gomorrah, in what sense said to suffer the vengeance of eternal fire, Jude ver. 7. what their punishment is an emblem of, ibid.
—— lake of, memorial of God's judgment, Gen. xix. 26. an example to wilful sinners, ibid. See Salt Sea.

Sofa, Eastern, described, Deut. iii. 11. how used at night, ibid. applied in illustration of the dimensions of Og's bedstead, ibid.
Softly, 'went softly,' what it means, 1 Kings xxi. 27; Is. xxxviii. 15.
Sojourner of the priest, explained, Lev. xxii. 10.
Sojourning of the children of Israel in Egypt, duration of it how computed, Exod. xii. 40.
Sold under sin, meaning of the phrase, Rom. vii. 14.
Soldier, profession of, advantageous appearance of true religion in it, Acts x. 2. illustrated in the first Gentile convert, ibid.
Soldiers, remark on the manner in which they used to go to war, 1 Sam. xvii. 17.
—— Roman, a law respecting them, how applied to ministers of the Gospel, 2 Tim. ii. 4.
Solitude and unnecessary austerities contrary to the conduct of the Apostles, 1 Cor. iv. 12.
Solomon, signification of the name, 2 Sam. xii. 24. why peculiarly blessed by God, ibid. solemnity of his being anointed, 1 Kings i. 39. in what sense he sat on the throne before David's death, ver. 46. the several accounts of his consecrations explained, 1 Chron. xxix. 22. his age on coming to the throne, 1 Kings ii. 12. in what sense he calls himself a child, 1 Kings iii. 7. shews himself a good magistrate and son, 1 Kings ii. 34. remark on his affinity with Pharaoh, 1 Kings iii. 1. his blemish in suffering the people to sacrifice in high places, ver. 2. his sense of religion by beginning his reign with a solemn service to God, ver. 4. his example of thanking God for blessings received, ver. 6. his wise choice, ver. 9. a fine moral and example to us, ibid. how he knew that his vision was sent from God, ver. 15. his wise judgment, and reflections upon it, ver. 23, 26. extent of his dominions, 1 Kings iv. 21. what meant by the strangers in Israel whom he numbered, 2 Chron. ii. 17. and why he numbered them, ibid. alleged excuse for his multiplying horses, contrary to the law, 1 Kings iv. 26. extent of his wisdom, ver. 29. reflections on it, ibid. greatness and dangerousness of his possessions, ver. 33. the different accounts reconciled of the food that he sent to Hiram, 1 Kings v. 11. remark on the number of workmen employed by him, ver. 15. why he did not begin the temple on coming to the throne, 1 Kings vi. 1. God's caution to him on the necessity of obedience, ver. 12. what he designed by the magnificence of his temple, 2 Chron. ii. 5. remarks on his building a house for himself and the house of the forest of Lebanon, 1 Kings vii. 1. how he employed the remaining silver and gold, ver. 51. character of his prayer on dedicating the temple, 1 Kings viii. 23. instruction to be derived from it, ver. 54. remarks and reflections on it, ver. 23, &c. 2 Chron. vi. 14, 18, 20. his immense sacrifices, when offered, 1 Kings viii. 63. how he shewed his reverence for the house of David, 2 Chron. viii. 11. what were the twenty cities he gave to Hiram, 1 Kings ix. 11. an instance of the great dangers and temptations of riches, 1 Kings x. 14. his magnificence compared with that of other Oriental kings, ver. 18, 20, 21. reflections on his multiplying horses, ver. 26, 28. his sin in multiplying wives, particularly of strange nations, 1 Kings xi. 1. its inconsistency with his former character and conduct, ibid. how the great number of them may probably be accounted for, ver. 3. his supposed age when he committed his great offence, ver. 4. his example a warning to others, ibid. reflections on his being seduced to idolatry, ibid. probable extent of his forsaking God, ibid. aggravation of his offence before God, ver. 9. lamentable character of his fall, ver. 11. his death and character, ver. 43. a memorable example of great accomplishments and great frailties, ibid. proper light in which his sins are to be regarded, ver. 1, 3. mentioned as an example of piety, with reference to the greater part of his reign, 2 Chron. xi. 17.
—— conjectures on the people's complaint of the burden of tributes exacted by him, 1 Kings xii. 4.
—— a type of the Messiah, Ps. xlv. 6, 7; 2 Chron. vi. 14.
—— first in Israel that was king and king's son, Ps. lxxii. 1. his kingdom type of the Messiah's, ver. 20.
—— the first author on morals, wrote under assistance of the Divine Spirit, not a Prophet, Introd. to Prov.
Solomon, book of the acts of, what intended, 1 Kings xi. 41.
—— Song of, composed by Solomon, a marriage song, canonical, a spiritual allegory, minute resemblance not to be expected, a dramatical poem of pastoral kind, Jews forbade the reading of to youth, Introd. to Song of Sol. allegorical, by consent of Jewish and Christian churches, Song of Sol. viii. 14.
Solomon's porch, explained, John x. 23.
—— servants, children of, who meant, Ezra ii. 55.
'Some,' in what sense to be understood, 1 Tim. iv. 1.
Son, 'My beloved,' why Christ so called, Matt. xvii. 5. reverence due to Him as such, ibid.
—— 'His own Son,' emphatical import of the original word, Rom. viii. 32. why applied to Christ, ibid. force of the argument from God not sparing His own Son, ibid.
—— why inferiours so called, Gen. xliii. 29.
—— figurative and comprehensive import of the Hebrew word, Is. xxi. 10.
—— of David, what acknowledgment the title implied, Matt. ix. 27; xx. 30.
—— of God, relation which He bears to the Father, Deut. vi. 4. names, perfections, &c. of God, ascribed to Him, ibid. what His union with and distinction from the Father, ibid. His joint Godhead with the Father asserted, 1 Cor. viii. 6. eternal wisdom of the Father, Prov. viii. 22. His dignity incomparable, Heb. i. 2. His essential relation to the Father, ibid. His real Godhead, but distinct Personality, John i. 2. why placed before the Father, 1 John ii. 24. Scripture testimonies to His Divine nature, Gal. iv. 4. why said 'to have been made of a woman,' ibid. how spoken of in the Old Testament, Heb. i. 3. Christ is such in a sense very different from all others, Luke i. 35. the divinity of Christ intimated by this title, Acts iii. 26. the centurion's acknowledgment of Christ as such, Matt. xxvii. 54. His glory the same as that of the Father, Matt. xvi. 27. supposed to be meant by 'certain saint,' Dan. viii. 13, 16. appeared in form of an angel, Dan. xii. 5, 7. what meant by this expression, Dan. iii. 25. His voice at the last day prophetically represented, Ezek. xxxvii. 4. See Christ.
—— and Spirit of God, doctrines concerning them, why necessary to be revealed, 1 John v. 12. and to be believed, ibid. their different offices how to be conceived of, Eph. ii. 18. enumerated distinctly in detail, ibid.
—— of man, the term by which Christ speaks of Himself, Dan. vii. 13; Matt. viii. 20; Rev. i. 13. what it denotes, Matt. viii. 20; Ezek. ii. 1. never so spoken of by others in the Gospels, Matt. viii. 20. Christ, as such, was ignorant of many things, Mark xiii. 32. sign of Him in heaven, the meaning of the expression, Matt. xxiv. 30, 31.
—— why applied to the Prophets Ezekiel and Daniel, Ezek. ii. 1; Dan. viii. 17.
—— of peace, a Hebrew phrase explained, Luke x. 6.
—— of perdition, explained, John xvii. 12.
Sons, instance of grandsons so called, 1 Chron. i. 17.
—— of God, why they are said to be so who are led by the Spirit of God, Rom. viii. 14. great privilege of Christians in being made so, 1 John iii. 1.
—— and daughters of men, phrase explained, Gen. vi. 2.
—— good angels, Job i. 6. branches of the royal family of Judah, Ezek. xxi. 10.
—— of the Prophets, who they were, 2 Kings ii. 3.
Song of songs, title in what respect denoting excellence, Song of Sol. i. 1.
—— of the three Children, not in Hebrew, adopted into publick devotions of first Christians, retained in the Liturgy, Introd. to Song of three Children.
Songs, anciently used for conveying instruction, 1 Kings iv. 32.
Soothsayers, what countries famous for them, Is. ii. 6. See Divination.
Sorcerers, who they were, Dan. ii. 2; Acts xiii. 6.
Sorceries, of Babylon, what intended by them, Is. xlvii. 9.
Sore botch, what Moses probably meant by it, Deut. xxviii. 35.
Sorek, the brook of, where situate, Judg. xvi. 4.
Sorrow, put for its cause, Eccles. xi. 10.
—— for the dead, natural and commendable, John xi. 35.

Sorrow of the world, explained, 2 Cor. vii. 10. in what sense it worketh death, ibid.
Sosthenes, conjectures concerning him, 1 Cor. i. 1.
Soul of man, its inestimable value, Matt. xvi. 26; Luke xii. 4.
—— its separate existence shewn by the raising of Samuel's spirit, 1 Sam. xxviii. 12. and from our Saviour's words, Luke xxiii. 46.
—— right observations of the ancient heathens concerning it, Rom. viii. 22. hence their conclusions with respect to a future state, ibid. alluded to by St. Paul, ibid.
—— shall be cut off, meaning of the phrase, Gen. xvii. 14; Exod. xii. 15; xxxi. 14.
—— to sin against, explained, Prov. xx. 2.
—— 'thou hast delivered thy soul' explained, Ezek. iii. 19.
Souls, 'the souls that they had gotten' explained, Gen. xii. 5.
Sounded out, 'from you sounded out the word of the Lord, &c.' what may be understood by it, 1 Thess. i. 8.
Sovereign rule, by whom first established, Gen. x. 8.
Sow, 'those that sow in righteousness shall reap in mercy' explained, Hos. x. 12.
—— and reap, how used by St. Paul, 2 Cor. ix. 6. proportioned to each other, ibid.
Sower, parable of, profound knowledge of human nature exhibited by it, Matt. xiii. 3. remarks on its several parts, ver. 19, 20, 22, 23. instruction to be derived from it, Luke viii. 15.
—— 'cut off the sower from Babylon' explained, Jer. l. 16.
Sowing, seed for sowing, why excepted in the law of uncleanness, Lev. xi. 37.
—— barley and dried grapes together, an idolatrous rite, Deut. xxii. 9. its signification, ibid. why forbidden, ibid.
—— beside the waters, explained and applied, Is. xxxii. 20.
Sparrow, the solitary, an Oriental bird, described, Ps. cii. 7.
Sparrows, why supposed to be specified by our Saviour, Luke xii. 6.
'Speak as a man,' what it means, Rom. iii. 5.
—— out of the ground, explained, Is. xxix. 4.
—— speaking to or by, difference of, explained, Hos. i. 2.
Spears, the sceptres anciently carried by kings, 1 Sam. xx. 33. instances from ancient history, ibid. application to the history of Saul, ibid.
Speech, came by inspiration, Gen. ii. 20.
—— constant governance of, what it shews, Jam. iii. 2. unrestrained, its mischievous effects, ver. 6. what it implies, ibid. meaning of its being 'with grace seasoned with salt,' Col. iv. 6. use of its being so, ibid.
Spices, bed of, how used at kings' funerals, Jer. xxxiv. 5.
Spies, why sent to search out the land, Numb. xiii. 1.
Spikenard, whence its name, Song of Sol. i. 12.
Spirit of God, relation which He bears to the Father, Deut. vi. 4. names, perfections, and honour of God ascribed to Him, ibid. what His union with, and distinction from the Father, ibid. why called the Spirit of Christ, Rom. viii. 9. and why the Holy Spirit, or the Holy Ghost, ibid. effusion of foretold, Is. xliv. 3; Joel ii. 28. on all conditions of men, Joel ii. 29. what meant by God 'pouring out His Spirit,' Ezek. xxxix. 29. communicated by the Gospel, Gal. iii. 2. to what purpose given us, 2 Cor. i. 22. character of His operations, 1 Cor. xiv. 33. in what ways He convinces men of sin, Gen. xlii. 21. an assisting not a forcing power, Rom. viii. 4. it rests with ourselves whether we will avail ourselves of the gift, ibid. may be of no value to us, but an increase of condemnation, ibid. His influence when most needed, Ps. cxxiii. 2. in what sense said to make intercession for us, Rom. viii. 26. His gifts not always accompanied by His fruits, Numb. xxiv. 25. See Holy Ghost.
—— of Christ accompanies the sacrament of baptism duly administered, Gal. iii. 27. how He changes men into the image of Christ, 2 Cor. iii. 18. bodies of what persons to be raised by Him, Rom. viii. 11.
—— of adoption, why the Holy Spirit so called, Rom. viii. 15. to what opposed, ibid.
'—— of glory and of God,' why so called, 1 Pet. iv. 14.
—— of holiness, reason of the name, Rom. i. 4.
Spirit of promise, an Hebraism, explained, Eph. i. 13. why believers said to be sealed with it, Rom. v. 5.
—— of wisdom and revelation, why the Holy Spirit so called, Eph. i. 17.
—— 'I was in the Spirit' explained, Rev. i. 10.
—— 'believe not every spirit' explained, 1 John iv. 1. 'but try the spirits' explained, ibid.
—— 'my spirit prayeth' explained, 1 Cor. xiv. 14.
—— 'the spirit of princes' explained, Ps. lxxvi. 12.
—— wounded, the miseries of, Prov. xviii. 14.
—— of slumber, in what sense given by God to Israel, Rom. xi. 8. a consequence of their obstinacy, ibid.
—— evil. See Devil, Satan.
Spirits, criterion for the trial of, 1 John iv. 2.
—— our spirits must concur with the Spirit of God in bearing witness that we are the children of God, Rom. viii. 16. in what manner they act their part, ibid.
—— evil, by Divine permission inflicted diseases, Luke xiii. 11. constrained to bear testimony to Christ's religion, Acts xvi. 17. what meant by binding them, Tob. viii. 3. See Demoniacks, Possessions.
'—— in prison,' who they were, 1 Pet. iii. 19. what probably meant by Christ's preaching to them by His Spirit, ibid.
—— of all flesh, why God called the God of them, Numb. xvi. 22.
'—— of just men made perfect' explained, Heb. xii. 23.
—— seven, which are before the throne, why used for the Holy Spirit, Rev. i. 4.
Spiritual, opposed to carnal, 1 Cor. iii. 1. what it signifies, ibid. what meant by 'ye which are spiritual,' Gal. vi. 1.
—— blessings, under what figures represented, Jer. xxxi. 12; Luke xxii. 30.
'—— blessings in heavenly places' explained, Eph. i. 3.
—— condition, by what to be safely judged of, 1 John iii. 8. remarks on some erroneous opinions about it, ibid. application to the cases of good and bad men, ibid. See Condition, the goodness of.
—— food, how expressed familiarly in the East, John vi. 27; vii. 37. its inestimable value, John vi. 35; vii. 37.
—— gifts, afforded in proportion to the use made of them, Matt. xxv. 27, 29. diligence to be used in improving them, ver. 26, 27, 29. bestowed on the first Christians, what a proof of, Rom. v. 5. irregularities in the exercise thereof corrected, Rom. xii. 3. attributed to all the three Persons in the Trinity, 1 Cor. xii. 4. difficult to fix the true import of those enumerated by St. Paul, ver. 8—10. probable meaning of them, ibid. when withdrawn from the church, ibid. the withdrawing of them not to be regretted, 1 Cor. xiii. 1. imperfection of the knowledge communicated by them, ver. 9, 10. temporary, ibid. under the control of those who possess them, 1 Cor. xiv. 32.
—— gifts and graces, how strengthened and increased, 2 Tim. i. 6. how they may be extinguished, ibid. motive to exercise them, ver. 7.
—— man, described, 1 Cor. ii. 14. how opposed to the natural man, ibid.
—— pastors, why Christians are required to obey them, Heb. xiii. 17. who they are, ibid. different names appropriated to them in Scripture, ibid. what orders of persons intended, ibid.
—— pride, presumption of, repressed, Exod. iii. 6.
'—— spiritual wickedness in high places' explained, Eph. vi. 12.
Spitting, a mark of contempt and detestation in the East, Numb. xii. 14; Is. l. 6. illustrated by an Arabian anecdote, Numb. xii. 14. applied to the case of Miriam, ibid. illustrated by other Oriental notices, Is. l. 6. application to the case of our Saviour, ibid.
'Spoiled principalities and powers, &c.' what powers intended, Col. ii. 15. how Christ spoiled them, ibid.
'Sporting themselves with their own deceiving, &c.' explained, 2 Pet. ii. 13.
Springs in the East, their failing in summer, how alluded to, Zech. xiv. 8; Job vi. 15.
Sprinkle, in what sense Christ 'shall sprinkle many nations,' Is. lii. 15. and with what allusion, ibid.
Sprinkled, 'having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience,' allusion to the Levitical law, Heb. x. 22.

Spue thee out, what intended, Rev. iii. 16. See Vomiteth.
Staff, emblem of authority, what it signifies, Jer. xlviii. 17.
—— grounded, explained, Is. xxx. 32.
—— in the hand, why commanded at the eating of the passover, Exod. xii. 11.
—— of bread broken, explained, Lev. xxvi. 26.
—— of our hand, Hebrew phrase explained, Tob. v. 17.
Stairs, why Jehu was proclaimed 'on the top of the stairs,' 2 Kings ix. 13.
Standards of the twelve tribes, conjectures concerning them, Numb. ii. 2.
'Standeth daily ministering,' how spoken of the Levitical priests, Heb. x. 11.
Standing, the posture of the Jews in prayer, Job xxx. 20; Matt. vi. 5; Luke xviii. 11. the posture of accusers in a court of justice, 1 Chron. xxi. 1. how probably applied to Satan, ibid. See Accuser.
—— before God, signification of the phrase, Jer. xxxv. 19. before the king, ibid. Dan. i. 19.
Star out of Jacob, metaphor whence borrowed, what it denotes, Numb. xxiv. 17. prophecy concerning it by Balaam, when fulfilled, ver. 17—19.
—— at our Saviour's birth, conjectures respecting it, Matt. ii. 2. what meant by its being seen 'in the East,' ibid.
—— falling from heaven, called wormwood, what it signifies, Rev. viii. 10.
Stars, fixed, objects of attention to the Arabs, Job xxxviii. 31.
—— 'stars in their courses fought' explained, Judg. v. 20.
—— of heaven, what meant by them explained, Is. xiii. 10; Rev. ix. 1. of God, Is. xiv. 13. morning stars, Job xxxviii. 7.
State of grace, our security whilst we continue in it, 2 Tim. iv. 6. danger of our falling from it, ibid. See Grace.
States of life, proper behaviour in different ones how to be maintained, Phil. iv. 13.
Stations of the Israelites in the wilderness, not all noticed in the book of Exodus, Exod. xv. 27. names of them given by the Israelites where they stopped, Exod. xvii. 1. table of them, Numb. xxxiii. 1.
Statues, Oriental, described, Jer. x. 5.
Statutes that were not good, what intended by them, Ezek. xx. 25, 26. in what sense God is said to have given them, ibid.
Staves, digging with, explained, Numb. xxi. 18.
—— shepherd's, explained, Zech. xi. 7.
Steadfastness in the Gospel dispensation, by what phrase expressed, Heb. xii. 28.
Steal, in what sense the Prophets said to 'steal the Lord's words,' Jer. xxiii. 30.
Stealing a man, why punished with death, Exod. xxi. 16. how regarded in several heathen nations, Eph. iv. 28. See Commandment, eighth.
Stephanas, house of, what St. Paul says of them, explained, 1 Cor. xvi. 15.
Stephen, St. remarks on his being the first martyr, Acts vi. 8; vii. 58. his martyrdom why the only one celebrated in the Church, Acts vi. 8. probable ground of the accusation of the Jews against him, ver. 14. why his face compared to that of an angel, ver. 15. the nature of his defence, Acts vii. 2. why he refers to the refusal of Moses by the Israelites, ver. 35, 36. why he argues chiefly from the books of Moses, ver. 37. in what way he corrects the wrong notions of the Jews respecting their temple, ver. 44—50. his severe reproof of the Jews, ver. 51, 52. reflections on his confidence in Divine support, and the consolation afforded him, ver. 55. irregularity of the act by which he was put to death, ver. 58. remarks on his prayer to Christ, and for the forgiveness of his murderers, ver. 59, 60. a great example of faith, resignation, and charity, ver. 60.
Steward, unjust, parable of, explained, Luke xvi. 8. the steward branded for injustice, ibid. for what alone commended, ibid. particular care of Christ to guard this parable from misconstruction, ibid. instruction to be derived from it, ibid.
Stiffnecked people, meaning of the phrase, Exod. xxxii. 9. origin of it, ibid.
Sting of death, why sin so called, 1 Cor. xv. 56.
Stocks, probably a clog put on the feet of malefactors, Job xiii. 27. properly the house of correction, Jer. xx. 2. a punishment for what persons, ibid.
Stocks, wooden idols, Hos. iv. 12.
Stoicks, their tenets, Acts xvii. 18.
Stone, the setting up of a stone, for what purpose used in old times, Josh. xxiv. 26. remark on its being said to have heard what had passed, ver. 27.
—— knives of, for what purposes used in the East, Exod. iv. 25.
—— Christ that which the builders refused, Ps. cxviii. 22, 24. frequent quotation of the passage in the New Testament, ibid.
—— foundation, why Christ so called, Is. xxviii. 16. why called a living stone, 1 Pet. ii. 4.
—— kingdom of the stone, foretold, Dan. ii. 34.
—— heart of, Christianity alone removes it, Ezek. xxxvi. 26.
Stones, used as a memorial by Jacob, Gen. xxviii. 18. origin of a Pagan custom, ibid. custom of writing on them of great antiquity, Deut. xxvii. 2. why perpetuated, ibid.
—— why set up in or near Jordan by Joshua, Josh. iv. 3, 9. how long they remained, ibid. an incontestable proof of the miraculous passage, ver. 20.
—— precious, particular kinds of, uncertain, Exod. xxviii. 17.
—— cast upon the Amorites, what meant by them, Josh. x. 11.
—— surprising size of those used in the temple, 1 Kings vii. 10. compared with some found in the ruins of Balbec, ibid. size and beauty of those in the temple in our Saviour's time, Matt. xxiv. 1.
—— why the original word rendered weights, Prov. xvi. 11.
—— of emptiness, explained, Is. xxxiv. 11.
—— smooth, expression explained, Is. lvii. 6.
—— lifting heavy stones, an exercise in Palestine, described, Zech. xii. 3; Ecclus. vi. 21. allusions to it explained, ibid.
—— crying out, a strong figurative expression, what it signifies, Luke xix. 40.
Stoning, denounced on what offences, Lev. xx. 2. mode of inflicting it, ibid. by whom the first stone usually thrown, John viii. 7; Acts vii. 58. probable reason of stones being heaped on Absalom, 2 Sam. xviii. 17. why the Jews attempted to stone Christ, John viii. 59; x. 31. why they stoned St. Stephen and St. Paul, Acts xiv. 5. the stoning of St. Stephen a tumultuous act, Acts vii. 58. remarkable accuracy of St. Paul in saying, 'once was I stoned,' Acts xiv. 5.
Stool, provided for Elisha, what probably meant, 2 Kings iv. 10.
Stools, used by the Egyptian midwives, explained, Exod. i. 16.
Storks, much esteemed in Egypt, Thessaly, &c. Lev. xi. 19. for what reason, ibid. how and where they build, Ps. civ. 17. strength of their wings alluded to, Zech. v. 9. beautiful allusion to their instinct, as birds of passage, Jer. viii. 7.
Storms, in the East, how they begin, 1 Kings xviii. 44. description of the approach of one in Abyssinia, ibid. illustration of their making the 'heavens black with clouds and wind,' ver. 45.
Strain at a gnat, meaning of the expression and its allusion, Matt. xxiii. 24.
Strange nation, explained, Exod. xxi. 8.
—— tongues, why given to early Christians, 1 Cor. xiv. 21, 22. why not to be gloried in, ibid.
Stranger, different uses of the word, Exod. xii. 19; xx. 10; xxix. 33; xxx. 33; Lev. xxii. 10; Numb. i. 51; iii. 10; xvi. 40; xxxv. 15; Josh. viii. 33; 1 Kings viii. 41; 1 Chron. xxii. 2; Is. xiv. 1.
Strangers, two sorts of among the Israelites, Numb. xv. 14. remarks on the kindness required of the Israelites towards them, Deut. x. 17. why styled worshippers of God, Ezek. xiv. 7. what restrictions laid on them, Zech. ix. 7.
—— who were called so to God, Eph. ii. 19. the distinction how done away, ibid.
—— who so represented in the Old Testament, Heb. xi. 14. who in the New, ibid. inference from the representation, ibid.
—— and pilgrims, who looked upon as such in Scripture, 1 Pet. ii. 11. extent of the exhortation founded on it, ibid. weight of the consideration, ibid.

'Strangers scattered throughout Pontus, &c.' who intended, 1 Pet. i. 1.
Strangled, 'things strangled,' the meaning of the phrase, Acts xv. 20. when the prohibition respecting them ceased, ibid.
Straw, value of it in the East, Is. xxv. 10. how used for horses' food, 1 Kings iv. 28.
Streams in the south, what the image is taken from, Ps. cxxvi. 4.
Street, 'no name in the street,' meaning and allusion of the phrase, Job xviii. 17.
—— of the house of God, explained, Ezra x. 9.
Streets, 'thou shalt make streets for thee in Damascus,' variously explained, 1 Kings xx. 34.
Strength of the earth, what meant by it, Gen. iv. 12.
—— beginning of, explained, Gen. xlix. 3.
—— of the city, what it is, Jer. xx. 5.
—— of Christ, what it enables men to do, Phil. iv. 13. how to be obtained, ibid.
—— of God made perfect in weakness, how to be understood, 2 Cor. xii. 9.
—— of sin, why the law said to be so, 1 Cor. xv. 56.
'Strengthened with might by His Spirit, &c.' blessings comprehended in the prayer enumerated, Eph. iii. 16.
Strewing of clothes, &c. for what purpose used in the East, Matt. xxi. 8.
Strife, a man of, explained, Jer. xv. 10.
Striving with the priest, character of the offence by the law, Hos. iv. 4. what the expression signifies in the prophetical times, ibid. application to the ministers of Christ's Gospel, ibid.
Strong delusion, in what sense and for what cause said to be sent by God, 2 Thess. ii. 3.
—— drink, what meant by it, Numb. vi. 3.
—— holds, explained, Numb. xiii. 19.
—— in the Lord, purport of the whole phrase, Eph. vi. 10.
—— meat, what compared to it, Heb. v. 14.
—— wine, used not in its common sense, Numb. xxviii. 7. best wine offered in sacrifices, ibid.
Stuff, explained, Gen. xlv. 20. for removing, what intended by it, Ezek. xii. 3.
Stumblingblock not to be put by one Christian in the way of another, Rom. xiv. 21. the precept exemplified, ibid. the honour reflected by it on the Gospel, ibid. See Christ crucified.
Stumblingblocks, idols so called, Zeph. i. 3. and why, Ezek. vii. 19.
Sublime, remarkable instances of it, Job xxxviii. 11; Deut. xxxii. 1; Is. xiv. 1. Jewish writers abound in it, Jer. xlvii. 6.
Submission to civil governours a religious duty, Rom. xiii. See Civil Authority, Governours.
'Submit yourselves,' how to be understood, 1 Cor. xvi. 16.
Subscriptions to St. Paul's Epistles, which of them erroneous, Postscript to 1 Tim. on what probably founded, ibid.
'Substance of things hoped for,' considerations on the meaning of the phrase, Heb. xi. 1. in what view applicable to faith, ibid.
Subvert a man in his cause, explained, Lam. iii. 36.
Success, spiritual, how it must be obtained, Numb. xiii. 33.
Succoth, by Jordan, where situated, Gen. xxxiii. 17. reason of its name, Exod. xiii. 20.
—— valley of, where situated, Ps. lx. 6.
—— princes of, their irreligious taunt against Gideon, Judg. viii. 6. their punishment a warning to their people, ver. 16.
—— by the Red sea, its situation, Exod. xiii. 20. signification of the name, ibid.
Succoth-benoth, the meaning of the word, and conjectures respecting it, 2 Kings xvii. 30.
'Suffer fools gladly,' what meant by the Corinthians doing so, 2 Cor. xi. 19. in what they did it, ver. 20.
'Suffered in the flesh,' meaning of the phrase, 1 Pet. iv. 1.
Sufferers, the multitude of, a great consideration with God in inflicting a common calamity, Jonah iv. 11.
Sufferings, submission under them our duty, 1 Pet. v. 6. vanity of resisting God in them, ibid. source of consolation to the children of God under them, Rom. viii. 17. See Adversity, Afflictions, Patience.
Sufferings of believers, why St. Paul often mentions the benefit of them, Rom. v. 3.
—— of Christ foretold in the Old Testament, 1 Pet. i. 11. typified in the law, ibid. our Saviour forewarned His disciples of them, ibid. enumeration of them, ibid. why a seeming small circumstance in them specified, Heb. xiii. 11. in what nature they were undergone, 1 Pet. iv. 1. exhortation to imitate Him in His manner of bearing them, ibid. what they prove with respect to sufferings in general, 1 Pet. ii. 18. reasons of them, Heb. ii. 10. for what purpose endured 1 Pet. ii. 24, 25. effect which the consideration of them should have on our hearts and conduct, ibid. effect of the frequent consideration of them, Heb. xii. 2.
—— what the phrase signifies, 2 Cor. i. 5.
—— why St. Paul dwells on his, 2 Cor. xi. 23. much instruction to be gathered from them, ver. 30. why the properest and most worthy matter of glorying to him, ibid.
Sukkiims, conjectural account of them, 2 Chron. xii. 3.
Sum of our duty, what it is, 1 John iii. 23.
Summer, Syrian, described, Ps. xxxii. 4.
Sun and heavenly bodies, worship of, first instance of idolatry, Deut. iv. 19. whence it originated, ibid.
—— miracle of its standing still, the purport of it, Josh. x. 12. particularly directed against the worship of 'the host of heaven,' ibid. the miracle neither impossible to God, nor incredible, ibid. its pertinence to the persons concerned in it, ibid. why not recorded in terms suited to true astronomy, ibid. confused traditions of it among heathens, ibid.
—— the light of, remarks on the righteous being compared to, Prov. iv. 18.
—— moon, stars, &c. their symbolical use in Scripture, Gen. xxxvii. 10.
—— darkening of, a strong figurative expression, what it denotes, Is. xiii. 10; Ezek. xxxii. 7, 8; Matt. xxiv. 29; Rev. viii. 12. third part of it smitten, what signified by it, Rev. viii. 12. the fourth vial poured upon it, meaning of it not yet discovered, Rev. xvi. 8.
Sunday, so called by Tertullian, Lev. xxiii. 40. how observed in his time, ibid. See First day of the week, Lord's day, Sabbath.
Sundays of Christians distinguished in the apostolical age from the Saturdays of the Jews, Col. ii. 16.
Supererogation, works of, erroneous nature of this doctrine, Luke xvii. 10.
Superstition, in what sense the Jewish religion so called by heathens, Acts xxv. 19.
Superstitious, the probable intention of St. Paul in thus describing the Athenians, Acts xvii. 22.
Supper, parable of the man who made a great supper, explained, Luke xiv. 16, 18, 23.
—— of the Lord, means whereby Christians have communion with Christ, 1 Cor. x. 16. what effect this consideration should produce on all Christians, ibid. foundation of the neglect of it, ibid. why every Christian hath an equal right to partake in it, 1 Cor. xi. 26. a necessary and perpetual duty incumbent on all Christians, ibid. a lively image of the death and sacrifice of Christ, ibid. use and duty of partaking in it, ibid. guilt of abstaining from it, ibid. character of unworthily partaking it, ver. 27. reflections upon it, ibid. what may constitute it, ibid. proper use to be made of an apprehension of it, ibid. self-examination prescribed before it, ver. 28. in what sense the unworthy communicant eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, ver. 29. what is meant by his not discerning the Lord's body, ibid. caution against perverting St. Paul's admonitions on this subject to a wrong use, ver. 33, 34. proper use to be made of them, ibid. See Lord's Supper, Sacrament.
Support of God continually necessary to our existence, Job vi. 9.
Suppose, 'as I suppose,' remark on the phrase, 1 Pet. v. 12.
Supremacy in Christian Church, not given to St. Peter, Matt. xvi. 18, 19. not claimed by him, 1 Pet. v. 1.
Susanna, history of, not canonical, written in Greek, retained for moral improvement, Introd. to Hist. of Susanna.
Suspicion, remarks on, Job i. 5.

Swaddlingband, explained, Job xxxviii. 9.
Swallow, what bird intended, Ps. lxxxiv. 3.
Swallows, particulars respecting them, Tobit ii. 10.
Swallowed up, in what sense foretold that Israel should be so, Hos. viii. 8. plain verification of the prophecy, ibid.
Swearing by God, first mention of it, Gen. xxi. 23. commanded by the name of God alone, Deut. vi. 13. for what reason, ibid. Jer. iv. 2; Josh. xxiii. 7. what implied in it, Ps. lxiii. 11. two ceremonies of, in Scripture, described, Deut. xxxii. 40. a frequent form of, remarked on and instanced, Heb. iv. 3.
—— why God is said to have recourse to it, Deut. i. 34. examples of different forms employed by Him, ibid.
—— common and profane, its great sinfulness, Jam. v. 12. its evil consequences, Jer. xxiii. 10. See Oaths.
Sweet cane, what it is, Jer. vi. 20.
Sweet savour, in what sense pleasing to God, Lev. i. 9.
—— smelling savour, use and application of the Greek phrase, Eph. v. 2.
Swine, why forbidden to the Israelites, Lev. xi. 7. why especially offensive to them, ibid. some other nations abstain from it, ibid. how the employment of feeding swine must have appeared to a Jew, Luke xv. 15.
—— herd of, why Christ permitted the devils to enter them, Matt. viii. 32. His only miracle that was detrimental to others, ibid. inference from it with respect to demoniacal possessions, ibid.
Sword, flaming, why placed at the garden of Eden, Gen. iii. 24. a symbol of the Divine Presence, ibid.
—— why used to signify God's retributive justice, Job xix. 29. instances of the like use of it, Jer. xlvii. 6. animated manner in which Jeremiah expresses it, ibid.
—— to express powerful speech, common to sacred and profane writers, Is. xlix. 2. boldness and justness of the metaphor, ibid.
—— of the wilderness, Arabian freebooters, Lam. v. 9.
—— considered as the instrument of death, Rom. xiii. 4. what may be inferred from its being said that the magistrate beareth not the sword in vain, ibid.
—— of the Spirit, example of its efficacy, Eph. vi. 17. the only offensive weapon recommended to the Christian, ibid. its sufficiency and necessity, ibid.
—— two edged, 'coming out of His mouth,' what signified by it, Rev. i. 16.
Swords of heroes, how used after their death, Ezek. xxxii. 27. instance of their being placed under the heads of the dead, ibid.
Sycamine tree, what meant, Luke xvii. 6.
Sycamore. See Sycomore.
Sychar, its situation, modern name, and condition, John iv. 5.
Sycharites, reflections on their belief in Christ, John iv. 42. application of their case to that of Christians, ibid.
Sycomore, a sort of fig tree, Amos vii. 14. meaning of the name and description of the tree, 1 Kings x. 27. why opposed to the cedar, ibid. Is. ix. 10.
Syene, its situation, Ezek. xxix. 10.
Symbolical representations of the true God, how used by the heathens, Deut. iv. 16. perversion of them, ibid.
—— actions, frequent instances of them in Scripture, 1 Kings xi. 30. the first instance recorded, ibid. why the people of the East fond of them, ibid.
Sympathy with others recommended, Rom. xii. 15. reflections on its good effects, ibid.
Synagogues, the meaning of the word, probable time of their institution, service in them, &c. Matt. iv. 23. whence supposed to have arisen, 1 Sam. ix. 12. number of them at Jerusalem, Acts vi. 9. the manner of teaching in them, Matt. xiii. 2; Luke iv. 20; Acts xiii. 14. on what days the books of Moses and the Prophets were read in them, ver. 15. custom of expounding the Scriptures in them, by whom practised, Luke iv. 16. applied to our Saviour's case, ibid. in what character he taught in them, Matt. iv. 23. distinction of seats in them how regulated, Matt. xxiii. 6. academies in them for young persons, how used, Acts vi. 9. why often built in the fields and near rivers, Acts xvi. 13.
Syracuse, its situation, Acts xxviii. 12.
Syria, in what sense the bands of Syria came no more against Israel, 2 Kings vi. 23. subdued by Pharaoh-necho and Nabuchodonosor, Amos i. 8.
Syriack or Syrian language, by what nation spoken, Dan. ii. 4. how called in the New Testament, ibid. from what other language of the same name it differs, ibid. unknown to the Jews before the captivity, Jer. v. 15.
Syrians, reflections on their being scattered by a panick terrour, 2 Kings vii. 6.

T.

Tabeal, son of, who he was, Is. vii. 6.
Tabernacle, why called a sanctuary, Exod. xxv. 8. what it denotes, Exod. xxvi. 1. its four coverings, ibid. making of it why particularly described, Exod. xxxix. 32. why Aaron commanded not to go out of it for seven days, Lev. viii. 33. his attendance there compared to Christ's at the temple, ibid. why the worship of the Israelites confined to it, Lev. xvii. 3.
—— erected on mount Sion by the Jews on their return from Babylon, 1 Chron. ix. 17. all the Levites had their regular offices assigned in it, ver. 22. the original tabernacle at Gibeon while the ark was at Jerusalem, 2 Chron. i. 3.
—— what meant by the true tabernacle, Heb. viii. 2. how divided and called, Heb. ix. 2. what meant by the 'first tabernacle,' ibid. what it denotes figuratively, 2 Pet. i. 13.
—— God's, put for the clouds, Job xxxvi. 29.
—— Jewish nuptials held under one, Ps. xix. 4.
—— door of, why all sacrifices brought thither, Lev. i. 3. why the Israelites commanded to sacrifice there, Lev. xvii. 4.
—— of the congregation, erroneous supposition about it, Numb. xvii. 4. its proper meaning, ibid. what tabernacle meant, 1 Kings viii. 4. laid by in the treasure house on the building of the temple, ibid.
—— of the tent, what it signifies, Exod. xxxix. 32.
—— of witness, explained, Numb. xvii. 7. Acts vii. 44.
Tabernacles, feast of, why so called, Lev. xxiii. 34. why called the feast of ingathering, ibid. what it commemorated, ibid. why commemorated at this season of the year, ibid. distinction between the two feasts, ibid. custom at, explained, Is. xii. 3. Jeremiah directed to prophesy during it, Jer. xxvi. 2. the desire of the Jews of celebrating it, on reading the law, Neh. viii. 14. their joyful manner of celebrating it, ver. 17. illustration from a modern account of the celebration of this feast in the East, ver. 16. time of its continuance, John vii. 2. peculiar custom on the last day of it, ver. 37.
Tabitha, why the interpretation of this name given, Acts ix. 36.
Table of devils, allusion to heathen sacrifices, explained, 1 Cor. x. 21.
—— 'to prepare a table' explained, Is. lxv. 11.
Tables, laws and treaties written on them, Hab. ii. 2.
—— of genealogy, kept by the Jews, Heb. vii. 14. part of the Messiah's character verified by them, ibid.
—— of the testimony, how written on both sides, Exod. xxxii. 15.
—— 'to serve tables,' the expression explained, Acts vi. 2.
Tabor, mount, its situation, Judg. iv. 6. very commodious as a rendezvous for Barak's forces, ibid. Nebuchadnezzar thought to be compared to it, Jer. xlvi. 18. hunters spread their nets on it, Hos. v. 1. supposed to be that of the transfiguration, Matt. xvii. 1. modern description of it, ibid. supposed to be the mountain on which Christ appeared after His resurrection, Matt. xxviii. 16.
—— plain of, its situation, 1 Sam. x. 3.
—— and Hermon, how used figuratively, Ps. lxxxix. 12.
Tahapanes, Tahpanhes, where situate, Jer. ii. 16; xliii. 7.
Tadmor in the wilderness, its situation, history, and general description, 1 Kings ix. 18. See Palmyra.
Take away our sins, cause of Christ's suffering in a double sense, 1 John iii. 5.

Taken, in what manner 'the tribe of Benjamin was taken,' 1 Sam. x. 20.
Talebearer, literal signification of the word, Lev. xix. 16.
Talents of gold, an hundred thousand prepared by David, discussion respecting this prodigious sum, 1 Chron. xxii. 14.
Tamar, Judah's daughter in law, motive of her conduct suggested, Gen. xxxviii. 14. why sentenced to be burnt, ver. 24. in what sense more righteous than Judah, ver. 26.
—— David's daughter, why called sister to Absalom, 2 Sam. xiii. 1.
Tammuz. See Thammuz.
Tares, what is meant by the word, Matt. xiii. 25. parable of, explained and applied, ver. 24, 30.
Tarshish, doubts respecting its situation, 1 Kings ix. 28; x. 22; Is. xxiii. 6. more than one place so named, Jonah i. 3.
—— ships of, what they mean, Ezek. xxvii. 25.
Tarsus, its situation, and description of it, Acts ix. 11.
'Taught of God,' how Christians are so, 1 Thess. iv. 9.
'—— of the Lord,' what the phrase refers to, Is. liv. 13.
Taxing of all the world by Augustus, explained, Luke ii. 1.
Teachers, who they were, Rom. xii. 7.
—— uninspired, of the word of God, the learned and the unlearned not equally qualified to be so, 1 Cor. ii. 2.
—— how to be looked upon by Christians, 1 Cor. iv. 1. to be guided by the example of Christ, 2 Tim. ii. 24. remark on His combining severity with mildness, ibid. the same course taken by Prophets and the Apostles, ibid.
—— Jewish, how they used to sit with their disciples, Acts xxii. 2.
'Teareth the arm with the crown of the head' explained, Deut. xxxiii. 20.
Te Deum, former part of it is a paraphrase on Isaiah and St. John, Is. vi. 3. passage in it explained, Rom. ix. 29.
Teeth, to break, what it means, Ps. iii. 7. gnashing with them, what it denotes, Ps. xxxv. 16; Matt. xxii. 13; Acts vii. 54.
Tekel, explained, Dan. v. 27.
Tekoa or Tekoah, its situation, 2 Sam. xiv. 2; Introd. to Amos; Jer. vi. 1. the wise woman of Tekoah, 2 Sam. xiv. 2. the artifice of her speech to David, ver. 5, 13.
Tel-abib, meaning of the name, Ezek. iii. 15.
Tema, city, where situate, Jer. xxv. 23.
Teman, city of Edom, Job ii. 11. what the name of, Hab. iii. 3.
Temper of mind, those who give way to an improper one their own tormentor, Esth. v. 13.
Temperance, recommended by the example of the Grecian wrestlers, 1 Cor. ix. 25.
—— used in a comprehensive sense, Gal. v. 23.
—— and patience, their value among Christian duties, 2 Pet. i. 6. their mutual dependence, ibid. remark of a wise heathen upon it, ibid.
Temple, built in seven years, 1 Kings vi. 38. the great despatch with which it was constructed, ibid. general account of its size and structure, ibid. at the feast of its dedication, magnificence of the scene presented, 2 Chron. v. 11. why especially called a house of prayer, 2 Chron. vi. 13. God vouchsafed to honour it with an especial symbol of His presence, ver. 18. inference with respect to Christians, ibid. prayers offered towards it by the Jews when they were absent from their land, ver. 38. God's acceptance of it how shewn, 2 Chron. vii. 1. signified by a tower, Is. v. 2. called throne of God's glory, Jer. xiv. 21. reflections on God's permitting it to be destroyed on account of the wickedness of the people, 2 Kings xxv. 30. burnt by the Babylonians, ver. 9. its riches carried away by Nebuchadnezzar at three different times, ver. 13; Jer. lii. 17, 18. burnt two several times on the same day of the year, ver. 12. part of its ornaments sold to Tyre and Sidon, Joel iii. 5. the outward glory of the first exceeded that of the second, Hag. ii. 3. after it was destroyed its place called the house of the Lord, Jer. xli. 5.
—— the second, explanation of its measurements compared with that of Solomon, Ezra vi. 3. Cyrus gave his commission to build according to the pattern of Solomon's, ver. 4. a model of it shewn to Ezekiel, Ezek. xl. 4. the restoration of it a mystical representation of Messiah's government, Ezek. xl. introd. psalm used at dedication of it, Ps. xcvi. introd. its inferiority to the first in several particulars, Ezra iii. 12. how the glory of it to be greater than that of the first, Hag. ii. 8, 9. consecrated to Jupiter Olympius, Dan. xi. 29, 30. repaired by Herod, John ii. 20. why said by the Jews to have been forty-six years in building, ibid. the theatre of our Lord's publick ministry, Mal. iii. 1. remarkable size of its stones, Matt. xxiv. 2. striking accomplishment of the prophecy, that not one stone should be left upon another, ibid. to speak disrespectfully of it was a capital offence amongst the Jews, Matt. xxvi. 61. reverence due to it, Mark xi. 17. its destruction described according to the prophecy of Moses, Deut. xxviii. 58.
Temple, put for the heavens, Ps. xxix. 9. for the place where the ark was, Ps. cxxxviii. 2. for heaven, Mic. i. 2. for temples at Beth-el, Amos viii. 3. for the outer court of the temple, Matt. xxi. 12. used by Christ to signify His own body, Matt. xxvi. 61; John ii. 19.
'—— of God,' Church of Christ so called, Zech. vi. 12. why Christians so called, 1 Cor. iii. 16. what meant by defiling it, ver. 17. opened in heaven, what implied by it, Rev. xi. 19.
—— of the Holy Ghost, why Christians so called, 1 Cor. vi. 19. inference from it, ibid.
—— service, image taken from it, Is. lxii. 6. allusions dignified by their reference to it, Ezek. xxiv. 3.
Temples, custom both of Jews and heathens to hang up in them arms taken from the enemy, 1 Sam. xxi. 9; xxxi. 10.
—— of God's worship, how they are to be treated, Matt. xxi. 13.
Temporal blessings, no certain signs of God's favour, Exod. xvi. 8.
—— kingdom of the Messiah, still the great delusion of the Jewish nation, Acts i. 6.
—— things, how the servants of God have in all ages been taught to look upon them, Heb. xi. 16. how actually regarded by the best men, ibid. what were the objects of their hope and faith, ibid.
Tempt, signification of the word, Gen. xxii. 1. how God tempts man, Deut. iv. 34. and for what purpose, ibid. examples of His so tempting them, ibid.
—— God, phrase explained, Numb. xiv. 22; Judith viii. 12; Acts xv. 10.
'—— the Lord thy God' explained, Matt. iv. 7.
Temptation, in what sense we pray not to be led into it, Matt. vi. 13. how St. Paul admonishes the Corinthians concerning it, 1 Cor. x. 13. our Lord's life a continued scene of, Heb. ii. 18. whence His temptations arose, ibid.
—— of Christ, a measure designed and approved by Heaven, Matt. iv. 1. what the history of it teaches us, ver. 11. reflections upon it, Luke iv. 2.
—— to sin, does not proceed from God, Jam. i. 13. not to be excused by being ascribed to Satan, ibid. the sinner alone answerable for its taking effect, ibid. our consent to it must be voluntary, ver. 14. how we may escape from it, ibid.
Temptations, meaning of, Deut. iv. 34. two kinds of, distinguished, Jam. i. 2. of what temptations St. James speaks, ibid. why he considered them matter of joy, ibid.
Tempted, what the expression signifies, 1 Thess. iii. 5.
—— with evil, meaning of the saying that God cannot be so, Jam. i. 13.
Ten, used generally for a great many, Neh. iv. 12. in prophetick language, does not always mean a precise number, Rev. xvii. 12.
—— generations explained, Deut. xxiii. 3.
—— times, used indefinitely, Gen. xxxi. 7.
Tent door, sitting in, custom of the East, Gen. xviii. 1.
'—— to tent,' the meaning of the symbol of God's presence having gone 'from tent to tent,' 1 Chron. xvii. 5.
Tents, living in them common in the East, Gen. xiii. 18. those of men and women distinct, Gen. xxxi. 33. their being pitched in the evening, how alluded to, Judg. xix. 9. colour and materials of those of Bedoween Arabs, Song of Sol. i. 5. Eastern, described, Judith x. 22.
—— of Jacob, what Balaam compares them to, Numb. xxiv. 6.
—— put for cities and houses, Jer. iv. 20.
Tenth of the produce of the land, anciently a royal right, 1 Sam. viii. 15. meaning of the term, Is. vi. 13. put for a considerable part, Rev. xi. 13.
Terah, what was his religion, Gen. xi. 31.

Teraphim, images used for what purpose, Gen. xxxi. 19; Ezek. xxi. 21. mentioned as belonging to idolatrous rites, Hos. iii. 4.
Terrace, meaning of the word, Deut. xxii. 8.
Terrible things, the works of God's providence, Ps. lxv. 5.
Terrour, a prophetick ode admirably adapted to excite it, Ezek. xxxii. 18.
—— 'be not afraid of their terrour,' a Hebraism explained, 1 Pet. iii. 14.
Tertius, how he wrote the Epistle to the Romans, Rom. xvi. 22.
Tertullus, probably a Roman advocate, Acts xxiv. 1. his flattery to Felix mixed with some truth, ver. 2.
Testament, same original word as Covenant, Heb. ix. 15. why rendered Testament, ibid. the blessings of Christianity may be considered in either light, ibid. what Christ meant by saying 'this cup is the new testament in My blood,' 1 Cor. xi. 25.
—— New, the number of books, of which the canon consists, Introd. to New Test. all its books written by persons contemporary with the events, ibid. their truth confirmed by the testimony of friends and enemies to the Christian cause, ibid.
—— Old, account of the books of which it consists, Introd. to Old Test. when collected, ibid. proofs of their authenticity, ibid. confirmed by the New Testament, ibid. their Divine inspiration, ibid. See Translation.
Testimony, why so called simply, Exod. xvi. 34. elsewhere called ark of the testimony, ibid. used for the two tables of stone containing the Ten Commandments, Exod. xxv. 16. and why, ibid. what is meant by Jehoiada giving Joash 'the testimony,' 2 Kings xi. 12. doubts about the meaning of the word so translated, ibid.
—— of Christ, why the Gospel so called, 1 Cor. i. 6.
—— of Israel, explained, Ps. cxxii. 4.
—— 'for a testimony unto them,' the meaning of the expression, Matt. viii. 4.
—— 'for a testimony against them,' the meaning of the phrase, Matt. x. 18; Mark vi. 11; Luke ix. 5.
Testimonies of the truth of Christianity, different kinds of laid before the Thessalonians, 1 Thess. i. 6.
Tetrarch, meaning of the word, Matt. xiv. 1.
Thammuz, considered to be Adonis, Ezek. viii. 14. remark on the weeping for him, ibid.
—— the month, why called the fourth month, Ezek. i. 1.
Thank offerings explained, Lev. iii. 1.
Thanks, the propriety of offering them to God at meals, Deut. viii. 10; Matt. xiv. 19. to be offered to the Father through Jesus Christ, Rom. i. 8.
—— 'in every thing give thanks,' when we may be said to do so, 1 Thess. v. 18.
Thankfulness to God to be expressed at meals, Deut. viii. 10. and generally for His bounty, ibid.
Thanksgiving, the duty of a Christian especially on the Sabbath, Ps. xcii. 13. generally subjoined to the benediction in the beginning of St. Paul's Epistles, Rom. i. 8. and why, ibid. form in which offered, ibid. condition of our partaking of the creatures of God, 1 Tim. iv. 4.
Thanksgivings to God, to be offered in the name of Christ, Eph. iii. 21; v. 20. reason of the precept, ibid. by doing so what we in effect declare, ibid.
Thankworthy, meaning of the word, 1 Pet. ii. 19.
Theatre at Ephesus, for what purposes frequented, Acts xix. 29.
Theatrical spectacles of Rome alluded to, 1 Cor. iv. 9. described, ibid.
Thebais, desert of, described with reference to God's conduct of the Israelites in the wilderness, Deut. xxxii. 10.
Theft, why connected often with perjury in Scripture, Exod. xxii. 11; Prov. xxx. 9. many practices amounting to it, though disguised under gentler names, Deut. xxv. 13.
Then, used largely for afterwards, Zeph. iii. 9.
Thence, may refer to place or time, Hos. ii. 15.
Therefore, particle so translated should be rendered Nevertheless, Is. xxx. 18; Jer. xvi. 14; Hos. ii. 14; Mic. v. 3. for yet surely, afterwards, Jer. xxx. 16. merely an expletive at Matt. vii. 12. how used by St. Paul, Rom. ii. 1.
Thessalonica, its situation, and modern state, Acts xvii. 1. when visited by St. Paul, Introd. to 1 Thess. of whom the church there consisted, ibid. why St. Paul did not return thither as he intended, 1 Thess. ii. 17.
Thessalonians, how distinguished from the heathens, 1 Thess. i. 9, 10. and from the Jews, ibid. in what sense St. Paul's coming to preach the Gospel to them was not in vain, 1 Thess. ii. 1. character of his preaching to them, ver. 3. comparisons by which St. Paul expressed his affection for them, ver. 7, 11. why particularly exhorted to purity, 1 Thess. iv. 3. what errour had crept in amongst them, 2 Thess. ii. introd. corrected, ver. 1, &c.
—— first Epistle to, date and occasion of it, Introd. probably the first of St. Paul's Epistles, ibid. its contents, ibid. and character, ibid.
—— second Epistle to, principal design of it, Introd. when and where written, ibid. its contents, ibid.
Theudas, an impostor, probably two of this name, Acts v. 36.
Thieves, what the word means, Matt. xxi. 13.
—— crucified with Christ, the completion of a prophecy, Matt. xxvii. 38. See Malefactors.
Thigh, putting the hand under, token of subjection, Gen. xxiv. 2. to smite upon, a sign of extreme sorrow, Jer. xxxi. 19.
'Things which are above,' what imported by the precepts to seek them, and set our affection upon them, Col. iii. 1, 2.
'—— that are' explained, 1 Cor. i. 28.
'—— which are not' explained, 1 Cor. i. 28.
'—— which be not,' what the phrase signifies, Rom. iv. 17.
'—— in earth and things in heaven,' reconciled by Christ, of whom to be understood, Col. i. 20.
'—— pertaining to God,' meaning of the phrase, Heb. ii. 17.
Third heaven, what it signifies in the language of the Jews, 2 Cor. xii. 2.
'—— time I am ready to come to you,' what St. Paul means by it, 2 Cor. xii. 14.
Thirst, parching, usually accompanies extreme grief or torture, Ps. xxii. 15; John xix. 28.
Thisbe, probably the native city of Elijah, Tob. i. 2.
Thomas, St. his slowness in believing the resurrection, John xx. 25. was the means of adding to the evidences of it, ibid. his noble confession of faith in Christ, as God, ver. 28.
Thorn in the flesh, what probably to be understood by it, 2 Cor. xii. 7. not to be discovered with certainty, ibid. exposition of Christ's answer to St. Paul's prayer concerning it, ver. 9. reflections thereupon, ibid. a means of trying St. Paul's patience, Gal. iv. 13.
Thorns and thistles, what meant by them in Gen. iii. 18.
Thought, 'take no thought,' force of the original expression, Matt. vi. 25. and of the English phrase when our translation was made, ibid.
'Thoughts the mean while accusing, or else excusing one another,' explained, Rom. ii. 15.
Thousand years, how they are with God as one day, 2 Pet. iii. 8. meaning of the term uncertain, Rev. xx. 4.
Thousands, for the thousandth generation, Exod. xx. 6. tribes of Israel divided into, Mic. v. 2.
Threatenings of God conditional, Gen. xx. 3; Jon. iii. 4, 10.
Three Persons in the Trinity, how they bore witness to Christ, 1 John v. 7.
'Three that bear record in heaven,' remarks on the genuineness of the verse, 1 John v. 7. doctrine of it abundantly asserted elsewhere, ibid. proofs of it, ibid.
Three and four, expresses several, Amos i. 3.
Threshing corn by the feet of oxen practised in ancient times, Deut. xxv. 4; Judg. vi. 11. and by the modern Moors and Arabs, Deut. xxv. 4. practice described, ibid. See Corn.
—— shall reach unto the vintage, remark upon the phrase, Lev. xxvi. 5. for what is threshed, Is. xxi. 10.
—— instrument in the East, how composed, 1 Chron. xxi. 23. described, Amos i. 3.
Threshingfloors, commonly without the city, 1 Sam. xxiii. 1.
Threshold, leaping on, explained, Zeph. i. 9.

Throne, used to signify any royal abode, Neh. iii. 7. to set up, what it denotes, Jer. i. 15. placed above other thrones, custom explained, Jer. lii. 32. to swear by, a very solemn oath, Judith i. 12.
—— of God, of whose kingdom spoken, Heb. i. 8. reflections on the propriety of the application, ibid.
—— of the Lord, the throne of the kingdom of Israel peculiarly called so, 1 Chron. xxix. 23.
—— 'sat on the throne of His kingdom' explained, Esth. i. 2.
Thrones, had anciently wheels, Dan. vii. 9.
Thunder, what it demonstrates, Ps. xxix. introd. how called by the Hebrews, ibid. why expression applied to horse's neck, Job xxxix. 19.
Thunders, seven, sealed up, neither the subject of these prophecies, nor the reasons for suppressing them known, Rev. x. 3, 4.
Thyatira, church of, description of Thyatira, and present state of the church, Rev. ii. 18. its improving faith and constancy, ver. 19. a sect of seducers in it, ver. 20. threats against it, ver. 22. to be made a warning to others, ver. 23. promise to those that overcome, and commendation on the sound part of the church, ver. 26, 27.
Tiberias, sea of, abounds in fish in modern times, John xxi. 11. See Galilee, sea of.
—— town of, its situation and modern state, Matt. iv. 18.
Tiglath-pileser, made the second invasion on the land of Israel, 2 Kings xv. 29. the same as Arbaces, ibid. in what sense he 'distressed Ahaz, but strengthened him not,' 2 Chron. xxviii. 20.
Tigris, the course of, described, Tob. vi. 1. See Hiddekel.
Tiles, description of Eastern, Ezek. iv. 1.
Timbrel, used in religious ceremonies, Exod. xv. 20, described, ibid.
Time present, what it is in prophetick vision, Is. xviii. 2.
Time of our wealth, why the Church teaches us to pray God to deliver us then, Deut. xxxii. 15. necessity of such petitions, ibid.
—— 'that there should be time no longer' explained, Rev. x. 6, 7.
Times, put for years, Dan. iv. 16. calamitous, how expressed, Amos viii. 9.
'—— men that had understanding of the times,' conjectures respecting the meaning, 1 Chron. xii. 32.
Timidity, described as a consequence of God's desertion for sin, Deut. xxxii. 30.
Timna and Amalek, rather Timna-Amalek in one word, 1 Chron. i. 36.
Timnath, its situation, Judg. xiv. 1.
Timothy, his birth, parentage, and education, Introd. to 1 Tim. by whom and when converted, ibid. some particulars in his life, ibid. regularly appointed to the ministerial office, ibid. his subsequent connexion with St. Paul, ibid. esteem in which held by him, ibid. his station in the church, and death, ibid. the power invested in him, ibid. par. 4, 5. probably converted to Christianity by St. Paul, 1 Tim. i. 2. his exemplary character worthy of imitation, Acts xvi. 1. why St. Paul caused him to be circumcised, ver. 3. why called by St. Paul his fellow-labourer, Rom. xvi. 21. reason of the caution given about him by St. Paul, 1 Cor. xvi. 10, 11. why called brother by St. Paul, 2 Cor. i. 1. remarks on St. Paul's conduct in his case compared with the case of Titus, Gal. ii. 4.
—— first Epistle to, probable date of it, Introd. its principal design, ibid. and contents, ibid.
—— second Epistle to, where and when written, Introd. contents of it, ibid.
Tinkling with the feet, explained, Is. iii. 16.
Tiphsah, its situation, 1 Kings iv. 24. two places of this name, 2 Kings xv. 16.
Tirshatha, Zerubbabel so called, Ezra ii. 63. meaning of the word, ibid. his power and authority among the Jews, ibid.
Tirzah, selected for a time as the royal seat of the kings of Israel, 1 Kings xiv. 17; Song of Sol. vi. 4. its pleasantness, ibid.
Tisri, seventh month of the year, Exod. xii. 2. first month of the civil year, ibid.
Titans, used for giants, Judith xvi. 7.
Tithe, second, meaning of, Deut. xii. 6.
Tithes, antiquity of offering them to God, Gen. xiv. 20. vowed by Jacob, Gen. xxviii. 22. why the tenths fixed upon, ibid. where first mentioned in the law of Moses, Lev. xxvii. 30. why appointed for persons employed on the Divine service, ibid. anciently paid to kings, ibid. those who paid them conscientiously blessed, Ezek. xliv. 30.
Titus, particulars of his history, Introd. to Titus. remark on his age, Titus ii. 15. remarks on his earnestness in the cause of the poor Christians, 2 Cor. viii. 16, 17. earliest mention of him, Gal. ii. 1. remarks on his parentage, ibid. his conversion, ibid. and on his connection with St. Paul, ibid. what implied by St. Paul's taking him to Jerusalem, ibid. his treatment by the other Apostles, what it shewed, ver. 3. reason of St. Paul's conduct towards him, ver. 4. this conduct consistent with his subsequent conduct to Timothy, ibid. distinction between their cases, ibid.
—— Epistle to, conjectures concerning the date of it, Introd. its design and contents, ibid. for whose benefit written, Titus iii. 15.
—— son of Vespasian, attributed his conquest over the Jews to Divine assistance, Deut. xxxii. 31.
Tob, land of, conjectures respecting it, Judg. xi. 3.
Tobiah, why called 'the servant,' Neh. ii. 10.
Tobit, his virtuous conduct considered, Tob. i. 3; iii. 1. his advice to his son, Tob. iv. 3. his patience, Tob. x. 6. whence the opinion that he wrote his own history, Tob. xii. 20. did not possess gift of prophecy, Tob. xiii. 10.
—— book of, by whom written, whether written in Hebrew, never in Hebrew canon, considerations on its character, Introd. to Tobit.
Togarmah, conjectures on it, Ezek. xxvii. 14; xxxviii. 6.
Tombs, caverns to which robbers resorted, Matt. viii. 28. still exist near the lake of Gennesareth, ibid. among the Jews, 'hewn out of a rock,' Matt. xxvii. 60. why this circumstance particularly mentioned of that in which Christ was laid, ibid. See Sepulchres.
To-morrow, meaning hereafter, Numb. xiv. 25. 'shortly after,' 1 Sam. xxviii. 19.
Tongue, necessity of bridling it, Jam. i. 26. determinate meaning of the passage which mentions it, ibid. force and expressiveness of the passage, ibid. why called a world of iniquity, Jam. iii. 5. in what sense said to 'set on fire the course of nature,' ver. 6. difficulty of subduing it, ver. 7.
—— of the sea, expression explained, Is. xi. 15.
Tongues, cloven, what was represented by them, Acts ii. 3.
'Top of the street,' signifies in every street, Lam. ii. 19.
Tophet or Topheth, why part of the valley of Hinnom so called, 2 Kings xxiii. 10. when name to cease, Jer. vii. 32.
Tormentors, the meaning of the word, Matt. xviii. 34.
Tortoise, variously translated, Lev. xi. 29.
Tower, to which Gehazi came, what meant by it, 2 Kings v. 24. a building for overlooking vineyards, Matt. xxi. 33. turret erected for pleasure in Eastern gardens, Luke xiv. 28.
—— of the flock, tower of David, Mic. iv. 8.
Towers, built in the desert by Uzziah, the purpose of them, 2 Chron. xxvi. 10.
Trachonitis, where situated, Deut. iii. 4. why so called, ibid. its name in the Old Testament, ibid.
Tradition of men, what so called, and why, Col. ii. 8.
Traditions, in what sense spoken of by St. Paul, 2 Thess. ii. 15. what doctrines merit the name in the Scripture sense of the word, ibid. character of those of the church of Rome, ibid. See Oral Tradition.
—— of my fathers, what St. Paul means by them, Gal. i. 14. why he mentions his zeal for them, ibid.
Transfiguration, why the three Apostles were selected to be present at it, Matt. xvii. 1. why they proposed to erect three tabernacles, ver. 4. the purpose and design of the Transfiguration, ver. 8. attestations at it to Christ's character alluded to, 2 Pet. i. 17.
Translations of the Bible, account of them, Gen. Introd. by whom our present translation was made, ibid. how prosecuted, ibid.
Transplanting of nations, instances of, Jer. lii. 27.
Transposition of words, instance of, Philem. ver. 5. instance of its necessity, 2 Tim. ii. 6.

Transubstantiation, not supported by the natural construction of our Saviour's words, Matt. xxvi. 26. proved to be repugnant to Scripture, 1 Cor. xi. 26.
Travellers in the East, used to carry with them their stores of provision, Luke x. 34. very frequently perform journeys in the night, Luke xi. 5.
Travelleth, as one that, proverbial phrase, explained, Prov. vi. 11.
Traversing her ways, meaning of the phrase, Jer. ii. 23.
Treacherous, what it denotes, Jer. iii. 7.
Treasure cities, explained, Exod. i. 11.
Treasures, Eastern, in what they consisted, Is. iii. 7; Matt. vi. 19. hidden in the East, Job iii. 21; 1 Mac. i. 23. heavenly to be preferred to earthly, Matt. vi. 19.
—— of the house, and treasures of the dedicated things, explained, 1 Chron. xxvi. 20.
Treasury, what it was in ancient temples, Dan. i. 2. what in the temple of Jerusalem, Mark xii. 41.
Tree of knowledge, why so called, Gen. ii. 9.
—— of life, reason of its name, and its uses, Gen. ii. 9. the promise to give to eat of it, what it implies, Rev. ii. 7.
—— 'days of a tree,' what used to express, Is. lxv. 22.
Trees in the desert, their rarity, Exod. xv. 27. cutting them down, a mode of distressing an enemy still practised in the East, 2 Kings iii. 19. green and dry, what they represent, Ezek. xx. 47; xxi. 3. large, what they represent, Dan. iv. 10.
'—— which the Lord hath planted' explained, Numb. xxiv. 6.
Tremble, full force of word translated by it, explained, Hos. xi. 10.
Trembling, how used, Hos. xiii. 1.
Trench cast about Jerusalem at the siege, remarkably fulfilling Christ's prophecy, Luke xix. 43.
—— 'lay in the trench' explained, 1 Sam. xxvi. 5.
Trespass offering, how distinguished from sin offering, Lev. v. 15. its comparative sufficiency in transgressions of a ritual and moral nature, Numb. v. 7. why offered by the Philistines, 1 Sam. vi. 3. this conformable to heathen notions, ibid.
Trial, season of, allowed to men, Gen. vi. 3. this world a state of, Gen. xxxix. 20. reward of enduring it, ibid.
Trials, strength under them given to the godly, Ps. xli. 13.
Tribes of Israel, in what order arranged, Numb. i. 5. reason of the arrangement, ibid. the number that shared the land of Canaan, Josh. xiv. 4. reckoned in two different ways, ibid. their allotments of the promised land agreeable to the predictions of Jacob and Moses, Josh. xv. 1. a proof that Divine power was specially concerned, ibid. many of the other tribes, besides Judah, returned from Babylon, 1 Chron. ix. 3. civil rulers appointed over each, 1 Chron. xxvii. 16. in the enumeration two tribes are omitted, for which only conjectural reasons can be assigned, ver. 22. some of all the twelve tribes remained after the captivity, Acts xxvi. 7. not mentioned in their order, and some omitted, Rev. vii. 5. See Reuben, Simeon, &c.
—— ten, some remains of joined to Judah, Jer. xxxvi. 2.
Tribute to Cesar, the question respecting its lawfulness illustrated, Matt. xxii. 17. the design of the Pharisees in putting it, ver. 18. wisdom of Christ's answer, ver. 21. important doctrine laid down by Him in consequence, ibid. question concerning it agitated by the Jews, Rom. xiii. 6. how decided by St. Paul, ibid. and on what principle, ibid. how distinguished from custom, ver. 7.
—— money, its value and the purpose for which it was paid, Matt. xvii. 24. Christ's reason for not being subject to it, ver. 25, 26. his reason for consenting to pay it, ver. 25—27.
Trinity, doctrine intimated, Gen. i. 1, 26; iii. 22; xix. 24. distinction of Persons acknowledged by the Patriarchs, Exod. iii. 4. intimated in the Aaronical jurisdiction, Numb. vi. 26. expressly taught in Scripture, Deut. vi. 4. wherein the union and distinction lies, ibid. signified, Eccles. xii. 1. implied by the word 'Holy,' thrice repeated, Is. vi. 3. by the plural number, ver. 8. Christ called Counsellor with reference to it, Is. ix. 6. alluded to by the name Lord thrice repeated, Is. xxxiii. 22. the several Persons included in word God, Is. xliv. 24. intimated, Is. liv. 5. denoted by watchers, Dan. iv. 17. proved, Zech. ii. 8, 11; iii. 2. manifested at our Lord's baptism, Matt. iii. 17. proved from the baptismal form, Matt. xxviii. 19. distinctly set forth to us in the beginning of the third chapter of St. John's Gospel, John iii. 2. proved, John xiv. 16. the three Divine Persons cooperate for the salvation of Christians, ibid. intimated, 1 Cor. xii. 4—6. joint operation of the three Persons, ibid. right of all the three Persons severally and jointly to our prayers and invocations, ibid. the names of plainly specified, 2 Cor. xiii. 14. three different Persons denoted, ibid. whence appears the necessity of believing in, confiding in, and serving them, ibid. the three Persons of, how engaged in the plan of man's redemption, 2 Tim. i. 9. incomprehensible union of the three Divine Persons, how denoted, 1 Pet. i. 11. doctrine of, how asserted, 1 John v. 7. honour due to, implied by the baptismal form, ibid. denial of it a renunciation of our baptism, ibid. See Persons, Plurality of Persons, &c.
Trinity, second Person of, to be understood, Is. xlviii. 16. introduced, Ezek. ix. 3; Zech. ii. 11. distinguished from the Father, Ecclus. li. 10. See Son of God.
Triple repetition, denotes earnestness, Jer. vii. 4. the certainty of the event, Ezek. xxi. 27.
Troas, its situation, Acts xvi. 8.
'Trodden under foot the Son of God, &c.' explained, Heb. x. 29. what may constitute the sin, ibid.
Troop, what the term signifies, Amos ix. 6.
Troops, daughter of, what it signifies, Mic. v. 1.
Trumpet, voice of at the delivery of the law, explained, Exod. xix. 16. people called together by means of, Hos. viii. 1; Joel ii. 1. to sound, a figurative way of expressing ostentation, Matt. vi. 2. 'voice as of a trumpet,' accompanying Divine revelations, Rev. i. 10. seventh, what it denotes, Rev. xi. 15.
Trumpets, used by the Israelites in the wilderness, Numb. x. 2. their form and purpose, ibid. two Hebrew names for, ibid. instances of the use of each, ibid. how one of the words is rendered in the Psalms, ibid.
—— the seven, what they foretell, Rev. viii. 2.
—— feast of, uncertainty about the reason of it, Lev. xxiii. 24. most general opinion, ibid. the new year's day of the Jews, ibid. when celebrated, Neh. viii. 2; Ps. lxxxi. 3.
Trust in God, has promise of salvation, Ps. lxxi. 1. how proved, Ps. cxxv. 3. enforced by our Saviour's answer to the tempter, Matt. iv. 7. enforced, Matt. vi. 26, 33, 34. not to exclude our own exertions, ver. 33. the true remedy against affliction, John xiv. 1.
Truth, opposed to unrighteousness, what it signifies, Rom. ii. 8. what 'the Truth' emphatically signifies in the New Testament, 1 Cor. xiii. 6. what meant by charity rejoicing in it, ibid. meaning of the word, 2 John ver. 3, 4. what it means, 3 John ver. 12.
—— of God, not rendered ineffectual by the perverseness of men, Rom. iii. 3.
'—— of the Gospel,' what used to denote, Gal. ii. 5, 14.
Truths revealed by God, how men come to the knowledge of them, Eph. i. 17. illustrated by St. Paul's prayer for the Ephesians, ibid. what truths recommended to be thought on, Phil. iv. 8.
Tubal, who supposed to be, Ezek. xxvii. 13.
Turn, what meant by turning the heart of the fathers, &c. Mal. iv. 6.
'Turning aside after Satan,' what it means, and why, 1 Tim. v. 15.
Turrets raised on a besieged city, what compared to them, 2 Cor. x. 5.
Turtledove, why commanded to be offered, Lev. i. 14. an accommodation to the poor, ibid. Luke ii. 24. application to our Saviour's case, Luke ii. 24. a bird of passage, Song of Sol. ii. 12.
Twelve Apostles, called 'the twelve,' when not so, strictly speaking, 1 Cor. xv. 5.
Two tables of stone, why called the testimony, Exod. xxv. 16.
—— of the law, how divided, Exod. xxxiv. 29. and why, ibid.
Tychicus, character of him, Eph. vi. 21.
Types of the law, for what purpose intended, Rom. x. 4.
Tyrannus, who he probably was, Acts xix. 9.
Tyrants, why struck with God's plagues, Job xxxiv. 30.
Tyre, its Hebrew name, Josh. xix. 29. its strength and antiquity, Is. xxiii. 7. its becoming Christian prophesied of, ver. 18. sketch of its history, ibid. the siege of it by Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. xlvii. 4. its present state, Ezek. xxvi. 5. whether old or new prophesied of, ver. 7, 14. why called strong in the sea, ver. 17. its destruction foretold, Amos i. 9. celebrated for its riches, Zech. ix. 3. set on fire by Alexander, ver. 4.

TYRE, ladder of, a mountain so called, 1 Mac. xi. 59.
—— and SIDON, places remarkable for their vices, Matt. xi. 21.
Tyrian purple, the excellency of, Jer. x. 9.
TYRIANS, when besieged, fled to Carthage, Is. xxiii. 6. their conduct towards the Jews, Ezek. xxvi. 2. why such scanty accounts of them, ver. 3. fled to Tarshish and Chittim, ver. 18. their prodigality, Ezek. xxvii. 7. chiefly supplied with provisions by the Jews, Acts xii. 20.
TYRUS, see TYRE.

U.

ULAI, what river supposed to be, Dan. viii. 2.
Unanimity in worship recommended, Rom. xv. 6. See Unity.
Unbelief, the mother of sin, Gen. iii. 4. its punishment, Numb. xiii. 31. hardened, the danger of, Matt. xiii. 19. what it means in Scripture, Mark xvi. 16. often proceeds from a perverse and corrupted mind, Luke xvi. 31. when all reasonable means for removing it have been tried, more are not to be expected, ibid. proof of an evil heart, Heb. iii. 12. its danger, ibid. its malignity, ver. 19. sin and misery that it occasions, ibid.
Unbelievers, how affected by God's promises, Is. viii. 14. some have been converted by reading the 53d chapter of Isaiah, Is. liii. introd. their confusion at Christ's second coming represented, 2 Pet. iii. 10.
—— modern, dispute the reality of miracles which the infidels who were eyewitnesses acknowledged, Matt. xii. 24.
—— obstinate, preaching of the Gospel not to be continued to them, Matt. vii. 6.
Unchangeableness of God's nature a powerful dissuasive from vice, Jam. i. 17.
Uncircumcised, how the term was used by the Hebrews, Exod. vi. 12. why put for wicked, Ezek. xxviii. 10.
Uncircumcision used for a heathen, Rom. ii. 26.
Uncle, how used as a symptom of desolation, Amos vi. 10.
Unclean meats, Israelites obliged to eat them in the captivity, Hos. ix. 3. See Beasts, Meats.
Uncleanness, disgraceful conduct of the heathens about it in relation to their gods, Deut. xxiii. 18. what meant by God giving the heathens up to it, Rom. i. 24. universal consequence of idolatry, ibid.
—— sins of, how thought of by the heathens, Eph. v. 6. practised as acts of worship, ibid. excellence of the Gospel in this respect, ibid. their peculiar offensiveness, 1 Thess. iv. 8. reflections on the manner in which the Scriptures speak of them, ibid. See Fornication, Impurity.
Uncovering the head, a token of sorrow, Lev. x. 6.
—— the head of the priest, what meant by it, Lev. xxi. 10.
'Unction from the Holy One, &c.' explained, 1 John ii. 20.
Undergirding a ship described, Acts xxvii. 17.
Understandeth, scriptural sense of the word, Matt. xiii. 19.
Understanding, why the Scriptures represent wicked men without it, Deut. xxxii. 28.
Understood not, in what sense spoken of the disciples, Luke ix. 45.
Undervalue, men are apt to undervalue their possessions, Gen. xv. 2.
Unforgiving servant, parable of, exhibits too true a picture of human conduct, Matt. xviii. 35. proper mode of applying it, ibid.
Unfruitful, meaning of the word as applied to works of darkness, Eph. v. 11.
Ungodliness of man, its signification as opposed to unrighteousness, Rom. i. 18.
Unicorn, different opinions concerning it, Numb. xxiii. 22. most probably the rhinoceros, ibid. described, Job xxxix. 9; Ps. xxii. 21.
Union and mutual relation among Christians, what results from it, Rom. xii. 8.
Union with Christ, who hath it, 1 Cor. vi. 17. and by what means, ibid.
Unity, importance of, to the security of the Church, 1 Cor. xiv. 33. a condition of God's presence among us, 2 Cor. xiii. 11. by what obligations enforced, Eph. iv. 4.
—— and charity, why so much pressed in the Epistles to the Corinthians, 1 Cor. xvi. 14.
—— in church and state preserved by religious association, Deut. xvi. 16.
—— in judgment and affection, how to be respected among Christians, 1 Cor. i. 10.
—— of faith and doctrine intimately connected with the unity of affection, Eph. iv. 3.
—— of God, proved by reason, Exod. xx. 3. confirmed by Scripture, ibid. expressly asserted in Scripture, Deut. vi. 4. proved from the baptismal form, Matt. xxviii. 19.
—— of the Spirit, how to be kept in the bond of peace, Eph. iv. 3.
Universal charity, why particularly recommended to the Galatians, Gal. vi. 10.
—— redemption by Christ's death asserted, Rom. v. 12, 14, 18. asserted and proved, 2 Cor. v. 14; 1 John ii. 2.
Unjust, the heathens so called, 1 Cor. vi. 1. and why, ibid.
Unknown God, the Athenian altar to, various opinions respecting its origin, Acts xvii. 23.
Unlawful, nothing unlawful is expedient, Gen. iii. 5; xix. 8.
Unlearned, are not to pry particularly into prophecies which are yet future, Dan. xii. 9.
—— and unstable, what persons meant, 2 Pet. iii. 16. how they 'wrest' the Scriptures, ibid. how 'unto their own destruction,' ibid. meaning of the whole passage, ibid. See Learning, Preachers of the Gospel.
Unleavened bread, first day of, what intended, Matt. xxvi. 17.
Unmarried, in what sense used, 1 Cor. vii. 8.
Unpardonable sin, no sin at this time necessarily so, 1 John v. 16. par. 4.
Unprofitable, what the word means, Philem. ver. 11; Heb. xiii. 17.
Unrighteous persons incapable of eternal life, 1 Cor. vi. 9. reflections on St. Paul's emphatical assertion of it, ibid.
Unrighteousness opposed to truth, what it signifies, Rom. ii. 8. why men are said to obey it, ibid.
Unruly, a military term, 1 Thess. v. 14. who denoted by it, ibid.
'Unshod, withhold thy foot from being,' expression explained, Jer. ii. 25.
Unspeakable gift, what it is for which St. Paul gives thanks unto God, 2 Cor. ix. 15.
Unworthiness, not a reason for abstaining from the Lord's supper, 1 Cor. xi. 27. what a sense of it should prompt persons to do, ibid. state of the case illustrated, ibid. See LORD'S Supper, &c.
—— good effects of a sense of it, 1 John v. 4.
Upharsin, what it literally signifies, Dan. v. 28.
UPHAZ, where situate, Jer. x. 9.
'Upholding all things by the word of his power' explained, Heb. i. 3. remarks on its being attributed to the Son of God, ibid.
Upright, the blessing of them, what it means, Prov. xi. 11.
Uprightness, land of, what meant by, Ps. cxliii. 10.
Upward, consider from this day upward, explained, Hag. ii. 15, 18.
UR of the Chaldees, where situated, Gen. xi. 28.
URIAH, why called 'the Hittite,' 2 Sam. xi. 3.
URIJAH, the priest, remarks on his base compliance with an idolatrous prince, 2 Kings xvi. 16.
—— son of Shemaiah, a Prophet, contemporary with Jeremiah, Jer. xxv. 4.
Urim and Thummim, signification of the words, Exod. xxviii. 30. what intended by them uncertain, ibid. an ornament for enabling the high priest to collect Divine instruction, ibid. how noticed in the blessing of Moses on Levi, Deut. xxxiii. 8. the destruction of the temple, conjecture about it at Ezra ii. 63.
—— 'till there stood up a priest with Urim and Thummim' explained, Ezra ii. 63; Neh. vii. 65.
Usury, how distinguished from increase, Lev. xxv. 36. prohibition of them how interpreted by some Jews, ibid. benevolent foundation of the precept, ibid. palpable wickedness of an exorbitant demand on them, Lev. xxv. 36. law broken by the Jews, Neh. v. 7. a particular sort of usury meant by 'the hundredth part' of the money, ver. 11. usury still practised in Syria to a very oppressive extent, ibid. why noticed in the description of a citizen of Zion, Ps. xv. 5.

Uz, land of, where situate, Job i. 1. why so called, Gen. xxii. 20.
Uzzah, wherein his errour in touching the ark consisted, 2 Sam. vi. 7. he acted contrary to an express law, ibid. God's design in his punishment, ibid.
Uzziah, the excellence of his early conduct, and his prosperity, 2 Chron. xxvi. 6. tempted by prosperity to forgetfulness of God, ver. 16. his presumption in burning incense in the temple, ver. 16, 18. why struck with leprosy in the forehead, ver. 19. a warning to intruders into the ministry, ibid. precluded from entering the temple, and why, ver. 21. why buried in a sepulchre by himself, ver. 23.

V.

Vail, worn by Eastern brides, Gen. xxiv. 65. and generally by the Moorish women, ibid. much worn by women in the East, Gen. xxxviii. 14. doubts about its meaning, Ruth iii. 15. what a token of, 1 Cor. xi. 4. customary among some nations, ibid.
—— before the testimony, its use, Exod. xxvii. 21.
—— of the temple, what signified by its being rent at Christ's passion, Matt. xxvii. 51.
Vain, put for idle, Prov. xii. 11.
—— fellows, meaning 'low, empty, worthless,' 2 Sam. vi. 20.
—— men, meaning poor and needy men, Judg. xi. 3.
—— things, meaning idols, 1 Sam. xii. 21.
'—— jangling' explained, 1 Tim. i. 6.
Valley of salt, conjectures respecting it, 2 Sam. viii. 13.
—— of the passengers, why so called, Ezek. xxxix. 11.
'Valleys, children slain in,' what it means, Is. lvii. 5.
Vandals, their invasion under Genseric foretold, Rev. viii. 10.
Vanity, put for falsehood, Ps. xii. 2. put for false gods, Ps. xxiv. 4. what meant by, Eccles. i. 2. what so called, Rom. viii. 20.
—— of the mind, what it comprehends, Eph. iv. 17. how it appears to describe the nations of the earth, ibid.
—— 'cords of' explained, Is. v. 18.
Vanities, idols so called, Jer. ii. 5. meaning pretended and false deities, Acts xiv. 15.
'—— lying,' strange gods, Ps. xxxi. 6; Jonah ii. 8.
Varieties of the human species accounted for, Gen. x. 32.
Vashti, why brought by Ahasuerus into the assembly, Esther i. 11.
Vengeance, or Divine justice, placed among the heathen divinities, alluded to, Acts xxviii. 4.
—— God's, is the execution of His justice, Jer. v. 9. instruments of it, themselves punished, Jer. xxv. 12.
Verb, sometimes applicable only to some of the substantives put after it, Hos. ii. 18.
Vessel, why the body so called, 1 Thess. iv. 4. what meant by possessing it in sanctification and honour, ibid. instance of a similar figure, ibid.
Vessels of stone, perhaps filtering stones, Exod. vii. 19.
—— of the temple, preserved by a singular Providence, and restored by Cyrus, Ezra i. 7. the great number of them, ver. 11.
—— of wood, &c. used by the Arabs, Lev. xi. 32.
'—— of wrath,' 'vessels of mercy,' different phraseology used by St. Paul concerning them, Rom. ix. 22. the latter expression explained by him in another place, ver. 23.
Vial, meaning a sort of bason or open vessel, Rev. v. 8.
—— seventh, contains more than the former vials, Rev. xvii. introd.
Vials, the seven, contained under the seventh trumpet, Rev. xv. 1. many fruitless attempts to explain them, ibid. probably all yet to come, ibid. general correspondence between the several vials and the several trumpets, Rev. xvi. 1, 2, 8.
Vices, sundry, condemned, Is. v. 8.
—— of man not to be ascribed to God, Ecclus. xv. 12, 20.
—— publick and private, in prophetick style, compared to bodily distempers, Rev. xvi. 2.
Vicious, conversation of to be avoided, Lev. xv. 5.
Victim, coming without reluctance to the altar, a good omen, Is. lx. 7.
Vine, people of Israel described as one, Ps. lxxx. 8. an ornament to the house, Ps. cxxviii. the blossoms of it have a fragrant smell, Song of Sol. ii. 13. twigs of it used for fuel, Ezek. xv. 4. empty, Israel why compared to, Hos. x. 1. the Jewish church often represented by this figure, John xv. 1. in what sense Christ calls Himself the true vine, ibid. the occasion which may have led to this expression, ibid.
—— used in a more extensive sense, 2 Kings iv. 39.
—— of Sodom, character of the plant, Deut. xxxii. 32.
Vines of Sibmah explained, Is. xvi. 8.
—— hyperbolically described, Gen. xlix. 11. abundant in the valley of Eshcol, in the tribe of Judah, ibid. and about Jerusalem, ibid. planted by the waters, Ezek. xix. 10. joined to other trees, ver. 11.
—— and fig trees, more planted in Judea than other trees, 1 Kings iv. 25.
Vinegar, different senses in which the word may be understood, Ruth ii. 14. the ordinary refreshment of a slave, Ps. lxix. 21. the customary drink of the Roman soldiers, Luke xxiii. 36. mingled with gall, the same as 'wine mingled with myrrh,' mentioned by St. Mark, Matt. xxvii. 34. why Christ refused to drink of it, ibid. the common drink of the lower people in the East, ver. 48.
Vineyard and vine, frequency of allusions to them in Scripture, Matt. xxi. 33.
'Violence of,' signifies 'violence done to,' Hab. ii. 8, 17.
Violent, the meaning of the term, Matt. xi. 12.
Vipers, generation of, what meant by the expression, Matt. iii. 7.
Virgin, Babylon why so called, Is. xlvii. 1.
—— meaning of, 1 Cor. vii. 25, 36.
—— Mary, victory over Satan improperly ascribed to her by the Romish church, Gen. iii. 15. See Mary.
Virgins carried silver-gilt pots of perfumes at marriages, Song of Sol. iii. 6.
—— parable of, explained and applied, Matt. xxv. 2, 5, &c.
Virtue, what the word signifies, 2 Pet. i. 5. consequence of a defect of it, ibid.
Virtues, caution to think less of our virtues, Ps. li. 19.
Vision, explained, Numb. xii. 6. and exemplified, ibid. put for instruction, Prov. xxix. 18. whether Jeremiah's journey was in one, Jer. xiii. 4. valley of Jerusalem so called, Is. xxii. 1.
—— 'there was no open vision' explained, 1 Sam. iii. 1.
Visions, frequently attended with great horrour, Gen. xv. 12. different, vouchsafed to St. John by successive openings in the heavens, Rev. iv. introd.
—— of God for a trance, Ezek. viii. 3; xi. 24.
—— of Daniel, interval between them, Dan. vii. introd. why one written in Chaldee, ibid.
—— and revelations, remarks on those of St. Paul, 2 Cor. xii. 1, &c. why he does not expressly mention himself, ver. 5.
Visit, twofold signification of the word, Gen. xxi. 1; Jer. xxiii. 2. what it means, Jer. xxxii. 5.
Visitation of all men explained, Numb. xvi. 29.
—— of the Sick, office of, for what purpose provided, Jam. v. 16.
Visiting the iniquity of the fathers, &c. what intended by the denunciation, Exod. xx. 5. how made good, ibid. considerations upon this denunciation of God, Deut. v. 9.
Voice of God, for thunder, Jer. x. 13. denotes His anger, Joel ii. 11.
'—— of the Lord God walking' explained, Gen. iii. 8.
Voices and thunderings, prophetick signs of great calamities, Rev. viii. 5.
Void place in the entrance of the gate of Samaria, the meaning of the term explained, 1 Kings xxii. 10.
Vomiteth out, expressiveness of the figure applied to the land of Canaan, Lev. xviii. 25.
Vow, remarks on Jacob's, Gen. xxviii. 20. rash one to be avoided, Eccles. v. 6.
Vows, different power of men and women in them, Jer. xliv. 19.
—— to be performed without deceit, Mal. i. 14.

W.

Wafers, how prepared, Lev. ii. 4.
Wages of sin deserved by the sinner, Rom. vi. 23. how distinguished from the gift of God, ibid.

Wain in husbandry explained, Is. xxviii. 27.
'Wait for the Son of God from heaven,' what it signifies, 1 Thess. i. 9, 10. to do so, peculiar to Christians, ibid.
Wake or sleep opposed to each other, what they signify, 1 Thess. v. 10.
Walk, 'I will walk among you' explained, Lev. xxvi. 12.
—— 'to walk surely' explained, Prov. x. 9.
—— 'walk after the flesh,' 'walk after the Spirit,' explained, Rom. viii. 1, 4.
Walked with God, meaning of the phrase, Gen. v. 22; vi. 9.
Walking on the sea, deemed a peculiar mark of Divine power, Matt. xiv. 25. the design of Christ's miracle of walking on the sea, ver. 31. its effect on those who witnessed it, ver. 33.
—— by faith not by sight, what it means, 2 Cor. v. 7. the distinction of a Christian, ibid.
—— in the Spirit, what meant by it, Gal. v. 16. what ensues from it, ibid.
Wall, 'to give us a wall in Judah' explained, Ezra ix. 9.
Walls of stone used for fences in Palestine, Prov. xxiv. 31. 'inhabited as towns without walls' explained, Zech. ii. 4.
Wandering of the Israelites in the wilderness figuratively described, Numb. xiv. 33.
War, horrours of, how softened by the Jewish law, Deut. xxi. 10.
—— two kinds of, mentioned in the Jewish history, Deut. xx. 10.
—— its profession not unlawful, Luke iii. 13.
—— in heaven, what it signifies, Rev. xii. 7.
Warfare, in the Old Testament, the service of the Levites so called, 1 Tim. i. 18. in the New that of the Christian minister, ibid.
Wariness and watchfulness, importance of to a Christian, 1 Cor. x. 12. object to which they should be directed, ibid.
Warnings of God, mercifulness of them, Deut. xxxii. 50. not to be neglected, ibid.
Wars, preceding the destruction of Jerusalem, Matt. xxiv. 6, 7.
Washing, pardon of sin expressed by it, Is. i. 16.
—— the hands, custom of the Jews before sacrifice, Ps. xxvi. 6. also before meals, Matt. xv. 2.
—— the feet, why so customary in the East, Gen. xviii. 7. practised by the Jews before meals, Luke vii. 38. giving water for this purpose an usual mark of respect to a stranger, ver. 44.
—— the disciples' feet, by Christ, signification of this action, John xiii. 5, 10.
'—— the saints' feet,' what it denotes, 1 Tim. v. 10.
Washings, outward, unavailing without inward cleansing, Matt. xxiii. 26.
Watch in the temple, their alternate cry, Ps. cxxxiv. introd.
Watches, ancient, Jews divided the night into three watches, Judg. vii. 19. Romans, and from them the later Jews, into four, ibid. Matt. xiv. 25; Mark xiii. 35; Exod. xiv. 24.
Watchers, meaning besiegers, Jer. iv. 16. what signified by, Dan. iv. 17.
Watchfulness, earnestly recommended, Matt. xxiv. 42. from the uncertainty of the hour at which our Lord may summon us, Matt. xxv. 13. its blessedness and reward, Luke xii. 37. why recommended with good reason by St. Peter, 1 Pet. v. 8.
Watchmen, stationed in high situations in peace and war, to prevent surprise, 2 Kings ix. 17; Hab. ii. 1. 'tower of the watchmen,' what meant by the term, 2 Kings xvii. 9. put for 'teachers of religion,' Is. lvi. 10.
Water, how to be procured in Egypt and Syria, Exod. vii. 24. its scarcity near the Red sea, Exod. xv. 23. various kinds of places in Egypt for containing it, Exod. vii. 19. why enumerated, ibid. paid for in the East, Numb. xx. 19; Lam. v. 4. instances of gratuitous distribution thought remarkable, Numb. xx. 19. considered in the East as an important part of the provision for a repast, 1 Sam. xxv. 11.
—— of separation explained, Numb. xix. 9. 'he shall pour water out of his buckets' explained, Numb. xxiv. 7. emblem of a large posterity, ibid. blood to be poured on the earth as water, explained, Deut. xii. 16. various opinions respecting the Israelites drawing water and pouring it out, 1 Sam. vii. 6. 'poured water on the hands of Elijah' explained, 2 Kings iii. 11.
Water, supply of, means supply of grace, Is. xli. 17; xliv. 3. the effusion of spiritual gifts foretold under this figure, John vii. 38, 39.
—— and blood, in what sense said of Christ that He came 'by water and blood,' 1 John v. 6.
—— 'having our bodies washed with pure water,' what signified, Heb. x. 22.
Watering the earth in Egypt, machine for it described, Deut. xi. 10. similar practice in China, ibid.
—— the land with the foot, different explanations of the practice, Deut. xi. 10.
Waters, separated from the earth, observed by Strabo as an act of Divine Providence, Gen. i. 9. 'drunk strange waters,' what the phrase implies, 2 Kings xix. 24. troubles and calamities expressed by them, Ps. xviii. 16; cxxx. 1. of Judah, meaning his posterity, Is. xlviii. 1. the Chaldeans compared to, Jer. xlvii. 2. grace of God compared to, Jer. xxxi. 12.
—— living, meaning the Gospel, Zech. xiv. 8.
Wave offering, how differing from heave offering, Exod. xxix. 27.
Way, 'to hedge up a way' explained, Hos. ii. 6.
Wayfaring men, why they 'shall not err,' explained, Is. xxxv. 8.
Waymarks, what they were, explained, Jer. xxxi. 21.
Ways, 'stand ye in the ways,' meaning of the expression, Jer. vi. 16.
Weakness of human nature, shewn in Solomon the wisest of men, 1 Kings xi. 3, 4.
Wealth gotten by falsehood, unstable, Prov. xxi. 6.
—— to be used with sobriety, Eccles. v. 18.
Weapons of warfare, what are those of which St. Paul speaks, 2 Cor. x. 4. to what he opposes them, ibid.
Weather, the changes of it considered, Job xxxviii. 22.
Wedding garment, the custom of wearing it, Matt. xxii. 11. its typical meaning, ibid. ver. 13.
Week, expressed by 'eight days,' John xx. 26.
Weeks, seventy, of Daniel, how to be computed, Dan. ix. 24—26. clearness of this prophecy, ver. 27.
Weight, bread delivered by, mark of scarcity, Lev. xxvi. 26.
Weights, fraudulent diversity of, abominable to the Lord, Prov. xx. 10.
Wells, how closed in Arabia, Gen. xxix. 2. and why, ibid. probable rule concerning, ver. 8, 10. stopped and destroyed by the Arabs out of revenge, Gen. xxvi. 15. of good water a possession of great value, ver. 20. the labour used about them hardly credible to an English ear, ibid. remarkable instances of their great price, ibid. danger of robbers near them in the East, Judg. v. 11.
—— of salvation, explained, Is. xii. 3. without water, used with great force as a comparison, 2 Pet. ii. 17.
Wept, thrice recorded of our Lord, that He wept, Luke xix. 41.
West country, relates to present dispersion of the Jews, Zech. viii. 7.
Whale, put for crocodile, Ezek. xxxii. 2.
Wheat, in the East lodged in subterranean vaults, Jer. xli. 8. beaten in a mortar, Prov. xxvii. 22.
Whether, used for 'which of the two,' Ecclus. xv. 17.
Whirlwind, described, Job i. 19.
Whisperer, base, condemned, Ecclus. v. 14.
White stone, a mark of acquittal, Rev. ii. 17.
—— garments, a mark of favour and honour, Rev. iii. 4.
—— robes, a token of purity, Rev. vii. 9. given to those priests who were admitted into their office, Rev. vi. 11. hence their metaphorical use, ibid.
—— horse, his rider emblematical of Christ, His victory, triumph, and royalty, Rev. vi. 2.
Whited wall, illustration of this expression used by St. Paul to Ananias, Acts xxiii. 3.
Whole congregation, sin of, differently explained, Lev. iv. 13.
Whoredoms, a wife of, explained, Hos. i. 2.
Wicked, their society dangerous, Numb. xvi. 26. curbed by a Divine hand, Numb. xxii. 12. used as instruments of Divine judgment, and then themselves subject to it, 1 Kings xvi. 12; Is. x. 12. their posterity inherit fruit of their sin, Job xx. 29. their prosperity how to be judged of, Ps. lxxiii. 27. God in His future judgment will distinguish between the righteous and them, Ezek. xviii. 20. God has no pleasure in their death, Ezek. xxxiii. 11; Hos. v. 15. argument to render them sensible of the evil of their sins, Rom. vii. 17. the grand excuse by which they justify themselves overturned, ibid. how they fortify themselves against the Gospel, figuratively described, 2 Cor. x. 5. by what their power of doing evil is regulated, 1 Pet. iii. 17.

'Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked' explained, 1 Sam. xxiv. 13. naturally shortens life, Prov. x. 27. why God does not prevent it, or immediately punish it, Matt. xiii. 30. bread of, explained, Prov. iv. 17.

Widow, obligation on the brother of the deceased husband to marry her when left without issue, obtained among nations unconnected with the Jews, Ruth i. 11.

—— of Sarepta, whence her knowledge of the God of Israel and of His Prophet, 1 Kings xvii. 12. her admirable faith and trust in God, ver. 15. her happiness in not shutting her hand to the man of God, ver. 16. her faith revived on the raising of her son, ver. 24.

Widows, no time for their mourning prescribed by law, 2 Sam. xi. 27. that are widows indeed, explained, 1 Tim. v. 3.

Wife, one betrothed was so styled by the Jews, Matt. i. 16, 20.

—— of one man, what meant by the phrase, 1 Tim. v. 9.

Wild beasts, examples of God's punishment by them, Lev. xxvi. 22. abound in Judea, Deut. vii. 22. illustrative of a remark in the Old Testament, ibid.

—— ass, Ishmael compared to one, Gen. xvi. 12. See Ass.

Wilderness, what the word signifies, Jer. ix. 10; Matt. iii. 1; 1 Kings ii. 34; 2 Cor. xi. 26. when opposed to hills signifies plains, Joel i. 19. of the people, explained, Ezek. xx. 35. a church when made one, Hos. ii. 3, 14.

—— of the Red sea, described, Jer. ii. 6. why God led the Israelites that way, Exod. xiii. 18. why a fit place for enjoining the law, Lev. xviii. 3. chief time of travelling in by night, Numb. ix. 21. sometimes by day, ibid. why the Israelites wandered in it so long, ver. 23. its intricacies, Deut. xxxii. 10. how God led Israel about it, ibid.

—— of Judea, where situated, Matt. iii. 1. that where our Lord was tempted, described, Matt. iv. 1.

Will of God, the prayer that it may be done, Matt. vi. 10. best understood by those who best practise it, John vii. 17.

Wind, heat of, in the East, described, Jonah iv. 8. scorching, God's judgments compared to, Jer. xxii. 22. 'to feed on wind' explained, Hos. xii. 1.

—— north, its effect, Prov. xxv. 23.

—— south, accompanied with whirlwinds, Zech. ix. 14.

—— east, what it signifies, Is. xxvii. 7. See East wind.

Winds, tempestuous, signifying wars and commotions, Jer. iv. 11; xlix. 36. 'holding the four winds,' what figuratively expressed, Rev. vii. 1.

Windows, in the East large, and even with the floor of the room, Jer. xxii. 14; Acts xx. 9. what substances the ancients used in them, 1 Cor. xiii. 12.

—— of heaven, explained, Gen. vii. 11.

—— of the ark, Gen. vi. 16. different from the window, Gen. viii. 6.

Wine, why forbidden to the priests, Lev. x. 10. metaphorically used, Deut. xxxii. 32.

—— 'which cheereth God and man' explained, Judg. ix. 13. red preferred to white in the East, Prov. xxiii. 31; Is. xxvii. 2. mixed with the lees highly intoxicating, Prov. xxiii. 30. cooled in snow in the East, Prov. xxv. 13.

—— spiced, explained, Song of Sol. viii. 2. 'wine mixed with water,' force of the expression, Is. i. 22. 'wine on the lees' explained, Is. xxv. 6.

—— of God's wrath, explained, Jer. xiii. 13.

—— 'without mixture,' figuratively denoting the severest punishment, Rev. xiv. 10.

Winepresses, dug in the earth in the East, Matt. xxi. 33. for the purpose of coolness, Is. v. 2. the largest usually without the city, Rev. xiv. 20. to tread the winepress, a prophetick image of destruction, ibid.

Wings, to trust under, remark on the metaphor, Ruth ii. 12.

Winketh with his eyes, explained, Prov. vi. 13.

Winnowing, the manner of it in the East, Ruth iii. 2; Ps. i. 4.

Winter in Judea, its coldness, Matt. xxiv. 20.

Winterhouse, what it was, explained, Jer. xxxvi. 22.

Wires of gold, not formed in the modern way, Exod. xxxix. 3.

Wisdom of God celebrated, Dan. ii. 20.

—— for eternal wisdom, the Son of God, Prov. viii. 22.

—— different meanings of the word, Eccles. i. 1.

—— for all piety, Prov. i. 20. its several degrees, Wisd. vi. 17. what Divine wisdom teaches, Wisd. vii. 17. its superiority set forth, ibid. uncreated and created, distinguished, ver. 22. first step to it, the desire of being wise, Prov. iv. 1. imperfection of human, represented, Eccles. i. 15.

—— pretenders to, among the Gentiles aimed at by St. Paul, Rom. i. 18. how they manifested their folly, ver. 22.

—— what sort of, recommended by the sacred writers, Jam. i. 5. end which it pursues, ibid. means of attaining it, ibid. distinguished from worldly wisdom, ibid. first mode of shewing it, Jam. iii. 13. difference between worldly and heavenly wisdom, ver. 15, 17.

'—— is justified of her children,' meaning of the phrase, Matt. xi. 19.

—— of Solomon, not an inspired book, Introd. to Wisd. composed long after time of Solomon, ibid. not canonical, ibid. author acquainted with Plato's works, ibid. the style, ibid.

—— book of, part supposed to be lost, Wisd. xix. 19.

Wise men, paid honour to our Saviour according to the custom of their country, Matt. ii. 11. reflection on the communication of our Saviour's birth to them, ibid. See Magi.

—— words of the, why compared to goads, Eccles. xii. 11.

'—— men which knew the times,' explained, Esth. i. 13.

Wisehearted, who called so by the Hebrews, Exod. xxviii. 3.

Witch, what sort of person meant, Exod. xxii. 18. See En-dor.

Witchcraft, what meant by it, 1 Sam. xv. 23; Gal. v. 20. its sin, 1 Sam. xv. 23.

Witchcrafts, arts of luxury so called, Nah. iii. 4.

'Without God in the world' explained, Eph. ii. 12.

—— the camp, why the bullock was carried thither, Lev. iv. 12. typical of Christ, ibid. why bodies of beasts burnt there, Lev. xvi. 27.

Witness, 'I call heaven and earth to,' meaning of the phrase, Deut. iv. 26. why used in Scripture, ibid. 'three that bear witness in earth' explained, 1 John v. 8. the believer how said to have the witness in himself, ver. 10. See Three Persons, &c.

Witnesses, in what cases two were required, Deut. xix. 15. in what one might be enough, ibid. conjectures on St. Paul's remark 'in the mouth of two or three &c.' 2 Cor. xiii. 1.

—— the two, what designed by this prophecy, Rev. xi. 3. no two particular persons or churches intended, ibid. what meant by their power to shut heaven, &c. ver. 6. this prophecy not yet fulfilled, ver. 7.

Wives, their submission to their husbands, on what principle enforced, Eph. v. 22. how their behaviour may be an honour to the Gospel, Tit. ii. 5. of the deacons, question concerning the phrase, 1 Tim. iii. 11. why exhorted to amiable behaviour, 1 Pet. iii. 1. what meant by its being coupled with fear, ibid. what meant by honour being given unto them as the weaker vessel, ver. 7. what by their being called 'heirs together of the grace of life,' ibid.

—— formerly multiplied in the East from motives of pomp, 1 Kings xi. 3. buried in same grave with their husbands, Tob. iv. 4.

Wizards, explained, Lev. xix. 31.

Wolves, devour all their prey, Zeph. iii. 3.

—— false teachers so called, Acts xx. 29.

Woman, made in the image of God, Gen. i. 27; ii. 21. sentence upon, explained, Gen. iii. 16. the seed of, why the promised Redeemer especially called so, ver. 20.

—— industry of a virtuous, described, Prov. xxxi. 13.

—— strange, meaning of the term, Prov. ii. 16.

—— a term of address conveying no mark of disrespect, John ii. 4.

—— signifying a city or body politick, Rev. xii. 1. what represented by the earth helping her, ver. 16.

Woman on a scarlet coloured beast, signifying Christian Rome, Rev. xvii. 3.
Women of bad principles, consequence of associating with them, Gen. vi. 2.
—— employed in drawing water in the East, Gen. xxiv. 11, 15.
—— of rank, employed in menial offices in early times, Gen. xxiv. 15.
—— and children, usually spared in war, Gen. xxxiv. 25; Numb. xxxi. 9. law of God to the same effect, ibid.
—— Israelitish, notorious for their idolatry, Deut. xxxii. 19.
—— the custom of their singing the praises of God on remarkable occasions, 1 Sam. xviii. 6. their manner of feasting in the East, Esth. i. 9. apart from the men, ibid. produced in publick on festival occasions in Persia, ver. 11. employed in the East to invite to banquets, Prov. ix. 3. peculiarly employed to celebrate glad tidings, Is. xl. 9.
—— disorderly, great danger from them, Eccles. vii. 28.
—— their practice of acting as teachers in the church not allowed by St. Paul, 1 Cor. xi. 5. indecent manner of performing it condemned, ibid. why he corrected first the indecency of their manner, ibid. the practice itself afterwards expressly condemned, ibid. forbidden to teach in the church, 1 Cor. xiv. 34. precept concerning their attire considered, 1 Tim. ii. 9. what sort of forbidden, ibid. why the precept not to be slighted, ibid. when applicable, ibid. their giving publick and private instruction distinguished, ver. 12. what meant by the passage, 'she shall be saved in childbearing, &c.' ver. 15. what sort of adorning forbidden them, 1 Pet. iii. 3. prohibition not to be strictly understood, ibid. illustrated by a saying of our Lord's, ibid.
Wonder, 'men wondered at' explained, Zech. iii. 8.
Wood offering, explanation of it, Neh. x. 34.
Woods, why the heathens worshipped their gods in them, Deut. xii. 2.
Word, why the second Person in the Godhead is so called, John i. 1; 1 Sam. iii. 21. the name not new to the Jews, as applied to the promised Redeemer, ibid. appeared personally to the Patriarchs, Gen. xviii. 1. to Abraham, ver. 2; xv. 1. presided at the giving of the law, Gal. iii. 19. See Christ, Son of God, &c.
—— of God, the only rule of action, Gen. vi. 22. our only security, Gen. viii. 22. to be received in its integrity, Deut. xii. 32. the excellence of it, Ps. cxix. 96. faithful find it true, ver. 150. why compared to fire, and to a hammer, Jer. xxiii. 29. the terrible chastisement of being deprived of it, Amos viii. 14. its effect when rightly applied, Matt. iv. 11. improvement the end of hearing and reading it, Luke viii. 16. Christians are to 'take care how they hear,' ver. 18. its great effect on sinners, when duly handled, Acts xxiv. 25. how it should be received, 1 Thess. ii. 13. what constitutes it, ibid. See Scriptures.
'—— of God is quick, &c.' question concerning the sense of the expression, Heb. iv. 12. explanation of the passage, ibid.
—— of God must be received with meekness, Jam. i. 21. in what sense must be ingrafted in us, ibid.
—— in season, commended, Prov. xxv. 11.
Words, meaning precepts, Exod. xx. 1.
—— of the law, commanded by Moses to be written on stones, what meant by them, Deut. xxvii. 2.
—— the regulation of our words enforced, Ps. lii. 9. shew the disposition of heart from which they proceed, Matt. xii. 37.
—— of sound doctrine, their authorized sense not to be departed from, Rom. vi. 9.
—— to eat them up, explained, Jer. xv. 16. a play upon words not unusual, Amos viii. 1, 2.
Work, 'him that worketh' explained, Rom. iv. 4. 'him that worketh not, but believeth,' explained, ver. 5. used in opposition to grace, Rom. xi. 6.
—— of God, Christians so called, Rom. xiv. 20.
—— nothing to hinder us from working out our own salvation, Phil. ii. 13. how connected with the declaration that God worketh in us, &c. ibid. 'it is God which worketh in you, &c.' in what connexion to be understood, ibid. God's work in us, whence it proceeds, ibid. not irresistible, ibid. what meant by it, Phil. ii. 13. an encouragement to our diligence, ibid. result of the whole, ibid. God's working in us no reason for presumption and security, ibid. rather a motive to fear and trembling, ibid.
'Work of faith, and labour of love, and patience of hope,' Hebraisms explained, 1 Thess. i. 3.
Workmanship, how Christians are God's workmanship, Eph. ii. 10. to what end, ibid.
Works of God which demand our praise, enumerated, Ps. cxlv. 5.
—— good, indispensable to salvation, Matt. vii. 21. inseparable from right faith, ibid.
—— those which St. Paul excludes from justification, what they are not, Rom. iii. 31. what they are, ibid.
—— of repentance, necessary to justification, Rom. iv. 8.
—— of the law, not to be confounded with good works, Gal. iv. 31. the former abolished by the Gospel, ibid. the latter of eternal obligation, ibid. their necessity to salvation, ibid.
—— of righteousness, two descriptions of, distinguished as conditions of happiness, Tit. iii. 5.
—— of the devil, how destroyed by the manifestation of the Son of God, 1 John iii. 8.
World, meaning Babylonish empire, Is. xiii. 11. meaning the land of Judea, Acts xi. 28. meaning the Roman empire, Luke ii. 1; Col. i. 6.
—— meaning the unbelieving and impenitent world, John xvii. 9, 10. what it usually signifies in Scripture, Rom. xii. 2. and why, ibid.
—— 'since the world began,' different significations, Rom. xvi. 25. general state of when Christ came, suited to the purposes of His coming, Gal. iv. 4.
—— what meant by being crucified to it, Gal. vi. 14. why necessary, ibid. ruling love to the ways of it not consistent with saving faith, ibid. this does not prohibit the comforts and duties of life, ibid.
—— to come, what the phrase denotes, Heb. ii. 5. whence derived, ibid.
—— how the phrase of 'the whole world' used, 1 John ii. 2. in what sense Jesus called the Saviour of it, ibid. caution against understanding it in a restrained sense, ibid.
—— by whom overcome, 1 John v. 4. by what weapon to be overcome, ibid.
—— its population before the flood, Gen. vii. 19. He who made it alone knows how it should be governed, Job xxxviii. 4.
—— the conversion of the, our duty to pray for, Ps. c. 4.
—— the established course of, an object of admiration, Ps. cxxxvi. 4.
—— kingdoms of the, how to be understood, Jer. xxv. 26.
—— Hebrews have no one word to express it, Hag. ii. 6. how expressed by them, Gen. i. 1; ii. 1.
—— whole, why Aaron's garment symbol of it, Wisd. xviii. 24.
Worldly men, their incredulity and sin, Gen. xix. 14. things to which they are devoted, to what three heads reduced, 1 John ii. 16. their inconsistency with religious dispositions, ibid. how we may be secured from them, ibid. reflections on the names by which the Apostles describe them, ibid.
—— lusts, what meant by them, Tit. ii. 12. the evil effects of prosecuting them, ibid. why we are commanded to deny them, ibid. a parallel phrase in the Liturgy, ibid.
—— motives, of a scribe in following Christ, Matt. viii. 19.
Worldly-mindedness, the cause of all other abominations, Gen. vi. 11. forbidden by Christ, Luke xvi. 25. See Earthly things.
Worm that never dieth, allusion of the phrase, Mark ix. 46.
Worship of God, wherein different from heathen rites, Exod. xx. 26. minutest matters provided for, Lev. vi. 10. to be kept pure from heathenish ceremonies, Deut. xii. 32. exhortation to it from the example of Hezekiah, Is. xxxviii. 5. under the Messiah to be purged of superstition, Mal. iii. 3.
—— of Christ, permitted by Himself, Matt. xxviii. 17.
—— religious, paid to Christ by His disciples, Luke xxiv. 52. See Adoration, Christ the proper object of worship.
—— objects of, difference of their moral effect on heathens and Christians, 1 Pet. i. 15.
—— the spiritual spoken of by known terms of worship in use, Is. xix. 19.

Worship, used for reverence, Dan. ii. 46; Luke xiv. 10. for obeisance and prostration, Matt. ii. 11; viii. 2.
Worth, old Saxon verb signifying 'to be,' Ezek. xxx. 2.
Wounds, meaning reproof, Prov. xxvii. 6.
Wrap up, to make intricate, Mic. vii. 3.
Wrath of God, what meant by its being revealed to the Gentiles, Rom. i. 18.
'—— of man,' what meant by its 'working not the righteousness of God,' Jam. i. 20.
—— generation of, explained, Jer. vii. 29. See Children.
Wrest, metaphor whence taken, 2 Pet. iii. 16.
Wrestle, what man wrestled with Jacob, Gen. xxxii. 24.
Wrestlers, expression taken from them, Ps. xli. 9.
Wrestling and boxing, one of the Grecian games alluded to, 1 Cor. ix. 25. what it consisted of, ibid. previous preparation for, ibid. how applicable to Christians, ibid.
Writer, a wise, requires a wise reader, applied, Prov. i. 6.
Writers of the New Testament, their inability to express their gratitude for God's love in Jesus Christ, Eph. i. 7. reflection with respect to all Christians, ibid.
Writing, ancient method of, Job xix. 23; Deut. xxvii. 2.
Written in heaven, what custom alluded to, Luke x. 20. See Book of life.

X.

Xerxes, his expedition against Greece prophesied of, Dan. xi. 2.

Y.

Yea, how used by the Greeks, 2 Cor. i. 20.
—— and nay, explained, 2 Cor. i. 18.
Year, civil and ecclesiastical, began at different times, Exod. xii. 2; Neh. viii. 2.
Years, put for days, Is. xx. 3. the twelve hundred and sixty, reflections on prophecy of, Dan. xii. 7.
Yoke, raised forward to cool the neck, how alluded to, Hos. xi. 4.
Yokefellow, conjecture as to the person intended, Phil. iv. 3.
Yokes, what they were, Jer. xxvii. 2. of iron, explained, Jer. xxviii. 13.
Young man, who so called by the Hebrews, Exod. xxxiii. 11.
—— what the young ought to remember, Eccles. xi. 9. what directions they should be guided by, Ps. cxix. 9.
Younger, what the word denotes, 1 Pet. v. 5.
Youth, 'from his youth' explained, Gen. viii. 21.
—— season for acquiring knowledge, Prov. viii. 17.
—— 'husband of,' 'wife of,' explained, Joel i. 8.
—— 'let no man despise thy youth' explained, 1 Tim. iv. 12.

Z.

Zaanan, where situate, Mic. i. 11.
Zabianism, what it means, Job xxxi. 26. only species of idolatry noticed in Job, ibid. See Sun and heavenly bodies.
Zaccheus, probability as to his origin, Luke xix. 9. remarks on his sincerity, and his eagerness to embrace the Gospel, ver. 6, 9. what he meant by professing, 'the half of my goods, &c.' ver. 8.
Zacharias, (son of Barachias,) who is the person intended, Matt. xxiii. 35.
—— (father of John the Baptist,) what meant by his being righteous before God, Luke i. 6. why temporary dumbness was inflicted on him, ver. 20. his hymn of thanksgiving, ver. 67. propriety of using it in our Church service, ibid.
Zadok, why spoken of before Abiathar, 2 Sam. xv. 29. in what sense anointed to be priest, 1 Chron. xxix. 22.
Zair, its probable situation, 2 Kings viii. 21.
Zarephath, how called in the New Testament, 1 Kings xvii. 9. its situation, ibid. its present name and state, ibid.
Zeal in a good thing exemplified and commended, Numb. xxv. 13. described, Ps. cxix. 139. should be tempered by discretion, Luke ix. 55. 'a zeal of God' explained, Rom. x. 2.
—— of the Lord of hosts, what it means, 2 Kings xix. 31.
'Zealously affect you, but not well,' explained, Gal. iv. 17.
Zebulon, tribe of, its situation, Gen. xlix. 13. exactly described by Jacob, ibid. why joined with that of Issachar in the blessing of Moses, Deut. xxxiii. 18. their different pursuits and riches specified, ibid. the former a commercial people, ibid. some of the arts practised by them probably referred to, ver. 19. their religious zeal, ibid.
Zechariah, (son of Jehoiada,) put to death by Joash, 2 Chron. xxiv. 21. his prophecy of God's judgments in punishment of his murderers, ver. 22. no revengeful spirit in his last words, ibid.
—— in the days of Uzziah, probably son of Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, 2 Chron. xxvi. 5. his character, ibid.
—— (son of Berechiah,) in what sense called son of Iddo, Ezra v. 1. account of him, Introd. to Zech. and of his prophecies, ibid. his style, ibid. and resemblance to Jeremiah, ibid. his probable age at the time of his third vision, Zech. ii. 4. remarks on his being said to prophesy unto or against the Jews, Ezra v. 1. his remarkable prediction of the coming of Messiah, Zech. ix. 9, 10. his conduct typical of that of Christ, Zech. xi. 4. prophecy from him pressed upon the Jews by St. Paul, Rom. iii. 30.
Zedad, where situate, Ezek. xlvii. 15.
Zedekiah, why this name given him by the king of Babylon, 2 Kings xxiv. 17. why called the son of Jeconiah, 1 Chron. iii. 16. how made a tributary king, Jer. xxxvii. 1. propriety of Jeremiah's address to him, Jer. xxvii. 12. reflections on his behaviour to Jeremiah, Jer. xxxviii. 28. thought the prophecies of Jeremiah and Ezekiel inconsistent with each other, Ezek. xii. 13. why called profane and wicked by the latter, Ezek. xxi. 25. his breach of faith with Nebuchadnezzar, why permitted, 2 Kings xxiv. 20. a solemn sentence passed against him by the Babylonians, 2 Kings xxv. 6. the two predictions concerning him remarkably fulfilled, ver. 7; Ezek. xii. 13.
Zelophehad's daughters, law relating to them concerned only heiresses, Numb. xxxvi. 8.
Zenas, who he was, Tit. iii. 13.
Zephaniah, contemporary with Jeremiah, Jer. xxv. 4. of tribe of Simeon, when he prophesied, preceded Jeremiah, his style, Introd. to Zeph.
Zerubbabel, the four descriptions of persons who returned with him, 1 Chron. ix. 2. a type of Messiah, Hag. ii. 21, 23; Jer. xxx. 21. improbable circumstance related of him, 1 Esdr. iv. 13, 47. See Tirshatha.
Ziba, his well contrived fiction to obtain Mephibosheth's possessions, 2 Sam. xvi. 3.
Zidon, country of, or Phenicia, Gen. xlix. 13.
—— city of, mother city of Tyre, Ezek. xxviii. 21. sketch of its history, ibid. See Tyre.
Ziklag, its situation, 1 Sam. xxvii. 6.
Zimri, the Simeonite, aggravating circumstances in his crime, Numb. xxv. 6.
—— a people of Arabia, why so called, Jer. xxv. 25.
Zin, wilderness of, its situation, Numb. xiii. 21; xx. 1. particular parts of it, ibid. sometimes called the wilderness, ibid. and why, ibid.
Zion, why called God's holy hill, Ps. iii. 4. fortification on it described, 1 Mac. iv. 60. Son of God to be visibly present there foretold, Ps. l. 2. mountains of, what probably intended, Ps. cxxxiii. 3. daughter of, what part of Jerusalem intended, 2 Kings xix. 21. why called 'a virgin,' ibid. spiritually for the Church, Mic. iv. 7. the conduct of a true citizen of, described, Ps. xv. introd.
Zipporah, why Moses sent her back, Exod. xviii. 2.
Zoan, or Tanis, its situation, antiquity, and character, Numb. xiii. 22; Is. xix. 13; Ezek. xxx. 14; Ps. lxxviii. 12.
Zoar, where situated, Gen. xiii. 10. meaning of the name, Gen. xix. 22. reflections on its preservation, ibid.
Zobah, kingdom of, its situation, 2 Sam. viii. 3.
Zodiack referred to, Wisd. xiii. 2.
Zorobabel. See Zerubbabel.
Zuph, where situated, Deut. i. 1.
—— land of, its situation, 1 Sam. ix. 5.

THE END.